Unique concert tour coming soon to a town near you

BY RAYANNE COOMBS
TRIBUNE CORRESPONDENT

On June 15, the Mass Walking Tour kicks off its eighth season, bringing free concerts and daily hikes to towns in and around the Blackstone Valley. Since 2010, co-founders Mark Mandeville and Raianne Richards have organized an annual non-profit bipedal concert tour of Massachusetts in support of arts and culture for towns throughout the state. Each free community concert collaborates with local artists, musicians, educational programs, trail managers and land trust groups to highlight both artistic diversity and recreational land use.

Folk musician, Raianne Richards explains the inspiration behind the annual event she founded with Mark Mandeville "We were trying to find a way to tour without using gasoline (back in 2010 it was over $4/ for a gallon). We had other friends who had done human powered tours by bicycle or canoe, and Mark Mandeville and I both love hiking. Our first hike from Becket to Boston was mostly road walking down Route 9. Our second day out, we performed in a town that had not had a concert in over 20 years! That has been our motivation ever since. There is a need in the small towns to have community events especially centered around the arts. We have now visited over 100 towns and hope to see them all before we are through."

The first area destination for the Mass Walking Tour this year will be the Blackstone Valley. Each day the Tour will highlight walks from the book "Easy Walks in Massachusetts" by Bellingham based author, Marjorie Turner Hollman. The book offers in depth explanations of the terrain, facilities, etc. Richards said "These "easy walks" are certainly less daunting then some our full day hikes and are more inclusive as they are usually under 2 miles with little elevation."

Richards said "We hike from town to town performing free community concerts which feature local artists, musicians, poets, and storytellers. We also encourage the public to join us for the walks too if they would like. We hope to inspire support for the arts and recreational green spaces, encouraging relationships to form between the two communities. When people see how

Cyganiewicz elected to Dudley Board of Selectmen

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DUDLEY — Voters spoke and a new selectman was named during Dudley's annual town election on Monday, June 12 with Kerry Cyganiewicz defeating Gerry DiDonato at the polls.

Cyganiewicz, the current chair of the 'finance committee, claimed 295 of the 483 votes cast throughout the day while DiDonato, the nephew of the late Anthony DiDonato who was Dudley's longest serving selectman, received 179 votes. The race was the only contested seat on the ballot as the two candidates sought to succeed retiring selectman Peter Fox who was recognized at his final Board of Selectman meeting on June 5.

Following the announcement of the results, Cyganiewicz provided a humble response saying he was honored to be chosen by the voters for the position.

"I'm thrilled that my community has selected me to serve them in this position. I just ran my race as if it was any other position regardless, I've come some huge shoes to fill and I'm looking forward to that challenge.

The Great Outdoors

RALPH TRUE

Fishing for seabass and fluke this past week in Narragansett Bay proved to be a very nice day for fishing, and the waters were extremely calm making for an active day catching both species. This writer's largest fluke of the day measured in at 26 inches, it was a real nice doormat. Of course I needed to net the fish myself, as my fishing partner was busy changing line or bait. Numerous other fluke were caught, but all were released but five, as they failed the 19 inch measurement requirement. It is tough to release fluke that measured 18 " inches, while commercial rod & reel anglers can retain 14 " fluke. They were real nice fish. Only one legal seabass was retained, as all others were short of the required 15 " length.

One thing that we noticed on most of the fluke were the sea lice that were attached to them. It was a sure sign that the fish had just arrived within the last couple of days from colder waters. Sea lice were also noticed on the stripers we were catching a week ago in the Providence River. The water was still cold last week, but they sure warmed up these past few days triggering a good bite on most saltwater species.

It sure did not take long for the commercial draggers to move in on the recent arrival of fluke in Narragansett Bay. Draggers were fishing unbelievably close to the beaches of Rhode Island & 100 yards of numerous recreational anglers. We also caught some real nice scup that measured 12 & 13 inches. I have tried eating scup, but they do nothing for me in reference to eating. They sure are fun to catch on fresh water rods.

This past week I attended the 200 Sportsmen's annual spring picnic. Meeting many local sportsmen at the event and enjoying great food sure made it an enjoyable day. There was a woman in her late 80's enjoying her lobster at my table, and she did not need any help from her family. I never acquired a taste for the lobster tomalley, but she ate every part of the lobster. The food and drug administration has a warning out about eating lobster tomalley. Because the tomalley is the pancreas and liver of the lobster, it is said to contain toxins that could be dangerous to your health. With all of the cookouts planned for the summer season, diners should be made aware of the dangers of eating lobster tomalley.

All other parts of the lobster are not considered dangerous to humans, although they can increase a person's uric acid level which is responsible for kidney stones. I know, as I have had numerous attacks of kidney stones that was related to excessive eating of lobster and other forms of shell fish. If you have never had kidney stones you are lucky. If you did suffer a case of kidney stones you will never forget it!!!!

Do not forget the West Hill Dam Fishing Fair this Saturday in Uxbridge, which is all free. Fishing Rods and bait will be available to all participants. Check it out on their web site wwwwesthilldam.

Is Refinancing my Home a Good Idea?

REALTOR'S REPORT

JAMES BLACK

Many people will look at a lower interest rate and just assume that refinancing their home is a good idea. Since mortgage loans are typically amortizing loans where you pay less principal and more interest and then later in the amortization schedule the interest payment is lower and principal is higher. If you have been paying on your loan for several years and now you are paying a much higher principal payment you may be better with your current rate that is higher as every month your principal balance lowers quite a bit. This means your effective interest rate is essentially lower than the current market rate. Even if you were looking to shorten the term on your loan it still may make sense to keep the original loans and pay a larger amount than your minimum every month rather than refinancing. You also need to figure out how many months it will take to pay back the fees you pay when refinancing your home. Make sure to find a mortgage lender you can trust that will look at your scenario and tell you to keep your current loan if it makes the most sense.

