Striking gold in Seattle

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN NEWS STAFF WRITER

KILLINGLY — Killingly resident Abby Snyder recently competed in the Special Olympics USA Games 2018 on June 30 in Seattle. She competed in Unified Bowling for Team Connecticut, taking home a silver medal in singles, a gold medal in United Teams and a fourth place in Unified Doubles. But more importantly, said Snyder, she made some new friends at the national competition.

"I've made a lot of new friends," she said. "Before we left Seattle, we were all looking each other up on Facebook and friending each other."

Snyder has been competing in the Special Olympics for the past five years. What first piqued her interest about the Special Olympics was its competitiveness. She played sports in high school, but none of them were competitive enough for her liking, and there weren't enough opportunities for people with disabilities.

She wanted to try something new.

Something different.

So she tried bowling and "it was just so much fun." According to Snyder, the bowling team gets along really well and they always have fun.

Team CT had been practicing for the Special Olympics' Unified Bowling event since January. With help from her partner, Snyder was able to see a lot of improvements over those six months. Her highest score is a 148.

said about her wins. "We weren't sure if we would even get a medal or ribbon. We were just going to try our best either way."

The experience was made even better because they could meet all the other bowling teams from all across the USA. The Special Olympics brings teams together with pin collecting. Each team has their own unique pin to give out and trade.

"We love trading the state pins," recalled Snyder. "We got to meet people from all over the U.S. It's just interesting to said Special Olympics 50th Anniversary."

Team CT may have been meeting a lot of new people and learning about other teams all over the country, but they never forgot about their family back home.

"When we were out there one of my teammates went live on Facebook the day we were doing team bowling. So my mom got to see me compete. My friend also had people back home, too, and knew people would want to see that," Snyder said.

"There's nothing better than having customers here, talking with each other," said owner and cook Dan Raney. "That's what I really wanted."

During the Mill Town Grille's expansion, townspeople came up to help out with the renovations. Thompson residents have really shown a lot of support to the restaurant throughout the years.

THOMPSON — For the past year, Mill Town Grille has been the spot of choice for Thompson residents to hang out in town. This was made possible because of Owner and Cook Dan Raney's good food, and his town pride.

Mill Town Grille was known as Famous Franks for over eight years, a well-known hotdog destination in the Quiet Corner. But with thanks from the townspeople, some of whom even came out to help with the expansion construction, Mill Town Grille has grown into one of the most popular hangouts in Thompson.

What made you want to make the change from Famous Franks to Mill Town Grille? Famous Franks had built up such a huge clientele base... We have people that come from an hour away. We've been on TV a couple times with our hotdogs and other crazy stuff we do. We decided to turn it into something bigger, and give the opportunity for people to come in for dining, with more space.

Flying high wtoward goals and dreams

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN NEWS STAFF WRITER

WOODSTOCK - For go-getter Melissa Bellanceau, getting First Runner-Up in the Mrs. Connecticut pageant a few weeks ago was an amazing experience. But it only inspired her to do even more.

Right now, people may vote for Bellanceau to participate in the Mrs. America pageant in Las Vegas in August. To vote in the National First Runner-Up Contest, visit mrs.america. com/runner-ups-18. Voting is open now until Aug. 6.

"It's an incredible oppor-tunity to network with high-powered women who care about their communities,' said Bellanceau, AKA Mrs. Woodstock. "It would also give me a platform for my interest in supporting children in Connecticut whose parents deal with drug addiction. It would help deal with this state issue at a national platform."

This has been something Bellanceau is very passionate about, and was excited to speak about at the Mrs. Connecticut pageant earlier this summer. Her platform is all about supporting teenagers who have parents struggling with drug addiction. According to Bellanceau, many children are put into foster care because of parents' drug addiction, and they can get lost in this whole tragedy.

"It's personal for me," she said. "It's seeing a similar situation manifest in my life and learning a lot more about the foster system. And learning a lot more about the lack of resources available to families in Connecticut. Through my work in education, I'm aware of the growing needs of kids. We need to emotionally support kids. I think it's important that kids and teens have advocates and have people in their corner. People who understand what they're going through and are willing to help support them through that."

According to Bellanceau, a pageant is an excellent opportunity for women to showcase not only their causes and community dilemmas they see, but to showcase the "totality of who they are.'

For a lot of women, they think they have to be one thing or another, said Bellanceau. But women are multi-faceted, and should be proud of all their successes.

"I want to do it because I'm multi-faceted and I want other women to believe they can succeed. I'm very driven as a career-person. I'm passionate as a volunteer and advocate. I'm healthy, as a runner," said Bellanceau. "I think it's okay to wear a sparkly evening dress, too!'

Quiet Corner Garden Club hosts tour

WOODSTOCK — The Quiet Corner Garden Club hosted a Woodstock-area self-guided garden tourn of 10 unique gardens on July 14. Included were six private home gardens and four public gardens. There was also a garden-inspired Arts and Crafts Fair on the Woodstock Town Common between Roseland Cottage and Woodstock Academy.

The Arts and Crafts Fair featured 22 local artisans, including jewelry, stoneware, fiber arts and clothing, accessories, photography, paintings, wood crafts, beeswax, and handcrafted garden stones.

Each home garden had something different to offer. One garden was built against an antique barn foundation, another garden displayed acres of daylilies and perennial flowers among vegetables. Two private homes sloped down to lakeside gardens, where visitors could rest and enjoy a picnic lunch. Another garden held a variety of perennial gardens in island beds concentrically around the home and along the driveway, a vegetable garden, a pond-side garden and a chicken coop.

The cultural events included painters at three of the home gardens, a master chair-caning artisan, a local musician, and workshops in wreath making and creating fairy gardens.

Over 320 visitors attended the Garden Tour. Many attendees came from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and south and west Connecticut. Out-of-towners enjoyed strolling through the Palmer Arboretum, Roseland Cottage, the Inn at Woodstock Hill, and the newly-renovated gardens and greenhouse at New England Placement Services on Route 169.

All in all, the Quiet Corner Garden Club's 40th Anniversary Garden Tour was a huge success. The club will use the proceeds to expand its educational programs and club activities, civic projects, and scholarship awards. For more information, visit www.quietcornergardenclub.org.

