Interim Superintendent Kristine Nash
'I'm not going to just maintain the status quo'

Nash discusses her role as interim

BY GUS STEEVES
STAFF WRITER

OXFORD – To interim Superintendent Kristine Nash, a guiding phrase for however long she'll be in Oxford is "leadership and stability."

"I want to make sure the transition is as seamless as possible," she said. "We've got to keep moving in a direction; I'm not going to just maintain the status quo."

On June 30, the School Committee unanimously chose Nash over three other candidates to fill the interim job for up to one year while they search for a permanent superintendent. It's not Nash's first stint as an interim; she filled that role for the Freetown-

Lakeville district in the 2013-4 school year.

Like most interims, she's officially retired from being a full-time superintendent, serving six years in Hanover until 2012 to cap off more than 40 years in public education. For the first 25 of them, Nash was an English teacher at the middle and high school levels.

"I was kind of a late bloomer" when it came to administration, although she's long had a "passion" for curriculum, she said. While doing graduate study, she hit upon the idea of seeking administrative licensure and "did it before I had a chance to really think about it. I decided I might be crazy enough to want to move up."

Audit finds 'old news' issues in 2015 school accounts

BY GUS STEEVES
STAFF WRITER

OXFORD – Selectmen got a little bad news Wednesday, as auditors from KPMG cited the schools for several "material weaknesses" in handling special education and Title I grants.

But everyone involved also noted it was relatively "old news," since Brock Romano and Stephanie Gallagher were reviewing records from fiscal 2015 and 2016. Romano admitted "2015 was atypical" because of difficulty speaking to management members due to the turnover in the district that year.

"The town was not materially complying with grant requirements," Gallagher said. "We did have material weaknesses and significant control deficiencies."

Those generally came in the form of lack of documents on file certifying that staff were spending 100 percent of their time on duties related to the grants in question, lack of formal appointment letters for eight of the 14 employees

Selectmen approve new code of conduct

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER – The Board of Selectmen has approved a Code of Conduct Policy that will serve as a written document solidifying the expectations of professionalism by members of the board in the foreseeable future and is being touted as the baseline for a new town-wide policy yet to come.

Selectman Randy Becker was the originator of the document, which was explored in draft form at past meetings, and said that he has heard inquiries into why he believes the policy to be appropriate.

"I was asked recently why I was bringing this up. It's something that I had seen. I'm a trustee at a tennis club in Holden and I was looking at their website and looking at their hours of operations and I happened to come across the Holden selectmen code of conduct and I read through it and I thought it was a great thing to have," Becker said. "I thought from the standpoint of there's no better place to start than at the top. We are the selectmen for the town and I think we set the tone."

The code of conduct serves as an established set of expectations for selectmen to follow during meetings as professional and elected representatives of the town. The key to the policy is finding a balance between speaking their mind and doing so in a respectful and professional manner, keeping emotions in check when having more controversial or divisive discussions in a public forum.

Selectman Robert Miller was the only other selectman to speak in detail on the document when it was presented on July 10 and said he supported it but feels that it needs to apply to more than just selectmen. He was one of several officials who agreed such a policy should also be applied town-wide to include town employees.

Homegrown educators joining D-C school district

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — The staff list for the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District's upcoming school year is starting to take shape with Superintendent Greg Desto saying students and parents can expect many new faces in the hallways this fall.

Desto provided an update on the hiring process during the July 12 meeting of the Dudley-Charlton Regional School Committee, explaining that not every position has been filled but many of those filled utilizing educators who are products of the district's own education system.

"There's been a lot of activity this year. Currently we have 16 new faces to the district, not including administration. That includes seven Shepherd Hill graduates," Desto told school committee members. "It's nice to be able to do that, to have our community educating the future educators of our community."

With the school district continuing to examine cost savings with the threat of a potential extensive override request looming next year, Desto hinted that there is the possibility that the hiring process could create some cost savings for Dudley and Charlton. While he made sure not to outright promise any savings, Desto explained that school administrators have worked hard to keep employment spending within reasons although the district won't sacrifice substance for savings.

"Our principals have been doing an incredible job of staying on top of it and wherever possible we've attempted to ensure financial savings and I believe we'll come out ahead on this, possibly significantly so," Desto said. "I hold off on saying that for certain because if all things are equal or close to equal we can go in that direction, but we have to hire the best people for the kids and we've always done that."

Desto said that the district is still working on hiring some support staff within the district, but ensured committee members that the "lion's share" of the hiring work has been done for the new school year. Last month the district announced a slew of new appointments, including school administrators, and including at least one Shepherd Hill and Nichols College graduate.

Desto concluded employing members of the school committee to seek any information on the hiring from his office as needed. As of July 19 positions still listed on the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District website are a math teacher in Charlton Middle School, a pair of science-based secondary education teachers as Shepherd Hill Regional High School, a behavior specialist for the district, a middle school teacher at Dudley Middle School, and a school psychologist and counselor for the Mason Road School in Dudley.

Shepherd Hill psychologist loses life after crash in Ware

BY JASON BLEAU
TIME CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY – A death in Ware on Thursday, July 20 has left an impact on the local community after the victim was identified as a long-time employee of the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District.

Shepherd Hill Regional High School psychologist Steven Peters was pronounced dead after an accident in Ware involving a trash truck that left the roadway and rode up an embankment.

Reports from emergency responders and police from the scene indicate that the accident occurred on Church Street in Ware at around 9:30 a.m. on July 20. The trash truck reportedly left the roadway for an unknown reason, striking Peters who was doing yard-work at a home he partially owns to prepare it for a new tenant.

The driver of the truck was transported to a hospital for non-life-threatening wounds, however Peters did not survive and the exact cause of the accident remained under investigation as of this report.

The loss has proven to be a tough one for the school district as Peters has been a staple of the district since he first joined the schools in 1990. Over the course of his 27-year career in the district he has worked with countless students and staff members who took to social media after learning of his passing to pay their respects, many calling him a "great man" who was "perfect for the career he chose".

Superintendent Gregg Desto offered his own words of grief and respect after learning of Peters' passing, posting a letter to the school district website

Veteran celebrates 103 birthdays

BLOOMFIELD CT – Ann Sullivan a Seabury Community resident since 2014 and a native of Webster, celebrated her 103rd birthday May 26. In addition to this major milestone, Sullivan also received several special recognitions in honor of her extensive military service career.

Rep. John Larson of Connecticut was among the dignitaries present for the event, which also included John Schmidt, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Sean Connolly, commissioner of Connecticut Department of Veterans Affairs. Among the accolades were a flag and citation from the state, a citation from Gov. Charlie Baker of Massachusetts, a citation from the commander-in-chief of the VFW on behalf of the 1.7 million members of that organization and its auxiliary and a presentation of the state of Connecticut Wartime Service medal.

Rep. Larson presented a letter from the US Department of Veterans Affairs recognizing Sullivan’s service on the national level.

During World War II, Sullivan served for the US Army medical corps in the China-Burma-India Theater with the 48th Evacuation Hospital from Rhode Island Hospital, Providence. She served in Burma where her patients — Merrill’s Marauders among them — were American and Chinese troops. She also nursed men who were injured or wounded while building the Ledo Road in Ledo Assam, India; as well as Army Air Corps personnel who flew supplies over “The Hump.”

For a time se served with Maj. Gordon S. Seagrave, the “Burma Surgeon,” caring for the sick and wounded members of Lt. Gen. ‘Vinegar Joe’ Stilwell’s forces.

In addition, Sullivan was assigned to Camp Edwards in the Cushing Army Hospital in Massachusetts, where she acted as head nurse supervisor for the paraplegic service. She was also station at the 351st General Hospital of Boston, where she was the chief nurse of the reserve unit.

Following the war, she remained in the Army Reserve, and retired a full colonel.

Laurie Kraus, director of therapeutic recreation of skilled nursing at Seabury says of Sullivan, or Anna as she is known, “Anna always has a genuine smile to give, a kind word to say and patience like a saint. I cannot think of a more deserving opportunity to thank her for all her years and dedication for serving our country than on her 103rd birthday.”

Kraus was instrumental in arranging the day.

“Honoring her in a way she so rightfully deserves for all she has done only seems minimal in comparison to what she has been through and has endured for our country. She is my motivation, inspiration and role model,” she added.

Anne’s family, including Ann, Kevin and Michael Burke, Dennis Meagher, Jane and Joseph Keady and her friend Henry Lewis were among those celebrating with her.

Grant awarded for beach modifications

WEBSTER — The Webster ADA Commission was awarded the Municipal Americans with Disabilities Act grant program administered by the Mass Office on Disabilities for statewide distribution. The purpose of the ADA grant is specifically for removal of access barriers and/or creating access where there was none before. A main goal of this beach project is to make the beach and Lake Chaugoggagau bunagu ngamaugg accessible to all by providing a safe and enjoyable path.

Webster was awarded a $22,000 grant by outlining an ambitious plan to upgrade and expand the usage of the Memorial Beach services located at Memorial Beach Drive. Of the awarded grant, the $22,000 will be used for the purchase and installation of a beach mat allowing wheelchair access to the water, one water wheelchair, and a handicapped accessible swing. The improvements to Memorial Beach will be put in place over the next week or two.

The Webster ADA Commission was brought to its commission status in October 2016 after performing as committee status for the previous two years. The ADA Commission acts as a liaison at the behest and in behalf of the town of Webster Board of Selectmen and the disabled/handicapped individuals.

Tremendous effort, support, and assistance was put forth by Douglas Willardson, the new town administrator without whose help, a successful grant application would not have been possible.

