Tilton Zoning Board resigns in protest of alleged hostile treatment by selectmen

BY DONNA RHODES
drhodes@salmonpress.com

TILTON — The Town of Tilton is looking for a few good men and women, five to be exact, to fill a void caused by the resignation of all members of the town's Zoning Board of Adjustment following a disagreement with the board of selectmen.

The animosity between the two boards began in June, when a variance was granted for an automotive business on Route 3 in the Lochmere District of Tilton. The ZBA reviewed the request to open such a business across from Winnisquam Auto, and after considering all aspects of the case and the fact that it was in a Mixed Use area, they voted to approve the variance.

The selectmen, however, did not agree with that decision once they learned of it.

Selectman Katherine Dawson, the representative to the town's Planning Board, sent a memorandum about the decision to her fellow selectmen, who considered her points and concerns. They then opted to consult an attorney to review the matter and help draft a request for a rehearing on the variance issued.

As a result of that challenge, though, the ZBA in turn hired an attorney of their own, which selectmen did agree they were entitled to do.

Zoning Board Chairman Joseph Plessner said that when his board learned selectmen had hired an attorney, however, he felt that action "elevated the process beyond a friendly board to board exchange" and they, too, proceeded in the manner they felt was best.

The five members then held a meeting on Aug. 16 to revisit the criteria brought before them as a continuance of their prior meeting. At that time the zoning board unanimously upheld their previous decision to grant the variance for the new business.

At the close of that meeting, Vice-Chairman Robert Brown read a statement that focused on Dawson's memorandum. He felt that she had been unnecessarily Selectmen Karen Ober, Johnny Van Tassel and John Olmstead welcomed their new Town Administrator, Katie Ambrose, to the Sanbornton Town Offices last week.

Community welcomes new town administrator to Sanbornton

BY DONNA RHODES
drhodes@salmonpress.com

SANBORNTON — Sanbornton selectmen were pleased to introduce their new Town Administrator, Katie Ambrose, to residents during a brief reception that took place prior to their regular meeting last Wednesday evening.

Ambrose began her new job on Monday, Aug. 15, and said that while she is still learning her way around, she is quite pleased to be a part of the town.

"I think Sanbornton's a great community. The staff has been so helpful and all the citizens I've met have been very friendly," she said.

The fact that Sanbornton is such a "tight-knit" community is what Ambrose said attracted her to the position to begin with. All through the interview process she said the search committee and everyone she met was warm and welcoming. In addition to that she has a background that includes experience in environmental matters, so Winnisquam Lake and other bodies of water in the town were an added draw for her.

"I thought my experiences could be helpful to the community and that this would just be a good fit for me, and so far it is. This is a great team," Ambrose said, gesturing toward all the town leaders who attended the reception.

Selectman Karen Ober said she feels this is an exciting time for Sanbornton. Both she and fellow board members Johnny Van Tassel and John Olmstead look forward to having Ambrose working with them as she brings new ideas and experiences to the town.

"Katie has a lot of team leadership and a lot to offer," Ober said. "It isn't about being a lone ranger, it's about how we can all work together for the good of the citizens and the Town of Sanbornton. We're happy to have Katie as a part of that now, too."

As the selectmen's meeting got underway, they took a moment to present certificates of appreciation to Police Chief Stephen Hankard, Fire Chief Paul Dexter and Town Treasurer Karen Cobb for their work on the search committee for the new Town Administrator.

"The results of the process you went through are shown here tonight. Thank you," selectmen told the committee.

Ambrose comes to Sanbornton after three-and-a-half years as Hooksett's Project Coordinator in their Administrative Department and can now be reached Monday through Friday at 729-8090 for questions, comments or concerns.

BELMONT — Belmont High School's new Principal, Dave Williams, has his attention firmly fixed on the education of his students and the skilled faculty that make it all possible as they head into the 2016-17 school year at Shaker Regional School District.

Williams holds a degree in biology and obtained a master's in secondary education from UNH and comes to Belmont through previous teaching and administrative positions in Maine and southern New Hampshire. In the course of his career Williams became the assistant principal of a junior-senior high school in Newmarket and later took on the role of principal at York Middle

Thousands of athletes took to the waters and roads of the Lakes Region for the annual Timberman Triathlon events.

On Saturday, more than 200 athletes took part in the Timberman

Sprint, with more than 2,400 coming from all over the world to do the 70.3-mile Timberman Ironman. Ellacoya State Park was the starting, finish, and transition area for the competitions. Athletes would swim off the beach, mount their bikes and ride across the region, and then run the course until they finished back at Ellacoya.

Athletes and spectators gathered at race village at Gunstock. Gunstock was also the site of the new trail run and the annual Iron Kids race for the Make-

A-Wish Foundation.

Race director Lily Cennamo said the race went well overall.

"We had the best condition for the bike, we had superb weather," Cennamo said.

Some roads had been redone before the race took place, making for excellent road conditions for the bike race.

"We got a lot of comments on how beautiful the area is, the lake, and how the venue us just easier to get around," Cennamo said.

Around 2,400 athletes took part in the 70.3 race, which Cennamo said was an increase of between 400 to 500 people.

Around 200 people took part in the sprint triathlon on Saturday.

This year a new trail run was introduced at Gunstock. On Saturday, 200 kids took part in the Ironkids race for the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Cennamo said she heard from many people that hotels in the area were full for the weekend.

Planning for the weekend starts in January with a lot of coordination between fire and police departments, parks, volunteers, permits, and many more. The race starts in Gilford and goes through Laconia, Belmont, Gilmanton, Loudon, and Canterbury.

"All the towns are very supportive, and we appreciate that immensely," Cennamo said.

Over the course of the weekend 800 volunteers helped out in various ways. Many came from local groups such as the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Concord Christian Academy, high school football teams, and many more.

Ironman will make a charitable contribution to all the organizations, totaling around $28,000 every year.

The event is also one of the biggest fundraisers for the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

On Sunday afternoon awards were handed out for the 70.3-mile race.

The top finisher overall was Tyler Butterfield of Bermuda, who completed the whole course in three hours, 48 minutes, and four seconds.

The second place finisher was Michi Weiss of Austria, who finished the race in three hours, 49 minutes, and 22 seconds.

Third place went to Chris Baird of San Francisco with a total time of three hours, 54 minutes, and six seconds.

"It was one of the best 70.3's I've done," Butterfield said during the awards.

This was Butterfield's first ever win, something he had been striving toward for seven years.

"I'm pretty stoked, I'm happy," Butterfield said.

Butterfield thanked his competitors, saying Weiss especially pushed him during the competition.

"I think we can all say this was a great race," Butterfield said. "Hopefully I'll be back next year."

The top female finisher was Mirinda Cafrae of Australia, who finished the race in four hours, 22 minutes, and 22 seconds.

Magali Tisseyre of Canada was the second place women's finisher. SEE TRIATHALON, PAGE A12

Belmont police investigating motorcycle crash

BY DONNA RHODES
dhrhodes@salmonpress.com

BELMONT — An early morning motorcycle accident on Wednesday, Aug. 16, left a 54-year-old Tilton man with serious head injuries that ultimately resulted in a flight to Dartmouth Hitchcock Hospital where he underwent extensive medical treatment.