During Experience Eastford on July 14, 90-year-old U.S. 7th Army Veteran Richard Cooley of Eastford, Maxine Marcy of Woodstock and Lincoln Budd of Eastford met by the unique Whitcraft-manufactured weathervane.

EASTFORD — A unique 72-inch high stainless steel weathervane made with a laser will soon grace Eastford's Town Office Building — a gift from high-technology aerospace manufacturer Whitcraft Group. During Experience Eastford on July 14, people of all ages from 4 to 90 were able to view the vane close up, including young Grayson with his mother Ashleigh Johnson and grandmother Mary Lavallee, Whitcraft retiree Marian Slye. and 90-year-old U.S. 7th Army Veteran Richard Cooley and his pals Maxine Marcy and Lincoln Budd. "It's alright," said Cooley who served in Germany after World War II.

Another fan was Slye.

"I worked for all the owners from Mickey Whittenburg to the present," said Slye. "It's a good company to work for."

On July 10, Eastford First Selectman Jacqueline Dubois accepted the vane from Whitcraft's general manager, Jacqueline Gallo, engineering manager Allen Roy and manufacturing engineer Dennis

First Selectman Jacqueline Dubois (r) presented the Business of the Year Award to Whitcraft Group.Engineering Manager Allen Roy (I), General Manager Jacqueline Gallo (c) and Manufacturing Engineer Dennis Defocy (back row r) accepted the award. Also present was former First Selectman Arthur Brodeur (back row left), who had expressed the need for the vane to Whitcraft executives.

Defocy. Defocy, along with junior engineers Kevin Breault and Adam Leighton, made the weathervane using laser and CAD/CAM technology. Dubois also presented an award honoring Whitcraft as Eastford's Business of the Year-2018.

"Eastford is proud of its dynamic local businesses. We encourage economic development. Whitcraft is a high technology aircraft company with unique capabilities. It manufactures more than 4,000 close-tolerance aerospace components--highly engineered, precision formed, precision machined and fabricated products-for Pratt & Whitney, GE Aviation, Honeywell, UTAS, Sikorsky, Snecma, Rolls-Royce, and the U.S. Government. Townsfolk who work there use advanced robotics and digital design technology on a daily basis. Whitcraft is also Eastford's largest employer and taxpayer," said Dubois.

"The weathervane incorporates the Whitcraft logo and an image of an experimental aircraft designed and built in Eastford by Whitcraft's founder, Mickey Whittenburg. Mickey was, at heart, an engineer and aviator whose passion was designing and building experimental aircraft. Coincidentally, Mickey's personal interests overlapped his professional endeavors when his company began making parts for Pratt & Whitney. He was a well-regarded member of the Experimental Aircraft Association and flew the Whitcraft aircraft (shown at the top of the weathervane) to several fly-ins, including the national Experimental Aircraft airshow in Oshkosh, Wisconsin. We hope this small gift is a reminder of the rich history of Eastford and northeast Connecticut," said Jeffrey Paul, President of Whitcraft Group.

"The entire weather vane assembly was manufactured from stainless steel so that it will endure New > England's harsh weather conditions. The vane was cut on a flat-pattern laser (3.2KW Co2 Trumpf Model 3030) using images that were digitized using our CAD/CAM software," said Defocy.

> 'We thank all those at Whitcraft for their ingenuity and this unique donation to the Town of Eastford. It is just one example of the company's commitment to our town," said Dubois. Other ways Whitcraft has consistently helped is through contributions to Eastford's 5-K cancer benefit, Thanksgiving Food Pantry assistance, the Eastford Independent Fire Company and other local groups, according to Dubois.

> "The weathervane came about as the result of a meeting I had with Whitcraft CEO Colin Cooper and President Jeffrey Paul. I mentioned that one of my regrets was that I hadn't replaced the weathervane that had been stolen from the cupola on the Town Hall, and they offered to make one for us," said former First Selectman Arthur Brodeur. The vane will be installed after a new roof is in place in the coming months, according to Dubois.

PUTNAM — The eighth annual Paddle for a Cure, held Sunday, June 10 at Riverside Park in Brooklyn has raised $9,500 for the Rose Bove LaRose Cancer Center at Day Kimball Hospital. The funds will support the Cancer Center's efforts to continually provide the most up to date facilities and technologies for the patients who receive care at the nationally accredited cancer center each year. Last year more than 5,700 treatments were provided in their infusion clinic.

Paddle for a Cure is a kayaking event founded and organized by Northeast Connecticut native Lance Collins, an avid kayaker who has lost five family members to cancer, most recently his uncle in 2010. His uncle's passing prompted Collins to organize the first Paddle for a Cure in 2011. The annual event has now raised more than $74,000 cer patients. Raising nearly $10,000 for our Oncology Department at this year's event is truly remarkable, and just goes to show that their loyal and steadfast commitment to DKH and our Oncology program is above and beyond," Willis said.

Paddle for a Cure works much the same way as a walk-a-thon such as Relay for Life, but participants

"We are so grateful and humbled by the generosity of Lance Collins and his family," said DKH Director of Critical Care and Cancer Services Carolina Starr-Manning. "Year after year Lance's dedication has continued to benefit the care of those fighting cancer in our community. The money raised at this year's event will be used towards the purchase of three new, state-of-the-art patient beds that will deliver the most advanced standard of care to our patients and caregivers. We wouldn't have been able to accomplish this without all that the Collins family and team have done."

DKH Director of Development Kristen Willis echoed Starr-Manning's sentiments.

"Once again, we are so appreciative of what Lance and his family have done and continue to do to benefit DKH's can-

Artique paints a picture with Westview

DAYVLILE - Lisa Andrews, owner of Artique, recently visited Westview Health Care Center on Thursday, July 19, 2018 for the facility's monthly offering of her artistic services called "Independent Artique".

For patients and residents who don't require additional assistance with their painting, this graduate course offers a self-directed painting experience where the artist relies more on their own abilities rather than extensive guidance from the instructor. The group painted a scene captured from a previous Artique event which was held at The Inn at Woodstock Hill at their facility's dahlia garden.

"It is highly rewarding to see someone who has little to no faith in their painting abilities at the beginning of a class become impressed with their finished artwork by the time they leave," said Andrews. "I tell many of my students that there is no wrong way to paint- there's only their way."

