Bringing business to Barnstead

GROUP DISCUSSES BUSINESS DIRECTORY AND MORE

BY KATHERINE LESNYK

Contributing Writer

BARNSTEAD — In the wake of several business closures and ownership changes in Barnstead in recent months, the town planning board requested the revival of an economic development group, according to a recent press release from the group. The committee held its second meeting on Aug. 7 at the Barnstead Food Pantry.

John Gannon opened the meeting by telling the others in attendance about his recent move to Barnstead and the opening of his new landscaping business, "Landscaping My Grass Off." Committee member and Barnstead Selectman Lori Mahar suggested that if the business needs office space or a place to store equipment, he could rent space at 27 Depot St. in Center Barnstead.

Much of the meeting was spent discussing the draft of a survey that the committee will be sending to Barnstead business owners. The goal of the survey, according to committee member Margaret Cipriano, is to create an informational business directory that will feature the reasons why business owners chose Barnstead as the location of their business, their products or services what was easy and what was difficult about starting their business and more. Cipriano reported on feedback she already received on the survey questions and opened the floor for others to provide additional suggestions. Committee member Scott Michaud suggested adding a question about the challenges local business owners face. He said that the information would not go in the business directory, but would be helpful for the committee to have.

Michaud also noted that he liked the overall idea of creating the portfolio of businesses because it "[puts] the positives together." He said that many people in Barnstead or in the area feel that they have to drive "way up north" to "[go] back in time," but that feeling is available in Barnstead as well, which he liked about the town when he moved to Barnstead.

As an example of a possible format for the business directory, Mahar handed out copies of the Barnstead Farmers' Market guide, compiled in late 2018. The guide features all the vendors from the farmers' market in the 2018 season, as well as a directory of all businesses Mahar was able to contact in Barnstead, Pittsfield and Alton. She said that Broadrick settling in to "a special place"

NEW PMHS SUPERINTENDENT LOOKING FORWARD TO THE SCHOOL YEAR

BY KATHERINE LESNYK

Contributing Writer

ALTON — With his first month at Prospect Mountain High School (PMHS) complete and the school year approaching in only a couple of weeks, Superintendent Tim Broadrick has had some time to absorb the culture of the school and develop some goals for the year.

Broadrick, who studied art as an undergraduate student, spent time in the publishing industry after college, which led him to teaching desktop publishing at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School in Billerica, Mass. Over time, he earned his master's degree in education and progressed to the superintendent position at Shawsheen Valley. He started at PMHS on July 1.

He said that the biggest challenge facing education not only at PMHS, but at the national level as well, is a declining student population. According to Broadrick, there were 474 students enrolled at PMHS in the last school year, but the student population in past years has been more than 500.

Broadrick has several plans for how he will connect with the faculty, staff and students at PMHS. He said that having the superintendent's office in the school helps, but Broadrick also plans on keeping up with PMHS sports and attending other events, taking walks around the building throughout the school day and staying engaged in the educational process. Additionally, the PMHS, Barnstead Elementary School and Alton Central School superintendents meet monthly in order to maintain coordination.

In terms of goals for the academic year, Broadrick is primarily planning on observing and learning how the school operates. He described PMHS as a "high-functioning, suc-

Fowl identity?

Last week's front page picture was a water fowl in New Durham and we asked for help with possible identities. Bob Barber of New Durham wrote in that he believed that it is a Common Merganser.

We also received the following e-mail from Tom Gardner of Middleton, agreeing with the photographer's assessment. "I was just looking at the latest Baysider newspaper and saw the front photo of the Marsh's Pond duck. It's definitely a Muscovy, we used to raise them for a couple years. Looks like it might be a young male. They're definitely a really cool bird, I used to live in northern Maine; one of our female Muscovies escaped and disappeared for several weeks, only to be found living happily nearby as a wild duck in a blueberry barren. He'd probably have a tough winter if not re-caught though. Wild muscovies live in tropical South America, and the ones we have here are a fairly common breed of domestic duck (unlike the rest of domestic ducks which are domesticated mallards). Really unique find."

Varney presented Kathy Anderson Scholarship

ALTON — Kate Varney of Alton was selected as the recipient of the ninth annual Kathy Anderson Scholarship.

Named for the late Kathy Anderson, wife of retired New Hampshire Electric Co-op (NHEC) President/CEO Fred Anderson, the scholarship was created to help a deserving New Hampshire woman who is seeking to better her life through education.

Varney, an NHEC member, mom of four and an Alton resident, was unanimously chosen to receive the $2,500 scholarship to help continue her studies at the University of New learner over the age of 25 who is a member of NHEC. For more information regarding this scholarship, please visit the community tab at www.nhec.com. NHEC is a member-led electric distribution cooperative serving 85,000 homes and businesses in 115 New Hampshire communities.

Youngster finds gun in Lake Winnepesaukee

ALTON — Jackson Heaton is a typical eight-year-old boy who, like many kids his age, loves the water. Jackson is currently vacationing in Alton with his family. Last week, he was exploring the lake bottom when he stumbled across something that nobody expects to find. He found a gun at the bottom of the lake. Jackson spotted a glimmer of metal at the bottom of the lake and swam down to grab it. The gun was covered with silt and other organic materials normally found at the bottom of the lake. He was shocked when he realized what he had discovered.

Fortunately, Jackson knew what the right thing was to do. He immediately notified his father, who was swimming nearby. Once the gun was placed in a safe area where Jackson and his younger sister wouldn't be able to access it, the Alton Police Department was notified.

During the ensuing investigation, it was discovered that the gun Jackson found was previously stolen from a residence in Sanbornton many years ago. Despite being submerged for some time, the handgun appeared to be in remarkably good condition. Even though it most likely would not function properly, the gun still maintained the key characteristics of a firearm.

Jackson, his family, and the Alton Police Department wanted to share this story with the public and remind families to talk about firearm safety, you never know where or when you may encounter a firearm.

"Please talk with your children about what to do if they ever come across a firearm. The method we teach the kids in our schools is to stop, don't touch, run away, and tell an adult. Depending on the age of your kids you can keep it very basic or elaborate on different scenarios. If you ever need help or advise addressing this subject please feel free to call the Alton Police Department," Police Chief

Ryan Heath said in a press release.