Belmont Police said they were called to 226 Dutile Rd. at 5:04 a.m. that day and upon arrival they found the victim, later identified as Bruce Coulombe, lying in the road. He was treated at the scene by members of the Laconia-Belmont Fire department before being transported to LRGH where the DHART helicopter then airlifted him to Dartmouth.

There has been no further word on Coulombe's condition.

Members of the Belknap Regional Accident Investigation Team were also called upon to assist Belmont Police with a detailed analysis of the crash.

In a written press release, Lt. Richard Mann stated, "Officers determined that (Coulombe) was not wearing a helmet when his head struck the pavement. At this point in the investigation we are ruling out excessive speed and alcohol as factors."

Investigators are now exploring the possibility that an animal or some other object may have been in the path of the motorcycle, causing the crash. Since Coulombe was unconscious when rescue crews arrived, he was not able to provide them with any details of what might have led up to the accident.

Anyone who may have any additional information about this case is asked to call the Belmont Police at 267-8350.

On July 30 and Aug. 6, more than 2,100 Lakes Region households dropped off a total of more than 21,000 gallons of hazardous products, ensuring that these materials will not enter our drinking water or the environment, on which our local economy is so dependent.

More than 21,000 gallons of hazardous waste safely removed during collections

REGION — For each of the past 29 years residents and property owners in the Lakes Region have had an opportunity to safely dispose of hazardous products from their household, reducing the likelihood of accidents in their home. On July 30 and Aug. 6, more than 2,100 Lakes Region households dropped off a total of more than 21,000 gallons of hazardous products, ensuring that these materials will not enter our drinking water or the environment, on which our local economy is so dependent.

Since 1987, the Lakes Region Planning Commission (LRPC) has coordinated household hazardous waste (HHW) collections in the Lakes Region. In 2016, 24 communities pooled their resources, along with a small grant from the New Hampshire Department of Environmental Resources (NH DES) to provide their residents and property owners with the opportunity to rid their homes of toxic materials without endangering the Lakes Region's groundwater or soil. These hazardous materials included oil-based paints, lawn and garden products, household cleaners, automotive fluids, and pool chemicals. The annual collections, held at eight different locations around the region, gave households a couple of opportunities to bring their hazardous materials in for convenient and safe disposal.

The number of households participating in this year's collection was the highest since the establishment of a regional HHW facility in Wolfeboro 14 years ago. While oil-based paints continue to be a large proportion of the materials collected during the annual collections, this year participants also dropped off more than 5,000 gallons of tars, resins, and epoxies, along with 4,000 gallons of pesticides and fertilizers.

The continued success of the collection is due to many people, especially the sixty volunteers and municipal employees who turned out to assist with surveys, traffic control, and the unloading of used motor oil and fluorescent

Illegal moose and obelisks: Tramping the international line

By JOHN HARRIGAN
COLUMNIST

Anders Morley loves traveling on foot. He's walked the length of New Hampshire, from Fitzwilliam to Pittsburg, he's gone half-way across Canada on cross-country skis, and now, to sort of quote Johnny Cash, he's been walking the line--the U.S.-Canadian line, the longest unfortified border in the world.

Or at least part of it. Anders snagged room and board at the Harrigan Hilton with me a couple of times to stage for his border trek, having sought me out because he heard that I was interested in the border and know a few things about it.

I am, and I do. I know, for instance, that crews are kept busy every year or so keeping a 20-foot swath of the border clear of vegetation, from the St. Lawrence River just northwest of Montreal all the way to New Brunswick and the Bay of Fundy. I know that smuggling, a long-standing tradition, is still going on, involving everything from cigarettes to booze to, yes, drugs and illegal aliens. And I know that Quebec hunters maintain camps, some of them fitted out with all the comforts of home, smack along their side the border in hopes of shooting one of our moose, dragging it to their side of the line, and make it disappear "Somewhere in Chartierville" before a Quebec warden shows up.

In this scenario, I imagine a similar scene in "Casablanca," but in this case, it is not a casino that causes shock, shock do you hear, but a dead moose. "What moose? What blood-

PET OF THE WEEK

LEIA

Leia, aged perhaps one year old is the perfect sized pint sized canine for anyone looking to share their life with a happy, extremely outgoing, super intelligent dog.

She arrived at New Hampshire Humane Society as a stray back in May. Perplexingly not one call from anyone looking for their missing companion meant she was available for adoption after the required time we must hold strays had expired. Leia enjoys regular trips off campus with one of her favorite volunteers. She has shown all of us just how much she wants to please and be with humans. She looks to those she is with for instruction and is incredibly obedient knowing many commands. Truly though, a solid bond of mutual love and respect will provide years of happiness to the folks who take that special plunge and adopt Leia. Weighing in at a little over 30lbs, with a lustrous sleek short coat, a perky jaunt in her step and a perpetual smile on her face; what's not to love about Leia?

Ideal home: one that provides activity, walks and hikes, opportunity to meet the world - she might prefer to be the only dog in the home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Smile...you might be on "Candid Camera!"

To the Editor:

Brian Gallagher of Sanbornton, running for State Senate in District 2, has learned many of his signs, on private property, have been removed, thrown into the woods or destroyed. Gallagher is running a positive grassroots campaign, and finds it disappointing that this type of activity is taking place in our friendly, local communities.

Gallagher, my dear friend, has stated to me, "Political campaigning is at times very arduous but in all instances rewarding, as he travels about in District 2, he has often mentioned to me that everyone whom he has met has been receptive and encouraging. The fruits of hard work will pay off, he often reminds me.

Brian has been very encouraged by those whom he has spoken with in the law enforcement community, that they will soon identify those that are responsible for the removal of the signs.

Brian's optimistic attitude of working together can achieve many successes for all of the communities in this large District. State Senate District 2.

Guy J Giunta, Jr.
Sanbornton

P.S.: Personally, I would be very careful for those taking down signs because as they used to say on an old television show, "Smile, you are on Candid Camera"; lots of homeowners these days now have surveillance cameras.

Remember, those taking down anyone's sign should be aware that it is against the law, but if those individuals continue this illegal activity, you may want to smile, because you may be on camera.

Hunter Taylor deserves to represent District 3

To the Editor:

As a member of the Belknap County Union Negotiating Team, it has been a pleasure to serve alongside County Commissioner Hunter Taylor these past 18 months. Commissioner Taylor, as the leader of our team, provided the guidance necessary to overcome the many obstacles we faced in securing signed labor agreements.

Our negotiating team faced a situation where union employees had not had a pay raise or signed labor contract since 2012. We had to negotiate with two different unions and four different bargaining units, each with unique concerns and objectives. We had to craft a different contract for each bargaining unit while making sure that all final contracts were equal in cost to the county taxpayer.

In two different negotiations, we reached an impasse, and it was Commissioner Taylor who suggested a solution that made it possible to move forward. The final result of this year's negotiations was three signed labor contracts, two of which were approved unanimously by union members and the County Convention.

In addition to his negotiating skills, Commissioner Taylor has demonstrated a dogged attention to detail and ability to "think outside the box". These skills helped significantly in the final design of the new Belknap County Correctional Facility ultimately saving Belknap County taxpayers approximately $34 million.

For the above reasons, I support Hunter Taylor for County Commissioner. I don't live in District 3, so can't vote for him, but as a county resident, I have an interest in his winning the seat.

