Webster officials take proactive measures against coronavirus

WEBSTER — As the tentacles of the new coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic reach across the region, communities are taking proactive steps to address the outbreak.

Last week, several area school systems decided to shut down, including Webster's on Thursday.

In Webster, things have changed equally quickly. On Thursday, the town suspended "all non-essential Town of Webster sponsored group programs and events" until April 13. Among other things, that included Tri-Valley's congregate meals program (but Meals on Wheels continued to run) and recreation events, as well as many public events not being run by the town.

On Friday, the town posted the following to its Web site: "The Gladys E. Kelly Library and Senior Center are closed until further notice. Employees will still be working and available to assist via the telephone, email, etc. The one exception to the above is on Wednesday March 18th, the Senior Center will be open only for previously scheduled tax assistance. No other activities will

"As a reminder, many library products are available through the library website or its many smartphone app partners. Library patrons may pick up books placed on hold by calling ahead to the library and coordinating a pick up time in the library vestibule.

"Scheduled board and committee meetings have been cancelled as well. Future meetings will only be scheduled to conduct urgent business and may be done via technology to avoid large gatherings."

That last part will be common across the region, as the towns implement last week's emergency order from Gov. Charlie Baker temporarily suspending parts of the Open Meeting Law and allowing all local boards to meet remotely

New exhibit takes flight at Booklovers' Gourmet

BY GUS STEEVES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — Booklovers' Gourmet is celebrating its last month before moving to a new location down the street by having an art exhibit that's all about taking flight.

Dubbed "The Curious Life of Pollinators," it showcases Nicole Giles' fascination with butterflies, plus a few moths and bees. Some of her photos are decidedly unique; after all, how often do you see a spicebush swallowtail head down in a flower, or a quintet of caterpillars that look like they're about to race?

Giles has only been taking photos for about two years, using her iPhone.

"It's always in my pocket," she notes. "If I had a big camera, I might not have it with me and miss some of these shots.'

Many of the images come from her own backyard, where she raises monarchs "from eggs all the way up to adulthood. I migrated from there to other butterflies," she said. Others coem from the butterfly den she's made at Buffumville

Her friend Christine Helie of Leicester sparked Giles' interest in insects. One day, Giles sent her a photo of a monarch in her garden, and Helie "called her immediately to say how soon can I come over." At that time, Giles had "ten [milkweed] plants but hundreds of monarchs," and has since purposely planted dozens of the plant, which is both native and critical for the monarch's lifecycle. This past year, Giles raised about 200 monarchs; last year, about 250.

"I've loved insects since I was a little girl," Helie said, noting one of her earliest memories is of picking up butterfly wings that had fallen off car grills at a rest stop. Since then, she's become a professional entomologist focsuing particularly on caterpillars because "they're so pretty, the little details and patterns." Both of them strongly advocate planting pollinator gardens – native flowering plants of various kinds that can attract butterflies, moths, bees and other insects. Some pollinator species need a specific plant (like the monarch), while others are more flexible (like many bees). But many of them have seen drastic declines in population numbers over the last several decades due to pesticides, disease, pollution, habitat loss and climate change.

Store owner Deb Horan has had art shows like this every month for many years, and said she hopes to expand her offerings in the new place, which is the former MVP Sports site at the corner of Cody and Main. She officially closes March 21 and has a convoy of friends, family and customers helping her move up the street, where she plans to reopen April 4.

Nichols holds Third Annual Relay for Life

BY JASON BLEAU CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY - While most towns will celebrate Relay for Life in the spring, Nichols College hosts one of the first such events each year, bringing together the college community to help raise money to fight cancer and awareness of the many forms the disease can take.

The college, located on Center Road in Dudley, hosted their third annual Relay for Life on Sunday, March 8, continuing a modern tradition started by former student Nicholas Anderson who brought his passion for the Relay to Nichols after getting his high school involved in the cause years prior. Nichols holds one of the first Relays New England each year in order to accommodate other campus programs and spring break and to avoid impacting finals. However, unlike other Relays the Nichols event is much shorter lasting six hours instead of the traditional 24-hour peri-

Nichols sophomore Torey Lussier is the President of Nichols College Against Cancer, the group responsible for organizing the Relay each year, and said the event has become a passion project for everyone involved.

'We get a lot of people who come to help out and be a part of this. It's a community event and everyone comes together to make it happen," Lussier said, acknowledging that holding the event at a college comes with its own complications when compared to a traditional Relay. "I think it is a bit tougher for a college atmosphere because you have to take into consideration what everyone likes and everything else that goes on around campus. Having to adapt it to a college community can be a little tricky. We had it on a Saturday last year and realized that didn't grow as much so we tried Sunday this year."

The 2020 edition of the event included vendors,

Local schools work to address coronavirus

BY JASON BLEAU

DUDLEY/CHARLTON - As the coronavirus pandemic becomes a more prevalent issue, locally the Dudley Charlton Regional School District was one of the first entities impaired by the national health emergency.

It all started Monday, March 9, when Superintendent Steve Lamarche learned of a parent in the district who was being tested for COVID-19, also known as the novel coronavirus. Lamarche released a notice to parents and citizens indicating that the parent has been given permission to send her kids to school and that, at the time, results of the test were pending.

"In the late morning, we learned of a Charlton parent who returned from an overseas trip this weekend. She did not feel well and went to Urgent Care. Urgent Care tested her for COVID-19. The family stated that the Urgent Care Doctor advised them that it was okay to send their students to school today at the Charlton Middle School and the Heritage School. Upon learning such, we contacted the Charlton Health Director, Mr. James Philbrook, and we had been instructed to have the students dismissed until we have a confirmation either way. The family complied," Superintendent Lamarche said in a press release.

In the days that followed, the parent was cleared of the COVID-19 virus thanks to a negative test result, but the scare served as sharp dose of reality for a town that had yet to see a single confirmed case of the virus. Three days after that notice on March 11 the district released follow up communication to parents, staff and citizens of the district informing them of the cancelation of the Global Awareness International Trip, the scheduled trip to Florida in April, and a moratorium on all field trips outside of Worcester County. All major en masse events, such as concerts and performances, were also canceled or set aside for rescheduling. However, it would not be long before the district followed suit with nearly every other school in the region, and hundreds across the United States, by shutting its doors for two weeks.

"After participating in state, local and regional conference calls, this decision is being made in conjunction with the Dudley-Charlton Town Administrators, Health Directors, Board of Health members and Emergency Personnel. This was not an easy decision in light of the mixed messages and decisions being made around us from the state level and neighboring communities. As this is unprecedented, we are working on additional communications for you in the coming days," Lamarche said.

His announcement confirmed that schools throughout the district would be closed from Friday, March 13 through Friday March 27 while extensive cleaning took place.

