

Local Scouts restore local burying grounds

BY MARK FOYNES
Contributing Writer

NEW DURHAM — A phalanx of Girl Scouts converged on a pair of local 1800s burying grounds last Saturday to cut back brush, rake leaves, and even help reconstruct a section of a stone enclosure.

Over the day, they hauled out about 700 pounds of leaves and pine needles, as well as a full truckload of fallen branches, boughs, and twigs. Some of the girls even wielded clippers to whack back ring-finger-length saplings that were poised to take the sites over. These Scouts were Girl Strong.

The effort was part of an ongoing community service program that deploys local Scouts to sites around the area. In past years, girls have planted a community vegetable garden, decorated veterans' graves, and tended to town-owned flower plots. Service

THIRTEEN Girl Scouts, in grades one through five, filled an eight-foot pick-up bed full with brush from the Willey and Coburn burying grounds in New Durham on Saturday. Additionally, the girls - and their troop leaders - filled 12 large bags of leaves and pine needles. The event was coordinated by Troop 10475.

is at the core of the group's mission.

Saturday's project was sited three miles up Birch Hill Road - about a half mile down from the entrance to Camp Birch Hill.

It's been perhaps a decade since these dis-used graveyards have seen any significant maintenance. Veterans are buried at these sites.

The project emerged from a notion of one local scout. Living nearby and visiting on a walk, she became fascinated with the graves and talked about neatening up these sacred spaces. Local Scout organizers embraced the idea as a community service project.

Many of the stones marked are the final resting places of the Willey family, as well as those of the Coburns.

Court order says officials violated right to know laws

ALTON — The Belknap Superior Court has rendered a decision in a suit by Jeffrey Clay against the town of Alton Board of Selectmen and Alton Water Works.

Clay filed the suit in December 2018 alleging violations of the Right to Know law by the selectmen for unlawfully holding "workshops," entering non-public sessions and sealing minutes of non-public sessions between January 2016 and October 2018 and for the water commissioners for entering non-public session during meetings, failing to record minutes of non-public sessions and improperly sealing minutes of non-public sessions.

The court concluded that the selectmen violated RSA 91-A:3, II and 91-A:3, III. The court order said, "the selectmen failed to confine their discussions and decisions to the specific exemptions stated in the motion to enter a non-public session on three occasions. Additionally, the selectmen redacted discussion items from the non-public sessions minutes improperly. Finally, the commissioners failed to timely file their minutes on one occasion and on numerous occasions failed to state on the face of their motions to enter non-public session the specific exemptions of RSA 91-A:3, III, which were relied on as the foundation for the non-public session."

The court orders the following:

"1. The Alton Board of Selectmen shall state on the face of its motion to enter a non-public session during a public meeting the specific exemption(s) under RSA 91-A:3, II, which is relied on as the foundation for the non-public session; and the Alton board of selectmen shall confine its discussions and decisions during non-public session to those specific exemptions stated on the face of the notion.

"2. The Alton Board of Selectmen shall only redact items of discussion from its non-public session minutes for reasons supported by RSA 91-A:3, III, specifically if it is determined that the item of

Booker fires up crowd in Littleton

BY ANGEL LARCOM
angel@salmonpress.news

LITTLETON — "I am a guy who has spent my whole life living for a certain purpose. I believe life is about purpose, not position," Democratic Presidential hopeful Cory Booker said while addressing a compressed, late-evening crowd at the Schilling Brewery Tasting Room on Sunday, May 12.

The brewery visit was the senator's last stop after a long day of tours that included Manchester, Laconia and Berlin, and it was a standing-room-only event.

While this was Booker's fourth trip to New Hampshire since launching his presidential campaign in February, it was his first stop in Littleton. In less than four months, he has attended 27 events in the Granite State and met with more than 3,000 New Hampshire voters.

A charismatic orator, Booker opened the conversation with beer-related jokes before diving straight into the philosophy that guides him in his bid for the Presidency.

"Life is not about the degrees you get; it's about the service you give," said Booker.

Before becoming the first African-American Senator from New Jersey in 2013, Booker served as the Mayor of Newark from 2006 to 2013.

"All the great things we've done together as a country is because we have found ways to come together as a nation," Booker told the standing-room-only crowd which included local Democratic representatives. "Patriotism is the love of country, and you cannot love your country unless you love your fellow countrymen and women."

Booker posed the question, "How have we gotten to a point in America where we hate each other so much, where the tribalism is so deep, we can't even do the things we agree on anymore?"

He spoke of a revival of civic grace and deeper empathy for one another and appealed for the return of a sense of common purpose in America.

A Rhodes Scholar and graduate of Yale Law School, Booker is considered a social liberal who supports single-payer healthcare, affirmative action, same-sex marriage and women's rights. According to an article published in the New York Times at the end of 2018, Booker's voting record has been measured as the third most liberal in the Senate.

In 1998, Booker staged a 10-day hunger strike to draw attention to issues in Newark. In 2017, he testified against Attorney General Jeff Sessions during his confirmation hearing, making Booker the first sitting senator to testify against another.

In 2018, he co-sponsored the Special Counsel Independence and Integrity Act, which proposes that special counsel may be removed only by the Attorney General. This attempt to restrict Trump's executive powers after the FBI raid of Michael Cohen's offices was met with Republican resistance, and a new variation was introduced in 2019.

Booker's more recent New Hampshire tour comes on the heels of his recently released Gun Violence Prevention Policy, which rolled out only one week before his arrival in the White Mountains. Already considered controversial, Booker's plan has been described by his campaign as "sweeping but simple," but it was not the only topic of conversation at Booker's recent meet and greet event in Littleton.

An audience member asked Booker to describe his position on climate change. He listed examples of past green initiatives he supported while serving as Mayor of Newark, before rapidly listing several potential avenues of reform.

Booker's statement about taking tax credits away from the extractive industry (oil and gas, mining, dredging and quarrying) and passing them to renewable industries drew cheers and a round of applause from the crowd.

Before turning to another raised hand, Booker summarized his stance on climate change, stating "This is the biggest, global, existential threat we have."

