The veterans support non-profit group based in the Lakes Region, Camp Resilience, recently hired its' first fulltime employee. Alyssa Tetreault-Mosher joined the group Jan. 2 as its Program Coordinator. Ms. Mosher maintains the group's office, located at the Fireside Inn and Suites complex in Gilford.

"When we started Camp Resilience five years ago, we did so with a concept of service for veterans suffering the visible and invisible wounds of war," said founder Kurt Webber.

"As a start-up, we relied 100 percent on volunteers to accomplish the goals we set for the organization" he added.

BY MARK THOMAS

Mark: I'm sitting Grace nine-year-old and great reader. Hi, Grace. You make incredible, minimalistic rock art scenes. What makes your art special Grace: The wood. Everyone loves the color of the wood. It looks rustic. The rocks are from Greece, Maine.

Mark: One of the most amazing things about your art is that it is professional, clean, and well thought out. When most of us were your age, we were still trying to keep our crayons from coloring out of the lines. What is the secret to making such neat art?

Grace: Use cron Pens. It's a thin pen that's expensive. They're good to draw with. I go through my rock box and lay the right ones on scrap paper and draw around it like a layout. I just don't let it get too cluttered.

Mark: Recently, you've been selling your rock art at events like the Gilford High School Craft Fair and the Belmont Holiday Fair, among others.

Nominations open for Spirit of Hope and Kindness Awards

BY ERIN PLUMMER

second year in a row, kids who do acts of kindness for their communities can be recognized in a special awards ceremony. Nominations are open for the Spirit of Hope and Kindness Awards, where kids can be honored for their work and receive money to further their causes.

The second annual Spirit of Hope and Kindness awards will take place on Sunday, April 7, from 4-6 p.m. at Church Landing in Meredith. Tickets are $25 a person for the semi-formal event. Guests can enjoy a dessert bar by the Common Man before the awards get underway. Fred Caruso and Amy Bates of Mix 94.1 will return as emcees.

The first awards took place last year, the concept started after a conversation between co-founder Laura Brusseau and a few other community minded people.

"So much good going on, and we want to inspire kids, to empower them," Brusseau said. "This event kind of happened through that conversation."

Brusseau and people involved in that conversation became committee members. Brusseau and Andrea Condodemetraky founded the awards and work on a committee with Caryl Falvey and Krysten Adel.

Brusseau said between ticket sales and sponsors, they raised more than $3,000, which was distributed to all the award winners to give to a charity of their choice or do a random act of kindness.

Over the past year, the winners contributed to organizations such as Cereal Heroes, Isaiah 61 Cafe, the New Hampshire Humane Society, the American Cancer Society, and Thirst International. They also did some random acts of kindness, including giving out cards on the street to pay for things like coffee with a few girls giving out Blessing Bags on Christmas Eve to people in Laconia who are homeless. One of the youngest recipients also did an Adopta-Spot around the WOW Trail.

"No matter how old you are, you can make a difference and you can inspire others," Brusseau said.

She said the mother of one of the preschool award winners emailed and thanked the committee for giving her daughter that award. She said her daughter was thriving and giving back even more after getting the award.

This year, they have some big sponsors. Presenting Sponsors are All Brite Cleaning and Restoration of Gilford. Autoserv in Tilton, and Bank of New Hampshire. Gold Sponsors are Hearts and Hands Thrift Shop in Meredith, GC Engineering of Laconia, and the Laconia Kiwanis Club. Silver Sponsors are Studio 151 of Laconia and Imperial Hauling of Laconia.

"All the sponsors pretty much pay for the event," Brusseau said. "It allows us to give out prize money to kids (to) plan random acts of kindness or put money in service projects."

Applications are now open for nominees. Brusseu said anyone can nominate a child they know who is performing acts of charity and kindness.

Eligible nominees are between the ages of four to 18 and live in the Lakes Region, including the areas of the Laconia, Gilford, Belmont, Inter-Lakes, Newfound Regional, and Winnisquam Regional School Districts.