With Andrew's gradual step-by-step process and her relaxed demeanor, the residents' artwork bloomed from the canvases. "We have quite a few patients and residents here at Westview that have rekindled their joy of painting with the help of Lisa and Artique," said Louise Taylor, Director of Therapeutic Recreation. "Artique always provides such a rewarding and creative experience.'

WOODSTOCK/PUTNAM LITTLE LEAGUE RESULTS

Wednesday July 18 Woodstock/Putnam 11/12 4, Manchester National 2

The Woodstock/Putnam 11/12 year-old baseball All-Star team opened up State Sectional pool play with a 4-2 win over Manchester National in Ellington. Woodstock/Putnam jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning, as Noah Sampson led off the game with a double and came around to score on Riley O'Brien's clutch two-out RBI single. Carter Morissette made the score 3-0 in the bottom of the third inning with a two-run blast to deep left field. Riley O'Brien hit a solo home run to center in the bottom of the fifth inning to give Woodstock/ Putnam the 4-0 lead. Noah Sampson (2-3, 2 doubles), Maxx Corradi (1-2), Carter Morisette (1-3, HR, 2 RBIs) and Riley O'Brien (2-3, HR, 2 RBIs) all had hits for Woodstock/Putnam in the win.

Carter Morissette started the game and picked up the win for Woodstock/ Putnam, pitching 3 1/3 innings, allowing zero runs on only two hits while striking out five batters. Clinton Kallgren breezed through 1 2/3 innings of relief, retiring five batters in a row, before running into trouble in the top of the sixth inning. After Manchester's Alex Pellitier singled to lead off the inning, Jack Stokes too Kallgren over the fence in left field to make the score 4-2. Woodstock's Riley O'Brien was then summoned into the game and he shut the door, retiring three of the four batters he faced, striking out two, to earn the save.

With the win, Woodstock improved to 1-0 in sectional play and 7-0 overall during the All-Star season.

Thursday July 19

Woodstock/Putnam 11/12 5, Plainfield/Moosup 0

The Woodstock/Putnam 11/12 All-Stars beat Moosup/Plainfield 5-0 in State Sectional play in Ellington. With the win, Woodstock/Putnam moved to 2-0 in Sectional play, securing a spot in the Section 4 championship game on Saturday 7/21, where they will face the winner of the Manchester National vs Moosup/ Plainfield game to be played on Friday 7/20.

Clinton Kallgren was fantastic on the mound, tossing the complete game shutout for Woodstock/Putnam. Kallgren was very efficient, needing only 63 pitches for the game, allowing only three hits, while picking up three strikeouts and relying on a solid defense that recorded fifteen put-outs for the game without making a single error.

Woodstock/Putnam broke open a scoreless tie in the top of the third inning, as Brady Lecuyer led off the inning with a walk, followed by a double to right by Noah Sampson. RBI groundouts by Maxx Corradi and Clinton Kallgren, sandwiched around a walk to Carter Morisette and a Moosup/Plainfield error gave Woodstock a 3-0 lead, which proved to be more than enough for Kallgren. Travis Fredette's two-RBI single in the top of the fifth accounted for the other two Woodstock runs.

For Woodstock/Putnam, Noah Sampson (1-3, double), Riley O'Brien (3-4) and Travis Fredette (1-3, 2 RBIs) all had hits on the night. With the win, Woodstock/Putnam improved to 8-0 overall during the All-Star tournament.

Saturday July 21

Manchester National 5, Woodstock/Putnam 11/12 1

Woodstock/Putnam 11/12 year-old Baseball All-Stars fell to Manchester National 5-1 in the Section 4 championship game.

Trailing 1-0 in the top of the third inning, Woodstock loaded the bases with no outs, but only managed to score one run, squandering a golden opportunity to take the lead. Manchester then had their big inning in the bottom of the third, scoring four runs to take the 5-1 lead. Woodstock/Putnam has trouble solving Manchester pitcher Jack Stokes, who pitched 5 1/3 innings, allowing only two hits and one run. Offensively for Woodstock, Noah Sampson (1-3) and Carter Morissette (1-3, RBI) had the only hits on the afternoon.

Carter Morissette took the loss for Woodstock/Putnam, pitching 3 1/3 innings, allowing five runs on three hits, while striking out seven batters. Riley O'Brien pitched well, allowing one hit in 1 2/3 innings of scoreless relief.

The loss eliminated the Woodstock/Putnam team from the All-Star tournament. Overall, the team went 8-1 during their post-season run all the way to the final eight teams in the state of Connecticut.

Whenever I travel I soon imagine myself living in the place I am visiting. I look at the real estate ads. I think about where I would eat lunch or meet a friend. In the new place I own lovely things and dress more stylishly. I become a better, more accomplished person in my mind, so a recent visit to New York City to attend the wedding of my godson, was a perfect occasion to try on another imaginary identity. I'm not suffering from any major mental illness, just doing what travelers have done since time began, picturing myself living in another place.

I've read plenty of tourist pieces that claim it is a mere 3-hour drive from northeastern Connecticut to NYC. I don't know who is doing the driving, but every time I go, it takes longer. Much longer. This time we sat in traffic, got mixed up following the Waze app on the phone and squeezed in and out of tight situations. I was a passenger, thank goodness, as I'm not sure I have the stomach to drive myself. I always take the train if I am alone, but I was with my husband and a close friend, who is an excellent driver.

Staring out the car window at the maze of roads and streets, while trying hard to listen to the app and read the signs caused a few jangled nerves, but once we found our hotel, tucked away in Brooklyn, we were ready to slip into a place as urban as anywhere in the world and enjoy it.

The diversity of faces, ages, tattoos and clothes strikes a refreshing blow to my psyche. In our area, there is relatively little variety. In NYC, variety is the constant. I didn't know whether to stare at a colorful arm sleeve, as I waited next to a young man crossing the street. I wanted to read what it said or get the gist of the images, but I thought it might be rude. A woman with an elaborate design on the back of her neck was equally as interesting, but I thought it might creep her out if I stood closely and examined it. I need a lesson in tattoo etiquette.