The Dudley Charlton School District was joined by other area schools in this decision. Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School also announced social distancing practiced on March 12 and suspended large gatherings and external field trips as of that day. A day later it was confirmed that the school will be closed until March 20 as a precaution against the coronavirus pandemic.

"It is impossible to know the future path of the virus and its effect on Bay Path and public acceleration. I can assure you that we are working diligently to incorporate all health and safety recommendations into our policymaking. The safety of our students, staff and community are in the forefront of our actions. We will keep you informed of changes and decisions as they are made in the coming weeks and months," Superintendent-Director John A. Lafleche said in a press release.

Finally, Nichols College has decided to move all of its classes online from Monday, March 23 through Friday, April 3. The college also announced that residence halls will remain open for students who want to access the campus. Large on-campus events have also been postponed during this time.

"Nichols College recognizes that its strength lies in the personal engagement our students receive from faculty and fellow learners. For this reason, we are still hopeful that given more time that we will be able to open our classrooms up again to finish the semester. However, we must also prepare and be transparent that this may not be possible. We will continue to assess this decision in the coming days and weeks. This reality is painful to us all, as we agree whole-heartedly that the level of engagement and personal touch, we pride ourselves on is the very substance that makes Nichols College Nichols College," President Susan West Engelkemeyer said in a press release. "However, it would be irresponsible given the uncertainty of the current state of national affairs to continue to think that we can conduct business as usual. Therefore, we do believe that giving students two weeks of online instruction following spring break is now the most prudent action for the campus to take.

All updates concerning the Dudley Charlton Regional School District, Bay Path and Nichols College can be found on their respective websites as national, state and local health organizations continue to generate plans of action against the virus outbreak.

Voters to decide future of Stevens Linen Mills

BY JASON BLEAU

DUDLEY - The town of Dudley has scheduled a meeting for late March that town officials say could realistically determine the future fate of the Stevens Linen Mill, a historical building at 8 Mill St. that is currently in a severe deteriorating

Most recently used as the host building for the nowclosed Do-Right Flea Market, the town of Dudley has been seeking a way to bring new life to the mill for some time including entertaining interest from outside parties to renovate and reuse the facility. Many potential deals have come and gone but the latest proposal seems to be the most promising yet with Camden Partners seeking to utilize the building as apartment space and multi-use facilities. In November, Town Administrator Jonathan Ruda quoted the project with a proposed price tag of $25 million funded through state and federal historical credits and conventional debt and promised significant updates on the initiative in early 2020.

Now, in March, the project will seek to overcome its biggest hurdle to date, a special town meeting vote that will also seek approval for Dudley to sponsor special legislation to help Camden Partners receive incentives for the rehabilitation of the mill. The two-article warrant set to be addressed on March 30 at the Dudley Town Hall will seek voter approval to designate the mill as an "Economic Opportunity Area" as well as grant the Board of Selectmen the authority to petition the General Court to adopt a special act allowing the town to enter into Tax Increment Agreement related to the redevelopment of the mill. Town bylaws state at least 51 voters need to attend the meeting and should the majority approve both articles it would allow for the town to negotiate agreements for Camden Partners to renovate and use the mill as well as seek financing options on the state

Administrator Town Jonathan Ruda was adamant about the need for support for these articles during a meeting with selectmen in early March saying he hopes to see a strong turnout to allow the Stevens Mills an opportunity as a new

"The condition inside the mill is unbelievable, and I'm actually surprised that there's an investor group that's showing any interest in it at this point. The water infiltration is all the way from the top levels to the ground floor. The floors are all buckled. It's in really rough shape. I strongly feel that if we lose the investors that are interested in this project, I don't know if we'll get another bite of the apple before that mill slips into the river right in front of our very eyes," Ruda said.

The Town Administrator wasn't alone in his opinion. Board of Selectman Chair Steve Sullivan said he too feels this is an important opportunity to prevent one of Dudley's landmark historical structures from falling by the wayside for-

"Manufacturing is not coming back. That mill cannot be rehabbed to the point where they can handle manufacturing. I truly believe that if this does not pass, it's either going to clip off into oblivion or the fire department's going to have to surround and drown. We have to do something. It's at that point," said Sullivan.

FireChiefDeanKochanowski confirmed the building is a fire and safety hazard in its current state. From his perspective, the fate of the mill has been a long time coming, and whether it's through demolition or renovation the building will not last much longer in its current

"I would just implore the community to support whatever is going to go in there problems with that building on the Town of Dudley Web from the time I took office in 2011," said the chief. "It's to the point of no return now - It's a life safety issue. I understand there's other boards and committees that would argue with me, but common sense needs to prevail in this. It's getting to the point where it's ridicu-

Selectmen made sure to thank State Rep. Peter Durant for his support in getting the project to the governor for consideration. Town officials indicated that Gov. Charlie Baker's office has expressed support for Dudley seeking the Tax Increment Financing agreement which does require a public vote to pursue.

Camden Partners is slated to present details on their plans for the Stevens Mill on Monday, March 23 while the special town meeting will take place at 7 p.m. at the Dudley Town Hall. As of this report neither the presentation nor the special town meeting have been rescheduled or impacted by the ongoing concerns surrounding the coronavirus pandemic. GOLDEN BEES DONATE HANDMADE SLEEPING BAGS TO LOCAL SHELTER

A big shout out to the Golden Bees of Webster's United Federate Church of Christ. Earlier in March, Erica Groh, a volunteer at the Killingly, Conn. No Freeze Shelter, and Jill St. Cyr, founder of the non-profit group in Connecticut called It Starts at Home, delivered 20 beautifully hand quilted sleeping bags to the Killingly Access No Freeze Shelter made by The Golden Bees. The weight and warmth of the bags are amazing. Each one of the sleeping bags is hand made by the Golden Bees organization and each one even contains a special bag of supplies inside the sleeping bags. If you haven't heard of the Golden Bees, check out their Web page. Its a great organization that helps organizations by providing comforters, blankets and throws. It Starts at Home Organization was happy they were able to partner with them during their backpack drive.

While the 2020 event didn't garner as many participants as the 2019 event Lussier still called it a great success that has helped contribute tens of thousands of dollars to the cause.

"We've raised just around $50,000 for the past three years. We have both teams and individuals and around a hundred people signed up this year. We had around 150 last year so the participation has been pretty consistent," Lussier said.

The goal of Nichols College Against Cancer is to see the event continue to grow in the coming years and become and larger tradition for the college and students. Upperclassmen are especially working hard to include incoming freshmen in the Relay knowing that their involvement is essential to the continuation of the event to helping raise awareness and funds for the fight against cancer.

Local healer reveals the natural medicines around us

Del Bachand holds up some dried comfrey leaves at a previous talk she gave at Grace Kelly Library last fall.

