DANIELSON — The hair dressing and barber department at Ellis Tech is always looking for new ways to help out the community, one haircut at a time.

Once a month, the students head over to Maple Courts across the street and provide a free service for the people who live there, including many elderly clients. This past fall they also went to a veteran's home and did haircuts all day free of charge, which they also do for the Access Community Shelter, who come in once a month.

"It makes me feel really good," said senior Emily Carignan.
"They don't really get to go out and get haircuts. It's something they are normally not able to do. And we do them for free. It makes me feel like I'm helping them out a lot.

For a lot of lower income families, haircuts are a luxury they can't afford. Many times haircuts and other similar services are sacrificed for other expenses. But getting a haircut doesn't only help save money, said Hair Dressing and Barbering Department Head and Instructor Domenick

Flexer announces time's up package

DANIELSON Mae Flexer Senator (D-Danielson) and other members of the Senate Democratic Caucus last week declared that "time's up" on the problem of sexual harassment and sexual assault, as caucus members announced a legislative package that includes the largest overhaul in modern history of Connecticut's sexual harassment laws.

"With the Time's Up and Me Too movements, we have seen cultural tides in our country are finally changing, and Connecticut must strengthen its stand against sexual harassment and sexual assault," said Flexer. "This year I will be reintroducing legislation to extend the statute of limitations for sexual assault cases. As we have seen in many of the high-profile sexual assault cases being tried around the country, it often takes years for sexual assault victims to

Dauphinais takes part in Family Hearing Day

HARTFORD — State Rep. Ann Dauphinais (44th District-Killingly) joined her fellow colleagues and members of the Intellectual/ Developmental Disabilities (IDD) Caucus as part of Family Hearing Day on Feb. 23. The event now in its fifth year is designed to not only provide lawmakers with the opportunity to hear firsthand from members of the IDD community but also the challenges and comments their care givers, parents and advocates face from across the state.

State Representative Anne Dauphinais stands alongside Nick Glomb, a member of the IDD community, and State Rep. Robin Green during the fifth annual Family Hearing Day.

Diary of Anne Frank at Killingly High

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN NEWS STAFF WRITER

DAYVILLE — An historical drama with a powerful message is presented by the Killingly High School drama department with "The Diary of Anne Frank" on Friday and Saturday, March 2 and 3, at 7 p.m. and at 2 p.m. on Sunday,

"We both certainly feel - like many people do – that the historical component is important," said the play's producer, and English teacher, Jen Nadeau. "Especially with the events going on around us. It's important to look back at history to see how people have been treated. To be aware of how people need to be treated, how they should be treated. We look at this as an awareness piece."

And the students have quickly embraced the powerful message carried within the story. Independently, the students have already researched various parts of the world where similar events are currently happening. Opening their minds to what's going on in the

Their willingness to learn and understand hasn't only been eve-opening for Nadeau, but a brilliant way to bring Anne Frank's diary onto the stage in an accurate and pow-

"This is a different play than we've ever done. This is the first play we've done where we are dedicated to real people. We have an expectation that we may have a Holocaust survivor in the audience. And that makes a real difference to the kids. This is a piece of history they're portraying. And they're concentrating more on being accurate than they ever have, and really staying true to the people they're portraying," said Nadeau.

The students have also become very attached to Anne Frank herself. They've grown to care for her, said Nadeau, more than they thought they would, which has been "great to see." Anne Frank was extremely independent and open with her emotions, said Nadeau. The students now admire her brute honesty and the way she expresses her feelings.

"That certainly through in her writing," said Nadeau. And now the students will be portraying that powerful, raw writing on stage.

They're a passionate and dedicated cast who has been working "very, very hard."

In fact, the students are all from an after-school theater program. So all of their rehearsals and everything they work on is after school. But that hasn't stopped the school from getting involved. The art department, theater arts department, technology department and video tech department have all become involved in putting on this production.

"I really do enjoy working with the students," said

Nadeau. "And the director, Bill Corriveau, and I work extremely well together. It has just been wonderful to work with him, and see the kids grow and develop. That's what keeps us coming back.'

Westview's country living project approved

KILLINGLY — At its regularly scheduled monthly meeting, the Town of Killingly Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously approved a special permit for the Country Living at Westview Commons Residential Life Care Community project.

The project was described as a

73-unit independent living center for the elderly with one and two bedroom efficiency apartments to be located at 117 Ware Road, in Dayville. The estimated $15 million project includes a 112,000 square foot, two story building with 44 single bedroom units, 29 two bedroom units, a lower level indoor parking garage, a large two story great room for dining and entertainment, a country store, café, movie theater, library, gym, outdoor gazebo with walking trails, gardens and exterior water features as well. The program also has a long list of amenities including concierge services, 24 hour security, dining, numerous educational and recreational programs, transportation, entertainment; and support for cleaning, maintenance and laundry services.

'We greatly appreciate all of the support we have received for our project, said David T. Panteleakos, CEO and Administrator for Westview Health Care Center. "This type of housing and services for our retired and elderly citizens is in tremendous demand in our region. We intend to build a facility and program that matches Westview Health Care Center's five star ratings, services and status.

The project was also approved by the Inland Wetlands and Watercourse Commission on February 5, 2018 and an official groundbreaking is planned for the fall.

POMFRET — Recently the Pomfret Fire Department held its annual Company Appreciation Dinner at the Parson's Lodge on the Pomfret School Campus. The year 2018 marks the 84th Anniversary of the establishment of the Department and more than 70 members, spouses and life members attended the celebration.

The event opened with remarks from the Fire Company President Pat Boyd who recognized past chiefs and life members for their contributions to the company. Boyd also thanked spouses for the support of the fire service. First Selectman Maureen Nicholson thanked the department for the unselfish service to the Town of Pomfret. The blessing was offered by Department Chaplain Reverend James Kellaway. The meal was prepared by the Pomfret School Dining Services. After the meal, Fire Chief Brett Sheldon reviewed the year and thanked members for all they do for the community. Boyd and Sheldon recognized members for noteworthy actions during the year and for service to the Department. In particular, 5 Year Service Awards were presented to Captain Mike Dumouchel, firefighter Donald Dunning, and firefighter Kaulman Lengyel. 10 Year Service Award was presented to Assistant Chief Roy Hicks. The Fire Chief's Award was presented to Firefighter Scott Downer, the Company President's Award was presented to Fire Police Captain Douglas Hopkins and the Firefighter of the Year Award was presented to firefighter Cam Robinson.

LaHaie and Reynolds back to Broadway Live

WOODSTOCK LaHaie and Ted Reynolds are slated to return to the Broadway Live stage on April 7-8 at the Center for the Arts at Woodstock Academy in Woodstock for a special benefit show called "The Conncert". The show is a special benefit performance for the Hale YMCA Youth and Family LaHaie hales from Putnam and Reynolds, who resides in Thompson, first appeared together in a Broadway Live production in 2000 and are slated to reprise their rendition of the classic musical piece "Time To Say Goodbye" as performed by artists Andrea Bocelli and Sarah Brightman. The last time they appeared together for this classic duet was before crowd at the Hyde Cultural Center in 2003 for "Broadway Live...Encore". The pair has been performing for many years together and individually for related Broadway Live events and other worthwhile causes. Reynolds also just completed his new CD entitled "A Father & Son's First Christmas." LaHaie's last appearance was in 2015 at The Bradley Playhouse in Putnam for "Broadway Live...2015" which was the production company's anniversary and 15th year celebration show.

"We are so thrilled that Donna and Ted are once again together on the big stage for The Conncert," said Executive

Knights of Columbus host dinner

PUTNAM — There will be a pasta, sausage and meatball dinner on Saturday, March 10, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Cargill Council 64 Knights of Columbus Hall, 64 Providence Street, Putnam. Tickets are $10 per person and are available at the Council Hall, Joseph's Jewelers in Putnam and Danielson, or by calling (860) 928-4525. Proceeds benefit the Council 64 Member's Benefit Fund.

Day Kimball Healtcare receives donation from bankHometown

PUTNAM — Day Kimball Healtcare recently received a donation from bank-Hometown and the bank-Hometown Foundation, which donated $6,000 in support of Day Kimball Healthcare's (DKH) 2018 Junior Volunteer Program at Day Kimball Hospital.

sponsorship The funds will support Day Kimball's highly-competitive Junior Volunteer Program, available to just 60 area high school students for seven weeks during the summer months. Junior volunteers have the opportunity to gain valuable insight into a possible future career in healthcare while also providing valuable service to the community. Junior volunteers contributed 3.790 hours of volunteer service across 11 departments at Day Kimball Hospital last summer.

"We are extremely grateful for this opportunity and excited to be partnering with bank-Hometown in support of one of the hospital's most valuable and long-standing community service programs," said DKH Director of Development Kristen Willis. "It has become increasingly challenging to provide adequate resources for important programs such as this while fulfilling our primary duty and responsibility to provide high quality acute, clinical, and emergent care to our patients. Having bankHometown's support for this program will help us to continue to enrich lives while preparing the future workforce and citizens of northeast Connecticut."

"This is a great opportunity to support Day Kimball and a program that will have ongoing impact on our community by instilling the value of volunteerism in the students. Volunteering in the communities we live and work is a cornerstone of our culture and mission and we pleased to support the sharing of this value with the future leaders of our communities," said bankHometown President and CEO Michael D. Hewitt.

"Being a hospital volunteer adds a whole new dimension to a student's life, allowing them to gain valuable experience while helping to serve their communities," said Janet Johnson, DKH Volunteer Services Coordinator, who has been heading up the Junior Volunteer Program for the past 15 years. "We're so grateful to bankHometown and the bankHometown Foundation for supporting our Junior Volunteer Program. The impact that volunteer service has, not only on the continued success of the hospital but on the lives of our young volunteers, is immeasurable.'

DKH's Junior Volunteer Program, now accepting applications for summer 2018, provides students with opportunities to learn valuable lessons in volunteerism and social responsibility, and exposes students to firsthand administrative and clinical experiences in a healthcare setting. Eligible candidates must have graduated ninth grade before entering the program, and must be between 14 and 18 years old. Learn more at daykimball.org/volunteer.

Killingly High band performs at national jazz competition

BOSTON — Killingly High performed in conjunction with the 50th annual Berklee High School Jazz Festival on Feb. 10. The festival included high school ensembles from 13 states (including all of New England), the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. Throughout the day, all ensembles were adjudicated by a panel of Berklee's top faculty and received a written critique of their performances. Top-ranked ensembles were awarded partial scholarships to Berklee's Five Week Summer Performance Program, and individual students are invited to audition for tuition scholarships towards the full-time program or the Five Week Summer Performance Program.