The most striking feeling is one of utter vastness. There are millions of people, miles of sidewalk, roadways and housing. How do they manage all the water and who can even bear to think about the sewerage? The bridges look rusty and dated, but tens of thousands of cars and trucks barrel madly back and forth. There are restaurants on most corners often serving the ethnic food long to eat. Take a seat and dine on exotic tastes and hear musical accents. Sounds good, I think. Let's move here. But of course, there is a fundamental difference between dipping into the glories of New York or any large city. All we had to do was enjoy the sights, keep track of the hotel key and turn up in time for the wedding. How hard people must have to work to pay high rents and move themselves through the maze of traffic. While my husband and I both commuted for decades to our jobs, most of the time the trips were easy, giving us time to think or turn up the radio. I am suited to country life, despite all my thoughts about the allure of the city. The wedding guests took endless photos. The professional photographers planned to take thousands. I decided to lock memories into my mind instead of my phone. I paid attention. I'll remember the excitement of a summer weekend in the city and consider for a moment what my life might be if I lived there. Then I'll turn my face to the sun and celebrate my own backyard.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Support for Cartier

I'm writing to help inform the public concerning Mike Cartier, candidate for Judge of Probate in the 27th District, which consists of Canterbury, Killingly, Plainfield and Sterling.

Mike's a retired U.S. Navy Commander in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. This service will give our veterans an understanding ear for things near and dear to them.

Past President of the New London Country Bar Association. Having served in this capacity allowed Mike to acquire the ability to listen with an open mind and considerate ear. This will help to make him more available at the convenience of the people served.

To my fellow democrats in Canterbury, Killingly, Plainfield, and Sterling: We have a primary coming up on Aug. 14. In Connecticut, most judges are appointed by our legislature. Our Probate Court judges, however, are different; we elect them. This year, our current Judge of Probate, Andrea Truppa, is facing a primary. She is being challenged for her seat by another democrat. I urge you to head out to vote in this primary and to support Judge Truppa.

Andrea has been a trial attorney for 21 years, a probate attorney for 10 years and judge for the last four. She has represented over a hundred people as court-appointed counsel in the probate system, people who could not afford the services of legal counsel, service on the school roofs.

It has been almost a year since I started asking the citizens of Woodstock to listen to what I had to say as a candidate for the office of First Selectman. I wrote a number of letters to the editor of the Woodstock Villager in which I expressed my ideas and concerns about how the Woodstock government operated and should operate. I discussed my plan to be a full time first selectman who would attend as many commission and committee meetings as was feasible. I felt that we needed to open the windows of the town hall and bring new faces into the government who offered quality skills and backgrounds in order to stop the perception of a group of inbred officer holders. To open windows, meant to me, that transparency of the operations of the town's various departments needed to be in place. I wanted to have job descriptions written and employees evaluated yearly based on their job descriptions. It has been just over six months since I, along with all of the other elected officials were sworn-in in December, 2017. It seems that the time has flown by and I feel it is time to report to you - the voters of Woodstock what I believe are the important issues and actions my fellow Board members and I have accomplished these past six months. My first comment is to thank both Mike and Chandler for the very positive working relationships that we have developed these past months. From the very first Board of Selectmen's meeting, Mike has been open to me and has listened to my viewpoints. Our Selectmen's meetings have been very comprehensive. We have discussed a number of complex issues facing Woodstock. In fact, those of you who have come to the BoS meetings have commented that they are longer than in the past (at least 45 minutes) and are detailed in both the subject and the questions asked. I have never once felt that my opinions have been unappreciated. I believe the past six months have allowed your selectmen to become a team working for the benefit of our town. With that said, we don't always agree. The most obvious was the discussion we had concerning the meaning of the recent referendum on the opening of the our Woodstock Town Hall on Fridays. I disagreed with the decision of opening from 7:00 to 10:00 and asked for what I believed was the referendum's intention - that the hours would be from 8:30 to Noon. We discussed this issue for almost an hour and in the end. I did vote for the 7 to 10 hours because this was the only proposal on the table. In life, there are some ideas you can win and others... The most difficult issue we worked on for most of the six months was our town's budget development. As the newest member of your Board, I was very appreciative of the work Karen Fitzpatrick put into all of the docubecome a Guardian Ad Litem will assist Mike in making the impartial, tough and factual findings when families disagree.

Mike is also a: Past instructor, UConn Paralegal Program, Three Rivers Business Law school. Member Plainfield Democratic Town Committee. Past President Plainfield Rotary.

I have served with Mike on committees and I have found him to be a very organized, considerate, thoughtful, and empathetic individual. Also tasks orientated and to never feel an undertaking below him. These assets, I believe, will make him the Judge of Probate brand this district needs.

My youngest daughter had a pool party/camping sleepover last Saturday. She had planned this thing for weeks using the money from her very first job, as well as asking for extra chores around the house to earn more cash to buy event essentials. There was a fashion show, yard games, several tents, food, music, and fun late into the evening. The night clearly belonged to the teens...the morning evidently belonging to the parents. I awoke the next day, and groggily stumbled downstairs because the dog was begging at the door with his legs crossed, and then I saw it...the next hour and a half of my life. Lying in the pouring rain were soda cans, water bottles and streamers were strewn all over the yard. A lonely, wet trash bag lay empty in the grass with no sign of ever being used. There were watermelon rinds flung into my precious hosta garden... exactly three feet from that Our town's public works department also helium-deprived balloons and soggy crepe lay like passions. "Worth WOODSTOCK playing manhunt till four in the morning?" the older sibling said smarmily. Four in the morning! The last time I stayed up till then was 1991. I still don't understand how the onion got in the pool.

We reviewed the concerns of the fire offi- bottom of the pool. One last interesting point: we had two Board of Selectmen's meetings where a middle school student was in attendance. Cartier for Probate Judge

I am writing this letter in support of Michael Cartier for Probate Judge for District 27 (Canterbury, Killingly, Plainfield and Sterling). I have known Mike for over 20 years, we currently serve together on the Plainfield BOE. I continue to be impressed with his knowledge, integrity, and willingness to serve others.

Mike is one of the good guys. He is offering his vast experience and expertise to help his community during what can be a very emotional life experience. I encourage the residents of Canterbury, Killingly, Plainfield and Sterling to vote for Mike Cartier for Probate advertising account executive Judge in the August 14th primary.