Dancers from Creative Steps grab the spotlight at national competition

FRANKLIN — Congratulations to the Creative Steps Dance Company of 20 Canal St. In Franklin. Dancers from Creative Steps ranging in age from eight to 18 left it all out on the dance floor recently when they attended DanceXplosion's summer national dance competition.

The event, which was held in Lake George, N.Y., hosted dancers from around the country. Dancers performed as well as took classes in Ballet, Tap, Jazz, Contemporary, Hip Hop and the like for five days. During this time creative Steps' dancers received many first place awards and scholarships for their technique and performance value.

Creative Steps dancers had the honor and privilege of being judged by and taking classes from very well known choreographers in the current dance industry including one of Beyonce's choreographers. These young dancers were able to stand out among the many entries and fellow studios from across the country winning the highest scoring and most coveted Xcaliber award for two of their tap routines "When I Was Your Man" and "Chopstix."

Congratulations to the Creative Steps Dance Company of 20 Canal St. In Franklin. Dancers from Creative Steps ranging in age from eight to 18 left it all out on the dance floor recently when they attended DanceXplosion's summer national dance competition.

Owner and director of Creative Steps Sue Harrington had the privilege to watch as her dancers received their awards.

"It was amazing to see the joy on these young dancer's faces when they realized they had won and all of their time, energy, and hard work paid off." Said Harrington.

Karina Tomlinson, a graduate of Gilford High this past June, received an award for the highest scoring solo in the senior division for her solo "Tap Talk." Harrington also received the choreography award for this solo, as well as the group dance "Strings."

"It is hard to believe it is over," Harrington said.

The dancers started working on their dances a year ago. They will now start on their new choreography for the upcoming dance season.

Creative Steps is very excited to have back on staff Aaron Tolson, formerly of "River Dance" and currently on staff at Broadway Dance Center in New York City. He will bring his rhythm style tap program to Creative Steps beginning Sept. 12, when fall classes begin.

LRPA offers a front row seat to "The Most Dangerous Game"

Classic suspense tale is this weekend's After Dark feature

LACONIA—Join Lakes Region Public Access Television at 10:30 p.m. this Friday and Saturday night (August 26 & 27) for our "LRPA After Dark" presentation of 1932's mystery-adventure "The Most Dangerous Game," starring Joel McCrea, Fay Wray and Leslie Banks.

"The Most Dangerous Game" opens aboard a luxury yacht sailing to South America. One of the passengers is big game hunter, author and adventurer Bob Rainsford (McCrea). The ship runs aground on a coral reef in dangerous, shark-infested waters. Several passengers enter the ocean but only Rainsford survives the shark attacks, swimming to a remote island. Looking for help, he comes upon the jungle fortress of Count Zaroff (Banks), an exiled Russian aristocrat. He also meets other victims of recent shipwrecks, including Eve Trowbridge (Wray) and her brother Martin. The Count, himself an avid sportsman who has turned the island into a private hunting preserve, knows of Rainsford's hunting prowess and is delighted to host him as his island's newest "guest." Eve confides to Rainsford that she feels something is not right on the island – several other survivors have recently gone missing. Searching the fortress, they come across a room filled with big game trophies, and one of them is a man's head! Rainsford realizes that the Count is a madman who hunts humans for sport. Rainsford and Eve soon find themselves as the prey in the most dangerous game! How will they escape with their lives?

"The Most Dangerous Game" began production at RKO Studios at the same time as "King Kong." The films had the same producers, so to save money, they shared several of the same actors (notably, Fay Wray) and jungle sets, as well as the same editor, screenwriter and composer. Fans of "Kong" may feel a similar style and pace to "The Most Dangerous Game." The film was very well received during its time by critics and moviegoers alike. Although the story has been adapted for film many times throughout the years, our version is considered to be the closest to the original story and still the very best. All three leads give solid performance, particularly Leslie Banks as the over-the-top Count Zaroff. In his review, Mordaunt Hall of the

New York Times noted, ... "Through the imaginative fashion in which it has been produced ... the fantastic theme of 'The Most Dangerous Game' makes a highly satisfactory melodrama." What are you waiting for? Grab your popcorn and meet us after dark for this vintage thriller.

You can't find television like this anywhere but LRPA TV, MetroCast Channel 25. Not a subscriber? Then log onto Live Stream through our website (www.lrpa.org) where you can catch all the fun.

William E. Hurd, 55

FRANKLIN — William "Bill" E. Hurd, 55, a lifelong resident of Franklin, died at his home, Thursday, Aug. 18, 2016. Bill died peacefully in the surroundings of his home that he so enjoyed over the years with family and friends.

Born in New London, March 18, 1961, Bill was the son of Charles E. and Marilyn (Hazen) Hurd. He was a graduate of Franklin High School, Class of 1979. He was the ultimate optimist, which served him well in his long battle with cancer. He never gave up once over the six years of his illness.

He began running heavy equipment at the young age of 13. He owned and operated W. E. Hurd Construction from 1981 until his death.

In 2014, he went to work for the City of Franklin, employed as supervisor of the water-sewer department. He was a passionate golfer and longtime member of the Den Brae Golf Club in Sanbornton, serving as president of the men's twilight league for several years.

He always considered the folks at Den Brae as his second family. Bill believed strongly in community service. He was very active with the Franklin Outing Club, currently serving as president and in 2012 was honored with the Hurst Award, as "Community Hero." He served as past president of the Lakes Region Snowmobile Club which he had been active with for years. He also served on the Club Board of Directors. One of Bill's greatest joys was time spent at his camp in Stark, NH. He loved the north country and spent a lot of time there with family and friends. He especially looked forward to bird season and hunting with his bird dog, Cameron. Over the years, Bill served as a volunteer with the Franklin Fire Department and was active with the Explorer Program. He had been a longtime member of the Franklin Lodge of Elks.

Bill was predeceased by his father, Charles E. Hurd, who died in 2015.

He leaves his wife, Heather Hurd of Franklin; his mother, Marilyn (Hazen) Hurd of Franklin; daughters MacKenzie Hurd and her son Aiden Miller of Lochmere and Veronica Hurd of Gilford; stepchildren Emily Kosowicz and husband Ryan of Pembroke, Natalie Rocheleau of Franklin and Zachary Adams and his long time partner, Haley Beyer of Franklin; brother, Vincent Hurd and his wife Melissa and their son, Nicholas of New Boston; sister, Melissa

Thompson and husband Jerry and their children, India and Alan of East Andover. Bill also leaves his longtime close friend, Alan Carignan of Franklin; and numerous aunts, uncles and cousins.

Calling hours will be held Friday, Aug. 26, 2016, from 3 to 7 p.m. at the William F. Smart, Sr. Memorial Home, Franklin-Tilton Road (584 West Main St.) in Tilton. Burial will be at the convenience of Bill's family in the North Sutton Cemetery in Sutton.

A gathering to celebrate Bill's life will be held Saturday, Sept. 24, 2016, beginning at 2 p.m. at the Veterans Memorial Recreation Area, Flaghole Road in West Franklin. It would be Bill's suggestion that all come casually dressed.

For those who wish, and are able, in keeping with Bill's thoughts about community service, contributions in his name may be made to either, the Franklin Outing Club, C/O Kathy Fuller, 200 Prospect St., Franklin, NH 03235 or Camp Sno-Mo, Easter Seals, 555 Auburn St., Manchester, NH 03103.