The other important factor to keep in mind is if you refinance to another 30 year loan then you restart that schedule and you are now paying very low principal amounts every month. The only time this makes sense is if the rates dropped drastically and you have not been paying on the loan that long or financially you cannot afford you current payments and need to extend them. A great reason to refinance would be to lower your payment by getting rid of PMI if you had an FHA loan where the PMI stays for the life of the loan and now the equity in your home now exceeds 80%.

Many times people will call saying they want to sell their home because their mortgage payment is too high. If you truly don't want to move from your home, then it may make sense to find a loan option that you can afford in your current home first because you may be able to substantially lower your payment.

The point of this article is that deciding whether to refinance your home is not as simple as just seeing the rate is lower and knowing that is a better option. I would consult with a trusted mortgage lender or a trusted Realtor that can guide you to a lender to evaluate your situation to see what is best for you.

Laura Rodriguez of Charlton and Sara Hevy of Auburn with Paige Huie LPN, CHT of Sturbridge. All three were honored by the National Technical Honor Society.

Two outstanding Bay Path RVTHS practical nursing program students will be the newest members of the National Technical Honor Society. NTHS is the acknowledged leader in the recognition of outstanding student achievement in career and technical education. Students must have earned at least a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) to be eligible for membership, and be recommended by faculty without reservations. NTHS members should be good, honest, responsible student-citizens who have made a personal commitment to excellence and who agree to uphold the NTHS Standards of Conduct. NTHS members also adhere to PN graduation competencies, exhibit excellent clinical performance, maintain professional integrity (including attendance) and community involvement (active involvement in student government, civic or service organizations).

This is the second year Bay Path is welcoming members into its chapter of NTHS that was nationally chartered on campus Feb. 25, 2016. Far more than simply an academic honor society, NTHS emphasizes the importance of seven attributes: Skill, Honesty, Service, Responsibility, Scholarship, Citizenship, and Leadership. NTHS membership is the highest honor awarded for excellence in workforce education in America and is considered the benchmark performance and leadership in business and industry. This year's induction ceremony was held May 11 at the Hill Top Restaurant. Inducted that evening ceremony were Sara Hevy of Charlton and Laura Rodriguez of Auburn.

Paige Huie, LPN, CHT of Sturbridge was inducted as honorary member for her contribution to the PN program. Huie is a graduate of Bay Path practical nursing program Class of 2014 and was the recipient of the Clinical Excellence award for that year. She is currently employed as wound care nurse, certified hyperbaric technologist and HBO safety director at Harrington Memorial Hospital.

As the summer arrives...

Some families have already started the annual changes made to welcome in a slower, gentler way of life for a few months. While work must go on, many people find ways to leave just a few moments earlier to make use of daylight, they don't plan weekend appointments, they work with an agenda that cites a bit more free time.

The ones with children are doing triple jumps to plan for childcare, sports, camps, and ways to have time for family time. Vacations together, weekends with plans, time spent together.

Modern families have to plan their family time in a way not precedented in the past. Even the kids have appointment books (on their phone and pads) and must plan around other commitments.

The days when stay-at-home mom just absorbed the kids being home from school all summer, playing nearby with their friends unless the entire family chose to do something together are long gone. That idyllic life may never have been entirely true, but often close. Many of us of a certain age do indeed remember long, lazy days of games, bike riding and friends close to home; homemade frozen Kool-aid popsicles, and chores like weeding the garden.

Organized sports like Little League and soccer leagues were still pretty nebulous, a pick up baseball game was more likely in a vacant lot or the school yard. We did use the library, a lot; because reading was fun, it was entertainment, we didn't have video games in our hands 24/7 we had books.

There were homemade go carts made with washing machine motors, not professional moto-cross tracks. There were rickety bikes we fixed ourselves, the most mechanically inclined kid in the neighborhood was always busy replacing chains and tires; and we rode them without helmets and made our own obstacle courses.

Actually, we didn't need much in the way of obstacle courses, because we used the bikes for transportation all over, our courses were the streets and roads, replete with traffic and pedestrians. We might try to stick to the less busy streets, but if we needed to get somewhere, we walked or used the bike.

It is a thrill to see younger kids outside near our home playing outdoors; it's a quiet street and the bikes, scooters and skateboards are OK as long as they watch for the occasional car. They have spats, but solve them. The boys and girls seem to play together, though often the boys take off in a gang of their own, an age old rite of passage.

The oldest is around 11 or 12; the youngest a tiny three or so. They play in one another's yards, race up and down the street, invent their own games. This bunch of kids will have a different kind of memories than some we know; who seem to have become indoor hermits glued to screens of one sort or another.

We applaud their parents for "allowing" their kids to be kids. We recognize the very real fears of the newer civilization we live in, and not all live in such a safe environment; but parents need to find a way to let their kids have this kind of freedom, even if it's only at a park.

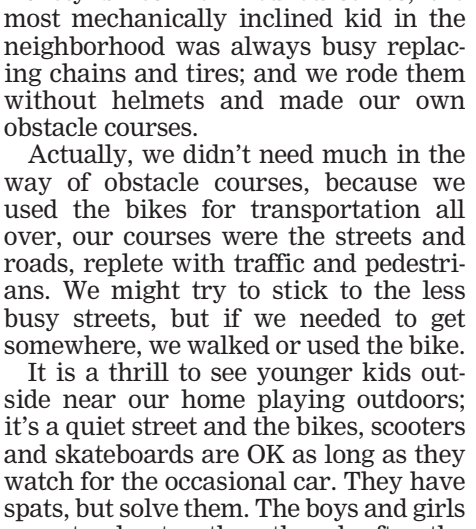
And enjoy the summer.