Berklee College of Music will presented the 50th annual Berklee High School Jazz Festival, the country's largest high school jazz competition, on Feb. 10 at Hynes Convention Center. Over 3,000 high school students who comprise over 215 bands and vocal ensembles competed for $175,000 in scholarships to various Berklee summer programs. The event featured performances or workshops by National Endowment for the Arts (dNEA) Jazz Masters Ellis Marsalis and Delfeavo Marsalis B.M. '89 in addition to workshops by jazz groups 7th Degree and House of Waters, a performance by the Berklee Concert Jazz Orchestra, and an awards presentation honoring high school ensembles, singers, composers, musicians, and educa-

As part of the festival's 50th anniversary celebration, Ellis Marsalis received an honorary Doctorate of Music degree from Berklee at the awards ceremony.

"It's amazing to see that Berklee has been leading jazz education with our annual High School Jazz Festival for five decades," said Darla Hanley, Dean

Quinebaug Valley Community College hosts open house

DANIELSON — Quinebaug Valley Community College is hosting two open houses for prospective students during the month of March. The "What's Your Game Plan?" Open House on Tuesday, March 6, at 6 pm, will offer the opportunity for students to become familiar with the college, its programs, faculty, and students.

"It is the best way to discover why QVCC should be your choice for starting, continuing, or finishing your college education," said Sarah Hendrick, associate director of admissions. Attendees will hear from current and past students, meet student services staff, learn about degree, certificate, and noncredit programs, tour the college with student ambassadors, and browse the Spirol Art Gallery. Students may apply that night and the application fee will be waived.

On Thursday, March 22, the college's Advanced Manufacturing Technology Center will hold an open house for students interested in pursuing a career in manufacturing. An information session will be held in the college auditorium at 6 p.m. followed by guided tours of the 10,000 square foot training facility. There will be overviews of the Advanced Manufacturing Technology and the Mechatronics Automation Technician certificate programs. Attendees may also apply for free on the spot for the fall semester. More information is available at www.QVCC.edu.

Woodstock Middle School public speaking competition

WOODSTOCK — Talented orators were on display at the recent Woodstock Middle School Public Speaking competition. Advised by volunteers Mrs. Dena Cocozza O'Hara, Public Speaking Coordinator, and Mrs. Michelle Couture, Public Speaking Associate Coordinator, over 70 students prepared pieces in one of six categories: impromptu, storytelling, poetry, persuasive, expository, and dramatic and humorous. Utilizing proper technique while allowing for creativity, students had two to four minutes to present their essays or poems to a panel of judges comprised of students from Woodstock Academy. Storytelling receives up to five minutes and must be memorized.

The Public Speaking program is an opportunity for students to foster confidence, poise, and intellect while publicly speaking on a chosen tonic

I wish I'd thanked them more

There are people I wish I had thanked more than I did. Every spring I think of Barney, a man who knew our antique farm like the back of his hand. He kept an inventory in his head of every decent piece of oak planking and knew the number of cedar fence posts we could replace without buying more. He could patch a hole in the roof of a shed because he knew where we kept the ladder and the wood shingles.

He was supremely independent as he came and went by his own plan, but whenever there was an emergency, there he was, ready to fix the problem. I was around him for decades, but knew little about his personal life.

He had a younger wife and two daughters. He check, he never looked at

liked to work alone. Once in a while he would present a bill for his work. It was a slip of paper with an amount on it. It always seemed more than fair. I never questioned it and when I handed him the

it, but shoved it in to a battered wallet. I must have had his telephone number as one Christmas morning the pump froze in the well. I spent several hours outside with Barney, handing him tools, as that was better than listening to my in-law's fret about the lack of water. Barney didn't celebrate Christmas, so he refused to to act inconvenienced. He would chuckle quietly at my questions and observations, his eyes bright blue under a thatch of white hair.

One spring, he didn't turn up. I thought at first that perhaps I had just missed him. Time passed and somehow I learned that he had died. There was no obituary, no public service. I didn't really know his address. When I called the phone number, it had been discon-

I never sent anything to his family. I regret that I didn't honor his loyalty to us and all the work he did to make our lives better. So every spring, I take a moment on my morning walk to think about Barney. I talk to him in my mind. I tell him I appreciate all he did. I tell him that I hope his daughters did OK without him. I thank him for being the best all-around handy man I've ever known. After that, I feel better.

Mr. Ellsworth also comes to mind in springtime. He was retired when we got to know him from a job that had taken him overseas, or down range as he called it. He returned to his hometown and operated a used appliance business. When something broke down, he tried to fix it, often using odd pieces of metal and wire from his panel truck. When the refrigerator stopped, he helped me empty out its contents, making wry comments about my cooking.

He worked alone, dragging appliances in and out of tight doorways and up steep stairs. When he stuck his head under the sink, our old Corgi liked to lick any exposed skin that might be within reach. Mr. Ellsworth just laughed.

Once all the food in our fridge spoiled. He brought us another one. When I asked the price, he assured me that I had already paid enough by what we had lost.

Eventually we bought new appliances instead of refurbished ones. Mr. Ellsworth stopped doing business and I didn't see him. He is gone, too, but his lively personality and open-hearted way of doing business lives on in my memory.

I read a piece recently in the New York Times about teaching children gratitude. The article made me think about the people who have been part of my life. I wish I'd thanked them more for helping us at a time in our lives when we needed it. I wish I'd told them how special they were.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Boyd offers open ear to all

To the editor:

During the last few weeks, I held community conversations over coffee in all five of the towns I represent in the Connecticut General Assembly. I wanted to take a moment and reach out to say thank you to everyone who took the time to participate in these conversations. Your feedback on the serious issues facing our state is invaluable to me as a legislator. With the new session beginning, I intend to take your thoughts with me to Hartford so that I can better serve our district. I hope you know that these conversations are not just limited to coffee hours.

Over the next few months, as bills are debated and issues arise, I look forward to hearing from all of you about how legislation will affect you and your families. Please reach out and contact me directly. My email is pat.boyd@cga.ct.gov or (860) 240-1372.

Woodstock readers wants tuition discount

To the editor:

As town officials grapple with the prospect of a $537,000 increase in our tuition payment to Woodstock Academy in next year's budget, an increase due mainly to an enrollment growth of 32 additional students plus a hike in the tuition rate levied by Woodstock Academy, I offer the following:

First, I firmly believe that Woodstock Academy offers our students a fabulous college prep high school experience and we should be proud to partner with the Academy as our designated high school. We also should accept that it does cost more to educate high school students than K-8 students.

However, I believe Woodstock deserves a big discount in the tuition rate charged by Woodstock Academy for reasons detailed This concept is not without precedent. From the Norwich Free Academy website: "Norwich Public Schools receives a $200/per student discount from NFA for municipal services (approximately $300,000 in 2016-17)."

Please consider: Woodstock's annual town budget includes funding for fire protection, EMS and ambulance services, public health (NDDH), and public safety (town constables). All of these municipal services are paid for by Woodstock taxpayers, and the services protect every student at WA whether they are from Woodstock or other area towns or other countries. Yet the tuition rate charged to our neighboring towns in northeast Connecticut is exactly the same as that charged to Woodstock. So, Woodstock taxpayers are paying (in our town budget) to protect and serve all WA students while neighboring towns apparently do not pay Woodstock for those services that protect their students. At the same time, those other towns combine to send more students to WA than Woodstock does. How is that fair?

Further, as a non-profit institution, WA's property and facilities are not taxable. This brings to mind the state's PILOT program candy hairs on your head (Payment In Lieu of Taxes) which reimburses towns for taxes not generated by state property and facilities. For example, Mansfield, Windham and Killingly all receive annual PILOT payments from the state since the campuses of UConn, Eastern and QVCC, respectively, don't generate property taxes for those towns. Woodstock does receive PILOT funds for the state D.O.T. salt shed on Rt. 171.

How does this relate to Woodstock Academy? The Academy is now a large regional and international high school drawing students from a number of area towns and other countries. Woodstock Public Schools and the Town of Woodstock should receive a tuition discount to compensate for the land and facilities on the WA campuses that benefit students from the other towns and countries yet cannot generate property taxes to Woodstock. These facilities now serve more students from outside Woodstock than students from Woodstock. A tuition discount (at a rate similar to the state's PILOT program) would be fair to the taxpayers of

The Board of Finance and Board of Education should determine acceptable terms for such a discount which will reduce our tuition bill and overall education spending. I would then hope the Board of Selectmen will ber loving when we had negotiate acceptance of a significant tuition customers because it gave discount with Woodstock Academy.

Reader disagrees with Houle

To the editor:

In his guest column of February 23rd, entitled "FBI, Dems and media bias," Jerry Houle unwittingly illustrates the precise case I was making in my column of February 9th, "Vichy France comes to America." In the face of Russia's aggressive covert campaign to subvert our elections, Mr. Houle, President Trump, and the Republican Congress continue to turn up the volume on a litany of complaints about the usual bogeymen (Hillary Clinton, Christopher Steele, James Comey, Andrew McCabe (where in the world is Huma Abedin?)) while completely ignoring this grievous threat to our democracy. While Russia persists in its campaign to subvert our democracy to this day, the White House and its' Republican apologists do absolutely nothing save reprise, ever louder, choruses of "Lock her up!"

So far in the Russia investigation, the two top figures in the Trump campaign and the President's former National Security Adviser have pleaded guilty to felonies, and are thus far more likely to be "locked up" than any of the aforementioned.

Despite nine blanket denials by the President and his Administration of any Trump campaign/transition contacts with Russians, 12 Trump associates had 19 face-

WMS playground fundraiser thanks community

The Woodstock Middle School Playground Committee would like to thank the Woodstock Villager newspaper for their excellent coverage of our upcoming Walk Across Woodstock fundraising event. We appreciate the opportunity to share playground news and progress with our community. We would like to clarify that we have raised approximately $70,000 for the new playground, double the amount listed in last weeks' paper. We are grateful to the families, businesses, and organizations who have helped us towards reaching our goal; this would not have been possible without their support.