Performing rats and other happenings in the 1880's

I thought I would see what was happening in Killingly in the late 1880's so went to my Windham County Transcript extracts from 1887. While flipping pages to reach July, I noticed several interesting tidbits in the May 18th issue. I'll share a few. " A cage of performing rats were exhibited on Main Street Monday morning, attracting a considerable number of persons to witness the curious and interesting different things they would do. The exhibitor picked up many pennies during the dav

The next item in the same issue peaked my curiosity and led to a little research about a business I hadn't really thought about. "S. P. Davis, photographer, took a view of the burning hose factory last Thursday night, just after the flames began to cover the roof of the building. It was a fearful sight at that moment, and the spectators who witnessed it will not need a picture to help them remember it, and will probably never want to witness a similar disaster in this village again." "Cinders from the fire that burned Pilling's Hose factory, Thursday, were found at a distance as far north as Hutchins Street. The people who witnessed the bright sparks sailing through the air in all parts of the village were much alarmed through fear of property taking fire. No damage, however, was done that we hear of." Hose! What type of hose?

Another article answered that question and added something about the significance of the factory to the local economy. " All of our people realize that the burning of the stocking factory, Thursday night, was a serious calamity to this village, even if the business of the Pilling brothers is interrupted but for three or four months, for their industry has been distributing about five hundred dollars in this community every week for the past years, and this amount was first paid to an intelligent class of female operatives, of whom many are members of American families who have long resided in this village and who expend their income largely at home."

Natalie Coolidge's Killingly Business Encyclopedia enlightened me about Pilling's fac-"About 1880 tory. the Pillings built a hosiery factory on School Street. This was a new industry to the place. The wooden building first erected was subsequently burned down and was replaced by the present brick mill called the Uncas Knitting Works, which was erected by a stock company. Natalie's reference was H. V. Arnold's Making of Danielson, p. 197.

Did you know that East Killingly once had a shoe factory? "Our enterprising Board of Trade (Danielsonville) has induced ex-Representative Job F.Seamans, of East Killingly, to remove his shoe manufactory to this village, and Liberty Hall, on Oak Street, has been leased for a term of years for the accommodation of Mr. Seaman's business. The manufactory will employ fifteen hands at present, but the proprietor is looking for an enlargement in the near future. All of our people extend a cordial greeting to an enterprise owned by a Killingly boy and wish him great success" (WCT 5/18/1887).

Some of you may recall the beautiful stone arch bridge that once graced Franklin Street where it crossed the Five Mile River. The July 4, 1888 Transcript reported "work on the new stone arch bridge...is being steadily pushed forward." By August 8th the bridge was nearing completion. According to Images of America Killingly by Natalie L. Coolidge and Robert A. Spencer, the bridge was built by stonemason Thomas Bradford. For two photos see Images of America Killingly, p. 29.

During the summer of 1888 improvements also were being done to Westfield Cemetery. "The improvements at the Westfield cemetery are moving on finely. A windmill with pump and tank for water service is being erected, the pitch pine trees are being cut down, the neglected lots cleaned up, and a general cleaning of the entire grounds will make a vast difference in the appearance of this 'city of the dead' when completed" (WCT 7/18/1888). I wonder how long the windmill was in operation. If you remember it, please email me or call the Killingly Historical and Genealogical Center.

The following summer a huge topic of conversation was electric lighting for the Borough. The June 19, 1889 Transcript had this to say, "Proposition of the Killingly Electric Light Co. for the Contract with the Borough of Danielsonville. The Killingly Electric Light Co. will agree to furnish for the use of the borough in lighting the streets, or other public places, twenty-four or more electric lights, known as the divided arc light...and will hang such lights on poles, or otherwise, except on towers, at such height and such manner, and in such places within the borough, as may be designated by the Warden and Burgesses, and will light, maintain and keep lighted, such electric lights from dusk until 11:30 o'clock, 240 nights in each year, or 20 nights in each month, such nights to be designated by the Warden and Burgesses of the borough. F. A. Jacobs, president." Note the limited length of time that the lights would be in operation. The next week's Transcript noted that the residents of the borough had decided to accept the proposal.

Work was also being done on a convent. "The finishing work on the Catholic convent is being pushed as rapidly as possible, and Father Preston hopes it will be ready for occupancy by July 1st, when a number of Sisters from Lee, Massachusetts are expected here. The parochial school will probably open in September" (WCT 6/19/1889). The July 24th Transcript reported that five Sisters of Mercy had arrived. They were "to have charge of the Parochial School, and the Elv house has bee beautifully fitted up for their home." I wonder if any record remains of their names. I shall have to call St. James School to see how far back their records go.

We know the financial and economic landscape we all operate in is everchanging. Policy and regulatory shifts are often a big part of these changes and may alter almost anything from tax planning, to healthcare, and even retirement. Weiss & Hale Financial believes that in order to realize your financial life goals, proactive planning around policy decisions that may affect your unique financial plan is key. So this month, we are going to discuss some timely policies that could affect your financial plan. This week, we will discuss interest rates. Interest rates have economic impact as both an indicator and influential element in the growth of the market. For any individual investor, it is important to consider how the current state of the economy will impact your savings and investments. The interest rates on large purchase items such as homes, small business loans and automobiles can show if the economy is healthy or if it is slowing down and needs an influx of cash to get going again.

ic cycle where businesses use the loan money to acquire new property and build new locations that filters down to consumers and private construction companies, who are then hired to build new business properties and operate the new locations. Consumers use the money received from working to purchase goods and services at other existing businesses. What does that mean for the average person? Low interest rates are typically used to promote growth. This could present opportunities for investments or other benefits you may be able to take advantage of from new or expanding businesses.

that are deemed too high may lead to inflation. This economic condition is caused by an increase in the price of goods along with a shortage in available capital.

Inflation is one of the many factors to consider when trying to plan how much to save and when you will need to use the money for the financial goal you are trying to obtain. High interest rates are signs of a strong economy, although you may be paying more for the

the surface, it's actually quite harmful for businesses who now have to sell a higher number of goods to turn the same amount of profit. This can lead to a shrinking economy where the value of goods and property, including homes and other real property, decreases across the board.

It is important to consider Il these factors in each facet of the economic landscape. From a macroeconomic level as well as a microeconomic level. How will changes in interest rate be good or bad for the economy and how could it impact you on an individual level? It is key to understand the economic climate and analyze what threats and opportunities may help you achieve your financial life goals.