Members of the commission include:

Ted Tetreault, building commissioner and ADA coordinator, Bob Miller, ADA Selectmen, Willardson, and Chair Anne Marie Peperato, Vice Chair Linda Cournoyer, Secretary Lori Charlone, Treasurer Steven Etzweiler, and members: Angela Fleming, Heather Richards, and Michelle Boulay with associate member: Mark Konicki.

Is now a good time to buy a home?

There is no blanket answer to this question. I have been asked this question many times lately since the values have increased so much over the past few years and in many cases are higher than they were in the mid 2000’s. It all depends on the reason for buying a home. I personally bought my first home in the end of 2004 and still own it. It is a 2 unit building and over that time while renting it down I have paid the principal balance down to about 80K. Now I have some equity and have received income over those years. It was not a great investment however I do now have equity in the building. If you are buying a home and planning on living there for 10 or more years then you will most likely be in a better financial position even if the market crashes than if you didn’t buy a home. One of the main reasons for this is that a home is like a forced savings plan and every time you pay your mortgage you end up paying down the principal owed on the home.

If you are currently renting a home and you are paying market value rent then you are most likely paying more than the cost to own a home. One of the big challenges prior to the last market crash was people were buying investment properties that did not generate enough rental income to support the investment. The interest rates are still very close to all time lows causing your mortgage payment to be lower. If you own a home and are planning on downsizing but you think the market prices are inflated it is a great time to sell as you will realize more money on the sale of your home. Even if you are upsizing you will again be realizing more money on the sale of your home and if you are overpaying on the new home it is only on the difference between your current home and your new home. If you are relocating to a new area and need housing then buying a home may be your only option as rental inventory is also extremely low.

REALTOR’S REPORT

You may ask how can the rental inventory and the sales inventory both be so low? The last decade due to the low prices in homes has causing building to slow down and has only recently started to pickup causing a housing shortage in most areas. This has helped drive rental rates and sales prices up over the past few years. As always I advise that you meet with a Realtor that you trust to help you decide if now is the time for you to buy because I only talked about reasons to buy and there will be reasons that it doesn’t make sense for you to purchase a home.

Andersonville heroes remembered on Aug. 12

The town of Dudley will dedicate a new monument on the town Common, 135 Center Road, on Saturday, August 12.

The monument commemorates the incarceration of six Dudley soldiers in Andersonville Prison during the Civil War.

A full day of activities is scheduled, including a Civil War living history encampment on the Common beginning at 11am. Demonstrations of military drill, rifle firing and portrayals of camp life will be featured.

At 3:30 p.m. members of the 15th Massachusetts re-enactors and Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War will conduct a memorial service at Corbin Cemetery for Frank Corbin, a Dudley member of the 15th Massachusetts Regiment who was killed at Antietam in 1862. A march from the cemetery to the Common will follow. The dedication of the monument on the Common will be held at 4:30 p.m. A concert at the nearby Black Tavern Barn by the Grey Whisker Pickers is scheduled for 5 p.m.

All the events are free and open to the public. Bring chairs and refreshments and enjoy this late summer event on Dudley Hill.β

Fayth is a healthy, active 8-year-old girl of African American/Caucasian and Cape Verdean descent. Like most children Fayth's age, she loves to play and run around! She enjoys opportunities where she can get her face painted and donuts are her favorite snack.

Fayth is doing well in school with the help of an Individual Education Plan (IEP). She is in a regular classroom and receives speech therapy. Fayth's speech delays are caused by a significant hearing impairment. Her medical providers are considering Cochlear implants at this time. Faith is also involved in therapeutic services to work on improving some challenging behaviors that resulted from her history of trauma.

Fayth can be placed in a home with a single mother or two-parent family that is able to provide a loving, structured home environment. She needs a patient family who can be understanding and supportive of her trauma history and outside treatment services. She can be the only child in the home or be with other children her age or slightly older. Fayth is legally freed for adoption and has an Open Adoption Agreement consisting of two visits per year with her birth mother and every other month contact with her sisters.

Ironstone Adoption Party

Have you ever considered adopting a child from foster care with an intellectual, physical or developmental disability? Join the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at Ironstone Farm on August 6th from 11am-1pm in North Andover to find out more about the process and children in foster care of all ages with special needs.

Learn about the different services offered to families post-adoption, meet waiting children and their social workers and participate in activities. Pre-registration is required. LEARNING

All Saints Academy’s Jimmy Fund success!

BY: MORGAN POLINSKI AND EMMA MCQUISTON

The All Saints Academy’s Jimmy Fund Club hit a home run in raising money for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute. All Saints Academy Jimmy Fund Club was successful in raising $3,000 for a great cause.

Every Friday, starting from March 3rd up until April 28th, the club of 14 students in grades 2-4, three 8th grade assistants and 2 advisors worked diligently to plan and run many fundraisers. Whether it would be discussing ideas, learning about the importance of helping others, or counting money, the club did it efficiently and successfully.

The club developed a triple play of fundraisers. One fundraiser was Penny Wars. Penny Wars was a fun and competitive way to raise money and have a little bit of fun too. Each class had a bucket that they could place any kind of money in. Only pennies and bills helped your class gain points, silver coins took away from the classes’ total. At the Elementary Campus, Grade 4 had the most points and at the Middle School Campus, Preschool had the most points.

Another fundraiser the club did was Opening Day Jimmy Fund dress down day. For a small donation, students received a dress down day to dress in Red Sox gear or colors. If a student made an additional donation, the student was also entered into a raffle to win items and for a little larger donation, the student was entered into another raffle which would give them a chance to win Red Sox game tickets.

One other fundraiser, which is still going on, is at Marty’s Redemption Center in Dudley. When you return cans to Marty’s, you can ask them to put the money towards All Saints Academy and these funds become part of the Jimmy Fund Club. All this fundraising raised $3,000 and it is all going to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute to help find a cure for cancer.

In the K-12 Division, All Saints Academy placed 6th out of 82 teams. In the schools with 100 - 250 students, All Saints placed first! What a great achievement!

A great amount of effort was put into this and there was a positive, successful result! Every day we are getting one step closer to finding a cure for cancer. Keep up the great work, All Saints Academy! This was nothing but success! This is a great example that shows what can happen when people work together to help a great cause.

Three new courses at Bay Path

CHARLTON — Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical Adult Evening School is pleased to announce it will be offering three new vocational courses for the fall semester.

Bay Path will be offering certified nursing assistant, sheet metal worker licensing tiers and The American Welding Society 3G and 4G certifications with a preparation course. These courses are in addition to the over 130 classes being offered at Bay Path’s Evening School in Charlton.

Bay Path has been approved to offer a certified nursing assisting program. This course is designed to be a pathway to the professional medical field. The course will run 117 hours with 29.5 hours being conducted at a local clinical site. The class will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings beginning Oct. 3. The course will be instructed by Donna McElroy-Routhier RN, BSN. She has over 20 years of nursing experience. One of Bay Path’s health technology instructor Christine Piehl RN,BSN. will be assisting in the clinical portion of the course. The cost of this course will be $1,325.

In September Bay Path will also offer the sheet metal workers licensing tier program. This course is approved by the Board of Examiners of Sheet Metal Workers. Bay Path is one of only two schools licensed by the board. This program will run 19 weeks. It will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays beginning Sept. 20. This class consists of the required code lessons as well as lessons in sheet metal fabrication and setup. The cost of this class is $1,350.

In November Bay Path will offer The American Welding Society type 3G and 4G welders certification exam and preparation course. This course is for experienced welders only looking to become certified in flat, horizontal and vertical welding or overhead welding. This class with exam runs over six nights. Monday Nov. 27 through Thursday Nov. 30. Testing will be conducted on Monday Dec. 1 and Friday Dec. 4. The cost of this course is: 3G exam with prep $449, 4G with prep $449, both exams with prep $599.

Registration for the fall semester begins Aug. 14. You can register by phone at 508-248-5974 ext 1715, On-line at Baypath.augusoft.net or in person \ by mail at 57 Old Muggett Hill Rd. Charlton MA. 01507

State legislators are making another push to ban drivers from using handheld devices, though reaction to the latest attempt is mixed among area residents and officials.

Last month, the Massachusetts Senate passed a bill aiming to reduce distracted driving by banning the use of handheld electronic devices. This includes all cell phones, iPads and GPS devices. The state already has a law in place prohibiting texting behind the wheel, but legislators and law enforcement officials agree that the law is too difficult to enforce. A ban on all devices, they said, would make it much easier for police to catch violators.

The bill outlines a series of fines for first and subsequent offenses, in addition to clarifying language from previously failed bills. Last year’s attempt died in the House, but the 2017 version has increased support from law enforcement.

Locally, several police chiefs agree that distracted driving needs to be further addressed by lawmakers to help save lives.

“I strongly support the use of hands-free devices for the operator of a motor vehicle. The use of a hands-free device should greatly reduce the level of distracted driving that occurs on a daily basis on our roads,” said Leicester Police Chief Jim Hurley. “It will also assist police in combating texting while driving. Currently it is difficult to tell if someone is texting or using their phone for another permissible use. The fact that the proposed law will require that the device can no longer be in the operator’s hand will address this enforcement issue and save lives.”

The Leicester Police Department conducts frequent enforcement initiatives with the Governor’s Highway Safety Bureau, keeping an eye out for texters behind the wheel. The potential for distracted driving is also examined when officers attempt to determine the causes of accidents, Hurley said. Many local police chiefs believe distracted driving has become just as hazardous as impaired driving, especially among

Update on new landlord bylaw

BY GUS STEEVES
STAFF WRITER

WEBSTER – One of the biggest hassles in almost any urban community is absentee or negligent landlords. A few years ago, Webster tried shaming them with billboards, but that had mixed success.