Nominations can be submitted through a Google form that can be found on the Spirit of Hope and Kindness Facebook page, which Brusseau said should SEE NOMINATIONS PAGE A8

Never doubt how much a simple, kind word or gesture means.

Imagine a typical Monday morning scenario - some traffic, a few minor annoyances, misplaced files and other "Monday things." Maybe it's also raining. A very "Monday" kind of day, for sure. You stop for coffee.

As you wait in line, you mentally began running down the list of bad things already piling up in your morning. When it is time to pay, the woman at the counter makes eye contact, smiles and tells you she hopes you'll have a good day. She really seems to mean it.

You leave the shop with your coffee, a smile on your face and a feeling of appreciation for that cashier and her expression of kindness. The day already starts to look up. Small gestures really do matter.

Our world loves to celebrate and reward big gestures - remember the Walmart stories from December, when athletes and other celebrities secretly paid off the balances for customers with items in layaway? The big gesture gets recognition and celebration and lots of media coverage. Sometimes the big gesture deserves that kind of attention – people helping one another in a big way IS big news, and very good news. We need more of that.

But what about the small things? Don't they deserve recognition somehow? The cashier's smile and wish for your day would only take a fraction of a minute, but it could turn around another person's mood and possibly his or her day.

Holding the door – anyone for anybody – is another small gesture that reminds us that more than anything else, we need to treat each other well. How about letting the person with fewer items get in line in front of you at the grocery store? That small act of kindness just might allow that person to arrive somewhere on time, instead of a few minutes late. Leaving a few extra quarters in the parking meter might help someone who's caught short of change. And a smile and nod to anyone you pass just might lift someone's mood, as that hypothetical cashier's would do.

Do these gestures get media coverage? No. And most aren't done for that purpose anyway. Do we know that our small gestures make an impact? Not always. But knowing the outcome isn't the point.

A small, kind gesture bridges the space between people. It costs nothing. It never hurts. It almost always helps. It just might cause the recipient to offer their own small gesture to another person. And that's a big result.

2019 is the year to get involved! Late last year, the Energy Innovation and Carbon Dividend Act was introduced in both the US House and Senate. This policy is effective (reducing America's emissions by 40 percent within 12 years), good for people (improving health and saving lives), good for the economy (creating 2.1 million jobs within 10 years), bipartisan (the first cosponsored climate bill in a decade), and revenue neutral (fees collected on carbon emissions will be returned to American households). Let's get this policy passed in 2019!

Why am I doing this? As a civil-environmental engineer, I am lucky to spend my work days helping clean up the environment. But climate change represents a far bigger environmental threat. I am also the mom of two elementary school kids. I'm terrified of the future they'll have if climate change continues on its current trajectory. That's why I'm making 2019 the year I helped solve climate change. Will you join me?

Hope to see you on Saturday!

Now any angler can catch one of seven different kinds of fish to potentially win the grand prize. Reid said this is one of the biggest fishing derbies in the country.

Ticket sales are now open, and so far, they have sold around 500 tickets, a little more than this time last year. Reid said they expect sales to take off in the next few weeks, especially if the weather stays as it has. They are getting more online pre-sales and have more of a following on Facebook.

Those who catch the largest rainbow trout, black crappie, cusk, lake trout, pickerel, yellow perch, and white perch for Saturday and Sunday will be entered into the grand prize raffle worth $15,000 for first prize, $5,000 for the second prize, and $3,000 for third prize.

Anyone who buys a ticket, whether they fish or not, will be eligible for hourly drawings of $100 prizes with a grand prize drawing of $5,000 each day.

Reid said this year's derby will largely remain the same as it has been in years past.

MARK ON THE MARKETS

BY MARK PATTERSON

Lately, it seems as though many new clients that I meet with have the same worries. That worry is that they do not have enough money to retire when they want, and that their lifestyle will entail quite a bit less than what they have now. Eating cat food and living in a tar-paper shack are some of the more colorful descriptions of their feared retirement lifestyle.

Most people believe that they need millions of dollars in retirement, and that could be true if you were a high earner that lived above their means, but for the average person, getting by on a bit less is obtainable. I have heard clients say that they had always heard they need $1.2 million or some other arbitrary number, and this is in part a scare tactic brought on by the financial media and investment or mutual fund companies.