LOW INTEREST RATES

In a poor economy, banks and other financial institutions tend to lower interest rates on loans to entice businesses to apply for credit. This allows money to circulate through the economy and stimulate growth. The process creates a symbiot-

HIGH INTEREST RATES

Rising interest rates are a strong indicator of economic growth, according to the "U.S. News" website. As economic development increases, more businesses reach out to banks and other financial lenders for extensions of capital. Banks see this as an opportunity to turn a profit and slowly begin increasing interest rates. This must be done carefully, as interest rates cost to borrow.

CONSUMER SPENDING

Interest rates also affect consumer confidence in the economy, which directly affects consumer spending. When the economy is experiencing a downturn, consumer confidence may be low, causing people to save more and spend less. Low interest rates may entice consumers to spend more on large ticket items, such as cars and houses, but only if the job market is secure. Consumers who are unsure if they can keep a position long term in a poor economy are less likely to take advantage of low interest rates.

THE RISK OF DEFLATION

Interest rates that dip too low can lead to an economic condition known as deflation. This is an increase in available capital along with decrease in the price of goods. While this sounds like a good thing on

Ericson is Westview employee of the month

DAYVILLE - Vicki Ericson, from Brooklyn, was named Westview Health Care Center's Employee of the Month for July. Ericson has been employed at Westview since February 2014 as the facility's Assistant Director of Therapeutic Recreation. Ericson is a 2003 graduate of Eastern Connecticut State University, where she double majored in psychology and education. She most recently received her therapeutic recreation certification at Manchester Community College in 2016.

When she isn't entirely consumed with being the best sports mom possible to her two sons, Brady, 11, and Colin, 7, Ericson can be found happily spending time gardening or watching a Red Sox or a Patriots game. She also enjoys reading, cooking nonstop for her growing boys and, as anybody who knows her can attest, making others laugh.

'Vicki's energetic disposition and her propensity for humor creates a revitalizing atmosphere that is paramount to the folks here at Westview," said David T. Panteleakos, Westview administrator. "Vicki lights up a room with her infectious enthusiasm for the well-being and comfort of our residents and patients and we are extremely proud to award her with this accolade."

"I am fortunate to work with some of the best caregivers in the business," said Ericson. "So to be chosen as Employee of the Month is quite an honor to say the least. I can only hope that my role at Westview touches the lives of all those I care for as much as they have blessed mine. Doing what I do is truly that which I was meant to do, and I'm humbled to receive this acknowledgement.'

Home Protection For Elders

Because a home is often the single largest asset in a person's possessions, elderly individuals will want to be sure to protect it from long-term care health expenses. Simply transferring the property to one or more children can lead to unintended income tax, estate tax, and gift tax consequences if the transfer is made blindly. On the other hand, a "life estate deed" enables an elderly homeowner to transfer his or her home to the intended recipients ("remaindermen") while still retaining the right to use, occupy, live in, and enjoy the property for the remainder of his or her life. A "life tenant" maintains the home and pays for upkeep and taxes while being guaranteed exclusive possession of the property.

HINT: With a life estate deed, a parent's property passes to his or her children without need of probate.

The goal of any estate plan is to protect and preserve wealth in the way that best meets the needs of each individual and family. At BORNER, SMITH, ALEMAN, HERZOG and CERRONE, LLC, we know that achieving this basic objective takes careful analysis and planning.

Generations Family Health Center hosts concert

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN NEWS STAFF WRITER

To celebrate 35 years of providing healthcare to the less fortunate in eastern Connecticut, Generations Family Health Center will be hosting an epic concert on Friday, August 3. Grammy award winning artists Jose Feliciano and Peabo Brvson will be performing at the brand new Shaboo Stage in downtown Willimantic.

The money raised at this benefit concert will go towards the patients of Generations Family Health Center, a not-for-profit program that provides a full continuum of primary health care, oral health care, behavioral health care and health education for people of all ages. Their mission is to provide quality health care that's affordable and easily accessible without discrimination.

Last year, Generations provided over 22,000 visits to some 15,500 patients, according to a press release.

"Nobody is turned away," said Generations Director of Communications Allison Heneghan. "Whether they can afford to pay for it or not. Some of these people would not be able to access healthcare without us, due to their inability to pay, or other things that block their access.²

Concert goers will not only help their community, but get to witness the first concert on the Shaboo Stage. And it's a pretty exciting lineup. According to a press release, Jose Feliciano is scheduled and is a nine-time Grammy winning artist known all over Latin America and Europe for songs like "Light My Fire" and "Affirmation." Also scheduled is Peabo Bryson, a two-time R&B Grammy winner, best known for his songs "Beauty and the Beast" with Celine Dion and Oscar-winning "A Whole New World."

For those looking for an elevated concert experience (and have the ability to donate more to the fundraiser) there's also a VIP Tent with prime viewing of the concert and a sit-down meal.

This event has been made possible, said Heneghan, because of contributions from local businesses, the town and community partners, all who donated services and time.

"We are so honored that our patients are the beneficiary of the first ever concert on the new Shaboo stage," said Chief Executive Officer Arvind Shaw in a press release. "We are thrilled that these Grammy winning artists, José and Peabo will be playing right here in Willimantic. This is going to be a great evening of music, food, drink and fun that will bring lots of folks and business to downtown Willimantic!"

Tickets can be purchased online at genhealth.org/concert. Contact Heneghan at 860-803-7254 for more information.

in Thompson?

What made you feel like something like this was needed

There's not a lot of things in town, and we wanted to give them something like Putnam has. Something like The Courthouse, or 85 Main. This is where our people can come hang out without having to leave town. It was more for that reason. I would always sit around and say, 'How cool would it be if we could sit here and have beers? Or have our own nice dining place?'

Thompson residents been?

Oh my God, phenomenal. The customer support we have is incredible. We had such a good clientele base from Famous Franks that we never advertised. All of the pictures on the walls are from the Historical Society. Pictures of the town. The town people at the Town Hall were great. They really helped us get here.

You just really felt supported.

And the townspeople... One of the customers wanted to put our ad in the paper. He wanted more people to know about this place. He gave it to us as a gift.

That's amazing. How do you feel about this kind of response?

In all honesty, I'm not a money guy. I don't care about big things and fancy stuff. I like coming into work every day. I have little kids come in and families we're friendly with. My three daughters work here. We're all just so close with the people who come into the restaurant. It's like Cheers. It's like a big family. It really is.

What do you think you offer that other restaurants don't have?