"And, if you are an individual thinking about tossing a firearm or deadly weapon that you no longer wish to keep, for any legal or illegal reasons, think twice. You never know when a child will stumble across it, just like Jackson did. Thankfully, this gun was not loaded and in no condition to be fired. If the circumstances were different this could have had a very tragic ending."

Shooting results in arrest in Barnstead

BARNSTEAD — Two people were arrested after a shot was fired inside a Barnstead store last Wednesday night.

The Barnstead Police Department told WMUR TV that no one was injured in the shooting at the Dollar General store, which is located on Route 28 near Barnstead Elementary School. Police were called to the store after a fight was reported around 9:20 p.m.

According to the WMUR report, the victim told police that a man pulled out a gun, put it next to the victim's face and pulled the trigger, police said. The alleged shooter was taken into custody, but police said another man drove away in the shooter's car with two women.

Barnstead Police reported that they later found the vehicle and spotted a gun and what appeared to be blood inside. Investigators said they are looking for the man who drove the car away and the women.

The victim was also arrested according to WMUR. Police said he assaulted one of the officers and ran away before being caught.

Police said they used a stun gun on the man and believe he was under the influence of a narcotic.

The Democrats' war on the Second Amendment

COMMUNITY CORNER

BY REP. MIKE HARRINGTON
Strafford – District Three

In the recent legislative session, three bills were passed that if they become law, will restrict the second amendment rights of NH residents.

HB 109 would impose universal background checks on the sale of firearms. Under present law, all commercial sales of firearms (ones done through a licensed dealer) require a background check. HB 109 would extend this to include any "transfer of ownership of a firearm, including but not limited to, a sale, exchange, or gift." What does transfer of ownership mean? There are no titles for firearms like there is for cars so what determines ownership? What if I loan someone a firearm? I still own the firearm but does this require a background check by a licensed dealer? What if I rent someone a firearm?

The bill does contain an exception if the transfer is "Between individuals, provided neither party to the transaction is a prohibited person. If the status of an individual's eligibility to own or possess a firearm cannot be ascertained, the transaction shall be completed through a licensed firearm dealer." I am a firearms instructor and this requires me to transfer firearms to students in the class so they can practice loading it with blanks for example. Would HB109 require me to go to a licensed dealer and have a background check performed on every student before I could do this? This would make teaching firearms training courses almost impossible. So, what does HB 109 do to prevent gun violence? Nothing. If someone wants to sell/loan/rent a firearm to someone else, this bill does nothing to stop that.

HB 514 is the waiting period bill. It would require a three-day waiting period before a licensed entity could transfer, sell, trade, give, transport, or deliver a firearm. It doesn't apply to transfers between non-licensed entities, so anyone could obtain a firearm from friends or anybody else without any waiting period. Second, it contains an exception from the waiting period to purchase a rifle or shotgun if one has taken a hunter safety course or if one is exempted from the hunter safety course (by virtue of having purchased a hunting license in the past) and processes a valid hunting license. So, someone who purchased a hunting license 25 years ago goes to a firearms store to buy a rifle. They are told there is a three-day waiting period because they don't have a valid hunting license. They take out their smart phone and purchase a hunting license online and walk out with a new rifle. I asked the manager of the sporting goods department at a major chain store what they would do if this bill became law. He said most likely stop selling firearms. Tracking the waiting period would be just too much hassle. The stores that continue to sell firearms will have to charge more due to cost associated with complying with this law. So, the real purpose of this bill is to make it harder and more expensive for law abiding people to purchase firearms and will do nothing to stop gun violence.

HB 564 is the gun free school zone bill. This bill is just plain silly. It is predicated on the following. Some maniac decides they want to go to a school and shoot as many people as possible. They drive to the school and see the gun free school sign and say "darn it, I can't bring my gun in here" and drive home. Like that is really going to happen? What's most likely to happen when they see the sign is to say "great, no one else will have a gun but me."

These bills do nothing to limit gun violence but do make it harder and more expensive for law abiding people to exercise their second amendment rights. A recent study found NH with some of the most liberal gun control laws, is the safest state in the country. California on the other hand, which has some of the strictest gun control laws (universal background checks, waiting periods for guns and ammunition, bans on certain types of firearms etc.) was rated 34th. NH is a very safe place to live with our present gun laws and we don't need any new ones. Remember, all gun control laws have a fatal flaw, criminals don't obey the law. Contact Gov. Sununu and tell him to veto HB 109, 516 and 564.

Governor's budget veto means tax increase

To the Editor:

Governor Sununu recently vetoed the legislature's compromise budget and put in jeopardy much-needed funding, including almost $200 million earmarked for communities suffering under the weight of high, inequitable real estate taxes. Sununu claimed he was forced to veto almost 50 of the Democrats' bills (a record for the state) because they are "extreme."

I'll bet the town of Berlin, whose schools are literally dying (it was just forced to close its only elementary school) doesn't find the bills "extreme." Nor do the 120 towns trying to fund their schools and towns under a grossly unfair tax system, or the many seniors who may lose their homes if property taxes continue to climb.

This state spoke loudly and clearly in the 2018 election when it put the House and Senate under Democratic control. But Sununu and his Republican leaders are acting like it is still business as usual.

Sununu continues to ignore the school funding crisis. When asked about the education funding in the budget, he responded with heartless and clueless questions, "What are we getting for the dollars? Are we getting better teachers? Are we giving them raises? and suggested that the funding would just be throwing more money at "the system." How can he not know that his veto means that two-thirds of our communities will continue to lose school funding each year and that real estate taxes will increase to make up for that loss?

Sununu's sticking point is a third year of tax cuts for businesses (a loss of over $90 million in revenue), which he declares are crucial for the state. He claims to be on the side of our "hard-working small business owners." But, according to the NH

Fiscal Policy Institute, 74 percent of NH businesses do not even pay the Business Profits Tax (which taxes gross income of $50,000 or more). A small number of large corporations with "national and international operations" pay most of it. And, since New Hampshire represents only a small portion of their operations, any benefits from the tax cut would not necessarily be reinvested in the state.