There is so much more to determining what kind of assets we need to gather during working years

"The Doorway at LRGH" now open as part of state initiative for substance use disorder treatment LACONIA — LR-GHealthcare recently hosted a public forum to discuss its participation in "Doorway - NH," the state's initiative to assist those seeking help with substance use disorder. Before a crowd of almost 200 people, LRGHealthcare shared that it has been selected as one of nine recipients of a two year grant through the New Hampshire Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) as part of this initiative.

The Doorways will serve as the "hub" in a "hub and spoke" model, working with local providers ("spokes") to implement regional approaches to the opioid crisis. The window of opportunity for someone who decides they want help is often very small, so any delay could cause them to change their mind. The Doorway will help these individuals keep that window open by getting them in contact with a recovery coach immediately.

The Doorway at Lakes Region General Hospital will have a recovery coach on site Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. – 5 p.m. Any person seeking help for him or herself, or a loved one, can just walk through the front door at LRGH and ask for "the Doorway." The recovery coach will then be paged to meet with him or her right away. After assessing his or her individual situation, the recovery coach will help establish the best next step for this person to get treatment.

Any of the nine statewide Doorways can be accessed by calling 2-1-1 at any time. During normal business hours, Monday through Friday, 8 am – 5pm, you will be connected directly to the Doorway nearest you. During these same hours, you may also reach the Doorway at LRGHealthcare directly by calling 934-8905. For those seeking help after hours, the state has enlisted the services of Dartmouth-Hitchcock to handle after hours and weekend coverage of these services through should go when.

"When people say 'I'm ready and I ned help,' [and] we aren't able to get help for them for weeks, that's not a good system," said Corey Gately, Director of Substance Use Services for LRG-Healthcare.

Through The Doorway, there will be several different access points through the hospital, different substance abuse and health services organizations, the state's 211 information line, and many others. The program uses a hub and spoke model with people able to access the program at different spokes.

Gately said hub is not treatment itself, but a way to connect people to get treatment. Gately said there is "no wrong door" in the hub to make connections and start getting help.

One entry to the Doorway is at the front entrance of LRGH. Volunteers are prepared to get a recovery coach, who are all Certified Recovery Support Workers (CRSW), to meet with the indi- of different calls from vidual between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. during the week. They can get immediate access to a Substance Use Clinician for a medical assessment and the first steps of treatment.

On any time people can call the mainline number or dial 211 to be connected with an on-cal clinician for a telephone evaluation. Afterwards they can be referred to the Doorway during normal business hours.

No matter day or time of day it is, a coach will be available to someone in the emergency department who has survived an overdose.

There are already a long list of different resources that people can access including recovery coaches through Navigating Recovery of the Lakes Region in Laconia, Plymouth Area Recovery Connection, White Horse Addiction Center in Ossipee, Sober Threads Peer Recovery and Support in Tilton, and other local organizations. They can also get assistance and referrals for housing, mental health, primary care, medication assisted treatment, and many more.

"This is really just the beginning, the beginning of what is finally going to happen in our community," Gately said.

In the week since the system went live, they had received a number people asking for help for themselves, their parents, grandparents, and anyone else.

The program is primarily funded through a Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration State Opioid Response. Gately said they will be applying for a number of other grants.

Gately said in the past getting connected to someone for an evaluation or assessment has not been easy.

Gately said she and Daisy Pierce, Executive Director of Navigating Recovery of the Lakes Region, have also been doing stigma reduction training at the hospital. She said they want to see anyone who is at any stage of addiction.

"One of the things that I think we heard said, it's critical to get folks into treatment as soon as possible," said Jacqueline Abikoff, the Executive Director of Horizons Recovery Center. "If you put them on a waiting list you're going to lose them."

The Doorway will with people along the journey of their recovery and out them in contact with other needed resources. If someone needs inpatient treatment and no beds are available the coach will work with them until a bed becomes available. Engagement also result in lowering the need for care.

Paul Racicot, Vice President of Medical Staff for LRGHealthcare, said the mortality rate for someone after six months of their initial overdose is "astronomical."

