Fire station becomes focus of Public Safety Building Committee

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – The proposed public safety building in Charlton is not yet a dead issue, despite being voted down emphatically by taxpayers during a special election in August. While planning for the project will proceed, the results of the vote have led selectmen to request a smaller scale project, one that removes the police department from the proposal.

Despite appropriating $28.5 million for the construction of the proposed 40,800-square-foot facility in May Charlton voters cast a 860-491 vote against the project in early August with some seeing the project as too big while others felt the money would be better spent elsewhere. While the vote served as a serious setback for the initiative, which mainly seeks to provide a successor to the 61-year-old fire headquarters, the Board of Selectmen has instructed the Public Safety Building Committee to try once more at receiving public support by removing the police department from the plans. The Public Safety Building Committee had recommended focusing on the fire department after meeting on August 15, two days after the failed vote.

According to Fire Captain Rob Barton, who spoke during the Aug. 27 meeting of the Board of Selectmen, four options were considered by the committee, including proposing a smaller and cheaper building and building a new fire station while renovating the police station. The committee also considered dropping the police station from the discussion altogether and focusing only on a new fire station.

"For 25 years, we've been trying to get a fire station constructed, and pretty much that's where the public has voiced their concern on social media and in person, that they would support a fire station," Fire Captain Rob Baron said acting as a member of the Public Safety Building Committee. "We on the Public Safety Building

Running Out Of Summer 5K raises more than $5,000

STURBRIDGE — The second annual Running Out Of Summer (ROOS) 5K, co-hosted by Wormtown Milers and Rapscallion Brewery, took place on Saturday, Aug. 24 at Rapscallion Brewery in Sturbridge. The race, which started in 2018 and quickly became a local favorite, benefits Second Chance Animal Services, which has locations in Worcester, East Brookfield, North Brookfield, and Springfield. This year, ROOS 5K raised more than $5,000 for Second Chance while also finding homes for shelter puppies.

"We are beyond thrilled that ROOS 5K was once again a resounding success," commented Emma Thibault, ROOS 5K Race Director. "While we are all incredibly happy with the fact that the race netted a $5,000 donation for Second Chance, we are even more excited by the fact that four homeless puppies were adopted by participants on race day."

The puppies, who were all mixed breed and arrived in style on race day in the Second Chance mobile adoption unit, were one of the highlights of the race. Runners and spectators visited with the pups until one by one they were adopted and the mobile adoption unit drove back to the shelter empty.

"Seeing four of our puppies go home to such wonderful families was a highlight of race day," said Lindsay Doray, Director of Development at Second Chance Animal Services. "We are so appreciative of the support from ROOS 5K, and we are already looking forward to partnering with

Alternate funding source sought for LED signs

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – Over the past few years, the town of Charlton has invested both time and money in helping to resolve traffic concerns throughout the town, including forming a Civilian Traffic Commission to help lead conversations concerning needed safety improvements and initiatives.

In 2018, the commission succeeded in earning support for four LED stop signs meant to help improve the visibility of signs as commuters approach. The commission is seeking to add two more similar units to the intersection of Brookfield Road and Stafford Street replacing existing standard stop signs in the process.

At the Board of Selectmen's final August meeting of 2019 Town Administrator Robin Craver detailed the request from the Civilian Traffic Commission which would see money being expended from the Casella donation account, reported to have a balance of over $6,855.

"The cost of these two signs would be approximately $4,500. These blinker sign flashing LED stop signs have a rechargeable solar power battery that displays red lights in the corner of the octagon sign thereby making the sign more visible to motorists," Craver said.

Selectmen showed unanimous support for the signs and an understanding for their purpose, but it was the funding source that created decision as several selectmen felt the Casella money should be left alone. Selectman Bill Borowski said he would certainly support purchasing the signs, but not with the Casella donation account funds.

"I would happily support this at town meeting or some other payment method, be it free cash or whatever. I do not want to touch that Casella account. I think we've had enough problems with it to begin with," Borowski said.

Voters to decide on designation of police officials

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – It looks like the town of Charlton will seriously consider the possibility of removing at least two police officials from their status as civil service employees, with two items projected for the October annual town meeting warrant to change the status of the chief and lieutenant.

In late July, Selectman David Singer proposed the idea of removing possibly all police officers hired in the foreseeable future from civil service status, designating them as public service employees instead. That idea has since been downsized to only changing the status of the chief and lieutenant. During the Board of Selectmen's Aug. 27 meeting, Chief Graham Maxfield presented his opinions on the pros and cons of the change, with Town Administrator Robin Craver reading from Maxfield's prepared statements.

Craver started with the pros, which argued that removing the chief and lieutenant from civil service would allow for the town to have more control in the hiring process.

"It would make it permissible to hire transfers from nonunion civil service agencies who would be otherwise prohibited from applying for a position from the department. We are in effect able to hire any qualified candidate. We are able to promote without going through an exam or an assessment process should the town choose. This would save a lot of time and money. Being able to promote without an exam or assessment process would allow the town to reward people who demonstrate leadership skills in the daily performance of their job versus someone who may simply test well," Craver read.