BY GUS STEEVES

WEBSTER - With what seems like it will be a spring of "social distancing," people may have a lot more time for growing their own food and medicinal plants.

In local healer Del Bachand's decades of experience, many of the better ones are essentially weeds, and are already coming up now if you know what to look for. She spoke to a small audience last week at her Generations store, most of $them\ Dudley\ Grange\ members.$

"Pay attention to what grows there naturally," she advised, later noting, for example, "There's got to be 30 different plants just in this area alone that grow from March to June and are antiseptic."

One of them is sweet fern. Comptonia peregrina, which is actually a small deciduous shrub, not a true fern. According to the Morton Arboretum website, "it is adaptable to poor, infertile soil and is also drought, salt, and heat resistant," but doesn't do well in clay soils and can be hard to transplant.

If you have it, though, Bachand noted it's "extremely good for skin conditions," antiseptic, and a good bug repellent that dries up poison ivy within a day. One advantage it has over many other plants is that it can be harvested and stored for months; many similar-acting plants only work when fresh, she said.

Because it's adaptable, people need to be a little selective regarding where they pick it. It will grow along roadsides, powerlines and "seems to defy whatever they spray to kill things," so don't use those ones. "I'm kind of afraid of of the bigger ones [which seem to occur in such places] because they don't naturally grow that way," she noted.

If you find a stand in the woods or your yard and want to transplant it, best bet is to try it now, when it's twig-sized. The key, though, is to take a lot of soil around and under it (a good rule of thumb for many

"They don't transplant well If you don't take the soil they It can get to were in," she said. "They'll keel over and die on you."

Similarly adaptable is mul-Verbascum thapsus, which "likes the worst dirt on the face of the Earth" and "never comes back in the same place twice. It might move two feet or 20 feet," she said. This non-native biennial plant also "doesn't transplant well," but is easy to grow from seed and is quite recognizable for its fuzzy leaves and tall second-year stalk with bright yellow flowers. It can't be harvested until the flowers appear, and only use the leaves, she noted.

Bachand noted it's "good for earaches" and can be made into a tea or smoked to ease lung congestion. The mullein page at www.drugs.com reports it has "an illustrious history" of use, primarily for respiratory disorders, but also "hemorrhoids, burns, bruises and gout," with "no reports of serious toxicities" and "no adverse effects" reported. Beyond that, though, it added, "There is little evidence to indicate that the plant can offer more than mild astringent and topical soothing effects. It may have mild demulcent properties when ingested. Mullein has expectorant and cough suppressant properties that make it useful for symptomatic treatment of sore throat and cough. Antiviral activity of mullein has been reported against herpes and influenza. Clinical research is lacking."

Boneset (Eupatorium perfoliatum), a daisy family plant, "will kill off the flu in 24 hours," Bachand said. But "it's the most vile tasting stuff. Chase it with something fizzy to get the taste out of your mouth. Don't use something you like because you'll never drink it again."

Drugs.com notes "The plant easily is recognized by its long, tapering leaves that join each other around a single stout stem, giving the impression of one long leaf pierced at the center by the stem." Among other things, Natives and colonists used it to treat fevers (the name comes from bonebreak fever), flu, malaria and similar ills, and it was in the official US phramacopeia from 1820-1900. It contains certain alkaloids that may cause liver problems "after long-term ingestion" and isn't safe during pregnancy.

To Bachand, another very useful one is wild lettuce, Lactuca virowhich sa. looks "like the biggest dandelion you've ever seen" minus the yellow flower, she said. be 6-8 feet tall with a cluster of tiny white flowers, but the useful part is the milky sapscraped from inside of its hollow stalk. and sedative when used in a tincture, but Bachand strongly advises taking only small doses (no more than a quarter dropperful; her husband took a half-dropper and slept for 12 hours). One plant can produce a year's worth of tinture; making the stuff is "time-consuming, but well worth it," she

According to Will Brendza at www.skilledsurvival.com, "This medicinal lettuce has been widely used since ancient Greece. In 430 BC (2447 years ago) Hippocrates, known as the Father of Modern Medicine, wrote about the pain-relieving effects of the plant's milky sap. ... [W]ild lettuce has opioid-like effects," but "none of the addictive properties of true opioids." Among other things, he notes it was used to quell pain in Civil War soldiers "when liquid opium became scarce."

Similarly bitter is plantain aka psyllium- not the bananalike fruit, but the nearly inconspicuous, dirt-hugging weed (Plantago spp). Another import from Europe, it's best used if you spit on it and put it on a bee sting or similar intrusion to ease the discomfort and draw out the stinger, but it's aslo "really good for hemmorhoid," Bachand said.

Drugs.com doesn't cite that, but states, "In human studies, plantain has been effective for chronic bronchitis, asthma, cough, and cold. Clinical studies show that psyllium seed is useful as a bulk laxative" and has cholesterol-lowering effects, but definitely should not be used during pregnancy. (That's true of many herbal medicines.) It also cannot be used by people taking lithium, carbamazepine or blood thinners, and can be allergenic.

"You've got to be really careful what plants you ingest and what part you ingest," Bachand warned. "... Make sure you know exactly how to identify it" because "everything that Natures gives us comes in twos. If you're not sure, watch what the animals eat." One tends to be helpful, the other toxic.

As an example, she asked if the audience knew the difference between a wild onion bulb and that of an iris - that's important if collecting wild because the latter is poisonous. Likewise, wild carrot (Queen Anne's lace, Daucus carota) is safe, but has a mimic that is not; she noted the only visible difference is that the safe one has a tiny purple spot in the middle of its lacy flower. According to the WebMD page on it, its root is inedible, but the above-ground parts and an oil from its seeds have been used for various things including urinary tract issues, diarrhea, indigestion, as a "nerve tonic" and aphrodisiac, and to relieve uterine pain and start menstrual periods.

Bachand also discussed motherwort, stinging nettle, garlic, parsley, radishes, rustica tobacco, raspberry, ragusa rose, and several other plants.

In general, she noted Natives would plant them by moon phases, planting fast-sprouting seeds (seven days or less) around either the full or new moons, when the tides (and the gravity pull on groundwater) is strongest, and longer-sprouting seeds between them. They'd also harvest that way, collecting roots between the moon peaks and fruits, flowers and other above-ground parts at full or new moon.

"Your yard probably has a ton of good stuff in it," she observed. "... When you're picking from the wild, don't take everything. I harvest in thirds: a third for me, [leaving] a third for the wildlife and a third for more growth."

Marissa Age 13

Hi! My name is Marissa and I love running cross country!

Marissa is an energetic girl of Caucasian descent. Marissa enjoys playing tennis and running cross country and track. She also enjoys music. Marissa loves to have her hair and nails done. Marissa is a brilliant girl with a bright academic future. She has tested and considered into one of the one of the top exam schools in the city.

