Prather plants a church in Putnam

BY AMELIA MCDADE
FOR THE VILLAGER

PUTNAM — Riley Prather was raised a Christian in a small town in southwest Oklahoma — with just 34 kids in his high school's graduating class. A crossroad moment of faith hit when he was 15 years old. He decided if God was real and had intention for his life, that he would find it when the time came.

Time eventually transported Prather to Putnam. He established Green Valley Church six years ago. Originally the group started with a bible study at Victoria Station Café in Putnam. After finding a place to rent Prather held the church's first public service on Sunday Sept. 8, 2013 — with just nine people in attendance. Every Sunday the congregation would meet at Putnam Middle School where he unfolded Green Valley Church from a six-foot by 12-foot trailer — and then packed it back up after preaching.

"We ran up against a cultural expectation because the idea of church in most people's mind here in New England is a white building with a steeple and stained glass," said Prather, "Which is funny because that's exactly what I didn't want people to think about but when I got here and realized unless you have a building with a sign on it, you're not legitimate."

After a little over a year at the middle school, on Dec. 14, 2014, he preached at his new, and current, location for the first time. The building once known as The Complex became the new location for Green Valley Church.

himself at a leadership discipleship camp where he discovered that his purpose in life would be best spent serving others. His life became a series of moments of God asking him to do something — this led to working for a summer at a church helping youth and children. He attended the University of Science and Arts of Oklahoma where he majored in Business Administration on a golf scholarship. He earned a Master of Divinity degree in Biblical Languages from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Right out of college he became a full time youth minister and learned about Church Planting from a connection that lived in Norwich. Church planting is

THOMPSON — Tourtellotte Memorial High has a new scholarship. Kirsten Johnson has opened a fund in memory of her daughter, Jade Nicholls, a 2014 graduate who was lost to suicide in July of last summer.

The Jade Ariel Nicholls Memorial Scholarship will award $1,000 this June to a TMHS senior planning to attend a two- or four-year college this fall. All seniors are eligible to apply but Johnson is looking for the applicant who most closely exemplifies the paths and promise Jade possessed in her years as a student. Those who walked in her memory at the 2018 "Out of the Darkness Walk to Fight Suicide" in Woodstock are called "Jade's Angels."

Johnson said her daughter was outspoken, smart, talented, diverse in her school and community involvement, and a genuine, caring person.

"I always say, 'Be the Light.'"

Be kind to those that you meet because you never know what they are struggling with. It takes little to no effort to pay someone a compliment and it could be the difference in their day. If you see someone struggling, help them. If someone mentions they are depressed or suicidal, take it

KILLINGLY — The Killingly Quiet Corner Regional Lions Club spent last weekend collecting donations for the Friends of the Assisi Food Pantry. On Saturday, March 30 and 31 they collected outside of local grocery stores.

This was the Quiet Corner Lions Club's first year doing this fundraiser. According to President Tom Kohl, this is the time of year when the food pantries in the Quiet Corner need donations the most.

During the holidays, people are quick to donate food. But once the holiday supplies start to dwindle in the spring, the food pantries suffer.

Unfortunately, people never stop needing food.

"The food pantry serves about 120 people every week," said Kohl. "It provides a lot of food for homeless people. There's a very high population of homeless people in the area. Some people are disabled and not able to work. Or

The cookie season crumbles

THOMPSON — All good (and yummy) things must come to an end. Spring begins as Girl Scout cookie season winds down for Troop 65117. The troop's last day selling cookies at the Thompson Transfer Station was on Saturday, March 30 — and the girls put forth their best efforts to attract new customers to the table, cheering and waving their green Cookie Pro flags. According to Troop Leader Jessica Bolte the troop aims to sell around 200 boxes per scout member every season to help cover costs associated with running the local all-girls adventure program.

As noted on the Girl Scouts of Connecticut website, "When you buy a box of delicious Girl Scout Cookies, you're powering amazing, year-round experiences for every G.I.R.L. (Go-getter,

Hayes and Dauphinais visit Killingly fire site

KILLINGLY – State Representatives Anne Dauphinais (R-44th District, Killingly) and Rick Hayes (R-51st District, Putnam/Thompson) spent Monday afternoon speaking with Killingly’s Fire Marshall and Town Manager about the recent fire that destroyed a local mill and to offer their support moving forward.

Both Dauphinais and Hayes joined Randy Burchard, Town Fire Marshall, and Mary Carlio, Killingly Town Manager, at the site to the former Acme Cotton Mill for an onsite evaluation and see the extent of the damage caused by the fire.

“I want to commend all of the fire departments who came together to not only keep this fire contained, but also for keeping the surrounding residents safe,” Dauphinais said. “A fire of any magnitude is awful and the timing of this one is frustrating given the redevelopment for this building was actively underway.”

“I want to do anything I possibly can to assist the Killingly Fire Marshall and the Town of Killingly,” Hayes said. “After having spent over 30 years as the Thompson Fire Marshall and with the Putnam Fire Department, I know first-hand the amount of work that goes into handling and working these types of incidents.”

The mill had recently been purchased and the development of this property was part of a larger economic project for the town of Killingly. Cleanup of the property had been underway and plans for the mill included building several apartment type units. Additionally, there were hopes to retain the building over the water for restaurant or commercial possibilities. Rep. Dauphinais said they have already reached out to DEEP regarding the cleanup.

Fairy Fest set for downtown Putnam

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — Downtown Putnam has become known for its fairy doors over the years. These whimsical creations have become an attraction, making appearances at the town's First Friday celebrations. And now, Putnam is hosting its first ever Fairy Fest on April 13.

The upcoming celebration has already made waves on Facebook. Over 74,000 people have engaged with a story about the story behind the fairy doors.

Now, Putnam's mayor is making April 13 Fairy Day forevermore.

At 11:30 on April 13, the Fairy Godmother will be picked up in a Cinderella-style horse and carriage. She will be driven up Main Street, where she will be greeted by the mayor. A proclamation will be read.

Later, the carriage will be available for rides by Cargill Falls. And the Fairy Godmother will read stories to children on Main Street.

The Fairy Fest will also feature the infamous Fairy Door map, so kids can go and find the different fairy doors throughout downtown. This is an event worthy of visitors on its own. Last year, Putnam had people come all through August to find fairy doors. They printed out 1,800 maps last year.

"Adults did it, too," said Flying Carpet owner and the event's organizer, Ann Monteiro. "It's fun to watch from my store window. People were dressed up as fairies, and we encourage people to do that for this event, too."

Even though the fairy doors are a draw all on their own, that's far from all that is at the Fairy Fest. There will also be 30 fairy-themed vendors. There will also be a wood carver, creating a seven-foot dragon. A harpist will be playing ethereal music of the Putnam Fairies at the Montgomery Ward building, which will also have an art installation, the Magical Fairy Library, inside.

Live entertainment will be in downtown throughout the Fairy Fest, including a Fairy Hoola Hoop dance party hosted by Emmy Lu from Boston. There will also be a strolling puppeteer.

Many shops are also doing special things within their shops. August & March is doing custom fairy portraits, drawing you as a fairy cartoon.

Skeeters Toy Box has fairy-related costume accessories for boys and girls. Flying Carpet has handmade tiaras and gardens and ornaments. At Victoria Station Cafe, take classes on making a felted fairy. Paint your own fairy house at Sawmill Pottery. Book fairy birthday parties at The Courthouse, or a fairy tea party at Windows Art Gallery. You can also decorate an Easter Egg at the Congregational Church.

Adults are encouraged to dress up for Fairy Fest as well. Adults who are dressed up can go to The Crossings during Happy Hour to get some free homemade station chips.

"People are really interested in fairies. It's very popular right now," said Monteiro. "But we've also been getting a reputation as the town with the fairy doors and gardens. All the stores participate, which is wonderful. It supports the whole festival, making it more fun for everybody."

If you follow Fairy Fest on Facebook, you can also enter the Fairy Garden Contest. Enter a fairy garden that will be voted on by the community. A fairy garden is a garden, said Monteiro, except "very, very tiny." They speak to the mischievous ways of fairies, since they pop up all over the store windows in downtown Putnam.

These kinds of events – that engage the shops and celebrate the community – are what it's all about in Downtown Putnam, said Monteiro.

"Art and tourism are an amazing couple," she said. "When you bring art to a downtown Main Street, it turns it into such a lively place. Putnam is surviving because we all banded together. Each one of these events just keeps bringing people back to see the artwork, the creativity, enthusiasm. It's good for all of us."