We have a variety of upcoming fundraisers that will engage both the students in our schools and the residents of our community, starting in March with our Walk Across Woodstock. In April our elementary school students will hold a Penny Wars contest. We are also looking forward to a Dine for a Cause in fur, including ourselves. at The Muse Bar & Kitchen in Worcester The dog looks like Stevie on April 28th. Ellis Tech in Danielson is my high school alma mater. I graduated with my hairdressing license in hand and went out into the wide world to make my millions. Okay, so the millions didn't happen, but I loved hairstyling enough to stay in it for 31 vears. I could never let anyone run around looking ridiculous in a hairstyle they can't keep up, or a "do" that does absolutely nothing for them. But being honest is what everyone appreciated all these years.

I recently had the privilege of visiting with the new hairdressing department head at Ellis. His name is Domenick Zipoli and you can tell he loves what he does. I had forgotten that customers can go to the "Elle" salon at Ellis, as it's called, and get their hair done. Cuts, colors, highlights, any thing you want! Even skin care and nails! The students are supervised by the teachers to make sure the work is perfect, not to mention way cheaper than a regular salon. I rememus a glimpse of what we would encounter when we graduated. The experience we gleaned was invaluable. That being said, I realized last week where my styling talents end...

My dog Jack (short for Captain Jack Spaniel) was a mess. I let him grow out to-face interactions and 51 communications out the groomer that used to over the winter, then I found groomer reading this right er hang himself then get a haircut, and tried to leap off the table the entire time. He turned into a contortionist and I could only reach one out of four paws, one ear and half of his neck. I yelled for Sean and he tried to hold the dog still while feeding him cookies to keep him occupied so I could try to finish. When we finished 45 minutes later, the entire room was covered Wonder groomed him. Even ed ears and looking nothing like I saw in the video. KILLINGLY VILLAGER Friday, March 2, 2018 A9

The little village of Elmville

I recently received several emails from Victor K. Lehtinen in regards to articles that had appeared in the Killingly at 300 column. In response to my request for more information about V.A. M. Construction (Vilho Majonen), in the February 16th column, Victor commented, "I worked for Vilho a couple of times. He was a Finnish home builder and carpenter."

He also provided additional information and a correction to an article that I had written last summer. "Also I would like to make a correction in your article of July 28, 2017. In the article it states that the fire at Leisure Valley Estates left five occupants homeless. But only four names are listed. I was the fifth person. My wife at the time was Vicki Lehtinen. The spelling with the second letter as an A is wrong. It is an E." (I went back in my files and added the correction).

"BTW the building that burned was on my grandfather's former 48-acre chicken farm. Lehtinen's Poultry Farm. The brown building, which now is the Printing studio, used to be my father's baby chick hatchery. Way back this was the old Sayles farm which you mentioned in one of your articles. As you know the Sayles brothers owned what later became Prym's mill. Also on the property is now United Social Services and the storage facility. My grandfather, who came from Finland in 1912, couldn't sell the 48 acres as a whole in 1963 [or so] and he divided it up into 3 parcels. The farm had frontage on Rte 12 from Boudreaus Welding all the way to Colt's factory. The land went all the way back to the Five Mile River. This parcel was the extent of the old Sayles farm." (emails 2/17/18).

The section of Killingly that Victor Lehtinen spoke of once had its own identity as the little village of Elmville. If you can't quite place where this might be, think of Rock Avenue, Route 12, the intersection of Dog Hill Road (near the present Dayville Post Office). In fact, this was one of the earliest parts of Town to be settled and "industrialized." Nicholas Cady, who was born in Watertown, Massachusetts and moved to what is now Putnam Heights in the very early 1700's, in 1709 purchased land on Whetstone Brook and Five Mile River and soon erected a mill or mills on the purchase. He sold the site to Daniel Waters in 1716/7 and moved to Preston, Connecticut, where he continued as a miller (Killingly Land Records, Vo. 1, p. 62, 110; 2, p. 111a).

The available waterpower continued to make the area attractive as a mill site throughout the nineteenth century. By the 1850's Sabin and Harris Sayles, formerly of Pascoag, RI were operating a small woolen mill on the property. The present brick mill was erected by woolen manufacturer Alfred Potter. C.D. and C. S. Chase took over the mill in 1886 and manufactured "fancy cassimeres."

Unfortunately, with Dolley Madison as First Lady fashions soon changed and the venture lost money.

There are several 19th century local artists who were well known in their time. One was Ellen Carpenter, who was born in Killingly in 1830, the daughter of Oliver Carpenter, Jr. and his wife Amy Smith. "She studied art with Thomas Edwards, an English artist, and at the Lowell Institute in Boston." She visited Europe several times and studied with Robert Fleury in Paris. She was most known for her landscapes that were executed in both watercolors and oils. Ellen also taught art in Boston. "She was known to have painted in the White Mountains of New Hampshire as well as the South, Pacific Coast, California, including Yosemite in the 1870's...Among many commissions of hers were more than 100 watercolor depictions of old homesteads of Marlboro, Massachusetts, and they were used to illustrate a book 'Historical Reminiscences of Marlborough', by Ella (From Edited Bigelow." Appleton's Encyclopedia c. 2001 Virtualology and www.askart).

Perhaps nearby Killingly artist Francis Alexander, who was older than Ellen, and had moved to Italy was an inspiration to Ellen...a reminder that someone from this rural community could go on to the wider world and succeed. If you wish to see some of her paintings, put Ellen Carpenter's name in your favorite computer search engine. The Killingly Historical Center has one of her paintings.

Life insurance: how much, what kind, how long

Life insurance can become confusing when you consider all the types offered: term, whole life, variable life, universal life. But you can simplify the issue by keeping in mind the primary purpose of life insurance: ensuring your family has backup funds in case you aren't around to support them. Life Insurance is one of the key factors in Planning Well for you and your family.

Term life vs. non-term life For example, you have $150 to spend each month on life insurance. Should you spend the full $150 per month to buy whole life insurance or should you buy a less expensive term life plan for a set period, say 20 years, and invest the difference? Let's take a look.

Term life insurance is straight forward. You pay a certain amount for a guaranteed payment should you die within a defined period of years, or term - 10 years, 20 years, 30 years, etc.

Just as mortgages are fixed rate or adjustable rate, there are two different ways of paying term life insurance. One way is annual renewable term where the policy is renewed each year, but the rate you pay may vary. Similar to an adjustable rate mortgage, the premium for this type of term insurance may start low and increase with his age.

Another way is level premium, this type of insurance is basic insurance, where a set amount will be paid each year.

Determining which one is better is a matter of your specific situation. For example, if you are just starting out in your career and money is tight, the annual renewable option may be more of a fit. On the other hand, if you want a predictable cost each year, the level premium could be best.

Non-term insurance products are also known as whole life, meaning that these products are intended to last a whole entire life, not just a fixed number of years. Several insurance product types fall under the umbrella of nonterm insurance.

One type is universal life, in this type you pay a premium is distributed partially to insurance, and another portion that is safely and modestly put towards a growing investment.

Variable life is when most of the premium goes toward the investment. The risk here is that if the investment returns aren't adequate, you may have less than full insurance cov-

Variable universal life insurance is a mix of the two above, with you having some control over the investment. (Please note that both variable life insurance products and variable universal life insurance products are considered securities products, not solely insurance products.)

Making the best choice Whether your dependents are young children, adult children with special needs, or aging parents, life insurance is there to protect those left behind and assure a certain standard of living if you are no longer around to provide for them. This means you need to look at your unique situation and choose the policy that makes the most sense for you.

For example, if you have children, you might pick a term that covers your family until they are out of college (or just out of the house). However, there may be special circumstances — such as a special needs child or a spouse or partner who is unable to work which make a longer-term life insurance necessary. If this is your situation, one of the whole life policies might make more sense.

Calculating "peace of mind" Many people have some savings in the form of retirement accounts or Social Security, but that may not be enough to cover the loss of a primary financial provider, especially if they have young children. Life insurance can help ensure that families have adequate resources in such a situation.

So how much money would those depending on you financially need each year without your support and how long they will need it? Well, that depends. Consider consulting with a financial advisor before locking into any plan. But here are a few key questions to get you thinking in the right direction: Should you die prematurely, what are the immediate obligations for your family and/or dependents (e.g. private school tuition, home health aide for ailing parents)? Next ask, "How long will they need my support?"

Several websites, such as www.lifehappens.org, provide life insurance calculators to help you figure out what amount of life insurance you may need. As a rule of thumb consider erring on the high side. You may be able to provide your family or dependents significantly more peace of mind with a minimal increase in your term payment. But ultimately, there is no one right answer, just the answer that is right for you and your family. And with something as important as life insurance, consulting a financial professional, who can help you evaluate the options within the context of your personal goals and financial situation, is often useful.

Whichever circumstance, there is a plan that fits your financial needs and goals.

Choosing the right insurance for your situation is one of the steps in Planning for your future.

One of the greatest concerns for the elderly we serve and their families is that of long term care. There are four basic levels of care available to elders as they age.

The first level of care is adult day care. Adult day care is a supportive group environment for seniors with cognitive and/or functional impairments. The second level of care is home care. Home care consists of either a home health aide or a companion/homemaker. This type of assistance allows the senior to "age in place" as an outside service comes into the home to help. The third level of care is an assisted living facility (ALF). Depending upon the chosen level of care, an ALF may provide services ranging from care management, assistance with every day activities, housekeeping, medication man agement, security, transportation, meals and social and recreational activities. Finally, the fourth level of care is a nursing home. Nursing homes typically provide a secure environment and services to meet the physical, medical and social needs of their residents, such as: room and board; nursing care; medication management; personal care; and social and recreational

Determining the appropriate level and type of care is one of many challenges facing seniors and their loved ones. Other challenges include figuring out how to pay for the care, knowing what rights the senior has, understanding what Medicare will and won't pay, and making sure that the right legal documents are in place to carry out the seniors' wishes. We have helped numerous families overcome these challenges through proper legal planning. If you would like more information or if we can be of assistance to you or a family you are working with, please

CIAC should take a look at alignments

To the editor:

Thank you Coach Bernier. In the Feb. 23 issue of the Villager, Tourtellotte High boys basketball coach Neil Bernier had the courage to address the disparity featured in the CIAC class system of sports ranking.

Ironically, while he spoke of Sacred Heart of Waterbury, my issue has been with Holy Cross of

I graduated from Holy Cross in 1974. I moved to Thompson in 2014. Holy Cross was always one of the state powers. While not a large school in terms of enrollment, they are still considerably larger than Tourtellotte Memorial High School. Plus they are a private school. TMHS can draw from a population of about 10,000. HCHS is located in a city of almost 100,000 plus the ability to get students from surrounding towns.