Now the town’s trying what might be called an assistance-and-stick approach, by formalizing a new landlord bylaw for the October Town Meeting and/or creating a process that uses existing laws to encourage timely maintenance.

“We’re hoping people will take care of it before Webster has to use a heavy hand,” said Town Administrator Doug Willardson.

The proposed bylaw text states it’s being created “for the prevention of nuisances caused by drug-related criminal activity” which “constitute a hazard of blight, threat to public health and safety, or adversely affect property values.” If a property is deemed to be “blighted” or “a nuisance,” the town will give the owner an order to fix the issues stating the “conditions necessary to remedy” them and a “reasonable deadline.” If not done by then, owners are subject to a $100 per day fine and will be summoned for a public hearing. If the problems continue afterward, the town may choose to solve them itself and put a lien on the property for payment.

At the extreme, that could mean demolition of particularly derelict properties. Willardson noted the town has done that at least 60 times in recent years.

“You can have 10 nice homes on a street, but everyone knows the one boarded-up house,” he added.

When the concept went to the selectmen July 10, he told them that many of the regulations already exist in state or federal law, so “you can do most of this without a bylaw.” But Selectman Randy Becker said he likes “the idea of having it in one bylaw.”

“The genesis of my concern was the apparent beating death of the individual down in the Hub,” Becker added, noting he wondered if similar issues were happening in town.

Afterward, Deputy Chief Michael Shaw said the proposal is a the key project of the town’s Nuisance Property Task Force, which formed to address the fact the police and building departments have had “a lot of calls” to a relatively small number of houses in town. If Town Meeting approves the bylaw, it will “give some teeth to that taskforce.”

“Tenants are living in conditions they shouldn’t be” Shaw said. “... We want to hold landlords who own dilapidated properties in check, and those who rent to problem tenants in check.”

He noted “some [properties] have been problems for years,” specifically mentioning 9-13 East Main Street and 106 Douglas Road. Town assessing records show the former has multiple owners, as follows: No. 9, the Barry Berthiaume Trust; 9R, Pamela Thibodeau; 11, Ferik Abdullai; 11R, Arthur Cournoyer; 13, Alfred Erlich; and 13R, Nathan Till. The latter is the Webster-Sturbridge Family Campground, which Shaw claimed has become a de facto trailer park.

Without identifying himself, the man who answered the phone at the campground’s office declined comment, accusing Shaw of “causing all the problems.” He said he’d been in business 50 years, argued his residents “don’t cause problems,” and said to talk to his attorney, but refused to give the lawyer’s name or phone number when asked and hung up.

The state’s corporate database shows it’s owned by Finecamp KOA, Inc., whose president is Michael Finamore. It’s been registered since 1974.

A little Internet homework identified his lawyer as Michael Kogut of Springfield, and Kogut said the man answering the phone was probably not Finamore, since he’s in Hawaii.

Kogut said the campground is governed by Mass General Laws Chapter 140, sections

32A-E, and licensed by the Board of Health, so he’s “not sure the bylaw would affect the campground.”

“Mike Finamore has, for many, many years, run a reputable, clean and safe campground, and will continue to do everything he can to continue to ensure a safe family campground environment,” Kogut said.

Shaw noted some properties that were problems have cleaned themselves up. In some cases, the town was able to get the landlord to evict a troublesome tenant; in others, they changed hands and the new owner fixed things. At some, though, he said he’s tried to meet with the owners and found them “unresponsive.”

Legislation seeks felony charges when officers are in jeopardy

BOSTON — On Tuesday, July 11 Representative Paul K. Frost (R-Auburn) provided testimony before the Joint Committee on the Judiciary on House Bill 3053, An Act protecting police officers. The legislation seeks to make assault and battery on a police officer while in performance of their duties a felony charge, as opposed to its current status as a misdemeanor.

H.3053 was filed by Representative Frost along with his colleagues Senator Michael Moore (D-Millbury), Representative Kate Campanale (R-Leicester) and Representative Timothy Whelan (R-Brewster), in response to the tragic loss of Auburn Police Officer Ronald Tarentino Jr. on May 22, 2016, who was shot and killed during a traffic stop. The killer was a known criminal who had two prior arrests for assaulting police officers.

At the hearing in the State House, Representative Frost was joined by members of Officer Tarentino's family, father Ron Sr. and his sister Caitlin Tarentino. Also present were a number of law enforcement personnel strongly supporting the changes proposed by the bill.

Representative Paul K. Frost (R-Auburn), testifies on a bill before the Judiciary Committee with family members of slain Auburn Police Officer Ronald Tarentino, killed in the line of duty on May 22, 2016.

Frost commented, “The men and women in Blue are out there every day and night protecting us from harm. It is incumbent upon us as lawmakers to protect them from harm in return. We need to put a stop to the attacking of police officers. It starts with legislation such as this, that treats assault and battery with bodily injury with a higher standard in our court system, before such offenders are released on misdemeanor charges and these violent acts escalate such as they did on that sad Sunday morning on Rochdale Street in Auburn on May 22, 2016.”

“The time has come for citizens and the media to realize that police officers are people too,” wrote Auburn Chief of Police Andrew Sluckis, in an excerpt of a letter addressed to the committee Representative Frost read during the testimony. “Contrary to some public belief, we do not get paid to be punched, kicked and assaulted. We get paid to protect life and property and to enforce the laws of this Commonwealth. All we want to do at the end of the day is to be able to go home to our families, nothing more.”

Massachusetts General Law features a precedent for some cases of assault and battery on firefighters to be considered a felony crime. Also noted at the hearing were similar standards for police dogs and horses, yet there is currently no such provision protecting the police officers themselves.

H.3053 must be reported favorably out of the Joint Committee on the Judiciary before continuing along the legislative process.

Redcoats vs. rebels take to the fields at Old Sturbridge Village once again.

STURBRIDGE — More than 1,000 historic military reenactors and 10,000 spectators will converge on Old Sturbridge Village Aug. 5 and 6 for the 14th annual Redcoats and Rebels; the largest Revolutionary War reenactment in New England.

Weekend highlights include mock battles and skirmishes between the Colonial and British troops and their allies. Soldiers on horseback return this year, and mounted troops from the Second Regiment Light Dragoons will demonstrate cavalry sword work and drill maneuvers.

Visitors can also witness cannon and musket demonstrations, visit a field hospital, enjoy fife and drum music and experience daily life for soldiers in battle and encampment.

Throughout the weekend the Village will be filled with nonstop activity, making Redcoats and Rebels a favorite among visitors and history buffs alike.

Visitors will see more than just marching and drilling, in camp the reenactors will demonstrate historic methods of cooking and baking, making soap, candles, brooms, musket balls, buttons, bowls and other implements.

Admission tickets are valid for a free second day admission when used within 10 days, and OSV offers free parking.

During this war for independence, both the British and American patriots received significant aid and assistance from other nations. Several of the units portrayed will include Scots, German and French soldiers.

The British, Hessians and American Loyalists pitch their tents on one side, while the Continentals (those rebels), American militia, and their French allies billeted on the opposite side.

Visitors can walk through Revolutionary War history come to life, learning about each military unit's role in the conflict.

“It is a two-way street. I don't have a problem with it. Sometimes we agree to disagree, either way that's democracy. We do have our own rules and the state rules also. We have the charter and open meetings laws and so forth - Our job is for the health and welfare of all the citizenry of the town of Webster and I firmly believe in that,” Miller said. “I think we do a pretty good job as a board trying to offer all of our opinions, whether we agree or don't agree or agree to disagree, and that's okay.”

Miller called the policy a good start and both he and Becker advocated to Town Administrator Doug Willardson that the policy be applied to town employees as well, especially since the personnel board is currently looking at updating town policies. Becker said it's only right that selectmen and employees be held to the same standard.

“To me this would make sense because if we're asking our employees to abide by a certain code of conduct it's important for the tone of the topic and the selectmen to have the appropriate code of conduct as well,” Becker said.

Willardson said that the personnel board will be advised to look at incorporating a code of conduct policy into the updating policies for town employees. The code of conduct as it applies to selectmen was unanimously approved by all selectmen present with only Selectmen Mark Dowgiewicz absent for the July 10 vote.

expressing his sadness at the loss of a long-time member of the Shepherd Hill community.

“For 27 years, Mr. Peters provided steady, effective support to students and served as a wealth of knowledge for fellow staff members and district families,” Desto said in his letter. “Steve was always upbeat, professional and 'all about the kids'. We will miss him dearly.”

Desto also called Peters an “integral part” to the success of Shepherd Hill Regional High School. Desto's letter also insisted that parents decide whether or not to share the information with their children and explained that tips and resources for such interaction have been made available on the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District's website.

Volunteers needed in area towns

Hospice volunteers are needed in Charlton, Sturbridge, Southbridge, the Brookfields, Spencer, Auburn, Webster, Dudley, and Oxford

If you have the time and heart to share, you could become a valuable part of the Overlook Hospice Team.

Hospice volunteers provide companionship and support to hospice patients and their families...reading to patients, watching movies, playing cards, walking dogs, fixing a meal, gardening, supporting family members, sitting with patients who are actively dying and making bereavement calls.

Our volunteers visit patients in their homes and in nursing homes throughout Southern Worcester County. Full training and ongoing support provided.