Lambert is Day Kimball Employee of the Month

PUTNAM — Katrina Lambert, Project Manager for Day Kimball Healthcare’s Information Technology Department was named employee of the month for February by Day Kimball Healthcare.

Lambert, who has been in the healthcare field for seventeen years, began working for Day Kimball Healthcare in 2010 when it acquired Danielson Medical Associates where she was employed as a medical secretary. She worked as a medical assistant for DKH until 2013 before transferring to the Day Kimball Medical Group as a clinical trainer. In December 2015, Lambert transitioned into her current role as IT Project Manager.

In her role, Lambert works in collaboration with all IT project teams and project stakeholders and is accountable for managing all detailed components of major IT related projects.

“My goal every day is to support my team, whether that is coordinating office moves, ordering equipment, or organizing work spaces,”

Lambert said. Additional responsibilities include tracking and monitoring all IT project requests and ensuring DKH priorities are met by coordinating resources based on project needs and requirements. “I believe that I can speak for the entire IT department in saying that we are all very proud of Katy and this well-deserved award. Katy always goes above and beyond in everything she does, in her professional and personal life. She often goes out of her way to ensure that the user community we serve at Day Kimball is well taken care of and working safely and efficiently. Katy is a very valuable member of my team and the DKH family,” said Lambert’s supervisor, Patrick Clifford Jr., Information Technology Manager for Day Kimball Healthcare, “I am humbled that my contributions to DKH are appreciated. I have a very hard time accepting praise and will often avoid situations that it might happen to come up. So this is a really big challenge for me, but I know it’s important to step outside of my comfort zone,” Lambert said. “I love solving problems, coming up with new ideas, and helping others do their job as easily as possible. I enjoy seeing a plan come together, problems solved, and ideas put into practice.”

She resides locally with her husband and two children. Lambert is very active in her religious faith and in her spare time enjoys painting, drawing, and dabbling in other artistic activities.

Retirement workshop scheduled in Putnam

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — Mark your calendars, Matulaitis is hosting a “Retirement Planning Workshop” on Wednesday, May 15, in its auditorium on 10 Thurber Road. According to Administrator Lisa Ryan, the free event is one of the ways they have reached out to the community.

“There’s a lot of confusion when people come in about what their benefits cover, or how to spend less,” said Ryan.

For that reason, they have gathered a group of experts to create a helpful panel for not only patients and their families, but anyone in the community who may have questions for an attorney, a financial expert, an insurance representative, a realtor, or a chiropractor.

The attorney will be answering questions about wills and health care proxies, and the financial expert will be discussing long-term care planning. The insurance representative will be there to help with life insurance questions. The realtor will discuss what happens to people’s properties and estates when they retire or go into a nursing home. The chiropractor will be discussing health and wellness while taking care of a loved one.

According to Ryan, there will be a short presentation from each expert, followed by time for questions. After, there will be networking, refreshments, and time for one on one discussions.

“The community gives us a lot,” said Ryan. “We’ve been here for over 50 years and we want to be a good community partner. We want to give back in different ways.”

Some of Matulaitis’ other community outreach includes participating in food drives and toy drives every year. They donate turkeys on Thanksgiving to Putnam’s Food Bank. They also open up their auditorium for blood drives.

By reaching out to the Putnam Business Association, Matulaitis has continued to offer fundraising and support for a variety of local events and programs. For more information on the retirement workshop, call 860-928-7976.

the practice of establishing a new congregation in an area.

He knew of a few families who had moved to this region and he and his wife were handed the keys to a car, told to check out Putnam, a town they instantly fell in love with.

They decided to give the town a shot and plant their new ministry, Green Valley Crossing. The name comes from its location here in the Last Green Valley and the crossroad of faith that one reaches in life — “Do you believe in Jesus or not?” — Riley wanted to start a church where all people could feel comfortable, whether they were religious or not.

“I want people to know that Green Valley Crossing is a safe place for them to go, that we don’t care if you are religious or aren’t religious, spiritual or not spiritual, but we just want people to know that there’s a place for them to go,” says Prather.

On Sunday, April 21, at Putnam Middle School’s auditorium, Prather will preach Easter service at 10 a.m. and invites all to join. Last year Green Valley had 308 people in attendance for Easter Sunday. This is a family integrated service. Tickets may be reserved at easterinputnam.com or right at their Putnam church, located at 95 Front St, Putnam, services at 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.

Pomfret man is made of iron

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

POMFRET — Some people run. Some people bike. Some people swim. And some people do all three. And then there's people who do Ironmen triathlons. One hundred and 40 miles total, Ironmen are comprised of a 2.4-mile swim, a 112-mile bike ride, and a full marathon of 26.2 miles.

Richard Schad of Pomfret is looking to do his second Ironman on July 28 in Lake Placid. He wants to beat his old time of 12 hours and 48 seconds.

This is your second time doing an Ironman. What is making you do this again?

Just after I finished, I told my father that I never wanted to do another one again. But I woke up the next morning and thought, 'I think I could!' I started thinking about it, and the conditions the day we raced was terrible. It was 60 degrees, 30 mph winds, raining... Dreadful when you're on a bike. It's already a tough event, but that made it even more challenging. I'd like to go back and do it again, now that I know the course, and hopefully get better conditions, and an even faster time.

How do you feel about working out for basically 13 hours straight?

It was an amazing accomplishment. It was one very long day. That's how I would describe an Ironman. A lot of it is physical preparation. But as you get late in the race, particularly the second half of the marathon run, it's a lot of mental strength. To just keep making your legs move. You're tired, you're sore. I actually had to, out loud, say, 'You need to start running now.'

Wow, that's intense. You're pushing yourself that much. How did you prepare for that physically and mentally?

Everybody has their own preparation technique for a big event. For me, it really was a 10-month plan, where I gradually increased the volume of workouts in run, swim and bike. You have to be very careful, not to get hurt, especially as you become older. It's very easy to get hurt. A little side story, a month before Lake Placid I was doing a local sprint triathlon and ended up pulling a hamstring.

That is terrible timing. You must have been really scared.

It kind of gave me a reset. Luckily I was as trained as I needed to be by that point. But I went to sports medicine in West View and worked with an expert there, rehabilitating the muscle. They were amazing in how they work with athletes. I felt great on race day and everything went great.

That's amazing. So what are your goals going into this second Ironman?

My first goal would be to do it somewhat faster than I did it last year. But there's an added incentive this year that two of my friends are competing in the same race, one who has never done an Iron Man. It's entirely likely we'll see each other out of the course. That's pretty powerful.

Why do you say that?

The other advantage to being at the event with other people racing is that you'll pass people a few times. It's very nice to see a familiar face out on the course. Somebody who can say, 'Keep going!' Or to cheer you up. Maybe even walk with you to get you back on track for a little bit.

Wow, that's awesome. That could make all the difference.

The environment at Lake Placid is just very special. The race finishes on the Olympic Oval from the 1980 Olympics. They have the Olympic Torch actually burning. The crowds are amazing there. They line Main Street and cheer you on through the whole thing.

That must feel amazing. What made you decide to start working out?

I used to travel a lot for work. When you travel for work you usually end up eating bad food. You're staying in hotels. I started running a lot, because it's convenient. Just throw on a shirt and shoes and shorts. I would run in a bunch of different cities, Paris, Chicago, San Francisco.

So you really became dedicated to running.

That led me to buy a bicycle. I hadn't had a rode bike since I was 16, a 10 speed. I got involved with the local cycling club, QV Velo. I made a bunch of new friends and really fell in love with riding bikes. Of the three sports, that's definitely my favorite.

How do you like working out in the Quiet Corner?

We're really lucky in our area. We have a very good adult fitness culture in Northeast Connecticut. There's a swim group that meets at the YMCA. There's running groups. I think that's the most powerful part. One of the reasons I like biking is that you can have a conversation as opposed to running. There's a great support network. There's social events. Group rides. It really makes you want to go do it. Training for an Ironman, you have to go out and bike 100 miles a few times. That can be boring alone.

I can't even imagine.

What is your advice for people who are interested in doing their own triathlon?

I don't recommend starting with an Ironman. There are a few local sprint triathlons, that take about two hours to complete. Day Kimball puts one together in August. That would be a great first event. It's very friendly. Find one of the three sports that you particularly like. Start doing that fairly regularly. Then add on the others.