"I think we are ahead of the curb, and we're a community that came together, and that's the way you do it," Racicot said.

Paid Advertisement

When interest rates rise, the value of your fixed-income investments, such as bonds, will typically fall. If this happens, how should you respond?

Paid Advertisement

First of all, it's important to understand this inverse correlation between interest rates and bond prices. Essentially, when interest rates rise, investors won't pay you full price for your bonds because they can purchase newly issued ones that pay higher rates. So, if you sell your bonds before they mature, you could lose some of the principal value.

You may be seeing a price drop among your bonds right now, because interest rates generally rose in 2018 and may continue to do so in 2019. While you might not like this decline, you don't necessarily have to take any action, particularly if you're planning to hold these bonds until maturity. Of course, you do have to consider credit risk - the chance that a portion of the principal and interest will not be paid back to investors – but unless the bond issuers default, which is usually unlikely, particularly with investment-grade bonds, you can expect to receive the same regular interest payments you always did, no matter where rates move.

particularly your longer-term ones - until they mature may prove useful during a period of rising interest rates. Although long-term bond prices - the amount you could get if you were to sell these bonds - tend to fall more significantly than short-term bond prices, the actual income that longer-term bonds provide may still be higher, because longer-term bonds typically pay higher interest rates than shorter-term ones. To preserve this income and still take advantage of rising interest rates, you may want to construct a "bond ladder" conand longer-term bonds. Because a ladder contains bonds with staggered maturity dates, some are maturing and can be reinvested – and in a rising-rate environment such as we're currently experiencing, you would be replacing maturing bonds with higher-yielding ones. As is the case with all your investments, however, you must evaluate whether a bond ladder and the securities held within it are consistent with your objectives, risk tolerance and financial circumstances.

You can build a bond ladder with individual bonds, but you might find it easier, and perhaps more affordable, to own bond-based mutual funds and exchange-traded funds (ETFs) that invest in bonds. Many bond funds and ETFs own a portfolio of bonds of various maturities, so they're already diversified.

Building a bond ladder can help you navigate the rising-rate environment. But you also have another incentive to continue investing in bonds, bond funds or ETFs - namely, they can help diversify a stockheavy portfolio. If you only owned stocks, your investment statements would probably that the stock market can go on some wild rides. But even in the face of escalating interest rates, bond prices generally don't exhibit the same sharp swings as stocks, so owning an appropriate percentage of bonds based on your personal circumstances can help add some stability to your investment mix.

As an investor, you do need to be aware of rising interest rates, but as we've seen, they certainly don't mean that you should lose your interest in bonds as a valuable part of your investment strategy.

ed or a clipping was clipped.

As in other highly contests suspicious associated with this column, there are no restrictions, no rules, no finalists, no judges, and (whew) no prizes. And, I hope, no entries.

Readers sometimes accuse me of salting columns with offbeat words now and then just to send them scurrying for their Funk & Wagnel's, but no---it's because sometimes, only the precise word will fit. I must have picked this mental dictionary up from a lot of reading, because secondary education and I certainly didn't fit.

Once in a while, I bump into a word in a newspaper story or magazine article written as though it's in common use, even though to me, at least, it isn't. "Jud-(which stopped me dead in the Atlantic) turns out to mean just what its sound to shake implies, vibrate rapidly. "Coffles" (the New Yorker) means a line of slaves or livestock fastened and driven along together.

Self-driving cles are all the rage. But there are hundreds of thousands of miles of country roads. Is anyone seriously considering putting bounce-back sensors along those?

However, one positive comes to mind. If a self-driving program morons prevented from tailgating, I'd be all for it.

Once in a while, I get my news and weather from Portland (Maine), just to hear a slightly different accent. Channel 13 did a nice little segment on a cribbage player, age 108, who played a game (and lost) with his frequent partner, who's just 105. "The best man won," said the 108-year-old, "but I'll get 'im next time."

I told a friend, whose hair was all askew from sleep, that her hair looked "like the wreck of the Hesperus."