Contrary to Sununu's assertions, the NH Business Review reports that the biggest burden for NH businesses is property taxes (surprise, surprise). Property taxes represent over 64 percent of state and local tax receipts (the highest of any state in the country). Ironically, the budget that Sununu vetoed contains (among other helpful provisions for businesses) a much-needed reform of our business tax system that will save many local businesses thousands of dollars by eliminating double taxation by states. Sununu recently stated that he wants to be "very clear." "I will not support a budget that increases taxes." Yet, his veto (not the budget) does just that, it will increase taxes for both our residents and local businesses. He proclaims that, "The people of the state deserve better." Yes, they do, Governor. Your veto has shown us that your interests lie primarily in protecting large, wealthy international corporations and residents of wealthy, property-rich towns whose schools and residents benefit from low real estate taxes. Governor, your boy-like charm fooled a lot of people last election. But they won't be fooled again. You will be replaced in 2020 because you do not deserve another term.

Aug. 17 is the final medicine collection at the Wolfeboro site for 2019. Medications can only be accepted on special collection days as a pharmacist and police officers must be present to identify, isolate and secure controlled meds for destruction. All medications are incinerated. Please leave family and pet medications in their original containers. Do not mix medications. Do not obscure name and strength of medicine. Sharpie markers are available at the collection to cross off patient name if desired. Non-member households may dispose of medications for a fee, cash or check.

To ensure safety of all other household hazardous waste, please leave products in their original sealed containers. Grouping containers in cardboard boxes will assist in shortening the unloading time. Oil-based paint is collected. Latex paint is not a hazardous waste and is not collected.

Hazardous products that are accepted include automotive fluids, pesticides, herbicides, cleaners, poisons, etc.

Prior to the collection day, visit your hometown solid waste facility to get a free numbered business card pass (not a dump sticker), which will have the member town name (Alton or Wolfeboro) and the current year. There is no charge for the pass, which is good for up to 10 gallons counting the cans (not the ounces left inside). If needed, additional passes will be assigned for waste in excess of 10 gallons. This speeds up your time in line at the event.

Got questions? Call Sarah Silk, site coordinator at 651-7530.

Beetlejuice at Village Players this weekend

WOLFEBORO — The month of August brings a 1988 classic to the Village Players Theater's big screen, as Michael Keaton's Beetlejuice screens this coming weekend. Beetlejuice is the story of Adam and Barbara (Alec Baldwin and Geena Davis) who live in a beautiful house in New England. One day while driving home they are involved in a terrible auto accident. They manage to walk home only to discover later that they have died and now haunt their house. When their house is purchased by an out of state family, they feel their home is threatened by the over-the-top artist wife and real-estate idea-man husband (Catherine O'Hara and Jeffrey Jones). Their only relief is the Gothic daughter of the family (Winona Ryder). Their attempts at scaring the family out of the house are ignored or laughed at. Finally, they fall to the temptation to use the people-exorciser Beetlejuice (Michael Keaton). When they find his tactics too dangerous, they attempt to contain him and save the family they were trying to boot. Beetlejuice won an Oscar in 1989 for Best Makeup. The Village Players Theater is located at 51 Glendon St. in Wolfeboro and offers viewing in air-conditioned comfort. The Village Players movie series runs once a month throughout the year, showing classic films the way they are meant to be seen, on the big screen. Beetlejuice will be screened on Friday, Aug. 16, and Saturday, Aug. 17, at 7:30 p.m. each night. The doors open at 7 p.m. and tickets remain the same low price. Additionally, movie concessions are available for sale.

MARK ON THE MARKETS

It's just math

BY MARK PATTERSON
Contributing Writer

Why does risk matter? The risk that I am referring to is investment risk made up primarily of market risk when dealing with equities or stocks and interest rate risk as well as credit risk when dealing with bonds or fixed income.

Concepts that I've expressed in previous articles are dealing with quantifying risk and reporting returns. Let me talk about two portfolios made up with a variety of asset classes. We can assign each portfolio with a standard deviation, (difference from the middle), which measures the volatility and a range of upside and downside of potential returns. Portfolio one has a wide standard deviation (more risk and potential return) and portfolio two has a lesser standard deviation.

Portfolio number one started with $100,000 and had a wonderful first year return of 60 percent.

The second-year portfolio one sustained a 40 percent loss. The average return for this portfolio over two years is 10 percent. Not a bad return.

Portfolio number two started with the same $100,000, a 30 percent first-year return but a 10 percent second year loss. Again a 10 percent average return over the two-year span, again, not a bad return.

But let's look at the compounded annual growth, which is measuring dollars not average returns.

Portfolio one, $100,000 invested after one year is equal to $160,000, 40 percent loss of $60,000 brings our dollars down to $96,000.

Portfolio two, $100,000 with a 30 percent return equals $130,000, followed by a 10 percent loss or $13,000 brings us down to $117,000.

I prefer portfolio number two, how about you?

So, you can see that bringing down the risk or standard deviation in a portfolio will lead to superior returns of real dollars.

This concept very important not only understand, but to implement in your own portfolio especially as we approach a time in our lives that we may depend on these assets for income.

What these numbers illustrate is a simple concept of avoiding big losses which will almost always reduce potential upside. If your advisor is attempting to build your portfolio with a variety of non and low correlated asset classes, which will lower the standard deviation or volatility and risk in a portfolio, using very low-cost or no cost investment vehicles such as exchange traded funds or individual stocks and bonds, you can assume they are probably working for your best interest.

Risk management is only part of the story. The purpose of your money is more important than risk assessment in my opinion. It's very easy to answer questions to create a risk profile, which is typically matched up to a corresponding prefabricated portfolio. But if you answer questions that match you up a growth portfolio and income is needed soon; your portfolio will not be designed what its purpose really is!

It is common for my client that is near or in retirement to reminisce about the returns of their investment portfolio 25 years ago, as a retail broker I was not really concerned about losses at that time either. I didn't really understand the concept of compounded annual growth versus average returns.

Staying away from big losses in your investment portfolio not only maintains your monetary capital but preserves emotional capital.

Actors Studio performers bring "ReEntry: Actors Playing Jazz" to Wolfeboro

WOLFEBORO — ReEntry: Actors Playing Jazz, directed by Wolfeboro resident and Academy Award winner Estelle Parsons, comes to Wolfeboro Friday, Aug. 23, and Saturday, Aug.

24, at the Village Players Theater.