JADE ANGELS

seriously," Johnson said. "For Jade specifically — light a candle, walk with Jade's Angels in the suicide prevention walk in September, mention her name and tell stories of her often so her memory lives on. Finally, support education in your community and schools so tragedies like these can hopefully be avoided."

During her years in high school Jade "really came into her own," said Johnson, from North Grosvenordale. "She found her voice and wasn't afraid to use it. She wasn't 'into' sports, but she did track and soccer for a year and played basketball one year as a birthday present to me."

She was a participant in FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America), a member of the National Society of High School Scholars, selected for the Hugh O'Brien Youth Conference, a member of the diversity club, drama club, and video club and served on both the prom and yearbook committees. Jade enjoyed volunteering in the TMHS Guidance Office as well as at local cat shelters. As noted on the scholarship's official application, "Jade was a well-rounded person with an amazing sense of humor and a dedication to making others feel accepted and valued."

Johnson will be paying close attention to how applicants answer the application's main directive: 'Explain your passions and goals in life and how you feel your time at Tourtellotte has helped you realize these goals.'

"Ultimately, I would like the individual to concentrate on something that Jade was passionate about: Veterinary, graphics/fine arts, or gaming. Students who pursued sports, activities and volunteer opportunities will be given preference," Johnson said. "However, these qualities are not mandatory."

She will also be looking for a little wit and humor, two of Jade's prominent qualities, promising to give "bonus points if you can me laugh."

Though bittersweet, Johnson was proud to announce that $5,000 has already been raised for the fund, securing the scholarship for the first five years. Funds have been raised through various avenues, including raffles, direct donations, a paint-night and a GoFundMe page. Despite her fundraising success, Johnson's work is not done and there are already talks of future fundraisers.

"I'm humbled. I have struggled with ways to make the memories of Jade happy. There is a stigma surrounding suicide that just doesn't match with her personality, creativity and wit. She was a really special and unique person. The amount of support for this cause is truly amazing and I would like to thank everyone who has supported this. It is because of these supporters that the memory of her will be a positive one," Johnson said.

Johnson has recently become involved with the AFSP (American Foundation for Suicide Prevention) to help plan the next Out of the Darkness Walk and coordinate community and school-based education, including a presentation called "Talk Saves Lives" slated for this coming May, as well as other programs focused on teacher / faculty training and student education. Any educators interested in bringing these programs to their schools can contact Johnson via email at kirt13@sbcglobal.net.

Applications for the scholarship can be found at the Tourtellotte Memorial High School Guidance Office. Donations to the scholarship fund can be made at <https://www.gofundme.com/jade-ariel-nicholls-scholarship-fund>. The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline phone number is (800) 273-8255. Help can also be found at United Services, in Dayville and its phone number is (800) 774-2020. FOLK celebrates 20-year milestone KILLINGLY — Friends of Learning in Killingly – FOLK – reached an important milestone March 13, when they celebrated their 20th year of grant-making at the Town Hall by awarding $4073 to support 11 projects proposed and led by Killingly teachers. All five Killingly schools were represented among this year’s grant recipients: Christina Stravato of Goodyear Early Childhood Center; Ellen Huie of Killingly Central School; Lauren Konicki, Carol Records, Lisa Siegman, and Erin Sochor of Killingly Memorial School; teaching team Mike Morrill, Pam Ames, and Mike Eddy of Killingly Intermediate School; and Jim Hutson and Cheryl Wakely of Killingly High School.

On hand to honor this year’s teacher recipients were FOLK representatives, administrators, teachers and friends, KHS Technology Student Association members, Board of Education student representatives and Board of Education members, and a member of the Town Council.

Grants are made possible through the group’s FOLK Fund, an endowment initiative created in 1998 by members of the KHS Class of 1966 and managed by the Greater Worcester Community Foundation. Over the years the Fund has grown through donations from Alumni and friends, and more recently from local organizations that feel a connection to Killingly. Since 2000, FOLK’s continuing mission has been to inspire the love of learning in current and future Killingly children and youth by supporting innovative, enriching schooling initiatives. To date, FOLK has awarded 160 mini-grants with the common purpose of helping all students reach their full potential.

Each year teacher applications are reviewed by a team of volunteer FOLK Alumni and Killingly teachers, and final grant decisions are made by a subgroup of reviewers at the annual FOLK Advisory Committee meeting.

“This year we were also delighted to welcome three KHS seniors to the meeting: Terren Allen and Bryce Bentinck, who are the student members of the Board of Education, and their classmate Blake Wolanin,” said Committee Chair Janice Ahola-Sidaway. “In a few short months, these students will become KHS Alumni; and we wanted to provide them with an insider view of how FOLK functions. We hope that one day they and some of their fellow classmates will consider joining FOLK.”

This year’s grants include support for the Arts, traditional and cutting-edge science and technology initiatives, research tools, literacy, social studies and mathematics tools, and polling software to encourage classroom engagement.

Among the grantees was first-time FOLK award recipient, Christina Stravato, who received a $285 grant to create and maintain a hydroponic garden in her pre-school classroom at Goodyear Early Childhood Center. She plans to collaborate with her colleague Emily Ross, who has already created an outdoor garden at the Center, in part with support from a 2017 FOLK grant. Stravato and Ross plan to encourage the pre-schoolers to observe plant growth in the more traditional outdoor garden and the more unusual hydroponic garden. “For example, the hydroponic garden will provide an amazing view of the plants’ extensive root growth that remains hidden in traditional gardens,” said Stravato.

KHS teacher Jim Hutson received a $500 grant to help support his students to compete at the annual Technology Student Association’s (TSA) State and National conferences. This year’s State TSA Conference took place on March 23rd in West Hartford, and KHS students once again made Killingly proud. Of particular note was Senior Joey Raheb, who achieved first place in the mechanical engineering competition. Sophomore Taylyn Lemoine and Junior Kyle Keene were also elected to the State TSA Office team as Reporter and Sergeant at Arms, respectively. All three also qualify to compete at the National TSA Conference which takes place near Washington, DC in late June.

A $570 collaborative grant awarded to Killingly Intermediate teachers Mike Morrill, Pam Ames, and Mike Eddy means they can purchase two more cutting edge Oculus Go virtual reality goggles for their newly developed VR initiative. The initiative will enhance their yearlong exploration of global warming in their grade 7 science and STEM classes. For example, students are able to “virtually experience the Greenland ice sheet in dramatic detail and feel [the enormity of] the ice melt by virtually standing above the glacial rivers looking down into one of the thousands of mou- lins that have appeared on the ice sheet,” said Morrill. The VR goggles can be used for many disciplines, and more than 1000 apps are now available, with many of them available free of charge

Killingly students compete at Nichols College

DAYVILLE — Members of the Killingly High School Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) club, recently participated in a case study competition at Nichols College in Dudley, Massachusetts. Students worked in pairs and were given 20 minutes to analyze a business case study. They then shared their solutions with a judge in a 10-minute presentation which included impromptu questions from the judge.

Killingly’s Grace Cerbo and Taylyn Lemoine scored the highest and earned the First Place award for their efforts. High schools attending were Killingly, Tourtellotte, and Griswold. Vice President of the FBLA, Dylan McMerriman, also participated in the competition and was paired with a student from Tourtellotte. Dylan will be attending Nichols in the fall to major in Accounting and Finance.

Nichols College places a strong emphasis on supporting high school students in local communities and proudly offers several partnership programs. Last year, it deepened its commitment to partnering with high school DECA and FBLA groups: Individual high school students who participate in DECA or FBLA programs and enroll at Nichols are eligible to receive the newly created Business Forward Scholarship.

Painting program at Putnam library

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — One of the most popular programs at Putnam Public Library is back. On April 13 the library will host Painting with Patty. Hosted by Pat Jensen, participants will learn how to paint a spring-theme flower painting step by step, with one-on-one advice. “The best part about this is seeing how happy they are when they leave with their paintings,” said Jensen. “Some people show up and they’re a little nervous. But their paintings always come out great.”