Phil Rondeau, a Smart Justice field organizer for ACLU New Hampshire, asked Senator Booker if he would support legislation to decrease the number of incarcerated people in the Federal prison system by at least half. Booker said the prison population has increased by 500 percent since 1980, with $2 trillion of infrastructure debt.

"I am the only United States senator that has lived in a neighborhood below the poverty line. As long as there is breath in my body and life in my veins, I will personally fight to tear down the system of mass incarceration in our country," said Booker. "It's making us less safe, rather than more."

After addressing additional questions regarding healthcare, debt and the middle class, Booker referenced biblical scripture and implored the crowd to work together with a sense of hope.

When asked how he felt about Booker's response to prison reform questions, Phil Rondeau, a former inmate who starting working with ALCU New Hampshire three months ago said, "It was pretty authentic. I think he does have a plan; he's just not releasing it yet."

Michael Lydon of Lancaster who asked Senator Booker about income disparity between rural and urban environments, said "I think he hit the major points. He recognized that picking up the most vulnerable people is what's going to make America great, but he has to inspire people. We have to get over this selfishness that's grown in our society."

Presidential candidate speaks with voters in Meredith

BY ERIN PLUMMER
mnews@salmonpress.news

MEREDITH — Democratic presidential candidate John Delaney spoke about his ideas for bipartisanship, healthcare reform, addressing climate change, and many other topics during a local meet and greet.

Delaney spoke with local residents during a breakfast at the Meredith Community Center hosted by the Gilford-Meredith Democrats.

Delaney is a former entrepreneur who served six years as representative in Congress for Maryland's 6th District, opting not to serve another term so he could focus on a presidential run.

Bipartisanship and civil discussion of differences are major priorities for Delaney.

"You deserve and your kids...deserve to live in a country where the things we disagree with each other on are debatable with truth (and) honor," Delaney said.

He said the current political climate is one of division and entertainment that has been perpetuated by the current president. Delaney said the president should take an oath swearing to not divide the people.

Delaney said every three months the president should have a debate with Congress for three hours on national television and has called for President Trump to do this.

He said the world has greatly changed with the advance of technology and globalization, a change that has helped millions but hasn't been advantageous to everyone. Delaney said 80 percent of the money to start companies in the country has mostly gone to only 50 counties. This has resulted in economic issues in those outside areas with many communities in more rural areas emptying out and businesses closing down.

Another major issue is the environment and climate change. Delaney said he wants to strengthen the EPA and rely less on individual states to make environmental decisions. He said a number of states do not have their own strong environmental agencies.

He introduced a carbon bill in the House that received bipartisan support but failed. Delaney said he will plan to implement a carbon tax and bolster renewable energy. He also wants to see more work done with technology that removes carbon from the air and turns it into a commodity that can be sold.

Delaney has a plan for a universal healthcare system that includes both government support and options for private insurance. Delaney said he would keep Medicare as it is for people over 65 and also create a basic healthcare system using the 800 providers in the Medicare network that would be a right for people ages 65 and under. This plan will cost $5 trillion and be paid for with $1 trillion from ACA subsidies and $4 trillion from eliminating the corporate deductible on healthcare.

People would have the option of purchasing supplemental insurance plans, this way risk would be shared across the country and not by smaller areas as the Affordable Care Act is organized now. "American people do not want to be told you have one option and it's a government plan," Delaney said.

Delaney also supports pre-K education for every child ages 0-3. He said studies have shown poor children know a third of the words other children know by the time they reach kindergarten.

He also wants to create a national service program for high school graduates with options to go into the military, go into community service, be part of a Climate Corps to help citizens with sustainability, or work in general community infrastructure such as work on parks and federal buildings. Participation in this program would provide money for post-secondary education.

Another focus that

him and his wife April have had is managing technology and artificial intelligence. He said while technology has been a major force, one thing that needs to be addressed is how technology can be made addictive for youths.

Delaney said he does

On immigration he supported the 2013 bipartisan bill for money for boarder security, fixed visas, and a path to citizenship program. He spoke with a number of women at a detention center in Texas. After hearing their stories on the hostility in Honduras he said he understands why families left the country for a safer place. Delaney said he wants to put Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) back into law.

He supports the Trans Pacific Partnership with other Asian countries to help curb China's economic strength. Delaney will also aim to reverse the ban on transgender people serving in the military.

The good news

We've had plenty of bad news over the course of the last month. But once again, some local kids stepped up and allowed us to report on some good news.

This time it was the local Girl Scouts, who trekked out to an overgrown cemetery in New Durham and spent their day raking, cutting brush and generally cleaning things up.

We always want to report on good news, we like bringing stories of people doing good things to the readers around our communities. Whenever we can, we try to highlight these stories on the front page of the paper.

Of course, we also know we have an obligation to report on some of the heavier news. A shooting, a suicide, a lawsuit and dead bodies have all been on our pages over the course of the last month or so and while we don't like printing these stories, we know that we need to report on them for the benefit of our readers.

So, as we move toward summer (yes, we assume it is eventually going to get here, despite the recent spate of weather), we want to be aware of good stories out there in the community.

If you know of stories of people doing good things throughout Alton, Barnstead or New Durham, please let us know. While we don't have a staff of full-time writers, we do have a couple of dedicated contributing writers who enjoy telling our readers the stories from around the local community.

We invite all those with stories to tell to e-mail josh@salmonpress.news or call 279-4516, ext. 155 and make sure that you provide all the pertinent information that we need in order to get a story written.

We also invite local residents to look through the paper and take a look at the advertisements that appear at the bottom of the page. And if you have the chance, try to patronize some of the businesses that advertise in our paper. As a free newspaper, we pay for our staff and our printing costs through the advertising that appears in the paper each week. So all of those advertising dollars that come in go toward making sure that we produce a quality newspaper each week.

Life in the journalism field isn't the easiest these days, but we believe that the community newspaper is alive and well and is a valuable piece of the local community. And it's the good stories that aren't reported anywhere else and the strength of the local businesses advertising that keep the small local newspapers moving in the right direction.