What to do with family heirlooms

Antiques, Collectibles & Estates

Wayne Tuiskula

A February 12th article in Forbes with a blunt title has made baby boomers and seniors rethink how they will distribute their belongings. The article "Sorry, Nobody Wants Your Parents' Stuff" by Richard Eisenberg was shared across the internet by those who run auction and estate sales and sell antiques.

Other articles similarly expressed what those of us who sell antiques and estate contents have been witnessing. An article appeared in U.S.A. Today prior to the Forbes article and was titled "Boomers often rebuffed when passing down heirlooms." A more recent related article that appeared in the Boston Globe was titled "Baby boomers are downsizing — and the kids won't take the family heirlooms".

Richard Eisenberg called disposing of the contents of his father's home after his passing "the stuff of nightmares." He advised what regular readers of this column have also seen me recommend. Families should discuss distribution of important family heirlooms while family members are well enough to take on the task. Aging parents can do their family a great service by deciding what items they'd like to pass along to family members while they are healthy.

There are a number of benefits to be gained by distributing your personal property instead of willing it to family members. Tax benefits may be gained when gifting items instead of having them become part of your estate. You may want to discuss this further with your attorney or tax preparer. You can make sure that items will go in the right hands when gifted. Sometimes an estate personal representative (formerly known as executor) may not be aware who the items should go to. Taping a note to the bottom of a piece asking that it be distributed to a family member isn't an effective method for legal purposes. If you plan to give it to someone, do it in advance or include it in your will.

There are additional benefits of distributing your personal property instead of willing it. You have the pleasure of seeing someone appreciating the gift you hand them. You can also have the most important discussion with your heirs, whether or not they actually want the items that you plan to give them. All of your prized possessions may not be wanted by your heirs. Younger generations often lead a more simplistic life and may be more mobile, moving for job opportunities more frequently than generations of the past. There is a good chance younger family members aren't going to want sterling silver flatware, Lladro collections and the like.

When you've already distributed which items you'd like to go to family members, you will need to determine what to do with the rest. If you have even one or a few valuable items like antiques, jewelry or coins, auctioning them may be best. Estate sales are a good option if you have a large enough estate. Items like cars, power equipment and tools can help make the sale more attractive to estate sale companies who may not find it profitable to run smaller sales. If there aren't enough items, there are other options such as donating items that can be resold and throwing away what is no longer useful. Despite all of the recent bad press, there are many things that you can do to make handling your personal property much less overwhelming.

We continue to pickup some great items for our August 31st live auction in Worcester. Other sales are also being scheduled. I'll be appraising items for WCCA TV (Worcester Community Cable Access) on June 17th and June 21st at the Residence at Valley farm in Ashland. Timely Tips

Take the Hint

Karen Trainor

The long awaited warm weather is finally here and summer is right around the corner! While springtime promises plenty of outdoor fun in the sun it can also bring with it a new season of everyday hassles. From repelling pesky fleas to growing a better garden, the following "timely tips" are geared toward making life's little challenges a little easier!

Make Fleas Flee: It's flea season and here are some home remedies:

* Are fleas bugging your dog? Field and Stream magazine touts Avon Skin So Soft as a great flea and bug repellent for dogs. The magazine recommends mixing: Five parts water to one part Skin So Soft. As a bonus, brushing the mixture into the pet's fur makes its coat gleam.

*Here's an easy way to turn any inexpensive shampoo into a highly productive flea bath for your dog. Add a few drops of natural eucalyptus oil (food grade, not craft oil) to regular shampoo, lather up the dog and rinse away fleas!

Note: Never use essential oils on cats.

*Or, try (original blue) Dawn dishwashing detergent in a tub of water. Lather up the dog or cat well, let sit for five minutes or so and rinse thoroughly. (I tried this and was amazed at all the dead fleas in the sink!). This treatment is for occasional use only as any shampoo can dry your pet's skin.

*Whip up a great, natural flea spray for dogs by mixing equal parts apple cider vinegar and water in a spray bottle. Spritz directly on fur and rub in for maximum benefits.

Gardening season has arrived! Read on for some tips and tricks from green thumb sources:

Want the secret to growing great tomatoes? Blue Ribbon tomato growers reveal planting deep is the golden rule to successful tomato plants! Bury a tomato plant's stem and the stem will sprout new roots that help the plant grow sturdy and tall quickly!

***

How does your garden grow? With a little help from your garden tools! Keep them clean with a five gallon bucket of coarse sand mixed with a quart of clean motor oil in the garage. After using spades and shovels push the metal end in the sand mixture and wipe dry. The sand will knock off the dirt and the oil will prevent rusting!

***

Do pesky insects invade your garden each year? Here's how to banish bugs the natural way! Aluminum foil "foils" aphids: Use a tin foil mulch around the base of plants. The reflection drives insects away. Deter cabbage worms with a sprinkle of flour, and slay a slug with a dose of table salt.

***

If visions of planning a lush garden have taken their toll on your trusty old house plants, try this tip: Just stir together one package of granular dry yeast and one quart of warm water. Mix it well and water plants with the elixir monthly to perk up your plants!

***

Placement is important when growing squash and melons. Because they are pollinated by bees, avoid planting them near other flowering plants, which can compete for bee pollinators.

***

Plant a chrysanthemum plant in the vegetable garden. Because the flower wilts before other plants when water is needed, it'll act as a red flag to tell you to irrigate. Cucumber and squash plants can also act as indicators because they are the first to droop during a dry spell.