"Thrilling—better than anything on Broadway," says actor Alec Baldwin about the show. "It opened my eyes to the depth of the power

I know exists in theater but rarely see demonstrated," stated Rick Broussard, editor of New Hampshire Magazine.

ReEntry: Actors Playing Jazz is the story of eight formerly incarcerated men. They have come together after their release from prison to start a theater group to keep them on the straight and narrow. Each has developed a love of theater during their prison sentences. This is free form theatre, which explores the various challenges of reentering society. It is about each man's experience

JOSHUA SPAULDING

ACADEMY AWARD winner Estelle Parsons with cast members from her Actors Studio production. These actors (joined by a couple others) will be returning to Wolfeboro Aug. 23 and 24.

outside the walls, how they feel about being free and how they use their creative and theatrical work to transform their responses to society's biases against them. ReEntry was developed at the Actor's Studio in New York, under the direction of Parsons, whose credits include various awards and notable theater productions.

The actors, all members of the Actors Studio, have numerous New York stage, TV and film credits. They are Leland Gantt, Ron Scott, Marcus Naylor, Javier Molina, Erick Betancourt, Ryan Johnson, Justin McManus and Victor Almanzar. The production's creative team includes Peter Larkin as set consultant, Shukkun Hue as costume consultant and music by J. S. Bach.

Carroll County Attorney Michaela Andruzzi will direct a question and answer session after each performance, digging into the issues that Re-Entry presents. The recidivism rate for people who have participated in theater programs while in prison is strikingly lower compared to that of the general prison population. The stories you'll hear in Re-Entry are riveting, astounding, and real.

Performances are Friday, Aug. 23, and Saturday, Aug. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at The Village Players Theater in Wolfeboro. Tickets are $25, on sale at Black's in Wolfeboro and on village-players.com.

Wright Museum Lecture Series continues Tuesday

WOLFEBORO — On Tuesday, Aug. 20, from 7 to 8 p.m., Professor Tom Perera will present “Breaking the Secret Enigma Codes: The Real Story of the ‘Imitation Game.’”

The event is part of Wright Museum’s 2019 Lecture Series, sponsored by Ron Goodgame and Donna Canney. At the lecture, Perera will discuss the history of the Enigma machine, an encryption device used by Nazi Germany during WWII to protect important military communication.

According to Museum Executive Director Mike Culver, the Enigma machine played an important role in WWII.

“The breaking of these Enigma codes helped shorten the war by two years and saved thousands of lives,” he said. “Perera has been studying these objects for the past 30 years, so I expect the audience will learn a lot about this interesting aspect of the war that often is not discussed.

A retired professor of neuroscience who specialized in research on the coding of information in the human brain and nervous system, Perera will explain how the Enigma works and the real story behind the “Imitation Game” movie.

Perera is also the founder of the Enigma Museum, which is devoted to locating, restoring, preserving, documenting, and trading German Enigma machines.

“Breaking the Secret Enigma Codes: The Real Story of the ‘Imitation Game’” takes place at Wright Museum, 77 Center St. in Wolfeboro. Seating is limited, and reservations can be made by calling 569-1212.

The region’s leading resource for educators and learners of all ages on World War II, the Wright Museum features more than 14,000 items in its collection that are representative of both the homefront and battlefield.

For more information about the 2019 Lecture Series, or the museum, visit www.wrightmuseum.org.

the process was difficult because the business directory on the Barnstead web site was out of date, but that the market guide content could be used as a start to the economic development committee business directory.

With the recent closure of JJ Goodwin’s, a restaurant on Route 28 in Barnstead, the committee has been brainstorming ways to fill the commercial space that is now for sale. The primary suggestion was to reopen the space as a restaurant that serves locally-sourced meats, cheeses, produce and beverages, and selling the products in a store on the same property.

“It also advertises what the farms do, which is a big part of our community,” Cipriano said.

Mahar said that the project may be “high risk” because of the need for local business owners to buy into providing their resources for the restaurant and store.

The discussion moved into how to inform residents about outdoor activities available in town, which committee members said would encourage people to visit Barnstead, stay in town and utilize local businesses. Several committee members noted that they felt that many people are not aware of the hiking trails, public beaches and other outdoor activities in town.

As the meeting wound down, the committee members had a conversation about businesses they’d like to see in Barnstead. Mike Cipriano reported that he reached out to a credit union to inquire about opening a 24-hour ATM in town, but he is awaiting a response. Mahar also said that she is considering rebranding the Women in Business organization to a Barnstead Business Association.

The meeting ended with an emphasis on the overarching goals of the committee.

“We want to promote what we actually have,” Margaret Cipriano said. “We want to stay small...we don’t want a Walmart, we don’t want a big box store.”

Village Players fall musical auditions Aug. 25 and 26

WOLFEBORO — The Village Players are gearing up for the fall musical, which this year will be Once Upon a Mattress, directed by veteran director Kathleen Hill, who last directed the successful run of The Best Christmas Pageant Ever last holiday season.

Once Upon a Mattress will take the stage for performances on Nov. 1, 2, 3, 8, 9 and 10.

The show will feature three women and six men in principal roles along with one featured role for a woman and one for a man and numerous ensemble characters as well. The ensemble includes singers and dancers serving as ladies in waiting, knights, soldiers, servants and musicians. Characters include minstrel, princess number 12, wizard, Lady Larkin, Queen Aggravin, Prince Dauntless, King Sextimus the Silent, jester, Sir Studley, Sir Luce, three knights, three ladies in waiting, Sir Harry, kitchen wench, Princess Winnifred, Emily, Lady Mabelle, Nightingale and pantomime characters. Auditions are open to all actors and actresses high school age and older.

Once Upon a Mattress was written as an adaptation of the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, The Princess and the Pea. The music was written by Mary Rodgers, with lyrics by Marshall Barer and book by Jay Thompson, Dean Fuller and Barer. It opened off-Broadway in 1959 and moved on to Broadway. The show marked the Broadway debut of stage and television personality Carol Burnett, as Princess Winnifred, a role that she was nominated for a Tony Award for portraying. The show also received a Best Musical Tony nomination. It was revived on Broadway in 1996 and ran for 188 performances starring Sarah Jessica Parker as Princess Winnifred.