Bill's family expresses their "deepest gratitude" to his Oncologist, Charles Catcher, M. D., all the nurses in Oncology/Hematology, and the entire staff who cared for Bill at LRGH in Laconia for the past six years.

BY MARK PATTERSON

I first heard it referred to as "socially responsible" investing, then it became impact investing or green and a number of other ways that I want to refer to as principled investing. Speaking with many investors gives me insight as to what their objectives are when investing their money. Often times, they come in my office with some mutual funds that are categorized as growth or income, large-cap, small-cap, international, and a bunch more. Eight or nine years ago I had given some presentations regarding socially responsible or impact investing. Often times, these talks attracted those who lean towards those environmental minded. As the word got out that I was designing portfolios of investments specifically based on people's principles and values, I found that almost everyone wanted to tailor their portfolio and invest in companies that they felt good about and more importantly, avoid those companies or industries they despised.

The "socially responsible" tag was often stuck on those with politically left leanings who did not like companies such as Walmart, Exxon Mobil or a host of other companies whose practices they questioned. I have also had clients that sold their mutual funds because they had Internet related companies like Google a.k.a. alphabet, because these clients were concerned about Internet pornography. I have had clients tell me they do not want GE in their portfolio because the current CEO is an economic advisor to the current administration in Washington, D.C. and political crony.

I believe most people do have their opinions, likes and dislikes and principles when it comes to investing their money. As an advisor there are certain companies that I would not invest my own money based on my principles. But my principles are not your principles, you must voice your opinions and principles as to where you want your money invested and where you do not. It's very difficult to eliminate all companies that you may have an issue with, but identifying beliefs based on your principles that are important to you and then talking to your advisor about it is a great start. There are plenty of great companies whose equity or debt you can buy for your portfolio that can fit your criteria.

If you choose to plow your money into mutual funds, you must understand that you may have an issue with many of these companies in the fund's portfolio. There are a few "socially responsible" funds but they may not reflect your principles, likes and dislikes at all. There are some great advantages to building your personal portfolio with individual stocks and bonds as opposed to mutual funds. I understand that many may be forced into funds because they're in your 401(k) 403B plan, or you may just be getting started and not have enough money to get diversification with individual stocks or bonds.

If you have not done so yet go to my website, www.MHP-asset.com, go to tools and risk analysis to obtain your risk number that you can match up to your current portfolio or see what your risk number portfolio mix may appear.

Newmont Military Band concert in Belmont Village Sunday afternoon

BELMONT — The Belmont Heritage Commission returns the vaunted Newmont Military Band for a Sunday, Aug. 28 concert beginning at 2 p.m. on the historic Bandstand. Generously sponsored by the John M. Sargent Fund, the performance is free and all are welcome.

The band takes its name from members, representing both New Hampshire and Vermont. Founded in 1995 by Larry Jones of Windsor, Vermont, the 20 plus group recreates a small town band of the late 1800s -- in the tradition of Belmont's own bands of that era and the early 1900s.

Dr. James Cheseborough, currently Keene State College Band Director, will conduct

The Newmont Military Band as painted by Pennsylvania artist Patricia Walach Keough during their 2014 performance on the Festival Gettysburg Main Stage.

Newmont favorites through the years, including songs of "the war," love and marches. Dr. Cheseborough spent 26 years as a band director in Ohio and New Hampshire public schools, and has conducted on several college campuses, including the Plymouth State University Symphonic Band, and was Visiting Music Director for the Yale University Bands. The NH Band Directors Association has honored him as their "Outstanding Band Director of the Year."

Newmont will perform in the uniforms of the era - navy blue jackets and crisp white shirts and trousers - playing on authentic vintage brass instruments. The concert on the 1908 Belmont Bandstand will be a visual and musical remembrance of early village years.

Visitors are asked to bring their lawn chairs and picnics are encouraged. Very special guests will attend from the New Hampshire Veterans Home, through the efforts and hosting of American Legion Post 58. For further information see www.historicbelmontbandstand.org. ## LRCC and Watts Water Technologies team-up for on-site college courses LACONIA — Twenty-six Watts Water Technologies employees began their first class of Advanced Manufacturing Certificate program on Aug. 15. Lakes Region Community College (LRCC) professor Mike LaBrecque will bring the program to Watts' Franklin facility teaching on-site classes consisting of presentations and laboratories, with hands-on work.

Mike LaBrecque, a former pattern maker at Watts, and current LRCC student, Adam Plummer, formulated the idea of putting together a training program providing Watts' employees with the skills to operate the latest machining equipment. Watts Water Technologies received a $55,680 grant from the NH Job Training Fund partially funding 23 employees' enrollment in the certificate program. There was so much interest among Watts' employees that the company is providing support for an additional three employees. The one and a half year program is estimated to cost $111,000 — half of that amount will be covered by the State of New Hampshire through the New Hampshire Job Training Fund grant and the other half will be provided by Watts Water Technologies.

The classes will focus on best practices in advanced manufacturing with two sessions taught per day, one for first shift and the other for the second and third shifts. Watts' employees who participate in the program will enroll as LRCC students having access to all College resources and utilizing the Blackboard platform for online learning. LaBrecque noted that many of the employees in this program are "already experienced machinists" and he hopes to provide en-

Consider All Aspects of College Savings Options

It's almost back-to-school time. If you have young children going to public schools, your biggest expenditures may be on pens, pencils and notebooks. But if you want those same kids to go to college someday, you'll eventually face considerably larger costs — so you may want to start preparing soon.

College is costly. For the 2015-16 school year, the average expense (including tuition, fees room and board) was nearly $20,000 at a public, four-year school, and more than twice that amount at a four-year private school, according to the College Board. Of course, cheaper alternatives are available — your children could go to a local community college for two years at a very reasonable cost, and then transfer to a four-year school.

Still, if your child does go on to get a bachelor's degree, those big bills will eventually arrive. As you consider how you can best deal with these costs, ask yourself these questions:

• How much can I afford to contribute? As much as you'd like to help your children pay for college, you also have to think about your own needs — specifically your retirement. Think very carefully before reducing contributions to your retirement plans, such as your IRA and 401(k), to help fund a college savings plan. After all, your children may be able to get scholarships and grants, and even if they have to take out loans, they'll have many years in which to repay them — but you can't postpone saving for retirement without jeopardizing your ability to enjoy a comfortable lifestyle. When it comes to prioritizing your financial goals, putting yourself first is not necessarily a selfish act.

• What college savings plan should you consider? A number of college savings options are available. For example, you could contribute to a 529 plan which offers potential tax advantages and high contribution limits. You might also consider a custodial account, such as an UGMA or UTMA, although when your children reach the age of majority, they are free to do whatever they want with the money — and their plans may not include college.

• What will be the effect of a college savings plan on financial aid?

When colleges determine financial aid packages, they will evaluate your child's assets differently than your assets. Your child typically would be expected to contribute 20 percent of his or her assets, while you are only expected to contribute up to 5.6 percent of your assets. Consequently, you may be better off saving for college in your name, rather than your children's. Under the federal financial aid guidelines, an UTMA/UGMA account is classified as a student asset, while 529 plans are counted as parental assets if parents are the account owners. (The rules on financial aid are not always so clear-cut, however, so it might be worth your while to contact a financial aid officer at a local college or university to ensure that your chosen method of saving will still allow for the greatest possible assistance.)

