Council encourages citizen engagement

BY SARAH CHAMPAGNE

SOUTHBRIDGE — The Southbridge Town Council encouraged community involvement and business growth at a regular meeting Monday.

The council also reported that an informational kiosk and the administration building at the Southbridge Airport is open, along with the diner. The informational kiosk is a great opportunity for area businesses to market out of town or out of state visitors aware of opportunities and places to visit in Southbridge.

A brief presentation was made by new local business The Specifics, which is a local printing company. Councilor Stacie Kowalczyk-Vanasse, who is the owner of the homeowner, reported that many of the families at her business are aware of the business and expressed support for businesses in town.

The council also encouraged business and citizen involvement in town matters, including attendance at any public meeting as posted on the town website, or at the libraries at the town hall.

The next town council meeting will be held Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. Town Council meetings are open to the public and can also be seen on Southbridge’s Cable Access channel live or after the meeting. Town meetings are also generally available for viewing on the town of Southbridge’s Cable Access YouTube channel.

Camp Hope ends summer on positive note

BY SARAH CHAMPAGNE

As the summer winds down, the kids at Camp Hope enjoy one of the last few weeks of special opportuni- ty on South Charlton Reservoir. As the temperatures start to cool, the camp buildings provide plenty of room for exercise and fresh air.

Several evergreen trees line the lake’s edge where campers enjoy swimming, kayaking and other water sports. The trees provide shade to cool down after a refreshing swim on a hot day.

“All of our campers are local residents and we make sure that to some extent, we encourage them to be aware of opportunities and places to visit in Southbridge. The council also encourages business and citizen involvement in town matters, including attendance at any public meeting as posted on the town website, or at the libraries at the town hall. QCC offers new training on drones

WORCESTER — Have you ever watched a drone fly? These unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs), also known as Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV), are one disruptive technology that will become an area on drones with this new program.

There can be no question that technology innovation continues to change the way we work, live and do business. As an educational institu- tion, with a mission focused on encour- aging individuals to have the skills neces- sary to work in this innovation econom- y, it is incumbent on us to keep abreast of the innovations that are bringing change to industry and help individuals and companies manage them by offering training that is relevant.

Quinsigamond Community College is one of the first colleges in Massachusetts to offer a drone con- cept.

“Through the Quinsigamond Community College Center for Workforce Development & Continuing Education, we are pleased to be able to offer individuals and companies a complete package of courses addressing the brand new tech careers in drone creating and the skills needed to work in these fields,” said Kathleen Manning, dean of Center for Workforce Development & Continuing Education.

“New tech careers are continua- ting to emerge at a rapid pace and there is no sign of decline. A report released in 2013 by the Association for Unmanned Vehicle Systems International projected that by the year 2021, there will be more than 100,000 new jobs in the industry. There can be no question that technology innovation continues to change the way we work, live and do business. Freight Farms’ reminds audience of need for agriculture

You’d think the last thing a culture- oriented, food lover would need is a supermar- ket. But, to a large extent, we have to change the production chain than to the plastic-wrapped daily in the supermarket. Although the local food movement is changing the production chain toward what degree, it has barely a dent in the overall food mar- ket in it. Typically small farms raise “bounty“ specialty crops for farms- ers’ markets and local restaurants and Community-Supported Agriculture programs, but they amount to just 3 percent of New England’s food sup- ply, according to an article from the film “Forgotten Farms.”

The other 97 percent come from what’s termed “conventional” farms, and in New England, many of them are dairies, the most forgotten of the “Forgotten Farms.”

“Till you get up in a town with three-dairies, two of them are still in business,” said Director Dave Simonds. “But so many people don’t realize how important dairies are there and how important they are. When you start getting close to something, you start caring about it.”

His partner in film-making, Williams College Professor Randy Gardner, saw that firsthand. Some time ago, she gave her land use plan- ning students an assignment: over the weekend, find a farmer and interview them. On Monday, every one of them had returned having spoken to some- body from the local farmer’s market. Not one stopped at one of the two local

SOUTHBURGH CAPSULES

The Oasthouse is an independent livin’ and healthiness camp over 400 residents. Located in Charlton in the heart of New England, our 40-acre community is hosting its second annual Fall Festival on Saturday, Sept. 16 at the campus, 48 Mountain Road.

Last year’s public event was a huge success, attracting hundreds of attendees from Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and beyond who enjoyed a day filled with vendor booths, live music, hay rides, games, prizes and seasonal treats. This year we are expanding with even more crafts and artists, candles and soap makers, natural products, jewelry, clothing, scarves, quilts, blankets, knitted items, wood crafts, pottery, painting and photography. And especially foods! Locally grown, organic, healthy, delicious foods, local restaurants, and farms stand produce.