Marissa is legally freed for adoption. She would thrive in a home where she is the only child or with children close in age. She will need a family that can provide her with attention and patience. Marissa shares a close relationship with her younger sister and they hope to be able to continue to see each other at least monthly. The best family for Marissa would be a local family that is able to visit with her as a visiting resource initially.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Horan said she's been "looking off and on for the past, if I think about it, 10 years," because she knew she'd outgrown her current space that long ago. Although exhibits like this one encourage visitors to move around, some of her events have shown how tight the space is, with standing-room only for author talks and the like. She hopes to expand her calendar when there.

Three prominent alumni seed student-managed investment fund at Nichols College

DUDLEY — Students at Nichols College have been given the opportunity to invest real money in the market, thanks to recent contributions from three alumni with notably successful careers in the world of finance.

The donors, Keith Anderson '81, founder, chair and chief investment officer for Anderson Global Macro; Wayne Archambo '81, CEO of Monarch Partners Asset Management; and Robert Stansky '78, group leader and portfolio manager at Fidelity Management and Research Co., have committed a total of $150,000 to launch a student-management investment fund that will increase the competencies and marketability of Nchols' students for highly competitive finance and investment jobs. With their generous supportof student-managed investment fund, Keith, Wayenand Robert have taken experitntial learning to anew and exciting level at Nichols College," said Nichols President Susan West Engelkeymer.

"With their generous support of a student-managed investment fund, Keith, Wayne and Robert have taken experiential learning to a new and exciting level at Nichols College," said Nichols President Susan West Engelkemeyer, Ph.D. "The professional skills our students will gain from this experience will enable us to create career-ready graduates who are prepared to one day follow in the footsteps of these distinguished alumni."

The student-managed investment fund is a course-related, two-semester experience that began in the fall Portfolio Analysis and Management class. Under the guidance of Christine Beaudin Durkin '95, MBA '00, associate professor and chair of finance at Nichols, students developed the investment policy that has formalized management of the fund, which was launched in January. Students monitor industry sectors, research companies detailing an investment thesis, and ultimately make buy/sell recommendations in accordance with the policy in a research report that is presented to "The students have been very excited about taking part in this new venture," said Beaudin Durkin. "T_h_is is an incredible opportunity for our students to manage a portfolio of assets and gain real-world experience. I am honored and thrilled by the generosity of these three alumni."

Student-managed investment funds continue to grow in popularity across the country. In 2008, 298 U.S. colleges had student funds, managing a total of according to the Association of Student Managed Investment Fund Consortium. A survey conducted between August and October 2018 found 571 U.S. colleges managing more than $719 million.

The experience pays academic dividends. A study published in the Journal of Financial Education in 2016, based on a survey of alumni of a student fund that had been operational for more than 20 years, found that student-managed funds help the long-term development of students and achieve learning goals such as discipline-specific knowledge, communication skills, leadership skills, presentation skills and interpersonal skills

According to Beaudin Durkin, the student-managed fund at Nichols is equity only and students serve various roles: lead financial analyst, junior financial analyst, and research associate. Its investment philosophy focuses on macro trends, fundamental analysis, equity evaluation, corporate strategy and risk management.

The fund provides students access to industry-leading software in the Bloomberg Finance Lab, with 12 Bloomberg terminals. The lab and the fund are integral to the college's new degree concentration in in corporate finance and investments.

"There is no substitution for this type of experience in a finance and investments education," said Keith Anderson, whose initial donation laid the foundation for the fund. "The knowledge, skills, and level of responsibility stdents will gain will continue to set Nichols graduates apart."

Dudley officials announce COVID-19-related closures, distancing measures

DUDLEY — Effective as of Friday, March 13, 2020, the Dudley Board of Selectmen and Board of Health are announcing the temporary closure of the Dudley Senior Center and the Pearle M. Crawford Memorial Library to the public and announcing in collaboration with the Dudley Charlton Regional School District the closure of Dudley Schools.

Also effective March 13 is the local adoption of social distancing measures for municipal Town Hall offices. The measures, designed to limit the potential spread of coronavirus, will allow for municipal government to continue to function and serve the public, while adopting the Center for Disease Control's latest guidance of the most effective measures for controlling the spread of the novel coronavirus (COVID19).

Full details for Dudley residents and how to access Dudley Town Hall Office services were made available on Saturday morning, March 14 on the town's Web site, dudleyma.gov, reposted on social media, released to the press and posted in the lobby of the Dudley Police Department on Monday morning, March 16.

Regarding the closures and adoption of social distancing measures, Town Administrator Jonathan Ruda stated on Friday, "The CDC has provided guidance directly and through the Massachusetts Department of Public Health that indicates that one of the most effective measures for controlling the spread of the coronavirus (COVID-19) is social distancing. The town cannot in good faith ignore that recommendation, and the Board of Selectmen have made it clear that protecting the public health and safety of our community is our top and foremost priority. We have developed a plan and public guidelines that will allow us to continue to serve the public. There will be no impact to police, fire or ems services. Highway, water and sewer operations will continue with some minimal changes to administrative services within those departments."

Dudley officials further explained that decision to close the library and senior center to the public was made to protect the most vulnerable in the community, including the elderly and those with weak or compromised immune systems and made in collaboration with the Library Director, Director of the Council on Aging and in consultation with the Dudley Housing Authority.

Chairman of the Dudley Board of Selectmen Steven Sullivan stated on Friday, "We will continue to monitor the evolving situation over the course of the next week or two, and will make decisions based on the best information that we have. Our primary interest is to ensure the health and safety of our community and of our staff. There will be changes to the way that public meetings are conducted, and the Town Administrator, department heads and staff are working hard to adopt a model that will work for Dudley residents within the framework and guidance provided and will minimize inconvenience to the public. The community can help by showing patience, following the latest guidance provided by federal, state and local authorities and above all, cooperating with local authorities. "

Liam ~ Age 3

Hi! My name is Liam and I love to explore my environment!

Liam is a happy, easy going toddler of Caucasian descent. He is described as a very busy boy who loves to play outside and explore. He also enjoys climbing, drawing and trying to open doors! Liam is enrolled in daycare where he is currently doing well. His daycare providers have said they really enjoy having Liam in the classroom. Liam enjoys playing independently but is starting to play near his peers at daycare. He is often around younger babies and is very gentle towards them, but it would be beneficial for Liam to be exposed to peers his age in order to continue building his social skills.