On the other hand, the chief's list of cons noted that the change could risk opening such hires up to accusations of politics and would increase the cost of the town when handling disciplinary measures as well as when working with the union.

"We are able to promote without going through an exam or assessment process should the town choose, which could lend itself to politics. Negotiating with the union to go out of civil service would likely come with a substantial cost. A simple town meeting vote to remove the department from civil service could take decades to accomplish the intended purpose of completely removing the department (from civil service) and disciplinary action against an employee would no longer go to civil service but instead to an arbitrator where the town would be responsible for 50 percent of the cost of the arbitrator," Craver read.

Chief Maxfield was present for the discussion and said he felt that collective bargaining would lead to the best transition should the town decide to approve removing either the chief or lieutenant from civil service. If approved, the changes would be considered special legislative acts and would apply only to future hiring for both positions.

Selectman David Singer said his inspiration for seeking to remove at least the two commanding officer positions from civil service came from a lack of transparency in the assessment center process. While he commended that process, he noted that the town doesn't get to see any data and in forced to hire base on test scores which don't take into account personality and other factors important to succeeding in the job.

"I think we, as a town, should have the right to read the actual assessments. You may have someone who tests well but in those notes of the assessment it may point out that the person, while they may have tested higher, may not have been personality wise the best fit for your town. We don't know that," Singer said.

Chief Maxfield said his research has shown this is the preferred direction of many towns in the commonwealth. While it does open the door for politics in the hiring process, it also gives the town much more control.

"I think more towns are moving that way because generally the towns want more control over who they hire. Civil service is pretty rigid in the process. The rules are pretty defined," Chief Maxfield said. "It does lend itself to the politics because it's the decision of this board, and then an election goes by and another board could feel another way. That's the only thing to bear in mind."

Voters will have their chance to decide whether or not to remove either the chief or lieutenant from civil service designation during the October annual town meeting as selectmen have voiced their intention to add two items, one for each position, on the warrant rather than voting on both positions at the same time.

AAA reminds motorists to drive carefully with school back in session

REGION — As the new school year begins, AAA Northeast reminds both motorists and families that extra caution is needed as children make their way to school by walking and riding in areas where they weren't seen over the summer.

The greatest risk to children isn't when they're riding the school bus; it's approaching or leaving them. Between 2008 and 2017, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) reports 264 school-age children were killed in school transportation-related crashes, primarily when they waited at bus stops or crossed streets before boarding or getting off school buses.

"Children can get caught up in the excitement of back to school time and might forget to look for cars even though motorists are required to yield and stop for school buses with activated lights," said Mark Schieldrop, AAA Northeast Massachusetts spokesperson. "Drivers need to be aware ~~es~~especially in school zones, near playgrounds and at bus stops ~~th~~at kids might dart into streets."

Through its annual School's Open C Drive Carefully campaign, AAA offers tips to drivers to keep children safe:

Slow down. Speed limits in school zones are reduced for a reason. A pedestrian struck by a vehicle traveling at 25 mph is nearly two-thirds less likely to be killed compared to a pedestrian struck by a vehicle traveling just 10 mph faster.

Come to a complete stop. Research shows more than one-third of drivers roll through stop signs in school zones or neighborhoods.

Look for clues, such as AAA School Safety Patrollers, crossing guards, and school zone signs that indicate children are in the area.

Keep your eyes moving. Scan between parked cars; look for shadows on the ground. Since children can be quick crossing roadways unexpectedly or emerging suddenly between parked cars, understand that taking your eyes off the road for just two seconds doubles your chances of colliding with another car or pedestrian.

On the other hand, parents and guardians should teach school-aged children to:

Cross at corners, not in mid-block. Use crosswalks if they're available.

Right on reds can be dangerous; watch for turning vehicles when crossing at corners.

Eliminate electronics such as headphones and cellphones when crossing streets.

AAA Northeast reminds drivers that flashing yellow lights on a school bus means slow down because the bus is preparing to stop. Red flashing lights means stop, including cars in the opposite lane on undivided roads. In Massachusetts, the law requires drivers to stop at least 100 feet behind a school bus and stay stopped until the bus light stops flashing, the extended stop-arm is retracted and the bus begins to move.

"Safe driving habits are important year-round, but extra diligence is required when children are heading to and from school," Schieldrop added.

AAA Northeast is a not-for-profit auto club with 64 offices in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, New Hampshire and New York, providing more than 5.7 million local AAA members with travel, insurance, finance, and auto-related services.

Southbridge resident to participate in Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk

SOUTHBRIDGE — One resident from Southbridge will walk one of the four designated distances along the historic Boston Marathon® course this September in the Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai, which raises the most money of any single day walk in the country.

Shelly Boisvert will join 9,000 expected participants in the annual event, which takes place Sunday, Sept. 22. Money raised from the Jimmy Fund Walk will support adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at the nation's premier cancer center, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. The event has raised more than $135 million over 30 years. The Boston Athletic Association has supported the event since 1989, and Hyundai has been the presenting sponsor since 2002.

