CT—A family vacation on Newfound Lake ended tragically last Monday, July 17, when a 12-year-old girl was accidentally run over by a boat while waterskiing, and consequently died as a result of her injuries.
Officials said Zoe Anderson of Highlands Ranch, Colo., was out on the lake with her family enjoying her vacation when she fell while waterskiing. As her father, who was operating the boat at the time, began to turn around and bring the tow rope back to her, he lost his hat. In an attempt to retrieve it, he

“This is our first time here, and it’s very enjoyable. There are so many activities to keep you busy and it’s all for a very good cause,” said one mom from Thornton whose son Nathaniel was testing his skills on one of the new-fashioned strong man challenge.

Other activities included a mini-golf course, bounce house, inflatable baseball and basketball games, a greased pole to climb, water wars balls competition and a plate breaking challenge where people could work out their aggression by tossing balls at sets of old dishes.

BRIDGEWATER — Ben & Jerry at Mill Falls celebrated the opening of its new indoor space with a big party featuring friends and two close family members — Ben and Jerry themselves.

People gathered at Mill Falls Marketplace for the grand opening of Ben & Jerry’s new indoor space following a several months long construction project. Guests could come by and enjoy some ice cream and meet some of the local store’s community partners. People were also able to get photos with and autographs from the founders of Ben & Jerry’s Ben Cohen and Jerry Greenfield, who made an appearance for an hour.

Visitors to the celebration could get a look at the new indoor space inside the main building featuring seats, a big mural by Ashland-based artist Stacey Lucas, and experience some of the expanded menu selections.

Jayne Cohen, owner of the space with her husband, band Wayne Gilles, said she and the team took place throughout the winter. The expanded area officially opened a couple weeks after Free Cone Day in mid April. Cohen said the indoor space will allow them to stay open through January.

Customers can enjoy their ice cream in the air conditioned space and out of inclement weather. The store will also sell coffee, brownies, and cookies as well.

“We get people who just come, hand in hand, and have coffee,” Cohen had said.

The grand opening was attended by the co-founder of Ben & Jerry’s, Ben Cohen and Jerry Greenfield, and Ben & Jerry’s headquarters Jerry Greenfield and Ben and Jerry’s sign autographs for visitors during the grand opening of the Meredith Ben & Jerry’s new space.

The following CADY article was written by the Partnership for Drug Free Kids.

Why? The word “addict” is stigmatizing, reinforcing people’s identity down to their struggle with substance use, and denies their dignity and humanity in addition, those labels imply a permanency to the condition, leaving no room for change. It’s better to use words that reinforce the medical nature of the condition because addiction is a disease.

It’s important that we use language that frames addiction as a health issue and shows respect to people and their families who are impacted. Just as we would with any other disease, has people or asthma.

A person shouldn’t be defined or labeled by his or her disease or illness; it is something they have. For example, instead of calling someone a “diabetic,” it’s preferable to use person-first language and say, “someone with diabetes.” The same goes with the word “addict.”

Words do matter – we suggest replacing the word “addict” with a person with a substance use disorder (SUDD), with addiction. In active addiction, experiencing an illness with an addictive disorder, the disease of addiction, of an addictive disease, person who suffers with addiction, patient (if receiving treatment services).

When choosing to reframe and reshape our language, we will allow people with an addiction to once again regain their self-esteem and more importantly, their own well-being and recovery. Treatment, allow law-makers to appropriately fund evidence-based treatment and help keep the public safe. This is a medical condition and should be treated as one.

The Associated Press took on an important step to stop using stigmatizing language toward people struggling with substance use barriers, recognizing that this word is often used to define, to invite you to do the same. Together, with a unified language, we can help reshape the landscape and end the negative stereotypes and stigma of addiction. And by doing so, we can remove the barriers that continue to prevent people from the life they want and need.