We hope that you continue to support the paper in whatever ways you can, whether it's sending us press releases or photos or story ideas or advertising your business or stopping and supporting one of those businesses that advertises.

Finally, be sure to check out next week's edition for some really good news that we are excited to report on.

Residency requirements don't disenfranchise anybody

To the Editor:

Recent changes to residency requirements for voting in NH does not disenfranchise anybody.

If you are in NH on a temporary basis, you should register where you reside and apply there for an absentee ballot.

If you attain voting age a couple days before election day, you should check, in advance, with your home state about their requirements for registration.

The students are understandably disturbed that they can no longer cast two ballots on election day. They have been indoctrinated to vote with an absentee ballot from home, and plead some specious argument that their rights have been violated by not being allowed to register and vote the same day in NH.

Many states do, and should, require registering at some time prior to election. This allows officials time to verify their residency.

The Constitution allows one vote per person, not two votes by breaking the law, or some fraction of a vote when ranked choice voting reapportions your vote based on a computer algorithm that calculates how you might have voted if you had made another choice. Ranked choice voting is a pure scam designed to steal elections.

The winner of the Kentucky Derby was disqualified, as was the winner in a recent election in our neighboring state of Maine. If this is going to be the new normal, why would anybody want to be a winner?

Hazardous waste collection is Saturday

WOLFEBORO — As the boat is launched, the garden and pool sheds opened for the season, or the lawn mower cranked up, you may have discovered old gas, unused and unwanted pesticides, pool chemicals, cleaners, automotive fluids, or even a mystery container or two.

For safe disposal, the Lakes Region Household Hazardous Product Facility (LRHHPF) opens on Saturday, May 18, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. The facility is open the third Saturday of the month May through October. LRHHPF is located at

404 Beach Pond Road at the bottom of the hill next to the solid waste facility. (Satellite collections at Alton Transfer Station are the second Saturday of July and September with Alton welcome at the LRHHPF facility when open.)

To ensure safety, please leave products in their original sealed containers. Grouping containers in cardboard boxes will assist in shortening the unloading time. Oil-based paint is collected. Latex paint is not a hazardous waste.

front are available at the solid waste facilities and Town Halls with details about which hazardous products are accepted.

Prior to the collection day, visit your hometown solid waste facility to get a free numbered business card pass (not a dump sticker), which will have the member town name (Alton or Wolfeboro) and the current year. There is no charge for the pass, which is good for up to 10 gallons counting the cans (not the ounces left inside). More than one pass can be issued. You may attend more than once if needed.

Please note, medications can only be accepted at the June and August collections at the Wolfeboro site as special personnel must be present. An additional medication collection is the second Saturday in September at Alton. Please get an additional pass for medication disposal.

Anyone from a non-member town may attend on a cash/check basis for each 0-5-gallon increment of HHW (counting cans) or for medications in June/August.

Got questions? Call Sarah Silk, site coordinator at 651-7530.

Blood drive in Barnstead on May 28

BARNSTEAD — The American Red Cross has a critical shortage of type O blood and urges eligible donors to give now to help patients facing trauma and other life-threatening situations. As a thank-you for helping replenish the blood supply, all donors who come to give blood or platelets now through June 10 will receive a $5 Amazon.com gift card via email.

Right now, the Red Cross has less than a two-day supply of type O blood available for emergency rooms, where it can be most critical. That means just six units of type O blood are available for every 100,000 people, but at least 14 are needed every day. While just seven percent of the U.S. population has type O negative blood, it can be transfused to patients with any blood type and is what hospital staff reach for during emergencies when there isn't time to determine a patient's blood type. Type O positive blood is the most transfused blood type and is also critical in trauma situations.

"All blood types are urgently needed, but we're facing a critical shortage of type O blood – the blood group most needed by hospitals," said Cliff Nemark, senior vice president, Red Cross Blood Services. "Because it's vitally important for hospitals to have type O blood available when every second counts, type O donors are urged to donate now and make a point to donate often."

The Red Cross collected approximately 11,500 fewer type O blood donations than needed to sustain a sufficient blood supply. Spring break schedules are known to decrease blood donations, and schools, including high schools and colleges, begin to host fewer blood drives in late spring as school years end. Because these drives account for about 20 percent of blood donations during the school year, less drives can also greatly affect the blood supply.

Donors of all blood types, especially type O, are urged to be urged to make an appointment to donate using the Blood Donor App, at RedCrossBlood.org or by calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Eligible donors with type O blood are encouraged to make a whole blood or Power Red donation, where available. During a Power Red donation, donors give a concentrated dose of red blood cells during a single donation, allowing them to maximize their impact.

In thanks, all those who come to donate blood or platelets with the Red Cross May 1 through June 10 will receive a $5 Amazon.com gift card via e-mail. (Restrictions apply; see amazon.com/gc-legal. More information and details are available at RedCrossBlood.org/Together.) Additionally, those who come to give May 24-28 will receive an exclusive Red Cross-branded T-shirt, while supplies last.

Blood shortages are not uncommon and can have a direct impact on patient care. Dr. Atif Shafqat, an oncologist and hematologist at Missouri Baptist Medical Center in St. Louis, says that hospitals face consistent shortages of blood products year-round, even causing some surgeons to delay elective procedures because of individual shortages. "When I ask our blood bank director the toughest part of her job, she always tells me it is these shortages and how to deal with them," he said.

Despite these challenges, hospitals and the Red Cross work to ensure patients have the blood products they need, but that can only happen when a volunteer donor rolls up a sleeve to give. "This is all possible thanks to the volunteers and the blood donors who are giving this generous gift," said Shafqat.

Eligible donors can find a blood or platelet donation opportunity and schedule an appointment to donate by using the free Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Donation appointments and completion of a RapidPass® are encouraged to help speed up the donation process. RapidPass lets donors complete the pre-donation reading and answer the health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, from the convenience of a mobile device or computer, or through the Blood Donor App.

Those interested in hosting a blood drive can learn more and sign up to sponsor a drive this summer by visiting RedCrossBlood.org/HostADrive.