Jensen said she often walks through-out the workshop and sees everybody’s personal style coming out. Everyone’s painting is different, and she encourages them to follow their instincts when it comes to their paintings. The classes are for beginners, said Jensen. They’re “fun painting,” not “fine painting.” Still, the classes are about learning new painting techniques and making something they can be proud of. And, most importantly, it takes away their initial fears. “A lot of people want to try painting, but they’re afraid,” said Jensen. “But when they sit down, all of their fears are taken away.” According to Library Director Priscilla Colwell, Jensen has been at the library for 30 years. When she started hosting these classes they easily started selling out. She now does them every few months. “People enjoy being creative with some guidance,” said Colwell. “We like to have programs of all different types. Health programs. Historical programs. Yoga. Meditation. This is just one of the things we have here. And people can’t seem to get enough of it, so we keep offering it.”

opening people’s minds, expanding their horizons, using their brains in new ways. “It’s good for them, and good for our community,” she said. “People are doing fun, creative, thoughtful things and I think it’s great for everybody involved.” Colwell is planning to join in on a painting session with her husband soon. Another painting event is also fast approaching, so mark your calendars. Putnam Public Library will hold a mother-child painting party for Mother’s Day, on May 11. The library did one last year, and people really enjoyed it. In fact, they requested to have another one. Working with the children’s librarian, the eight pairs will have fun painting together.

have minimum paying jobs.” The goal for the weekend was to simply collect as much as they could. But 300 to 400 pounds of food was ideal. “We appreciate all of the support,” said Kohl. “From what I’ve seen, this is such a giving community. We’ve always had support, like when we are collecting gift bags for the homeless. We have boxes in several different places, collecting food and clothing and toiletries. People are really responsive to that.” The Killingly Quiet Corner Regional Lions Club is a service organization that has the main goal of preserving sight. Kohl does vision screenings for school children. Last year, he saw 100 children. They also provide exams and glasses for children without insurance.

They also collect used eyewear. Worldwide, the Lions Club has done over 8.5 million surgeries to remove cataracts. Within the community, the Lions Club also supports the local fuel bank, providing heating oil for people in low income housing. Kohl joined the Lion’s in 1983. “The Lions is the only organization in the world where you can work your butt off to raise money, give it away, and feel good about it,” said Kohl. “It’s just satisfying. Not everybody is as lucky as I have been. It’s just a way to give back to people within the community. I had a lot of support from teachers growing up in this area. Scout leaders. It’s nice to give back.”

innovator, Risk-taker, Leader) extraordinaire in your community who sells them.” Troop 65117 covers the town of Thompson, Putnam, Woodstock and Killingly. Proceeds from this year’s cookie sales stay local, with a portion of the Daisies’ proceeds being donated to PAWS Cat Shelter of Woodstock, and a portion of the Brownies’ proceeds being donated to TEEG in Thompson to support local girls’ programming, according to Bolte. When asked what the current most popular flavor is, Bolte and cookie sales organizer Jonathan Benson pointed to the low supply of Samoas on the shelves, suggesting them as the winner. However, when surveyed, the Girl Scouts themselves clearly favor the Tagalongs. One Girl Scout, Payton Bolte, is a big fan of Savannah Smiles, and is disappointed that they are being discontinued and won’t be back on the tables next year. Scout Adeline Brousseau showed clear signs of being a future leader as she lined the girls up in front of the table for their photo and made sure her sister Alyzah’s name was spelled correctly. Together with other troop members, Troop 65117 closed out the 2019 season having sold 2,700 boxes of cookies giving them an approximate total profit of $2,400. It is clear this group of G.I.R.L.’s has what it takes to represent their troop proudly.

Moving Slowly in the Fast Lane

The world is moving at a faster pace than anyone living 20 or 30 years ago could have imagined.

In 1989, computers were the things teachers warned we'd never be able to "carry around in our pockets", so we still needed to learn advanced math functions. To see the weekly forecast, we had to either watch the 6 o'clock news or trust the printed version in the daily newspaper. To access facts and information, we visited the library. That was all fine with us. That was life.

In 1999, there were more and better computers, and the Internet (known then as the World Wide Web) was expanding steadily. Our access to this vast body of knowledge was through dial-up modems, waiting patiently for the ringing-static-beeping signal for a connection, and then waiting further for the page to "load". We'd scroll through the content and click on a hyperlink – repeating the process, as our desktop computer slowly accessed the new information. We were pretty happy with that. People with modems were cool. And it was so much faster than a trip to the library. Now we had instant info at our fingertips.

In 2019, our perception of "fast" and "instant" has taken on new meaning.

We are inseparable from our phones, our Kindles, our watches and our Fitbits. Need to know tomorrow's forecast? Glance at your Android. Did the Celtics win? Google it. When is the next band concert for the middle school? Check your calendar...on your phone. Need a new book to read? Download it. Could our 1999 selves ever have conceived of these things? Could we ever go back to our old perceptions of what constitutes "a long time"?

There are still things in life that cannot be rushed: long-simmered soups and stews; a hike through the forest; a conversation with a beloved friend; a long drive on a Sunday afternoon. In those moments, life slows down again. Where once speed was a luxury and a reason to be excited, now we crave the leisurely, unhurried pace of a day without our gadgets. We unplug and chill out. We remember to look up and around and take in our surroundings. Life slows down... for a while. Or at least until the alarm on our phone reminds us that it's time to get going again.

FROM THE PUBLISHER

I'll have the chicken

My husband and I are at a point in life where we prefer experiences to things. I am not a complete apostle of the Marie Kondo school of tossing out every item that in her words, doesn't "bring me joy, but I have been through enough transitions personally and in my family to know that things can be burdensome. Experiences on the other hand linger in the mind, in the heart, or in our case, in the stomach. We set off on food tours every chance we get and recently enjoyed one in Boston.

Spring gets off to such a slow, erratic start that we decided to escape the bonds of raking, head to the city, and indulge in our latest culinary interest, Japanese food. I prefer things that are cooked rather than raw, but I'm trying to expand my palate. I like the small portions, the array of dishes and the pace of a Japanese meal. From a crowded ramen bar in Newton to a fancy place in downtown Boston, we found what we wanted.

We also shared the first meal of our outing with a young couple. He was half Japanese and knew his way around the menu. His girlfriend, who owns a business that offers chocolate tours of the city, was knowledgeable and lively. We were delighted that they would spend part of a Saturday night with us. In food related businesses, young people often take the lead and we love to hear what they are thinking.

Opinion and commentary from the Quiet Corner

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Climate opinions should be based on facts

Having read a rambling letter by Gerry Renaud, on the issue of climate change (March 29, 2013 issue). A letter, I believe, filled with misinformation, sarcasm, and unsubstantiated allegations. Whatever one's opinions are on the issue of climate change, those opinions, should have some basis in fact; instead, Mr. Renaud sarcastically denigrates liberals, politicians and scientists, without setting out any reasons, or evidence, underlying his opinions.

To summarize Mr. Renaud's letter he suggests that advocating to control climate change causes hysteria, and that Democratic candidates are making millions by asking for help to stop climate change. He sarcastically denounces "liberal scientists" claiming scientists and politicians have fallen in line, perpetrating lies about climate change. Finally in his recap he misstates the data from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, (NOAA).

Here is a portion of what NOAA has reported:

NOAA specifically reports that the years 2015, 2016 and 2017 are the warmest on record. In 2017 the average temperature across land and sea was 1.51 degrees Fahrenheit above the twentieth-century average and that the average rate of temperature increase since 1980 has been twice as great, as in the preceding century.

NOAA also notes, it is estimated that 50% of the observed global warming is due to greenhouse gas increases. Through reconstruction of past climate we are able to evaluate the magnitude of this warming. Upon evaluating all the data, it becomes clear that the increase in carbon dioxide is unprecedented and well outside the range of natural variations. The recent increase of greenhouse gas matches the increase from fossil fuel emissions. It is no coincidence that the past four years also had the highest carbon dioxide emissions on record; there is little doubt these gasses contribute to global warming.

The third U.S. Climate Assessment suggests, climate change threatens human health and well being in many ways, including through extreme weather events and wildfire, decreased air quality and disease transmitted by insects, together with infrastructure damage by sea level rise, heavy downpours, and extreme heat.

All of which, if true, will cost the American taxpayer billions of dollars.

None of the studies and data presented claim that climate change is solely caused by us, but the data strongly suggests that we are at least a partial cause. It would seem logical that each of us would examine all information available including the scientific studies and come to an informed opinion, one way or the other. If the studies are correct and we are able to slow the progression of a warming planet, our great grandchildren might thank us.

As NOAA points out, abrupt climate change has occurred at many times in the past. Past human civilizations were sometimes successful in adapting to the climate changes and at other times, they were not.

An agreement between 196 nations to reduce greenhouse gasses, known as the Paris Accord was signed in 2015, with only 2 countries failing to sign: Nicaragua failed to sign the agreement, believing it wasn't tough enough, and Syria would not sign.