Difficult lives of rural teens inspires novel

New book by Southbridge author

Southbridge native, Joseph U. Lenti, has authored a book concerning workers, the government repression, and the working class, a sector only tangentially connected to the blood bath. Lenti has recently presented his book at a number of venues in both Mexico and the United States, and it has been praised by scholars on both sides of the border for the way that it describes events that, although they happened half a century ago, have increasing relevance today’s America. Through its connected to the blood bath.

Lenti is an associate professor of Latin American History at Eastern Washington University, and a M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of New Mexico. You can join Dr. Lenti in a discussion about the world and the generations of workers in modern Mexico on Monday, Dec. 18, from 12:00 to 1:30 pm at the Jacques Lenz, Southbridge. This will be his first-ever academic talk in his hometown, and will be available for sale and signing following the discussion. The book is available for purchase online for $30 (plus shipping) at http://www.nebraska.press/unl.edu/9780803253990.

The book, available on Amazon.com, will be available for sale and signing following the event.

Cornerstone Bank donates to Stuff the Bus Campaign

It’s that time of year when school starts and students are ready to go back to school. This can be a difficult time for some families as they look for the necessary school new clothes, supplies, and books. Cornerstone Bank supplies Catholic Charities; the bank’s employees personally donate to the “Stuff the Bus” program for Catholic Charities to fill that need and lessen the burden, holding an annual “Stuff the Bus” event, supported by Cornerstone Bank employees, generously donated to the “Stuff the Bus” program. With Catholic Charities, Cornerstone Bank is able to provide school supplies to local children.

The beginning of the school year can be an exciting time,” stated Bonnie Lasov, AVP, Cornerstone Bank. “We are pleased to partner with Catholic Charities to start the year in a positive and productive way. Donations can be delivered to Catholic Charities at 79 Elm St. St. Southbridge. Cornerstone Bank is an independent, mutual savings bank serving the richer and surrounding communities throughout eastern Massachusetts, from offices in Charlton, Agawam, Palmer, Spencer, Sturbridge, Leominster, Worcester, and Rutland.

Local students earn scholarships

Schools in the area are participating in a Free and Reduced Lunch Program for the current school year 2017-18. This is referred to as the Community Eligibility Provision (CEP). All eligible students enrolled at the Southbridge Public Schools (Southbridge Road School, Charlton Road School, West Street School, Southbridge Middle School, High School, and Southbridge Academy) may participate in the breakfast/lunch program at no charge. Household applications for free and reduced price meals will be collected.

Studies have shown that children who are not hungry perform better in school. By providing breakfast and lunch to all children at no charge, we can create a better learning environment for our students. The school breakfast and lunch that we serve follow the USDA’s non-discrimination guidelines, allowing for any individual complaints to be filed should there be a discrepancy in application of the program. More information is available at area.edu or by calling the school. Healy joins Bay Path staff

SOUTHBRIDGE — Adelina Healy of Dudley has joined the nursing program at Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School teaching didactic and clinicals. Healy will be teaching structure and function of the body with a focus on the nervous system. She is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Boston and is currently pursuing a Master’s degree in Health Care Administration at Anna Maria College. Before coming to Bay Path, Healy was the administrative assistant to the Vice President of Nursing at Harrington Hospital in Southbridge. She has also served as a volunteer in Kenya. Another Harrington Hospital employee, Allison Sculli works as a lab assistant and mans the emergency room registration desk; she will attend Quinsigamond Community College to earn a degree in radiation technology. Heather Staniewicz, RN, is employed at Harrington Hospital’s Cancer Center and is enrolled in the BSN program at Anna Maria College. Silver Kingdom takes Charlton to medieval times

CHARLTON – Now in its fourth year, the Silver Kingdom presented a look at the times of old in Charlton on Aug. 19 and 20 at Ye Olde Commons, a location specifically designated for the annual event. An event geared towards exploring the medieval culture through reenactments and actors, the Silver Kingdom featured everything from knights to pirates, archers, jesters, and a wide variety of spectators who came in their own colorful and creative suits and wardrobe to join in the fun. Each day featured reenactments and displays from several groups including the Knights of Gore, Brotherhood of the Arrow & Sword, The Wandering Bard, and the Primrose Pirates just to name a few. Plans are currently in place for an even bigger fifth year celebration in 2018.

A wandering harpist provided some lovely music for visitors to enjoy as they traveled through the grounds.