Hill will be assisted in the direction of the show by Chelsea Stewart. Julie Carbone returns to the role of musical director after serving in that capacity in both Music Man and The Drunkard over the course of the last few years and Gwen Collins will be making her choreographer debut with the Village Players after choreographing for Kingswood theater last year. Joshua Spaulding will be serving as the producer and Russ Ellis is leading the design and construction of the set.

Auditions for this musical comedy will take place on Sunday, Aug. 25, and Monday, Aug. 26, from 6 to 8 p.m. each night. Those wishing to audition should show up 15 minutes early to fill out necessary paperwork. The acting auditions will include reading from the script, while the music and dance instructions are available on the newly-redesigned Village Players web site, village-players.com. The Village Players Theater is located at 51 Glendon St. in downtown Wolfeboro. Once Upon a Mattress is sponsored in part by Dr. Richard J. Neal, DMD.

selor Justin Carloni and Principal J. Fitzpatrick about the goals that PMHS has for students after graduation – according to Broadrick, they said that they want students to "find their best path," which he said aligned with his views on education.

He expressed that education is a constant and unending process.

"We're teaching all the time, not just between the bells," he said.

He used his education in art and architecture to describe his thoughts on the culture at PMHS. He brought up the curved window seats on both floors of the building, overlooking the courtyard. He said that he imagined the choice to have the seats in the hallways was very intentional, adding that he can already imagine that students gather there in the mornings, after school and between classes. He said that the school was designed to be "modest and reasonable." He also said that the school is clean and well-maintained, which enhances a sense of community and means that "I'm likely to be respected" and "I'm likely to show respect here."

"This is a special place," he said.

PET OF THE WEEK MITCHELL AKA "PEPPERONI"

Mitchell is a very sweet but strong 3 year old terrier mix who found his way to the NHHS through southern transport. Back in Georgia, his original name was "Pepperoni" as he had been abandoned outside of a pizza place and survived off of the american delight for roughly 11 days. He was adopted out, and returned with the name Mitchell. Currently he knows sit, down, stay, come, and drop it! Mitchell is extremely food motivated, and thrives off positive energy! There is no doubt that this lovebug will learn quickly in the right environment. Mitchell would do best in an active, adult only home, with potentially the right doggy friend. Mitchell may chase cats and may not flourish around small animals.

Dirt roads, gravel, pitch and yaw and a word from the guru (not)

By JOHN HARRIGAN
COLUMNIST

“What makes washboard appear on a dirt road every year in the same place?” someone asked me the other day. (Truth alert: This is actually a composite quote, meaning that it consists of several quotes I saved up. This means that this “someone” is the writing equivalent of, oh, triplets.)

Before town road crews and D.O.T. staffers race for their keyboards, yes, I’m at risk for calling it a “dirt road.” To some, this implies unsanitary conditions (no). To others, it implies that dirt roads, and the rules, are different (yes).

Anyway, those whose job descriptions include the care and feeding of dirt roads sometimes admonish me for not using the official bureaucratese term, which is “gravel road.” This makes me wonder about the definition of gravel, like how much clay, for instance, it’s supposed to include.

Disclaimer: The care and feeding of my own most personal dirt road (sorry, gravel) is just fine, thank you, and this is not only because I don’t want the town road crew mad at me. It really is fine. In fact, beyond fine.

Oh yeah? So what about the snow months, huh? Come on, fess up, or I’ll fetch that tall guy over there to club you. (To me, lifetime experience and long memory and all, “snow months” means all of the months, barely excluding July.) Snow always seems to be the first question on everyone’s lips, right after someone mentions that you live on a dirt road, and the person with the alarmed look (that would be everyone) says, “Oh?” and then they all run away, leaving cocktail napkins floating in the air, and dotted lines where they (the people) used to be, like in the cartoons.

In answer to this, before they come to get me, I’m way more concerned about negotiating my driveway, especially the parts that Bob and I and, in a way, Millie are responsible for, than I am about the status of my road, which I know will always be, as they say in court, beyond the aforementioned fine.

JOHN HARRIGAN

AS THEY SAY about dirt roads (and many a job), “Ya gotta love it.” This dirt road (and this job) are no different.

The question(s) real and imagined made me wonder why people ask me this kind of stuff. I mean, what am I supposed to be? A dirt road guru?

“They know you’re from the country,” Fritz Wetherbee once explained it. Fritz is the guy on Public Television (state and local translation: Channel 11) with the bowtie and beard. And he should be, and is, well known for a whole lot of other things. “So they figure you automatically know about such things,” he continued, and then wanted to tell me the entire history of Sandwich (the town), focusing on the notch road and its cellar holes, but I had sudden business in Binghamton.

Well, I’m no guru, but I know that washboard has everything to do with angle, pitch, steepness, and sunshine. Wait, I forgot “yaw.” You’re never supposed to use “pitch” without “yaw” in a sentence unless you’ve passed “Go.” And lest anyone’s feelings be hurt, I’m not in the least forgetting “camber,” which is pretty important but not important enough to explain, and other friends and relations too numerous to mention (or remember).

Despite the best efforts of successive grader operators, the washboard reappears at certain places along my road and others, just as it has, I suppose, from the days of early grading, when a huge hunk of iron with a blade amidst (kind of like today, minus the diesel) was towed by horses or oxen.

And here I’m reminded that the entire theme of this piece is built on the assumption that people will automatically know what I’m talking about when I say “washboard.” Let’s just say that people once beat clothes on rocks in rivers to get them clean (the clothes, not the rivers), leaving no wonder why clothing didn’t last very long back then (back when?) or was seldom washed, or both. A washboard was (and is, they’re still made) a piece of wood or iron with ripples, or ruts, and a sturdy frame. Think “Ideal guy, at least on TV” here.

“I give up” department:

In the not so distant past, just one set of tire marks would appear after a dirt (gravel) road got graded (it has always been in the passive voice, by the way, as if by magic). These were smack down the center, except for sudden hills and sharp corners.

“Take your half out of the middle” was no joke, it was standard dirt-road training. The thinking behind it (yes, there was actual thinking) was that in normal situations it allowed the driver the highest possible number of options (in case of something abnormal).

Of late it has become common to see people driving as far to the right as possible. “I mean, with one wheel practically in the ditch,” as a reader put it.