Yet the last two years our TMHS girls' softball teams drew Holy Cross on their home field for the state tournament. Much to their credit, we almost upset them in 2016, losing 4-2. However 2017 was a mercy win for Holy Cross. Then in 2017 our girls had a terrific soccer season and were honored by drawing Holy Cross again in states and we suffered a one sided loss. I applaud the five division arrangement in the boys state basketball tournament, however the CIAC should have looked at regional and private schools in a different manner than just enrollment long ago. Also, as my daughter will enter her senior year, and participates in three varsity sports (softball, soccer, and basketball), the girls' teams are not yet included in the five division alignment. My daughter may never know the thrill of winning a state tournament game. While Holy Cross is a Class M school for basketball, we could still run into Sacred Heart this year (a possibility as our won loss record was skewed by injuries early in the season and in the last couple of games).

My daughter may never get this chance but hopefully the CIAC will see the error of their ways and the other current and future athletes of real Class S or Division 5 schools will get a fair opportunity to compete on a more even playing field.

On gun control

Gun control once again is in the news as once again a heinous slaughter spree was once again carried out by a deplorable lunatic who once again had legal access to a gun which once again turns out to be an AK-15 semi-assault weapon. And in yet another stab at common sense and decency President Trump would have us believe that two wrongs really do make a right in proposing that we arm teachers and other school employees to combat gun violence. He blatantly ignores the root cause of a problem and in this case would have us transform our schools into an old Western movie. This time though gun advocates may have met their match. Hell hath no fury as an angry teen as many a parent has learned.

Trump argues that in declaring a school a gun free zone we invite guns. Astounding. proposing expand gun he demonuse strates that rather representing the American majority, he sits squarely in the gun lobby's pocket. He also has tried to highjack the dialogue and make this about himself in accusing our national police department of allowing the massacre to occur solely because they were spending too much time investigating his administration's Russia connection. The FBI has over 33 thousand employees. They are capable of multitasking.

The NRA's dogma is that the best defense of a bad guy with a gun is a good guy with a gun and refuse to accept what the rest of the world takes GUEST grantfor COLUMN ed, that yes indeed guns kill people. $_{

m LEE}$ WESLER

But (contrary Trump's strategy) fact don't lie. America by far has the most gun violence in the civilized world which mirrors its fascination with fire arms. As a result, our gun death rate is eight times higher than our neighbor Canada, 55 times higher than our closest ally Great Britain and 64 times higher than our greatest global competitor China. Japan is a country of more than 127 million yet rarely sees more than 10 gun deaths

Of more concern is that the rate of mass shootings, which includes school massacres, is rapidly increasing. America has seen 42 mass shootings in the last 100 odd years, the first in 1949. The number has grown by 33 in just the last 11 years.

And rather than addressing this public emergency we incredibly have spent more time demonizing the victims. In what began with Sandy Hook parents accused of being fabricators, personal threats of violence and abuse have continued to include the Las Vegas shooting prey and responders and now the Parkland population. Hoax nuts, including Red Sox great Curt Schilling, are accusing high school targets turned activists of being paid actors. Contrast this with Australia, who after a mass shooting in 1996 enacted stricter gun control measures and has not had a mass shoot since. Most importantly they did not eliminate the right of an Australian to own a gun. They merely restricted semi-automatic and automatic weapons and created a national registry of firearm owners. This led to a 96 percent reduction in murder by gun.

Even more damning would be the fact that an armed security guard at Stoneman Douglas High School did nothing to stop the shooter. Scott Peterson was a trained sheriff's deputy. He had been taught to deal with these situations. He froze. Could we really trust a civilian, as Mr. Trump claims, to confront the assailant and to "have shot the hell out of him before he knew what happened."

March 14th will mark a day of mass protest as students throughout the country stage a 17-minute class walkout, both in honor of their fellow students in Florida, and more importantly to demonstrate solidarity against the current state of gun violence in America. Firearms killed more 15 to 19 year-olds than cancer, heart disease and diabetes combined. Some schools have threatened detention. This is disappointing as it is un-American. I have encouraged my children to join and try to kindle the legitimate change that has eluded adults. Their parents' repetitive and intangible "thoughts and prayers" are not the bona fide action that the country so desperately

In defense of the NRA

After every mass shooting in America, gun control proponents predictably and inevitably blame two things -- guns and the NRA -- while ignoring the root causes of these incidents. Last week's Villager included a letter to the editor from a "Reader against the NRA." As a NRA member myself, I'd like to take a moment to argue for a little common sense.

In response to last week's letter, the writer states that we shouldn't use the phrase "guns don't kill people, people kill people," but rather "people with guns kill people." Sure. And people with knives kill people; people with pressure cookers kill people; people with trucks kill people; and people with [fill in the blank] kill people. What's the common denominator? People. People who are mentally ill, people who are nihilistic, or angry, or vengeful, or jealous, or people who are simply evil. It's not the gun that is the problem, it is the person behind the gun (or weapon of choice).

The writer also states that last year the NRA "forced the passage of gun legislation that makes it even easier for the mentally ill to get guns." This is wrong on so many counts, it's hard to know where to start. The Congressional Review Act (CRA) review in question had absolutely nothing to do with the violent mentally ill, and would have had absolutely zero Constitution effect on any of the recent tragic shootings, including the one in Parkland, Florida.

Instead, the "mentally ill' in question involved elderly social security recipients who required assistance in managing their own finances (their social security benefits) due to mental impairment. It was a regulation pushed through by the Obama administration's Social Security Administration, not a law passed by Congress. The concept of reporting elderly citizens as "mental defectives" to the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) was such a stupid idea that it was opposed not only by the NRA, but also by the ACLU, the American Association of People with Disabilities, and numerous other groups across the political (and non-political) spectrum. But you wouldn't know that just by reading the headlines by the media organizations trying to make gun rights proponents look like hypocrites.

As for the NRA itself, let's discuss a few facts. First, the purpose of the National Rifle Association, according to its bylaws, is as follow:

To protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, especially with reference to the inalienable right of the individual American acquire, possess, collect, exhibit, transport, carry, transfer ownership of, and enjoy the right to use arms, To promote public safety, law and order, and the national defense:

JOHN

To train members of law enforcement agencies, the armed forces, the militia, and people of good repute in marksmanship and in the safe handling and efficient use of small arms;

To foster and promote the shooting sports, including the advancement of amateur competitions in marksmanship at the local, state, regional, national, and international levels;

To promote hunter safety, and to promote and defend hunting as a shooting sport and as a viable and necessary method of fostering the propagation, growth and conservation, and wise use of our renewable wildlife resources.

Except for those who don't believe the 2nd Amendment to the U.S. Constitution is worth defending, are any of these items really so controversial? Even for those who don't believe in the 2nd Amendment, are the other four purposes so evil? Are they so bad, that the NRA as an organization should be vilified after every mass shooting in America?

ly so opposed to public safety, law and order, and the nation-GUEST COLUMN al defense? Do critics of the NRA want law enforcement and BENJAMIN the armed forces to Newell be incompetent with their weapons? Would NRA haters prefer for hunters to be unsafe and be more of an accidental danger to themselves and others in the vicinity?

The NRA is the single largest and most effective gun safety training organization in the U.S. Probably the world, for that matter. Their Eddie Eagle GunSafe program regularly teaches kids what to do if they find a gun: "Stop. Don't touch. Run away. Tell a grown-up." How is this remotely controversial?

If the NRA is so terrible, why does the State of Connecticut (now one of the least gun-friendly states in the country) require anyone seeking a permit to carry a handgun to first successfully complete a firearms safety course taught by a NRA-certified instructor? (CT General Statutes, Chapter 529, Section 29-28).

The reality is that the NRA stands for the exact opposite of what gun-wielding murderers do. The NRA condemns gun violence, and promotes safe and responsible gun use.

for more "common sense gun restrictions," the NRA (and many others) simply point out that it is not the guns that are murdering people, but the people behind the guns. Take away guns, and evil people will find some other way to attack their victims while simultaneously leaving the rest of us without a defense.

On that point, one last note. Anti-gun activists hate it when gun rights defenders point out that that too often the only thing that will stop a bad guy with a gun is a good guy with a gun. But it's true. The media almost never covers it, but virtually every day there are stories (if you look for them) of responsible armed citizens preventing bad guys from armed robbery or murder. Remember the Texas church shooting? It was stopped by an NRA member who is also a former NRA-certified firearms instructor (using an AR-15, by the way). Imagine that -- a responsible, safe, well-trained gun owner (the exact type of person for which the NRA exists to promote and defend) stopped a mass murderer from killing even more people in that church.

So, I'm thankful that the NRA exists, and I'm proud to be a member, along with over five million of my fellow Americans. Benjamin Newell lives in

A world changing discovery

It was first proposed in the 3rd century BC by Aristarchus of Samos, but it took another 1,300 years for another astronomer, by the name of Nicolaus Copernicus, to make it popular. Its scientific name is Heliocentrism, and it is the belief that the earth revolves around the sun. Until the 16th century most humans held to the geocentric model which taught that the earth was center of the universe. When the Heliocentric theory arose, even the church resisted it. It would be another century before map maker Joan Blaeu would incorporate this revolutionary heliocentric theory into a map of the world.

That was world-changing discovery that changed everything. It changed our understanding of the planets and stars, and It made all the difference in how we would eventually travel beyond earth's atmosphere. Today it is a universally accepted truth. So, why did it take so long to embrace? Because, from man's limited perspective it looks like the sun is circling the earth, and because it is natural to think that the world is all about us. But human arrogance distorts everything.

There is another, more important, world-changing discovery that can change the world of anyone who has the courage and faith to embrace it. It is a paradigm shift much like the geocentric to heliocentric shift. It is the discovery that the universe does not revolve around man. Life is not man-centered, it is Godcentered. The difference between those two views cannot be overstated. It is like the difference between being the horse or the rider, or between being the pot or the pot-

When a person defines everything in relation to themselves they are more susceptible to things like depression, fear, worry, performance anxiety. They are more likely to stoop to manipulation, abuse, adultery, murder, theft, and cheating. But a clear view of God changes everything.