Although the United States has withdrawn from the Paris Accord, more than 193 other nations to the agreement are proceeding. As an example, Norway will ban gasoline and diesel cars within 6 years, France will end producing electricity with coal within 3 years and plans to ban gasoline and diesel cars within 20 years and the Netherlands will follow within 11 years and reduce greenhouse emissions by 95% within 30 years. All electric trains on the Dutch National rail network are powered by electricity produced by wind energy.

Are the 193 nations that are working to reduce their greenhouse gas output, wrong?

If we thought there was even the slightest possibility we might have a serious illness, would we simply belittle the doctors and do nothing, or would we at least examine the best information at hand to make an informed decision; one way or the other.

RAY CANNING
POMFRET CENTER

Climate change isn't a liberal issue

Last week's entry in the Climate Denial, or as its writer argues, hysteria denial exchange was a bit long. So, if you didn't have time to read it, here's a brief synopsis: The Liberals are just trying to scare some money out of you to prevent something that isn't really a problem and which we couldn't stop anyway.

There's no science in the letter; just the term "liberal" used ten times. I marvel at the swap in meaning of these terms, Liberal and Conservative.

The Liberals, in today's issues, want to conserve our natural surroundings and resources, avoid radical and dangerous change in the environment, pay the debts we've accepted as the money is spent, invest in our countries future by educating our young, and pay Constitutional attention to The General Welfare as well as The Common Defense.

Conservatives affirm the quickest possible extraction and spending of our store of fossil fuels, mineral deposits and ground water reserves, tax policies that balloon the national debt, and, of course, defiant rejection of the idea that we should have any concern for warnings of future disasters. Insurance used to be a conservative concept. No longer.

Climate change is no conspiracy

In his latest Letter to the Editor of March 29th, Mr. Gerry Renaud once again makes the case that the rising concern over man-made climate change and its devastating effects is the result of a conspiracy orchestrated by liberals, Democrats, scientists, professors, the government, Al Gore, democratic socialists, and other politicians, all of whom owe a great deal to Willie Sutton. Again, he offers no evidence to back that up.

In order to avoid rehashing the same points let me propose looking at our climate change dilemma utilizing the logic of Pascal's Wager. As Mr. Renaud may recall, Pascal's Wager was an argument that held that it made a whole lot of sense to believe in God because even if there were only a tiny chance that God existed there was little downside to believing in his existence: if he did exist, you had an incredible reward — everlasting life in heaven but if he did not exist, you didn't really suffer any penalty, you were just wrong. But, if you said he didn't exist and it turned out he did, then you'd spend the rest of eternity in hell.

I see the climate change argument as a kind of Pascal's Wager. Let's just say that there's a small chance that man-made climate change

"Probably won't happen," is now the conservative's plan.

My New England Republican father was socially liberal and economically conservative. Republican positions have reversed since Reagan and then Gingrich figured out that the Evangelicals and the Billionaires would give them the votes and money they needed.

Climate Change isn't a liberal/conservative discussion. These changes, which will make human life a little more difficult or perhaps impossible, don't care about our politics. I have plenty of conservative Republican allies in this issue of Climate Change. Science studies and predicts reality and reality doesn't vote by party.

The Green New Deal is burdened by extraneous issues like health care and jobs issues. The New York Times and the Washington Post have excellent editorials suggesting ways to deal with this most important issue of our time, on which issue our progeny will most unforgivingly judge us.

Financial literacy is financial freedom

ADVISER

Each month, we have discussed financial planning topics integral to any well-developed plan. So far, we have discussed the importance of beginning with the end in mind, tax considerations for your financial plan, and unique challenges women may face when saving. Throughout April, as a part of Financial Literacy Month, we want to talk about the basic principles you should understand in order attain financial freedom and be able to achieve your "Live Well" financial goals in your life.

Earn: The earn principle is about more than the amount you are paid through work. This principle is about knowing the fine print and details about your paycheck, including deductions and withholdings. In order to make the most of what you earn, it helps to understand your pay and benefits.

Without earning, you will not be able to save, allocate, and budget your money. If you can find other ways to increase your income like starting a business or owning properties, then you may be able to achieve your goals earlier than you anticipated.

Look over your paycheck and learn about the details of it, including any deductions. Review the taxes that are withheld, including Social Security and Medicare taxes. You should also take advantage of any workplace benefits if you are not doing so already.

Save and invest: Saving is imperative to understand. People who make a habit of saving regularly, even saving small amounts, are well on their way to achieve their goals. It's important to open a bank account or credit union account so it will be simple and easy for you to save regularly. You should also have an emergency fund to plan for life events and to be ready for unplanned or emergency needs.

Create a habit of saving, you can set up automatic deposits from your paychecks so you don't have to think about it. Out of sight, out of mind and you'll be more likely to not use it. Track the progress of your savings to the goals you set for yourself and monitor them each month. Another key to saving is to save early, big life events like retirement and children's education should be planned for well in advance to take advantage of the time value of money.

Protect: The protect principle means taking precautions about your financial situation. It stresses the importance of accumulating savings in case of an emergency, and buying insurance and being vigilant about identity theft.

It is important that you keep all your records in order and in a secure location. Be aware of your credit record and credit score. Watch out for suspicious emails like phishing scams or other frauds that could compromise your information.

A great way for keeping personal money records will include copies of important documents like your will, property ownership documents, information about savings and insurance, and other document. It should include overview of what happens to property after a major life event occurs. As for protecting yourself against, scams usually if it "sounds too good to be true," it is.

Fires claim two local historic structures

KILLINGLY
AT 300

Sad to say, the week of March 24, 2019 was not a good week for Killingly historically speaking. Not one, but two fires, claimed vacant historic structures in different parts of the town. The first fire, on Thursday, March 28 destroyed one of the downtown’s oldest buildings, a contributing part of the Danielson Main Street National Register Historic District, a Greek Revival-Italianate structure at the lower end of Main Street in Danielson (the millinery). The second, on Saturday, March 30 engulfed the old Acme cotton mill property at Bailey Hill and Valley Roads in East Killingly. The Historical or Architectural Importance of 58 Main Street Danielson, as given in an August 1991 historical survey by Bruce Clouette and Matthew Roth of Historic Resource Consultants had this to say, “This building has historical significance as an early part of Danielson’s commercial development. Used as a millinery shop from circa 1860 to the early 20th century, the building represents Danielson’s small shop era, around the time of the Civil War, when most enterprises occupied buildings similar in size, scale, and appearance to the houses of the period rather than large commercial blocks...The building is shown as the property of Dr. Samuel Hutchins in 1855 (Map of 1855) and as owned by milliner Mrs. E. Upham in 1869 (Gray’s Atlas of Windham and Tolland Counties)”. The April 28, 1853 Windham County Telegraph announced that Hannah Bennett had “opened a shop in the building known as ‘Dr. Hutchins’ office’, Danielsonville, where she will be pleased to show them some beautiful styles of silk, lawn, and straw bonnets. Also new patterns for dressmaking.” Several years later she was also advertising “ribbons, French flowers, Fruits, Embroideries, etc.” (WCTelegraph 4/8/1856). In 1866 Mrs. E. Upham purchased Bennett’s millinery stock (Windham County Transcript 1/4/1866). In 1870 the millinery was leased to Miss E. Raymond and Mrs. G. M. Clarke (WCTranscript 5/5/1870). By 1881 the building had ceased to be used as a millinery and “a new first class fish market has been opened in Mrs. Upham’s building by Providence parties” (WCTranscript 3/9/1881). In the 20th century it eventually housed apartments. The building was owned by Felix Dudek at the time of the fire. For a photo of the millinery see Images of America Killingly Revisited, by Natalie Coolidge, p. 57. Keep in mind that until the railroad opened in 1840, downtown Danielson did not exist as a commercial center. There were a few business establishments in the Westfield section of town (north of Killingly Memorial School) near the original Westfield Congregational Church. When the 58 Main Street building was constructed it was not far from the original Danielson cotton mills, the Danielson company store, other small businesses associated with the mill, Hutchins Tavern and the Ely store on Franklin Street. When it became a millinery, the shop made a necessary item of women’s apparel available locally. I’m old enough to remember when women always wore hats to church. Now, one rarely sees them. Main Street in Danielson has lost a reminder of a bygone era in both architecture and fashion. This past week’s second fire destroyed one of the older mills along the Whetstone Brook in Killingly. Constructed in 1846 by Henry Westcott and Thomas Pray, it was then in close proximity to the old wooden cotton mill of Judge Ebenezer Young, father-in-law of New York jeweler Charles Tiffany, and grandfather of renowned stained glass maker Louis Comfort Tiffany. Architecturally the new four story stone building was representative of the second generation of mills that were being built along the Brook, the first generation wooden ones being even more susceptible to fire than this one. Richard Adams has summarized the mill’s history in his booklet Mills Along the Whetstone Brook. Westcott and Pray produced cotton goods for three years then conveyed the property to John Burgess. “Burgess ran the factory until 1856, when he sold it to Mayhew Miller and Co., who in turn, leased the mill back to Westcott and Pray for the next three years. At the end of the lease, Miller and partner named Frank King ran the factory until 1869 when they sold it to one of the original builders Thomas Pray and Thomas Pray, Jr. While under the ownership of the Prays the boarding house was built, the mill was enlarged, the water power improved, and several new tenements were added. John L. Ross purchased the mill in 1874 employing 60 hands with a production rate of 25,000 yards of cotton sheeting per week. Ross ran the mill until 1899 when it was purchased by A. G. Bishop. By 1904 this operation had ceased, and the mill stood idle until 1907 when it was fitted up by the United Machine Tool Co. for the manufacture of wood working machinery. In 1910, the factory was acquired by the International Cotton Company. Four years later in 1914, it was purchased by the American Druggist Syndicate, then sold to the Aseptic Products Co. in 1918 and finally became the Acme Cotton Products Co. in 1925... In 1976 the Acme Cotton Products Co. built a new facility on Lake Road in Dayville but continued to use the old mill as a warehouse. The mill has been vacant for many years although at one time plans for rehabilitation had been in the works. I know many of you had family members who worked in the old Acme mill. Please share your memories and stories by emailing me or by calling the Killingly Historical and Genealogical Center. I will be happy to include some in future columns.