***

Going on vacation? Keep house plants watered for up to a month by watering well placing pot and all in a clear plastic bag. Tie it top and bottom and place in northern light. When you're back, untie the top and let the plant adjust to room air for a day or two before removing the plastic completely.

Don't let your investments take a "vacation"

Financial Focus

Dennis Antonopoulos

It's summer again – time for many of us to take a break and possibly hit the open road. But even if you go on vacation, you won't want your investments to do the same – in summertime or any other season. How can you help make sure your portfolio continues to work hard for you all year long?

Here are a few suggestions:

Avoid owning too many "low growth" investments. As you know, different investments have different characteristics and can help you in different ways. For example, you typically own stocks because you want them to grow in value so that you can eventually sell them for a profit. Other investments, such as certificates of deposit (CDs), provide you with a regular source of income and stability of principal – two valuable contributions to your portfolio. However, investments like CDs don't offer much in the way of growth. So if you own too many of them, you might be slowing your progress toward your important financial goals, such as a comfortable retirement. You can maximize the productivity of your portfolio by owning a variety of investments – domestic stocks, international stocks, corporate bonds, U.S. Treasury securities, CDs and more. How much of each investment should you own? The answer depends on a variety of factors, including your age, income, risk tolerance, family situation and specific objectives. Over time, your ideal investment mix may change, but you'll likely need at least some growth potential at every stage of your life.

Don't let your portfolio go "unsupervised." Your investment portfolio can be subject to "drift" if left alone for extended time periods. In fact, without your making any moves at all, your portfolio can move in directions that may not be favorable to you. Suppose you think your holdings should be made up of 70% stocks, but due to strong gains, your stocks now make up 80% of your portfolio. This development could lead to a risk level that feels uncomfortably high to you. That's why you should review your portfolio at least once a year, possibly with the help of a financial professional, to check your progress and make adjustments as needed.

Don't stop at the nearest "resting place." Some people hope that if they can get that one "winner," they will triumph in the investment arena. But the ability to "get rich quick" is much more of a myth than a reality. True investment success typically requires patience, persistence and the resilience to continue investing even during market downturns.

In other words, investing is a long-term endeavor, and you need a portfolio that reflects this reality. The investment moves you make today may pay off for you decades from now. You need to establish your goals and keep them constantly in mind as you invest. And you will never really reach the end of your investment journey, because you'll need to make choices and manage your portfolio throughout your retirement years.

Hopefully, you will enjoy a pleasant vacation sometime this summer. But your investment portfolio shouldn't take time off.

Want to serve up the "catch of the day?" Here's a tip to serve up perfect fish every time: Store fresh fish in the refrigerator between self-sealing plastic bags filled with ice cubes. This will keep it from getting soggy and ensure a fabulous fish feast. And if you need to remove fish odors from a pan, just rinse the pan with vinegar while it is still hot.

Sleeping under the stars this season? To keep warm, make sure your sleeping bag fits properly. Too big and you'll lose heat, too small and insulation compresses, compromising the warmth factor. And before turning in, indulge! A high calorie treat like hot cocoa will give your body fuel to burn and keep you warm through the night.

Select the best tomatoes for your garden and table

Garden Moments

MELINDA MYERS

Sliced, sauced, or cooked in your favorite recipe; tomatoes are a favorite and versatile vegetable. What's more, they taste best when grown and harvested from your own garden or container.

Ensure the best flavor and greatest results by selecting the most disease-resistant varieties and growing your tomatoes in full sun and moist, well-drained soil.

Select plants with the growth habit that works best with your garden space and gardening style. Determinate tomatoes are perfect for small-space gardens and containers. They grow to a certain height, stop growing, and produce their fruit over a relatively short timeframe. Indeterminate tomatoes continue to grow throughout the season, producing flowers and fruit until frost kills the plant or you prune off the growing tip found at the end of the main stem(s). Stake or tower the plants to save space, reduce disease and insect problems, and make harvesting more convenient.

Further narrow down your selection and grow varieties best suited to the intended use. Plant tags often provide recommendations. Or, save time and do a bit of research before visiting the garden center. The Bonnie Plant Tomato Chooser (bonnieplants.com/tomatoes/choose-your-tomato) can help you select the best tomato for your growing conditions and the intended use.

Bite-sized tomatoes are great for salads, relish trays, and snacking. Red Robin and Sweet 'n Neat produce clusters of red cherry tomatoes on compact plants. Grow them in containers or even a window box.

Tumbling Tom Red and Tumbling Tom Yellow cherry tomatoes are compact, cascading plants that create an attractive edible display in tall containers, hanging baskets, or window boxes.

Grow the explosively sweet Sun Gold and Sun Sugar cherry tomatoes. They're the candy of the garden and will get even your most reluctant family members, young and old, to eat their tomatoes. Stake or cage these tall plants and, if space is limited, grow them in a 24-inch-diameter pot.

Paste and sauce tomatoes have meatier fruit, making them perfect for sauces, soups, and preserving. Roma is the traditional favorite. The egg-shaped fruit has thick walls and few seeds. Use them during the growing season for sauces, chop and add them to an omelet, or can and freeze them for future use.

Expand your options with San Marzano heirloom paste tomato. Popular with gourmet and home chefs, the sweet, complex flavor makes a fabulous sauce. Chop a few and add them to salads, or slice and top your favorite sandwich. You'll enjoy the flavor and versatility of this tomato.

Grow a few slicing tomatoes. Most gardeners look for large, juicy tomatoes to enjoy on their sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, and salads. Look for varieties that are suited to the growing conditions. Solar Flare and Creole are heat-tolerant and keep producing despite high summer temperatures. Start picking tomatoes as soon as 65 days after planting by growing short-season varieties like Early Girl and New Girl tomatoes.