For more information about becoming a Hospice Volunteer, contact Susan Fuller at (508) 434-2200.

The Game is up

The Game of Thrones is back into season...intrigue, politics, bloody murder, family ties that not only bind, they strangle.

You either love GOT or hate it. There's no in between.

And you have the purists who have read the books and make constant comparisons, and those who wouldn't bother with the books...ever.

It's a cracking good story...or perhaps stories would be a better description...as the various families, villains, henchmen and would be royalty are all beginning to converge into a single story. They are at least all on the same continent for the first time.

We can, as a "civilized" people, stand back from the medieval darkness and weaponry used in this series; glad we don't really live that way and use it as an entertainment to watch a horde destroy a city, a bloody hand to hand combat sink a ship.

Ummmm.

We can stand further away now to wreak our havoc true, but it isn't any less bloody, or deadly.

And our politics are just as entwined, just as deceitful, just as outrageous.

We do blow up buildings to disarm an enemy.

We do murder.

We have our spies, our "little birds" in every single country in the world, even the friendly ones.

The only thing we are missing are dragons.

Oh, wait...we have mechanical equivalents...

We haven't used them since the end of World War II, and we maneuver the world in an attempt to keep others from getting their hands on them; but our atomic dragons do exist.

And perhaps the most obvious to anyone paying attention should be that even the good guys? Can be the bad guys. They too can "lose it" and go overboard; they seek revenge, they leverage their position and they give in spectacularly to their greeds.

The youngest, most vulnerable of the remaining Starks learns to be a cold blooded murderer, and has no conscience about it at all.

The would be queen from across the sea kills an assortment of nobles whether they had something to do with the object of her rage or not; and looses her dragons on those who most displease her with a satisfied small smile.

As have we all.

We can't wait for karma...we help it along.

With this in mind, we re-watched older episodes leading up to the new ones, seeing if we could translate political figures, modern politics or family dynamics into them.

Yup. There they all were.

It may be a fairy tale writ large, but like all fables, they carry a kernel of truth, a lesson to learn.

We might think this one is obvious at first, watching the greed, the power mad, the murder, but it's more subtle than that. It's the piece where any of them actually take responsibility for what they do.

There are moments of guilt, a passing wave at remorse and then, no. The need to prove themselves right, to gain their objective overrides it.

What most of the principal players need is a quiet moment to think without action.

And maybe that's what our country could use as well.

Shhh. No talking. No action. No planning the next move. Just...calm. For a few minutes, not long. And listen to the voices in your heads instead of the ones on the devices.

Become aware of the good around you

What is news? When we open the daily newspaper, or turn on the television, news usually means tragedy or violence. News stories contain sensational messages about the misfortunes and difficulties of individuals, groups and nations. We wonder how all these bad things can be happening at the same time. Reading or watching the news often leaves us feeling discouraged about the state of our world.

Yet, is bad news the only kind of news? Certainly, modern media's presentation of news often leaves us thinking that it is. Despite what the news shows us, however, there is a lot of good in the world. So, how do we find out about it?

The first step towards discovering the good present around us is to become aware that it is there. Being aware means being fully present in the moment. We constantly face distractions, either from within ourselves or from outside of us. These distractions tempt us to focus on the past or the future and make us blind to the now. Yet, it is precisely in the now that some good is present. What does that good look like? Often, the good around us is quiet, indeed subtle. We are blessed with pleasant weather and good temperatures. We feel well and forget that many around us do not. We have enough to eat and drink. We have a place to live. Some of these "good things" which we take for granted are consistently present in our lives but we do not realize how good they really are.

After we become aware of the good around us the second step is to anticipate finding it and then to actively look for it. Often, we are tempted to dwell on what is wrong or bad. It takes a conscious decision to, instead, look for that which is good. It seems this is a matter of intentional emphasis. The question is

BEYOND THE PEWS

FR. MICHAEL LAVALLEE
ST. ANN'S PARISH
NORTH OXFORD

"Will I, today, search for the good present around me or will I focus upon that which is bad? This process of "looking for the good" is sometimes very challenging.

The third step towards discovering the good present around us is to share that good with others as news when we find it. This important step counteracts the negative atmosphere bad news often creates. In our sharing of good news with others they come to feel hope. Hope is the virtue which enables us to persevere amidst life's difficulties. It is also that which allows us to creatively evaluate life's challenges and receive inspiration about how best to deal with them.

Becoming aware of the good around us, actively looking for more of it and then sharing the news of this good with others is a process that takes time. It cannot simply be willed, especially if we are crushed by our sorrows. Faith provides us with a power beyond ourselves which enables us to become aware of good, to look for the good and to then share it with others. In faith, we recognize that we are limited beings with limited resources. This humility then leads us to seek out resources we do not have from God's unlimited generosity.

What is the good news that today has brought us? Perhaps it is that there are still people in the world who care about the welfare of others. Maybe it is that within nature itself we find incredible beauty and amazing design which point to the handiwork of the Creator. It is possible that the good we see today is a smile on the face of a baby, a friendly pet eager to play, a phone call from a friend wanting to say hello or an encouraging comment from a co-worker. There is plenty of good news. We just don't hear about it enough.

Diversify your investments, but consolidate your providers

You have probably heard that diversification is a key to investment success. So, you might think that if diversifying your investments is a good idea, it might also be wise to diversify your investment providers – after all, aren't two (or more) heads better than one?

Before we look at that issue, let's consider the first half of the "diversification" question – namely, how does diversifying your investment portfolio help you?

Consider the two broadest categories of investments: stocks and bonds. Stock prices will move up and down in response to many different factors, including good or bad corporate earnings, corporate management issues, political developments and even natural disasters. Bond prices are not immune to these dynamics, but they are usually more strongly driven by changes in interest rates. To illustrate: If your existing bond pays 2 percent interest, and new bonds are being issued at 3 percent, the value of your bond will fall, because no one will pay you full price for it. (Of course, it may not matter to you anyway, especially if you planned to hold your bond until maturity, at which point you can expect to get your full investment back, providing the bond issuer doesn't default.)

Here's the key point: Stocks and bonds often move in different directions. If you only own U.S. stocks, you could take a big hit during a market downturn, but if you own domestic and international stocks, bonds, government securities, certificates of deposit and other types of investments, your portfolio may be better protected against market volatility, and you'll have more opportunities for positive results. (Keep in mind, though, that even a diversified portfolio can't prevent all losses or guarantee profits.)

So, it clearly is a good idea to diversify

FINANCIAL FOCUS

your investment portfolio. Now, let's move on to diversifying financial service providers. Why shouldn't you have one IRA here and another one there, or enlist one advisor to help you with some types of investments and a different advisor assisting you with others?

Actually, some good reasons exist to consider consolidating all your investment accounts with one provider. For one thing, you'll keep better track of your assets. Many people do misplace or forget about some of their savings and investments, but this will be far less likely to happen to you if you hold all your accounts in one place.

Also, if you have accounts with several different financial service providers, you might be incurring a lot of paperwork – and many fees. You can cut down on clutter and expense by consolidating your accounts.

But most important, by placing all your accounts with a single provider, possibly under the supervision of a single financial advisor, you will find it much easier to follow a single, unified investment strategy, based on your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon. You won't get conflicting advice and you'll receive clear guidance on important issues, such as the amounts you can afford to withdraw each year from your retirement accounts once you do retire. Diversification and consolidation – one is good for building an investment portfolio, while the other can help you invest more efficiently and effectively. Put the two concepts together, and make them work for you.

Dog just might be 'invisibly' controlled if also trained

CHIEF'S CORNER

STEVE WOJNAR

I received a question pertaining to electronic containment fences for pets. These involve a system of underground wires which, when used with a special collar, emit a charge. The purpose is to train the pet to remain within a designated area. The question was if one of these units is in place, does the pet owner need to be with the dog at all times?

The leash law in Dudley is addressed by Article 27 of the by-laws. No dogs are allowed to "run-at-large" within the town of Dudley. They are not allowed to be off a leash if they are not on the owner or keeper's property. While on the property of the owner or keeper, the by-law provides the requirements for unleashing a dog. It states in part, "No person shall permit a dog owned or kept by him to run freely within the confines of the property of the owner or keeper unless the owner or keeper or other person of adequate age and discretion accompanies the dog and who has "full control" of the animal...The term "full control" is defined as "the dog will respond to the command, order or signal of the owner or other person responsible for the dog and shall at all times, by his command, order or signal prevent his dog from bothering, worrying, annoying, chasing or barking at any person, domestic animal or livestock."

There are some exceptions to this by-law which allow some dogs to be unleashed while off an owner's property. These include such cases as dogs engaged in sport or hunting.

If the dog is not accompanied by an appropriate person while on the owner or keeper's property, it must be leashed or securely confined by fencing or appropriate barriers. An electronic fence, when used properly, can be an acceptable barrier to confine the pet to the premises. If all conditions are met, it is not necessary to be with the animal at all times. Penalties for violations of the animal control by-laws begin at $25 and can rise up to $500 or involve other punishments.

Dog control issues can be complex and complicated. Questions of liability for injuries can be difficult to clearly determine in relation to the laws. They truly need to be addressed on a case by case basis. Our Animal Control officials are able to answer questions whenever necessary. Even the most obedient dog can be difficult to control if chasing a rabbit, person, or something else which happens onto their territory. The safest way to approach all of these matters is to be cautious, remain alert and attentive, and leash or confine your pet.