"The Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai gives participants the opportunity to personally support breakthroughs in cancer care and research at the renowned Dana-Farber Cancer Institute," said Zack Blackburn, director of the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk. "Every step taken in walking and fundraising in our 30-plus year history is a step forward in the journey to conquer cancer."

There is a distance option for everyone. Participants can choose from any of the below four distances along the historic Boston Marathon course:

- 5K Walk (3.1 miles) from Dana-Farber Cancer Institute; starting at 1:45 p.m.
- 10K Walk (6.2 miles) from Newton; rolling start from 10 a.m. to noon.
- Half Marathon Walk (13.1 miles) from Wellesley; rolling start from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.
- Marathon Walk (26.2 miles) from Hopkinton; rolling start from 5:30 to 7:30 a.m.

Walkers are treated to 12 refueling stations along the course, as well as poster-sized photographs of inspiring Walk Heroes at each mile and half mile marker.

All distance options conclude at the Copley Square Finish Line where participants receive a commemorative 2019 Jimmy Fund Walk medal and celebrate with teammates and volunteers. As Walkers cross the finish line, they will be cheered on by volunteers and fellow Walkers. There will be inspiring speakers, games, music, food, and other fun activities.

All walkers must raise a minimum of $325, except for walkers 12-years-old and younger whose fundraising minimum is $125. Pacesetters are extraordinary fundraisers who raise $1,500 or more, or $500 or more for those 12-years-old and younger. There is also a Virtual Walker option for those unable to attend the event on Sept. 22, who still want to support the cause.

To register for the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk (#JimmyFundWalk), to support a walker, or to volunteer, visitwww.JimmyFundWalk.org or call (866) 531-9255. Registrants can enter the promo code NEWS for $5 off the registration fee. Cornerstone Bank donates to Stuff the Bus Campaign

WORCESTER — Summer is winding down, and students are beginning to prepare for the school year ahead. This can be a financially difficult time for parents having to provide not only new school clothes, but also school supplies. Cornerstone Bank helps students in need by holding its annual "Stuff the Bus" drive to gather backpacks and school supplies for students in the surrounding communities.

From July 31 through Aug. 9, Cornerstone Bank customers and employees generously donated many back to school items to Planting the Seed Foundation of Worcester and the YMCA of Southbridge. The Planting the Seed Foundation will distribute the donated supplies to needy children in Worcester while the YMCA of Southbridge will donate items to children that they service throughout the Southbridge Public School system. These items will help students succeed during the school year—both academically and socially.

"We are happy to be able to support students throughout our community," stated Cornerstone Bank Chairman and CEO K. Michael Robbins. "Thank you to all of our customers and employees for making this year's Stuff the Bus drive a success."

Name: Lottie
Breed: DSH
Sex: Spayed Female
Age: 3 Years

My name is Lottie. I am a very sweet natured cat who is a little shy initially with new people. But once I feel comfortable with you, I want to be your new best friend. I am a very pretty tuxedo girl. I am strictly an indoor companion. I came to the shelter with Bella but the shelter staff thinks that we can be adopted separately. I am very compatible with other felines (no history of dogs). I hope I am adopted soon.

The MBA's leadership team for the 2019-2020 year includes President John J. Morrissey, President-elect Denise I. Murphy, Vice President Thomas M. Bond, Treasurer Grace V.B. Garcia and Secretary Damian J. Turco. Martin W. Healy is the MBA's chief legal counsel and chief operating officer. Full officer bios are available at www.massbar.org/officers.

Noble disagreed. Even with the LED signs currently in place she noted that traffic is still dangerous and that adding the new signs sooner rather than later would at least help resolve the increasingly concerning trend.

"Even with the two LED stop signs in a period of about three weeks there were three very bad accidents at that intersection. We need to do something more," Noble said.

"Two sides stop, two sides don't and it's just a constant problem."

Selectmen voted in a 3-2 decision to deny the purchase with Selectmen Borowski, David Singer and Karen Spiewak voting against the proposal on the grounds that they felt the money needed to come from a different source. Selectmen Noble and John McGrath voted in favor of the purchase. The proposal is expected to be on the October annual town meeting warrant.