St. John saw a vision of heaven in which he heard its inhabitants sharing their perspective. They said, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." (Revelation (Revelation 4:11) Those in heaven recognized it was all about

When someone discovers the God-centered paradigm it changes everything, including how they think, operate, and pray. For example, have you every prayed, "Lord don't let it rain."? I have. But, honestly, do we think God's primary role is to frantically move clouds around to accommodate our agendas? Grant it, he can intervene if the situation warrants, but everything is not about us. God invented a water system designed to take care of His world. One person occupies 3 square feet of this plan-There are anoth-1,597,675,921,460,000 square feet of dry land that He needs to tend. Each day God's irrigation system needs to drop 400 trillion gallons of water on the earth. If He were to move the rain away from one person, He would need to make it fall on someone else. So, if we pray for rain or shine, we should consider that God is dealing with a much bigger picture. Here are some life changes that come to those who make this discovery:

They will care as much for others as they do themselves.

When praying, they will not give God direction, they will ask Him for direction.

When hurt or abused, they will not see the perpetrators as all-powerful, but as misguided souls who will one day be held accountable.

They will worship God to show Him honor rather than to flatter Him.

When rains on their day or when they fail to get a raise, they will still enjoy life, because evervthing is not about them.

Instead of worrying about things they cannot change, they will release everything to the One who can change any-

When God leads them up steep hills, they will embrace the challenge knowing that He is the Good Shepherd and is doing what is best for His sheep.

Discovering that the universe is God-centered will change everything! It is an incontrovertible truth waiting to be discovered by those humble enough to let their eyes be opened so they can honestly embrace a wonderful universe that has meaning and purpose.

shooting might result in meaningful gun laws. Some of us can only hope so.

But one thing that is probably misguided is thinking the solution is to keep weapons out of the hands of mentally ill people. Oh, it sounds good. It's a simple and easily grasped idea.

Surely, someone must be crazy to do these things. All we need to do is to have better background checks to identify

This is misguided because it is nearly impossible to do so. Which mental illnesses and to what severity predicts the likelihood of a rampage? Are we to impose a full psychiatric evaluation on everyone applying for a gun permit? And how do you identify someone who, say, develops violent mental illness years after obtaining a permit? You can't.

I could propose an equally simple idea why men do these things that has the same lack of study and proof. They harbor anger that grows over time to where they become so angry that all they want to do is just get even at the world. This idea has appeal but has the same problem as insanity. How do you detect it and take steps to prevent shootings?

The current system of national background checks is woefully inadequate. Sunday's Hartford Courant had an article on this subject. It stated that "Florida and federal law list two specific criteria for entering people in no-buy federal databases used for background involuntarily committed to a mental health facility. You must be under a court order, which could include having been found not guilty due to insanity." In other words, a legal proceeding determined that you were mentally defec-

These are not all encompassing by any means. And another problem is that it is entirely voluntary whether states provide mental health information to the federal databank. Current law does not force them to do so.

That's it. You could be crazy as a bedbug, be under psychiatric care or have been in an institution you voluntarily entered and still be able to get a permit. So just how could such loopholes be closed? I don't know, especially since privacy laws would get in the way. Oh yes, Nikolas Cruz was getting outpatient mental health care and state officials classified him as a "vulnerable adult due to mental illness". But they also said he posed low risk because he lived with his mother, went to school and was receiving treatment. But you see, none of these things got him into the no-buy database. So what could be a viable solution? We could classify and outlaw semi-automatic weapons and accessories that can make any weapon automatic as weapons of mass destruction. We went to war over WMD's, so why not at home?

Temple B'nai Shalom celebrates Purim

PUTNAM — Temple B'nai Shalom celebrated Purim with traditional foods, fun games and creative crafts on Sunday, Feb. 25. It was a chance for the congregation and the surrounding community - to not only learn more about the Book of Esther, but socialize and have a good time together.

Lisa and David Bird dressed up in costume for Purim, a tradition on the holiday.

Sue Stern and Paula Schimmel with some party snacks, which include hamentashen made by Stern and some of the Sunday School children.

Jordan and Sue Stern showed off their Purim spirit with costumes from the Book of Esther and hamentashen glasses.

Maya Rousey, dressed as a ninja version of Queen Esther, enjoyed the many games available to play.

Mike Lemberger and Ben Gordon had a blast making slime.

Jill and Jordan Rousey strike a pose at the Purim party.

Cheryl Kalpner-Champ and visiting Rabbi Eliana Falk had fun dressing up at the selfie station.

Free concerts at Eastern Connecticut State

WILLIMANTIC — The music program at Eastern Connecticut State University will host a variety of free performances in March. From jazz to opera, audiences will be treated to performances representing a diverse range of genres and style periods. All concerts and recitals will be performed in the Fine Arts Instructional Center (FAIC) Concert Hall. Admission is free; no tickets required.

On March 2 at 7:30 p.m., Eastern faculty members Emily Jo Riggs, soprano, and David Ballena, piano, will present a recital of art songs, arias and familiar songs from American Music Theater. Riggs and Ballena will be joined by their colleague, Chris Howard, clarinet. This program is presented as part of the Music Program's "Faculty Recital Series." The series was established to raise scholarship funds for current and incoming Music Program students. Each year, Eastern's Music faculty/artists present a series of recitals to generate funds to support annual awards that recognize student achievement at all stages of the degree program. All Faculty Recital Series events are free and donations are accepted at the

On March 7 at 7:30 p.m., the Eastern Wind Ensemble will present a concert featuring the music of Michael Daugherty, Percy Grainger, Frank Ticheli, and Kevin Puts. Also featured on the program is Eastern's World Percussion Ensemble led by Professor Matt Bronson. The Eastern Wind Ensemble is the newest instrumental ensemble on campus and is designed to provide students with a unique, student-centric instrumental playing experience. Led by Professor Kelly Watkins, the Wind Ensemble performs standard repertoire from the wind band/chamber winds realm, as well as more contemporary works.

On March 19 at 7:30 p.m., the Music Program will host guest artists José A. Zayas Caban, saxophone, Joel Gordon, saxophone, and Casey D. Rafn, piano. The trio will present a diverse program of classical music for saxophone and piano and conclude with a special tribute to Puerto Rico.

On March 26 at 7:30 p.m., The Straight-Up Jazz Trio will perform as part of the Music Program's "Faculty Recital Series." Expect the unexpected as the trio gives their interpretation of jazz standards, Broadway hits and recent pop tunes. The group will be joined by guest vocalist Emily Riggs. The Faculty Recital Series was established to raise scholarship funds for current and incoming Music Program students. Flexer for change to family violence arrest law

Mae Flexer advocates for a change to the family violence arrest law.

DANIELSON—State Senator Mae Flexer (D- Danielson), recently joined Connecticut Coalition Against Domestic Violence (CCADV) to call for a change to Connecticut's family violence arrest law. The proposal, raised as concept in the Judiciary Committee, would add a dominant aggressor provision to the law in an effort to reduce Connecticut's intimate partner violence dual arrest rate, which currently stands at nearly three times the national average.

"For far too long, Connecticut law has made it harder for domestic violence victims to seek assistance. Current law results in victims being arrested unnecessarily. No abuse victim should have to fear that they will be walked out in handcuffs because they sought help," said Flexer. "This simple change will ensure that justice is done and that domestic abuse victims will not be arrested for attempting to escape their dangerous situation. It will also empower law enforcement to use their best judgement at the scenes of these incidents, which are some of the most volatile calls that they respond to. tinued leadership on this issue and look forward to working alongside them to get it passed this year."

'Connecticut's dual arrest rate is unacceptable and it's time for the state to make this common sense change that's been adopted by twenty-seven other states," said Karen Jarmoc, chief executive officer, CCADV. "Dominant aggressor laws have been endorsed by a number of national criminal justice stakeholders and have proven effective in reducing dual arrest rates. This change is critical to address Connecticut's 30 year struggle with dual arrest."

The proposal calls for changing Connecticut's family violence arrest law to clarify that, when receiving complaints from two or more opposing parties, law enforcement must determine which party is the dominant aggressor. Such laws exist in 27 other states and guide law enforcement in determining which party is the most significant aggressor or poses the most serious ongoing threat. The proposed requirement to arrest only that individual will address liability concerns currently held by law enforcement that, based on the existing structure of Connecticut's family violence mandatory arrest law, they must arrest both people based on probable cause.

A dual arrest occurs when law enforcement arrests both parties at an intimate partner violence incident (note: intimate partner refers to spouses, former spouses, individuals who are dating, or individuals who have a child in common). Connecticut's intimate partner violence dual arrest rate stands at approximately 20 percent while the national average is 7 percent. A seven-month study recently completed by CCADV revealed that multiple criminal justice stakeholders, both nationally and in Connecticut, point to the current structure of Connecticut's family violence mandatory arrest law as the largest contributing factor to the state's high dual arrest

"Arresting victims who are acting in response to abuse perpetrated against them is not sound public policy. The practice of dual arrest has a chilling effect on a victim's willingness to call police for help again in the future. This greatly diminishes the victim's safety moving forward," said Jarmoc.

There are a number of reasons why so many other states have clarified the need to focus on the dominant aggressor. A dual arrest has both short- and long-term impacts on victims, their families, and the criminal justice system. Most significantly is the distrust that victims ultimately have for the criminal justice system following a dual arrest. Children who witness both parents being arrested also form this same distrust. The dual arrest creates financial burdens for the victim and may result in immigration issues. Connecticut's criminal justice system also experiences a negative impact with limited resources being directed to handle thousands of dual arrests annually, the majority of which are low to moderate risk to reoffend and are ultimately dismissed or nolled. Victims who are also defendants in a dual arrest case have little reason to cooperate with prosecutors because of their own vulnerability to prosecution.

To learn more about dominant aggressor and why Connecticut needs to adopt this change, visit www.ctcadv.org.

Several national criminal justice stakeholders call for the identification of the dominant aggressor and discourage dual arrests in their policy and training guidelines including: International Association of Chiefs of Police; Battered Women's Justice Project; Clearinghouse National for the Defense of Battered Women; National District Attorneys Association, Women Prosecutors Section; National Council of Juvenile & Family Court Judges.

The 27 states with dominant aggressor laws include: Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin.