As you can see, you've got several factors to think about when it comes to helping your kids meet their higher education goals. Study up on these options, so you can find the right answers for your family's needs.

Plans underway for Grand Pumpkin Parade Oct. 22

LACONIA —The Lakes Region Chamber of Commerce is excited to announce plans for a bigger and better Grand Pumpkin Parade this Oct. 22 during the 2016 NH Pumpkin Festival taking place in Downtown Laconia.

“Children’s Dentistry and Kennell Orthodontics are so excited to be the sponsors for the Grand Pumpkin Parade at the New Hampshire Pumpkin Festival again this year! Last year, our team had such a great time dressing up and passing out fun giveaways. It was really great to see so many familiar faces at the festival and we hope to see even more this year! We are so thrilled that this year’s parade will now include floats and we already have been brainstorming up some really cool ideas for our float!” announced Dr. Melissa Kennell.

“We are continually grateful for the support of our business community. Watching the collaboration of so many people working together to create ideas and make them happen is simply amazing. There is an incredible sense of pride in the Lakes Region!” said Karmen Gifford, President of the Lakes Region Chamber of Commerce.

The staff at the City of Laconia Parks & Recreation has stepped in to improve the coordination of the parade and assist with the process. This year, we encourage floats and will allow motorized vehicles in the parade. Pre-registration is encouraged. The theme of this year’s Grand Pumpkin Parade is all about pumpkins and will kick off at 1 p.m. on Oct. 22, beginning at the corner of Water Street & Beacon Street West making a complete loop around Beacon Street West/East. Participants from across the state are welcome.

If your business, civic organization, group, or band would like to participate, please go to NHPumpkinFestival.com for a Parade Registration Form and Guidelines or call Laconia Parks & Recreation at 524-5046. Plans grow like pumpkins. For the most up-to-date information about NH Pumpkin Festival, go to NHPumpkinFestival.com. Follow the festival on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter.

Timberman a personal goal for some participants, a challenge for others

BY ERIN PLUMMER
eplummer@salmonpress.com

From those who have been doing triathlons since they were teenagers to those who were talked into trying it for the first time, every athlete at the Timberman Triathlon had their own story of training, dedication, and accomplishment.

On Sunday, more than 2,400 athletes from as nearby as Gilford to as far away as Australia took on the 70.3-mile triathlon, also known as a half-Ironman.

Michelle Verschelden and her husband Michel Guay came to the race from Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Quebec, along with Michelle’s brother Luc Verschelden.

Michelle Verschelden has done about a dozen 70.3-mile triathlons and four Ironman’s. She and her husband do many triathlons together. During the summer months they will train between 12 and 14 hours a week and closer to 18 to 22 hours as the event draws closer.

This was Michelle Verschelden’s third time doing Timberman. While she lost 10 minutes this year, she said she did better than in 2014.

Overall, she enjoyed this year’s race, saying the weather was perfect for racing.

“The lake was wonderful, and the temperature is good,” Guay said. “Not too hot, not too cold.”

“We come back because we really enjoy being here, it’s really welcoming,” Michelle Verschelden said. “The volunteers are really, really nice.”

This was Luc’s first ever triathlon. He said the subject had been brought up before of him doing one and he refused, though he had a different answer in one night of New Year’s Eve festivities.

“I had a few cold beverages and my sister told me, ‘Do Ironman with us,’ and I said, ‘Okay,’” Luc Verschelden said.

He kept with that promise, saying he does what he says. He said he likes challenges in general.

“He was really stepping up his training and he did really well with his first time,” Michelle Verschelden said.

Luc Verschelden said he loved it, saying the scenery was superb.

“The people were amazing,” he said, saying the volunteers were especially great.

Ken Modica of Philadelphia and Mary Caruso from Connecticut have been doing Timberman since 2009.

“This is a nice event,” Modica said. “The community really supports it, which is nice.”

Both of them are regular triathlon competitors, other competitions they have done include Lake Placid, Atlantic City, and Philadelphia. They both train between 15 to 20 hours a week.

Julie Gliesing of San Antonio flew to the area for her first time doing Timberman.

She has been doing triathlons for 15 years, starting as a teenager with the support of her parents.

Now she does an average of eight triathlons a year, including three half-Ironman’s, Olympic distance, and others.

This was her first Timberman. She is originally from Connecticut and heard of the race there. Her friend David Peyser was doing his first ever half-Ironman at Timberman and she wanted to join along with him.

“It was a fantastic race, I loved it especially the bike course,” Gliesing said. “They did a really good job of just making it fun.”

Gliesing said she mostly does triathlons for fun.

“Just really have a good time doing it,” Gliesing said. While doing these events is a lot of work, “To me I want to do this just for the fun of it.”

Belknap House receives grant from New Hampshire Charitable Foundation

LACONIA — Belknap House recently received a $35,000 grant from the New Hampshire Charitable Foundation for the installation of a fire sprinkler system. During the cold weather months of Oct. 15 to May 15, the shelter will provide temporary living quarters for homeless Belknap County families with children. Families will be helped to find housing and to increase self-reliance. The shelter must have a code-approved sprinkler system in place before opening.

In accepting the grant, Belknap House Board President Colleen Garrity remarked, "This is such a generous donation from a group who understands the needs of children and the concerns of homeless families during cold weather months. I speak for the Belknap House Board of Directors in saying how grateful we are for the support of the New Hampshire Charitable Foundation. We cannot do this alone. We need the community support of individuals, businesses, and civic organizations. The grant from the New Hampshire Charitable Foundation's Lois G. Roy Dickerman Fund will be truly instrumental in moving us forward."

Belknap House is a non-profit organization founded in 2014 to provide families in Belknap County with safe shelter during cold weather months. It is at this time that homeless children are particularly at risk. The shelter will link families with the resources and educational opportunities needed to become self-sufficient. Belknap House plans to open in October 2016 through the generosity of residents and local businesses as well as charitable, community and religious organizations. Further information may be obtained by contacting belknap-house@gmail.com or visit www.facebook.com/belknaphouse/

The New Hampshire Charitable Foundation was created in 1962 by and for the people of New Hampshire, and is dedicated to strengthening communities across the Granite State. The Foundation manages a growing collection of 1,700 philanthropic funds created by generous families, individuals and businesses, and awards more than $30 million in grants and scholarships every year. The Foundation invests charitable assets for today and tomorrow; works with generous and visionary citizens to maximize the power of their giving; supports critical work happening in New Hampshire communities and leads and collaborates on high-impact initiatives. trail?"

Anders is not the first such story-chasing writer to stay at my house, which indeed sometimes seems like a hotel. Larry Millman, author of 16 books and perhaps best known for "Last Places," stayed with me too, and had fascinating tales about life among the High Arctic's people. Anders reminds me of him, more at home alone in the wild than dealing with sidewalks and scads of people.

Anders had heard about something I'd written a while back about a pin-prick on the map where the boundaries of Maine, New Hampshire and Canada meet, a storied place established by the 1842 Webster-Ashburton Treaty, tweaked by small adjustments from more precise surveying ever since, and finally marked permanently by various obelisks and geodetic brass markers hammered into boulders and bedrock.

Using rod, chain and compass to initially mark the line, the 1843 Ashburton crew fought its way north through the elements and thickets, through swamps and over mountains, to ascertain roughly where northern New England and Quebec met.