Liam is legally freed for adoption and can be placed in a single or two parent family, with or without other children. Interested families should be open to maintaining monthly visits with Liam's birth mother, grandmother and sister. They should also be able to work with Liam's team of providers to address his developmental delays and ongoing medical needs. Most importantly, Liam needs a family that is committed to ensuring he receives the appropriate supports to best foster his development.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Take Action against the Flu Virus

You can't look at the TV, radio or cell phone today without being bombarded with COVID-19 news, photos of bare store shelves, and extreme germ fretting! Add to that the highly contagious stomach flu virus going around right now and it's no wonder many are in near panic mode right now!

But keeping yourself healthy comes down to common sense as has been repeated many times. Using caution and being diligent to avoid cold and flu germs is the golden rule. While this column addressed this subject earlier this year, read on for another round of tips to help you up your odds of staying healthy this season.

It's no secret the most common way to pick up and spread bacteria and other germs is by touching contaminated surfaces. Clean first, then disinfect.

For cleaning surfaces, use products that specify "disinfectant" on the label. For a homemade disinfectant, the CDC recommends mixing a quarter-cup of household chlorine bleach with one gallon of cool water. Be sure to rinse countertops and other surfaces after sanitizing.

While disinfecting wipes and sprays have been flying off the grocery store shelves, there's no need to worry if you can't get your hands on commercial TAKE products. Common products can do the job at a fraction of the cost:

I s o p r o p y l (Rubbing) Alcohol: Undiluted alcohol (at least 70%) is effective against the COVID-19 virus. Alcohol has long been a frugal disinfectant used to kill common cold and flu germs. Simply wipe down surfaces with alcohol and it will immediately dry.

Hydrogen Peroxide (3%): Alcohol has become scarce in some areas as people buy it up to make their own hand sanitizer, but again, don't fret yet as Hydrogen Peroxide can do the job. For ease in applying, pour undiluted H20 into a spray bottle and spritz it on household surfaces. Allow it to sit on the surface for several minutes.

Note: Alcohol can discolor some plastics; H20 can discolor clothing and other soft surfaces.

Your cell phone is a magnet for germs. In fact, I just read your phone may have up to ten times more bacteria than a toilet seat! Here's how to sanitize

A time for hope, not hoarding

Life as we know it is changing — at least for the near future, only temporarily; however, this unchartered territory has left many questioning what exactly is happening. The new coronavirus designated COVID-19 has now infiltrated the country, causing the closure of schools, restaurants, bars, sporting events, concerts and any gathering with more than 50 people in attendance.

The next Democratic Presidential primary is coming up, and there is now a question as to how much the outbreak will affect the outcome. Could a mandatory two-week quarantine be implemented? We will soon find out.

In the midst of all this uncertainty, panic buying has commenced. Stores shelves are becoming more and more barren, with canned goods, milk and paper products hot commodities. Some stores have even been forced to implement a quota on how much a person can purchase.

Panic shopping is a natural response in the face of a crisis, but all of us need to step back and realize that as a result, price gauging can put much needed supplies out of reach for those on fixed incomes, and in this instance has created a situation in which medical supplies that are necessary for the protection of health care workers on the front lines of the crisis, such as face masks, are so scarce that hospitals have instructed doctors and nurses to ration them.

We understand the fear that underlies the 'grab everything you can while you can' mentality in situations like this outbreak, but overburdening the chain of the very supplies we need to get through this is not helping anyone This is a time for calmness, not crazed

Just one example we recently encountered of the fallout from all this unnecessary hoarding particularly touched our hearts. While out shopping ourselves, we met an elderly woman who made a trip to her local grocery store needing a loaf of bread. She had no idea what was going on, and seemed visibly stressed to find the bread aisle so completely picked over.

Instances that have induced fear and panic are nothing new in our national experience. In 1962, the Cuban missile crisis caused Americans to stock their basements with bottled water and dry goods in the case of an atomic bomb. The Y2K scare at the turn of the millennium and the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001 generated a similar atmosphere of fear that we had arrived at the End of Days, but cooler heads eventually prevailed, and in each instance, our society soldiered on, as it doubtless will once this outbreak winds down.

Remember that we are all in this together. It may feel lonely to think about staying home and not interacting with the world around us for a long stint, but as has been the case demonstrated throughout history, we will all take care of each other. Family, friends, neighbors, co-workers, healthcare providers, town officials and law enforcement personnel are always there to help in times of need. Those supports will provide comfort just like they do any other day.

"I am a firm believer in the people," Abraham Lincoln once wrote. "If given the truth, they can be depended upon to meet any national crisis. The great point is to bring them the real

Conservation Commission is acting irresonisbly

To the Editor:

Regarding the Webster Conservation Commission wetlands setback policy, the Selectmen need to get the Webster Conservation Commission under control. It is acting in an irresponsible manner trying to pass a town bylaw without going to a vote at a town meeting. The proper way to change and impose new setback rules is to vote at town meeting.

The Conservation Commision is trying to make laws which they do not have right to do. Why is the Conservation Commission afraid of a vote at town meeting? The answer is simple. They know the bylaw will not pass town meeting. Without passing these bylaws at town meeting they are exposing the Town of Webster to lawsuits. Our taxes can be better spent on our roads, schools and public safety rather than lawsuits.

The Selectmen appoint the Conservation members and you have the power to remove or change those appointments. I ask the Selectmen to step up and get control of this before the town gets sued when it is challenged in court.

Am I supposed to be buying toilet paper?

POSITIVELY

By Gary W.

MOORE

I spent a fun week with my daughter and her family, and was oblivious to what was happening in the news. I caught bits and pieces on the 'Net, but was enjoyably disconnected. I was surprised at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) how many people I saw walking around wearing face masks. I was aware of the coronavirus, but really missed out on the last eight days of developments.

We landed in Chicago, grabbed our luggage and headed for home when my sister called from North Carolina and asked, "Do you have enough toilet paper?"

I don't think anyone had ever asked such a random question of me before.

"Enough for what?" I asked. "To be quarantined for three to four

I immediately began scrolling through the newsfeed on my phone, frantically trying to figure out what was causing the TP emergency. I laughed aloud as I thought. "Bernie Sanders with his push for socialism hasn't been elected yet and the stores are already out of TP?" I ran across a posting that said, "Almost all the major grocery chains are out of bread, milk and toilet paper." I saw another that said, "Someone is on eBay selling cases of TP for $2000 each and has more buyers than inventory."

Arlene and I decided we better rush to the store before we got home and see if we could get some TP. We parked, ran into our local grocery store and headed to what we were convinced would be empty shelves. Imagine our shock when the shelves were full of every brand of toilet paper. We checked milk and bread to only find the same.