Safety forum scheduled at Woodstock

WOODSTOCK—A school safety forum is scheduled at Woodstock Academy on Tuesday, March 6, at 7:00 p.m. in the Bates Memorial Auditorium on North Campus for those who would like to learn more about existing and future safety training efforts at Woodstock Academy. This forum will provide an overview of the approach to school security and will include a time for questions and answers. Parents and guardians of current and future students are invited

A press release from the school on Feb. 26 stated that one of the school's aims was to provide a safe learning environment for all students, a duty included in the mission statement of the school. To meet this mission the press release said the school has made significant investments in school security, especially in recent years. The press release said these investments include training, personnel, communication, and equipment, as well listening to and building relationships with students.

"The safety of our students and staff is paramount," said Head of School Christopher Sandford. "Which is why the Academy has dedicated so many resources to creating a safe environment where students can focus on learning."

The press release said drills and educational sessions are already a part of the training students and staff participate in but also continuously adapting and expanding training as necessary. The release continued "In recent years there has been a significant increase in the number of security cameras and the creation of a way for anyone in the community, but especially students, to report suspicious activity through the school website or mobile app.'

The press release said in 2016 armed security was added to an already robust campus safety team: "One of the deciding factors in adding armed security was the possible response time for law enforcement in the event of an emergency.

"Research shows that any school shooting is over between three to seven minutes after it starts. Due to our location, it is possible that the response time for help to arrive could be as much as 15-20 minutes. The campus is in good hands," said Sandford in a 2016 community letter about the decision to add armed security. "The members of the campus security team have years of law enforcement or correctional experi-

The press release said these campus safety officers are on campus every day and get to know students well. Over the summer Woodstock Academy prepared to become a two campus school. The administration and School Safety Committee adapted the school's comprehensive safety plan to account for the new campus. A sizable security grant was recently acquired to improve security infrastructure on South Campus to overcome the unique challenges of the

The press release said "that while equipment and training are all useful in keeping students safe it is also essential that relationships built between students and trusted adults within the school community are essential for school securitv. Two full-time social workers and a full-time school psychologist play a valuable role in the student support team."

"Having two school social workers available to our student body means that more students are getting the support that they need right at school," said Sandford.

The press release said monthly advisory sessions provide students the opportunity to discuss current issues with a small group of their peers and an advisor. This advisor serves "this small group of students throughout their four years. giving students another opportunity to form relationships with an adult at the school. Classroom teachers are additionally able to develop rapport during the designated relationship-building time that was incorporated into the daily school schedule for the 2017-2018 school

The press release said that outside of classes and advisory sessions teachers, counselors, coaches, staff, and administrators are "regularly developing relationships with students through clubs, music ensembles, residence life activities, athletics, and more. These relationships make up a broad network of multi-layered support for students, who are then empowered to fulfill another component of the school's mission, to foster a sense of respect for self and others."

Ninety-seven percent of all students feel physically safe at school according to a 2017 Woodstock Academy student

Putnam PRIDE joins forces

PUTNAM — In order to expand their reach and resources, Putnam PRIDE joined forces with Griswold PRIDE and United Services to implement a new substance abuse prevention campaign in the region. The three organizations each received a community mini grant from Northeastern Communities Against Substance Abuse, administered in conjunction with the Connecticut Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services. The State Targeted Response to the Opioid Crisis Community mini-grant provides communities with funding to build their capacity to develop and enhance local opioid addiction and overdose prevention and response efforts.

Putnam PRIDE continues to address the current opioid crisis and has worked extensively with the NECASA sponsored Opioid Action Group over the past two years to provide a comprehensive fact sheet that describes the various treatment resources in the

Since 2006 Putnam PRIDE has been the Substance Abuse Prevention Organization within the Town, making Putnam a "Safe, Friendly and Healthy Community."

PRIDE works with leaders in the community to identify and address local youth substance use problems and create sustainable community-level change through the use of the Seven Strategies for Community Level Change. Community coalitions connect multiple sectors of the community, including businesses, parents, media, law enforcement, schools, organizations, faith health providers, social service agencies, and the government. By acting in concert through the coalition, all of the partners gain a more complete understanding of the community's problems. Together, the partners organize and develop plans and programs to coordinate their anti-drug efforts. The result is a comprehensive, community-wide approach to substance abuse and its related problems.

time for a change in this law is long overdue.'

"Sexual harassment is something women experience far too frequently. Harassment in the workplace is especially harmful as it inhibits career progression and creates an atmosphere where women are made to feel unequal and unwelcome," Flexer said. "This proposal today will ensure that all workplaces in Connecticut have strong training and policies to prevent sexual harassment. If passed, these would be some of the strongest laws in the country. Connecticut should lead the nation in preventing sexual harassment."

The legislative package, known as the "Time's Up Act" reforms

Connecticut's sexual harassment and sexual assault laws and processes to create stronger protections for victims and to increase penalties for offenders by: reforming the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities (CHRO) complaint process; strengthening and expanding Connecticut's mandated reporter laws; eliminating statutes of limitation for all felony sexual assault crimes; increasing financial penalties for offenders; providing for injunctive relief and punitive damages; strengthening CHRO; setting a universal process for investigations of harassment complaints against school administrators; and requiring increased training and education in Connecticut workplaces.

A proposed bill on the package is expected to be raised for consideration in the Judiciary Committee.

Empty Bowls fundraiser at Pomfret School

POMFRET — For over 10 years. Pomfret School has participated in the national Empty Bowls Supper fundraiser. Using bowls created by Pomfret School students during an after-school program, guests attend a dinner of endless soups cooked by the school's staff, and all the money raised goes toward local food pantries. It's all made possible because of the generosity of the Pomfret School's teachers, staff and students.

"The school has so much," said sculpture and ceramics instructor Kathi Yokum. "We're thought of as being privileged and elite. And we probably are.

We give the kids a great education. So it's always good to be reminded that there are a lot of people in the world less fortunate than ourselves. The kids will appreciate this lesson, especially later in life.

And the community plays a big role as well.

"It's amazing how this brings our community together," Yokum said. "People even come from outside the community to not only get soup – an affordable and wonderful night out - but help out the local food banks."

During the dinner, they sold 120 handmade bowls.

The handmade bowls were all made by nine students, who volunteered time to the program in the afternoon.

"I really love making the bowls," said student Illya Levin. "I took ceramics class two years ago. I took another one last semester. It makes me very calm and focused. At the end of a busy day, it's nice to focus on making the bowls.'

Fellow student Kevin Li said it was a great alternative to sports.

"That kind of got old to me," he said. "I did sports every year. I like to have a different activity. And I liked that everyone had fun together."

And while creating the bowls was a source of enjoyment and relaxation for the nine students, it was also exciting to know their bowls were going towards a good cause.

"I think it's very nice to help people who are in need. People who don't have the same resources we do on campus." said Levin. "It's being proactive."

And then there were the soups, donated by faculty and friends of Pomfret School. And there were a lot of soups. From beef chili to fish chowder to vegan carrot ginger soup, there was a soup for every soul.

"I'm always amazed at how generous my faculty colleagues are," said Levin. 'When you teach at a boarding school, you're on 24/7, either working in the dorm or on the playing fields or teaching. The fact that they help by making soup is very meaningful to me.'

Students Illya Levin and Kevin Li helped make over 120 handmade bowls for the Empty Bowls Supper fundraiser.

Jean Pappas has been coming to Empty Bowls Supper for years, and this was Peg Desaulnier's (left) first time. "What they do for the needy makes me feel good," said

Last year the Empty Bowls Supper made around $1,500 for three local food banks.

Joe Gajewski, Georgeanne Gajewski, Carol Barrette, Bill Gajewski and Phil Gibbs enjoyed tasting so many different soups.

Cece, Tie, Vivian, Katie and Esme Watkins enjoyed the sweet potato black bean soup and the Italian wedding soup the most.

Pomfret School staff Lauren Griffin, Sandy Chase and Martha Horst all made soups for the fundraiser. Griffin and Chase made an Italian wedding soup and Horst brought a homemade potato leek soup donated a lot of time and money for the cause.

Rick Barbour's favorite soup was the clam chowder, and his wife Janet's favorite was the carrot coconut soup. That was also Virginia Keith's favorite. And her husband Wayne loved the chili.

"The soups are all excellent!" said Jane and Keith Green, pictured with Judd and Mavin Palmerino.

Woodstock and Killingly battle in state opener

Killingly's Abbie Burgess drives to the hoop against Woodstock Academy on Tuesday, Feb.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ

WOODSTOCK What were the odds? Three months ago at season's start Woodstock Academy had a roughly three percent chance of facing backyard rival Killingly High in the opening round of the state Class L girls baslongshot one-in-31 chance arrived Tuesday night when the sixth-seeded Centaurs played host to the No.-27 seeded Redgals in the playoff opener at Alumni Fieldhouse.

"It's a backyard brawl and that's all great, but there's plusses and minuses. In the beginning typically you play away — so you can't scout, you can't pre-pare," said Woodstock said Woodstock coach Will Fleeton. "This way, this is a team that you know inside and out. A coach that I know, so that's rare for the first round of the playoffs.

The odds were long that the rivals would meet in the first round for the Redgals perhaps the odds were even longer that they would win - having lost twice to the Centaurs in the regular season by scores of 56-22 and 56-35.

'The girls left it all out on the floor tonight and that's all I asked. Yesterday at practice at the end I said to them that my expectation is that they bring it from the tipoff until the horn blows at the end," said Killingly coach Gina Derosier. "I'm not disappointed in them. They played really, really hard. I'm very proud of

There would be no upset on Tuesday night at Alumni Fieldhouse with Woodstock defeating Killingly 54-31 on Feb. 27. It was a bittersweet win for Fleeton over an Eastern Connecticut Conference rival.

"It's good but I think it carries its bad too. Playoff time, I root for the other ECC teams. I'm sure they root for us," Fleeton said. "So to end their season and send them home, that's the negative because I would like to see all our local teams go out and do

The win advanced Woodstock to the second round of the tourney where they will play host to Bacon Academy this Friday night. The loss ended Killingly's season with a record of 7-15. Sophomore guard Trinity Angel led Killingly with 17 points. It was the final game for Killingly seniors Reagan Morin and Julia Trafaconda.

"I'm so happy, senior year, finally made the tournament," Morin said. "It's nice to be here even though it didn't go the way we wanted it to. I have so much respect for all the Woodstock girls. I've played with a lot of them in the off-season. It was a good matchup. We tried as hard as we could. They played a great game. It just didn't fall our way."

Coach Derosier said playing in a state tourney game was the best possible way for her seniors to end their careers. "I want nothing but the best for these girls and I'm so happy they were able to play their last game in the state tournament," Derosier said.

