Parents get first-hand look at New Durham Elementary

BY MARK FOYNES
Contributing Writer

NEW DURHAM — The halls of the elementary school pealed with childlike delight last Thursday as children goadingly tugged at their parents arms, leading them to their new classrooms so they could connect them with their teachers.

The beginning of a new school year finds students who are enthusiastic about what lies ahead. Young families with multiple children in the school were being pulled in as many directions as they had kids in the school.

Greeting families as they entered was a phalanx of representatives from local organizations seeking to harness some of that youthful energy.

Angie Welch, donning the official garb of the Boy Scouts, greeted boys and their parents as they entered. A library trustee, Welch was flanked by representatives from the town library, which was seeking volunteers, as well as officials from the town Girl Scout contingent.

Also among the greeters in the foyer was guidance counselor Keith Conley. His warm smile was reciprocated by many of the children entering the school. In response to one student's enthusiastic greeting, Conley responded, "It's always great seeing you - and twice today - that just makes my day."

Once into the school corridors, teachers and other staff were at the ready to discuss instructional goals, seating arrangements, and the minute physical details of the classrooms themselves.

With no lockers, students stash their belongings in their cubbies - mostly smallish wooden cubes that books and other articles can be stored in. Beneath these wall-hung units are hooks where kids can hang their jackets, backpacks and the like. Graham Phillips and Chloe McLain are first-grade classmates in Gayle Hardy's class.

Both were excited to show their cubbies to their families, who had a chance to visit the various corners of their classroom. One such corner had words such as "the" and "but" pinned to the wall - so-called "wall words" that they are expected to recognize on sight. Hardy is returning

Selectmen hear plan for history gazebo

BY DAVID ALLEN
Contributing Writer

BARNSTEAD — Mike Haleson presented a proposal at the Monday, Sept. 19, Alton Board of Selectmen meeting to create an Alton Bay History Gazebo located on the original site of the 1851 gazebo. The history would include such things as the water tower, the old rail line and train station and the turntable. He said he would raise citizen contributions for the historical content, and proposed a selectmen's Warrant Article of $20-$30,000 to pay for the construction.

Haleson said that all work would be coordinated with the highway department. Ken Roberts has been involved in the planning of this project. He supports it and is confident the work on the gazebo can be coordinated with highway department work on the bay.

The board complimented Haleson on his work and voted unanimously to place a warrant article on the Town Meeting ballot.

The board held a public hearing on the highway department's plans for reconstructing Woodlands Road.

Highway Agent Roberts described the plans.

They will cut about 40 trees during the winter so there is no damage to the roads. He told residents that if they have trees on their property within 15 feet of the road that they would like removed, they should let him know and the department will cut them.

The department knows a lot of what is under the road and has marked what they know on the plans. If any residents know of something that is not marked they should let Roberts know so he can work properly with it.

Next year the department will grind and remove the pavement, and rebuild the base of the road to current standards. Roberts said they expect to find some extremely large boulders and ledge. They do not want to do any blasting so they will raise the road bed above any such obstacles instead.

After finishing the road base they will lay two inches of asphalt binder and then leave the road until the Spring of 2018. If they have missed any important rocks in the road base, the winter frost heaves will show any problems. After any problems are addressed they will lay the finish coat of asphalt. The design calls for the use of bituminous asphalt curbing in combination with several large below ground catch basins on the steepest section of the road, which is along Rick Wilder's property.

Snow melt and storm water is directed into the catch basins and then soaks into the soil. There are two reasons

Barnstead School Board gets update on start of new year

BY MARK FOYNES

BARNSTEAD — A month into the new school year, the Barnstead School Board deliberated a number of operational issues, while also welcoming a new member of the school's senior administration.

The meeting began with an introduction of new assistant principal

Jennifer LaLiberte, who was attending her first board meeting.

Principal Tim Rice observed, "She's settling in very nicely and will be a great asset to this school."

After acknowledging a few resignations and approving a handful of staff appointments, the board accepted the appointment of Kristin Brooks and Shandra Hopkins who will be staff liaisons to the student council.

Looking at school enrollment, Principal Rice noted a drop of a couple students from 471 to 469. He said based on inquiries and trends, it's likely that next year's school population could reach 500. He said adding class-

Civil War reenactors spark an interest in history amidst damp conditions

BY MARK FOYNES

Contributing Writer

NEW DURHAM — Raw conditions punctuated by an intermittent drizzle did little to dampen the mood among local history enthusiasts who gathered upon the Ridge last weekend for the 14th annual Civil War encampment, organized by the New Durham Historical Society.

The event, which featured a group of historical reenactors adorned in ca. 1861 Union garb, was presented in cooperation with Company A of the 12th New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry and Charles W. Canney Camp #5, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. Based in Rochester, the Canney group espouses a mission to “promote and preserve the memory of the Civil War veteran and to pay honor to all those who fought to keep us free,” according to the group’s web site.

The historical society and the reenactors initially engaged 14 years ago when former resident Roger Nason, now of Farmington, approached selectmen about installing a memorial marker to commemorate the sacrifices of the town’s Civil War veterans.

“About 10 percent of this town’s population fought in the war,” Nason said. “We thought it would be fitting to honor their efforts - so we reached out to the historical society as a logical partner,” Nason recalled of his initial interest in bringing a Civil War-themed event to town.

To fund a monument, Nason connected with the Historical Society to plan the first encampment in the fall of 2003. Nason’s fellow reenactors donated their time and expertise; society members agreed to donate baked goods and other items for sale, with proceeds to benefit the installation of a monument in front of the town hall bearing the names of the town’s Civil War veterans. Funds raised back then also seeded the creation of an adjacent memorial garden.

What could have been a one-off collaboration continued for years thereafter, with efforts devoted to raising funds and awareness for other causes. A subsequent encampment helped raise funds to preserve Regimental standards on display in the Statehouse Hall of Flags.

Fourth graders in New Durham, Alton and Barnstead all visit the display as part of an annual field trip to the Capitol.

“It’s important for people of all ages to have a sense of the service and sacrifice of what these fighting men contributed,” Nason said.

In subsequent years, the collaboration between the Society and the reenactors has been geared more toward local educational advancement. Last weekend’s event raised funds to support a scholarship awarded to a college-bound student.

According to Society president Cathy Orlowicz, during the two-day event, the camp and Historical Society awarded a $500 scholarship to Molly Erickson, who’s planning to attend UNH this fall to study genetics. “We congratulate Ms. Erickson and wish her much success in her endeavors,” Orlowicz wrote in a follow-up email.

Sherry Cullimore, whose Ridge Top homestead has been the encampment’s venue since its inception, was enthusiastic about the continued collaboration.

Cullimore, who is also the Society’s secretary, recounted some background, “Fourteen years ago, we were going to host the Charles W. Canney Camp No. 5 at the Meeting House. They had wanted to raise funds towards a Civil War Memorial to New Durham Civil War Veterans. However, the Meeting House is on a ledge and it was thought that it might be difficult to erect tents on a ledge.”

Cullimore continued, “Parking was another issue; there was not much of it. So I suggested that I had the field that had plenty of room for whatever activities they would have planned.”

For Cullimore, the event’s educational focus is key to her continuing support. “We felt that the children here need to know about their local history as well as their state history,” she said. “Cathy [Orlowicz] has been offering a program on local town history for the third graders for many years. She includes a trip around town, stopping at many of the meaningful places we have and giving a history of that special place. The students and

LAST WEEKEND, New Durham Ridge was home to the 14th annual Civil War encampment. The public was invited to visit and learn about the experiences of Union soldiers. While the event was free to attend, volunteers sold goodies at a bake sale to generate revenue to help fund a scholarship to benefit a local student. teachers look forward to this program every spring.”