Barnstead Fire-Rescue will host a blood drive at station one at 305 Parade Road on Tuesday, May 28, from 2 to 7 p.m.

Cleanup day a success in Barnstead

BARNSTEAD — Saturday, May 4, was 'Roadside Cleanup Day' in Barnstead, sponsored by Barnstead Parks and Recreation. Volunteers filled a highway department dump truck with trash. Road Agent Andy Sylvester drove the dump truck around town and picked up the filled trash bags, tires, large car parts and other trash that was recovered.

Officer Jonathan Marshall of the Barnstead Police Department gave the 25 trash collectors who showed up at the Parade Fire Station a safety orientation, and then spent the morning responding to calls from volunteers who found hypodermic needles and other unsafe items along the roads.

Another 25 citizens called in or posted on Facebook that they were inspired to clean a roadside section at another time during the weekend. David and Eileen Murley provided coffee and donuts to energize volunteers at the start and sandwiches for lunch afterwards. The Granite State Off Road Club showed up with 10 jeeps and cleaned a class six road used and badly littered by other off road vehicles.

BARNSTEAD'S roadside cleanup day was a family affair on May 4.

There was much enthusiasm from all participants and a strong desire to make the cleanup an annual or more frequent event. The sentiment was echoed by Facebook readers who saw the many photos of trash bags and smiling collectors. The Parks and Recreation Commission members present all agreed to sponsor the event again.

PET OF THE WEEK

How is this dog in a shelter? Kane is a very laid back 6 year old that was in a kennel down south for over an entire year before making the journey to New Hampshire to hopefully find his family. He is house trained, crate trained, and does very well on leash. Currently he knows sit, though in a calmer environment would be willing to learn more! Kane is a tad shy and has some touch sensitivities, so at this time he is looking for an adult-only home with potentially another doggy friend. He's also shown that he may do well with cats!

John Herbert Jenkins Longtime pilot

NORTH HAMPTON — John Herbert Jenkins, 75, of North Hampton and Wolfeboro, died of unexpected heart complications on May 6 at Huggins Hospital in Wolfeboro.

John was born in Berea, Ohio on March 21, 1944. He was the son of the late John G. and Mae Leona (Achen) Jenkins. He and Cindy were married in 1965 in Rochester, N.Y. and moved to North Hampton in 1968. They summered in Wolfeboro since 1978.

John retired as a pilot after 38 years with American Airlines. He began his career as a flight engineer on the propeller-driven DC-7 aircraft and retired as a Boston-based Boeing 777 Captain, where he was the most senior pilot at the company. During that time, he served as a mentor for countless pilots and had the opportunity to travel around the world.

John had many passions in life including commercial aviation, general aviation, and radio control flying. He maintained a runway and hangar in his back field, flying Piper Cubs and teaching his family to fly. He also loved collecting books, artwork and airline memorabilia. Throughout his life, spending time with family was always the most important thing to him and in his later years, his grandchildren became his priority. He could always be counted on at their hockey, lacrosse, baseball, soccer, and field hockey games. During his free time, he enjoyed traveling to see his family in Rochester, N.Y. and Amsterdam, Netherlands. Each summer, the whole family gathered at his lake house in Wolfeboro, where

John loved watching the family ski and swim.

Pre-deceased by sister Linda Sanford and daughter-in-law Bridget Jenkins, he is survived by his wife Cynthia (Humm) Jenkins; their son, John G. Jenkins of North Hampton; their son, Richard W. # Paint a Puppy contest going strong ALTON — Alton Centennial Rotary Chair for the 2019 annual art contest Duane Hammond is pleased to report that this year's 'Paint a Puppy' contest is off to a great start.

At Rotary's recent annual Home, Garden and Recreation show, Prospect Mountain High School, where more than 1,300 people attended the event, nearly two dozen blank plywood cut-out silhouette images of a puppy were picked-up to be painted and entered into the contest. This is Rotary's fourth annual art contest, the first contest was "Paint a Pig" in 2016 to raise funds for Meals on Wheels, followed by 'Paint a Butterfly' for Hospice and the VNA, and last year, 'Paint your Bass' for Pure Water for the World. This year, 'Paint a Puppy' is to raise funds for the Alton and New Durham police K-9 corps, and the Barnstead Police Dept. Anyone interested in participating, students or adults, may enter the contest by going to Profile Bank, downtown Alton to sign-up and pick-up a puppy, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, 9 a.m. to noon. There are three puppy breeds to select from, Scotty, Lab and a mutt.

There's a small fee to enter and cash prizes for both first and second place, popular choice and trophies awarded for honorable mentions in both student and adult categories.

In August, during Al-

ton's Old Home Week Celebration, all entries will be put on public display at the 'Puppies in the Park' exhibit, B&M R/R Park, downtown Alton behind the Alton Town Hall, 12-3 p.m. There, winners will be announced, prizes awarded and everyone is treated to free cake and ice cream. All who have a dog are also invited to bring their pet to the exhibit, on a leash and with a pooper scooper. For info, contact Duane Hammond at 569-3745.

Iconic baseball film at Village Players this weekend

WOLFEBORO — One of the seminal baseball movies of all time will be taking to the screen at the Village Players Theater this coming weekend.

Field of Dreams, which came out in 1989, has routinely been featured at or near the top of many lists ranking sports movies, will be featured as part of the theater's monthly movie screenings, running Friday and Saturday nights at 7:30 p.m.

Iowa farmer Ray Kinsella (Kevin Costner) hears a voice in his corn field tell him, "If you build it, he will come." He interprets this message as an instruction to build a baseball field on his farm, upon which appear the ghosts of Shoeless Joe Jackson (Ray Liotta) and the other seven Chicago White Sox players banned from the game for throwing the 1919 World Series. When the voices continue, Ray seeks out a reclusive author (James Earl Jones) to help him understand the meaning of the messages and the purpose for his field.

The film also stars Amy Madigan as Ray's wife, Annie and Timothy Busfield as Annie's brother Mark. The film also is the final on screen appearance of legendary actor Burt Lancaster, who plays Archibald "Moonlight" Graham.

