Streetcar brings classic tale of dread to the stage

SANBORNTON Tensions are mounting between you and the two people you've found yourself sharing the abandoned house with. The food is running low. You've all been drinking more than you should. You're pretty sure the strange neighbor across the lake is watching you. And every six hours, the threat of death returns with the eerie flapping of wings. This is the chilling postapocalyptic scenario in which the characters find themselves in the Streetcar Company's upcoming production of "The Birds" at the Old Town Hall in Sanbornton on Aug. 27 and 28.

Adapted by Irish playwright Connor McPherson from the same short story by Daphne Du Maurier that inspired the classic Alfred Hitchcock film, "The Birds" takes place in the aftermath of a series of unexplained avian attacks that have all but wiped out the human race and brought society as we know it to an end. Applications are now being accepted for this upcoming class. An application form plus a program brochure may be downloaded from the Web site at www.leadershiplakesregion.org.

With more than 406 alumni representing various professional careers, Leadership Lakes Region's program fosters civic engagement through eight once a month day-long seminars which educate, inform, challenge and teach leadership skills to its students.

"We have found the program especially beneficial for professionals who are new to the Lakes Region; we provide them an immediate network of area professionals from varying backgrounds as well as a crash course on the current factors influencing the Region," said Program Coordinator, Jennifer McLean.

Tuition for the annual program is $500 for those from non-profit agencies or from businesses with three or fewer employees and $750 for those representing the private sector. Powerhouse Theatre Collaborative to hold auditions for "Our Town"

LACONIA — Powerhouse Theatre Collaborative, a program of the Belknap Mill and the resident theatre company of the Colonial Theatre, is announcing auditions for Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" as the next show in its 2021 Colonial Series, sponsored by RE/ MAX Bayside and Taylor Community. Powerhouse producer Bryan Halperin will direct the New Hampshire classic, which he previously directed in 2006 for the Winni Players. "Our Town" will run Nov. 19-21.

" 'Our Town' is one of my favorite plays because it's always timely and always an honest examination of the human experience. It's beautiful, funny, sad, sweet. romantic and hopeful. It's a play that evolves to the viewer as the viewer evolves. As I'm 15 years older than the last time I directed it, I look at it with different eyes and relate to different things. This is why the play is a classic and stands the test of time," says Halperin.

Auditions will be Sunday, Aug. 29 and Monday, Aug. 30 beginning at 6:30 p.m. for adults and teens 16 and older. Auditioners need only attend one of the nights, but should plan to arrive by 6:30 p.m. and bring a mask. There are roles for kids as well, and auditions for ages 10-15 will be Sunday, Aug. 29 at 3 p.m. Auditions will be held at the Colonial Theatre in Laconia. Callbacks, if necessary, will be Tuesday, Aug. 31 at 6:30 p.m. at the Colonial. All the information on how to prepare and sign up for auditions can be found at https://www. belknapmill.org/powerhouse-auditions. Anyone who would like to be considered but can't make the auditions can submit a video via the audition form on the Web site.

"Our Town" is an opportunity for actors of all ages and levels of experience to get involved in an exciting community theatre event.

"What's great about 'Our Town' is it has leading and featured roles, but is also a play that has an ensemble. If you can sing in a choir you can be in the church scenes. If you can sit still you can be a member of 'the dead!' This makes it a great opportunity to build the Powerhouse theatre family with a show accessible to anyone," says Johanna Halperin, producer.

The Powerhouse theatre production is the kickoff to and centerpiece of the "Celebrate Our Town - Laconia" event organized by the Belknap Mill, Laconia Historical and Museum Society, and Celebrate Laconia.

Powerhouse's season is sponsored by Spectacle Live and "Our Town" is sponsored by Lovering Volvo, Wescott

ily. For more details on Powerhouse and all the programs at the Belknap Mill, visit www.belknap-

School days, school days...

It's that time of year again, when back to school photos will infiltrate your social media feeds. We love this time of year when a more structured schedule takes hold; however come June, we are ready for the daily routine to be a bit more relaxed.

We always consider late August into September to be a new year. Yes, the actual new year begins on Jan. 1; however, the start of a new school year always brings a clean slate, and who doesn't love that?

This time of year brings with it memories for all of us, even if we are not headed back into the classroom. We recall in the height of the '80's when Trapper Keepers were all the new rave (a release of the vintage originals can now be purchased online). Back then, anyone who walked into a drug store would be greeted with a wall of the colorful organizers, with notebooks and pencil cases to match.

Having a brand new Trapper Keeper with pencils neatly tucked away the night before school started was step one. Next, the perfect outfit would have to be picked out, after all, the first day outfit set the standard for the rest of the year. During these first few days of school, the excitement was always at an all-time high. It's the famous week three, when things start to settle, and the groove of the school routine has become the norm, once again.