What's going on? I'd call this something between an overreaction to mass hysteria. As for me, I found it to be funny. Don't get me wrong, there is nothing funny about a communicable illness that is spreading around the world. We all must be vigilant and take the advice from healthcare professionals. Wash your hands often. Don't touch your body above your shoulders. Use hand sanitizer and carry a few sanitizing wipes wherever you go. On our flight home we used wipes to sanitize our seats and trays on our airplane seats. It also never hurts to have a supply of essentials on hand at home, but to rush out and buy a year's supply of canned goods and to lock yourselves behind the doors of your homes at this point, may be giving into mass hysteria.

Be vigilant. Listen to government officials but avoid unsubstantiated rumors on the internet or you may end up spending two grand for a few rolls of toilet paper. When you see that Abraham Lincoln is assuring you that if it's found on the internet it must be true ... think about it first!

Relax. Be prudent about the sources of information you use to make your decisions. Then act wisely.

Thank you all for your prayers, emails and cards. I am grateful. I shared with you that I had been diagnosed with a rare affliction called Neuroendocrine Tumors. I travelled to one of the world's leading clinics for this disease at the University of Iowa Hospital. While there I received the surprising news that I had been misdiagnosed and did not have Neuroendocrine Tumors. Instead, I learned I have Stage IV Stomach Cancer. It's not the news I expected nor wanted to hear but I am positively fighting this cancer with everything I have. I am optimistic of my outcome.

Don't misunderstand. I do not believe by being positive and optimistic alone can magically heal you. There are some medical realities that attitude will not overcome. But I know my chances of beating this illness are greatly enhanced by being positive.

There is a great blog I would encourage you to read. It's entitled, "At a Cellular Level, Every Single Human Depends on Positivity to Survive." It is authored by Jenn Maronek and can be found at www. blog.sivanaspirit.com I think you will find a few moments reading this useful and encouraging.

Intersection etiquette

CHIEF'S CORNER STEVE WOJNAR

intersections are always questions I receive for this column. I was asked to clarify who has the right of way at a four-way stop intersection. Often, when numerous

to observe at

vehicles meet at roughly the same time, one vehicle will proceed through and a second vehicle will follow immediately behind it. This not only upsets the others waiting, it may also cause an accident. I was asked to explain the rules about four way stops.

Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 89 Sections 8 and 9, deal with right of way at intersections and stop sign regulations. When two vehicles enter an intersection "at approximately the same instant" the vehicle on the right shall have the right of way. The obligation of a driver is to stop for a stop sign and "yield the right of way to any vehicle in the intersection." In the case of a four way stop, all operators have the obligation to stop and yield to traffic within the intersection. All share an equal responsibility. Therefore, the first vehicle to arrive at the intersection shall have the right of way as the driver is able to proceed after stopping. other vehicles must wait until that vehicle clears the intersection before they can proceed.

The penalty for a stop sign violation is a $35 civil infraction. Should a second vehicle proceed behind a first vehicle, they would be guilty of this violation. It does not qualify as a legal stop to simply stop behind another vehicle. You must stop at the stop line or the nearest point where there is a clear view of approaching traffic. Rushing through an intersection can cause an accident, as most drivers at four-way stops are only watching the front vehicle stopped at the intersection. Please be aware of this issue and do your best to show courtesy to your fellow drivers.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice. com. Opinions expressed in this weekly column are those of Chief Wojnar only and unless clearly noted, do not reflect the ideas or opinions of any other organization or citizen.

What's the difference between short- and long-term investing?

find a market for

As you go through life, you'll have many financial goals. Fortunately, you don't need to achieve them all at the same time. But when you have a mix of short- and longterm goals, you will need to pursue some different investment strategies simultaneously.

Your short-term goals may depend somewhat on your stage in life. For example, when you're starting out with your career and you're beginning to raise a family, you may well have a goal of saving enough money for a down payment on a home. Later on, though, you may decide you want to travel the world for a year.

Because you know about how much money you'll need, and when you'll need it, you can choose the appropriate investments, with these characteristics:

 Low risk – Above all else, you want the right amount of money to be there when it's time to use it. So, you'll need low-risk, high-stability investments. You won't see much in the way of growth from these types of investments, but you also won't be sweating every single market downturn in fear of not reaching your goal.

• Liquidity – You won't want to worry highly liquid. So, what kinds of investments meet these criteria? You actually have quite a choice, including mutual funds consisting of short-term corporate or government bonds; certificates of deposit; cash management accounts; money market accounts; and U.S. Treasury securities.

Now, moving on to longer-term goals, the situation can be quite a bit different. Suppose, for instance, you're saving and investing for a retirement that may be three or four decades away. For this goal, you have one overriding motivation: to end up with as much money as possible. And since you have so many years until you need this money, you may be able to take on more risk than you could with the investments you counted on for your short-term needs. This isn't to say you should be reckless, of course - you still need to pay attention to your individual risk tolerance. Overall, though, there's a big philosophical difference, in terms of risk capacity, about trying to between investing for the long term versus the short term.

> When you're saving for a long-term goal such as retirement, you may need to rely primarily on your IRA and your 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement plan. And within these accounts, you'll need a reasonable percentage of growth-oriented investments such as stocks and stock-based mutual funds. It's true that stocks are volatile, with sometimes sharp price declines. But in exchange, you get far greater growth potential than you would with any of the short-term investments named above. Furthermore, the longer you hold stocks or stock-based investments, the more the price volatility tends to even out. (Keep in mind, though, that there are no guarantees of

> So, there you have them: short- and long-term investments. A financial professional can help you choose the ones that can help you keep moving toward all your goals, whether they're three years or three decades away.

New England Youth Tackle Football comes to Quaboag area

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

WEST BROOKFIELD — The effects of the pandemic created by the outbreak of the coronavirus notwithstanding, spring football is headed to town.

New England Youth Tackle Football (NEYTF), a seven-team spring league that began playing games in 2018 in Lynn, has added an eighth team, the Quaboag Panthers, who will practice and play games at Callahan/Landers Field on Lakeview Avenue.

The program began practicing on Monday, March 9, but workouts were suspended after the second practice (Wednesday, March 11) due to health concerns related to the coronavirus. Practices are tentatively scheduled to resume on Monday, March 23 and a leaguewide jamboree is scheduled for the end of March.

The NEYTF is open to boys and girls ages 6-14. There are four divisions of competition: six-, seven- and eight-year-olds play in the 8U division; nine- and 10-yearolds play in the 10U division; 11- and 12-year-olds play in the 12U division; and 13- and 14-year-olds play in the 14U division.

The general manager of the Quaboag Panthers, who will field teams in all four divisions, is Maurice Payne. Payne is a fixture in Quaboag Youth Football circles, having been affiliated with the program since 1996. Payne is also coach of the 14U team.

"I started the Quaboag

Youth Football program back in 1996," said Payne, who grew up in Richmond, Va. "I used to coach in Belchertown when I heard that some kids from this area wanted to play football but couldn't because they didn't have any place to play. So, because kids from out this way wanted to play, I started a team in West Brookfield in 1996.