Brandon and Gina Barnhouse of Charlton smile for a photo as they take a walk through the Silver Kingdom.

Valerie and Ken Lowery of Southington went all in during their visit to the Silver Kingdom in Charlton.

Showing off their unique styles, Felicia and Vincent Leary of Lowell went all in during their visit to the Silver Kingdom in Charlton.

A walk through an older cemetery will find stone carving as a true art form in all its glory on stones dating from the mid to late 19th century. Statuary honoring war veterans, sad-eyed angels, hands clasped in love, hands pointing to heaven, the intricate artwork is more than commemorative, it is also beautiful.

mined leadership at the highest levels to undo. This should be met at a variety of levels, including meaningful civic education that helps citizens understand their crucial responsibilities and that lays bare the system’s limitations and sets realistic expectations.

Finally, we should undertake a set of structural reforms to restore Americans’ faith that government is constructed fairly and is focused on the general welfare. Gavyn Gardner, which gives one party legislative and congressional seats out of all proportion to its actual popularity, must end. The machinery of our elections — outdated, fragile, lacking a paper trail, vulnerable to cyberattacks — needs investment. The outsized influence of money in politics continues to feed cynicism and public disengagement.

What I find perhaps most distressing is that many of these are deep-seated, long-standing problems that are evident to many Americans, yet we don’t see them being addressed. A voice or two might be raised from time to time in Washington, but no one maintains the effort.

Yes, the times make it tough: We have a struggling President, a Congress fractured by infighting, and political parties incapable of forging consensus among their diverse members. The to-do list I’ve laid out is long and daunting.

Sure, restoring faith in our system will take a sustained effort on the part of our political leaders and our citizens, but I’m not saying it all needs to be tackled at once. What I am saying is that until Americans see that our political leaders recognize the erosion of faith in our political institutions that is undermining our system and are taking meaningful steps to address it, our distress will only grow.

Going to the dogs as the weather turns toward hunting seasons

What great weather this past week. The cool air has the feeling of fall & the dogs can also feel the change in the air. Taking the dogs out for their daily walk has them actively looking for some sort of scent to track. My wife’s beagle has found a few quail at the Rod & Gun Club during our daily walks, and I am sure she will be hunting alongside of my Lab this year. This is the time of year to start exercising your dog on a daily basis. Hunting season is only a few weeks away, and I am sure that many dogs have put on a few pounds during the summer season. Conditioning your hunting companion now will pay off big time for the hunting season.

This week’s picture shows Jerome Jessume of Douglas doing some training of his dogs at the Uxbridge Rod & Gun Club recently. Jerome rides his bike around the club to get some good exercise for his dogs and himself, and then later takes some time to do some training. He also spends a lot of time at field trials in Connecticut. It is great to watch a well trained dog in the field, and it will sure pay off during the bird season.

The first segment of the Canada goose season is slated to start on Sept. 5 in Massachusetts, with a liberal daily bag limit of seven. If you are hunting geese prior to hunting season is essential that you go through some sort of course or go goose hunting season is essential that you go through some sort of course or get trained by an expert. The coastal marshes have put on a few pounds during the weeks away, and I am sure that many dogs have put on a few pounds during the summer season. Conditioning your hunting companion now will pay off big time for the hunting season. This writer had met Frank Anderson of Beverly and his hunting buddy. Jerry Woodmansee on one of our coastal hunting adventures many years ago. The two sportsmen were officers in the Concerned Coastal Gunners Association, which was a group of sportsmen that had a strong voice in protecting coastal marshes, and fought the board to set dates that were long ago in effect. Hopefully it will last a while longer.

This past week Steve Mercere and his wife fished the Westport River along with first time fisherman, 80 year old Bob Burbank of Uxbridge. Bob had never been fishing in his life and enjoyed the trip so much he is now hooked on fishing. Special thanks to Steve and his wife for taking Bob along on their fishing trip. He cannot wait for the next opportunity to go fishing.

How to you keep up with a passel of dogs? You ride a bike and let the dogs run with you!

Wednesday-Home Bbq We have some great news! You can learn more about the Wallum Lake in Rod & Gun Club will hold their annual barbecue are planned for the event. The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club will hold their annual Field Day on Sept. 25. A clam bake and chicken barbecues are planned for the event. The public is invited.