The film was nominated for three Academy Awards, including Best Picture, Best Adapted Screenplay and Best Original Score.

Thanks to the sponsorship of James and Sharon Stackhouse, all youth baseball and softball players in uniform will be admitted free of charge.

The price for Village Players movies remains the same and concessions are on sale for reasonable prices as well.

The Village Players movie series takes place one weekend a month at the theater, located at 51 Glendon St. in downtown Wolfboro.

Field of Dreams will be screened on Friday, May 17, and Saturday, May 18, with 7:30 p.m. start times each night.

Postal history and the Holocaust at Wright Museum

WOLFEBORO — On Tuesday, May 21, from 7 to 8 p.m., Justin Gordon will offer insight into the personal, unique journeys of victims of the Nazi in "Postal History and the Holocaust."

A Holocaust postal historian who has collected, exhibited and lectured on the subject for 40 years, Gordon will discuss Hitler's rise to power, his creation of anti-Semitic laws, and how those laws were reflected in the postal system.

"This is going to be an impactful, sobering look at an aspect of the Holocaust that not many people know about," said Mike Culver, executive director of the museum. "This is an important presentation that I expect will sell out."

According to Gordon, his presentation will take the audience on a journey through the Holocaust using actual letters and cards sent by the victims.

"I would like people to go away with the understanding of how brutal the Nazis were on a personal level," noted Gordon, who also cited the significance of common letters and cards.

"[They] are personal documents that we leave and can tell a story," he added.

Part of The Wright Museum's Lecture Series, sponsored by Ron Goodgame and Donna Canney, the lecture takes place from 7 to 8 p.m. at Wright Museum, 77 Center St. in Wolfboro. Seating is limited, and reservations can be made by calling 569-1212.

The Wright Museum's Lecture Series takes place every Tuesday through the end of the museum's season, which concludes Oct. 31.

For more information about the 2019 Lecture Series, or the museum, visit www.wrightmuseum.org.

MARK ON THE MARKETS

BY MARK PATTERSON

The “new math” in distribution planning isn’t a new concept or even new at all. What it is really referring to is the math used in the accumulation phase of your life vs the distribution phase. Average returns in your investment portfolio, which are useful in accumulation-phase planning, are less meaningful when cash outflows become a key model assumption. The math changes at the beginning of the distribution phase.

New Math of planning

Asset diversification is a very important part of successful investment planning for the accumulation and distribution period. During the accumulation phase a well-rounded diverse portfolio mix, modern portfolio theory, will increase gains while reducing volatility. During the accumulation phase, you typically have time to ride out the market corrections and periods of volatility that is just how markets behave. The difference in the distribution phase is that regular portfolio withdrawals compound losses. The math of slow and steady gains during the accumulation period gives way to more complex calculations based on the compounding effects of negative cash flow. All this leads to the “sequence of returns” that can have a dramatic effect on your retirement. To put it in simple terms I will use an example of what sequence of returns means to the average investor. Mary and John are getting ready to retire. They both have their retirement funds. John in an IRA and Mary in a 403b that is in stock based mutual funds. Their plan is to take out 4 percent per year, which is a common rule of thumb. The markets have sharp declines early in their distribution phase and is compounded by their 4 percent withdrawals. Within 11 to 13 years, they run out of money. Conversely, if the markets do very well in the first decade of withdrawals their money increases over and beyond the withdrawals and may never run out of money. Jack Bogle, the late founder and chairman of mutual-fund giant Vanguard group, a couple years ago stated that in the next decade he expected two 25-30 percent, even up to 50 percent declines in the markets. Many planners, including myself, have software that can simulate market gyrations and the distribution of assets. If Jack is correct and you are planning on the 4% distribution rule for your retirement, it is not a pleasant picture that you will face. It is unnecessary to take that risk when there are tools to take that market risk out of your retirement income picture. Because the markets have been good over the last 10 years, we often forget about 2001-2011 lost decade of minimal returns or the 2008-2009

correction. If you were in the accumulation phase they may have been painful, but if you are approaching distribution of assets, i.e. retirement, market corrections can be far more destructive. It is unrealistic to expect an investment portfolio designed for growth to provide steady, sustainable income throughout retirement.

Local chapter presents award on DAR Day

MARLBOROUGH, Mass. — Winnepesaukee Chapter members travelled to Hillside School in Marlborough, Mass. to present their award to a deserving young man on May 8 at DAR Day. Located near Boston, Hillside School is a small, junior boarding school of 150 students serving boys in grade five through nine. Since 1925, the DAR and Hillside have had a strong and mutually beneficial relationship. Hillside is proud to be one of just six DAR approved schools in the country and the only one north of the Mason-Dixon Line. The DAR has contributed to every aspect of the school - The farm, the arts, academics, athletics, and residential life. For the DAR, Hillside helps the organization meet one of its primary goals, the promotion of education to worthy and needy young men, while providing an environment that encourages patriotism and family values for those students. The Daughters of the American Revolution is a non-profit, non-political volunteer women's service organization dedicated to preserving American history and securing America's future through education and promoting patriotism. Any women 18 years or older, regardless of race, religion or ethnic background, who can prove lineal descent from a patriot of the American Revolution is eligible to join. For more information on becoming a Daughter of the American Revolution, call or e-mail Regent Susan Fossum at 581-9675 or susanbriggsfossum@hotmail.com.

SCOUTS

ville. In the late 1800s, the Coburn family ran a thriving knife factory, which provisioned cutlery to the thriving shoe factories of Dover, Rochester and Haverhill, Mass. The area once had its own general store and post office. Some still extant local homes were once workers' dwellings.

Back to the future. Busy with work, the Scouts didn't have a chance to delve too deeply into the area's history. But tidying up a pair of local landmarks gave them a chance to connect with the past in a hands-on way. Noting the death dates of those marked made history tangible. One Scout, Ella, said that spending hours in a disused graveyard gave her "a certain peace of mind."