This is how everyone is taught today, after all. The rules of the road are forgotten, drivers expect their decisions to be made for them by signals and stop signs, and the world is all things urban.

And you know what? The great planners, if there are any out there, are right, because although about 15 percent of the people live on about 85 percent of the land, the reality is that 85 percent of the people (i.e., most of the voters) live on 15 percent of the land.

These figures, rough as they are, tell the story of a great chasm that began during and after the Civil War, when so many easterners discovered how much land there was west of the Appalachians, a scenario that has been playing out ever since.

About nine years ago, someone ran to the top of a ridge and blew a bugle, and little knots of people in Pittsburg and Stewartstown and Franconia and Easton and even Concord heard it and came running, and they called some friends and kindred spirits, who called their friends, you know how it goes.

A great tree took shape across the land, branches spanning the aisles. It is still there, and firmly rooted, and it stands for many things, but here are a couple:

Never mind the naysayers, you can fight City Hall, and once in a while you win.

And, “Yay for the Hoi Polloi.”

Harlem Wizards game to benefit PMHS graduate

ALTON — Tanner Brennan is an 18-year-old recent graduate of Prospect Mountain High School who was recently diagnosed with having an Arteriovenous Malformation (AVM) in the left side of his brain. This condition has caused limited use of his right arm and some difficulty in processing information. After several appointments, Brennan was referred to Mass General due to the size of the mass. Because of its size and how deep into his brain the AVM is, it cannot be removed, so radiation therapy will be used to try to shrink it in hopes of preventing his symptoms from getting worse. To add to his struggle, an aneurysm was found on his AVM, which requires monitoring and possibly future surgical repair. Brennan faces a long and difficult road ahead and it will be years before he knows if the radiation treatment is effective. Brennan's treatment requires multiple trips to Boston and several consecutive days of radiation treatment.

The Alton Police Association and the Alton Business Association have partnered to bring an entertaining fundraiser to Prospect Mountain High School on Sept. 21, when the world famous Harlem Wizards will be returning. This show will feature several of the Harlem Wizards players playing against school faculty and staff from both Prospect Mountain High School and Alton Central School as well as Alton police officers. All proceeds will go to Brennan to aid in his mounting medical costs and trips back and forth to Boston.

The Harlem Wizards have a unique mission, to create awe-inspiring events throughout the country. Fans will witness amazing basketball talent combined with hilarious comedy. It's two hours of family time where parents, grandparents, and kids can all laugh together. When you're in the stands, you're more than a spectator, you're part of the show with loads of audience participation. Throughout the game, fans will experience a magical display of tricks, coordinated ball handling, fancy passing and aerodynamic athleticism combined with high-energy comedy and audience interaction. The experience can only be summed up in two words: awe-inspiring.

Tickets may be purchased online in advance for a discount by going to www.harlemwizards.com, or can be purchased at the door. There will also be a Harlem Wizards merchandising table and concessions available to purchase on-site. Game time is 6:30 p.m. with doors opening at 5:30 p.m.

ADULT SOFTBALL A HIT IN FIRST SUMMER

MATT LAWLOR makes a throw from second base during action in the Wolfeboro softball league.

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

WOLFEBORO — On Monday and Wednesday evenings throughout the summer, the softball fields at The Nick have been full of players showing off their skills.

However, these players aren't in the youth leagues that traditionally call those fields home.

It's the Wolfeboro adult softball league, in its first year of existence.

On any given day, you might see former Executive Councilor Joe Kenney or Brewster Athletics Director Matt Lawlor or Hobbs Tavern brewmaster Randy Booth or New Hampshire Boat Museum Director Martha Cummings.

There's married couples, such as David and Kristy Kerin and Jeremiah and Leah Stout and family groups, such as Ken Borelli and his sons Brian and Sam. There's new parents like Samantha Sanborn and Mike Borla and parents of teenagers (and beyond) like Bobbi Boudman, Lorri Tappan and Maria Found.

From every corner of the Wolfeboro area, adults descended on The Nick for this new league, which began as a way for folks to have some fun and has brought out some good rivalries along the way.

"It has been fun," said Found, who along with Rachel Ryan and Cummings, is one of the organizers of the league.

She notes that with the initial signups, there were enough players for five teams. Three of those teams came fully-formed, while the other two were formed out of individual players signing up.

As is the case with many summer activities, as the months have gone along, new players have had to join in to help bolster numbers as vacations and other commitments keep players away.

Each team has anywhere from 12 to 15 players on the roster and roster rules are set so that in this co-ed league, all teams must have a minimum of three women playing (based on 10 positions) in the game at all times. If there are not three women, then the team will play with eight participants with at least two women.

Six weeks into the season, DJ's Militia and Pitchslapped were the top two teams, joined by Brewster, Sandlot and Batters Up. The schedule was set to continue until the final week of August, with finals taking place on Monday, Aug. 26, a week after the playoffs start.

"We only had one rainout," Found said as her team took its swings in the week six game. "That's not too bad, we've been pretty lucky."

The teams rotate through a schedule that includes games on Mondays and Wednesday, with two games taking place each day. The seven-inning games are played with a number of rules. Included in those rules: Three fouls is an out, a foul on third strike is an out, no leading or stealing, no bunting for men (women can bunt) and in the slow-pitch league, a pitch has to be at least six feet high and less than 10 feet high. If a pitcher walks a male team member in front of a female member, the male is awarded second base and the female can choose to hit or take an automatic walk.

There's also an interesting home run rule in the league. Each team roster is allowed three homers over the fence at the start of each game. Until both teams reach three home runs over the fence, any additional balls hit over the fence will be an automatic out. Once both teams have each hit three homers over the fence, they may hit a homer over the fence, but never to be more than one homer ahead of the opposing team's total or it's an out.

Throughout the season, each win by a team gets three points, a loss gets zero points and a tie gets a point.

Joshua Spaulding can be reached at 279-4516, ext. 155 or josh@salmonpress.news.

KINGSWOOD GRADUATE TAKES HER LOVE OF THE SPORT TO SPAIN

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING Sports Editor

But now that she's involved, she's going all in and she's been presented a great opportunity to help develop lacrosse in Spain.

"Lacrosse has this #growthegame movement," Velez said. "I've been presented with the really cool opportunity to be the co-coordinator of a Spanish youth development program."

