KILLINGLY — The staff of Killingly High School's student newspaper, the Redline, has definitely gone above and beyond this year, earning a first place in the American Scholastic Press Association annual review!

The Association evaluates a series of newspapers which are submitted, based on format, newswriting, coverage, grammar, creativity, page design and a number of other aspects of publishing. In order to achieve a first place designation, a newspaper has to be almost perfect, earning a minimum of 850 points out of 1,000. The KHS Redline topped out at 910! That included a maximum score of 330 points out of 330 for content coverage.

Day Kimball Hospital transitions COVID-19 vaccinations to Primary Care practices

PUTNAM — Beginning Monday, June 21, Day Kimball Healthcare (DKH) will transition COVID-19 vaccinations from its existing clinics at Day Kimball Hospital to its Day Kimball Medical Group (DKMG) adult and pediatric primary care practice locations.

"DKH has innovatively adapted care and services to meet the needs of our community throughout the pandemic," said Kyle Kramer, chief executive officer, Day Kimball Healthcare.

"As vaccines became available, we moved quickly to offer vaccinations at central locations. These mass vaccination sites were key components of our success when we needed to deliver the vaccine to as many people as quickly as possible," he said.

Kramer continued, "Now that we have administered well over 40,000 vaccines to those who were eager to receive it, we are shifting our approach to better support those who may require direct conversation with a physician regarding the safety and efficacy of the vaccine, and enable delivery of the vaccine at the point of contact. This change also makes the vaccine available at more locations in our

Firefighters from thirteen different departments worked to control a blaze at a Woodstock farmhouse on Route

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

WOODSTOCK – Thirteen fire departments from two states responded to an early morning structure fire on June 15 that displaced five individuals and took the lives of several pets.

Shortly after midnight crews received calls for a reported structure fire at 832 Route 169 with the possibility of people still inside the building. According to Woodstock Fire Marshal Dick Baron, first responders arrived to find the building completely engulfed.

"There was already a trooper on the scene who must've been nearby. The four occupants of the house were out, and they were in the process of waking the tenant up and getting him out. From there we knew at least all the occupants were out and then it got into a pretty large-scale fire attack on an old farmhouse with balloon frame construction in an area where there's no hydrants," Baron said. "That's why there were over twelve fire

Meet Woodstock Academy's first Poet Laureate

WOODSTOCK — The Woodstock Academy is proud to announce that Emma Heimgartner '22 of Brooklyn has been elected the first Poet Laureate of The Woodstock Academy.

As her first official act as Poet Laureate, she will be presenting her original poem, "New Dawn," at The Academy's Commencement ceremony this Saturday, June 12.

The Academy has had subject-specific honor societies in science, math, world languages, and music, but this year, it started two new honor societies, the Linda Stedman Social Studies National Honor Society (SSNHS), and the Robert Holland National English Honor Society (NEHS). The SSNHS is named in memory of social studies teacher Linda Stedman, and the NEHS is named for Academy Trustee Robert Holland.

"I think that Mr. Holland would be pleased by the naming of the NEHS to honor his dual legacy, both as a dedicated Trustee and as an accomplished writer," said Rich Telford, English department chair at The Woodstock Academy. "His long tenure on the Board of Trustees was marked by a constant dedication to providing Academy students with the richest education possible."

"The administration tasked our newly formed society with finding the first WA Poet Laureate," said Hans Rhynhart '22, president of the NEHS. "All of us were inspired by Amanda Gorman's poem at President Biden's inauguration. We accepted the task eagerly. After voting on candidates, we were lucky to find Emma Heimgartner as our first poet laureate. We are excited to walk in the powerful footsteps that Gorman has set, and we're excited for what this society can do in the future."

About Heimgartner, Telford added, "I am confident that Emma will excel in her role as Poet Laureate. She will set a high standard, not just for herself but for those students who will follow in the role, which makes her an especially apt choice for this inaugural year."

Below is a brief interview with Emma Heimgartner.

WA: What are some of your earliest experiences with writing and poetry?

EH: My earliest experience with writing poetry, specifically, is in seventh grade where I had to write a haiku for my English class. The prompt was writing about something you love through metaphor and a specific rhyme scheme. I ended up writing about corgis and compared them to lattes. However, I've been crafting my own tales since I was little and loved to make little picture books and short stories.

WA: What authors or poets influence you?