Fellow Scout Kylee said that taking part was an example of "good citizenship, and we're grateful to have awesome leaders who do these things for us."

The 13 Scouts participating represented a multi-level group including Daisies, Brownies, and Juniors, spanning grades one through five. In addition to the majority of girls from New Durham, there were also participants from Alton and Rochester. Supervising the operation was a team of three troop leaders. (They were such good leaders that they were able to persuade the Baysider into service for awhile).

An orange can of bug repellent was on prominent display as swarms of black flies assailed the volunteers. Ticks were out and about and killed on site.

Over the course of several hours, the girls loaded up about 90 cubic feet of brush onto a large pick-up. Additionally, the Scouts stuffed a baker's dozen of contractors bags full of leaves, small twigs, and pine needles. Each weighed perhaps 60 pounds.

The Baysider arrived on site about two hours after work began. The seven-to-11-year-old girls showed no signs of fatigue. They giggled while cutting saplings and raking leaves amidst the black flies.

Ella, a fifth grader, said she dispels the notion that Girl Scouts "only do indoor crafts."

"The thing that people often think is that we do everything inside, like working with fabric, is not true," she explained.

"We're outside a lot," Ella added. In addition to Saturday's clean-up, she said that troop leaders give them outdoor time at most meetings.

"It gives us a chance to run around after school," she said.

Ella added that Saturday's event "gave her a sense of community." Additionally, being among the gravestones created a sense of connection, which gave her a "peace of mind."

There was a good dose of sugar, spice and everything nice - but these girls came with a work ethic and a sense of mission. Rakes swept up a decade's amount of detritus. Tiny hands pulled up saplings growing along the grave sites. Small arms hauled hundreds of pounds of fallen tree boughs and branches onto a truck.

The Willey site is owned by Andrew Scruton, who gave the Scouts permission to work the site.

Unlike other areas of New England, where there are large centralized burial areas, New Durham has upwards of 100 family plots on personal properties. Ancestors can legally access these plots, but they are technically considered private, which is why town staffers don't maintain them.

Scruton's companion, Shanell Newton was nearby as the Girl Scouts labored.

"I am just so grateful," she said. Newton noted that she was helping to manage a home renovation, and that the Scouts' work "takes one thing off the table," adding that she and Scruton want to be good stewards of the Willey grave site.

"It's kind of humbling," she said of the devotion of so many young hands set at work to preserve the final burying place of those who have come before.

Scout volunteer and mentor Wendy Anderson was on site help to help manage the operation and play a hands-on role. She was raking and giving direction.

"These girls have been amazing," she said.

Anderson and the Scouts removed enough leaf litter and twigs to reveal pure dirt, ready for planting some resilient ground cover. Anderson said that a cover of resilient fescue grass and clover would provide a low-maintenance solution to provide ground cover that could prevent overgrowth.

Anyone wishing to donate a couple of bags of seed can call the Scouts at 273-8859. They will pick up and disperse the seed in an ongoing effort to beautify these sites. This same number can also be called by parents wanting to learn more about getting involved in how these girls bolster the community.

Notes to self, rattlesnakes (yep), and “orphaned” wild creatures

Cleaning up my computer desktop is almost as much fun as going through my pants pockets to catch those ubiquitous pieces of paper flagged with “Note to self” before they go through the wash. (Note to self: I have finally done it—used “ubiquitous,” even though I long ago vowed not to. There’s no logic to it—I just hate the word. What does it mean? It’s all over the place. If memory serves me, Time Magazine began using the word about 40 years ago, and in a heartbeat it was here to stay.)

My computer guru says my machine boots up easier and runs better if I keep the desktop clean. This meshes perfectly with the ethic that should be followed with clothing. There’s nothing to provoke a string of bad words quite like discovering that you’ve overlooked two or three “notes to self” in a pants pocket that the washer and dryer have turned into a gazillion snowflakes—and now, they’re all over your clothes.

As I’ve written before and probably will again, Fish & Game’s publication “Wildlife Journal” is a good read every issue, and along with enjoyment you’re sure to pick up on something on wildlife or the outdoors you didn’t know. Although many people are unaware that New Hampshire has rattlesnakes, it’s a fact that we had them when the Europeans first stepped ashore, and have them now. Only two or three small populations remain, however, and Fish and Game protects them zealously, seldom even mentioning the towns

Well, when Fish and Game was part of my beat 40-plus years ago, I hung out at the Game Division quite a bit, and one of the characters within was veteran wildlife biologist Henry Laramie. Henry was the go-to guy for anything at all about any of the 11 species of snakes found in New Hampshire. And by fiat he also became the official Keeper of the Rattlesnakes, protector for the two or three small but viable rattler populations that somehow have survived humanity’s ancient hatreds and sheer ignorance.

Over time, I wheedled the rattlesnake locations out of Henry, because he knew I’d never tell. The snakes gather and form a big ball when they den up for winter, and one person with one stick of dynamite could wipe out an entire population.

By the by, Mike Marchand had a fine photograph on the cover of Wildlife Journal’s spring issue—a mother timber rattler with her young, known as a neonate. The little one is coiled within its Mom’s coils—a protective enclave if ever there was one.

One dry spring a brush fire broke out in a town in the greater Manchester area, and I was sent to cover it. By the time I got there, another call had gone out, and two line-crews were busily spraying water and digging fire-breaks.

I asked the guy running the pump that was sending water from a nearby beaver pond up the hill if he could tell me where the worst of the fire was, because I knew the country. “Just follow the hose,” he said.

A few minutes later I was clambering over stone outcroppings and tumbled slabs. The strong sunlight was warming the rocks. “Perfect place for a snake,” I began thinking, and a sudden rasping, buzzing sound erupted from where I had just thrust my uphill arm for a new grip.

I threw myself backward, not caring where I landed, and was thankful for a clump of alders. And up on top of the ridge was a fire-fighting line crew, all of them pointing and laughing at me, because they knew very well that there was a small hole in the hose right there, perfect for making just the right sound.