An All-America Selections winner, Celebrity, has great disease resistance and is an excellent all-around tomato. Grow this determinate tomato in a cage, or stake the plant to save space.

Heirloom varieties have been grown for more than 50 years and have maintained their original traits and popularity. Cherokee Purple's rich flavor rates high in taste tests. The dusky pink fruit with deep red interior looks as beautiful as it tastes. Add some fun and sweet flavor with Mr. Stripey. The irregular striping of the red and yellow beefsteak-type fruit make this a popular choice.

hard we are willing to work (and walk) to put on an event in their town, we hope they will pick up where we have left off, organizing community events of their own design."

Richards went on to say, "This year's walk has 15 performance stops. 10 throughout the Blackstone Valley and 5 along towns in Henry David Thoreau's 'A Walk to Wachusett'. We try to select venues that are community oriented such as libraries, churches and outdoor spaces. We want everyone to feel welcome and to enjoy themselves."

The tour will kick-off on June 15th, in Webster, at Memorial Beach, with a free concert from 6-8PM.

Mark Mandeville and Raianne Richards will be performing with musicians, Amy Alvey, Mark Kilianski and Vito Caccavelli, who will perform with the duo every night. Richards added "Our group sings original songs as well as folk and bluegrass selections which deal with themes of walking and community. During the Thoreau hike we will also be joined by Kristen Sykes. Other performers may perform for just one night or hike a long for a few days."

Since all performances are free to the public, Richards explained, "Our funding primarily comes from Local Cultural Council Grants. This program is an extension of the Massachusetts Cultural Council Program and is available to each town for arts events and projects. This year we are so grateful to have received funding from cultural councils in the following towns: Webster, Douglas, Uxbridge, Upton, Hopedale, Milford, Medway, Bellingham and Franklin. The Thoreau portion of the walk was funded by Freedoms Way National Heritage Area."

Richards explained, "We have learned a lot about organizing the events and getting the word out. It takes about one year to plan, so once we are finished walking this year we will get right to work on the 2018 route. Because we visit almost entirely new towns each year, we basically have to completely start over with the outreach for support from our venues, recreational areas, local artists etc."

The second leg of the Mass Walking Tour, the Thoreau portion of the hike, is part of the bicentennial celebration for Henry David Thoreau and takes the group along a proposed route for The Thoreau Trail. Richards explained, "In 1842, Henry David Thoreau traveled from Concord to the summit of Mount Wachusett in Princeton, a journey which he recorded in the essay, A Walk to Wachusett. Engaging with communities and partners throughout the region, the Freedom's Way National Heritage Area is working to create a recreational trail as an interpretive walking experience in the spirit of Thoreau's essay. Our concerts are the signature event for the Thoreau Trail project which launched in 2017 as a Thoreau Bicentennial legacy project with support from the National Park Service."

The Mass Walking Tour will be visiting the following towns, performing nightly throughout the month of June: Webster, Douglas, Uxbridge, Upton, Hopedale, Milford, Medway, Bellingham, Franklin, and Blackstone. For specific venues visit www.masswalkingtour.org.

I've worked with Peter Fox for the past sic years and I've learned a lot from him. He's been a great selectman," Cyganiewicz said adding that he hopes to do the voters proud whether they voted for him or not on election day.

DiDonato took defeat in stride with his head held high. With a family legacy on his back, DiDonato didn't deny he would run for public office again in the future, but said he enjoyed the experience and was happy to receive the support he did in his first go at a selectman seat.

"It was a hard race. Kerry did good and I guess you win some, you lose some. I'm proud of the votes I got. I'm happy for my first time out. I'll hold my head up and away we go," DiDonato said.

Several uncontested candidates took positions in the town as well including Christopher Starczewski for town moderator, Pauline Aucoin for the Dudley-Charlton Regional School Committee, Alfred Reich Jr. for the Southern Worcester County Regional Vocational School District, J. Theodore Zajowski for the Board of Health, Nora Cavic and Cathleen Ann Carmignani for Library Trustees, and Guy Horne Jr. for the Planning Board. A second Planning Board seat, the Water and Sewer Commissioner, and the town assessor seat were all decided to write-in votes.

Ashton currently is in middle school and would like to attend college in the future. He does well academically and benefits from some extra support in his current placement and at school. Ashton's social worker believes he would do best in a family that likes to spend time together and enjoys playing games. A family that encourages and promotes family time would be the best match for Ashton.

Legally freed for adoption, Ashton has shared he is seeking a two dad home where he could be the youngest or only child. He has an older brother he would like to continue to visit with as well as a large extended family and friends who are a huge support for him and are visiting resources. A family that could start out visiting with Ashton at this current placement would be a good match for him. A family that can provide a nurturing environment to allow Ashton to grow and thrive would be the best match.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-54-ADOPT (617-542-3678) or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Tower's triple helps Rockets beat Beavers for district championship

The Auburn High seniors celebrate with the Central Mass. Division 3 baseball tournament championship trophy.

WORCESTER — Stepping into the batter's box with his team tied at 1-1 with Blackstone Valley Tech, and with two outs in the bottom of the fifth inning — and the Central Mass. Division 3 baseball tournament title potentially on the line — Auburn High's Josh Tower was hoping to keep the rally going.

"I was just going in there with the mindset to continue the inning," said Tower.

From there, reliever Mike Breen pitched two flawless innings as the second seeded Rockets flooded Hanover Insurance Park on the campus of the College of the Holy Cross on Saturday, June 10, after winning their sixth district title in 10 years, 2-1.