Called Lacrosse Para Todos, which means 'lacrosse for everyone,' the program will be focusing on kids 10-18 years old helping them learn the game and get involved.

"I have the power to make something really big in a country that's so deep-rooted in soccer and bring something different to the table," Velez said. "And I want to create more opportunities for women in sports."

Velez also played soccer at Kingswood and she credits longtime coach Paul Harvey with being an inspiration to her as she looks to become a coach and inspire young kids.

"I've had such powerful and impactful coaches in my career," she said. "And I want to give that back to other young girls."

As she prepares to work with the kids, one of the things the club is facing is the fact that equipment is at a premium in Spain.

"The biggest problem is equipment," she said. "They don't sell or manufacture equipment in Spain, so we have to outsource everything or order and pay shipping."

Part of her job in promoting the sport is looking for any help that might be available in securing equipment. Earlier this year, the Notre Dame women's team came to Madrid to do clinics and they donated a lot of balls, sticks and goggles. That visit also provided Velez with a bit of a "small world" moment, as a number of the girls on the Irish team knew longtime Wolfeboro resident Ryder Garnsey, who was part of the boys' team at Notre Dame the last few years.

Velez, who usually makes it home to Brookfield a couple of times a year (Christmas and summer), will be heading back to Spain in mid-August to get back to work with her lacrosse program.

She notes that anyone who might have a connection with helping with equipment for the new youth program or wants more information, can e-mail lacrosseparatodos1@gmail.com. You can follow the program at spainlacrosseparatodos on Instagram.

KINGSWOOD GRADUATE Cristina Velez leaps in the air while celebrating with her teammates.

WOLFEBORO — When it comes to sports, Spain is known for soccer. Yes, there may be a pretty good tennis player who is Spanish too, but for the most part, soccer is the sport that captivates the nation.

But Kingswood graduate Cristina Velez is working to help another sport that she played in high school gain traction in the country where she lives.

Velez, a 2008 Kingswood graduate, went on to Skidmore College after her days in Wolfeboro and when she graduated from college, she wasn't sure exactly what she wanted to do.

"I didn't have a plan," she said, noting she had an exercise science degree and that major usually involves more schooling. "But I needed a break from school."

Velez's father is Spanish and she thought the best way for her to learn the language was to move there. She heard of a job teaching English in Madrid and jumped at the chance.

"It was going to maybe be a gap year," she said. "But I fell in love with it and I've been there for the past seven years."

While she did take a year away from Spain where she worked as an Ice Girl for the Bruins and at Kingswood, most of her time in the year is spent in Madrid and in her second year, after a little Google search, she found out that there is indeed lacrosse in Spain.

"So I started playing with the Madrid team," Velez said. The team offered a couple of practices for free on a trial basis and she became one of less than 300 players in the entire country who played the sport of lacrosse.

Through the Madrid team, she got the chance to try out for the Spanish National Team. While the team has three non-passport roster spots available to those with ties to the country, including parents, grandparents or having lived in the country for two years, Velez is a dual citizen so she actually doesn't need one of those spots.

After a month-long tryout process in which the national team watched potential players progress, the players traveled to a tournament in Latvia after which the final cuts were made and Velez was on the team.

"Two years ago, for the World Cup, the players had to pay to go, this year, we had a private sponsor," Velez said. This allowed her to travel with the team from July 13-26 to Israel for the European Lacrosse Championships.

From the European Championships, the top 15 teams qualified for the World Championship (formerly the World Cup), so now, Spain will get a chance to play in the World Championships in Maryland in 2021.

The fact that she was even on the team came as somewhat of a surprise to Velez, as she pointed out that before joining the Madrid team, she hadn't picked up a lacrosse stick in seven years.

BOATING

Tips for first-time boat buyers

Boating is a rewarding hobby that can be great for people from all walks of life. Many people buy a boat because they already have a passion for fishing and want their own vessel to take out on the water. Others may buy a boat because they like the challenge posed by sailing, a demanding yet rewarding hobby.

According to Grow Boating, a marine industry organization that aims to generate awareness and interest in boating, retail sales of new boats, marine engines and marine accessories in the United States totaled $20.1 billion in 2017. That marked a 9.5 percent increase from the year prior, highlighting the growing popularity of boating. In fact, Grow Boating notes that 141.6 million Americans went boating in 2016.

The fun of boating compels many people to buy their own boats. For first-timers, buying a boat can be both exciting and confusing. Prospective buyers must decide on everything from the type of vessel they want to the size of the boat to where to store it when they're not out on the water. Such decisions can make the process of buying a boat somewhat intimidating. However, the following tips might facilitate the process of buying a boat for the first time.

- Assess your skills. An honest assessment of your skills will help you determine if the time is right to buy a boat. There's no shame in waiting to buy a boat until you become more comfortable navigating it. Boating schools can be great resources for novices, teaching them the ins and outs of boating. The United States Coast Guard notes that boating safety courses are offered throughout the country for all types of recreational boaters.

- Ask around. Boaters tend to be passionate about boating, and many are willing to offer advice to novices about boats that may suit their needs. Local marinas can be great resources for first-time boat buyers. Visit a local marina and seek advice from current boat owners. Some may share their own travails and triumphs from their first boat-buying experience, and those stories can serve as a guide as you begin your own journey to boat ownership.

- Be patient. Boats are significant investments, so it serves prospective owners well to be patient and exercise due diligence before making a purchase. Do your homework on the type of boat that best suits your needs, skill level and budget.

- Do your homework in regard to fees. The cost of owning a boat is more than just the sticker price and the cost of fuel. Much like you would before buying an automobile, get a quote on boating insurance before making a purchase, being as specific as possible in regard to the boat's make, model and age when asking for an estimate. In addition, get quotes on docking and mooring fees. When buying a boat, people envision taking their boats out as much as possible. That's only possible for boat owners who fully grasp the full cost of boat ownership and how to finance all of the ancillary expenses of owning a boat.

The decision to buy a boat requires careful consideration of a host of factors to ensure boaters find the right boat and get the most of their time on the water.

Great ways to enjoy a day on a boat

Few things can be as enjoyable on a warm day as spending some time on a boat. For many people, the sound of the water lapping beneath a boat and the feeling of a warm summer breeze blowing through their hair is the very essence of summer relaxation.