Genealogy Club: The next meeting of the Genealogy Club at the Killingly Public Library will be Saturday, April 13 from 10-11 a.m. Note that it is a week earlier in the month. Need help with roadblocks in your research? Come and see what ideas others have. All are welcome even if you have not attended previous sessions. Mark Your Calendars: Saturday, April 13, 9 a.m. The Killingly Conservation Commission is again offering its bus tour of Mills and Beyond, a repeat of its Back Roads of Undiscovered Killingly tours. This tour will focus on the mills along the Whetstone Brook as well as scenic vistas and an historic farm. Planned for April before the leaves pop out on trees, the stone ruins of old mills are more visible. Seating is limited. Reservations are required by Wednesday, April 10. concept of spending is to make a budget or a plan for using your money wisely. While you save for goals, it is also important to have a balance so you can enjoy things in the present. This is where budgeting comes in, It’s helpful to set short and long-term financial goals and manage your money to meet them so you can “Live Well” now and in the future. A good way to take control of your spending is to set the maximum amounts you plan to spend each week or each month. Once you’ve set the maximum, stick with your plan. It’s helpful to track your spending over a few weeks or months to get a handle on how you are using your dollars and cents. Look into using on-line systems or phone apps for keeping track of your spending – you will be amazed at what you’ll learn about your habits! Mint is one great budgeting app that is synchronized to your bank account so it can automatically track your spending and allows you to set budget amounts by category. Borrow: Sometimes it’s necessary to borrow for major purchases like education , a car, a house, or other major purchases. Your ability to get a loan generally depends on your credit history, and that depends largely on your track record at repaying what you’ve borrowed in the past and paying your bills on time. So, be careful to keep your credit history strong. Track your borrowing habits, and pay all your bills on time. You can check your credit score every four months from each of the major providers, a feature that is also included in the Mint budgeting app. Live well: Financial literacy is more than just being aware and understanding these principles about earning, saving, investing, protecting, spending, and borrowing. The key is to understand how it fits within your financial needs and goals. Knowing where everything fits you can create a plan that uses these principles to achieve your financial life goals. For example, earlier we discussed saving for major life events like retirement early in life. This is aligned to our January theme of thinking with the end in mind and allowing more time to save and build interest on your savings for each of your goals.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Climate change is acknowledged science

Whenever we encounter the word liberal used as a pejorative it is an indication that what follows may not be meticulously impartial. A prolific essayist in these pages and a confessed agnostic regarding the extent to which climate change is anthropomorphic, or caused by man, Mr. Gerry Menard does not remain unconvinced regarding the motives of those warning of the dangers posed by a warming planet. Absent a scintilla of supporting evidence, save the conspiracy theories and talking points of internet provocateurs and those with a vested interest in encouraging the use of fossil fuels, he is obliged to impugn the integrity and veracity of people who promote or accept what has become acknowledged science. Incontrovertibly, the role played by carbon dioxide generated by humans and the extent to which it contributes to rising world temperatures has been demonstrated. Some of the terms Mr. Renaud uses to describe the people, or the beliefs and actions of people who have risen beyond agnosticism to active endorsement, include fraudsters, hypocrites, chicken littles, inane opinions, goofiness, “crusade to screw America,” ignorant posturing, educated idiots, laughable lies, lying scaremongers and “agenda to destroy our country.” Given the above, a fact based discussion with this individual may be problematic. We may hypothesize that, somewhere, a role model for this type of insulting, abusive invective exists, but that would be mere speculation. Mr. Renaud does close on a positive note, however, thanking the Villager and its staff for allowing a civil conversation.

On Sunday we toured for 3 and a half hours through the south end of Boston. We started at a Cambodian restaurant and ended at a lively Cajun-Chinese place. The tour began and ended with cocktails and included enough food to allow me, if not my husband, to skip dinner. Some might not enjoy a spring roll, followed by a cookie, then fried plantains, a fancy cup cake, two cheeses and a glass of red wine with a finale of garlic noodles and Cajun mussels, but I loved it, if not on a daily basis. The same weekend we were sampling a variety of disparate items on our tour, New York Times columnist Frank Bruni was writing about how differently he approaches restaurant dining now that he is “older” (54 actually). I had to agree with him that as I have aged, I prefer a quieter venue where I can talk to the other people at my table. His article also reminded me of a friend who likes to be a regular at local places. Bruni says that older people are more likely to be regulars as they know what they like to eat and don’t mind having it often. Must be why I order so much chicken. Once I might have dreamed of skiing Tuckerman’s Ravine in springtime, although I really wasn’t a good enough skier, but now I’m looking at visiting a tulip farm in Rhode Island, picking an armload of daffodils in a friend’s garden and taking another food tour. I look forward to area restaurants hauling out the summer furniture so we can sit on the sidewalk and people watch. Fiddleheads, rhubarb and even shad roe will turn up on menus. Perhaps it is time for an enterprising person to start a food tour in our area. There are enough places to eat and drink and enough diversity to make it interesting. The tour might require a van to travel from place to place but there’s little traffic so it would be an easy trip. Experiences are better than most things and sharing food with interesting people brings real joy.

Knights and Putnam Boy Scouts have food drive

Boy Scout Troop 21 joined forces in March with Cargill Council 64, Knights of Columbus, to collect donations of money and non-perishable food.

PUTNAM —Putnam Boy Scout Troop 21 and Knights of Columbus Cargill Council 64 joined forces for their 11th annual food drive, collecting $1,761 and 2,984 pounds. The three-week effort began on March 9-10 when Scouts and Knights passed out hundreds of distinctive bright yellow plastic "Scouting for Food" grocery bags at the masses being celebrated at St. Mary Church of the Visitation in Putnam and Most Holy Trinity Church in Pomfret. The following weekend the drive was expanded to collections at the Putnam Baptist Church and the Congregational Church of Putnam.

Both the Knights of Columbus and Scouts BSA parent organizations have national food-collection programs for the needy. In 2009, that led to Cargill Council 64 and Troop 21 to start working together every year to assist local, needy people. Knights and Scouts trucked the food over to the local non-profit, non-denominational Daily Bread Food Pantry, operated by Interfaith Human Services of Putnam, located at the Living Faith United Methodist Church on Grove Street, and helped to bring it inside.

While the food has been given to Daily Bread, the money will be spent by Cargill Council in a dedicated program to provide food to needy people in the Putnam area.

"This program is an extension of what Cargill Council already does for the needy in our area at Christmastime," said Grand Knight Bergstrom. "Thanks to our generous donors we're able to expand our operation to helping people during the Easter season."