Plants and pollinators

Gus Steeves Photos

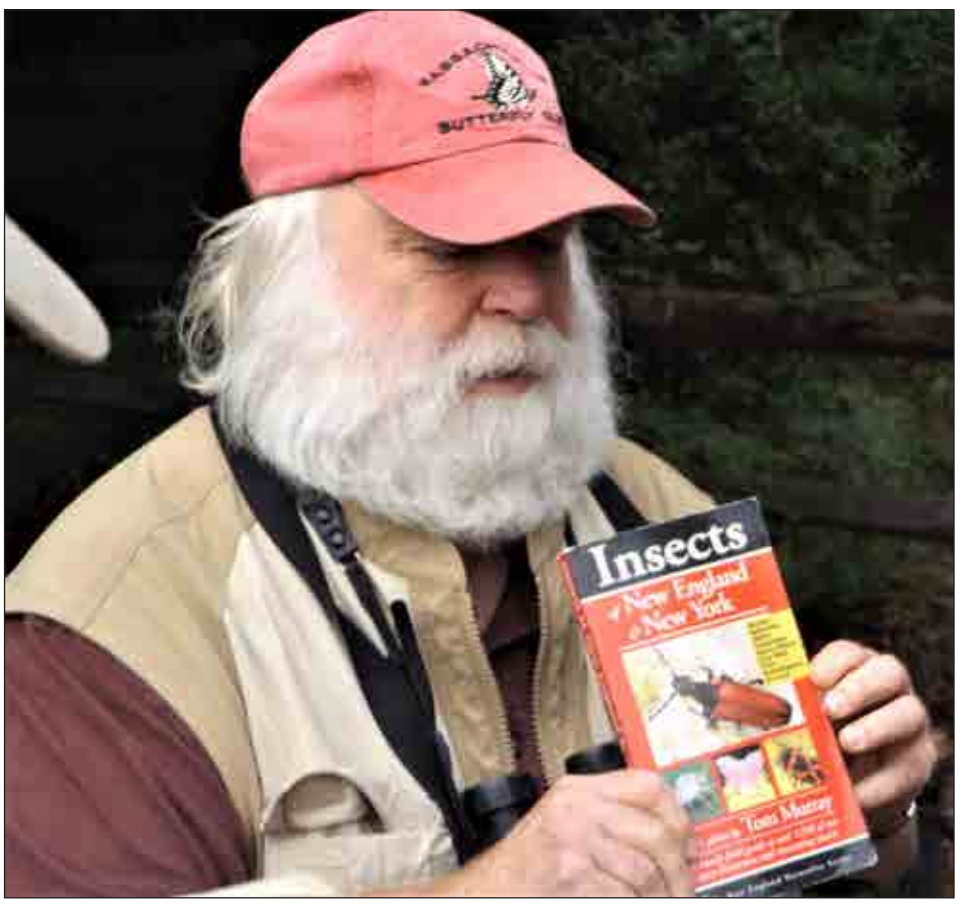
Often overlooked, vilified and poisoned, insects play a crucial role in our lives. Without them, we'd starve to death, and most other species would also cease to exist.

Last week, about 20 people from across the region got an intimate exposure to many of the insects and the plants they pollinate at Norcross Wildlife Sanctuary in Wales. Led by naturalists Dan Jaffe, Dave Small and Leslie Duthie, the tour wove through Norcross's gardens, fields and wetlands to explore the great variety of native life many of us ignore and/or take for granted.

Many of the insects were tiny; some looked a lot like bees but weren't; some soared for hours munching on mosquitoes. Some were in adult form; others were still rolled up in the leaves that protect them as they pupate.

Like the plants, they're everywhere – several species of native milkweeds, bright red cardinal flowers, blueberries, countless trees, flowers in all kinds of colors and shapes and sizes. Many are also edible, at least in part or at certain times of year.

Leslie Duthie contemplates a plant.

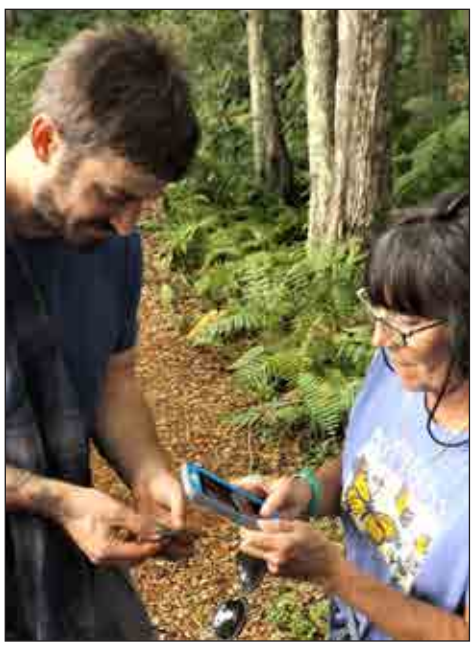


Dave Small holds up one of his main guides for understanding the insect world.

One of many, many species of dragonfly that inhabit our region poses on a leaf. (Just imagine that this insect's ancestors had wingspans of about 25 inches.)

Dan Jaffe cuts into a puffball.

Dan Jaffe checks out the flower of wild bergamot.



Dan Jaffe holds a leaf with a spicebush swallowtail caterpillar so a participant can take a picture.

Committee do not think that's the greatest idea; however, we're only one vote each. So, the committee decided that we though it would be best for us to move forward with the fire station and communications center and renovate the police station by freeing up their communications center which would allow them to be able to have some more space."

Captain Baron said it wasn't and "ideal situation," and said he felt the price tag led to "sticker shock." With no way to reduce the building as originally proposed without compromising its efficiency for the future, the Public Safety Committee knew they had to make significant changes to at least get the fire station project going.

"I think the taxpayers spoke very loud and clear," Captain Baron said.

While the compromise didn't sit well with all selectmen, some saw it as a necessary act to at least get the most significant project underway. Selectman John McGrath echoed Captain Baron's comments that it appears there is more public support for the fire station alone than for a high-priced duel-purpose public safety facility.