Cullimore sees hosting the event as a way of extending this kind of educational reach.

“The institution of the Civil War Scholarship was another way that the Historical Society could help,” she said.

Cullimore’s son and two grandchildren - four and seven - traveled up from the North Shore to check out the event.

“We’re not too far away, but this gives us a chance to come home,” said Blake Cullimore.

As a gentle mist descended, and with temperatures in the mid-50s, Sherry Cullimore glanced over to see a puff of smoke waft from the central chimney of her 18th-century Cape.

“I’m glad to see they’ve got a fire going in there - the grandkids were saying they were cold,” she said.

Jaunting indoors to warm up was not an option for the reenactors, who wanted to remain true to the camp experience of Union soldiers.

“We kept telling the guys they could go in to warm up, but they always say no - they want to remain true and authentic to the actual experience as possible,” Cullimore said.

Reenactor Lance Robicheau, clad in a damp wool uniform, seemed to embrace the conditions. He shrugged at the notion that the weather wasn’t ideal. “We’ve done this in worse, so this is nothing,” he said, adding, “At least we’re not under Rebel fire.”

While he and his mates faced none of the dangers Civil War soldiers faced, Robicheau said encampment experiences help give a better sense of what it was actually like to participate in the conflict.

“You can read about events and appreciate them at a certain level,” Robicheau said, adding, “But you don’t get quite the feel or the context of what it was actually like.”

He said years of organizing and participating in such events “has given me a better sense of what it meant to serve the cause and fight for our freedoms 150 years ago.”

Nason was of a similar frame of mind. While his involvement in the event was triggered years back by an interest in erecting a monument, he keeps coming back. And for the past seven years, he’s been joined by his son, Daniel.

The younger Nason, who just graduated from Farmington High School, will soon be embarking on a stint in the Navy. He said he intends to build a career out of his service in the military, adding that a family tradition in that branch helped him set his course.

A sense of friendship and camaraderie was strong amongst the group of reenactors, reinforced by a shared sense of humor. John Hollinrake was quick with multiple japes with nary a prodding.

“This is a great group of guys - you can tell because they put up with me,” Hollinrake deadpanned.

Asked why any sane person would want to spend a drizzly October night beneath an exposed tent, many of the men pointed to the volunteer next to him and joked, “He made me do it.”

Kidding aside, all conceded that the opportunity to experience history in a tangible way made them feel closer to the stories of the actual participants. “This is as close as you get without having to experience live gunfire,” Hollinrake said.

As a bonus to the uniformed volunteers, Orlowicz and other historical society volunteers served up a supper of roast pork, baked beans, cooked beets, and potatoes - all prepared over an open fire. A pair of Dutch ovens and other cookware sat beside a pit of smoldering embers as a testament to the Society’s efforts.

“This is a most welcome, though unnecessary gesture - but I do thank you,” said Hollinrake.

“Well you are most welcome,” Orlowicz responded. “It was our deep and sincere pleasure.”

“I’d never baked a pumpkin pie over an open fire before,” Orlowicz later confided. She’d also produced an apple pie, but was pleased with how her pumpkin pie turned out.

With this year’s event now in the history books, so to speak, the Society will begin planning next year’s fundraiser.

“2017 will be the 15th annual - so we want to do something really special,” Orlowicz said.

Anyone wanting to get involved can e-mail the Society at newdurhamhs@gmail.com. The group is also planning a free Oct. 13 program whose guest speaker will present the program, “The Victorians: A Morbid Taste for Mourning.” The event will take place at the library and staffed by society members, who welcome anyone interested in becoming more engaged with the area’s rich history.

Great educational experiences

Prospect Mountain media specialist Cathy Fraser wrote an article for us this week on the first induction ceremony of the Prospect Mountain High School chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America.

Once again, we come away with a positive feeling about everything that is happening at Prospect Mountain High School.

The FBLA has been in schools for many, many years (we remember a chapter in our small high school more than two decades ago) and it's great that Prospect Mountain now has a chapter. First and foremost, FBLA provides a good background for kids who are interested in business and everything that might go into running a business or being part of a successful business. Additionally, it is just another option for Prospect Mountain students as they continue to move forward with their education.

Students can take part in just about every activity one could imagine at Prospect Mountain High School, which in the grand scheme of things, is a fairly small school.

Of course there are the many different sports teams each and every season, but beyond that, there are many other options. The National Honor Society features some of the best and brightest students that Prospect Mountain has to offer, while the numerous band and chorus options are great chances for students to show off their artistic talents. The drama program has also worked hand in hand with the music department to produce musicals that have impressed audiences over the past few years.

The school's robotics team has made a big name for itself, making numerous trips to the World Championships in St. Louis, giving students a chance to move forward with STEM options heading to college and beyond. The History Club has made numerous trips around the country to visit historical places, giving kids a first-hand look at the events that shaped the country that they live in. The Outing Club has taken numerous hikes around the region, giving the kids a chance to learn how to survive in the wilderness. The Environmental Club has started green initiatives in the school with a recycling program among the programs that have been started.

And just for good measure, Prospect Mountain students are also eligible to take part in programs at Lakes Region Technology Center in Wolfeboro, where they can take part in agricultural studies, culinary arts, automotive technology, construction trades and much more.

All in all, there are so many things that students can do each and every day in the school community and there is no doubt that the students have plenty of chances to do numerous different things, so no matter what the interest, there's certainly a place to get involved and make your name.

It seems that once again, Prospect Mountain will continue to be an education bright spot in the local community and beyond.

Letters to the Editor

The local election climate

To the Editor:

This past weekend, candidate signs I had placed were removed. Previously, multiple campaign signs were allowed to exist at the location on a community road right of way. Some people's idea of the First Amendment it is that they are free to say what they like, but if anyone else says anything different, that is an outrage. The First Amendment is often inconvenient, but that is beside the point.

Your censorship is the child of fear and father of ignorance. As Tommy Smothers once said, "The only valid censorship of ideas is the right of people not to listen."

Thank you for solidifying my thoughts in this current election cycle.

Thanks for support of Turkey Plunge

To the Editor:

Last week the owners of Hector's Restaurant in downtown Laconia supported the Salvation Army by donating 10 percent of their one-day food sales to the Turkey Plunge. The Turkey Plunge Committee very much appreciates this generous donation by Carla and Carl Peterson, Hector's owners. They are one more example of why the Lakes Region is a great place to live and work. We urge all readers to visit Hector's for a delicious lunch or dinner and, while there, thank Carl and Carla for their community spirit. This year's Turkey Plunge will take place at Opechee Beach on Oct. 29 starting at 11 a.m. Come on by and take the plunge or simply cheer on your favorite plunger. Following the event there will be a luncheon served at Laconia Middle School and open to plungers and the general public. Served by the Culinary Arts students of LRCC, a variety of soups, chowders and chili will be available along with mouth-watering desserts from the culinary students. Beverages from Coca Cola of Northern New England and door prizes from area businesses round out the luncheon picture. While plungers eat for free, the general public can partake of the luncheon for a donation at the door. All proceeds, after expenses, will go to the local Salvation Army. Hope to see you at Opechee Beach on the 29th of October.

Harrington offers expertise on electricity

To the Editor:

My name is Michael Harrington, I am a Republican and I am running for State Representative for New Durham and Strafford. I have lived in Strafford for over 30 years, been married to my wife Linda for 39 years and have two adult daughters. I have a degree in nuclear engineering and worked in electric production for over 25 years. I served as a State Rep from 2000 to 2004. I was later appointed a Public Utilities Commissioner for NH and have spent the last 12 years very involved in the New England electric markets.

I believe more government is not the solution to every problem, sometimes it's the cause.