EH: For this poem I was influenced heavily by poets like Maya Angelou and Dylan Thomas. "On the Pulse of Morning" by Maya Angelou is all about the future and the new beginnings it can bring. The past and present may

Once again, I thought that I would do some June Windham County Transcript extracts from a few assorted years. I always enjoy, and sometimes am amazed, at how life has changed—and how it is still much the same. Have you ever attended a garden party? This one was held in 1916. “A Floral Garden Party is to be given by the Civic Federation, June 13, on the grounds of Luther Pilling, Main St., Danielson. A Children’s Pageant occurs directly after school and supper will be served from 6 o’clock to 8 o’clock. There will be many and varied attractions which the Civic Federation knows so well how to provide. If Tuesday should be stormy, the Garden Party will be given the following day” (WCT June 8, 1916).

With the isolation many senior citizens have felt during the Covid pandemic, I found the following article most touching. “The first annual National Flower Shut-in Day is to be observed Saturday by the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association, of which Franklin D. Crosby of Academy St. is a member. The aim of the association is that no shut-in shall be without a complimentary bouquet and Mr. Crosby requests that any church or organization knowing of any such worthy person call him at Danielson 137 this evening up to 9.30 o’clock or on Friday before noon. This offer applies to the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn. The flowers have been donated by the association and by the large growers and are distributed by the local florists. This is not in any way a commercial project” (WCT, June 8, 1913).

How many of you remember when Grant’s was located on Main Street in Danielson? While browsing through June 1975 Windham County Transcripts I came across the following interesting ad: “The Grant City of Danielson Welcomes The Royal Wild West Circus June 19 at the Killingly High School Field. Performance at 4 and 8 P.M. Sponsored by the Danielson F. O. P. and The Heart Fund.” (WCT June 12, 1975, p. 1). I would love to hear from anyone who actually attended one of the performances. I found Grant’s hours interesting, especially Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Years ago I remember some of the men at the Killingly Historical Center discussing the fact that Saturday night was a big shopping night for the local families. Downtown Danielson was bustling! An entry in Natalie Coolidge’s Killingly Business Encyclopedia stated that W. T. Grant’s opened a store in Danielson in 1926 in the Exchange Block which once stood across from present-day Danielson Surplus Sales.

Did you celebrate Flag Day this past week on June 14? A caption to a photo in the above Transcript captured a bit of Flag Day 1975. “Flag Day ceremonies were held Sunday at Davis Park in Danielson. Among the participants are Nicholas Katsapis, post commander, Merrill C. Smith Post 2650, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who received a state of Connecticut flag which was flown over the Capitol April 29 from State Representative James O’Connor; State Senator Audrey Beck, (was) keynote speaker. Danielson Elks Exalted Ruler John E Burke Jr. presented a U.S. flag to Marilyn Elfgrén of the Foster-Killingly Fife and Drum Corps. The group (under the direction of Alton P. Aldrich) has been part of the Flag Day ceremonies for the past three years. Other groups participating in the observance were the color guard of the Leo J. L’Homme Post 21, American Legion of Danielson, and local Boy Scouts.” Rev. Frank C. Perkins of the Union Baptist Church in East Killingly gave the Invocation and Benediction (WCT June 12, 1975, article and caption). Flag Day dates back to 1916 when President Woodrow Wilson issued a proclamation establishing June 14 as Flag Day. (en. Wikipedia). Do you remember Gertrude Pradel? Perhaps some of you even had her as a teacher. In 1975, “the Eastern Connecticut Schoolmen, meeting in Norwich Saturday night to observe their 50th anniversary as the only remaining all-male educators group in Connecticut, honored veteran Killingly High School teacher Miss Gertrude Pradel as Schoolman-of-the-Year. It was the third time in the ECSM’s history that their annual award has been made to a woman educator. Main speaker at the dinner meeting was Dr. Sidney P. Marland, Jr., a Killingly native and former U. S. Commissioner of Education, currently president of the College Entrance Examination Board based in New York City and a resident of Hampton. Dr. Marland related stories of the great contribution of Connecticut Educators to America’s progress, including Henry Barnard and especially William Torrey Harris of Killingly, both former U.S. commissioners of education who ‘fathered’ and ‘laid the ground work for free public education in our state.’ Preliminary speaker was Mr. Alton P. Aldrich, retired-director of the Harvard H. Ellis Technical School, who spoke briefly ‘in retrospect’ on Education from the Stone Age to the Aero-Space Age..” (WCT, June 12, 1975, p.1).