"I believe if we move forward with the fire station and the communication addition to the new building that we would be well served by doing that," McGrath said. "We'll let the committee get all their numbers and data together, as they're talking about now."

Selectman Bill Borowski, who supported the project at the voting booth, seemed to understand that the price tag could have been a huge factor in the negative vote, although he stopped short of calling the compromise a better plan in the long run.

"For right or wrong, I'm dealing with practical realities at the moment, people are much more amenable to a price tag of $10 - $15 million. Now whether we pay for that from a debt exclusion or some sort of incremental revenue it's still tax money at the end of the day," Borowski said. "The reality is that it's not a combined station. That's just not going to happen. A better plan is to have a combined station right now, but where do we go from here? People want to look at the police station to see what it will cost to make modifications. There's concerns in town that we don't have a wholistic capital plan."

Selectman Debra Noble expressed her opinion that the compromise was not in line with the overall goal of the project, and that it still leaves the police station, which is 28 years old, undersized and in an unsafe location.

"Our current police station is not up to code. It's nowhere near up to code. It's an accident waiting to happen. When people are released from custody they have to walk out through the lobby. There are no public restrooms. There's no privacy," Noble said. "This bill is going to come due and I understand $28.5 million is a lot of money and I don't think it was presented well – I'm disappointed about what happened at the poles because this is a public safety issue."

Noble was joined by Selectman Karen Spiewak in voting against the compromised plan, while Selectmen McGrath and Borowski were joined by Selectman David Singer in approving the smaller-scale plan. While the vote on the new approach to the project was divided selectmen did come together to unanimously agree to purchase the 19.3-acre plot on the Overlook Masonic Home property where the public safety facility was to be built. This would imply the same land would be used for the project even adjusted for a smaller scale. Voters approved the $179,000 purchase in May of last year before an anonymous donor pitched in $100,000 to offset some of the cost to the town.

Wormtown Milers and Rapscallion Brewery in 2020!"

The puppies weren't the only winners on race day. Overall male and female winners were Norman Everett of Auburn, with a time of 18:57 and Kristen Liberty of Thompson, Conn., with a time of 23:11, respectively. Their prize was a customized mug which includes a one-year membership to the Rapscallion Mug Club. Mr. Everett ran for team Wormtown Milers while Ms. Liberty ran for team November Project Worcester. The largest team award went to Tri-State Running, and the fastest team award went to Wormtown Milers.

The day was bright and sunny, and runners enjoyed the scenic course. After the race, all participants were treated to a free beer, the Running Out Of Summer Saison, specially brewed just for the race. In addition, runners, their families, and their dogs enjoyed live music by Josh Briggs, a live raffle drawing, and pushup challenges by 9Round Worcester — James Street in the brewery.

Editorial

The other most wonderful time of the year

The first day of fall is nearly upon us. Sept. 23 will officially usher in the season when it becomes socially acceptable to drink apple cider and pumpkin flavored coffee, doughnuts, bread…even Spam has apparently gotten in on the act now, although we must personally draw the line there; and burn fall scented candles. Starbucks and Dunkin' Donuts already began spotlighting their fall menus roughly two weeks ago.

Pumpkin enthusiasts beware, however…on the flip side, there are several people who think it is too soon. A survey that posed the question, 'When is it OK to start drinking and eating pumpkin?' responses including the following:

'Right now!'

'First day of fall.'

'I always strive for after Labor Day, but often start on July 12th.'

'I'm waiting until Sept. 1st.'

And our favorite…

'After zucchini season.'

It is true, there are more people in New England who are holding on to every last bit of summer than those looking forward to fall. To those people, we get it. We do live, after all, in a part of the country where the populace has become famous — or is that infamous? — for refusing to swap their flip flops for boots until the first snow fall.

The end of the summer season really isn't so bad, though. With fall comes hearty crock pot recipes, crisp evenings, sweaters, boots, homecoming and Halloween. The closer to Halloween we get, the closer to snow, which means the ski resorts will soon be open for businesses. What could be better?

Perhaps the best part about fall is the foliage. The leaves are already beginning to change, and soon, our little corner of New England will be swarming with tourists fixated on taking in the vibrant reds, yellows, and oranges, cameras in tow. Peak foliage will hit during the last week of September through the first week of October.

The Old Farmer's Almanac predicts a snowier than ever winter, but we're also fine with that. From our perspective, the more powder days Mother Nature provides to keep New England's skiing industry alive, the better.

Within the next several weeks, temperatures will drop drastically, with some hot days still sprinkled in for balance. The good news is that there is still plenty of time to sneak in a few more summer hikes, a few final kayaking sessions on the lake, a few more backyard barbecues, or a day reading out on the hammock before the time will come to break out the flannel again.

So, whether you're still sipping piña coladas or drinking a pumpkin spiced latte and dreaming of Jack O' Lanterns and the smell of wood stoves, we encourage you to savor the moment.

Positively Speaking

By Gary W. Moore

I was perspiring even though it was bitterly cold. I locked my gaze down the long slope and was stunned by the difference in perspective. From the base of the mountain, the run looked shallow and manageable but from this vantage point … it seemed nothing short of treacherous. Falling and breaking a leg, or worse, were the thoughts coursing through my mind.