"I raised the money to start the program myself," Payne continued. "An in-line skate company in West Brookfield donated in-line skates to the program and we sold them to raise money to start the team. I ended up raising $80,000 in three months. Then I got skates donated to the Belchertown team I was a part of for six years and they raised $65,000 for their team selling the in-line skates. I got Quabbin Youth football started the same way, Payne said he found out about the NEYTF while surfing the internet one night.

"In December I was online and I came across the New England Youth Tackle Football league's website [www.neytfootball.org]. So, I reached out to the founder of the league, Joel Machado, and he invited me up to Lynn to talk about the league. We talked and he ended up inviting me to Payne said he has a 30-mile radius around West Brookfield to draw players from. And, even though this is just the first year Quaboag has participated in the program, Payne said the response to the new league has been great.

join the league.'

"Interest in the program just blew up," Payne said. "We have close to 100 kids in the program. They're coming from everywhere; Brookfield, North Brookfield, Warren, Spencer, Southbridge, Leicester, Sturbridge, Charlton, Barre, Springfield, Chicopee, Holyoke, Belchertown, Palmer, Monson and Worcester."

Quaboag Youth Football volunteer Maureen Roberts said included in the kids who have signed up are five girls who want to play the sport of tackle football.

There are seven teams currently in the NEYTF including three in Lynn—the Sin City Steelers, the Silverbacks and the Outlaws—as well as the Boston Titans, the Merrimack Valley Blue Devils, the Ocean State (R.I.) Ducks, and the Mannester (N.H.) Bird

Payne said there are still openings for kids interested in playing on the 8U and 12U teams. Roberts said the interest was so great for the 10U and 14U teams, that the league has created a waiting list for those divisions.

The cost to join the league is $180, which includes a $150 registration fee and $30 for a game jersey that the kids get to keep.

"Parents interested in joining the NEYTF need to sign their son or daughter up through sportsid.org," Roberts said, "and there is a $10 fee for that. Signing up includes downloading the player's birth certificate, a recent photo of the player and a report card."

Family fishing memories

THE GREAT OUTDOORS RALPH

Freshwater fishing in local ponds and on Cape ponds was enjoyed by many anglers trying to catch some of the recently stocked trout this past week. Anglers fishing local ponds needed to spend a number of hours fishing to catch some trout, but the final results had many anglers catching their limit. Freshwater bass anglers were also catching some nice largemouth bass at Webster Lake, with a few small mouth bass also being caught. Some of the larger bass were being caught on shiners.

By the time you read this column, some of the local streams and rivers should have had a stocking of trout, as rivers and streams are ideal this year because of the lack of substantial rainfall, which normally happens this time of year.

younger my

years, I enjoyed some great stream fishing in Whitinsville and Sutton! Prentice Brook and Purgatory Brook were my favored trout streams for catching some native brook TRUE trout. Our dad had us fishing every year on opening day, catching a stringer of 10 - 12 inch brook trout. Spring was a great time of year back in my younger life for fishing. Growing up in Whitinsville in the late '40's and '50's I had some great fishing on the Meadow Pond & Arcade Pond which were essentially in my back yard. My dad kept a small row boat on Meadow Pond which was used daily by my brother and I. On weekends, my dad would get us up early to go fishing in the boat to catch some fish for my dad to make a big fish chowder.

My brother Mel and I would use a spinner and worm to fish on both sides of the boat, as my dad rowed. It was not long before we had a good stringer of fish which included Bass, perch, pickerel, bluegills and more. On one early morning, we were trolling and my brother Mel asked my dad to stop rowing. He claimed he was hooked on the bottom. Within seconds, the line started peeling from the reel. Mel had a big fish on! Rowing in reverse to get some line back from the long run of the big fish, it was finally brought to the side of the boat. It was a huge largemouth bass. We sure had a fish story to tell everyone in the village.

Back in the day, my brother Mel and I fished almost every day. We would grab our fishing rods after school and go fishing. Our grades on our quarterly report cards suffered badly, as we rarely did our homework. Our parents tried to have us finish our homework before we could go fishing ,but it rarely worked. Leaving school to start working at age 16 in the Whitin Machine works was great. Now I had some money to buy a car and meet the girls. Purchasing a 1939 Chevrolet car for $15 from one of the Ebbelings on Sutton street back in the day, had me leaving fishing and meeting girls.

I soon found my wife Judy, and we got married at 18 years old. Everyone thought we were nuts. Our parents needed to sign for us to get married. It was not easy being married that young, but we worked through it for more than 61 years. Unfortunately, she passed away last year. Bringing up two boys Ralph and David, I soon found myself back fishing a lot more, so I purchased a 14 ft boat that was used for fishing at Wallum Lake and Webster Lake. boys loved fishing and it stayed with them to this day. Unfortunately, David passed a few years ago, but the memories of us fishing remain.

The terrible mess that this country is going through today will hopefully pass soon, and we can all get back to our normal lives. Spending time fishing and enjoying the outdoors with family is the best way to stay healthy.

Early spring preparation for a beautiful summer garden

When pruning, start by removing the damaged and diseased stems of shrubs and roses and wear heavy duty gloves to keep yourself free from scratches.

As winter fades into spring, gardeners can't wait to get busy in the garden. Pruning, cutting back perennials and ornamental grasses and preparing the garden for spring planting are just a few of the tasks. Keep yourself and the pollinators overwintering in your garden safe as you start the cleanup process.

Always prune with a purpose. Start by removing any damaged and diseased stems from shrubs and roses. Watch for insects like swallowtail butterflies that overwinter in protective cocoons and the egg masses of some like the hairstreak butterflies. Prevent problems by destroying overwintering non-native pests like the gypsy moth. Search the internet and insect books for help identifying the good and bad guys you may find in your landscape.

Additional pruning may be needed to manage the size and shape or encourage better flowering and bark color. Wait to prune spring flowering shrubs like lilacs and forsythia if you want maximum flowering. Prune these shrubs right after flowering before they set their floral buds for next spring.

Keep yourself safe by wearing safety glasses and gloves. It's too easy to focus on the task and end up with a stick in the eye. Heavy duty gloves protect and support your hands, allowing you to garden longer with less stress, scratches and bruises. Consider synthetic leather gauntlet style gloves like Foxgloves extra protection gloves (foxglovesinc.com) that protect hands and forearms from harm yet are supple enough to allow you to work efficiently. The breathable fabric is durable, machine washable and puncture resis-

Brush leaves off the crowns of perennials but leave the rest in place for insects that spend winter or summer in the leaf litter. Plus, the leaves help preserve moisture, suppress weeds and improve the soil as they break down.