June is the month for graduations, and the Transcript of the following week reported on the Killingly High School graduation, which had taken place on June 12, 1975. That class was the 100th graduating class from Killingly High School (which was originally housed in the old Grammar School building on High Street). Carl Harrington and Mark D. Robinson were co-valedictorians; Susan M. Chabot, the salutatorian. The prayer was given by Reverend Ivanhoe McCollum, pastor emeritus of the Danielson Baptist Church. The Principal in 1975 was Richard Smith; Superintendent of Schools was Anthony Muscente. (WCT June 19, 1975, p.1). For a photo of the original high school see page 21 of “Images of America Killingly” by Natalie L. Coolidge and Robert A. Spencer.

Perhaps you dreamed of travelling to exotic places even when you were in high school. One lucky young lady saw her dreams come true that year. “Miss Joanne Correia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Correia of Main St., Dayville, has been notified by American Field Service International Scholarships that she will be living in Istanbul, Turkey, this summer with Mr. and Mrs. Halil Anli and their four children. Joanne, 16, will be a senior at Killingly High School in September. She was chosen for the AFS ‘Americans Abroad’ summer program by the local chapter.” (WCT June 12, 1975, p.1).

Fatherhood — often underappreciated

Who originally penned the words is not clear, but this oft-quoted truth is clear and thought-provoking: “Dads are like a steady but less sentimentalized institution — the sun in our familial sky that warms and gives life but isn’t much thought about unless he goes missing.” As a son, a father, and a long-time pastor, that statement resonates with me. Fatherhood is often unappreciated.

When I consider my own father, I would have to agree with two other public figures who captured the beauty of fatherhood in just a few words:

“My father gave me the greatest gift anyone could give another person, he believed in me.” —Jim Valvano, college basketball coach and broadcaster.

“My father didn’t tell me how to live. He lived and let me watch him do it.” —Clarence Budington Kelland, American author of sixty novels.

It is impossible to measure, or put a value on, the steady, loving father. They give stability and protection to millions, while flashier, noisier men grab all the attention. Many of us could not share a quote or point to a magnanimous feat of our father, but we can remember the safety and sanity his covering provided. Unfortunately, we often don’t express or show appreciation for that sunshine, until our father is old or gone.

Sometimes fathers are under-appreciated just as God is underappreciated, because it falls their lot to provide us with discipline. Here is how Scripture

BISHOP JOHN

put it:

In this all-out match against sin, others have suffered far worse than you, to say nothing of what Jesus went through—all that bloodshed! So don’t feel sorry for yourselves. Or have you forgotten how good parents treat children, and that God regards you as his children?

My dear child, don’t shrug off God’s discipline, but don’t be crushed by it either. It’s the child he loves that he disciplines; the child he embraces, he also corrects. God is educating you; that’s why you must never drop out. He’s treating you as dear children. This trouble you’re in isn’t punishment; it’s training, the normal experience of children. Only irresponsible parents leave children to fend for themselves. Would you prefer an irresponsible God? We respect our own parents for training and not spoiling us, so why not embrace God’s training so we can truly live? While we were children, our parents did what seemed best to them. But God is doing what is best for us, training us to live God’s holy best. At the time, discipline isn’t much fun. It always feels like it’s going against the grain. Later, of course, it pays off big-time, for it’s the well-trained who find themselves mature in their relationship with God. (Hebrews 12:4-11 MSG)

What if we celebrated the everyday, ordinary fathers who believe in their children and live honest, steady lives? What if we rose above the rhetoric of the few who have had bad experiences with fathers, and verbalized how much we love those fathers who did their best? What if we honored our fathers, knowing that they are human and imperfect? Wouldn’t that be much like stopping to appreciate that old, faithful orb in the sky that makes the world tick?

If you are a father who is feeling unappreciated, I hope you can see past the verbiage of our declining moral climate and realize your enormous value. I would agree with Mike Myers, Canadian-American actor, comedian, director, producer and screenwriter, who said, “Anyone who tells you fatherhood is the greatest thing that can happen to you, they are understating it.”

Bishop John W. Hanson oversees Acts II Ministries in Thompson, where fatherhood is celebrated. For more information, please visit www.ActsII.org.

be trying times but there is a brighter future on the horizon. The famous Dylan Thomas poem, “Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night,” inspired me to think about how although there were times over the past year where giving up seemed easiest, our generation kept fighting. Fighting for things we cared about and working hard despite the uncertain times. I took many of these ideas to help me write my poem and come up with a tone.

WA: What is the title of your commencement poem?