I took a breath, dug in my ski poles and pushed off. Just as in my lessons, I moved cautiously, slaloming from side to side, enjoying the experience. The bright sun, blue sky and white powder created a picturesque and perfect moment. A smile played across my face. I was in Vail, Colo., and somewhat gracefully enjoying a picturesque moment, balanced perfectly on top of my skis.

Then it hit me. I'm inexperienced and potentially in a dangerous situation. I felt the downward momentum increasing. My heart raced. A picture in my mind replaced the beauty before me. As though it was real, I could see the ski patrol in their bright orange clothing, placing me in their stretcher and pulling me down to the base of the mountain to the waiting helicopter and the short flight to the local trauma center.

I visualized the danger so vividly, I began scanning the snow ahead, searching for a place of my choosing to execute a controlled fall and I did.

I laid on the ground as other skiers whisked by, enjoying their day. I took inventory of my limbs and found everything was in working order. I was not paralyzed. Nothing was broken except my confidence and pride. I removed my ski's and spent the next few hours walking down the access road from an 11,000-foot peak.

I never put skis on my feet again.

Fear is a natural emotion that is ingrained into our DNA, and can be useful in some situations but can also be an irrational response to events that are unreal and only imagined. Fear may someday save your life, but more often, this strong emotion will limit your experiences, success and fun.

The late great Zig Ziglar taught us that F.E.A.R. is nothing more than False Evidence Appearing Real. A perceived danger amplified in our minds that pushes us to have an irrational response.

I'd taken ski lessons every year, while visiting slopes in Wisconsin and Michigan. Tall hills to be sure, but nothing like the ski resorts of the Rocky Mountains. I mastered the midwestern slopes with ease and felt assured that I was ready for Vail. Physically and technically I was prepared. Mentally … not so much.

I allowed doubt in my experience and ability to seize control over my thoughts and destroy my ski trip. I suddenly found myself expecting to fall and did so.

What if I would have expected to make it the bottom of the mountain, safe and sound and feeling the exhilaration of accomplishment and success?

My vacation was sabotaged. Not by an enemy that decided to steal my enjoyment, but by the voice in my head telling me all the ways I was going to be hurt. The only voice in my head is mine.

Skiing isn't an essential part of my life, but how many important life events or opportunities are destroyed with the same negative self-talk?

My skiing experience was almost 30 years ago. Life has taught me many lessons since then. If I were atop Vail Mountain today, looking down that breath-taking slope, I wouldn't listen to the voice of fear.

What is the voice telling you not to try? What job opportunity is the voice telling you that you are not qualified to take? What risk are you restricting yourself from taking that may be positively life changing?

The voice of truth.

You have the power within you to achieve greatness. Why should others enjoy the fruits of risk- reward? Why shouldn't the thrill of victory be experienced by you? Do you really believe the best of life is reserved for others or is it possible that the only person keeping you from living your dreams is you?

The best of life is only found on the other side of your fear.

Let me share the words of one of my favorite songs by a group called Casting Crowns …

Oh, what I would do to have
The kind of strength it takes to stand before a giant
With only a sling and a stone.
Surrounded by the sound of a thousand warriors shaking in their armor
Wishing they'd have had the strength to stand.

But the giants calling out my name and he laughs at me
Reminding me of all the times I've tried before and failed
The giant keeps on telling me time and time again
"Boy you'll never win! You'll never win!"

But the voice of truth tells me a different story.
The voice of truth says, "Do not be afraid."

A beautiful song. Wise words.

Where is your mountain? Who or what is your giant?

Wil you stand or will you run?

Now … put down this newspaper and …

Pick up your sling and stone.

Leaving your job? What happens to your 401(k)?

Financial Focus

Jeff Burdick

If you're in the early stages of your working life – or even in the not-so-early ones – the chances are pretty good that you will change jobs at some point. When that happens, you'll probably leave a few things behind – but will one of them be your 401(k)?

Of course, you wouldn't really forget about your 401(k). (It does happen, however – over the period from 2004 through 2013, more than 25 million people left at least one 401(k) or similar plan behind when they left their job, according to the U.S. Government Accountability Office.) But you will have to do something with your account.

Essentially, you have four choices:

You can cash out your 401(k). It's your money, but if you take it out before you reach 59 ½, you will owe federal income taxes, plus any applicable state and local taxes.

Also, you will likely be charged a 10 percent penalty for early withdrawal. Perhaps even more important, if you liquidate your 401(k) when you change jobs, you'll be reducing the amount you'll have left for retirement.

You can leave your 401(k) with your old employer. If your former employer permits it, you can leave your 401(k) intact, even after you move to a different job. This might be appealing to you if you like the investment choices in your account, but you won't be able to make any new contributions. Plus, you won't face any immediate tax consequences.

You can move the money to your new employer's 401(k). You can consolidate your old 401(k) with one offered by your new employer, if allowed. You won't take a tax hit, and you might like your new plan's investment options. And you may find it easier to manage your funds if they're all held in one place.