Pull mulch away from tree trunks and shrub crowns that may have shifted over winter. Keeping mulch off the stems reduces the risk of future problems that can lead to decline and even death of the plants.

long as possible since many are homes for beneficial insects. Bundle grasses for easy cutting and removal. Once cut, loosely stack or stand perennial stems and grasses at the edge of the garden or natural spaces. This allows any insects still present to safely emerge when it's time to move to their summer homes. Plus, birds will appreciate the easy access to nesting material.

Enjoy the changing of the seasons and the beauty of nature hidden among the plants in your garden. Protect yourself when preparing the garden for spring so you won't lose time recovering from injuries. And keeping the pollinators and other beneficial insects safe will ove your garden's health and pro ductivity throughout the growing sea-

Stay aware of the latest information on the COVID-19 outbreak, available on the WHO website and through your national and local public health authority. Most people who become infected experience mild illness and recover, but it can be more severe for others. Take care of your health and protect others by doing the following:

Wash your hands frequently: Regularly and thoroughly clean your hands with an alcohol-based hand rub or wash them with soap and water.

Why? Washing your hands with soap and water or using alcohol-based hand rub kills viruses that may be on your

Maintain social distancing: Maintain at least 1 meter (3 feet) distance between yourself and anyone who is coughing or

Why? When someone coughs or sneezes they spray small liquid droplets from their nose or mouth which may contain virus. If you are too close, you can breathe in the droplets, including the COVID-19 virus if the person coughing has the disease.

Avoid touching eyes, nose and mouth

Why? Hands touch many surfaces and can pick up viruses. Once contaminated, hands can transfer the virus to your eyes, nose or mouth. From there, the virus can enter your body and can make you sick.

Practice respiratory hygiene: Make sure you, and the people around you, follow good respiratory hygiene. This means covering your mouth and nose with your bent elbow or tissue when you cough or sneeze. Then dispose of the used tissue immediately.

Why? Droplets spread virus. By following good respiratory hygiene you protect the people around you from viruses such as cold, flu and COVID-19.

If you have fever, cough and difficulty breathing, seek medical care early: Stay home if you feel unwell. If you have a fever, cough and difficulty breathing, seek medical attention and call in advance. Follow the directions of your local health authority.

Here are a few tips to battle the common cold and flu this season:

The health virtues of garlic have been touted for generations. The book, "The Healing Power of Garlic," suggests garlic nose drops can kill the viruses that cause cold or flu. The book's instructions on concocting the drops: Crush some garlic to obtain juice, and add ten parts water and mix well. Apply as you would regular nose drops.

According to a home remedy, if you place a clove of garlic on each side of the mouth between the teeth and cheek, a cold will disappear within a day. It's worth a try!

Some Native American tribes treated a low grade fever with sage, as in this old time recipe. As a bonus, the dried peppermint supplies the tea with a soothing, cooling effect. To do: Pour one cup boiling water over two teaspoons dried, edible sage and one teaspoon dried peppermint. Steep. Strain, and sweeten with honey if desired. Slowly sip up to three cups a day.

One of peppermint's claims to fame is that it can alleviate the chills and aid with symptoms of fever and the flu. Try drinking a cup or two of strong peppermint tea made from fresh leaves to relieve cold and flu complaints. To do: Pour one cup boiling water over four to six peppermint leaves. Allow to steep for 15 minutes, strain and serve.

Flu season typically lasts from October to March. Here's something to keep in mind for the future: According to several Japanese studies, gargling with black tea twice a day from October to March, significantly improved participants abilities to fend off the flu bug.

Cold and Flu Facts

*The word "influenza" comes from the Italian influentia because people used to believe that the influence of the planets, stars, and moon caused the flu.

.*On average children get about six to ten colds per year.

* Viruses are between 20 and 100 times smaller than bacteria and can be seen only through a microscope

*During the flu season, 59% of surfaces in home can be contaminated with the flu virus.

*Children are two to three times more likely than adults to get sick with the common flu, and children frequently spread the virus to others.

*Flying when you have cold and flu congestion can temporarily damage your eardrums due to pressure changes. If you must fly, use a nasal spray prior to takeoff and landing. Also chew gum, and use a decongestant for symp-

*There are over 200 viruses that cause the common cold

*Colds are not caused by temperature or temperature changes. Despite what mother said, you can't catch a cold by going out barefoot or without a hat.

Jose A. Thomas, 33

WORCESTER – It is with great sadness that we announce that Jose A. Thomas, originally from Webster, was taken from this world on March 7, 2020.

He leaves his mother, Denise (Kirby)
Thomas and his father, Jonathan Thomas; his best friend and partner in life Kristine Stanley; their children, Julian Thomas and Kendallynn Thomas; his first born princess, Arianna Thomas; his brothers, Michael Thomas, DJ Kirby-Thomas and Jay Thomas and his sister Zoe Thomas; his maternal grandfather Donald Kirby; his paternal grandmother, Julia (Mendez) Thoma-Doutaz; many aunts, uncles, cousins and countless friends. His brother Corey Thomas passed away on January 15.

Jose was born in Milford on February 23, 1987 and was a sweet, loving and giving person throughout his childhood and into adulthood. He was a hard worker: whatever was needed to get the job done, Jose was there. His nickname at the Salvation Army was "The Bulldozer" and he completely lived up to that name.

Always a shy and introverted person, Jose spent a great deal of time alone. He loved the outdoors where he found comfort and solace. While in a program in Gardner he told me that he would sit in the woods for several hours, listen to music and just be. Jose loved music: he always had headphones in his ears. It soothed his soul and allowed him to escape from his demons.

Above all else, Jose wanted to be a great father to his 3 children. His happiest moments included the children and his love, Kristine. His children all possess some of his amazing traits and will surely touch the lives of others as their father has. He will be missed by the many whose lives he touched with his graciousness.

He brother DJ recently told a story about his brother. A few years ago, when DJ was going through a particularly difficult time, Jose reached out and called him to check in and give support. DJ became emotional and told his brother how hard life was at that time. With a little chuckle, Jose said "Life is hard, life is really hard." But he added "Whatever it is you want, just go get it." It's advice that has stuck with DJ. After telling his story, he mentioned how smart his brother Jose was. It's absolutely true: Jose was a quiet type of smart that was almost philosophical.

Jose struggled with addiction for many years and was always working very hard to be clean and sober. It was a constant battle. Despite the battle and the demons that came with it, Jose remained kind, generous and loving. Even after his death, he gave the gift of life and saved 3 individuals awaiting an organ donation: this was his last gift to the world.

In his memory I ask you all to get help, stay clean, support each other, help spread the word about this disease and its deadly consequences. And finally, love each other.

Visiting hours and services to be announced. Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Scanlon Funeral Service, 38 East Main Street, Webster.