"I'm proud of these guys," said Auburn head coach Eric Swedberg. "The way they practice and how seriously they take this, they all take responsibility."

The Rockets (19-4) next played and beat Western Mass. champion Wahconah Regional in the state semifinals, 13-6, to advance to the state championship game versus Dover-Sherborn Regional. That game is scheduled for Saturday, June 17 at Holy Cross, with a time to be determined after this paper's deadline. Please visit the MIAA website (www.miaa.net) for the start time and next week's Auburn News to read about the Rockets' drive for the state title.

"That's what you'd expect in a district final, back and forth. We had chances to make a few plays, had some guys on, we just couldn't punch in the key hit," said first-year Valley Tech head coach John Burke, whose team put up a better fight compared to their regular season meeting with Auburn, a 9-4 setback.

The Rockets struck first when they scored an unearned run in the bottom of the third inning off the Beavers' Steve Earle (complete game seven-hitter, one earned run, four strikeouts, one walk, one hit batter). Saucier singled and was bunted over to second base by Breen. Tower then struck out, but the ball hit the dirt. So Valley Tech catcher Ty Almeida threw over to first base to record the out. A heady Saucier took off for third base and the coinciding throw was high. The error allowed Saucier to head home for the run.

But the Beavers tied the score in the top of the fifth off Auburn starter Matt Palmer (five innings, one earned run, four hits, two strikeouts, three walks). Justin Metcalf, BVT's No. 9 hitter, launched a triple to deep center field that just got past the outstretched reach of Saucier. Andrew Lavergne then hit a fly ball to right field that was plenty deep enough to plate Metcalf for the equalizer.

The Rockets had the answer, however, in the home half of the fifth. Collin Hines dropped in a single and Saucier (2 for 3) followed with a bunt single. And even though Hines was forced into a pickle between second and third base and was tagged out, Tower (2 for 3) followed with the heroics.

"Any kid that's going to go play college ball, he's bound to do something like that," said Swedberg of the Franklin Pierce University bound Tower.

Palmer — battling arm soreness for most of the season — was then in line for the victory, which Breen made sure would happen.

"With the whole throwing sidearm, a lot of pain comes with it," explained Palmer. "But at the end of the season I tried to step it up and today I knew I had to come in and do what I had to do."

Breen wanted to earn the save for Palmer and the rest of his teammates.

"I just tried to come in and win it for my team," said Breen. "I was ready, probably the most ready I've been all season."

Tower helped Breen record the first out of the seventh inning with a nice play at second base. He cleanly grabbed the hot shot off the bat of Nate Charron and threw a strike over to first.

"To start the top of the seventh with a play like that, it really gives some momentum," said Swedberg.

Breen then induced another groundout and a final strikeout on a curveball to pitch two perfect innings and move the Rockets on.

"Running off the bench when we won the adrenaline is so high and it's the best feeling ever," said Palmer.

"After not winning last year, it's a great feeling," added Tower, as the Rockets lost a 1-0 game to Groton-Dunstable Regional in the district final in 2016. "It's great to celebrate with this group. We get to play another week with the family."

Burke, meanwhile, was proud of his senior group that helped the Beavers reached the district final for the first time in school history. They had lost in the semifinal round in three of the last six years.

"They helped elevate the program," he said. "It's a credit to those guys. Getting here is a huge accomplishment, we had a great year."

And Burke believes that Valley Tech baseball could be back at Holy Cross next spring, playing for another district championship.

"We're bringing back tons of guys next year, so we expect to be back again," he concluded.

MILFORD — The No. 2 seeded Auburn High varsity baseball team made the most of the few opportunities they had, as the Rockets will return to the Central Mass. Division 3 district title game for the third straight year after capturing a 3-2 victory in the semifinal round over No. 6 Hudson High (9-14) at Fino Field on Wednesday, June 7. Auburn (18-4) will play No. 4 Blackstone Valley Tech (19-4) for the championship.

Both sides got runners on base in the first inning but couldn't plate a run, as the game stayed scoreless through the opening frame. But the Rockets' chance was a strong one, as Brian Sarkisian drilled a line drive up the middle with runners on first and second base. The Hudson second baseman made a diving catch, though, and doubled-off a runner to prevent an early deficit.

But Auburn took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the second. Luke Matthews reached on an error to begin the inning before Colin McKeon launched a double to deep right-center to plate the first run of the day. Next, Mike Collins brought McKeon over to third base on a sacrifice fly, and he crossed home plate on one of the Hawks' three errors.

"I was just super pumped up," said McKeon. "We've been hitting all week and knew this day was coming. If you get that first run, it just brings the other team down."

Swedberg agreed that getting the early lead was crucial.

"Getting control like that early on and Mike going out and throwing a good top half of the inning after that is a momentum changer, and you can sense it," said Swedberg.

The game continued to move on with a fast pace, as both sides got no more than four at-bats through each of the next two frames, as Auburn starter Mike Breen was on his game. Then, in the bottom of the fifth, Josh Tower crushed the game-winning RBI double to center field to plate Steve Saucier and give Auburn a 3-0 cushion.

"It was crazy — that was a big play and kind of turned the tide," said Tower, who's headed to Franklin Pierce Unversity in the fall to play baseball with his older brother, Zach. "Playing with him will be fun, but this is the most important thing in my life right now."

Breen, a freshman, earned the win, but he found trouble in the top of the sixth inning, as the Hawks trimmed the deficit down to one run. Hudson did its damage on three hits.

Palmer had two strikeouts, retiring five of the final six Hudson batters. He mainly played the role of a starter this year, but had no problem entering the bump as a reliever.