Boating appeals to people with varying interests, and there are many ways one can enjoy a day spent traversing a nearby river, lake or ocean.

FISHING

Recreational fishing is wildly popular. According to the Recreational Boating & Fishing Foundation, in 2016 more than 47 million Americans participated in fishing at least once during the calendar year. In its Survey of Recreational Fisheries and Oceans Canada found that more than 3.2 million adult anglers actively participated in a variety of recreational fishing activities in Canada in 2015. The sheer volume of people who enjoy recreational fishing suggests it's an activity that has widespread appeal and it can benefit people of all ages and skill levels. What's more, fishing provides a wonderful excuse to spend a day on a boat.

SAILING

Sailing is a rewarding and demanding hobby. Avid sailors often describe the origins of their love of sailing as "catching the bug." Indeed, few hobbies can be as gratifying as sailing, which the organization Discover Boating® notes requires participants to be more active than almost any other type of boating. While sailing can be physically demanding, when the waters are calm, few activities can be as peaceful and relaxing.

EXPLORING

Of course, even people who do not own their own boats can still enjoy time on the water. The Recreational Boating and Fishing Foundation notes that roughly 90 percent of U.S. residents live within one hour of navigable bodies of water. Many waterfront communities, particularly those with tourism-based economies, are home to small businesses that provide local river, lake or ocean tours. These can be great ways to learn about local history and/or see local marine life.

A day spent on a boat is a great way to enjoy a warm afternoon. And the options are endless when it comes to how to spend such days on the water.

Maybe it's all my fault

So, I guess I can take the blame on this one.

Two weeks ago in this space, I wondered aloud (or in print) if the Red Sox had finally turned the corner. At the point of writing that column, they had just had a strong series against Tampa Bay and then had won three in a row from the Yankees, pulling them closer in the American League East and giving fans something to cheer about in a season that has seen a lot more downs than ups.

No sooner had that been written than Chris Sale put together another atrocious outing in what has been an absolute disaster of a season after signing a multiple-year, multi-million dollar extension and the Red Sox dropped the series finale to the Yankees. However, at that point, the Sox still had what appeared to be some momentum, as they had been playing well, were getting good starting pitching and everyone was expecting that a bullpen arm would be added at the trade deadline.

SPORTING CHANCE

By JOSHUA SPAULDING

That one start on Sunday Night Baseball completely reversed whatever momentum that they had built up. And in the process, started an eight-game losing streak that lasted the next eight days, ending with a four-game sweep by the Yankees that seemingly ended whatever chance of getting the American League East pennant the Red Sox might have had.

The losing streak was incredibly frustrating, mainly because the starting pitching just didn't get the job done. Add to that the fact that the Red Sox didn't make a move at the trade deadline to reinforce the bullpen.

About that. Dave Dombrowski came out and said they had a chance to make a few moves, but the price seemed kind of high and in a way, I think it was probably the right move. The Red Sox are not going to win the pennant and I think that was obvious at the trade deadline. Giving up a key piece of the team moving forward to possibly earn one of the two wild card spots and get a one-game chance of moving on doesn't seem like the right idea.

I did not want to see the team trade any of the current Major League pieces for a bullpen rental. I believe Michael Chavis and Andrew Benintendi are key cogs for this team moving forward and I believe trading them would've been a mistake. They were both mentioned in trade rumors. The same goes for Bobby Dalbec, who is in Pawtucket and projects as a key player in the future.

Obviously, the bullpen has been a key problem throughout the season, but a lot of that has to do with the starters not doing their job, forcing the bullpen to pitch many more innings than they probably should.

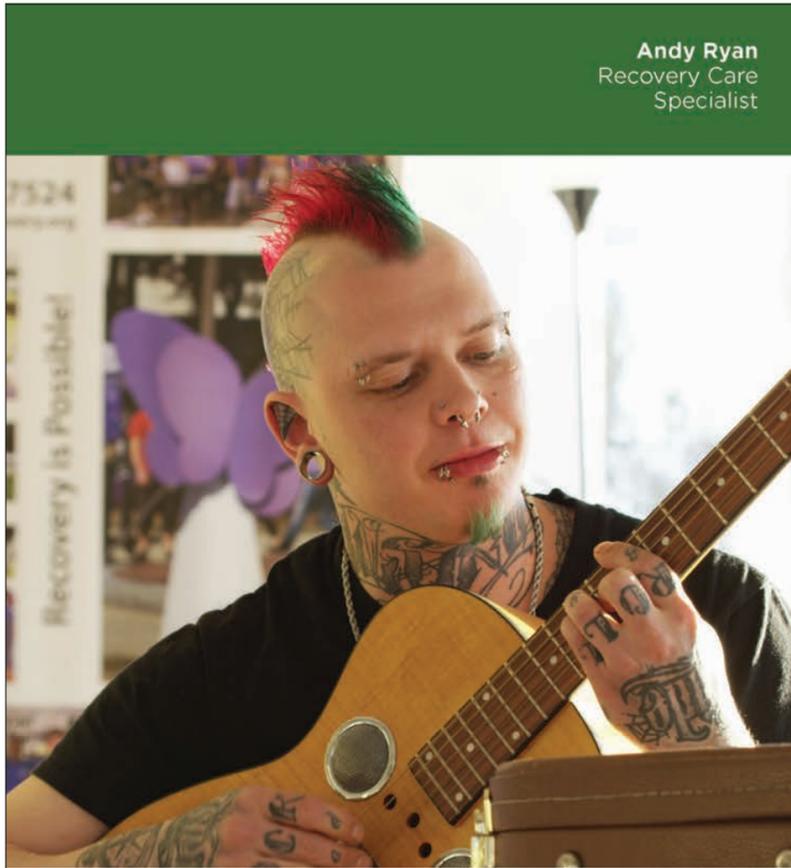

Needless to say, this season has been a major disappointment after the magic that was 2018. It seems whatever piece was there last year that's not there this year played some sort of role. It has truly been a struggle at times to listen or watch this year's team. However, that doesn't mean I've stopped watching or listening. They're on at Brewster when I'm cleaning at night. They're on at home on the rare night I am there.

But, the magic I felt last year, just isn't there. Maybe that's my fault.

Finally, have a great day Cristina Velez.