The Battle against Drug Addiction Starts in Our Schools

STACY BUCKLEY
Superintendent of Schools
Newfound Regional School District

In addition to these special assemblies, we tackle the issue of alcohol, drugs, and good decision making in all of our schools and in many of our classes. All elementary students are engaged in learning social skills and making positive choices throughout the elementary years. These are all embedded in our school curriculum. This summer, our elementary teachers have additional training in “Responsive Classrooms” which provides a more structured program for these important foundational skills. In ninth grade health class, we talk about tobacco and alcohol, and use of medicare, and overall safety. Teachers provide training on referral skills to help support our students in making good choices. In seventh grade, students are exposed to education around the risks and use of street drugs and alcohol. Each student is assigned a drug project and guest speakers are invited in to make the topic real life. In eighth grade, drug projects are done in groups of 4-5 students, and each group has a guest speaker who comes to discuss the topic of drugs and alcohol.

Edward Jones: Financial Focus

Match Short- and Long-Term Goals With the Right Investments

Not all investments are created equal. Some are designed for long-term growth, while others are for shorter-term gains. To be successful, you must identify your short- and long-term goals and choose an investment mix that's appropriate for each.

For starters, identify your short- and long-term goals. Your short-term goals will change throughout your life, so you will need to adjust your investing strategy accordingly. Your long-term goals, on the other hand, should remain the same as long as you are willing to tolerate some short-term volatility and continue making progress toward your long-term goals.

For example, let's say you plan to send your child to college in 10 years. You may want to invest in stocks to help grow your money, but you also need to consider the risk involved with investing in stocks. Therefore, you may want to combine stocks with safer investments, such as bonds, to help ensure that you don't lose money.

In a statement to the Neighbor Explorer, Anderson's family said that while they appreciated the outpouring of love and support from area residents, they didn't feel their privacy be respected. They told the newspaper to cope with the loss of their loved one.

Bucklin, Fournier to be inducted into Newfound Hall of Fame

BRISTOL — Newfound Regional High School will be celebrating its second annual Athletic Hall of Fame on Sept. 23 during Homecoming festivities. Five individuals and one team, will join the eight individuals and one team that were inducted last year.

Ron Bucklin graduated from Bristol Memorial High School in 1962. He was an outstanding cross country, basketball and baseball athlete at BRHS. He was a two-time All-State basketball player. Bucklin was in the United States Air Force from 1962 to 1965. While serving in the United States Air Force in Germany, he was a three-season athlete playing football, basketball and baseball on USAF teams throughout Europe. Bucklin was one of many involved in the building of Bristol’s Little League field, on state leased land, and its eventual dedication naming, Chet Wells Field. Bucklin was the head baseball coach from 1986 to 1989 after serving as an assistant for a number of years. In 1986 after captaining White Mountains and Biking Brady, Newfound lost in the state semi-finals, 4-3, to eventual state champion Belmont. Bucklin was ably assisted by Floyd Colby, and the late, Don Akerman.

Bucklin coached at the Little League, Babe Ruth and high school levels during a span of 30 years. He also coached community Center baseball with Al Blakeley for several years, saying, “This was a most enjoyable, fun and rewarding experience working with the kids and Al. Good times never forgotten.”

Coach Bucklin passed away in May 2017. Paul Fournier graduated from Newfound Memorial High School in 1979. He was the varsity soccer team for four years, and played basketball and varsity baseball, starting on varsity as an eighth grader. Fournier was also the Senior Class President. He furthered his education, graduating from Northeastern University in 1983 with his degree in athletic training and exercise and physiology. He got his practical experience at local high schools in the Miami area, from 1983 to 1988.

In 1986, Fournier was hired by the Montreal Expos and as the athletic trainer for their A-ball team from 1986 to 1996. From 1997 to 2003, he was their Minor League Athletic Training Coordinator overseeing rehabilitation, strength and conditioning. In 1998, he was the recipient of the John McHale Award for outstanding player development.

In 1995, Fournier was the baseball strength and conditioning coach, and a member of their World Series team in 2003. Since 2012, Fournier has been with the Philadelphia Phillies, first as their minor league strength and conditioning coach and then as their minor league strength and conditioning coordinator. As their minor league strength and conditioning coordinator he has worked with the MLB All Star game in 2014, as the National League’s strength and conditioning coach.