"It was good to come in after such a good start by our freshman," mentioned Palmer. "The four-seem fastball worked for me. Every time you come in, it's a different game and situation."

Undefeated Oakmont bounces Rockets from district tournament

These, possibly, were two contributing factors in Auburn High's 9-4 loss to top-seeded and undefeated Oakmont Regional in the Central Mass. Division 2 softball tournament semifinal between the two teams.

After Spartan pitcher Paige Toothaker struck out all three Rockets she faced in the top of the first inning, Oakmont erupted for five runs in the bottom of the frame on three hits, a sacrifice bunt and a costly Auburn error that allowed three runs to score.

"A lot of these kids are on varsity for the first time, so I think it was a matter of nerves and maybe the excitement of playing on a big stage like this," Auburn head coach Kim Danish said about the game, which was played under the lights at Worcester State University's Rockwood Field on June 7.

"They definitely went out there and tried their best, but we just didn't execute," Danish said of her team. "It's tough when you dig yourself a 5-0 hole. But, you live and learn. We've got a lot of kids returning, so we'll come back and work harder."

Oakmont (22-0) sent nine girls to the plate in the bottom of the first and five of the first six scored. The big blow in the inning came with runners on first and second and the Spartans ahead, 1-0. Oakmont head coach Randy Jepson gave the bunt sign to No. 4 hitter Hannah Jensen.

Jensen laid down a textbook sacrifice bunt, which was fielded by Rockets' pitcher Julia Handfield. Handfield came up with the ball cleanly, but her throw to first sailed over the head of Kayley Markvenas and rolled all the way to the right-field corner. By the time the ball got back to the infield, Erika Hall, Brihanna Barry and Jensen had all scored to give the Spartans a 4-0 lead.

Oakmont extended its lead to 5-0 later in the inning when Toothaker (two hits) singled and then came in to score on a triple to right field off the bat of Cassidy Driscoll (four hits, two RBIs).

The Spartans pushed their lead to 7-0 in the bottom of the third inning and 8-0 in the fourth.

Auburn, the defending Central Mass. Division 2 champion, got on the scoreboard in the sixth inning. Makena Mulcahy led off with a double to left field, went to third on a groundout to third by Jess Chenard and scored on a single to left by Colleen Fellows (three hits) to make it 8-1.

The Spartans pushed their lead back to eight runs in the bottom of the sixth. With one out Rachel Sinclair reached on an Auburn error and was lifted in favor of courtesy runner Jazmyne Concannon. With two outs Concannon scored to make it 9-1, coming home from second on an RBI single by Driscoll.

Auburn (14-8) then scored three more times in the top of the seventh inning to make things interesting.

Kileigh Hynes opened the frame with a bunt single and then scored to make it 9-2 on a one-out RBI double to left-center by Handfield. Jaycie Opuda, who entered the game as a courtesy runner for Handfield, then scored to make it 9-3 when Tyler Rano reached base on an Oakmont error. Rano was then replaced by courtesy runner Ellie Palumbo, who scored to make it 9-4 on a two-out RBI single to center off the bat of Chenard before the Rockets' season came to a close.

"I was pleased with the way we settled down after the first inning," Danish said. "They didn't give up, they didn't hang their heads. It would have been easy for them to think the game was over in the first inning, but they didn't. We had a runner on base in every inning after that.

"Finally, late in the game, down 8-0, when it would have been easy to just take our three outs and go home, we scored one in the sixth and three in the seventh," Danish added. "You can't ask for much more as a coach than the fight and the heart they showed at that point in the game."

Oakmont then suffered its first loss of the season in the district championship game versus No. 3 Grafton High, 7-0.

News Brief

Music and muskets on Sturbridge Common June 24

STURBRIDGE — On Saturday, June 24, the Sturbridge Colonial Militia will re-enact the muster of local patriot forces on the town Common in response to the news of the British expedition to Lexington and Concord in April, 1775. The program of drill, musket firing, and historical commentary begins at 6:30 p.m. Visitors are most welcome to visit the Revolutionary-era encampment on the Common from 4 p.m., followed by a concert of period music at 6 p.m. by the Yalesville (CT) Senior Fife and Drum Corps. These events are presented with the generous support of the Sturbridge Tourist Association.

According to veteran re-enactor Douglas Quigley, who portrays Captain Timothy Parker, this is the 21st consecutive year the "new" Sturbridge Colonial Militia has commemorated its ancestor's gathering on the Common. The historical background for the event is based on the continuing research of Sturbridge historian Brian Burns. See Sturbridge Colonial Militia on Facebook for updates and further details.

Why can't you buy our windows from stores or contractors?
We take great pride in custom-building our windows, so we won't let just anyone sell or install them. We take care of the entire process: only we sell, build, install and warrant our windows.

How much stronger is our window material compared to vinyl?

How are we able to install windows in just one day?
Our teams of installers are exceptionally trained, tested, and skilled. This is why most installations—including the cleanup—are completed in just one day.

Create A Great Guacamole Dip

(NAPS)

Green Goddess Guacamole
With Harvest Stone® Organic Crackers

Prep Time: 15 minutes
Total Time: 20 minutes
Serves: 4

2 ripe avocados, peeled and pitted
1/4 cup light sour cream
2 Tbsp lime juice
2 Tbsp finely chopped shallot
2 Tbsp each finely chopped fresh parsley and cilantro
1 Tbsp finely chopped fresh chives
2 tsp finely chopped fresh tarragon
1 small jalapeño pepper, seeded and diced (optional)
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 tsp each salt and pepper
1/4 tsp ground cumin
1 pkg (3.54 oz) Harvest Stone® Original Crackers

Green Goddess Guacamole makes a great, wholesome dip with Harvest Stone® organic whole grain crackers.