One area where I can have an impact is on electric rates. The NH Business and Industry Association names high electric costs as one of their top concerns. Electric prices can and must stop increasing. If I am elected I will introduce a set of legislation that if enacted, will save NH ratepayers tens of millions of dollars over the next 15 to 20 years. One of these would transfer the up to $200 million worth of risks associated with power contracts Eversource willingly signed from ratepayers back to their stockholders where it belongs. Another would get the state out of the business of telling folks what type of electricity they must buy. The people of NH are smart enough to decide this for themselves just like they do for telephone service, food, gas, cars and all sorts of other things. We don't need the government to tell us what the "right" type of electricity to buy is.

New Durham has two electric utilities; Ever-source and the NH Co-op. Customers served by the co-op are already getting one of the lowest electric generation rates in the state and should stay put. This is not the case for Eversource customers. Almost most all the competitive suppliers in NH can provide a lower rate for the generation services portion of your bill (about 40 percent of the total). I have talked with lots of folks from New Durham and realized many are still uncertain about changing to another electric generation supplier. I can tell you it is a very easy process that only takes a few minutes. Go to the NH PUC web site <http://www.puc.state.nh.us/> and in the Consumer Interest block click on the comparison shopping web page. Here you will find a list of all the competitive suppliers and their rates and the answers to frequently asked questions. As you review the list you want to make sure you select a supplier who will give you a fixed rate typically for six months especially over the winter months when prices can be volatile. Once you have selected a supplier, give them a call. You will need a copy of your electric bill to provide your customer information. It is that simple. Eversource is still responsible to deliver your electricity and to maintain the wires. You still make out one check each month to Eversource, the only difference being that it is for a lower amount. A typical residential customer will save $15 to $20/month. If you have a question, give me a call at 942-8691 or send me an e-mail at harringt@metrocast.net.

I would appreciate your vote on Nov. 8.

Summer reading wraps up at Gilman Library

ALTON — The Gilman Library thanks all who participated in this year's Summer Reading Program. This summer's theme was to "Relish Reading" and that's exactly what participants did. Many took part in the activities that they had going on at the library, including special library programs, keeping up with your reading log, and receiving prizes for taking part in the program. Finding Butterflies, Teddy Bear Picnic, Storyteller's Tea, and Cookies and Kids Books were some of the programs that took place at the Summer Reading Program. Patrons of all ages also participated in the raffle, logging their hours weekly and getting a raffle ticket for each hour that they read. In the end, they ended up with more than 100 participants and 943 tickets were entered into the raffles. The library offers congratulations to winners who hungrily read through the entire program and ended up with one of the grand prizes. Mason Coffey won prize one, Pete the Cat Stuff and Pete the Cat Game. Sarah Archambault won prize two, Rise of the Guardians DVD and boxed book set. Michelle Morrill won prize three, Divergent DVD and boxed book set. Lastly, Sandy Jackson won prize four, a bottle of Maple Syrup and the Sugar Grove Mysteries book set by Jessie Crockett. The library had a great abundance of readers this year, as well as a great turnout to the programs that were hosted.

The first day of fall kicked off with a surprisingly hot day, but the Gilman Library has plenty of fall programs going on to keep everyone warm when the chilly weather breezes in. Get ready to learn some interesting fall facts on Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 3:30 p.m. when the library will have the "Wonderful World of Bats" program presented by Jerry Schneider. Name sound familiar? He was also with the library during the Summer Reading Program and did a presentation on butterflies. Now he's back for the fall and is excited to talk to patrons of all ages about the wonderful world of bats. Not into bats? That's okay. The Gilman Library is bringing back monthly movies and would love to hear your suggestions. In addition to new programs, the Gilman Library still has a monthly book chat that anyone can join that offers a friendly atmosphere and people who are excited to talk about books. Give them a call at 875-2550 at any time to inquire about the book group. If you have a little one, the Gilman Library also offers story time for kids of all ages. Every Friday morning at 9:15, you can come on in and have some stories read to you by Miss Lily. Don't want to commit to every Friday? No commitment is needed to join story time and you are welcome to drop by as is convenient for you. Keep an eye out for new story time programs coming soon, such as "Storytelling with Nanny Rosebud" and "Stories, Crafts and Snacks."

The Gilman Library also has various resource tools when it comes to looking up information. For example, the library provides Ancestry.com, Heritage Quest online, Grey House Publishing, EBSCO Host, and many more.

As always, if you have any questions about what's happening at the Gilman Library, feel free to give them a call at 875-2550, shoot them a text at 267-4302, or send them an e-mail at gilmanlibrary@yahoo.com. Hatchery officials to discuss water quality with residents

NEW DURHAM — During the past two summers the residents of Downing Pond in New Durham have been subject to beach advisories (closures) by the New Hampshire Department of Environmental Services due to overgrowth of cyanobacteria (blooms). As a result the New Durham Milfoil and Invasive Aquatic Weeds Committee coupled with various town residents and with the approval of the board of selectmen, performed tests to evaluate water quality in the Merrymeeting River (source water for Downing Pond). Among the findings were persistently high levels of phosphorus, a key element controlling the growth of cyanobacteria and algae, throughout the river system.

On Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 4:30 p.m. the residents of New Durham will be given a tour of the Powder Mill State Fish Hatchery followed by a period where questions will be addressed by hatchery personnel regarding hatchery discharges into the Merrymeeting River. Interested residents should gather at the Hatchery Office on 288 Merrymeeting Road at 4:20 p.m.

Taiwan talk

“The one thing I’ll remember the most is all the wonderful friends I made there,” said Ethan Crossman (right), standing next to his mother, Sheryl, to members of the Alton Centennial Rotary who sponsored him on its Student Exchange Program to Taiwan, June 4 to July 11. He presented a power point slide show of his visit. Crossman was selected for this exchange, in part, because he had taught himself to speak Chinese and clearly understood that he’d be an ambassador for the United States and Rotary, spreading goodwill and understanding between the two countries. He also added, “I can’t wait to go back.” Crossman is a junior at Prospect Mountain High and his long-range plans are to become either an architect or a linguist. Rotarian Program Director and Student Exchange Director David Countway (left), handled the logistics for Crossman’s trip.

Mark on the Markets Robo advisors?

BY MARK PATTERSON
Contributing Writer
Artificial intelligence is the newest method of managing assets held by a few name brokerage houses in order to accumulate your investable dollars. After all, isn't a super computer much smarter than your financial advisor? We in the financial services industry rely heavily on technology to crunch numbers, and your accountant most likely prepares your return on software, so why not just leave your financial future to a non-emotional algorithm. If you were trading large volume of stocks or futures contracts and taking small quick profits known as “scalping,” a software program could possibly be of value. But if you are speaking of developing an ever-changing comprehensive plan, then I would not want that non-emotional robo-advisor anywhere near my financial plan.

The year 1994 saw a hedge fund called “Long Term Capital Management” that was founded in Greenwich, Conn. by some very smart people that had a boat load of experience in the capital markets. They created an automated program that used arbitrage methods that hedged bonds against commodities or corn futures against the Japanese Yen. The point was to hedge uncorrelated things against each other for maximum profit and minimal exposure. These very smart individuals with a lot of initials after their names attracted a lot of international money. The first three years LTCM did well, averaging around 30 percent, which was a really good return until the 1997 Asian financial crisis followed by the 1998 Russian financial crisis which led to Federal Reserve intervention and total failure by 2000. The software developed to manage this fund performed great until it didn't anymore.

The point is that the academics that run these automated programs usually lack something more important than their intellect and that certain something is instinct or a “gut” feel for what is happening around them. Of course this is a generalization, but one that I believe is true more than not.