She gave me a blank look, but who wouldn't? I'd heard it in my youth, from my grandmother, and the use and meaning of the phrase is gone to the heavens. But in general, it means that your hair looks like a hoorah's nest (and there's another one for the books).

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poem "The Wreck of the Hesperus" was first published in 1842. It was probably based on the wreck of the Favorite, out of Wiscasset, Maine, which struck the reef known as Norman's Woe near Gloucester, during the infamous Winter of 1839 and was lost with all hands, including the captain's daughter, whom he'd lashed to the mast to prevent her being swept away.

International note: Canadians have voted for the Canada Jay (also called camp robber, gorbie, whiskey Jack, and more) to replace the Canada goose as the National Bird. The story noted that few countries bother to have a national bird (we do---the bald eagle, which is often demoted to an emblem).

mention here a few weeks ago of the USS Kearsarge brought a couple of requests for more information.

I can tell you that work on the third ship named for New Hampshire's mountain began in 1896, she was launched in 1898, and she was considered "pre-Dreadnaught" battleship, although she sailed with the fabled Great White Fleet. She served in both World Wars, and ultimately was sold for scrap in 1955.

But another very real and widespread question is why utility companies and banks and other businesses don't time their billing better, so their bills arrive just before the Social Security checks do, thus avoiding a good deal of nervousness, and allowing seniors to take advantage of early payment discounts.

I love using Google as a verb. In this case, you can just Google "Jay Leno steam engines," and you'll get a bonanza of both.

The word of the week goes to National Public Radio, whose show host said she was concerned something's "functionality" (what happened to "function"?)

Whenever I write about squirrels, I'm certain to get lots of feedback from readers.

Bob and Julie of Center Sandwich sent me a photo of the Woodstock Home & Hardware sign that said "The road of life is paved with squirrels who couldn't make a decision."

hanced the Mill Yard, complexes, college campuses, industrial parks, retail centers and healthcare campuses in and around Manchester as well as points south Massachusetts. Well known projects include The Grand at the Bedford Village Inn, Anderson Equipment Company, numerous Dental offices and The Foundry Restaurant.

The highly regarded reputation of MCCI was a crucial factor in the decision to manage MCCI's operations, according to Tim Long, president of Meridian Construction.

"Having known Mark over the years and constantly hearing of his fine reputation always left me with great respect. Now I've personally come to know his amazing team. After many discussions it became clear that combining our resources and expertise helps fulfill Meridian's long term planning... It will be better for everyone in both companies," he Diane Carrier, current owner of MCCI, said, "We talked with Meridian and a couple other firms about potential business relationships to help preserve MCCI's fine work and team going forward. It had to be a partnership with someone of similar vision, integrity and quality as my husband. We just knew Tim and everyone at Meridian had the same philosophy and are likeminded in terms of ethics and integrity we can trust them and I know our teams will work great together." Strategically, joining forces gives Meridian Construction a solid presence in Manchester while significantly expanding their service footprint in the Southern New Hampshire market, according to Mr. Long.

He indicated how this affected his decision by saying, "We looked really closely at this move and in the end, the key factors were twofold. First, MCCI's relationships open avenues to commercial opportunities we were previously missing, and second, being able to expand our company with quality people such as those at MCCI might only come once in a lifetime. I'm just honored by the chance to help continue the traditions of business integrity and building excellence here, which are part of Mark Carrier's legacy."

Kyle Long, project manager at Meridian Construction, will head the Manchester office, located at 175 Lincoln St.

He enthusiastically noted, "We are thrilled to be working with the MCCI team full time now."

When asked what newly merged team can expect in coming days, he said, "Oh that's easy... just expect excitement, hard work and definitely some fun along the wav!"

Reid said there has been talk about doing something special for the 40th anniversary, though are keeping this special detail under wraps for the time being.

Reid said so far it looks like the ice is doing okay, though the Rotary is in regular New Hampshire Fish and Game on the status of the ice leading up to the derby. Reid said they have a great relationship with Fish and Game: two of their judges are retired Fish and Game officers.

"They love it; they absolutely love coming here to do it," Reid said.