You can roll your 401(k) into an IRA. You don't need the permission from any employer – old or new – to move your old 401(k) to an IRA. Your money will continue to grow on a tax-deferred basis, and an IRA offers you a virtually unlimited array of investment options – stocks, bonds, mutual funds and so on. You can make either a direct or indirect rollover. With a direct rollover, the administrator of your old 401(k) sends your money directly to the financial provider that holds your rollover IRA. No tax is withheld because you never actually take possession of the money. With an indirect rollover, you're technically withdrawing the money and moving it to the IRA provider yourself. (You've got 60 days to make this transfer.) You will face a withholding of 20% of your account's assets, but you may be able to recover most of this amount when you file your tax return. Still, for the sake of ease of movement and avoidance of all tax issues, a direct rollover may be more advantageous.

Which of these options is right for you? There's no one "right" answer for everyone. You'll have to consider several factors, and you'll certainly want to consult your tax professional before making any decision. But in any case, do whatever you can to preserve – and hopefully grow – your 401(k) assets. You'll need these resources to help fund the retirement lifestyle you want and deserve.

A close call on the Salmon River

The Great Outdoors

RALPH TRUE

With the Labor Day weekend over, fishing pressure on fresh water lakes ponds and the saltwater will be less crowded. It is also the time that fishing picks up, as the waters cool down, making the fish a lot more active during their feeding cycles. Despite negative reports by some anglers fishing on the canal last week, some anglers were reporting great action, catching some impressive fish. These guys follow the action very close and make the trip to the canal almost on a daily basis. Sebile fishing lures are one of the best producing surface plugs, when the fish are feeding on or close to the surface.

One angler shared his technique for catching big fish using an Al Gags rubber jig, with this writer last week. Many anglers fishing the canal for stripers often keep there bait or jig on or close to the bottom, but sometimes this angler insist that moving his bait or jig a few feet off the bottom, works for him. This writer often uses the same Technique on seas bass and other bottom feeding fish.

Fat Nancy's Bait & Tackle in Pulaski revealed the following information. Although there are some salmon in the river, he predicted that some of the best fishing will be in the middle of September and early October. Unfortunately, hundreds of anglers will be on the river at the same time. Taking a walk up or down the river away from the large crowds can be rewarding, giving an angler some piece and quiet, and the chance of landing a large King salmon. Finding small creeks can also hold some large fish and will also provide some great fishing. This week's picture shows an angler with a nice salmon from the Salmon River. Photo courtesy of Fat Nancy's Tackle Shop.

An angler that is fishing in New York's Salmon River needs to be very careful when navigating up or down stream along the river banks or in the water. New York law can have you in trouble with private property owners if you trespass on their property. The private property owners own the property on the river bank and also under the water! Setting foot on the property can get you in trouble with the law. My brother Ken and I navigated a canoe upstream a number of years ago, and stepped out onto a gravel bank to do some fishing.

We were only fishing a few minutes when I saw a gold badge flashing on a person upriver a hundred yards or so away. He slowly worked his way down to us and identified himself as a deputized warden hired by the landowner. After introducing himself, he went on to tell us that we were trespassing on private property.

"Do you realize you are fishing on private property?"

"No, sir," I replied.

He went on to tell us about the laws regarding privately owned property. When he was done, I apologized, and we started to retrieve our canoe to go back down river. He pulled out a citation book and questioned us some more about our actions.

I figured it was time to tell him that I was an outdoor writer and always tried to obey all of the fishing regulations. Phew. It worked. He quickly changed his method of questioning, and put his citation book away. "Just do me a favor and write about the laws in New York pertaining to trespassing on private property."

I apologized to him for our ignorance of the law. As we started to climb into the canoe, he gave me one of his cards and asked us if we would like to get a free pass to the property upriver, which was owned by a Senator.

"Yes, sir."

After thanking him, we quickly boarded our canoe and headed back down river to the area we had launched the canoe, and where our fishing party was.

My oldest son, Ralph, Jr., was standing in the water fishing, but was not on private property.

"How come you came back so soon?" he asked.

Planning to have a little fun with him and his buddies, we dreamed up a story about being arrested, and that we needed to meet the officer at a designated place.

"That's what you get for not staying with the fishing party!"

Everyone was ribbing us, but we would have the last laugh. After loading the canoe on our truck, we headed off to the Senators property up stream that has a couple of wardens occupying a small booth for anglers wishing to pay for the right to fish the river. I showed the wardens the card that I had received from one of their other officers.

"Yep," he called us. "You are all set; park your car over there and follow these two other anglers to the fishing site. Have fun."

As my brother Ken and I followed the two anglers, I started laughing out loud about our other fishing buddies we left at the river with my son. We spent the next few hours catching some nice salmon, and laughing about the whole ordeal. It was starting to get dark, so we left the area and headed back to the camp site, thanking the officers for a great day of fishing. My kid was most likely thinking the worst — was my dad locked up? As we entered the camp site, everyone was laughing and having a few beers. After a lecture from my kid, we finally broke the news about where we were, and the great salmon fishing we had.

It was a good thing that I had taken my car because everyone else was not talking to us, and more than likely would have left us there. The good old days. Memories!