And with only two seniors on Killingly's roster Derosier was already looking forward to next season.

"I'm very excited about our future," Derosier said. "I started a freshman, a sophomore, and a junior this year. And Abbie (Burgess) playing the point guard as a freshman, you know she's a 14-year-old girl running the point against these big varsity girls. She has impressed me so much, she's a coach's dream."

Woodstock took control early and led 27-14 at halftime. Kayla Gaudreau led Woodstock with 11 points and Mackenzie Caver added 10 points for the Centaurs. Derosier and Fleeton served as assistant coaches together under former Woodstock Academy coach Willie Bosquet — so there were no hard feelings on either

"It's funny the way things work out but Will's a great guy. I love Will and I wish him all the best in the state tournament," Derosier said.

The win advanced Woodstock Academy to a second-round Class L tourney game this Friday, March 2, against No. 11 seed Bacon Academy — a 41-32 winner over No. 22 seed Masuk in opening-round play. The Centaurs (16-6) will tip off at 7 p.m. versus the Bobcats (16-7) and the game promises an intriguing matchup the fourth time the teams will meet this season. If the odds were long that Woodstock would face Killingly in the opening round of the tourney, they are even longer that the Centaurs would face the same team four times in one season.

"Probably a one percent chance," Fleeton

Woodstock and Bacon split the regular-season series — with the Bobcats winning 42-40 on Jan. 19 and the Centaurs coming away victorious, 44-26, on Feb. 6. Woodstock and Bacon met for a third time in the first round of the Eastern Connecticut Conference Division 1 Tournament on Feb. 15 — with the Bacon escaping with a 34-33 win after hitting two free throws with 1.7 seconds left. Woodstock senior forward Jamie Woods is looking forward to a showdown with the Bobcats.

'We're really happy to have another chance and to get the 'W'. We want our revenge. This is our chance and now we're going to give it to them," Woods said. "We're ready to go in. I think we're sharp. We're playoff-ready as Coach would say. Coach pre-pares us really well. We watch film. We're familiar with their 'D', what their offense is. I think we have what it takes and we have the knowledge that it takes to give it to them. It's a lot of pressure and it's going to be a good night. We definitely have to deliver."

It's been a season of longshots for Woodstock Academy. The Centaurs had roughly a three-percent chance of meeting Killingly in states — and now Bacon is on tap for the fourth meeting after narrowly defeating the Centaurs in a heart-stopping game in the ECC Tournament just over two weeks ago.

"Obviously that was tough to lose such a close game, particularly after beating them the week before. I think they're more than happy to see Bacon Academy again. Obviously that night (after the ECC tourney loss) my seniors thought they would never have another chance to see them again," Fleeton said. "Luckily, we were down to this one percent chance, but it happened."

What are the chances the Centaurs are stoked for some revenge this Friday night at Alumni Fieldhouse?

So here it is. I think the kids will be more than ready to play," Fleeton said. "It comes down to the kids, that's why we're here. Let's do it."

Woodstock wins Class S state gymnastics title

BY CHARLIE LENTZ

SOUTHBURY Woodstock Academy's Abigail Vaida finished first in the floor exercise to lead the Centaurs to a first-place finish at the state Class S Gymnastics Championships Pomperaug High School last Saturday, Feb. 24. It was Woodstock's eighth consecutive state Class championship.

"The team had a great meet. We had a rocky start on vault but they came back really awesome on the next three events to put up a good score. So that was really exciting, all the team members coming together," said Woodstock coach Kasey Tocchio.

The Centaurs notched a team score of 139.175. Mercy High of Middletown finished in second place with a score of 132.8, followed by Oxford High with Woodstock's 130.5. Vaida, a junior, scored 9.175 to capture first place in the floor exercise.

"Abby is a one of a kind gymnast. She is just such a hard work- knows the Centaurs er," said Tocchio of Vaida. "She's been really great for us on the floor this year. She's really improved her skills this year and she's someone we really can count on and count on for a big score, which is really awesome."

Next up for Woodstock Academy is the State Open Championships scheduled for this Saturday, March 3, at Pomperaug High. Woodstock has won six straight State Open titles but keeping that streak alive will be a daunting task. The Centaurs will have some tough competition this Saturday at Pomperaug. Greenwich High and Trumbull High — both Class L schools — will be competing at this Saturday's State Open meet. Both Greenwich and Trumbull scored higher than Woodstock Academy's total of 139.175 at last weekend's state Class meet. posted Greenwich a score of 145.4 and Trumbull tallied 140.9 at the Class meet. Tocchio have their work cut out for them.

"The State Open is definitely going to be tough. It's something they're going to have to push for. But knowing that we're so close to Trumbull's score, it's kind of motivating and exciting for the girls to know that we can get ahead of that. So our goal is just to go in there and literally do our best meet that we've done all season, really care about the little details and then that's all we can ask for," Tocchio said. "There's no defense in gymnastics so we're going to try to do our best and then be happy with what the outcome

Centaurs head into states with momentum

Woodstock's Chase Anderson goes up for a shot with Plainfield's Connor Davis defending.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ VILLAGER EDITOR

WOODSTOCK — Woodstock Academy first-year coach Marty Hart has been getting to know his players game by game. Early this season Hart's scorebook registered seven losses over Woodstock's first eight games but the Centaurs have been cementing their relationship shot by shot down the homestretch.

Woodstock reached the championship game of the Eastern Connecticut Conference Division 2 Tournament with three straight tourney wins — capped by a 65-61 win over third-seeded Griswold in the tourney semifinals on Saturday, Feb. 24. The seventh-seeded Centaurs faced top-seeded St. Bernard in the D-2 title game at Waterford High on Wednesday, Feb. 28. The Centaurs defeated Wheeler in the play-in round and then Woodstock defeated second-seeded Plainfield 68-57 at Plainfield High in the quarterfinals of the Eastern Connecticut Conference Division 2 Tournament on Feb. 22 coach Hart said the secret of the late-season surge is perhaps all about sharing.

"We've grown together as a team and learned our different roles," said Hart after the win over Plainfield. "We're really sharing the ball. It's going inside and then coming out. We're always looking to make that one more pass. We don't care who scores as long as they put it on our side of the scoreboard."

The win came on second-seeded Plainfield's hardwood and showed coach Hart that the seventh-seeded Centaurs have been buying in to what he's selling.

"Beating a very, very strong Plainfield team on their home court is something our guys can tip our hats to," Hart said. "That's a good matchup, a hometown rivalry, we just got a few more bounces than they got."

The victory over Griswold in the ECC semifinals followed the Plainfield win and capped a late-season stretch of six wins over eight games and lifted Woodstock's record to 11-12 overall. Against Plainfield the Centaurs played well in both the half-court and transition

"The guys have worked hard and learned a lot of different sets and plays. We can be a chameleon because we have several guys who are about 6-foot-2. It's difficult, if you get a guard on you, we can post that guy up. If you put on a big on him and he's not quick enough we can drive by," Hart said. "So we're able to really use all the tools in our chest and just see which one's hot that night."

Junior forward Cole Hackett scored 18 points in the win over Plainfield and said the win was a morale booster.

"Gives us a lot of confidence," Hackett said. "We had a mentality that it was going to be hard game to win and it was a good game to win."

Junior guard Chase Anderson added 17 points and junior guard Aaron Johnson scored 13 points for the Centaurs against Plainfield. Hackett said there wasn't enough sharing during their early-season travails.

"At the beginning of the season we really we're playing individual basket-ball," Hackett said. "As the season progressed we're beginning to play more as a team.

Plainfield senior forward Chris Peaslev scored a team-high 18 points in the loss to Woodstock. The loss to Woodstock dropped Plainfield's record to 15-6. Next up for Woodstock Academy is the Division III state tournament. Hackett said the Centaurs' play has improved overall and they will be ready.

'We're looking more inside which I think is really good," Hackett said. "And we're hitting an occasional outside shot which helps us a lot. Our defense has really improved and we're playing more as a team on defense especially.

Qualifying rounds of the state tourney begin on Saturday, March 3, with first-round games scheduled to start on Monday, March 5. Hart said his players have spread the ball around and don't care who scores. Perhaps the Centaurs first-vear coach and his players can take the momentum from their late-season surge and channel it into the state tourney — remembering that sharing is car-

"We've developed chemistry. They've been working hard. They've been playing smart and playing together," Hart said. "And now that we're learning our roles and executing instead of running plays — things are really starting to look good for us."

WOODSTOCK 65, GRISWOLD 61

WATERFORD — Chase Anderson scored a team-high 14 points to lead the Centaurs past third-seeded Griswold on Saturday Feb. 24, in the ECC tournament semifinals at Waterford High School. Aaron Johnson scored 13 points and Cole Hackett, Luke Matthewson and Aidan Morin each added 12 points for Woodstock. Paroah Curtis scored 13 points for Griswold.

One year removed from a state crown for Woodstock

POMFRET — What a difference a year makes. Last season Ryan Wojciechowski was on the ice for a key penalty kill in the third period against Hall-Southington in the Division III state championship game — helping to shut down the Warriors' power play and allowing Woodstock Academy's Nathan DeLuca to score the shorthanded goal that broke a 3-3 tie and helped the Centaurs win the state title. On Monday night Wojiechowski was on the ice for Woodstock's final regular-season game — a 3-1 loss to E.O. Smith/Tolland that dropped Woodstock's record to eight wins and 11 losses.

Nine seniors graduated after last year's championship season. From top of the heap to middle of the pack through it all Wojiechowski has held up his end of the bargain as one of Woodstock's senior captains.

"I think my role this year is a huge one because I really solidified the defense and the goalies in that sense,' Wojciechowski said. "Hopefully I did a pretty good job and trained them for the future — one, to try to own up to their mistakes and try to play the best hockey they can every second they touch the Coach Mike Starr said Wojciechowski has lived up to his role — along with senior captains Aidan Boisvert and Pat Delaney.

"It's a tall task to be a captain, especially after coming off a state championship. But he's a leader. He works hard in the games. He works hard in practice. He doesn't take any shifts off. If he does make a mistake I think he's probably harder on himself than we are on him," Starr said. "Part of that comes from the fact he doesn't want to make mistakes because he does want to be an influence on the younger kids. Going into this year we told him that we really need the captains — all three of them really — to lead this team, not just on the ice but off the ice and make them realize what's involved.'