New Hampshire Fish and Game will hold a series of free kids fishing clinics on Saturday, which have been popular. Kids under 16 can learn how to bait, fish, drill a hole, use tip ups, and any other skill. The clinic will provide the equipment.

All proceeds from the derby go back into communication with the community. From 1982 to 2018, the derby has raised $2,165,041 which has gone to various projects. The most money goes to scholarships for graduating seniors at Inter-Lakes High School and Moultonborough Academy. It also helps Rotary programs such as the Youth Exchange Program. Reid said this is an amazing program, his family experience it first hand when his daughter did a year abroad in Ecuador. Other community contributions have included municipal projects in Meredith, Center Harbor, and Moultonborough; local police and fire departments; environmental projects such as fish stocking and others; the senior Christmas dinner; and so many others.

Planning for End-of-Life Care

By Edward H. Adamsky, Esq.

Most people find it difficult to discuss the possibility of catastrophic illness, and other end-of-life issues. It's not the most pleasant subject. But, if you don't plan ahead, and talk with your family and loved-ones about your health care, they will be uncertain how to respond if you become ill and cannot help them with decision making. A New Hampshire survey found that 42% of individuals had never had a conversation about plans for end-of-life care with anyone. Only about 7% had talked with their health care provider, and 59% had no advance directives such as a Health Care Power of Attorney. More people had spoken about such issues with their attorneys than with their families and religious advisors.

Ask yourself some questions when considering your planning. Do you have a significant health problem? What problems might you expect in the future? What role does faith play in your life? Under what conditions would you want your health care goals changed from prolonging your life to focusing on your comfort? How would the expense of care influence your

The most important thing is to have a talk with your family and lovedones about your feelings on endof-life care. The next thing to do is to have the proper documents written and signed so they are legal and binding. The most common planning tool is a Power of Attorney for Health Care. This document names an agent who will have full legal authority to make health care decisions for you, if you can no longer do so yourself. Of course, if you are able to make your own decisions, then only you will do so. No one can take that away from you. But, if you are unable to communicate because you are unconscious or have some sort of brain damage, then your agent can make your decisions for you.

You must make sure to choose the right person as your agent. You must trust this person. You should feel confident that your chosen agent will be able, physically and mentally, to make decisions for you if necessary. You should also name an alternate person, in case your first choice isn't available. And most of all, you must have a talk about your feelings regarding medical care, especially those tough decisions like terminating life-sustaining treatment.

It is easier to have these difficult conversations when you are not facing an imminent illness or death. People can often joke and laugh about these grim realities when they are just remote possibilities. But, if you are facing an illness, don't put this off. The discussion may be harder, but it is even more urgent that you have it. End-of-life is just another part of life. It is a natural occurrence that requires some consideration. Your discussion should focus not only on practical matters of care, and cost, but also on spiritual and emotional issues. Don't wait until it is too late. Plan for all of your life

Social issues the focus for Leadership Group

LACONIA — The 26 member Leadership Lakes Region class held its annual Social Issues Day focusing on agencies that support social services in the Lakes Region. The day was sponsored by Make-a-Wish New Hampshire and planned by Program Coordinator Jennifer McLean and Leadership graduates Chelsea Lemke of the Lakes Region Mental Health Center and Joleen Wellford of Lakes Region Community Services.

The day began at the Lakes Region Community Services office in downtown Laconia. Executive Director Rebecca Bryant and her staff highlighted the work of the organization and evolving trends that they are seeing. Scoop Welch, Regional VP for Granite United Way followed with an overview of the United Way's mission. The group then split up into three-or-four-person teams, and each team was assigned a visit at other social service providers in the region. Visited were LRGHealthcare, Belknap House, Isaiah 61 Café, Lakes Region Mental Health Center, Navigating Recovery, the Partnership for Public Health/ Service Link and Laconia School District Office of School Wellness.