Target retirement funds are mutual funds that invest your money according to your projected retirement date. I suppose everyone should invest exactly the same if you plan on retiring in the same year? Robo-advisors would in essence do the same thing, assuming that everyone's risk tolerance is the same. If you have a life changing event can you call your robot to make adjustments to your portfolio? What about the amounts of life insurance or long term care? My understanding is that the robot just handles your fund allocations. Next time you get that funny feeling about the markets and feel that you should take some profit and raise cash, you can probably assume that “robot don't care.”
If you do not think there is value added by working with a human as your advisor then I would suggest low cost Fidelity or Vanguard funds; skip the robot.

Learn about bats at Gilman Library on Oct. 11

ALTON — Join in at the Gilman Library for "The Wonderful World of Bats."

"The Butterfly Guy," who was at the library on Thursday, July 7, presenting "Finding Butterflies," returns to bring the library patrons "The Wonderful World of Bats." Jerry Schneider has brought the wonderful world of bats to audiences since 2003, using amazing photos by Merlin D. Tuttle, former president of Bat Conservation International.

This program introduces audiences to local and tropical bats, the Vampire Bat, and many more of the world's only flying mammals. Via slides and taped bat calls, audiences move beyond old stereotypes, to understand the vital roles of bats in the environment. Audiences learn about dealing with bats in attics and will also learn about hibernation, migration and bat echolocation.

The program will conclude with a bat tee shirt craft. Bring your own plain tee shirt for the craft or purchase a heavy cotton tee at the program.

Please join in on the lower level of the library, in the Agnes Thompson Meeting Room, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 11. This program is free and open to the public. Call the library for more information at 875-2550 or visit www.gilmanlibrary.org.

Support network meeting in New Durham Oct. 17

NEW DURHAM — A community program to create a support network for New Durham residents in need will hold an informational workshop on Monday, Oct. 17, at the New Durham Public Library at 6 p.m.

Members of the public, local businesses and organizations willing to make a positive impact are encouraged to attend the meeting to discuss the creation and implementation of the new program called New Durham Cares.

Discontinuation of service by the COAST bus sparked the establishment of a community action program that will organize residents willing to aid their neighbors with rides to grocery shopping and appointments.

New Durham Cares would not stop there, however; the program would also include those who could shovel walkways, rake leaves, or help out others by doing various tasks.

Jeff Donald of COAST Bus will attend to help with the planning. Light refreshments will be served. For more information, contact Laura in the New Durham Welfare Office at 859-2091.

Members of the National Junior Honor Society made good on their promise to let the fourth grade students in Mrs. Moulton's room drench them for the funds raised in support of research defeating ALS (Lou Gehrig's disease). Pictured here, l-r, Gavin Barnham-Elliott, drenches Julia Leavitt (under the deluge of water) with Juliahna Marcello seeming to shy away from her turn next. Every fourth grader in Mrs. Moulton's room had the opportunity to spill a bucket of water, as the NJHS members each took their fair turn to be drenched. This is the first activity for the newly inducted NJHS members to show their sense of stewardship, school pride and how they are a part of the national effort to raise funds and awareness of this disease.

Forrester to be honored by Belknap County Republicans

BELMONT — The Belknap County Republican Committee has announced that its next monthly meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 12, at 6:30 p.m. at the Top of the Town Restaurant, 88 Ladd Hill Road in Belmont.

This month's meeting will be extra special. In addition to the committee's focus on campaigns and strategy for the upcoming November elections, the committee will also be honoring three-term State Senator Jeanie Forrester of Meredith for her service to New Hampshire.

With the election less than a month from now, the committee will hear from State Rep and State Senate candidates about their campaigns and their plans for the final weeks leading up to the election. Also, campaign staffers for the gubernatorial, senate, and congressional races will be on-hand to answer questions and to distribute election campaign info.

On a separate note, the committee is honoring Forrester for her six years serving as State Senator in the second District. Forrester, as Chair of the Senate Finance Committee, made sure that a responsible, balanced budget was prepared. The state now has a budget that shows a surplus, allowing money to be held aside for future, unpredictable expenses.

Belknap County GOP meetings are open to all Republicans and like-minded Independents. Per their usual meeting format, if you're interested in having dinner (at your option) and/or wish to socialize before the meeting, plan to arrive as early as 5 p.m. The committee thanks its members for continuing to bring food pantry donations to the meetings, and again reminds them to bring a non-perishable food item to this month's meeting.

For more information, please check the committee's web site at www.BelknapCountyGOP.org or send an e-mail to alan.glassman@gmail.com.

Outdoors around the Bay

BY JACK MILLER
Contributing Writer

This month ushers in Autumn as the food falls from the trees. I am constantly being bombarded by acorns this year, which hurts my head and my bare feet, but is great for the animals. Deer, bear, pheasant, turkey and squirrel are some of the animals that feast on acorns. The leaves are turning brilliant colors, the weather is cool and crisp, and small game season encourages hunters to be out in all this glory.

Starting Oct. 1, you may hunt for snowshoe hare, pheasant, grouse, quail, chukar, partridge and woodcock. You may not hunt cottontail rabbit in our WMU, but there are a few spots in the state where you can still hunt them. You must have a HIP number for woodcock and an additional license for pheasant. New rules this year for safety while pheasant hunting is that all stocking sites will be closed until noon on stocking days. Stocking days are the first three Thursdays and Fridays of October, 6-7,13-14, and 20-21. Five stocking sites will not be stocked any longer, so be sure to check for information where you like to hunt.

Oct. 4 opens the seasons for ducks, coots, mergansers, Canada geese, snow geese and brant in our inland zone. Mink and muskrat season opens Oct. 15, and so does moose season, if you were lucky enough to get a permit. Oct. 22-23 is youth deer hunting weekend. This is a great way to introduce a youngster to the joy of the woods. Muzzleloader deer season opens Oct. 29 throughout the state, but varies in closing dates and antlered or any deer dates. In our WMU you may hunt any deer the Oct. 29 and 30 then it is antlered only from Nov. 1-8.

The fall turkey shotgun season has been extended this year to seven days instead of five. It runs from Oct. 10-16 in our J2 WMU. As always, if you hunt elsewhere, be sure to check the rules.

If you fish in the streams and rivers, most fishing ends on Oct. 15. Check the regulations for what you fish.

This is a busy month for sportspeople. It is always a good idea for those in the woods at this time of year to wear hunter orange. It doesn't matter if you are hunting or hiking, safety in the woods is always good. Your pets would appreciate a collar or scarf of hunter orange, too. Don't let the falling acorns drive you nuts.

Church celebrating Access Sunday this weekend

BARNSTEAD — Each year, one Sunday on the United Church of Christ (UCC) church calendar is designated as Access Sunday. This year Oct. 9 will be the occasion that all of the UCC will join together in celebrating the gifts of persons with disabilities and the strides that the church has made in being more whole through being more accessible. It is also a day that the church acknowledges the journey yet to be taken with sisters and brothers with disabilities.

For the Congregational Church of North Barnstead, UCC (CCNB), this Access Sunday is especially significant since CCNB will be celebrating its designation last fall as an "A2A" congregation. A2A, or Accessible to All, refers to congregations that have completed the Accessible to All process and made the commitment to be physically and attitudinally welcoming of people with disabilities. CCNB has been working for several years making the 1820 building more accessible with ramps, pew spaces for wheelchairs and an accessible restroom. In addition CCNB provides hearing assistive devices, makes large print bulletins and hymnals available, offers companions for the blind, and raises awareness about issues such as dementia and mental illness. CCNB is proud to be the first church in NH and only the third in the country to receive this A2A recognition. In addition, CCNB was honored this year to be named one of three recipients of the 2016 Governor's Accessibility Awards given each year by the Governor's Commission on Disabilities.