The first thing we offer is... You're greeted. You're sat down. I personally go to every single table every day and talk to people. I'm looking for the truth. Honesty. I want people to tell me what they think. What they feel. Good or bad.

And we obviously have to mention the food. You said you had your hotdogs featured on TV?

We were on Better Connecticut.

What made these hotdogs so interesting to people?

We do over 15 different types of hotdogs. We have all these crazy concoctions and it blew up.

Wow, that's very What different. your favorite is hotdog?

My personal favorite is the Smokehouse Dog. It has bacon, BBQ, pepperjack cheese and coney sauce.

That sounds good!

It is good.

What other food do you specialize in here?

We do everything. We do burgers, New York style pizza, seafood, clams... Our biggest seller is a BLT chicken salad sandwich. It sells like mad. Yesterday we sold 27 BLT.

BLT, wow, that's surprising

I thought pizza would be the big seller. New York style: Once you have NY style, it's completely different than Greek... But everything off my grill seems to be the biggest attraction... We go through over 200 hamburgers a week. They're eight oz black angus. Half pounders. It's stuff this area is missing.

What has been your favorite part of having this restaurant over the vears?

The people. The community. The town. Everybody has rallied behind it. It's awesome. We have a woman who comes in. She's 93 years old. She looks at the pictures on the wall every time she comes in. She tells us stories. The memories she has, it's so cool to listen to. She knows some of the people in the pictures. Yesterday we had Steve Park in here. Famous NASCAR driver. In here for three hours telling us stories. The people you get to meet is awesome. We had a guy who biked 14,000 miles. 67 years old. He went all the way to Alaska.

That's so cool. What else did you want people to know about Main Street Grille?

It's a family run restaurant. My daughter, Kiara, runs the restaurant.

That's amazing. Did you ever think you'd own a restaurant? Was this something you've done in the past?

No, I worked for a company called Fabric Trends International, as the vice president.

Interesting. What got you into the restaurant game?

My best friend owns the building. One day we sat down. I had just left that six year contract after spending a lot of time in China. He was wondering what I'd do now. He said I should open up a hotdog shop. So I opened up Famous Franks. Here we are 10 years later. It just evolved.

That's amazing that it started from hotdogs.

It is. Everybody thought it was nuts. Even my family. I believe it's all God and karma really. How else do you explain it?

Were you always into cooking?

Not really. But there's just nothing better than walking out and asking someone, 'What do you think of this food?' I must hear, 'Oh my god, this is incredible' 50 times a day. It's so exciting to hear that. The beer and wine we started to sell last month, that's really added to the experience as well. Plus the outside dining.

You've just really created a space for people to hang out, relax.

I just want people to know that we did this for the town. I wanted to give them a place to go. A place to gather and be friendly with each other. There's nothing better than having customers start talking to each other. That's what I wanted.

The above income calculations are made based on the following formulas: Monthly income is calculated by dividing the annual income by 12; twice monthly income is computed by dividing annual income by 24; income received every two weeks is calculated by dividing annual income by 26; and weekly income is computed by dividing annual income by 52. All numbers are rounded upward to the next whole dollar.

Quiet Corner music classes on cue

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN

WOODSTOCK — The Quiet Corner Music Together program will begin their fall classes in September, with registration for families in Danielson, Woodstock and Pomfret beginning early August. Held at the Westfield Congregational Church, this local program is for children 5 years old and under, offering them "basic music competence," said Director and Owner Amy Apperson.

'That's defined as being able to sing in tune and keep a steady beat," Apperson said. "Rather than focusing on performance-based lessons, our classes teach children the way young children learn, through play. Classes are immersion based and caregivers are heavily involved."

And don't worry if you are musically challenged yourself.

"Children will learn regardless of their parent or caregiver's ability," said Apperson.

So what makes music so important for young children?

According to Apperson, all children are musical. And by giving them a "safe" and "musically rich environment," they will gain a skill they can enjoy for the rest of their lives.

But making music isn't only a "human right," she said. "Music also offers many other benefits for young children and adults alike. While young children's brains are rapidly developing, music benefits them cognitively, socially, physically, and emotionally.

The classes are also great for building family bonds, which is one of the program's missions.

Apperson started QCMT back in 2007 after experiencing a Music Together class in Providence. She loved it so much that she decided to open her own center once she became a mother.

Music has been a large part of Apperson's life.

Alexjandro Torres, 31, of 1A Middle

Street, Brooklyn, was charged with vio-

'My father was an avid music fan," she said. "He passed that down to his children by singing and dancing with us every day. He passed down his love for great music by being passionate about the music we listened to in our home."

Apperson went on to study music in college, pursuing her passion for not only music, but to bring music to children. A way for children to not only receive the developmental benefits of music education, but to experience what she had with her father.

"Family bonding is the biggest benefit the whole family gains," said Apperson. "The song collection that families bring home on CD and have access to through the Hello Everybody app become the family's favorite songs to listen to. I have parents tell me that the songs have saved them on many car rides.'

And it's great for the parents and caregivers as well.

"I have also watched adults become better music makers. Adults who were never confident singing suddenly find an environment where it's ok to sing even if you're not in tune and, by using their vocal cord muscles semester after semester, they learn how to sing in tune more accurately," said Apperson.

Because of the plethora of benefits for young and old, it's hard for Apperson to pinpoint specific moments that stand out to her during her time with Music Together. There are moments she loves in every class.

She watches children become more confident. Ones who at first wouldn't get up from their caregiver's lap will start participating. She's seen newborns respond to music and bond with their parents. She's watched four and five year olds gain new skills every semester and become "confidence and accurate music makers.'

Tri-Town inducts five in Hall of Fame

NORTH GROSVENORDALE - Tri-Town American Legion inducted five members into its baseball Hall of Fame last Friday at the American Legion Post No. 67. The inductees included Jim Lebeau, Donald K. Bond, Chris Heidelberger, Chris Mayhew, and Everett G. Shepard.

Lebeau attended Tourtellotte Memorial High School, where he played four years of varsity baseball as a catcher and sometimes pitcher and outfielder for the Tigers. He was a fouryear performer, primarily as a catcher and occasional pitcher (4-1), for Tri-Town. He was a member of the 1984 Zone (22-3) championship team, which went on to compete in the State playoffs. That season he batted .329, four home runs and seven doubles. Lebeau was coached by Tom Auclair at both Tourtellotte and Tri-Town.