There’s usually a director’s message in each issue of Wildlife Journal, and Glenn Norman-deau’s was particularly appropriate for its May/June issue date: Leave wild animals alone. Even in situations that look for all the world as though the mother has abandoned her young, it’s also an almost certain bet that Mom is hiding nearby, waiting until it’s safe to come back for her young.

Every spring I’m sure to get calls on this, as in “What do I do with this orphaned baby robin I found on my front porch?”

The answer is “Leave it alone, unless your cat is right there too, licking its lips, in which case you put the chick where it can be seen and heard, grab the cat, and go inside to watch a baseball game or something, anything to get the real problem—you—out of the equation.

Legion celebrating centennial anniversary

ALTON — The American Legion is celebrating its (100th) centennial anniversary.

The organization was formed in Paris at the American Officers club on March 15, 1919 after the end of World War I, and it is now the largest group of honorably discharged veterans in the world. The group’s goal is to support veterans and their families, and fight for legislation at the state and federal level.

Over the years, American Legion has helped those veterans returning from war would receive benefits to care for them after facing war. The GI Bill was one of the helping benefits passed with a lot of support from the American Legion.

Today, the American Legion continues to fight for the veterans. Alongside the veterans are the American Legion Auxiliary established 1919, SAL (Sons of the American Legion) 1932 and American Legion Riders 1993.

Claude R Batchelder Post 72 is proud of their Legion Post. The American Legion family of Alton is proud to serve its veterans, community, children, state and nation with the many worthy programs they support.

Please come celebrate the Legion’s centennial anniversary by attending the 100th year parade on Memorial Day, Monday, May 27, 10 a.m. starting at Monument Square in Alton to the Riverside Cemetery to honor those war veterans.

An Evening in Paraguay at New Durham Public Library

NEW DURHAM — The New Durham Public Library is sponsoring “Terere Time, an Evening in Paraguay,” on Monday, June 3 at 7 p.m.

Michael Martin, a Peace Corps member for almost two years in Paraguay will present a slideshow on the celebrations, culture and scenic beauty of South America.

Terere, a cold water infusion of the native plant Yerba mate that originated with the native Guarani peoples, is a traditional invigorating drink in that sub-tropical area.

Grandson of Selectperson Dot Veisel, Martin has traveled extensively in Patagonia, Brazil and Paraguay. He speaks Spanish fluently, as well as the Paraguayan indigenous language.

Paraguay has been described as the most depressed country in the world, but the happiest. As part of his Peace Corps duties, Martin has been teaching teachers about parasitical diseases and has been trained to man a crisis hotline.

“There’s a lot of domestic violence,” Veisel said, “and when there aren’t responsible adults around, children run the businesses and clean the schools. But there’s also so much color and music and celebrating.”

She said the presentation was a good opportunity to learn about “the modern day Peace Corps and the culture of South America.”

The Peace Corps has immersed Martin, who must grow his own food and is not allowed to earn more than the average Paraguayan, in the realities of that country.

“Being an ambassador of the United States, living as the poorest of the poor, and making a commitment to make one corner of the world better off has been a transformative experience for him,” Veisel said, “and he wants to share it.”

The free event will feature traditional food, drink and music.

Knights bounce by Eagles for second time this season

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

NORTH CONWAY — The Kennett and Kingswood boys' lacrosse teams met up for the second time this season on Monday, May 6, this time on the campus of Kennett High School in North Conway.

The first time out, Kingswood cruised to a 19-6 win and while the Knights got the win in the rematch as well, it was a bit closer, this time at 10-3.

"We played some other guys, trying to round ourselves out a little more," said Kingswood coach Matt Tetreault. "Moving on, our schedule gets very, very difficult, so this gave us a chance to see what they're capable of doing."

Bobby Graustein and Trevor LaRusso had some early chances for the Eagles right out of the gate, but Kingswood keeper Joshua Paraskos and his defense held tight and the two teams remained scoreless for almost five minutes before the first goal went on the board.

The first tally came from the stick of Kingswood's Cam Mann, who took a nice feed from behind the net from Brody DeMasi and buried it for the 1-0 lead. Nicon Williams and DeMasi continued the Kingswood attack but Kennett keeper Ryan Murphy was solid between the pipes, keeping the Knights off the board.

However, with 5:04 to go, Williams was able to double Kingswood's lead to 2-0. Cole Emerson and Rob Doherty teamed up on a bid for the Knights that Murphy stopped and Colson Williams fired a shot off the post.

Kingswood upped the lead to 3-0 with 3:08 to go, as Emerson found Nick Potenza, who buried the shot for the Knights. Kingswood continued to pressure with Doherty and Nicon Williams leading the way before Emerson found Colson Williams with 1:06 to go to give the Knights the 4-0 lead.

Kennett came back with a couple of good chances from Graustein, Gavin Ferry and LaRusso, but Paraskos stood strong and the Knights took the 4-0 lead to the end of the first period.

Graustein and Kingswood's Joe Russo exchanged chances at opposite ends early in the second period but it was Kingswood who got the period's first tally, as Colson Williams found Potenza just more than three minutes into the frame and Potenza made it 5-0.

After a Mann shot was denied by Murphy, the Knights continued to pressure and Nicon Williams worked his way through the defense and fired a shot in for the 6-0 lead with 7:47 to go.

LaRusso answered with a couple of good chances for the Eagles and Graustein also had a chance but Paraskos kept the puck out of the net. Davis Ekstrom had a bid denied at the other end for the Knights.

Murphy made a strong save on a Nicon Williams shot but Mann was waiting for the rebound and he fired the ball into the net for the 7-0 lead with 3:01 to go in the first half. Matt Cormier and LaRusso had late chances for Kennett and Doherty had a shot go off the post for the Knights and the first half closed with Kingswood up 7-0.

Kennett got on the board first in the second half. After Graustein and Ferry teamed up on a bid that didn't connect, Callum Hawkes was able to fire a shot past Paraskos for the Eagles' first goal of the game just 1:21 into the third quarter. LaRusso had another shot denied while at the other end, Emerson, Nicon Williams and Mann missed their chances.