John D. Ryan, of Putnam, is both Troop 21's Scoutmaster and Cargill Council 64's Deputy Grand Knight.

"This is wonderful," Ryan said. "After a slow start because of our first weekend's snow, our Knights and Scouts came on strong, with over $1,700 and almost a ton-and-a-half of food collected. We're very grateful to the people of our community for making this possible. Scouts take an oath 'to help other people at all times,' and we're glad our Scouts could come out and do that."

Checks to help the effort may be mailed to Interfaith Human Services of Putnam, P. O. Box 281, Putnam, Ct., 06260.

Members of Putnam's Boy Scout Troop 21 took a break from loading a truck with food during their combined March 23 community collection.

Scout Raihden Albino and volunteer Janet Watson loaded distinctive yellow “Scouting for Food” bags into a truck.

Cargill Council 64 Knight of Columbus Jerry O'Brien helped a donor to put money in a donation bucket at Most Holy Trinity Church in Pomfret.

NOW soccer clinic in Thompson

THOMPSON —Northeast Opportunities for Wellness, Inc. (NOW) partnered with Challenger Sports to offer a Soccer Clinic at Tourtellotte Memorial High School in Thompson on March 24. Fifty-seven children participated in the clinic, learning a variety of skills in the sport of soccer. This clinic is a part of a series of free events hosted by NOW designed to introduce sports and wellness activities to children in the 10-town area of Northeast Connecticut.

A second free soccer clinic will be offered at Plainfield High School on April 6 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. The next clinic in the series is a Yoga Clinic that will be held at the Yoga Farm in Central Village on April 7.

The soccer clinic in Thompson provided an age appropriate introduction to the sport of soccer for participants ages 3 to 13. Working with instructors and players from Challenger Sports, a premiere soccer program, NOW provided participants with soccer skills and techniques through six skill stations that focus on ball handling and movement, running, and scoring.

A signature element of the clinic is additional skill stations run by NOW staff, focused on nutrition and fitness. For the Soccer clinic, NOW Program Coordinator Lindsay Lussier led participants through an agility obstacle course station, and NOW staff Tayler Shea and Alexandra Billings taught children the importance of a balanced diet with the NOW “My Plate” nutrition station. Local dairy farms affected by provisions linked to Farm Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Senators Chris Murphy (D-Conn.) and Richard Blumenthal (D-Conn.) joined a bipartisan letter led by U.S. Senators Debbie Stabenow (D-Mich.), Ranking Member of the U.S. Senate Agricultural Committee, and Roy Blunt (R-Mo.) urging U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue to prioritize the implementation of the dairy provisions in the 2018 Farm Bill.

As dairy farmers across the country continue to struggle from market instability, the 2018 Farm Bill dramatically expands support for dairy producers, providing flexible, affordable coverage options through the Dairy Margin Coverage program. Early analysis has shown that the improvements would provide much-needed financial support to dairy farmers – providing significant benefits for all operations and up to 5 times as much support for the smallest farms.

“The situation for dairy farmers is urgent,” the Senators wrote. “Although Dairy Margin Coverage is effective as of January 1, 2019, the government shutdown delayed action on 2018 Farm Bill implementation for over a month. During this time, dairy farmers have continued to face market instability and are struggling to survive the fourth year of sustained low prices.”

“The changes to the Dairy Margin Coverage program make it a much more flexible policy that will likely benefit many of the farmers who chose not to participate in the Margin Protection Program. The USDA should strongly encourage these farmers to consider Dairy Margin Coverage program,” the senators added.

“In the interim, we request that the USDA invest in outreach, training, coordination with partner organizations, and staffing to ensure that every eligible farmer receives personalized information about the new and improved options,” the senators continued.

The 2018 Farm Bill also made several other important changes to address the needs of dairy producers, including: a study on the feed components of the margin calculation, a provision to counteract the disincentive for milk donation, continuation of forward contracting, an update to the Class I pricing formula, and a partial refund or credits from premiums paid under the former Margin Protection Program.

NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM – Congregation B’nai Shalom celebrated its Purim Carnival on March 17. Purim is a Jewish holiday that celebrates the saving of the Jewish people from Haman, who was planning to kill all Jews back in the ancient Achaemenid Persian Empire. This story is recorded in the Book of Esther, and the holiday was on Wednesday, March 20, this year.

While Purim is a holiday with a message about resilience, said President of the Sisterhood Sue Stern, it’s also a day to dress up and be silly and have fun.

“Even when there’s evil in the world,” she said, “we don’t have to act that way ourselves.”

There are four traditions on Purim. The first tradition is to listen to the Book of Esther. The second tradition is giving gifts to people, which the temple did in the form of Purim baskets. The third is giving gifts to charity, so the congregation gave pasta to local food banks. The fourth and final tradition is a festive meal and they definitely did that, including homemade hamentashen, which the Sunday School children baked.

Rabbi Eliana Salk also came to the celebration, hosting a Purim Spiel for the congregation. They all took turns reading and singing the funny story.

“All of these things help you remember the story,” said Stern. “A tradition is dressing up as people from the Book of Esther, a book where we don’t read God’s name. This all stands for looking a little further than what you immediately see in front of you in life.”

The importance of the Purim story is reminding yourself that we must be strong and courageous and speak up when somebody is bullied or mistreated, said Stern.

“We want people to know they have an impact,” she said. “You always want to remember beyond yourself and remember that no matter what struggles you have, there will always be others who have worse struggles.”

That’s one reason they reach out to the community by donating to the food bank.

Photos of the Purim Carnival on March 17.

“Community is tops,” Stern said. “You need community. You’re your best self in your community. You support others and they support you. The sum is greater than the little parts.”

Coming together to celebrate Purim is just part of keeping Jewish traditions alive, which is important to the Jewish community in the Quiet Corner. It’s about their roots and their identity. It helps them understand where they came from and be proud of who they are.

“When my family first moved here,” Stern recalled, “I met so many nice people at the synagogue. I fell in love with it and the lovely people within it. When I saw that I could make a difference by being involved, that was important to me.”

New hurler in top spot for Killingly

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

PUTNAM — Lexie Brunet has waited patiently for her turn. For the last three seasons Ashley Veillette was at the top of the pitching rotation for Killingly High’s softball team. With Veillette off to college, Brunet earned the start on opening day last Saturday afternoon when the Redgals traveled to Putnam to face the Clippers.

Veillette, a junior, has been a spot starter and valued reliever for Killingly since her freshman season. But it’s a whole different ballgame when you’re the pitcher your team is counting on day in and day out.

“It’s definitely a lot of pressure. Now I have to be someone in the middle of the circle bringing everybody else up and making sure I’m doing my part. Whereas last year I would just be like ‘Oh, it’s all on Ashley,’” Brunet said. “And now it’s like ‘Come on Lexie. You’ve got to hold us together.’”

Brunet held together well enough against Putnam High on March 30, surrendering a pair of first-inning runs but bouncing back to strike out 10, walk four, and allow three hits over seven innings in Killingly’s 9-2 victory at Owen Tarr Field. Brunet survived a shaky start in the bottom of the first inning — she yielded a walk, a single to Celenia Lopez, and a two-run double to Jillian Gray before settling down.

“Today we got a little ahead of ourselves thinking that we were going to take a win easily. Putnam showed us today they weren’t scared of us,” Brunet said. “We came out here today thinking we were going to step on their throats until Coach told us to let off.”

Brunet gave up just one hit over the final six innings as Killingly rallied from a 2-1 deficit. Killing coach Lance Leduc wouldn’t have given Brunet the job if he didn’t think she was up to the task.

“I’ve got a lot of confidence in Lex. Today she started off a little rough those first couple innings. It’s the first game of the year, right? I don’t know if it was jitters, because she hasn’t pitched that many innings yet,” Leduc said. “We’ve had her pitch probably almost every other day (in practice) for the last two weeks so she’s pitched plenty. But it’s different once you’re in that first game. And it seemed like the first couple innings she had a hard time finding that zone.”

Trailing 2-1 in the top of the fourth, Emma Carpenter’s two-run single gave the Redgals a 3-2 lead. Killingly broke the game open with a four-run, sixth inning rally and added two more runs in the top of the seventh.

“We came out slow. By about that third inning we started catching up to their pitcher, figured out what their pitcher had. And then our bats came alive,” Leduc said. “They kept chipping away and chipping away, kept fighting.”