Both salt and fresh fishing still strong

Saltwater fishing is about as good as it gets. Inshore fishing for fluke, sea bass, and scup has provided recreational anglers with fish for the dinner table in the past week in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island waters, and it is going to continue to get better with all of the baitfish around. Tuna and mako shark were providing better action last week, with a number of bluefin and mako being caught in Rhode Island waters. Striper fishing exploded with action in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island waters. The “Ditch” canal continued to provide anglers with 50 pound fish with plenty of 30 and 40 pound fish being caught. Block Island continues to give up big stripers to anglers using live eels, but trollers are also doing well.

On the freshwater scene local anglers are doing a lot better on largemouth bass. Anglers fishing with shiners seem to be the number one bait for catching some very impressive fish. One local young lady caught a 16” white perch recently at Wachusett Reservoir. Jessica Nordquist of Northbridge registered the huge perch with the Massachusetts Wildlife catch and release fishing awards program, which moved her into first place. The excited

This is the time of year that residents of the valley are enjoying the Great Outdoors. They are also watching the recent new arrivals of wildlife. Female deer and their young fawn are being spotted daily in the valley area. Bucks are now sporting some of their antlers that are covered in velvet. Wild turkey are everywhere, and have their young clutches of birds with them. Canada geese also have done well raising their young, as well as wood ducks and mallards.

Numerous sightings of black bear have been observed crossing local roads, with the most recent spotted by a hiker on a trail at Goat Hill, which is adjacent to Rice City Pond. Last week at 2 p.m., a bear was observed in the road near the Uxbridge Rod & Gun Club by a local resident. I am sure that this fall hunters will encounter some of the newest residents to the area. This week’s second picture shows a pair of black bear cubs hanging out in a tree.

The best piece of news is the frequent sightings of cottontail rabbits in the valley. Local gardeners are reporting problems with the vegetable eating rabbits, and have needed to take action to remove them from the area in an effort to save their crops. Reports of rabbits crossing roads and feeding in fields is good news, as the populations had dropped dramatically over the last 30 years. Rabbit hunting in the fall has been very spotty, and very few hunters own beagles today because of the low populations.

In my younger years I owned a few beagles, along with many of my buddies. We hunted snowshoe hare and cottontail rabbits every fall and winter, and also ran them on snowshoe hare during the summer evenings. The sound of a pack of beagles trailing the elusive hare through the Douglas State Forest was music to our ears. That has all disappeared today, as snowshoe hare are no longer purchased by sportsmen’s clubs and Mass Fish & Wildlife, and stocked live in local covers. Anti-hunting groups were successful in stopping sportsmen from purchasing and transporting them from Canada to open covers in the valley. Over the years any hare that were present in our forest have been killed by predators.

There are very few pheasant that survive in local covers today after the hunting season. Predators and lack of good cover for their existence is becoming worse every year as development of open covers continue. Fortunately, sportsmen raise and release thousands of pheasant annually into open covers for sportsmen to enjoy the old tradition of pheasant hunting. Grouse and native woodcock are also being driven out by the loss of habitat.

On August 1, deer hunters that applied for an antlerless deer permits can go on line to see if they have won a permit for this year’s deer hunting season. Click onto to the Massfishhunt web site. If you did not get your 2017 hunting license prior to the deadline you will not be eligible.

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES & ESTATES
WAYNE TUISKULA

I hope that those of you who setup or shopped at Brimfield had a good week. Along with the July session of Brimfield there has been plenty of other antique and collectibles news recently.

A Coatesville, PA man passed away at the age of 87. His family took much of the man’s personal property from his estate according to the West Chester, PA Daily Local News. The family gave the remaining items to a van driver who drove the man often and befriended him. The van driver brought several items he received to a local consignment shop. He was lifting a table to bring to the consignment shop when he heard “a clunk.” The drawers were empty but he pulled them out and found a bag taped to the back of one. The bag contained an 1854 Arrows Seated Liberty Quarter. His price guide lists one in the condition he found for $17,250. He plans to meet local coin dealers but is unsure whether or not he wants to sell the coin.

A box found at an estate sale in New Jersey appears to be a Wright Factory Relic. The buyer paid $5 for it 28 years ago. He kept it in his study where it held his flight manuals. The box is marked “From Wright Aeronautical Corp, Paterson, N.J. U.S.A.” During a recent visit to Dayton Aviation Heritage National Historical Park in Ohio he saw a similar box next to the Wright Brother’s first airplane. A representative from the museum in Dayton described the box as “priceless”. He then contacted representatives of The Smithsonian Institution’s National Air & Space Museum in Washington and the Paterson (NJ) Museum who reviewed photos of the box. They believed that it was used to ship tool parts. It may be the only surviving box of this type from the factory. He has been contacted by several museums and auction houses and is weighing his options.

The Liberty Hall Museum began recently renovating their wine cellar, which hadn’t been touched since 1949, and uncovered some great finds. ABC News reported that 3 cases of Madeira wine from 1796 were found. The bottles are labeled “Robert Lenox of Philadelphia 1796.” Museum officials stated “We also found 42 of large casks, demijohns, covered in wicker, that date back to 1820.” A wine company was called in to evaluate the discovery. A representative stated that Madeira wine was one of the most prestigious wines in the British colonies. The museum now displays the wine so that visitors can view it and learn more about Colonial times. The museum is located at Kean University in Union, New Jersey.

Baseball cards that were discovered in a Tennessee attic brought some strong prices at auction recently according to Forbes. The cards were found in a Stroh’s beer box and are being called the “Beer Box Find.” A box of Bowman baseball cards from 1948 sold for $514,746 at auction. An unopened box of 1961 Fleet basketball cards sold for $108,039 and a box of 1961 Topps football cards brought $119,977. The cards brought more than $900,000 in total.

We have been picking up a large amount of coins, Sterling silver, gold jewelry, art and other items for our August 31st live auction. Additional sales are also being planned. Keep checking www.centralmassauctions.com for details.

Police expect record crowd for National Night Out

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER – It’s a yearly tradition spanning back many year in Webster and it will continue in 2017 as National Night Out returns to the shores of Webster Lake on Tuesday, August 1.

Deputy Chief Michael Shaw offered some insight into the upcoming event during a Board of Selectmen meeting on July 10 explaining that National Night Out has become quite a popular yearly offering for the town that brings citizens young and old out to do their part in keeping crime out of Webster.

“We’ve been doing this for the twenty years that I’ve been here. It’s a nationwide event held on the first Tuesday in August. It’s primarily a national night out against crime,” Shaw said.

The event is always held on Memorial Beach and offers a variety of activities for visitors young and old to partake in. Shaw said that National Night Out in Webster has evolved quite a bit over the years, expanding from the basic mission of the national cause to become a more involved and celebratory event for the Webster community as the police and others have added their own touch to the night.

“We’ve kind of taken it on a different spin here in Webster. We’ve included fire and EMS for the last several years. Over the past few years it’s grow substantially. We really make it a community-oriented event. This year we’re going to have at least fifteen vendors ranging from the Sheriff’s department to the District Attorney’s office, the reconciliation house and several groups will be there,” Shaw told selectmen. “We’re going to have a rock wall this year, clowns, a bunch of raffle prizes that we’re giving away, all kinds of things.”

With the event becoming more and more popular every year, literally hundreds flock to Memorial Beach for National Night Out to enjoy the offerings and learn from the many vendors on hand for the event. “Last year we had about 500 to 600 people and it seems to get bigger every year,” Shaw said, noting that he expects over 600 for the 2017 iteration of National Night Out.

Due to the added amenities for National Night Out in 2017 the Police Department made a rare move by scheduling a rain date for the event. Should Mother Nature decide to put a damper on the August 1 date, the event will be held the following day on Wednesday, August 2. This was set because many of the offerings were rented for the event with generous donations from local businesses and companies playing a part in funding National Night Out.

Those planning to attend can mark their calendars for Tuesday, August 1 from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. on Memorial Beach in Webster.

Webster-Charlton Senior League All-Stars compete at East Regional

LOCALS FALL TO WORCESTER, THEN DEFEAT RHODE ISLAND REPRESENTATIVE

WORCESTER — The Webster-Charlton Senior League All-Stars may have dropped their opening game of the East Regional Tournament to host Jesse Burkett of Worcester, 3-0, on Saturday, July 22 at Vernon Hill Field, but the locals are having quite a summer on the softball diamond.

First, Webster-Charlton — whose athletes all play at Bartlett High, Shepherd Hill Regional or Marianapolis Prep — took on Saugus for the state championship the previous Saturday (July 15) in Woburn. Webster-Charlton notched a pair of shutouts, 1-0 and 8-0, to advance to the East Regionals.

“Monster accomplishment there with very little practice time,” said Webster-Charlton manager Ed Johns, as most of his players are also competing at a high level on ASA U-18 Open teams.

Pitcher Madison Johns, Ed’s daughter, has honed her craft in the travel tournaments, which in turn helped Webster-Charlton win the state title. Madison Johns was the hard-luck loser versus Burkett, as her six-inning performance included one earned run on five hits with nine strikeouts and no walks.

“I thought it was a great pitching effort on both sides,” said Ed Johns. “The difference was clean fielding and they had a spectacular, polished game. The happy part is I think we can correct that.”

Worcester’s Kayleigh Coffey pitched a complete game four hitter with five strikeouts and two walks.

Webster-Charlton had its chances, though. They had the leadoff runner reach base in three innings, but to no avail.

“Those are the kind of situations you have to take advantage of,” mentioned Ed Johns.

Madison Johns was perfect through the first 10 batters she faced but, with one out in the bottom of the fourth inning, speedy Alexa Diaz of Worcester reached base with a bunt single. Natalie Barrera then singled and Emily Gahagan hit a fielder’s choice, where Diaz beat the tag at third to load the bases.