Mash together avocados, sour cream and lime juice until smooth. Stir in shallot, parsley, cilantro, chives, tarragon, jalapeño, garlic, salt, pepper and cumin until blended. Transfer to serving dish or bowl; serve with crackers for dipping.

Tips

• Substitute Greek yogurt for light sour cream if desired.
• Substitute basil for any of the herbs if desired.

Master magical marinades

CAPTION: With their mix of acidic ingredients and spices, marinades add flavor and may even pack some nutritional punch.

Grilled foods boast inviting flavors that put many diners on the lookout for second helpings. Quite often the magic behind grilled meals lies in the marinade used to give foods that flavorful kick.

Marinades can be used to enhance the flavor of meats, vegetables and poultry. While marinades add flavor, they also may be responsible for some other benefits in grilled foods.

MARINADES ADD FLAVOR

Defined as a savory acidic sauce in which food is soaked to enrich its flavor, marinades help break down fiber and tenderize certain foods. The base of many marinades include vinegar, lemon juice or wine, and marinades can be enhanced with spices, oil and herbs.

It's important not to let foods sit in marinades for too long, as any alcohol, acid or salt in the mixture can chemically "cook" the food in a process known as "denaturing." Adhere to timing recommendations when using store-bought marinades, and keep such guidelines in mind when using homemade marinades as well. Many may tell you to let foods sit no longer than four hours. Marinades with citrus juices may require even less time for flavor to penetrate.

The timing of marinade use also will depend on the foods being marinated. Delicate items, such as seafood, may change with regard to texture or color in a matter of minutes.

It's important to always marinate foods in the refrigerator. Food left sitting out on a counter — even when it's in a marinade — invites the growth of bacteria. If a recipe calls for marinating at room temperature, continue to marinate in the refrigerator, but extend the length of time you marinate. This helps to prevent foodborne illnesses.

When marinating, use plastic or glass containers so the marinade does not cause a chemical reaction, which may occur if you marinate foods in metal containers. Discard all marinades for raw meats and poultry when the time comes to cook the foods, as leftover marinades may contain bacteria that makes them unsafe to reuse on other foods.

THE NUTRITIONAL BENEFITS OF MARINATING

In addition to flavor, marinades may improve the nutritional value of grilled foods. In 2008, researchers at Kansas State University discovered that marinating meat in antioxidant-rich spice blends can reduce the risk of forming heterocyclic amines, or HCAs, by more than 80 percent. HCAs are harmful, cancer-causing compounds that form when food chars over an open flame at high temperatures. Marinades must be rich in spices to have any HCA-busting properties.

Marinades are a secret weapon in the creation of tasty, tender and healthy foods. They come in quite handy when grilling, and add an extra dose of flavor when cooking over high heat.

Maximize your farmer's market trip

Community-based farmer's markets can introduce shoppers to an array of foods they may otherwise never experience. Farmer's markets are great places to find fresh, locally grown foods, and many market customers are happy to know they're benefitting both the environment and local businesses with every dime they spend.

Farmer's markets can range from the very large to the relatively small, and first-time visitors may not know where to begin. The following are a handful of ways to maximize your visit to farmer's markets of all sizes.

• Take time to explore. Farmer's markets tend to have many of the same fruits and vegetables you can find at the local chain grocery store, but farmer's markets also are known for offering more than what you may find in the produce aisle. Take time to explore the market and you may just find foods you typically only find at your favorite restaurant. Exploring also may introduce you to new foods you may otherwise never have tried.

• Consider the timing of your visit. The popularity of farmer's markets has increased dramatically as more and more people embrace the concept of buying locally grown foods. While that's great news for the planet and local farmers, shoppers should keep that in mind when planning their visits. If you love trying new foods, arrive early to the farmer's market before the more unique offerings have been snapped up. Foods that have small yet devoted followings may not be available in abundance, and you may end up leaving empty-handed if you arrive late. If it's a bargain you want, then visit later in the day when farmers with substantial remaining inventory may be more inclined to lower their prices.

• Know your seasons. Some fruits and vegetables are better at certain times of the year than others. Freshness draws many people to farmer's markets, and foods that are in-season are more likely to have that unforgettable freshness than those that are out of season or nearing the end of their season. Knowing the seasons is important for budget-conscious shoppers as well. If you're shopping on a budget, purchasing foods while they're in-season may save you some money, and you can always stock up on your other favorites later on when it's their turn to be in-season.

• Speak with the sellers. First-time farmer's market shoppers may feel like they're lost in the woods while everyone else seems to know exactly what they want and where to get it. If you find the farmer's market somewhat intimidating, speak with the sellers. Shopping at the local farmer's market tends to be more intimate than shopping at the chain grocery store, and many sellers would be happy to offer you some tips and make some suggestions based on the meals you like.

How to keep chicken from sticking to your grill

According to the grill manufacturer Weber, the keys to grilling chicken are temperature and time. But even cooks who have paid close attention to the temperature of their grills and the time their chicken spends over a hot flame have no doubt fallen victim to chicken that sticks to the grill. This can affect the quality of a meal and make post-grilling cleanup that much more difficult. To prevent sticking, Weber advises cooks to put a light coating of olive oil and seasoning directly on the chicken prior to putting it on the grill. Once the chicken has been dressed, make sure the grill temperature remains around 425 F to 450 F. Chicken will stick to a grill if the temperature is too high, so pay close attention to the temperature at all times. Once the chicken has been placed on the grill, allow each side to cook for roughly 4.5 minutes. If the chicken is difficult to flip or remove from the grill, close the lid and allow it to cook for one additional minute.