To celebrate these achievements, the Conference Minister of the NH Conference, United Church of Christ, the Rev. Gary Shulte, will preach on Access Sunday "Accessibility-Right Here, Right Now"

All are welcome to celebrate on Access Sunday or any Sunday for 10 a.m. Worship Service and Sunday School for children of all ages. CCNB is located at 504 North Barnstead Road and is an open and affirming and accessible to all congregation which means everyone receives an extravagant welcome.

Soup, chili chowder contest at Locke Lake Oct. 16

BARNSTEAD — It is harvest time and the cool nights call for some nice soups, stews and chowders, so the Locke Lakers are having their third annual contest to see which is the best in the Colony. On Oct. 16 at noon, the members will be given ballots to choose their favorite soup, stew or chowder, with cash prizes to be awarded for the best. If you would like to participate in making an entry, please call Ann Shea at 39-37233. If you're attending and not making an entry, please bring either appetizers or dessert to the potluck supper. Just an added note, on Oct. 23, Friday evening will be the last game night in the lodge at 6 p.m. Pokeno, cribbage and cards will be played.

to the classroom after taking some time off and putting in a stint as a specialist. She joked that The Baysider found her two least gregarious students, whom we attempted to goad into a quote.

"I doubt they'll say much - but they are such great kids," Hardy said with a smile. "But I can say that about all my students; I'm really fortunate to have so many great kids who make coming to work just such a fantastic experience every day."

Hardy's prediction, based on just a few short weeks of interaction, proved precient. The Baysider tried to pry some details about Phillips' and McLain's favorite part of the day - but to no avail. They did concede to pose for a picture with their teacher,

Just down the hall is the art room, which is managed by teacher Michael Stasiuk. The veteran instructor said he enjoys seeing how kids' artistic expression evolves over their time at NDES.

"Some students come ready on day one to express themselves," Stasiuk observed. "Others take some time but mostly always find a way to be creative."

Stasiuk described a recent second-grade project in which children made papier mache rattles. The objects were mostly fashioned in animal shapes. He said the rattles each contain three pennies he provided. "So this is the one project we actually pay kids to do," he joked.

Stasiuk said he takes great satisfaction when older students tell him they still have projects that they did with him years earlier. "I hear from sixth graders that they still have their rattles they made with me years earlier."

A bit further down the hall The Baysider caught up with kindergarten teacher Nancy Haseltine. Between visiting with students' families, Haseltine said she enjoys the routine of managing a classroom, but that this will be her final year as a full-time teacher.

"I'm turning 65, so it's time," she explained, elaborating, "But I have too much energy to just retire." Haseltine said her preference going forward would be to work part-time in a local school where she can share her skills on a small-scale basis.

This was new Principal Kelly Colby-Seavey's first open house. She spent much of the evening greeting families. Although less than a month into her new role, she greeted most students by name as they entered with a welcoming greeting.

Having previously served as Effingham Elementary's principal, Colby-Seavey is familiar with the Governor Wentworth School District.

"This is such a wonderful community turning out for a great event," Colby-Seavey said. "It's always a great thing to see families involved and engaged in their children's education."

rooms and staff “might not be optimal but do-able.”

Regarding the ratification of a phone-based teacher evaluation, superintendent Brian Cochraine said that the administration and the teachers’ union had “a very productive discussion,” which yielded a draft evaluation strategy both parties believe they can move forward with.

Moving onto the topic of alternative school lunches, the board spent considerable time discussing pricing options. Finance manager Donna Clairmont said that DOE requirements are “very forceful” in requiring that certain nutritional requirements be met. She said protein, fruit, grain, dairy and other nutrition standards demand compliance. Clairmont said the current alternative lunch includes a peanut-and-jelly sandwich, milk, plus a dessert - adding that compliance could be achieved by adding a vegetable. She suggested that carrots or celery be included to fulfill the vegetable requirement since they are options students are most likely to actually eat.

The current lunch price is $2.50, and Clairmont recommended an alternative lunch price of $1.25. She said having a compliant plan in place with an acceptable price is an audit requirement. The addition of the vegetable component, she added, makes the school eligible for some cost reimbursement opportunities for unpaid-for-meals through grants. Clairmont said the school endeavors to ensure that all children are fed - but that occasionally parents are either delinquent or default on payment.

Special education director Emily Reese said there is a significant number of families who are on the economic margins but who do not qualify for free or reduced student lunches.

While the board gave considerable consideration to the $1.25 price option, the group ultimately chose to set the price at 75 cents in the interest of giving delinquent parents more of an opportunity to stay current in their payments for student lunches.

Looking ahead to winter, the board elected to renew its contract with R & K Snow Plowing, noting that among the bidders on the RFP, they are a known commodity that does a good job and is not requesting an increase in compensation.

Under the heading of a Buildings and Grounds update, the board discussed the Capital Improvement Plan. Slated projects include recarpeting the library, ongoing efforts to achieve ADA compliance, and a repainting of the D-Wing. For future budgeting purposes, the board agreed it needed to plan for C-wing painting, security modifications, and roof upgrades for both the D-wing and the gym.

Regarding the school’s finances, staff informed the board that an anticipated Title I grant needed to balance the books is forthcoming.

ing. Clairmont said that a savings of perhaps $42k is forthcoming. She said this anticipated number is based on the replacement of senior-level personnel with junior-level replacements through attrition.

BES is also beginning a strategic planning process. Superintendent Cochraine said he hopes the process will “cast a broad net to capture input from students, teachers, administrators and the broader community.”

He said an ongoing process is necessary “to accommodate a process as complex as teaching and learning.”

Board member Diane Beijer urged that the committee in charge of strategic planning should meet regularly to continually “revisit and adjust” priorities.

Cochraine said he hopes to present multiple options of a plan for ultimate board consideration.

The meeting concluded with a discussion of the school’s Capital Improvement Plan. The group agreed to stay the course on its plan to recommend no significant additions until the PMHS bond is paid off. The board also endorsed its strategy of setting aside $50k annually for future projects, although it conceded that it had not done so in the current year.

The Barnstead School Board meets monthly - typically the last Tuesday of the month. To view the group’s meeting schedule, please visit the BES web site.

Here's for the lowly puffball, more than just "poof" underfoot

In mythology they were considered objects from the heavens, and American Indians used them for soups and stopping nosebleeds. When I was a kid, they were always just puffballs, fun to stomp on to see the brown dust rise.

Sometime during last fall, a puffball about the size of a golf ball blew into my main barn and came to rest near where I get into and out of my truck, and for some reason I studiously avoided stepping on it all winter, maybe just to see what would happen. The answer was that its dried brown skin cracked in one place, a small chasm, awaiting only a bit of pressure to puff forth the tens of thousands of tiny spores within.

Still, I didn't stomp on it but saved it, and eventually set it out in the sun to photograph it, and then it blew away, rolling and bouncing off to wherever puffballs and sky spiders go.

Granny Stalbird was an herb-gatherer and historian who lived in Jefferson in the late 1700s. She derived a good deal of very old knowledge from living and visiting with descendants of the Coashaukees and Ameriscoggins who seasonally lived in and hunted the land north of the notches. In her later life she rode a wide circuit in the North Country, administering what she viewed as the best medical practices and remedies for any and all in need. She is widely considered as the first doctor in the territory.

One of her old remedies that stuck with me was the use of puffballs to stop bleeding. Later on, a little bit further north, I picked up the thread that the Coashaukees also used cobwebs. And then, in more formal literature (William R. Burk, "Puffball Usages among North American Indians," University of North Carolina, 1983) I found out, big surprise, that many nations used both.

Now, I'll have to admit being a bit skeptical about this cobweb business. I can see blowing puffball spores through a rolled-up cornhusk to stop a nosebleed, or using sliced-open puffballs as compresses to stanch bleeding wounds. But how long would someone have to run around through the woods to collect enough cobwebs to make a difference before the patient bled to death?