Madison Johns then recorded a strikeout, but Diaz danced off the third base bag, forcing a low throw from catcher Ashley Millett to Madison Johns, which plated both Diaz and then Barrera as the ball rolled into center field.

“Credit to Worcester,” said Ed Johns. “She [Diaz] broke in time to give her [Millett] something else to think about, and I think that’s just what happened.”

“Up until that point they weren’t getting many base runners so they were willing to take a risk and it worked for them,” added Johns.

Worcester then made it 3-0 in the fifth inning when Bridget Murray singled, stole second base and scored on an Amelia Soltys bloop RBI single.

Webster-Charlton attempted a rally in the top of the seventh when Millett laced a two-out double to the right-center field gap, but Coffey struck out the final batter to end the contest.

Devan Wetherbee, Emilee Leber and Breanna Ward had the other three hits for Webster-Charlton, all singles.

Webster-Charlton found their offensive rhythm the following day, though, when they defeated Rhode Island representative Elmwood, 12-2. Then, on Monday, July 24, the locals were defeating District 4 of Connecticut, 6-4, in the bottom of the second inning when the game was postponed due to rain. The continuation of that game and the single elimination playoffs will take place after press time.

Webster-Charlton's Breanna Ward hits a third inning single.

Emilee Leber of Webster-Charlton slides into third base versus Worcester's Jesse Burkett.

Bartlett High Athletic Hall of Fame Selection Committee soliciting nominations

The Bartlett High School Athletic Hall of Fame Selection Committee is soliciting worthy nominations from the community for the ninth class of inductees, which will be honored in the Fall of 2018. Anyone interested in nominating individuals for this recognition can submit a nomination through the Hall of Fame website at www.bhsathletichof.org. The deadline for nominations is Sept. 29, 2017. Athletes who are nominated for induction must have graduated high school at least seven years prior to being considered for induction (Class of 2011 or earlier). Other eligibility requirements are available on the organization's website. Supporting documentation, including statistics, are requested to be submitted to the committee with all nominations.

Blackstone Valley hangs tough in CNEBA playoffs

SHREWSBURY — On Monday, July 17, the Blackstone Valley Cats of the Central New England Baseball Association (CNEBA) lost a 7-6 decision to the Shrewsbury Dirt Dogs at Shrewsbury High. That dropped the Cats' record to 13-12, but Blackstone Valley earned a couple more wins during their busy week.

The Cats won the rematch versus Shrewsbury the following day, 8-5, and then defeated the Worcester Pirates, 9-2, on Wednesday, July 19. Blackstone Valley finished its regular season with a 6-5 setback to the Pirates on July 20.

That gave the Cats a record of 15-13 as they advanced to the CNEBA playoffs. There, they played Ronnie's of Worcester in a two-out-of-three series. After losing the first game by a 9-6 score on Saturday, July 22, Blackstone Valley rallied to win Game 2, 14-7, to force a final third game to be played after press time. The winner will advance to the semifinal round of the CNEBA playoffs.

Casters to perform at Brimfield’s Concerts on the Common

BRIMFIELD — Tuesday Aug. 1st marks the final 2017 summer concert in a series of three free Concerts on the Common in Brimfield. The Casters, a central Mass band, play a mix of covers and originals and musically can be described as a rock and roll band with roots rock and alt-country influencing their sound.

The Casters feature Jared Fiske and Sean McKinstry on guitar and vocals, Rob Adams on lead guitar and vocals, Ben Kowal on drums, Nick Smith on bass, and at this concert, special guest Jessica Adams will appear on backing vocals. With the exception of Jessica Adams, who is from Georgia, all members of the Casters are from central Mass. Fiske, McKinstry and Smith are all alumni of Tantasqua Regional High School. The Casters have been a group for about three years.

“I had been Jonesing to put a rock act together, and I really just pulled in all the people who I knew and loved,” says Fiske.

All members and ages of the community are invited to come out for the concert. The Concerts on the Common for 2017 have featured New England acts Radio Ranch and Gracie Day and the Knights performing for crowds that attended even despite torrential downpours. Locals headed out to this concert should know that the Casters look forward to putting on a great show for the community on Tuesday night.

Fiske states, “We love that sense of community, and a free concert on a town common is such a beautiful American tradition. We’re proud to be a part of it.”

Fiske has played at the Concerts on the Common in the past and fondly recalls his first time being on stage at one. He was first learning the guitar when his father, Rob Adams, “pulled me up on stage for [a concert and] I remember looking out and seeing my girlfriend seeing me on stage and I was hooked.”

Now Fiske’s drive to perform is based on a desire to play with friends and entertain audiences. “There are moments that are truly transcendent,” explains Fiske, “Those times when the music becomes more than the sum of its parts, and it goes out there and touches the audience and rounds its way back up to the stage. When you complete that circuit, it’s a beautiful thing.”

Fiske encourages all to attend the concert, “We love to play, and we can’t wait to play for you.” The concert begins at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 1. Be sure to bring a lawn chair or blanket for sitting but feel free to get up and dance. In the event of rain, the concert will be moved from the Brimfield Common to Hitchcock Academy. The Concerts on the Common are sponsored by funding from Country Bank for Savings, The Alice Sawin Davis Fund, and the Brimfield Cultural Council. Contact Hitchcock Academy at (413) 245-9977 or visit www.hitchcockacademy.org for additional information.

Moore votes to advance Pregnant Workers Fairness Act

BOSTON – Senator Michael O. Moore (D-Millbury) announced the Senate recently passed legislation to help ensure that pregnant workers are protected from discrimination in the workplace. The bill advanced from the Senate with unanimous, bipartisan support.

“In addition to protecting the health of pregnant employees, the bill also promotes economic security for workers and their families,” said Senator Moore. “I have heard from many constituents who are supportive of this initiative and I’m proud to have cast a vote in favor of the bill.”

Under the legislation, employers are prohibited from discriminating against an employee or prospective employee due to pregnancy or a condition related to the pregnancy, such as lactation or the need to express breast milk for a nursing child.

Employers are also required to provide reasonable accommodations for workers who are pregnant. At the request of a pregnant employee, employers must undergo a good faith and interactive process to determine an effective reasonable accommodation. Provisions include low cost modifications such as providing employees with a stool to sit on, allowing for more frequent bathroom breaks, allowing the worker to carry a bottle of water, or providing a private non-bathroom space for lactation. Employers are not required to provide accommodations that would impose an undue hardship on the employer’s business.

In addition, employers are prohibited from refusing to hire a pregnant job candidate solely because the candidate requires a reasonable accommodation. Employers are not permitted to force pregnant employees to accept an accommodation that they do not want or to take leave if another reasonable accommodation may be provided.

“When we started this journey two years ago, MotherWoman and her allies knew that too many pregnant women were struggling without accommodations commonly given to other workers. Massachusetts legislators, on both sides of the aisle, heard us. So did the business community,” said Linda O’Connell, executive director of MotherWoman, an advocate for the bill. “We are proud to live in a state that can solve real problems for real people.”

The bill, H.3680, will now be reconciled with the House version of the bill, which was passed in May, before being sent to the Governor for his signature. To continue tracking the status of this legislation, please visit the Legislature’s website, www.malegislature.gov.

The romance continues this summer....

BY KEVIN FLANDERS
NEWS STAFF WRITER

WARREN – A tale as old as time is coming to town next month, when Quaboag Community Summer Theatre presents its summer musical, Beauty and the Beast.

Performances will be held on Friday, August 4, at 7 p.m., as well as on August 5 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. All shows will take place at Quaboag Regional High School in town, and tickets cost $15 for adults, $10 for students and seniors, and $7 for kids (ages 12 and under).

For show director Tyler Edmonds, it is always a thrill to watch the cast work hard to prepare for QCST’s productions. The cast for this summer’s musical includes 35 members from across central Massachusetts, with a few of them as young as 10. Others are high school students, college performers, and residents from throughout the area who have extensive theater experience.

Edmonds and his leadership team have enjoyed seeing the youngsters have an opportunity to learn from veteran performers. Though Beauty and the Beast is a big undertaking, everyone embraced the challenge.

“After Into the Woods finished last August, we asked the cast for suggestions for our next big summer show. The overwhelming response was Beauty and the Beast,” Edmonds said. “It is one of my all-time favorite Disney movies and musicals, so I was ecstatic to see the amount of interest others had in it.”

Many of the cast members have performed in multiple shows with QCST, while others are getting involved for their very first performance. In addition to perfecting their roles, songs, and choreography, many of the performers have also taken on extra duties like putting together costume pieces and creating props.

From start to finish, each summer production is a total team effort, QCST leaders said.

“We are lucky to have such a dedicated and extremely talented group this summer,” Edmonds told the New Leader. “They have all done an incredible job of bringing these classic characters to life. It’s amazing to see everyone so invested in the success of the group and this show.”

Performers have enjoyed the challenge of bringing a Disney show to QRHS, though there are many challenges associated with performing such a popular show.

Creating the costumes was one of the biggest challenges, with every cast member set to wear at least two different costumes throughout the show.

“It takes a lot of planning and trial-and-error, especially to create all of the Enchanted Objects. The committee has been working extremely hard since June to put together these outfits, and I know everything is going to look incredible by opening night,” Edmonds said.

There have also been logistical challenges for the performers to contend with. Due to the costs of renting the performance space, QCST has spent the last month rehearsing at West Brookfield Town Hall. The layout of Town Hall and the size of the stage is vastly different from the QRHS auditorium, but the performers are prepared to adjust their choreography and technical elements to the new venue.