With 7:49 to go in the third, Nicon Williams ripped a shot past Murphy for the 8-1 lead and Colson Williams, Emerson and DeMasi followed up with chances that came up short, thanks in large part to Murphy.

With 5:13 to go in the third quarter, LaRusso bounced a shot past Paraskos and into the net to cut the lead to 8-2. Kingswood came back and answered before the end of the quarter, as defender Kolbe Maganzini worked his way into the offensive zone and scored his first varsity goal. The Eagles got solid defense in the final minutes but still trailed 9-2 after three quarters of play.

Cole Bryant scored for the Eagles less than three minutes into the fourth quarter, cutting the lead to 9-3. Both teams continued to have chances, with LaRusso getting the best look for Kennett while Potenza, Ekstrom and Mann had shots go wide for the Knights. Murphy also made a nice save on an Emerson bid and another from Ekstrom. Bryant and Graustein had chances at the other end that Paraskos was able to stop.

With 39 seconds to go, Doherty capped off the scoring, netting Kingswood's 10th goal for the 10-3 win.

Tetreault noted that watching some of the younger kids in action gave the coaching staff clues as to what they are capable of and what to work on.

"In a game situation, they give that away pretty easily, it gives us clues as to what to work on with the kids," the Knight coach said. "We had guys in different positions, trying to see how we can make the most of the guys we have."

He noted Nicon Williams played in the midfield instead of attack and was a monster on the defensive side of the ball. And he also pointed out it was great to see Maganzini get his first varsity goal.

"I think he was watching a little college lacrosse, and he saw if you make a good play on the ball and get some good speed, that's a tough angle (with the long pole) for the goalie to read," Tetreault said. "It was great to see that, he was real confident."

The Eagles will be back in action on Friday, May 17, at Pembroke at 4 p.m. and will be hosting Portsmouth at 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 21.

The Knights will be at ConVal on Friday, May 17, at 7 p.m. and will be hosting Oyster River on Tuesday May 21, at 7 p.m. for the final home game of the season.

Kingswood Operation Hat Trick games are Saturday

WOLFEBORO — This spring marks another unique opportunity for New Hampshire high schools as they have participated or are about to participate in the annual Operation Hat Trick (OHT) New Hampshire High School Initiative.

Participating schools have the opportunity to proudly display their logos on a special camouflage Operation Hat Trick (OHT) hat that their student athletes wear during OHT awareness games. Athletic Directors from across the state have organized their respective communities to make each one of their OHT games a success. Kingswood Director of Athletics Aaron House shared that Kingswood's OHT games are a direct result of involved GWRSD community members who volunteer their time with the Kingswood Athletic Boosters. "Our athletic boosters are essential in helping us take part in these amazing opportunities for our student athletes. I'd like to personally thank all of our booster club members who support Kingswood athletics."

In 2019, OHT is poised to raise close to $200,000 in its sixth year. Monies raised with OHT are used to support and raise awareness of veteran recovery programs in the state of New Hampshire. The donations from NH high schools is the largest donation received by OHT to date.

According to Dot Sheehan, founder of OHT, "I am extremely proud of New Hampshire high schools. This is an extremely important initiative as there is great need among recovering veterans in New Hampshire. I want to thank all of the athletic directors for their leadership, passion and energy in getting this done. The monies raised will help so many veterans and it is very much appreciated. Thank you to all those that have participated."

Kingswood baseball and softball teams have invited their veteran relatives to be guests of honor at the May 18 games vs. Pelham. The players will wear Kingswood branded OHT camo hats to raise awareness for wounded veterans.

Veteran guests of honor will each receive a Kingswood OHT hat. All veterans in the community are invited to attend the game and support the veterans being honored and the cause.

The Kingswood Athletic Booster club will sell a limited supply of the Kingswood OHT hats to raise money for wounded veterans.

The ceremony will begin at approximately 12:45 p.m. with the first pitch at 1 p.m.

A rain delay edition of random subjects

With all the postponements and schedule changes in the past few weeks, it seemed like the right time to touch on a few different subjects.

First and foremost, this season of Survivor hasn't been high on my list of favorite seasons. While there are some good new characters (Rick and Wardog to name two) and some entertaining returning players (Aubry, David and Kelley, one of my all-time favorite players), the concept of the season is what makes me a little down on this season. The Edge of Extinction twist, which gives players who have been voted out a second chance to stay in the game, to me, at least, takes away the power of the voting. And as the show entered the final week, there was a good possibility that a person who had been voted out earlier (and got back in thanks to the Edge of Extinction twist), could have won the game and that doesn't sit well with me. I'm intrigued about the rumors of seasons 39 and 40 (being filmed now) and am ready for a new season come fall.

SPORTING CHANCE

By JOSHUA SPAULDING

The constant changing of games, made it tough to see all of my teams on a regular basis this spring. With the five schools and numerous varsity sports, I usually get to see teams once every few weeks, but things got pretty screwed up with the weather. Last week I saw a few teams for the first time, including the Prospect Mountain, Kennett and Plymouth girls' tennis teams and the Plymouth boys' lacrosse team. That officially means that I have seen all of my teams, though it's a bit late, since the tennis regular season ends this week.

I had a bit of a relapse in the diet program I had been following. While I had no problem keeping up with the exercise portion of the program, I kind of got away from the diet portion for a while. Taking short trips to Seattle and Philadelphia probably didn't help matters any but I also just let things get away from me for a bit. Most of the time it started small, with a piece of candy here or there, but it escalated a little bit. I got back on track with the diet at the start of last week, so we'll see how long it lasts this time.

For those interested, I'll be appearing on stage this summer at the Village Players Theater. I wasn't sure about auditioning, but decided to give it a shot, since this show doesn't really require memorization. I am playing the role of Charles Webb in Thornton Wilder's Our Town, which will be on stage the final weekend of July and the first weekend of August. Rehearsals have been under way for a few weeks and it's coming along nicely and I'm looking forward to the next few months of rehearsal. And if I'm missing at a game here or there, I'm probably at rehearsal.

Finally, have a great day Hunter and Mandy Emory.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