Ah well, one must learn not to question too closely lest the medicine mixed with the mythology go "poof," like a puffball.

But these are known puffball facts:

There are two basic families of puffballs, Lycoperdales and Tulostomatales;

Many puffballs can be eaten when in the white, solid-inside stage; however, they are said to taste like, well, dirt;

The Blackfeet, finding them in circles in the high desert, considered them fallen stars;

The Arikara and Navaho used them as poultices;

Many tribes and nations used them for fire-starting tinder, or punk;

Children living around volcanoes used puffballs for games involving make-believe, puffing mountains.

Before the advent of modern medicine, European settlers had to make do with what they had learned from the Indians they met or had been handed down by their European ancestors. Ergo, many a frontier household featured a string of puffballs, kept hanging over the fireplace for cuts and nosebleeds.

But the widespread use of puffballs I liked best, for some reason, was to stop the bleeding in a newborn baby's belly-button. Hence the Dakota word for the puffball, "baby's navel."

gencies. Working with town officials they then identify the appropriate actions to be taken in different types of emergencies. This grant comes through the Lakes Region Planning Commission. Chief Heath believes they have been helpful in the past.

Wittmann said if the town receives a grant he wants the board of aelectmen to "review the fine print" before final acceptance of the grant.

Town Administrator Elizabeth Dionne gave the board a copy of the ballot for leaders of the New Hampshire

Association of Assessors. Both the town assessor and the board of selectmen have the right to vote for candidates for these positions. The board asked that Dionne bring the assessor's recommendations to the next meeting and tabled further action until then.

She then noted that it was the time of year to renew the annual retainer for town counsel. She asked for the board's approval, and asked if they wanted to increase the rate paid to counsel. Virgil McDonald said it was critical to find the paperwork from past agreements with town counsel. The board agreed to renew with no increase in rate of pay.

Wittmann reported on his attendance at the Alton Community Services board meeting. He said he learned a great deal about their work and the services they provide, and he is very impressed.

During the second public input period Clay asked the board why they are not holding a competitive bidding process for the position of town counsel, since they have discovered that there is no contract with the current attorney.

ALTON — In a game that they needed in order to continue the press for a playoff spot, the Prospect Mountain soccer girls came out strong and took a lead that they never relinquished, defeating neighboring Gilford by a 4-1 score on Tuesday, Sept. 27.

"The first half was nice," said coach Matt Locke. "We came out a little flat and not quite as energized in the second half.

"But it was still enough to get a win," the veteran coach noted. "I'm glad we didn't give up a second goal."

The Timber Wolves wasted absolutely no time in getting on the board on their home field, as Kasey LaCroix sent a perfect cross from the left side over the head of the Gilford goalie and Nadia Huggard was waiting and took the ball off her body and into the net for a 1-0 lead just 1:50 into the game.

The Timber Wolves continued to pressure with plenty of chances in the offensive zone. Sadie DeJager sent a good ball in to LaCroix that was cleared out, while Leah Dunne also got in close on the net but was denied. Huggard sent a shot wide of the net and Sydney DeJager had a great cross to Tessa Carter, but her shot was stopped by the keeper. Megan Chase had a long kick go wide of the net and Sadie DeJager just missed connecting with Carter on a scoring bid.

Gilford came back with a trip down the field but Brianna Burley stepped up and cleared the ball away, leading to a pair of good bids from LaCroix, who had one

Timber Wolves get three shutouts for the week

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING

TILTON — The Prospect Mountain soccer boys had not problems taking care of business against Winnisquam on Thursday, Sept. 29, as the Timber Wolves traveled to Tilton and picked up the 6-0 win.

Prospect got on the board in the first nine minutes of the game, as Doug Krivitsky finished off a feed from Jesse DeJager with a header at the back post for a 1-0 lead.

The Timber Wolves scored again with 18:50 to go in the first half, as Travis Stockman drilled a loose ball home from just outside the 18-yard box after it popped loose following a scrum in front.

The third goal came with 8:45 to go in the first half, as Jonah Dudzik sent a cross to Andy Hamilton, who drove the ball home for a 3-0 lead heading to halftime.

The Timber Wolves continued to control the game in the second half and a penalty kick chance with just less than 10 minutes gone in the half gave them their fourth goal. Dudzik connected on the penalty kick for the 4-0 lead.

With 16:45 to go, Matt Sepulveda struck on a rebound for a 5-0 lead and Zack Dwyer rounded out the scoring when he fired one home just more than a minute and a half later to finish off the 6-0 win.

Prospect opened the week with a 5-0 win over Laconia and then finished it off with a 4-0 win over Somersworth.

Coach Cory Halvorsen noted that coming off a tough loss to Derryfield the previous Friday, the team came together on Monday and regrouped looking to get back on track. “I think it definitely helped to get ready for the week,” he said of his Monday practice. “To come out with three wins was huge for us. “It definitely gave us the confidence to get through the week,” the Timber Wolf coach added.

The Somersworth game was a solid win for the Timber Wolves on Saturday, with Dudzik scoring two goals and Brandon Sinclair and Hamilton adding goals. “I was happy about that,” Halvorsen said. “We see Somersworth again in a week and a half and we’re going to see where we are in a week and a half.” The Timber Wolf coach also said he was happy to see Sinclair, one of the team’s younger players, get a goal. “It was a confidence booster for Brendan,” Halvorsen said. “Some of the younger guys scoring goals, that’s what I am looking for.” Keeper Drew Nickerson controlled the back of the field in recording the three shutouts. “He continues to be a leader on the field and controls the back of the field,” the Prospect coach said. “We all realized that Derryfield was not where we wanted to be and we were able to put that behind us.” The Timber Wolves will be back in action on Friday, Oct. 7, as they host Berlin at 3:30 p.m.

Timber Wolf net girls sweep a pair

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

ALTON — The Prospect Mountain volleyball team ran its win streak to three games with a pair of wins last week, earning shutouts of Trinity and Pittsfield.

“We definitely went through a little funk with those losses, so it was nice to get back on the winning track,” said Prospect coach Mike Christy. “They were starting to lose confidence in our abilities.

“We had to win, we had to earn the points, we did our job,” Christy noted. “Now the rest of the schedule is pretty difficult.”

The Timber Wolves made the trip to Trinity on Monday, Sept. 26, and defeated the Pioneers by a 3-0 score and then returned home to host Pittsfield on Saturday afternoon and came away with another 3-0 win.

Christy noted that neither team was one of the top squads in Division III, but he said it was important to get the job done and get the wins, particularly with the toughest portion of the schedule lying ahead, where his team will face Farmington and Belmont twice each, in addition to Nute, Portsmouth Christian and Inter-Lakes, all teams the Timber Wolves have already dropped decisions to.

“It’s either going to make us or break us,” the Timber Wolf coach said. “I hope the girls can raise the game to a different level over the next couple of weeks.”

He noted that in the chase for improvement and a possible playoff berth, every win is important and picking up the wins last week were

Winning doesn’t cure everything, but it’s nice

I love when my teams win. That starts at the teams that I call mine, which are the teams I cheer for, including the Patriots and the Red Sox and the Bruins, among others.

This also includes the teams that I cover at the five local high schools.

This week featured a little bit of both and also a little bit of the other end of the spectrum.

First and foremost, at the professional level, the Red Sox clinched the American League East, but I must say it was the strangest clinching I’ve ever seen. The loss by the Orioles clinched the division for the Red Sox while they had a 3-0 lead over the Yankees in New York. Then the implosion of Craig Kimbrel led to a walk-off grand slam to send the Red Sox down to defeat all the while clinching the American League East. I imagine it was weird to celebrate after a walk-off, but it was a celebration a season in the making.