“One of the other challenges we have faced is trying to work around everyone’s schedules,” said Barbara Callahan, the show’s producer. “The summer is a very busy time for everyone, and on top of participating in this show, many of the cast members also have jobs and planned vacations.”

When the cast has had opportunities to come together as a full group, everyone was fully prepared and focused on creating the best show possible.

“Many people hold this show in high regard, and because of the new live action release this year, people’s expectations are going to be very high,” said Sam Berthel, who plays Gaston. “I know that this talented cast will do it justice. The characters are such dynamic and fun people – even the bad guys.”

For many performers, their favorite part of being involved in QCST is the lifelong friendships they form while gaining valuable experience.

“When you’re playing a character who is in a situation where they are in constant close contact with other characters, it really has the power to bring a group of people close together,” said Cassidy Morrow, who plays Babette. “You end up feeling like family by the end of the production, and I think that is amazing.”

For more information about QCST, visit www.QuaboagSummerPlays.com. Tickets for the show can be purchased at the door on the event days, or by visiting the website.

Agent Orange town hall to explain veteran benefits

LEOMINSTER — Vietnam veterans and their families are invited to attend a town hall on Saturday, July 22 at the Doubletree Hilton Hotel in Leominster to receive information on the impact of the chemical Agent Orange and benefits and services available for veterans who were exposed to the chemical.

The town hall will take place from noon to 4 p.m. at the Doubletree and is open to all veterans.

Agent Orange, named for the orange band around the storage barrel, was an herbicide widely used by the U.S. military from 1962 to 1975. According to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, the military sprayed millions of gallons of Agent Orange and other herbicides on trees and vegetation during the Vietnam War. Veterans who may have been exposed to Agent Orange include those in Vietnam, the Korean Demilitarized Zone, on Thai Air Force bases, and aircrews who flew or worked on C-123 aircraft. Concerns about the health effects from these chemicals, including dioxin, a byproduct of Agent Orange production, continue, the VA reports.

Staff of VA and area veteran service organizations will be on-hand to schedule appointments to assist veterans in determining their eligibility to file claims with the federal Veterans Benefits Administration.

Speakers will explain the history of Agent Orange, its related diseases, and the benefits and VA claims process for seeking service-connected disability.

“There are many veterans in our region, including many of their spouses and family members, who don’t know about the benefits they’re eligible for in regards to illnesses and diseases associated with exposure to Agent Orange and other herbicides during military service in Vietnam, Thailand and Korea” said Rick Voutour, director of the city of Leominster Veterans Center, which provides assistance to veterans in Leominster, Lancaster and Sterling.

Voutour said it is particularly important to inform family members of Vietnam veterans, specifically spouses, because benefits can be significant for a spouse if a veteran passes away.

For example, if a Vietnam veteran files for a service-connected disability from exposure to Agent Orange and then passes away, spouses could receive significant tax-free compensation plus other state and federal benefit.

There are more than 40 “presumptive” illnesses and diseases recognized by VA as connected to Agent Orange herbicide exposure including bladder cancer, hypothyroidism, and Parkinson’s-like symptoms.

The town hall is hosted by the city of Leominster Veterans Center with support from the VA Central Western Massachusetts Healthcare System, which oversees VA outpatient clinics in Fitchburg and Worcester.

Although the number of veterans exposed to Agent Orange is undetermined, about 120,000 veterans or about 30 percent of the more than 350,000 veterans who live in Massachusetts are Vietnam veterans. There are approximately 13,500 Vietnam veterans in Worcester County, according to VA and U.S. Census Bureau numbers.

Representatives from Veterans Administration will be at the town hall to provide information on VA health care treatment for Agent Orange related diseases and on Hepatitis-C. Veterans are encouraged to bring a copy of their DD-214 (“Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty”) to assist benefit counselors and enrollment coordinators in determining eligibility for VA health care and other programs.

For more information on the town hall, contact the City of Leominster Veterans Center at (978) 534-7538. For more information on Agent Orange, visit the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs Public Health web page at www.publichealth.va.gov/exposures/agent-orange.

That led to a job as assistant principal in Middleborough, and when the superintendent there later saw she was applying elsewhere, he offered her a curriculum director’s job. After a while, that led to the assistant superintendency in Dover-Sherborn, then to Hanover, which Nash particularly liked because it allowed to work close to home (Rochester).

She said that was also an appeal of Freetown; “It was nice to be able to give back to communities that were around me.”

The job there, however, was notably different from what she’s facing in Oxford. When she started in Freetown, there were “three critical central office positions” she either had to hire or were so new they’d never worked with each other, on top of other contractual issues that needed fixing.

In Oxford, by contrast, most of the key people have been in place for a while except new high school Principal Kim Henry. The issues here tend to be procedural and go back a few years, as identified by the recent Title I and Special Ed audit. But to her, “they’re easy to remediate. It’s mostly about dotting the Is and crossing the Ts.” School Business Manager Justin Ledoux is already drafting the report the selectmen requested regarding what has been done to correct the issues.

“That the part I enjoy – working with a new administrative team,” Nash said, describing her “core belief about how you make decisions” as equity.

“When I see inequity out there, I’m a champion for the person who doesn’t get a fair shake ... especially individuals who have great odds to overcome,” she added. To her, that is a key value of public education and its democracy-building influence. “We’re never a totally finished product.”

“In the end, you want to always feel like you’ve continued to build a rich culture and created a positive community for all stakeholders,” Nash said. “All administrators will be wounded, and you have to know what you’ll fall on the sword for.”

Regarding her term in Oxford, she said she hopes to build good relations within the district and between district and community, so people “understand why we do what we do” and that a new person feels “they’re at a good place.”

“I’m the unknown to them, and they want to develop some sense of comfort with me,” she noted.

Since she formally started July 6, Nash has come to the conclusion that Oxford’s strength is the “dedication and commitment of the people who work here. I’ve seen it first-hand in the central office – they’re stellar people.” All districts have similar issues of staff turnover and financial constraints, and she said she can’t yet say what the key issue that needs her attention is.

Even though she has a time limit here (one that her contract states could be less than a year with two weeks notice if the School Committee finds a permanent person), that doesn’t mean Nash intends to stop doing things. Many things need to be done in the short-term, but some will have to be left for the incoming superintendent.

examined, some questionable costs, charging expenses to grants after their expiration date, and cash management issues, she said. She added that she’d found eight “noted exceptions” out of 20 “agreed-upon procedures” the state requires, meaning the district had filed eight reports that later required correction.

“This was a large amount of exceptions,” Romano said. “It’s quite common to have one or two, but unusual to have as many as we did.”

Town Manager Brian Palaia noted the town had already conducted “a very specific management audit” of the schools because of these and other issues after the business manager left and Town Accountant Donna Foglio took on both roles. “These may be the product of staff that’s no longer there,” he said.

While that’s true, Selectman Cheryll LeBlanc later noted, “Taxpayers don’t care who’s in a position or who’s transitioning. They just care their tax dollars are being used efficiently.”

“These problems have been pretty chronic. They’ve been around a while, but they can be rectified ... in an audit cycle or two, so I wouldn’t push the panic button just yet,” Romano said.

Noting “we have standards in place for a reason,” Selectman Meaghan Troiano wondered how well the solutions have been implemented.

Foglio said they hired a CPA firm to review the district’s “internal controls,” but it’s complex because many federal rules apply. The district has had three or four special ed directors since 2015 and other turnover, so documents the business office needed often didn’t get there.

“With these reports, we know where some of the glitches are,” Chairman Dennis Lamarche said. “A report like this, I look at as a positive” because it can be corrected and “a lot of eyes” are watching now.

John Saad essentially agreed, saying, “this is old news because we attacked this much, much earlier,” and have already had “a healthy debate over what has to be done to correct these deficiencies.”

The board unanimously supported having the school committee report on exactly what “has been done to rectify this” and identify what remains to be done.

The other half of the fiscal exploration was less painful, since actuary Linda Bournival looked at where things stand regarding the Contributory Retirement funds and Other Post-Employment Benefits (OPEB). Although the numbers seem huge – Oxford’s unfunded OPEB liability as of July 1, 2016, was about $45 million – she noted towns are not legally required to pre-fund it and the vast majority have funded less than 10 percent of it. On the other hand, it will start showing up on town’s formal balance sheets starting with this fiscal year.

The goal, Bournival said, is to account for current employees (Oxford has about 350, plus about 270 now getting retirement benefits) “to ensure they will be covered” over the long term. But doing so necessarily involves “a lot of predictions and projections” that change easily over the course of decades, and she noted “we’re not right most of the time, a lot of the time.”

“There’s not much in terms of how you can control this stuff,” besides shopping for the best plans and setting up a trust fund, she noted. Oxford already has one.

LeBlanc noted OPEB is often “controversial, because many municipalities don’t have the ability to fund their current needs.”

Bournival agreed, noting the present retirees have “to be your first priority, because there is no choice.” Retirement trusts typically have hundreds of millions in them, because they started back in the 1980s, but OPEB trusts are “in their infancy.” She noted rating agencies understand that and will look at whether towns “have made some positive steps” toward funding it, while the government is applying the rules across the board so that most communities are treated equally.

Sturbridge accepting applications for paramedic

Fire Chief John Grasso Jr. has released the following information about a job opening in his department. There are specific training and physical guidelines for the job; and potential candidates will need to meet all of them to be considered.