The teams returned to have a working lunch at LRCS at which they debriefed the individual agency visits. Following lunch, the group went to the Belknap County Jail where Superintendent Keith Gray met them and gave an in-depth presentation about the jail and the recent improvements with the opening of the new Community Corrections Center a little over a year ago. A tour of the facility followed before former State Rep. Phil Spagnuolo told his life story of addictions and recovery. Spagnuolo is now a Recovery Coach and owner of a Sober House. Social Issues Day concluded truly embrace winter's individual Police Ride-a-Longs with either the Gilford or the Laconia Police Department. All agreed it was a fascinating experience which they shared with their classmates as well as visiting officers Chief Tony Bean Burpee of Gilford and Lt. Rich Simmons of Laconia PD. The Leadership class members were especially impressed with how dedicated, compassionate and caring the police officers with whom they rode were about their respective town or city.

Korey Weston will be heading to Australia in July for the Down Under International Games to participate in long jump and javelin.

Vanessa Ganakos (2) placed fourth in the 5K skate race on Jan. 15 at White Mountain Regional High School.

ed, but believes he will be heading there with a solid group of American athletes. Weston said he was notified that he was invited to the event, and while he does not know exactly he how was recruited, he believes it was due to his strong showing last year in the state finals and New Englands Championships. Weston that he will be proudly

representing the Granite State and the United States. He said he doesn't know anyone else invit-

received packages from Down Under Sports informing him that he was welcome to represent New Hampshire on the team. He said that a fundraising group that would like to remain anonymous has donated $2,000 to help him with the cause, but he will also be setting up fundraisers between now and when he leaves.

Weston is a true athlete, and one who spends a lot of time working out and preparing himself. He plays basketball in the winter and also hits the gym regularly. In order to prepare for the Down Under Invitational he plans to make adjustments to his workout routine to benefit his throwing and jumping skills.

Weston said he loves track because unlike many other sports, it is mainly individually based and he knows the results he gets are squarely on him.

He has been out of the country once before, as he went to Costa Rica last year with Spanish Club and had the time of his life. Now Weston is chomping at the bit to get to go across the world to Australia to see all that it offers. He has plans to snorkel and said he will probably invest in a Go Pro camera for the trip for documentation when seeing exotic animals and/or sky diving.

Weston is excited that the trip will broaden many horizons.

"It will be great to meet new people," said Weston. "Why wouldn't I be excited?"

When Weston first found out he was going to be able to go, there was an array of emotions running through his head from excitement to nervousness.

"I was definitely nervous going across the world, but just as excited to see a different part of the world and experience a new culture and meet a bunch of talented athletes," said Weston.

Down Under Sports was founded in 1989 based on a dream of George O'Scanlon of New Zealand. He had a love for sports, especially American football, and had a desire for people around the world to compete. It eventually evolved into the Down Under International Games as it exists today.

While fundraising already begun, Weston said he is trying to raise another $3,000 to help alleviate the cost of the trip. Any donation or sponsorship is greatly appreciated and he plans to create a Gofundme in the future.

Anyone who would like to donate can do so by directly contacting Down Under Sports mail@downundersports.com or by mailing PO Box 6010, North Logan, Utah 84341-6010.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Amy Annis Volleyball Tournament a success

GILFORD — The eighth annual Amy Annis Volleyball Tournament was a huge success. The tournament was held on Jan. 6 in the Gilford High School and Middle School gyms, with 12 teams consisting of high school, college and adult players competing in three different pools.

After the completion of pool play, the top two teams with the best record went into the Gold Division single elimination tournament and the bottom two teams from each pool went into the Silver Division single elimination tournament. The 12 teams were Chafing the Dream, Gilmylanders, Hit For Brains, J-Dog, Killer Coaches, Kiss My Ace, Notorious D.I.G., Pass Set Crushers, New Kids on the Block, Servivors, Team Amy and The Loons.

The event raised $2,402.81 for the Amy Annis Scholarship Fund and the American Cancer Society.

Annis lost her battle to cancer at the age of 32 and this tournament is a celebration of her life and passion for team sports.

A special thanks goes out to the companies and people who sponsored each of the teams entry fee: Mas-Con Corp, Pass Set Crush Volleyball Camp, Loon Point Appraisal Services, Granite State Glass, Jonathon Dupuis, and Roget Bolduc. Also, all participants were given gift cards donated by McDonalds.