Do not forget the Singletary Rod & Gun Club field day this Sunday, Sept. 8. Good food and entertainment is sure to make for a great day in the outdoors.

Wallum Lake Rod & Gun Club will also hold their field day this Sunday, Sept. 8, at there club grounds in Harrisville R.I.! Don›t miss it!

Chloe ~ Age 13

Hi! My name is Chloe and I am open to trying new things!

Chloe is an outgoing, friendly and social teenage girl of Caucasian descent. Her social worker describes her as personable and kind, and notes that she will engage in conversations on various topics with ease. Chloe's favorite activities are listening to music, working on arts & crafts projects, attending dance classes, and spending time with her friends. She also loves animals and would like to go horseback riding one day. Overall, Chloe is an adventurous girl who is open to trying new things.

At school Chloe has made friends and is successful in class with extra supports. Chloe is hoping to attend college, and is interested in working with animals or practicing law.

Legally freed for adoption, Chloe will thrive in an attentive and supportive home of any constellation that can provide her with consistent boundaries and structure. Chloe will do best in a home where she can be an only-child or have older siblings. A family should be open to helping Chloe maintain contact with her biological siblings and other birth family, as these relationships are important to her.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ANSWER:

6	1	4	2	7	9	5	3	8
2	7	3	8	5	1	4	9	6
5	8	9	6	3	4	7	1	2

The Silver Club of the Uxbridge Senior Center invites you to join them on a couple of Christmas trips.

There is a trip to Boothbay Harbor, Maine for the Gardens Aglow on Nov. 21 and 22 for the great price of $199. After traveling along the Maine Coast, we'll arrive in Freeport, Maine to explore this quintessential Maine village. There will be time for shopping at the dozens of brand-name outlets, flagship L.L. Bean Store, and local boutiques housed in historic brick buildings; then enjoy an included late lunch buffet at the Harraseeket Inn. We will arrive in Boothbay Harbor in the late afternoon and check in to the Flagship Inn. This evening we'll experience Gardens Aglow; walk through the Coastal Maine Botanical Gardens' dazzling, outdoor display of 650,000 lights illuminating their meticulously cared for gardens. You'll also have a chance to peruse the visitor's center & gift shop and get a bite to eat. We will stop in the village of Boothbay Harbor afterwards to experience "The Festival of Lights." After breakfast we will head home with a stop in Kennebunkport for lunch and shopping. *Please note this tour includes periods of outdoor walking on dimly lit, potentially uneven surfaces, and overnight accommodations that require walking up and down stairs.

On December 5 and 6th there is a trip to the Trapp Family Lodge and it includes one dinner and one breakfast both at the lodge, glassblowing at Simon Pearce Company, a meeting with a member of the Von Trapp family, a stop in Montpelier, and of course the luxury of being at the Trapp family Lodge! It is $379 for the double occupancy per person and $499 per person for a single.

Capture the Christmas spirit as we enjoy a little of Austria and a lot of Vermont on this memorable getaway. Situated on 2,500 acres in Stowe, Vermont, the Trapp Family Lodge serves as our magnificent home away from home. Enjoy great shopping, superb dining and exceptional hospitality on this great Christmas holiday tour.

On Wed, Dec.18 we will travel to the Newport Playhouse to see "A Christmas Cactus" For $79 you will enjoy a great play, a bountiful buffet and the Christmas Cabaret.

Show Synopsis: Christmas Eve is tough for private investigator Cactus O'Riley, a white-hot redhead with the holiday blues. She is trying to lure her secretary Fred away from his protective mother, dodging the affections of Deputy D.A. Windsor, and considering closing her business. She doesn't need the added aggravation of two fugitives who burst into her office looking for justice and a dead detective named Jake Marley. Cactus also doesn't need Fred's mother, who arrives to take Fred home but decides to stay because she thinks this is the Christmas murder mystery party she has always dreamed of attending. Christmas turns into a dickens of a holiday for Cactus as she solves mysteries, delivers small miracles and takes a second chance on love and sleuthing.

All trips leave from the Whitinsville WalMart. Call Sue at 509-476-5820 for more information.

Renewal by Andersen
WINDOW REPLACEMENT an Andersen Company

SOME CHANGES ARE HARD, BUT AT LEAST

WE MAKE REPLACING YOUR WINDOWS EASY.

The most hassle-free home improvement project you'll ever have. You won't have to deal with a manufacturer or chase down an installer. We manage the entire process—from building to installation to the warranty—on our windows and patio doors.

Andersen is the window that every homeowner wants. Renewal by Andersen is the full-service replacement window division of Andersen, and our window is engineered to help save you money on your energy bills and make your home more comfortable.

56,950 other MA and Southern NH area homeowners have trusted us. That means we understand the window and patio door problems in this area. And our installers are true craftsmen who will completely and thoroughly clean up after your upgrade is complete.

We won't try to "sell" you on vinyl. Poor-quality vinyl windows can discolor, leak and warp just a few years after they're installed, so we refuse to sell them. Our window's Fibrex® composite material is twice as strong as vinyl.