As it has been announced, the town is accepting applications for the position of full-time fire-fighter/paramedic. The department is looking to fill one current vacancy. The minimum qualifications include certification as a National Registry EMT – Paramedic, and as a Firefighter I/II.

Starting salary as of July 1 is 22.77 per hour. Full time members work a 24 hour shift, 48 hours per work week. Other benefits include paid vacation, sick time, uniform allowance, training reimbursement, and medical/dental insurance, as described within the collective bargaining agreement.

Potential candidates will be subject to an oral interview, extensive background check, medical physical, and a physical ability test. OBITUARIES

Douglas S. Bentley, 61

N O R T H SMITHFIELD — Douglas S. Bentley, age 61 of North Smithfield, passed away at Landmark Medical Center in Woonsocket. Born in Providence, RI, he was the son to the late William and Peggy (Lewis) Bentley.

Doug spent many years involved in the Greater Woonsocket community, from his years coaching his children in Bernon Little League and his involvement with the Boy Scouts of Troop 2, Woonsocket. He was a fixture at Woonsocket North Stars and Woonsocket High School hockey games and along with recently being a member of the Woonsocket Sportsman's Club.

Before his retirement, he was employed for many years at Bullseye Shooting Supplies, Lowe's and most recently, Bass Pro Shops. Doug was a wonderful husband and father along with being a grandfather to his three grandchildren, Mackenzie, 6, Jackson, 3 and Isabelle, 1. All three of them will sorely miss their grandfather, affectionately known as "Papa". They were his pride and joy and he was most proud of each of them.

Doug is also survived by his loving wife of 37 years, Linda; two children, Scott and his wife, Stephanie Bentley of Webster, and Amanda and her husband, Michael Parenteau of West Warwick, RI. In addition to his three grandchildren, he is also survived by his siblings, William Bentley of Alamogordo, New Mexico, Donna Walsh of Coventry, RI, Susan Cote of Chepachet and Andrew Bentley of San Clemente, CA.

A funeral service will be held Friday, July 21st at 10 AM in the Egidio DiPardo and Sons Funeral Home, 75 Harris Avenue, Woonsocket. Burial will follow in St. Jean the Baptist Cemetery in Bellingham. Visitation will be held Thursday, from 4-7 PM.

Richard and his wife Jane Gauthier of Southbridge, and Jon T. Gauthier of Southbridge, 10 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. She also leaves 3 sisters Sandra Menard of Brimfield, Becky Dumas of Harford, CT, and Cynthia Hackett of Southbridge, nieces and nephews.

She was born in Southbridge, January 4, 1938, daughter of the late Warren and Andrea (Tetreault)

Shippee, and was also predeceased by her brother Bobby Shippee, and sister Susan Burlingame.

Carol loved the Fall season, when she, her mom and sisters would drive to the Mohawk Trail “to see the colors”, and then stop for coffee and sandwiches. Carol and Eddie loved going to yard sales, where they would buy “lots of stuff” and drop them off at their sons’ homes even if they didn’t want it.

Carol will be dearly missed by her family and many friends. The family would like to thank the entire staff of Southbridge Rehab & Healthcare Center for the fantastic care they provided to Carol for over 2 years.

At Carol's request, all services will be private. Sansoucy Funeral Home, 40 Marcy Street, Southbridge, MA 01550. www.sansoucyfuneral.com

OBITUARIES

Ronald J. Gonyer, 73

BROOKLYN CT – Ronald J. Gonyer, age 73, passed away peacefully on Friday July 14, 2017 under the care of the dedicated staff at Gaylord Hospital; He was born in Holden, MA on January 25, 1944, son of the late Charles J. Gonyer and Dorothy (Elie) Gibson. Ronald is survived by his wife of 53 years, Roseanne (Jameson) Gonyer; His son: Tim Gonyer of Hollywood, FL; His daughter: Tammy Rainville of Pomfret, CT; 5 grandchildren: Levi, Caleb, and Grace Gonyer of North Carolina, and Emily and Megan Rainville of Pomfret, CT.

After being honorably discharged from the National Guard in 1969, Ron moved to Connecticut with his wife, and began working for General Dynamics; He worked at Kaman Aerospace for 37 years until his retirement in 2003. Ron always revered his colleagues from Kaman (in all departments) as family. Ron was a member of the West Wauregan Fire Department for 20 years before they merged with the Mortlake Fire Department. Ron will be remembered for his fun-loving spirit, quick wit, and unwavering love for his family and friends.

A Memorial Mass will be celebrated on Saturday July 29, 2017 from the Our Lady of LaSalette Church, 25 Providence Rd. Brooklyn, CT at 1:00 pm. In lieu of flowers, please send memorial contributions to The Wounded Warriors, American Legion, or to the Mortlake Fire Department (Brooklyn, CT)

William Francis Lavigne V, 42

DUDLEY — William Francis Lavigne V, age 42, of Dudley, died unexpectedly on Wednesday, July 19, 2017, at Landmark Hospital of Woonsocket, RI. William was born April 7, 1975, in Worcester. He was employed by Vertiv, formerly Emerson, as a field service electrical technician for the past 18 years.

He leaves behind his best friend and beloved wife of 15 years, Stacey (McBow) Lavigne, and their three cherished children, William VI, age 13, Aurora, age 10, and Arabella, age 8. He is survived by his parents, William and Kathleen (Connor) Lavigne, of Dudley; and his sister, Jennifer Hearn and her partner, Scott Daigneault, of Chicopee. He is also survived by his maternal grandmother, Sylvia (Cote) Connor; and several aunts and uncles, including Mary and Bill Lasher of Ohio, Barbara and Rick Dacri of Maine, Steph and Mike Connor of Georgia, Cindy and Pete Roberts of Charlton, and Steve and Tammy Connor of Virginia. Bill leaves behind his wife's Australian family; his father- and mother-in-law Brian and Lyn McBow, his sisters-in-law, Tamara and Megan, and his brother-in-law, Florian. He is also survived by many loving cousins and his nieces, Keira, Matisse and Amira.

Bill graduated from Shepherd Hill Regional High School in 1993, and lived most of his life in Dudley. He lived six years in San Diego where he proudly served in the Navy as an IC2 from 93 to 99, and during the Persian Gulf War. He was a Plankowner aboard the USS Harpers Ferry. It was during his final Navy WESTPAC that he met the love of his life. Bill was a devoted husband, father and family man. As his uncle stated, it must have taken an Army of angels to pull him away from Stacey and their munchkins. Bill loved to play video games with his son, Will, listen to rock music with his daughter, Aurora, and ride rollercoasters with his daughter, Arabella. He enjoyed camping and fishing with his family and parents. Bill was easily one of the funniest people to grace this world, and was always joking and entertaining others with his quick wit. He was a friend to all, and loved deeply by many. He will be missed beyond measure.

Fair winds and following seas. Rest easy, Bill, we now have the watch.

The funeral will be held at 11:00am on Wednesday, July 26 at the First Congregational Church of Dudley, 135 Center Rd., Dudley, MA with Pastor Gil Parmley officiating. A burial will follow at Waldron Cemetery, Dudley, with Military Honors. Calling hours will be Tuesday, July 25, from 6 to 8 PM at Bartel Funeral Home and Chapel, 33 Schofield Ave, Dudley, MA. In lieu of flowers, the family would like you to consider donating to the Lavigne Children Educational Fund, C/O Cornerstone Bank, POB 340, Southbridge, MA, 01550.

Anyone who is a childcare provider to multiples is welcomed and the meetings are held on the second floor of the building of the old school house.

HELP FOR HELPERS: Do you have a family member struggling with addiction or alcoholism? You are not alone. Join Families Helping Families Support Group. Meetings at Dudley Senior Center every first and third Monday of the month, 6:30-8 p.m. We spend so much time with our addicted loved one, that we become victims ourselves. Join us. It's informal, confidential, with tough love advice from the heart, sharing of resources, hope and hugs.

HOLISTIC HEALTH: Chair Yoga and so much more every Tuesday from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. at The First Congregational Church, 135 Center Road, Dudley (please park and enter through the right side basement entrance). Class Fee: $5/ class voluntary contribution (Cancer patients always free). Proceeds donated to the First Congregational Church of Dudley. Instructor: Joanne LaLiberte, Holistic Health practitioner. This class of chair yoga is to expand the lungs and strengthen all the body's major muscle groups, for stability and mobility, balance, increasing flexibility, muscularity of hip and legs and increasing range of motion with our "rear view mirror" twists. We work through the entire body, quieting the nerves, relieving stress, realigning posture and we leave renewed. Chair yoga is open to adults of all ages. It is kept light-hearted with respect for every member of the class. We honor the body as it is right now and work to improve its overall health. We come to class as individuals and leave as family. Get to know yourself through the eyes of chair yoga and build a body that serves you better. Wear comfortable clothing. 415 BUSINESS SERVICES

Seeking area residents interested in having an on-site, professional review of their private wells. This service is grant funded by the USEPA. It is free and is confidential. Many times well owners are unaware of the possible causes of contamination in their wells. Older wells may not be sealed properly near the surface or their source of water may be shallow and influenced by things like feedlots, septic systems, or nearby land uses. Many things at or near the surface could impact the water quality of a well. This assessment provides you a comprehensive evaluation of the possible causes of contamination at or near your well to help you understand what possible risks and vulnerabilities you should be aware of that might impact your drinking water. The assessment considers site conditions, geology, land use practices, well construction, and maintenance to provide you with a detailed list of things, if any, that could impact your well water quality. The results will provide you a list of possible concerns, if any are found, and recommendations and best practices that will help you keep your well and your family safe from well contamination.