The Central District regular duck season opens on Oct. 5 in Massachusetts. One of the big changes this year is the daily bag limit of black ducks that have been increased to two birds. The big responsibility of the hunter is identifying the birds in flight prior to shooting. Many blacks and mallards have interbred making identification hard. Wood ducks have continued to do well in Massachusetts with a good population of birds available over past years which allow hunters to harvest three birds again this year. Waterfowl hunters are reminded that only steel shot is legal to hunt all waterfowl species. A state and federal stamp is also required for all waterfowl hunting.

Tantasqua Junior High’s gymnasium is set to host the men’s 3-on-3 basketball league and adult volleyball during the fall season. The basketball league begins Sept. 8, while adult volleyball is planned for a later date, depending on the availability of the facilities.

The men’s 3-on-3 basketball league will be played on Wednesday nights from 7-9 p.m., while adult recreation volleyball will be played in the gym on Tuesday nights from 7-9 p.m. A new volleyball league will be played in the gymnasium in October.

In addition to these programs, Tantasqua Jr. High will also host a fall baseball league and a fall soccer league. Details on these programs will be released soon.

Sign up today for the fall adult volleyball and basketball leagues. The highly competitive and successful volleyball team and basketball programs offer a great opportunity for students and adults to stay active and enjoy the sport of their choice.

For more information, please contact the recreation department at (508) 347-0401 or visit the school’s website at https://www.tantasqua.k12.ma.us/.

Ever-growing Laid Back Competitive Baseball League finishes sixth season

BY KEN POWERS

CHARLTON — The Laid Back Competitive Baseball League (LBCBL) recently wrapped up its sixth season, concluding with the League Championship Series at Turner’s Club Field in Sturbridge on Aug. 26, and its All-Star Game and Home Run Derby at Charlton Memorial Field on Aug. 19.

In the League Championship Series (LCS) the Turner’s Club Nuts won their second consecutive league crown, defeating the DC Whitecaps, 23, in the best-of-three series. Turner’s Club — which earned the season undefeated — won the LCS game with pitching (4/0), and the second game with offense (16-6).

For Turner’s Club (18-0), Ray Bell got the win on the bump in Game 1, tossing a complete-game shutout, allowing three runs, two earned, while striking out eight. Pat Button, Santilli providing the big blow, a three-run homer.

The Championship Series was great, especially the first game, it was very back and forth,” said Cody Mundell, the founder of the league and a member of both the Turner’s Club Nuts and the Sturbridge TinCaps. “Everybody had fun all season and we had some very competitive games.”

In the LBCBL All-Star Game, the West Division — which consists of Turner’s Club, the TinCaps, the North Brookfield Gunners, the Bombers, and the Shrewsbury Colonials, 15. 15. 4.

Champeau was the hitting star for the West squad, going 5 for 5, driving in five runs in five innings, and striking out five. Batting for the Whitecaps, the Oxford Bomb Squad, going 5 for 5, driving in five runs with a triple, a double and a single.

Winning the LBCBL Home Run Derby was the Oxford Bomb Squad’s Tyler Bostek, who amassed a total of 11 home runs in the three-round competition, including five in the final round. Bostek edged Bomb Squad teammate Nick Cardoni for the title by a single ding. Cardoni, who was also Bostek’s teammate at Oxford High back in the day, drilled four home runs in the final round and seven in total.

“There was no mindset going in,” Bostek said. “I just wanted to come out and have a good time, take some good swings and have some fun with it.”

Cardoni’s runner-up finish in the HR Derby might be surprising to those that knew him in high school, but the former second baseman is no longer the skinny kid that played for the Pirates.

“I learned what the gym is since high school,” he said. “Now that I’m an old guy I’ve put a little meat on my body.”

Mundell said that he was pleased with the progress the LBCBL made during the 2017 season.

“This year we went from having seven teams to 10 teams, which was really cool, and we split into two Divisions, an East Division and a West Division. We made the split geographic,” said Mundell, who said the league is open to anyone age 16 and up who wants to keep playing baseball during the summer.

“It used to be 18-and-over when we first started,” Mundell explained, “but we lowered it to 16 when Little League stopped having a Big League Division [ages 16-19].”

“We’ve had a number of younger kids come into the league, especially this year with Shrewsbury, but we’ve got some older guys, too. My dad [Mark Mundell] plays, he’s 5, and Ron Champeau plays too, and he’s 55.”

To the Editor:

In response to your August 25th story about the sale of a historic hotel, allowing for the possibility of the hotel’s demise, we would like to clarify.

The hotel in question is not for sale. It is listed for only the purpose of providing a location for the marketing and sale of the hotel.

Any decisions about the hotel’s future will be made by the owners, and those decisions will be made after careful consideration of many factors.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