"One of the most reliable players I've ever coached," Auclair said. "An outstanding hitter and catcher and team leader."

Lebeau went on to graduate from the College of South Florida in Lakeland. He currently resides in Florida. He is married and has two children. Lebeau's father, Robert F. Lebeau, is the Commander of Post 67 and he accepted the Hall of Fame plaque for his son.

Bond was a reporter for the Norwich Bulletin and he was the first coach of the team which was then known as the Silk Sox. Playing against teams from the southern sector of Zone IX, which at that time drew from a large number of more populated areas, Bond and his band of young players proved to be formidable foes for the powerhouse New London, Niantic and Norwich teams of the day. Bond went on to become the editor of the Norwich Bulletin. He was also a great community servant who was credited with starting the Tommy Toy Fund, which raised funds for thousands of needy families at Christmas and with the revitalization of the Killingly Brooklyn Springtime Festival. Bond died unexpectedly in 2013. His daughter, Kelly, accepted his Hall of Fame plaque in his honor.

Heidelberger attended Pomfret School and was a standout in soccer and baseball. He played for Tri-Town and coach Auclair for three seasons as the team's premier catcher. His final season was 1979. During his American Legion career he was known as one of the best contact hitters, batting over .300 every season. Heidelberger went on to a brilliant soccer career at the University of South Carolina, where he earned four varsity letters in soccer. He currently remains the 20th all-time leading scorer for the Gamecocks. His company today, Drivn, is a sports technology app utilized by the Boston Celtics. Heidelbergher and his wife, Diane, have three children.

Mayhew was a three sport athlete at Woodstock Academy, starring on the soccer pitch, the basketball court and the baseball diamond. He was

Theodore A. Bazinet, 83

KILLINGLY - for-merly of Putnam, Theodore A. "Ted' Bazinet, 83, passed away at his home on Monday, July 23. He was the loving husband of Lorraine (Lamoureux) Bazinet for 57 years. They were united together in marriage on October 15, 1960. Born in Putnam, he was the son of the late Theodore and Doris (Favreau) Bazinet.

Ted served in the U.S. Air Force from 1954 to 1958. After basic training and schooling, he was transferred to Wiesbaden, Germany where he was stationed at the Wiesbaden Hospital for one year. He then transferred to Evreux, France for two years. His three years spent in Europe gave him the taste of Europe and vowed when he got married he would take his wife there. He kept his promise and took Lorraine to Europe on eight different trips traveling through 22 European countries with Paris being their favorite city as they visited there five times. They also embarked on 29 cruises covering most of the Caribbean Islands, Mexican Riviera, Hawaii, Bermuda, South Pacific Islands of Bora Bora, Moorea, and Tahiti.

When in the military, he was on the base softball team travelling to several countries to compete. Once back home, Ted enjoyed playing on the Putnam softball league for many years. His interest then went to landscaping his property, woodworking, and traveling. Buying a home in Sarasota, Florida in 2004, they enjoyed their winters there for 11 years before Ted got sick.

After returning from the military, Ted went to Putnam Technical studying mechanical drawing. He then went on to work for 20 years at National Chrome in Putnam and then went to work at Kaman Aerospace as group leader in the process department, retiring after 18 years in 1998. Before retiring from Kaman, he was awarded the "Silver Snoopy Award" by NASA. This award was presented to Ted by astronaut William G. Gregory who flew aboard the Space Shuttle Endeavour in 1995. The Silver Snoopy flew in space on STS mission 56 on April 1993. These awards are given to fewer than one percent of the aerospace program workforce annually. Ted was pretty proud of this award. He was also a member of the American Legion Post #13.

In addition to his wife, Ted is survived by his sister, Rachael Morin of Putnam; his brother, Robert Bazinet of Woodstock; many nephews and nieces. Also surviving are his long-time best friends, Peter and Betty Aucoin and family who were always there for all of the good times and bad times, happy times and sad times. Ted is predeceased by his parents; and sisters, Theresa Staples, Florence Berube and Jane Mowry. A special thank you to Dr. Anwar and staff, and to Dr. Gerry Sullivan for making Ted's last three years as comfortable as possible.

Relatives and friends are invited to visit with Ted's family from 11:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Friday July 27, 2018 in the Gilman Funeral Home and Crematory, 104 Church St, Putnam, followed by a Mass of Christian Burial at 1:00 p.m. in St. Mary Church of the Visitation, 218 Providence St., Putnam. a four-year varsity performer for the Centaur baseball teams, under coaches Roy Hale and Bill Emerson. He played four years for the Tri-Town program, where he was the ace of the pitching staff and a standout shortstop when he wasn't on the mound. He was a much respected hitter who batted .385 and was 6-1 on the mound during the 22-3 season of 1984. He was a important cog in the success of the 1984 Tri-Town team that captured the Zone IX title and went on to the State playoffs, where they lost 3-1 to Middletown and 3-2 to Stamford. He was named co-MVP of Zone IX that season. He had a successful four-year collegiate career at Springfield College. He was one of the team's top pitchers, both as a starter and reliever, helping the team to a Northeast-10 Conference championship. He formerly served as the athletic director and is currently the physical education teacher in the Woodstock Middle School system. Mayhew and his wife. Karen. have three children.

Shepard, a U.S. Army veteran, has worked tirelessly over the years and his foresight, fortitude and dedication to the program has kept the Tri-Town program viable. Approximately 13 years

Shepard noticed that Legion baseball in Northeastern Connecticut was headed for a dramatic nosedive. He made a few phone calls, gathered some other veterans and Legionnaires and began reassembling the program that has grown to where it is today. During this resurrection period he's served faithfully and flawlessly as the program's Chief Financial Officer and as its representative to the people at the American Legion Department of Connecticut "Baseball Committee."

He's become a legend in the Department of Connecticut American Legion, serving as the State Commander in 2000 and as the State Adjutant for 10 years (2006-2016). He remains highly regarded in Connecticut Legion circles serving as the chairman and member on a variety of committees and commissions. Locally, he's served as Commander of Post #111 in Woodstock and continues as the backbone of that organization. He's a former selectman and finance committee man in Woodstock and a graduate of Nichols College. Everett is married to Pat, they have an adult son, Matthew, and a granddaughter, who both attended the ceremony. Also present was his mother Martha Shepard, who is 98 years old.