After the last few years of last place finishes, this was a hard-fought season for the Sox and they deserved a chance to celebrate. It took a lot of work by a lot of guys along the way, but winning the division is always a wonderful thing. While the regular season didn’t exactly end with things feeling positive, I’m excited for playoff baseball, something that hasn’t happened around here in a while.

At the other end of the spectrum was the disaster that was the Patriots on Sunday. After three solid games without Tom Brady, I guess we shouldn’t be totally surprised that they finally had a bad game. I’m not a person who gets overly upset with a loss. It happens and you move on. Hopefully the addition of the quarterback back to the roster will make a difference moving for-

On the local scene, a pair of teams got their first wins of the season this week, meaning that all of my teams have at least one win this week.

The Kingswood soccer girls went on the road on Monday and defeated Farmington for their first win of the season. The Knights have struggled this year, their first year back in Division II after a few years in Division III, so it’s good to see them get a win on the scoreboard, even if it was a road game and I wasn’t there to see it.

On Saturday, the Newfound football team also got its first win of the season and did so on Homecoming in the lone night home game of the season. The Bears have struggled with numbers over the last few years and are in their fifth head coach in the last five years. They went in to battle last week with just 14 players active and did a fine job hanging tough against Kearsarge. This week, seven kids returned from injury and the Bears had 21 kids. After seeing them work so hard in a loss, it was nice to see a win for some hard-working kids.

And in more good news, in seeing the Plymouth girls’ soccer team on Friday, I’ve now seen every one of my fall sports teams at least once. Seems to take longer to do that every year.

Finally, have a great day Jim and Kelly Carey.

a big step in the right direction.

“We’re trying to build a winning tradition here, so any win is important,” Christy said. “But we have to start beating some good teams.”

In addition to the rest of the regular season schedule that includes games against some tough teams, the Timber Wolves will also be taking part in a Columbus Day tournament this coming Saturday at Nashua South, where the Timber Wolves will play mostly teams from Division I and Division II, including Division II defending champion Gilford, who the Timber Wolves open the tournament against.

“I wanted to go to get the kids some more experience against some good teams,” Christy said. “It will be good for us.”

Over the course of the two games last week, Christy noted that outside hitters Shannon Armstrong and Gabriela d’Empaire-Poirier continued to hit the ball well and he also praised the work of his middles.

“The middles have really stepped up a lot lately,” Christy said, referring to Hannah Bureau and Alyssa Spiewak. “They’ve given us a lot more offense than I really expected.

“They’re getting confidence as they go and starting to figure out they can play well and can win some games,” Christy added.

Prospect will be at Portsmouth Christian on Friday, Oct. 7, at 5:15 p.m. and will be at Inter-Lakes for a 6 p.m. contest on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Skelley's OT tally lifts Knights over Bobcats

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

PLYMOUTH — Though they were a few years apart, Kingswood field hockey coach Kaitlin Reilly and Plymouth field hockey coach Ashley Laufenberg went to the same high school and played field hockey for the same coach. So it should be no surprise that they have similar approaches to coaching and the game. As a result, the two teams seem to always be in a hard-fought battle, no matter what type of season each team is having.

That was again the case on Wednesday, Sept. 28, as the Knights traveled to Plymouth. And this time around, the teams literally needed pretty much every second.

Kingswood senior captain Emily Skelley scored on a penalty corner with just more than a second left on the clock in the seven-on-seven overtime to lift the Knights to a 2-1 win over the Bobcats.

"We have a similar philosophy, a similar way to pick up the kids, no matter what kind of year we're having," Reilly said of her and Laufenberg. "And that showed today."

"They've got a pretty group this season," Laufenberg said of the Knights. "I'm proud of our whole group, they came in knowing that and didn't fold."

"It easily could've been three or four to nothing in their favor," the Bobcat coach added. The two teams were pretty evenly matched from the start, with Meghan Lapar getting in the offensive zone for the Knights, though Hailey Patridge turned in good defense for the Bobcats. Bridget Coughlin sent the ball in to Mackenzie Doran for the Knights as well but Tristan Keller stepped up with good defense. At the other end, Je-van Sandhu headed into the zone but was met by the defense of Ginny Skelley.

The Knights got the game's first corner and Emily Skelley had a shot but good defense from Caitlyn Irish allowed the Bobcats to clear the zone. Ali House had a shot blocked for the Knights and Brooke Seigars also got in close, but they were turned away. Keller's defense kept a Kingswood corner from getting in and Emma Campbell went the other way for the Bobcats but was denied. Jackie Gaumer helped to stop a bid from Coughlin and Coughlin in turn helped to turn away a Kelsey Johnston chance in the zone. Doran and Seigars hooked up for a chance but the ball went wide.

Plymouth had a pair of corners but could not produce a goal, with Lapar turning away one bid with a good clear. Johnston and Nicole Uhlman got in close with a chance but Sarah Bean stepped up with good defense for the Knights to get the ball out. Keller and Patridge returned the favor with strong defense at the other end of the field and on a Kingswood corner, Kayla McEvoy's shot was denied by keeper Barbara McKenzie and Doran put the rebound wide of the net.

Bean and Lapar stepped up with strong defense on another Plymouth corner and Mariah Luscher found Marisa Barach for a bid but she was stopped by another strong defensive play from Bean. Kate Ogden also had a shot for the Bobcats that keeper Jess Distler turned away.

The Bobcats got a trio of corners and were able to capitalize on the third one, as Sandhu ripped a shot from just inside the circle to Distler's right. The ball took a wicked hop past the Knight keeper and into the net for a 1-0 lead with 8:39 to go in the first half.

McKenzie made a nice stop of a Lapar bid and Gaumer and Patridge turned in good defense for the Knights and Skelley did the same for the Knights.

With time ticking down, Bean was able to keep the ball in the Kingswood zone with a strong play and sent the ball back in and Doran was able to tip the ball into the net for the tying goal with 20 seconds to go.

Kingswood had three corners in a row at the start of the second half and good defense from Keller and Sandhu helped keep the Knights away from the goal. Doran and House both had chances for the Knights and on another corner for Kingswood Lapar's shot was stopped by McKenzie.

Johnston was able to put the ball in the net on a long shot but it was hit from outside the circle and didn't touch anyone as it headed in, so the goal was not counted. Sofia Marshall, Lapar, House and Seigars continued with good chances for the Knights while Keller was strong on defense. Bean made a good defensive play on Luscher and Ginny Skelley did the same on Sandhu. Gaumer and House exchanged bids at opposite ends of the field while in the final seconds, Olivia Eastman and Johnston got in close on the Knight net and the ball slipped through the crease without being knocked in and the game headed to overtime tied at one. Doran and House had early bids in the extra frame, with Keller and Irish each turning in strong defense. Johnston and Gaumer had chances at the other end but couldn't convert and Doran came back with a bid for the Knights, only to be denied by Irish's defense. McKenzie made a great diving save on a bid from Doran and then made another save in close on the Knight sophomore.

Plymouth came back with chances and Emily Skelley and House led the charge to clear the way. Irish stopped a Lapar bid and sent the ball up to Luscher, but Emily Skelley made the stop on defense. Sandhu cleared a Lapar bid and Coughlin had a shot go wide. Ginny Skelley helped to turn away a Johnston bid and a Mariah Craigue bid was stopped by Sandhu.

However, as time ticked down, the Knights got the corner and celebrated with the last second goal.

"I am nervous," Reilly said, pointing to the Bobcats. "That's a young team and what they can do. That was hard-fought, well-coached, good strategy."

She also noted the Knights revealed another layer to their abilities in the game.

"This game shows a strength that we've been building all year," Reilly said. "To be able to respond and give anyone a game."

"So we can always keep ourselves in a spot to win," she continued. "This is definitely something for us to pull from, coming off Lebanon (0-0 tie), how to take the next step in a game."

She also said it was important to get the win as the season winds down.