A bit later on, a surveying crew marking the Maine-New Hampshire line fetched up on the Quebec line, piled up a large cairn of rocks, and carved their names and the date into the trunk of a yellow birch tree. This carving endured for decades, an object of fascination for generations of surveyors and hunters alike.

Anders wanted to do that stretch of the border from Maine to Vermont, and see that spot, and so one bright morning we piled into my truck and took off for Pittsburg's Boundary Pond, in a high saddle just a stone's throw from the Canadian line.

The tri-border spot is a couple of miles east of the pond, so I took a turn just shy of Boundary, aiming for a beaver pond that sits not far from the pin-prick on the map. There I dropped Anders, who splashed across the beaver dam, drew a bead on a densely wooded ridge, and with a wave headed straight north.

"I found the border, no problem," he said later, "and then backtracked a few hundred yards to find the meeting point. There was no fabled yellow birch any more, but there was a nice little granite obelisk, and the Maine line was newly marked with yellow diamonds tacked to trees."

With that, he headed west, bound for the Pittsburg-Chartierville border station, and ultimately the Vermont state line. And he made it all right, after spending two nights out, one of them on a Quebec moose-hunter's platform.

(Anders is writing about his border hike for an upcoming issue of New Hampshire Magazine.)

She said the roads were great for the bike race it was “not too hot on the run.”

School in Maine.

Moving now to Belmont, he said, has been a very positive venture.

“This is a solid school district and the student body here is fantastic. From my observations so far it is one of the most respectful group of students I’ve ever observed, and that speaks a lot to the community,” said Williams.

His praise for the staff and faculty was equally sincere. Williams said that since his start date of July 1, he has met one-on-one with each of the teachers to hear their thoughts, needs, and hopes for the future and is excited about all he has learned from them.

“Through our discussions we’ve come up with a mosaic of the school, its needs and its strengths,” said Williams. “I’ll be keeping all that in mind as I spend this year watching and learning more about the school.”

That will include spending time in the classrooms where, as an instructional leader, he feels he will get a better grasp of all that takes place at Belmont High School.

As the new school year gets underway Williams is also excited to bring on board a new Associate Principal, Christopher Tebo, who will partner with him in his goals. As part of the search committee to find a new Associate Principal, Williams was pleased Tebo accepted the offer to join him at Belmont High School.

“Our relationship is critical, and I think we make a great team. He’s young and has a lot of energy, and I know we’ll get along great,” said Williams.

Tebo comes to Belmont from Spaulding High School in southern New Hampshire where he was a Social Studies teacher. As sought to move up with his career in education, Tebo said the opening in Belmont was brought to his attention and he knew right away it was the perfect fit for him.

“I came here for a number of reasons, first of all because I worked in the development of Competency Base Education and when the opportunity to come to Belmont and work with Dave presented itself, I couldn’t pass it up,” said

Tebo.

He said that now is an exciting time to be involved in education and he is just as excited about his new career in Belmont.

A recent Parents’ Night was held when families were introduced to the new Competency Based Education program their students will be experiencing and Williams said the program was very well received.

Competency Based Education, he explained, is much more focused on the learning process and what goes on in the classroom than on the test grades students achieve. Through greater learning and understanding of a subject, he said, students will have a better grasp of their overall education and therefore achieve higher test grades.

“I want competency based learning, not competency based grading. I want teachers to finally get to focus on teaching and learning, not grades. Throughout the year we’ll have a lot of professional development workshops for that focus on academic excellence,” Williams said.

Students, parents and the community will not be left out of the equation either. Williams said student voices will be heard and he will schedule periodic coffee time chats with parents and the community to hear their ideas and concerns as well.

While all those initiatives have him excited to be a part of Shaker Regional School District, the only thing missing this summer has been the students themselves and he eagerly awaited the first day of school, which was this Tuesday.

“I’m just really excited to get them in here. This school is the perfect size where I can get to know them all by name, celebrate their strengths and the strengths of the staff members who work with them,” Williams said.

confrontational in expressing her opinions about the zoning board's decision, and had made what he interpreted as threats that the selectmen intended to retaliate by micro-managing the zoning board's activities.

“Her unprofessional approach to a simple appeal process is indicative of deep-rooted sentiments and a lack of respect for experienced ZBA members,” Brown said.

Plessner also read a lengthy statement of his own, stating that the board had served the town as volunteers, doing their best to serve in good faith and through sound judgment based on evidence and fact in rendering their decisions.

“Recently, the Board of Selectmen challenged our decision in ZBA

Case 16-01, wherein relief was granted in the form of a variance by applying criteria specified in RSA 674:33 to allow the owner reasonable use of his property,” he read from a prepared statement.

He said that from the tone of Dawson's memorandum he and others felt the zoning board would be “under a microscope” in the future, and therefore concluded by saying, “It saddens us that despite our long-standing acquaintances with the BOS members and our appreciation for the responsibilities that they bear, not one of them rose to verify the accusations and threats by Dawson. That being said, it seems the best way to resolve this matter is for you to consider this our formal notice of resignation by the below listed members of the ZBA, effective Sept. 1, 2016.”

Plessner, Brown,

George Helwig and Kathy Yeo all affixed their signatures to the document, while Marina Sumner opted to send in her own personal letter of resignation instead.

Dawson said on Monday that she was saddened by the resignations, acknowledging the years of experience each of the ZBA members had dedicated to the town. She explained that she had merely wanted to bring to the attention of her fellow selectmen her own findings that revealed many of the automotive businesses along Route 3 are of nonconforming use. They have only been allowed by past special exceptions and variances, a practice that she feels needs to come to an end. She said there are many residential homes in and behind businesses along the Mixed Use zone in Lochmere and that past zoning boards allowed nonconforming businesses to creep into the area, going against the town's Master Plan. Building on those past decisions is not making the situation any better for the future of the town.

“For me it's just frustrating. The ordinances voted on by the legislative body really need to stand,” said Dawson.

As for the selectmen's reactions to her memorandum, she thought that by questioning the decision of the case, the “ball was in their (the ZBA's) court” but instead they chose not to come to selectmen to have a discussion on the topic.

“I would have even gone to one of their meetings to sit down and have a discussion with them if they couldn't come to us,” Dawson said. “But I want to point out that it was not Katherine Dawson who made the motion to go forward with a request for a rehearing- it was the Board of Selectmen.”

The ZBA did not see it that way however and now the town is in search of a new group of volunteers willing to take on the job of overseeing ordinances in their community. In the meantime there are no exceptions that can be allowed to any ordinances in the town without a zoning board to appeal to. That alone could bring another host of challenges if a new board is not assembled in a reasonable amount of time. Dawson speculated that even the ZBA's final variance on Case 16-01 is not yet a sure thing. It could now be up to selectmen to make that decision.

“No one wins in this and the biggest loser is the young man down there trying to make a living. We'll just have to wait and see what happens from here,” Dawson said.

Chairman Pat Contentino of the Board of Selectmen said she would be happy to welcome back any of the five members who recently gave up the job, acknowledging their experience, dedication and willingness to volunteer their time for the sake of their community. All others who may be interested in serving on the Zoning Board are also asked to contact the Selectmen's office at 286-4521, ext. 100 for more information.