Wojciechowski said the effort was there this year but perhaps not the veteran savvy.

"I think we worked just as hard this year as we did last year. We had a lot more veteran guys last year," said Wojciechowski, a senior defenseman. "So the senior leadership is not really there. That was a big factor this year.'

In addition to losing nine seniors to graduation from last season's championship team, the Centaurs were also elevated from Division III to Division II this season. Through it all coach Starr said his players knew matching last season's accomplishments might have been the ultimate shorthanded comeback.

"I think the kids know we're a young team. They know we're inexperienced. Even the returning kids from last year's varsity, as far as forwards go, there weren't too many that were that experienced," Starr said. "We are a young team. There's one senior playing forward. The rest are juniors, a handful of sophomores, and a couple of freshmen. When I look at the teams that we're playing — that are loaded with seniors – I think we're doing fine. We're not losing games by eight, nine goals. All the games have been tight this year. I'm really happy with how they played this

Freshman Guerin Favreau scored the lone goal for Woodstock in the loss to E.O. Smith on Feb. 26 at Pomfret School's Jahn Rink, with an assist from junior Avery Riva. E.O. Smith led 32-30 in shots but Woodstock outshot the Bucks 12-4 in the third period. Ross Lennon scored two goals for E.O. Smith and Owen Stacey tallied one goal. Lennon's final goal came on an empty-netter with :02 left. The loss to E.O. Smith dropped Woodstock's record to 8-11. The win lifted E.O. Smith's record to 9-10-1. The first round of the Division II state tournament is scheduled to begin on Tuesday, March 6. Woodstock is projected to be the 15th seed for the state tourney and will likely face a No. 2 seed in the opening round of the Division II state tourney.

"It's going to be tough. Being a 16, 15, 14 seed — you're definitely playing the top talent in D-II. This year the top talent in D-II has really kind of taken over. Farmington Valley (with a 17-2-1 record) has lost one game this year. Guilford (17-3) is in second place, if we match up with them that's going to be a tough game, they have the top two scorers in the state. But it's going to be a challenge that I'm kind of looking forward to. I want to see how these kids respond to it," Starr said. "We have a lot of kids that have never played in a state playoff game. It's going to be a little eye-opening to them. So I'm hoping that Ryan (Wojciechowski), Pat (Delaney) and Aidan (Boisvert) can kind of bring them together in the locker room and let them know it is a different level of hockey. No matter how good a team is during the regular season everybody elevates their game for playoffs and we need to do the same.'

The Centaurs and Wojciechowski will get a new start in the state tournament - the playoffs are a fresh beginning in a season of firsts for the veteran defender. "This season was a blast actually. It started off a little rocky — new team, new everything really. We had a new goalie, we had new forwards, we had new everything," Wojciechowski said. "We really came together as a team a fourth of the way through the season. It's kind of kicked up from there.'

What a difference a year makes. Wojciechowski will be moving on from high school hockey after his final game this season. He's upheld the bargain that goes along with a captaincy. And the underclassmen will get their chance to be veterans next year — when they'll try to make a difference.

"I think it really strengthens the younger leaders to step up and realize they have to play a bigger role than they did last year," Wojciechowski said. "We just need to grow as a team and hopefully they get it next year."

TRI-TOWN 9, WOODSTOCK 4

The Centaurs fell to Tri-Town in the semifinals of the Nutmeg Conference tournament on Tuesday, Feb. 27. Avery Riva scored two goals and Matt Odom and Jake Starr each scored one goal for Woodstock. Assist were notched by Riva, Doug Newton, Jake Black, and Guerin Favreau. The loss dropped Woodstock's record to 8-12.

PUTNAM — Third-seeded Putnam High defeated No.-30 seed Windsor Locks 41-25 in the opening round of the state Class S girls basketball tournament on Tuesday night, Feb. 27, at Putnam High School.

After a cold-shooting first half that ended in a 10-10 tie, Putnam scored eight straight points to start the second half, played tough defense, and never relinquished the lead. Putnam was led by Ashley Burke with 14 points, Molly McKeon scored eight points, and Alex Hutchins added five points with nine rebounds. Kayleigh Lyons and Julia Loomis each scored four points and played great defense for the Clippers. Victoria Dias came off the bench in the fourth quarter and scored six points to help secure the win.

The loss ended Windsor Lock's season with a record of 8-13. The win lifted the Clippers record to 17-4. Putnam advanced to the second round of the tourney where the Clippers will play host to No. 14 seed Lyman Memorial (13-8), a 53-22 winner over No. 19 Whitney Tech (9-9) in opening-round play. Putnam is scheduled to host Lyman in second-round action at 7 p.m. on Friday, March 2, at Putnam High School's gymnasium.

Alice LaFramboise Raymond, 87

CANTERBURY -Alice LaFramboise Raymond, 87, of 92 Colburn Road, beloved wife of the late Edward Dean died Raymond Saturday, February 24, at her home.

She was born February 22, 1931 in Canterbury, a daughter of the late Adelard and Angelina Penelle La Framboise and had been a lifelong resident of Canterbury. Alice worked alongside Dean on their dairy farms during most of their lives, she also worked as a school bus driver in Windham and later in Canterbury where she retired after 33 years at age 75. She loved gardening, drawing and painting and feeding the many song birds in her back yard. She mostly enjoyed sitting on her back porch sharing the view of her beautiful flow-er gardens with family and friends. Alice is survived by her two sons and daughters-in-law, James and Christie Raymond of Canterbury, Dennis and Cynthia of North Franklin, and three daughters, Suzanne and Kenneth Buell of Eastford, Eileen and William Harmon of Kennebunk, Maine, and Lisa Owen of Boaz, Kentucky, also nine grandchildren, twenty great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. In addition, several sister-in-laws, a brother-in-law, and many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her husband, Edward Dean Raymond, sisters Helen E. Busher, Cecil Dapsis; brothers Louis LaFramboise, Francis LaFramboise, Albert LaFramboise, Leo LaFramboise, Charles LaFramboise Edward LaFramboise. Visitation will be held Sunday, March 4, from 2 -5pm at Dougherty Bros. Funeral Home, 595 Norwich Rd. (Rt. 12), Plainfield. A Mass of Christian Burial will be Monday, March 5 at 10:00AM in St. Augustine's Church, 144 Westminster Rd. (Rt. 14), Canterbury. Burial will follow in Hanover Cemetery, Potash Hill Rd., Hanover. THOMPSON Thelma R. Barker, 82, of Thompson, died Friday, February 23, at Vibra Hospital in Leicester, Massachusetts, after a period of declining health due to a stroke she suffered in mid-December. Thelma was born in Branford. She is the daughter of the late George E. and the late Adeline (Tefft) Barker.

She is survived by one son: John Barker of Springfield, Illinois; one sister: Gay Choiniere of Thompson, and one brother: Richard Barker of Thompson; and several nieces, nephews and cousins. Thelma was a dedicated educator for over 30 years at the Rectory School in Pomfret, retiring in 2008.

She was active at her parish, St. Andrew Bobola Church, and was a teacher with the CCD program. Thelma enjoyed reading and was an avid bird watcher. A Mass of Christian burial will be held at 10:00 am on Friday, March 2 at St. Andrew Bobola Church, 54 West Main St., Dudley, Massachusetts. Burial will follow in St. Joseph Garden Of Peace Cemetery, Webster. Calling hours were held Thursday, March 1 at Bartel Funeral Home & Chapel in Dudley, Massachusetts. www.bartelfuneralhome.com

Harry R. Hammond, 94

WALLINGFORD -- Harry R. Hammond, 94, formerly of East Killingly died Monday February 19, at the Masonic Home in Wallingford. He was born in East Killingly on December 13, 1923, the son of the late Harold and Lucina (Smith) Hammond. Harry was the husband of the late Lorraine White Hammond. He served in the Army during WWII, and worked as an engineer with AT&T for 38 years. Harry was an avid golfer. He is survived by his brother Roy Hammond of Browns

Mills, New Jersey and many nieces and nephews. A graveside service was held on February 23, at Westfield Cemetery, Danielson. There were no calling hours. Tillinghast Funeral Home 433

Main Street Danielson is in charge of arrangements.

CAPTION: Brighten up interior spaces with a new coat of paint — a perfect project when cooped up indoors.

When the weather outside is frightful, homeowners and renters can turn their interior spaces into something delightful. Residents can banish feeltives from Connecticut, New York and Florida. A calling hour was held on February 23. Which was followed by a funeral service in Tillinghast Funeral Home, Danielson. Burial will be held in the spring in Bartlett Cemetery, East Killingly.

Beat cabin fever with winter renovations

ings of cabin fever by using time spent inside to make subtle or even substantial improvements to their living areas.

Individuals may find that winter is a great time to tackle delayed or unfinished projects or to put plans for major renovations in motion. Homeowners may find that they have some extra time on their hands when weather and early evening darkness reduces how much time they can spend outdoors. The following projects can help homeowners make the most of their time indoors.

• Start painting. One of the easiest ways to transform the look of a room is with a fresh coat of paint. Painting a room or rooms is an inexpensive project that can be completed over the course of a single weekend. Painting in lighter colors can help illuminate dark spaces and make a home feel more vivid and inviting, especially during the winter. And painting need not be reserved for walls only. Homeowners may want to sand and paint furniture to give items a trendy arts-and-crafts feel.

• Reimagine flooring. Thanks to the bevy of laminate, composite materials and vinyl flooring options, homeowners can engage in do-it-yourself flooring projects to perk up tired interior spaces. Many "floating" flooring systems are user-friendly and can instantly update spaces. Some systems may not even require adhesives or nails to complete. · Redress the furniture. New furniture can be expensive. For those who are happy with the lines and scale of their current furniture, a facelift may be all that's needed to give rooms a new look. Slipcovers can make sofas, love seats and chairs look like new or blend with an entirely new color scheme. Slipcovers come in fitted and loose varieties and in many different materials. Other pieces can be updated with throws, new linens or a coat of paint or stain.

· Address drafts and other inefficiencies. Colder temperatures alert homeowners to drafts, leaks and even insect or rodent infiltration. Homeowners can scout out rooms and remedy situations.

 Organize the home. Rainy or snowy days are great moments to address organizational issues, such as messy mudrooms or cluttered kitchen cabinets. Get a jump-start on spring cleaning before the warm weather arrives.

Time spent indoors can be put to good use by engaging in renovation projects.