As with most things, we enjoy tracking history. The drastic changes that have occurred over the years are quite interesting, so we thought we would share our findings.

During the 1800's, a typical rural area would have one room schoolhouses, with one teacher for grades first through eighth. The younger students would sit in the front of the classroom, with the 'big kids' seated in the back. Memorizing lessons was the priority back then, where students had to recite what they had learned. Paper bags and lunch boxes were not used for lunch, instead children would pack a lunch and carry it to school in a tin bucket.

During the early 1900's, only half of the children between the ages of five and 19 attended school. This was during the Industrial Revolution where children were needed at home to help work the farms or were put to work in factories. One study reports that in the present, 264 million children are still not educated.

We've heard it all before, but it's true, most students would walk or ride their bikes to school in all kinds of weather up to five miles away. Today, most students take the bus or are dropped at school by their parents. In some areas, there have been initiatives taken to promote the 'old school' way of transporting kids via bike or walking.

Way back when, if a student misbehaved, they were placed in a corner and had to wear a dunce cap. Discipline has changed quite a bit, however; we remember a slew of kids standing along the brick wall during recess in the 1980's at a New Jersey elementary school. Some students may have had to stand against the wall for not returning a permission slip, or for talking in class, but we won't mention any names.

Home Economics classes have been replaced with a more modern swing than when they first emerged in the 1950's and lasted through the '70's. Back then, students, mostly female, were taught how to cook and sew. In the late 80's, those classes saw more male students as it became a requirement for all. We remember sewing 'Nerd' (as in the candy) stuffed animals and Oreo cookies in our class. When it was time to cook, we have fond memories of baking a holiday cake and forgetting to add baking powder, or was it flour? Either way, that cake took on a life of its own, we fondly remember taking red icing and writing 'Scrooged' over it.

Industrial Arts classes are few and far between, however are still offered in some places with a more technological twist. Back in the day, students would take large pieces of wood, run it through a planer, sand it, stain it and create all sorts of things from entertainment centers to cut out wooden apples using a jigsaw. We remember leaving notes for our friends in the afternoon class. We would slip them in the lockers and hope we remembered whose locker belonged to who. No texting back then.

Cursive writing was always fun. It was a great feeling when you made that lower case 'j' just right. Who knew that years later, hand writing would happen less and less and our cursive skills would be a thing of the past. Handwriting is, however, making a comeback in some schools.

We think it goes without saying, that the best memories involve a good old fashioned pencil sharpener. Trying to get the pencil as small as possible in one go, meant that you were talented. If that pencil still had a full eraser, you were batting a thousand. It was an even better day if you could get your hands on an electronic sharpener.

Cheers to a new school year, and to new memories.

STRATEGIES FOR LIVING

Culture wars

By Larry Scott

Even a quick survey of what is happening in America will demonstrate that our culture is out of step with the Christian faith. From abortion, to same-sex marriage, to transgender support, to the vilification of our faith within the school system, to the disintegration of the American home, Christians who refuse to go along with issues decidedly against their faith and who refuse to remain silent, are vilified as homophobic, narrow-minded, and un-American.

George Tanner, in an article published by Fox News on April 14, 2017, notes that, "A list generated by Open Doors USA, a nonprofit organization focused on serving persecuted Christians, has documented that "as many as 1,207 Christians were killed around the globe for faith-related reasons during the 2017 list's reporting period." Open Doors furthermore "documented a total of 1,329 churches attacked worldwide for faith related reasons."

What is going on? Christians, if they are consistent with their faith, work hard, are faithful to their spouse, pay their taxes, are honest and trustworthy. They are good citizens. Why the antagonism? There are, I think three reasons.

First of all, the Christian faith runs counter to human nature. One friend during my teen-age years told me, "Scott, you must be a saint! You never have any fun!" A saint I am not, but I must admit, I'm having the time of my life! Some of my closest friends seem to like me but openly reject what I have to say. And not for theological or philosophical views, but for personal reasons. They want to preserve their freedom to do what they want, when they want, and how they want. God is simply not welcome.

In light of the Christian world view, it is little wonder that we are driven to share our experience with others. I know I often come across as arrogant or as a smart-mouth and I have found it abominably difficult to counter that image. Please understand, however: if you believed what I believe you'd be out front sounding off just as I.

Finally, what we see happening in our culture, Christians see as devastating to the future of America and the preservation of our society. The family, to me, the focus of divine activity since the time of Abraham, is being destroyed. Divorce, abortion, gay marriage, single-parent homes all relate back to the family, and it is having a horrendous impact on our children. Who would have thought the day would come when a boy couldn't decide whether he was a boy ... or a girl? You have to be kidding!