Raiders loaded, aim for deep postseason run

BY JEFF LAJOIE

jlajoie@salmonpress.com

BELMONT – The off-season came much too soon for the Belmont High School boys' soccer team last year. With the NHIAA Division III bracket opening up thanks to a bevy of upsets, the Red Raiders looked destined to make a run with a deep and talented roster. But facing a Campbell team it had already defeated during the regular season, Belmont was unable to get its offense going in the quarterfinals. The visiting Cougars ended the Raiders season prematurely, sending Belmont packing with a 1-0 loss.

The defeat ended a magical 15-3 overall season for the fourth-seeded Raiders, which had as much of a stake to the D-III throne as anyone with the way they played during the regular season.

"Our goal at the onset of the year was, 'Let's anybody's game," said Belmont head coach Mike Foley following the quarterfinal loss a year ago. "We worked hard all year but came up a bit short. I feel bad for the seniors. This was only the second game all year where we didn't score a goal."

While the loss thwarted the Raiders in their quest for a state championship, the good news for Belmont is that this year's team is once again locked and loaded, and a deep run is well within the realm of possibility.

Belmont's senior class has excelled on the varsity stage for years, and if all the pieces fall into place, the Raiders will certainly have a chance to return to the program's first Final Four since 2012.

"With the return of a veteran team our expectations are very high," offered Foley. "Our season ended too soon last year and this group wants to make it further in the tournament. We are going to rely on our ability to move the ball quickly and continue to improve on our defense which only surrendered 12 goals last year."

Who's in: It's very much a veteran team,

Bears shoot for continued improvement

BY JEFF LAJOIE

jlajoie@salmonpress.com

TILTON – Three years ago, Nick D'Agostino took over a program that was down on numbers and down on success. The Winnisquam Regional High School boys' soccer team struggled in his first season, winning just two games, but last year's team stepped up both in numbers and success.

The Bears won seven games, posting a 7-9-1 overall record and qualifying for the NHIAA Division III postseason. After a 1-5 start to the season, the team posted an outstanding 6-2 mark to get back to .500 before the final portion of the schedule. After a 2-0 loss to Newfound in the D-III first round, Winnisquam will look to continue the upward trend of success this fall in D'Agostino's third season with the program.

There will be some big hurdles for the Bears to overcome this season however. Despite graduating just five seniors, there were some key losses in that class, including several starters and captains who had been lynchpins of the starting lineup for several years.

With the ability to field two teams last year (JV and varsity), Winnisquam hopes the extra reps will pay off this season. The D-III field won't be easy to navigate, but the Bears more than held their own in 2015 and hope to do the same again.

"The team returns six starters from last year's team," said D'Agostino. "The young team adds nine new additions in a sophomore/junior loaded team. The team will work towards returning to the playoffs and try to improve on last year's success."

The 2016 season kicks off Aug. 26 with a home game against White Mountains (3:30 p.m.), and the Bears follow with tilts against Campbell and Somersworth in a difficult following week.

Who's in: The sophomore class is quite large, with a plethora of youngsters stepping into the squad. Sara Chambers (D/M), Derek DeSousa (D), Calvin Dodge (M/F), Adam Dunham (GK), Trevor Gray (GK), Hunter Hinxman (M), Patrick Welch (D), and Samuel Wood (M/F) are all sophomores on the roster, while freshman Eric Young (M/F) is the lone member of his grade on the squad.

Who's out: After an outstanding career, goalkeeper Mike Buxton graduated last spring and leaves a huge void in the Winnisquam lineup this fall. Buxton was one of the top keepers in D-III, and the long-time starter between the pipes was a two-time All-State selection as well as a co-captain.

Fellow co-captain Henry Stock also graduated after a fine career sharing time between the midfield and defensive portion of the field. Stock was also an All-State pick a year ago, and his physicality and strong boot were always counted on for the Bears.

JEFF LAJOIE

Trenton Kennett of Winnisquam returns as one of the top offensive options this season.

The tandem were arguably the most important players for Winnisquam a year ago and their losses are difficult, but fellow classmates Isaiah Millis (defense) and Jake Hinds (defense) will also be missed as they provided a variety of skills that impacted the lineup in a big way.

Who to watch: Junior midfielder Caiden Gamble has been a key piece to the starting lineup since bursting onto the scene as a freshman, and he continue to deliver last year as a star midfielder. Gamble's biggest moment of 2015 came against Newfound in a regular season contest, as his corner kick in overtime somehow found its way into the back of the net for a goal that sealed a 3-2 victory.

Forward Trenton Kennett also showed his flare for scoring goals a year ago, and he had his best game of the season in a midseason victory over Laconia. Kennett scored three goals, posting a hat trick that lifted the Bears to a key win over the Sachems.

Senior Scott Hinds made his bones defensively a year ago and returns to help shore up that unit. Seniors Logan Krause (M/D) and Conner Young (D) round out that class, while juniors Jesse Fredette (M), Edward Gallien (F), and Mark Sotherden (M) also return.

Prediction: How quickly the Bears can plug new players into those key holes throughout the lineup will be the key to success this fall. But with six starters back, including some dynamic young players, don't expect Winnisquam to be an easy out come late October and early November.

Impressive senior class to power Raiders

BY JEFF LAJOIE

jlajoie@salmonpress.com

BELMONT – For the past five years, the goal for the Belmont High School girls' soccer team has continually been the same: reach a Final Four.

That won't change this fall, as the Red Raiders return a horde of talented veterans and appear loaded for a shot at that elusive Final Four berth. The squad posted an 11-6-1 record a year ago, beating Newport in the preliminary round of the NHIAA Division III Tournament before falling to Hopkinton, 3-0, in the quarterfinals. The loss was the fourth in five years for Belmont in the quarterfinals.

Last year's team got a big boost from a freshman class ready to contribute immediately. With a year of varsity experience under their belts, along with a senior class that has been in the loop for many years as well, the combination should put the Raiders right on the cusp of a deep postseason run.

New head coach Cevat Vural takes over the program this fall, and he inherits a roster rich with talent that also boasts the ability of depth throughout the various grades.

Who's in: Belmont

will be bolstered by some talented newcomers, as freshmen Katie Gagnon and Sana Syed are on the squad, as are sophomores Paige Dillon and Kaitlyn Delisle.

Who's out: The Raiders didn't graduate a ton of starters from last year's team, though arguably the biggest loss comes on defense in the form of Courtney Clairmont. The vocal leader of the back line, she was a long-time starter and lynchpin in the middle for Belmont.

Midfielder Megan Prescott also graduated after making key contributions for several years, while backup goalkeeper Clorissa Roode and midfielder/defender Jen Hamilton also moved on.

Who to watch: The returning core is powered by senior Kelsey Scott, who has occupied the center midfield role for several years and was the team's lone representative on last year's All-State squad. Scott's combination of skill and patience on the ball makes her a dangerous offensive option, though she's also a two-way player willing to make the runs back defensively to handle her assignments.

The senior class is plenty loaded in addition to Scott, as goalkeeper Mariah Watson returns for her third year between the pipes. Watson made 16 saves in a busy outing against Hopkinton in the D-III quarterfinals.

Midfielder Hannah Shirley was a great complement to Scott last year and returns with loads of experience, while classmates Sarah Chase and Emma Chase are both varsity veterans who can fly on the outside midfield slots.