"Heading to October, everyone is clawing, it's time to work and start building things for the second half of the season," Reilly noted.

"It was good to get that first goal," Laufenberg said. "Unfortunately we just had that lapse and it led to that goal before the half."

"In the second half we had our chances, we had our breakaways and defensively we had some big stops," the Plymouth coach continued. "Babs (McKenzie) came up big and Caitlyn (Irish) had some big interceptions."

"That was huge when we needed it," Laufenberg noted.

The Bobcat coach also looked ahead to what she expects will be a pretty good season finale, when the Bobcats head to Wolfeboro on Oct. 13.

"We can look forward to seeing them again," she said.

The Bobcats will be hosting Kennett today, Oct. 6, at 4 p.m. and will be at Lebanon on Tuesday, Oct. 11, also at 4 p.m. Kingswood will be at Portsmouth for a 4 p.m. game on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The rematch between the two teams will take place on Thursday, Oct. 13, at 5:30 p.m. in Wolfeboro.

Timber Wolf boys and girls win home meet

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

ALTON — The Prospect Mountain cross country team continues to expand its home meet each year.

This year, another team was added, with five teams taking part in the race, which took place on Saturday, Oct. 1.

“We seem to be adding one school each year,” coach John Tuttle said with a laugh. The first year it was just the Timber Wolves and each year they’ve added schools. Portsmouth Christian, Raymond, Laconia and Gilford joined the Timber Wolves in Alton.

And the Timber Wolves claimed victory in both races, with the boys defeating Laconia by nine points and the girls edging Laconia by just one point.

Thomas Howlett continued his strong freshman year, finishing as the first Timber Wolf in third place overall in 17:18.

Alex Amann was sixth overall and second for Prospect in 17:47 and Hudson Ingoldsby was eighth in 18:01 to finish as the shot sail over the net and another go wide of the net.

The Timber Wolves were able to get the game’s second goal with 25:15 to go. LaCroix brought the ball down the left side of the field and from outside the box, launched a shot that soared over the keeper’s hands and to the far corner of the net for a 2-0 lead for the Timber Wolves.

Huggard and Dunne just missed connecting on a bid as the Timber Wolves continued to pressure and Megan Minaya had a shot denied by the Gilford keeper. Prospect had a corner kick chance stopped by the Gilford keeper and Dunne came back with a bid that went wide of the net. LaCroix sent a nice cross through that just missed Huggard.

The Timber Wolves came up with a couple of corner kicks, with the first chance off the foot of Dunne being blocked, but the second found its way into the net, as LaCroix booted the ball from the corner and Huggard poked it home with 18:20 to go in the first half for a 3-0 lead.

Huggard and LaCroix connected on a bid that went just wide of the net and Prospect had another corner that was cleared out of the zone. LaCroix had another great cross that Ryley Roberts sent just a bit wide and Sadie DeJager had a long shot go wide of the net. Haley Marston had a trio of bids for the Timber Wolves as the hosts pressured the net.

Gilford was able to come through with some chances late in the first half, with Mackenzie Burke making some solid saves in the net and Sadie DeJager helping out with a nice clear from the goal mouth. The Golden Eagles were able to get the ball in the net in the final minute, when a shot from near the edge of the box lofted over Burke’s head and into the net to cut the lead to 3-1 at the break.

Huggard, LaCroix and Dunne all got things started in the offensive side of things at the start of the second half but Gilford came back and forced Burke to make a couple of solid saves. Burley had a nice clear and it turned into some more scoring bids, as Huggard, Dunne and LaCroix had chances but they weren’t able to put those chances in.

The Timber Wolves had a corner kick that saw Huggard send a shot off the crossbar. Huggard got a nice feed from Minaya for another bid and Sadie DeJager had a shot go wide.

Burke came out for an aggressive stop on a run in and then was able to scamper back into the net to make a save on another chance. Huggard send another shot off the post and Dunne sent one wide on a feed from Huggard.

The Timber Wolves were able to get a little insurance with 15 minutes to go, when Dunne sent in a nice ball to Huggard, who buried the shot to finish off her hat trick and give the Timber Wolves a 4-1 lead.

Minaya sent another scoring bid off the crossbar and Gilford came back with chances, forcing the Timber Wolf defense to step up, led by Burley with a couple of big clears, while Ali Brown also stepped in with some good stops. Dunne sent a couple of bids wide and Huggard headed a ball wide. Gilford was unable to generate any more chances and the Timber Wolves took the 4-1 win.

“We can always improve on things,” Locke said. “The thing is that ball control is not always there.

“I’m hopeful that will improve,” the veteran coach said. “Our passing was good but we’ll have to be quicker when playing one of the top teams.”

Locke also praised the work of LaCroix, who had many great crosses into the box and has been doing that all year long.

“Her crossing is very good,” Locke said.

The Timber Wolf girls also picked up a 1-0 win over Somersworth on Friday, Sept. 30.

The Timber Wolves will be back in action on Friday, Oct. 7, at Raymond at 4 p.m. and will be at Inter-Lakes for a 3:30 p.m. game on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Joshua Spaulding can be reached at 569-3126 or sportsgsn@salmonpress.com.

third Timber Wolf runner.

Riley McCartney finished in 11th place in 18:18 and Zander Guldbrandsen rounded out the scoring for Prospect Mountain with a time of 18:29 on the fast Prospect course.

“Laconia beat us pretty good at Waterville Valley,” Tuttle said. “They’re a good team.”

Jacob Blair finished in 19:14, with Patrick Hodgman finishing in 19:49 and Cooper Adjutant crossing in 20:04. Michael Mott was next in 20:08, Garrett Sherwood finished in 20:19, George Hodgman finished in a time of 20:22, Dan Drury ran to the same time of 20:22, Nikolas Neathery finished in 20:48 and Caleb Parelus finished in 22:43 to round out the field of Timber Wolf boys.

“It was a really showing for the boys,” Tuttle said. “They ran a good race.”

The girls’ race surprised Tuttle a bit, since the Timber Wolves were running without two of their top runners.

Prospect finished with 39 points and Laconia finished with 40. Portsmouth Christian finished with 44 points for third.

Brittany Rogers finished in fifth place overall to lead the Timber Wolves in 22:24.

Kayley Hoyt was second for Prospect, finishing in 12th in 24:31 and Ashlyn Dalrymple finished in 24:38 for 13th place.

Lily Michaud finished in 14th place in 25:21 and Wyleigh Chase rounded out the scoring for Prospect with a time of 26:31.

“The 12th, 13th, 14th places, that was key to us winning the meet,” Tuttle said.

Betty Weir finished in 28:56 and Naomi Murzin finished in 29:05 to round out the field of Timber Wolves. Tuttle noted that she ran 38 minutes in the first race of the season on a fast Sanborn course and praised her improved times every race.

The Timber Wolves will be in action on Friday, Oct. 7, at Belmont at 4 p.m.

Alton School District - SAU #72 Alton Central School Child Find

SAU #72 serves the Alton School District. As mandated under the Individuals with Disabilities Act, public schools must provide special education for all children between the ages of 3 and 21 who are determined to be educationally disabled. Additionally, school districts are required to have formal "Child Find" procedures to locate, evaluate and count children who may have disabilities to ensure that eligible children are found, classified and provided needed services. This law applies to all children, including those in nonpublic schools, preschools and hospital settings, as well as children who are wards of the state and homeless children.

If you suspect that a child may have an educationally disabling condition, you are encouraged to contact the school district in which the child resides to discuss your concerns. School personnel will provide you with information on the procedures for making a referral. SAU #72 will hold their fall Child Find on October 12th from 8:30-11:30am at Alton Central School. For additional information, please contact Jennifer Katz-Borin, Director of Special Education SAU #72 at 875-9302.