To us, there is but one answer: America needs to get back to God. The message of the Christian faith — the reality of sin, the need of forgiveness, and the demand to accept God's authority — is a message far too many don't want to hear. And to think that God's gift of eternal life is free for the taking!

The Christian life, yes, just as it is portrayed in the New Testament, is no drag. There is available to each of us a quality of life that cannot be found in wealth, power, or pleasure; it is found only in Jesus Christ.

Youth programs cut after Town Meeting vote

To the Editor:

After more than a year in the throes of a global pandemic, the mental and emotional effects on our youth are becoming more apparent. Isolation, loss of social and recreational activities, fear over the health and welfare of family members, a shift to remote learning, and increased stress at home have resulted in increases in anxiety, depression and substance abuse among our youth. Many families are struggling financially to keep food on the table and a roof over their heads. The Kaiser Family Foundation Newsroom reported last month that during the pandemic "More than 25 percent of high school students reported worsening emotional and cognitive health and over 20 percent of parents with children ages five to 12 reported similar worsening conditions for their children." All of this has resulted in an increase in referrals to the Youth Assistance Program.

Sadly, at the same time, youth programs are being underfunded and forced to cut services or find alternative sources of revenue. This is happening locally as well.

The Youth Assistance Program has been in operation since 1975 serving the youth and families in Tilton and Northfield. Along with juvenile court diversion, YAP offers early intervention and educational programs that address substance use, bullying, positive decision making and violence prevention. Youth and families come for support, prevention programs, information and referrals.

An important part of community life, the program is funded by the two towns. This year at town meetings, both towns voted to fund the Youth Assistance Program in full. The Town of Tilton has followed through on their commitment. However, on May 27, the Youth Assistance Program received notification that the Northfield Selectmen had voted to reduce their appropriation by $33,227. Instead of the $57,439 which was voted on at town meeting they were going to give YAP $24,212. This was not the only youth program to be cut by the Northfield Selectboard at a time when our kids are most in need!

The purpose of this article is two-fold: To raise awareness of the increased need for youth services and to also let the townspeople know what is currently happening to community programs. The old adage is true: An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure! The money we invest in our youth now will result in healthier, responsible young adults. Pat Tucker, a licensed drug and alcohol counselor and resident of Northfield, recently remarked, "By putting money into prevention efforts now, we will greatly reduce the number of our youth who end up in the judicial system." This also includes reducing self-harm, low academic achievement, mental health issues and increasing resiliency, productivity and wellbeing.

We are asking residents of Northfield to reach out to the Selectboard to urge them to honor the vote at town meeting and fully fund the Youth Assistance Program. Please contact Dawn Shimberg for more information at 286-8577 or dshimberg@myfairpoint.net

North Country Notebook

Like a hurricane, as in, "If we'd only set a date"

By John Harrigan

COLUMNIST

Hurricanes come and go in more tropical climes, but rarely are they part of the scene near the 45th Parallel.

Well, just a minute here.

The infamous Hurricane of '38 (as in 1938) made a northward turn after making landfall south of Cape Cod, and went straight up the Connecticut River valley, catching trees on their weak sides with fierce southeast winds. It blew down millions of board feet of standing timber in New Hampshire and Vermont.

The result was the biggest salvage job in the region's history, as loggers used everything from horses, farm tractors, and newly available bulldozers (popularized after World War One) to get the wood out of the woods before the worms got to it.

And I remember, during my growing-up years and several times since, hearing the weather-savvv explanation that this or that storm was the tail-end of this or that hurricane.

During my first years of navigating the woods, old-timers were still pointing out the effects of the hurricane that took that unexpected turn 83 years ago. That's why I was paying close attention to Hurricane Henri.

Ergo, on Sunday, I was getting progress reports from longtime friends Glen Zibolis and Beth Leconte in Rhode Island, where the storm came ashore, and made frequent trips out to the porch to look southwest until darkness did me in.

many As history-minded writers have noted, the Hurricane of '38 occurred before widespread media and the advent of modern forecasting, and caught many farm families and fishermen flat-footed.

Hurricane Henri, downgraded to a tropical depression by late Sunday, still couldn't make up its mind which way to go. The way TV reporters described its likely course irked me.

They said "Out of here" as if describing an empty place, a void, nothingness---when they really meant the Eastern Townships or the Maritimes, meaning our neighbors and best friends, Canada.

The old trail into the pond near camp was bulldozed right after World War II (I think), and in 2003 the late Dave Cook and I scouted a side-trail for an easier way in than by boat.

The new spur, which we barely brushed out, went over a beautiful little ridge of hardwoods hardly touched over many years of logging. The trees arched over the old logging road we followed.

Numerous humps on the forest floor were aligned in the same direction. Veteran forester and surveyor Fred Cowan noted that these and millions of other similar humps were a legacy of the Hurricane of '38, the result of fallen trees and their roots, and the soil ripped up along with them.