Defensively, senior Jasmine Syed, junior Chloe Sottak and sophomore Lizzie Fleming all return after starting along the back line a year ago. Sophomore speedsters Julianna Estremera and Makenzie Donovan are also back after playing important roles as freshmen a year ago. Estremera was one of Belmont's most dangerous offensive weapons at the forward position, while Donovan is versatile enough to see a variety of spots on the pitch.

Prediction: There have been many talented teams over the past six years for the Raiders, but none have been able to get over that quarterfinal hump. The longer the streak has gone on, the more daunting it has become, though there's no reason why this year's squad can't exorcise those demons and break through into a Final Four.

The combination of talent and experience should have the Raiders in prime position come November, but putting it all together for an 80 minute game in the quarterfinal round is something that Belmont has been unable to do in recent years. Could this be the year that changes?

Deep, talented Bears primed for big season

BY JEFF LAJOIE

jlajoie@salmonpress.com

TILTON — For the third year in a row, the Winnisquam Regional High School field hockey team saw its season come to an untimely end in the NHIAA Division III quarterfinals last year. But after graduating just one senior from that team, the time is now for the deep and talented Bears to surge forward and make a run at an elusive Final Four appearance.

Winnisquam posted an 8-6-2 mark a year ago under head coach Cherie Snow, who enters her sixth year with the program. The Bears upset Stevens on the road to advance to the quarterfinals, where they ultimately dropped a 1-0 decision to Hopkinton in a game they pretty much dominated, holding an 8-3 edge in penalty corners.

Winnisquam got off to a slow start in 2015, as the Bears found themselves just 2-4 before a 6-2-2 mark over the final 10 games of the season propelled them to a winning record.

Snow has developed a deep and talented roster for several years, with contributions coming from all grades the past few seasons. That roster, which featured several players who led the Lakes Region to gold at this summer's Granite

JEFF LAJOIE

Cailey Clogston of Winnisquam was a First-Team All-State selection a year ago.

State Games, should pay dividends this year.

Who's out: The Bears lost just one senior in defender Madison Langan, though her loss will be heavy as she keyed the back line in addition to aiding the transition game after a fine varsity career in Tilton.

Who to watch: There's talent all over the place for the Bears, with junior Hallie McNamara one of the brightest stars on the roster. McNamara helped key the defense last year along with senior Samantha Wood and junior Cailey Clogston, and she also had a knack for finding the back of the net, including the game-winning goal off a penalty corner in the playoff victory over Stevens.

Clogston earned the top accolade for the Bears last year, as she was selected to the All-State First-Team for her efforts.

Junior midfielder Makenzie Snow is another standout returning player who has been a constant presence in the lineup since her freshman year, while seniors Cora Kelley and Jenna Roy are also returning starters in the midfield. Senior Sabrina Bellerose and junior Kaylee Tierney also return for the Bears.

There's plenty of returning firepower offensively, as seniors Ema Atherton and Molly Tinker both return, as do junior speedster Emily Decormier and classmates Lilli Keegan and Lindsey Phelps.

In the goal, junior Riley Toupin returns after starting both her freshman and sophomore years between the pipes. The Winnisquam defense proved quite stout down the stretch a year ago, and Toupin was a big reason for the team's stinginess.

Prediction: Area coaches are all pointing to the Bears as a team to watch in D-III this fall, and with their combination of depth and talent, that tag appears to be warranted. With an experienced goalkeeper pacing things from the back, Winnisquam is well-positioned to make some noise and potentially press forward for a Final Four berth. With talented and hungry players like Clogston, along with McNamara and Snow, both All-State Second-Team picks a year ago, leading the way, it's as dangerous of a team as you're going to find this fall.

Magic Blades entering 20th season

TILTON — Magic Blades figure skating club began in 1997 and will be entering its 20th season this year. Magic Blades is a non-profit, volunteer-run, community organization that has promoted the fun and benefits of skating as part of US Figure Skating's Basic Skills Program, now known as Learn to Skate USA.

Monday nights at the Tilton School Ice Arena, you will find Barbara Adams and her USFS and PSA registered staff coaching everyone from beginners to experts, from age three to 300.

Two local "experts" include Tilton sophomore Maggie DeVoy and Bishop Brady freshman Ila Bartenstein. Both girls have been with the club since early elementary school and have taken their skating careers seriously, skating year-round several times a week and have brought that expertise and passion to young skaters at Magic Blades, training as coaches under senior staff to not only perfect their skating, but their teaching as well.

Skating begins Monday, Sept. 12, at the Tilton School Ice Arena. Beginner lessons start at 6 p.m. Tuition is $80 for six weeks, and there are family discounts available. Tilton School does not have rentals so bring your own skates. There are some skates available in the community to swap, so contact the club to see if your size is available.

Register in person or online at www.magicblades.org. Click the registration link and follow the instructions. For questions contact club president Rose Marie Marinace at rmmarinace@magicblades.org.

BOYS

though sophomores Colby Brown (F), Griffin Embree (M/F) and Derek Stevens (D) will aid the roster this fall as newcomers.

Who's out: There's plenty of returning talent for the Raiders, though the squad did take some key losses to graduation.

Forward TJ Hennessey was the team's leading scorer up top, and the hulking forward was a matchup nightmare with his combination of size and speed. For his efforts, Hennessey was tabbed as a First Team All-State selection, and one of a handful of players in the running for the D-III Player of the Year. He's continuing his playing career internationally this year, competing with the GPS International Academy in London, England.

While Hennessey's loss is a big blow to the Belmont offense, the defense also took a big hit in the graduation of All-State Honorable Mention selection Kyle Gelin. The heady Gelin was one of the most consistent players for the Raiders over the past two seasons, and he helped run the show right in the middle of the back line.

Colby Leroux was a contributor at the outside midfield positions for the Raiders last year before graduating, while rising sophomore Caleb Duggan saw time as a freshman last year but transferred to New Hampton School.

Who to watch: Where to begin?

The Raiders are absolutely loaded with returning talent, and the deep and sizable senior class has impacted the program for several years now.

Senior goalkeeper Jonny Leclair is the backbone between the pipes, and he's been the team's starter in that spot since his freshman season. Having that kind of continuity is certainly not a bad thing, and he's developed into an outstanding goalkeeper who was tabbed All-State Honorable Mention last year.

Fellow seniors Corey Derosier and Doug Price also return, and both found their way onto the All-State list a year ago as juniors. With the pair holding things down in the midfield, Belmont dominated teams in the middle third of the field, leading to a constant barrage of transition goals.

Seniors Tyler Fleming and Chris Marden also return after starting last year, while classmates Logan Wilder and Ryan Gelin are back as top forward options. Seniors Eli Allman (M), Cole Contigiani (F), Hunter Kenney (D/F), Nick Mackes (M), and Max Schott (M) all return as well.

Junior River Mathieu will serve as a tri-captain along with Price and Derosier, and he'll set the pace defensively with Kyle Gelin having graduated.

The sophomore trio of Caleb Burke, Zach Ennis and Nolan Gagnon all saw varsity time last year as freshmen.

Prediction: With Leclair in goal and the tandem of Derosier and Price leading the way in the field, expectations are indeed high for the Raiders this fall. Replacing Hennessey's offensive production will be on the 'To Do' list, as will stabilizing the defense with Kyle Gelin's graduating. But with all the pieces returning as well as some up and coming talent filling in the gaps, a run to the Final Four and a challenge for a D-III title is certainly within reason for Belmont this season.