Against Putnam, Mackenzie Jackson went 2-for-4 with four RBIs including a three-run double in the fourth inning. Jackson, a junior catcher, bats third in the Redgals order.

“Every time (Jackson’s) up I just have so much confidence,” Leduc said. “She’s in that three-hole for a reason. Since she was a freshman she’s been batting either first or third for me. And now she’s a junior and she’s ready, especially offensively, to put this team on her back.”

Lexi Faucher went 2-for-4 and scored two runs for Killingly. Gabby Boucher finished 2-for-3 with two RBIs and Brianna Caffrey knocked a triple for the Redgals. Putnam’s Abby St. Martin took the complete-game loss, striking out five, walking six, allowing nine hits and nine runs, five earned.

Coach Leduc was glad

Putnam softball embarks on ECC season

Putnam High's Abby St. Martin pitches against Killingly High last Saturday, March 30, at Owen Tarr Field.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

PUTNAM — One popup was all it took to pop Putnam High's balloon on opening day. An infield popup that eluded the Clippers in the top of the sixth inning led to four unearned runs in Killingly High's 9-2 victory over Putnam last Saturday at Owen Tarr Field.

With Killingly batting and holding a 3-2 lead in the top of the sixth inning with one out, Brianna Caffrey popped up a pitch and the infield fly rule was called just before the popup fell inside the first base bag — the Clippers then failed to cover home plate and allowed Lexi Faucher to score from third base.

"A run scored there ... one of those learning experiences from the first day playing on Owen Tarr in March," said Putnam coach Jon Miller. "Unfortunately the mental mistakes hurt us."

One batter later and with two outs in the sixth, Killingly's Mackenzie Jackson knocked a three-run triple to push the Redgals lead to 7-2. Killingly added two runs in the top of the seventh inning with the help of bunt to complete the scoring.

"One again mental mistakes hurt us in the seventh. There was no communication on a bunt — two girls ended up at the ball, neither of them made the play," Miller said. "That's when you go from 3-2 to 9-2 and the score looks way different than the game was."

Despite the loss Miller is optimistic as the Clippers enter their first season of competition in the Eastern Connecticut Conference.

"We're light years ahead of where we expected to be at this point after one game," Miller said. "We're ready to go right from the get-go."

The Clippers have a new look this spring. Putnam's lineup is infused with four freshmen starters and sophomore right-hander Abby St. Martin returns to the pitching circle after starting all last season. Martin has prospered from her year of experience in the circle.

"She is physically just stronger than she was last year. Small things we're fixing and adjusting right now. Last year everything was learning — how do you pitch in high school softball? — now it's just making adjustments to make you even more effective," Miller said. "She is so far ahead of where she expected to be, where we all thought she was going to be. Compared to last year she's a different person."

Junior shortstop Jillian Gray smacked a two-run double for the Clippers in the bottom of the first inning to give

Putnam High's Jillian Gray pulls into second base after doubling home two runs against Killingly High in the first inning last Saturday, March 30, at Owen Tarr Field.

Putnam a 2-1 lead against the Redgals. St. Martin took the complete-game loss against Killingly High — striking out five, walking six, allowing nine hits and nine runs, five earned. But until the wheels came off in the sixth inning she had struck out three and scattered five hits over the first five innings.

"Coming into the sixth inning she was throwing 68 percent strikes," Miller said.

Four freshmen starters for Putnam High include catcher Celenia Lopez, second baseman Autumn Allard, center fielder Reagan Boledovic, and left fielder Emma Barbeau.

"We have seven freshmen overall. This group of girls I've been watching play in middle school the last couple years. I knew they were coming up," Miller said.

Putnam High is next scheduled to travel to Parish Hill on Friday, April 5.

Woodstock Centaurs have surplus of arms

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

WOODSTOCK — Woodstock Academy coach Brian Murphy knows he can never have enough pitching. But Murphy and the Centaurs appear to have no shortage of arms as they embark upon the baseball season.

"You've got to be deep," Murphy said. "We're probably seven or eight deep that can pitch. If we're going to be successful, you have to pitch."

Woodstock defeated Capital Prep 32-2 last Saturday, March 30, in its season opener at Bentley Athletic Complex. After a soggy March and a late snowfall, the game against Capital Prep was the first time the Centaurs had played on their varsity ballfield at the complex, either in a game or at practice.

"This is the first time we're on our field. It's great to be out here," Murphy said. "You have to be creative. We're very fortunate here at Woodstock. We have two campuses and we have batting cages at both campuses. We also have turf fields. They do a tremendous job getting those fields ready, those turf fields, so we can run our hitting stations inside, do our fielding outside even when it's cold. But it is a challenge. You've got to be resourceful. We're very fortunate here at Woodstock to have a couple turf fields."

Despite the weather coach Murphy has a sunny disposition as the Centaurs begin the season in the Eastern Connecticut Conference's Division 2.

"We've got some high expectations. I think we're going to be a little deeper pitching. We're going to be young but I've got some kids who've played a lot of baseball," Murphy said. "Obviously our No. 1 goal is to win our division in the ECC. It's tough. We've got Ledyard. You have Bacon, New London, and ourselves."

Among the hurlers

coach Murphy has at his disposal are seniors Luke Mathewson, Eric Preston, Pete Spada, and Matthew Moffitt; juniors Tommy Li, Travis White, and Matt Roethlein and freshmen Jonathan Smith and Brendan Hill.

One of the reasons Murphy is optimistic overall is because many of his players have worked their way up to the Centaurs roster from local youth baseball programs or from the American Legion programs at Tri-Town or Danielson. Among the youth programs are the Connecticut Mustangs, a team for players ages 8 through 13, which Murphy coached for seven years.

"You've got some local travel teams, the Connecticut Mustangs are one of them, it's probably one of the best things that's happened to this area. So now it looks like we've got a little feeder system and I'm starting to see the fruits of that labor. But the other big important thing is you've got a good Legion program in Danielson and you've got Tri-Town, another great program that added a second junior team," Murphy said. "So we're starting to see some kids now that are ballplayers, that just don't play seasonal, they play summer ball, they play fall ball, and that's going to improve our program."

Woodstock is next scheduled to play host to Killingly High on Friday, April 5, with the first pitch set for 4 p.m. at Bentley Athletic Complex. Perhaps Murphy had to worry about the weather this spring but he had no qualms about his pitching staff. His forecast called for a competitive season in the ECC.

"It's great," Murphy said. "It's time to play ball."

Charlie Lentz may be reached at (860) 928-1818, ext. 110, or by e-mail at charlie@villagernews-papers.com.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Llewellyn N. Winslow, 92

LAND O'LAKES, FLORIDA - Llewellyn N. Winslow, 92, passed away peacefully, Wednesday afternoon March 27, 2019 at Angel's Senior Living in Land O'Lakes, Florida. He was born February 21, 1927 in Putnam. He was the son of the late Llewellyn F. and Eleanor (Nelson) Winslow. Lew was a loving husband, brother, uncle, stepfather and friend to many and all immediate and extended family members. He was predeceased his sister Helen Wolchesky of Pomfret, in 2016.

Shortly after graduating from Putnam High School at age 18, Llewellyn signed on to the United States Navy at the repair base at Camp Elliot, in San Diego, California as SIC from April 2, 1945 through August 21, 1946. Completing his WWII service, Lew had a long and proud 36-year career as production manager at the Belding Hemingway Company, in Putnam.

Llewellyn devoted his time to many community services. He was a lifetime member of the Pomfret volunteer fire department, a member of the Putnam Elks serving as Past Master in 1959, he was a lifelong Mason and was an enthusiastic member of the Shriners, especially as a drummer in the bag band. Lew had a contagious joy for life. He enjoyed family, dancing, working in the orchard, camping, hooking a rainbow on the Mashamoquet with Steve, and most of all laughing at a 'good' joke. All who were lucky enough to have known Lew, were left with a smile and a brighter view of the world. He will always be remembered in our hearts as a true gentleman.

to record the initial win of the season in the scorebook.

"That first one, it feels like you're building a little momentum right away. Every game the goal is 1-and-0. One game at time," Leduc said.

Killingly is next scheduled to travel to Burrillville, R.I., on Monday, April 8. Brunet is scheduled to stride to the pitching circle once again. Now she's the one the Redgals are counting on.

"She's earned that. She's been waiting. Ashley Veillette's been the older girl for the past couple years. She's been waiting for her opportunity," Leduc said. "You can't get ready. You've got to be ready. We go over that and what that means. She proved today — she's ready."