The old road into camp probably followed the old trail, through a lovely canopy of hardwoods.

Fred was on my short list of people to invite to camp. He'd have shouldered a pack-basket and hiked right in. He was a veteran of World War II's famed Mountain Division, as were several other men I was lucky to know.

Fred and I were busy with our own various pursuits, and never made the requisite mark on the calendar. The stories he told were fine and true, as without doubt were the ones he never got to.

There are several morals to this story. One is that it's best to travel the woods in early spring or late fall, when the leaves are off and the ground is bare of snow. You can see the lay of the land best then, particularly in early spring.

This is when hunters or hikers, or people out looking for antler sheds, notice and report things that would otherwise be overlooked. In fact, many a crime is solved because of people abroad on the land.

Another moral is that if you really want to spend some time with one of your favorite people, get on the telephone and make a mark on the calendar. Otherwise, it'll never happen.

STREETCAR

ready tense atmosphere in the house completely out of balance. Jealousy and paranoia take hold as the three characters begin to view the person sitting next to them as a bigger threat than the ever-present birds. Meanwhile, watching their every move from the other side of the lake, the mysterious Tierney (David Nelson) has plans of his own for one of them.

First time director Jody Fredette said he hit on the idea of staging a production of Du Maurier's classic tale of dread after catching Hitchcock's film on Turner Classic Movies one evening and wondering as he watched whether it had ever been attempted as a play. When his research led him to McPherson's adaptation (which made its debut at the Dublin Theatre Festival in September 2009), he said he was struck by the parallels between the fictional world described by McPherson and the state of the real world as it struggled with the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I found the characters interesting and complicated and real," Fredette said. "The dialogue is real, as well as the set."

While nearly every aspect of directing his first show for Streetcar has been a challenge, Fredette said that having the privilege to work with a gifted cast in a venue that he described as "perfect" for a show like this has also been rewarding.

Although Du Maurier and McPherson's vision is a bleak one, and the play contains adult language, loud noises, and some dark and startling scenes, Fredette said it is also a timely and well written exploration of human relationships in the face of extraordinary circumstances that he hopes audiences will find entertaining and, more importantly, thought provoking.

"The Birds" will be presented at the Old Town Hall, 19 Meeting House Hill Rd., Sanbornton, on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 27 and 28. Show time is 7 p.m. both nights, and tickets will be sold at the door.

Daniels Electric Corp. presents 2021 Sweepstakes Social

LACONIA — Daniels Electric Corporation is the presenting sponsor for the first ever 2021 Sweepstakes Social, an event designed to raise funds for the Greater Lakes Region Children's Auction via the teams participating in the 2021 Challenge. The event will be held dockside at the Weirs aboard the M/S Mount Washington on Friday, Sept. 17 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

"We are really excited about this event," said Daniels Electric's President Tom Milligan. "The opportunity to support kids in need here in our community while throwing an exciting party is right up our alley."

"This will be a cocktail party on steroids," exclaimed committee member Allan Beetle. "We'll be giving away $15,000 in cash prizes to ticket purchasers, with matching amounts going to the 2021 Challenge Teams for a total of $30,000 awarded at the event. Having Daniels Electric partner with us has made this possible, and we're looking forward to hosting a great event that brings the Challenge teams together as we begin the fall push for beating last year's $249,460 raised for the Children's Auction."

Beetle adds, "The Milligan's of Daniels Electric are a generous, community-minded family and they have created a very successful New Hampshire based business. We couldn't be happier to acknowledge them as presenting sponsor of this event."

Another key sponsor and host for the event. Mount Washington Cruises, is happy to be contributing to the Children's Auction as they prepare to celebrate 150 years.

"We're super thrilled to host the inaugural event for the Sweepstakes Social," said Jared Maraio, Sales Director of the company. "We hope it helps the teams of the 2021 Challenge raise more funds for the Children's Auction, an organization we are proud to support."

Other event sponsors include Shaw's Supermarkets, along with Gilford Home Center, Lakes Region HVAC, US Foods, Meredith Village Savings Bank and Patrick's.

The 2021 Challenge is the follow-on, pandemic-proof version of Patrick's Pub Mania, which was retired in 2020 amid the pandemic. Over its 11-year run, Pub Mania teams raised more than $2.3 million on behalf of the Children's Auction. Committee members of the Challenge event hope to add teams and build momentum to continue another decade of fundraising.

Only 300 tickets to the Sweepstakes Social will be sold at $100 each, and the cost includes admission to the event with a guest, one entry into the sweepstakes, light appetizers and entertainment with a cash bar. Tickets are available now at www.childrensauction. com. Ticketholders do not need to be present to win. For more information, email Challenge@ childrensauction.com.