EH: I titled my poem “New Dawn” because with each new generation there comes new ideas, new technology, and new efforts to make the world better. As our world is given to our generation, we will change it in small and large ways. Dawns are the starts of new days full of limitless possibilities. Especially with the Covid nightmare simmering down we are on the cusp of a new type of dawn. A new beginning other generations haven’t really seen.

WA: Can you give us a preview of its theme, content, or message?

EH: The main theme of my poem is really loss and how the graduates and people our age have dealt with the losses of the last year, and more importantly how we changed and grew because of them. I want people to walk away thinking about how Covid has changed them and how despite everything we lost we were resilient and pushed on. Our generation survived a pandemic and the turmoil that came with it, and throughout we worked, protested, and adapted.

WA: What do you hope to accomplish as Poet Laureate next year?

EH: As Poet Laureate my job is to spread poetry throughout the school and local community. I understand that poetry isn’t most people’s thing. It’s very metaphorical and the language can even be confusing. But, I hope to start encouraging poetry through spreading more poetry through The Academy—small posters with inspirational or humorous poetry that people might take the time to stop and read. I’ve even been toying with the idea of a club or website where people could share poetry or short stories they’ve written to get compliments or advice.

In the Studio

CYNTHIA SAARI

"In the Studio" is a newer feature for the Villager Newspapers. The Quiet Corner is home to many artists and makers, some of whom have national or international recognition for their work in fine art, handcraft, performing art, art education, and graphic art. In this semi-weekly series, we'll talk with our artist neighbors and learn about their careers, current projects, and connections to our towns. We'll also learn some "artspeak" terms in our conversations, demystifying some of those "artist words".

Tucked into Lee Street in downtown Putnam, is Red Spider Tattoo. Today we're speaking with owner Bob Lindell and associate Thom Soroka. Collectively, they have 45 years of experience as professional tattoo artists. Both of them create a range of drawings, which are transformed into permanent body art.

Hi guys—thanks for taking the time to talk with me. I just asked a young woman in your waiting area to say something about Red Spider and she enthusiastically told me that she's back for her 4th tattoo here. That's a nice endorsement!

Bob, I understand that technology has greatly changed tattooing. Is it a pretty sophisticated process now?

The process has remained the same—ink/pigment pushed into the skin. Technology has been applied to how that pushing is done. With more popularity comes innovation (some good, and some unnecessary in my opinion).

What kind of style changes have you seen over time?

Thom: I wouldn't necessarily say there have been style changes so much as trends. I can say that there's definitely been constant growth in the quality of tattoos.

Bob: There are trends and fashions. For example, "tribal" style arm bands were once in vogue, but are now considered dated. Meaning in tattoo choice is personal, but not a requirement.

You've called tattoo a form of folk art, Bob. Can you elaborate on that?

I believe it was more from the turn of the last century to the post-WWII period that we could call it that. Previously, tattooing was secretive and limited to fewer people. It had a real mojo to it that is now mostly gone.

What kind of research or planning do you do before starting a commission, Thom?

A lot. The first step though is talking with the client and really trying to understand his or her vision and what they're expecting, then I go from there.

I'd like to hear a little bit about your career paths. Have you both always drawn or painted?

Bob: I'm using my B.A. in English as you can tell...seriously, I've always just wanted to do something creative. I played drums for 15 years before giving that up for tattooing starting in 1994. I began tattooing professionally in 1997 and it is my only job.

Thom: I've been a part of the tattoo industry for about 20 years now and have been drawing and creating as far back as I can remember.

Where does your work intersect with the Quiet Corner?

Bob: Well, I live here in Putnam and have lived in Connecticut since coming from Chicago in 1999; I've marked people from all over the world. We try to be a positive business in the area and I think we achieve that for the most part at Red Spider Tattoo.

Thom: I grew up here and live here so I'm just trying to contribute.

This leads me to my next question for you both. In a few words, what do you strive for?

Bob: Giving people what they want if I'm comfortable doing that, and doing it well.

Thom: Progression.

I'm sure that some of our readers will have more questions for you. How can you be contacted?

Bob: The shop phone number is 860.933.2974; leave a message. We work by appointment only now and try to get back to people in a timely manner. We're on social media. That's me in the photo.

Thom: Yes, call the shop. I'm also on Facebook, Instagram @Soroka.art, and e-mail tsoroka860@gmail.com. You can see images like the one here on line.

Word of the day:

Tattoo: a mark, figure, design, or word intentionally fixed or placed on the skin: a: one that is indelible and created by insertion of pigment under the skin (Merriam-Webster Dictionary)

Early tattoos marked criminals in China; Egyptian mummy women bore medicinal tattoos, and young Samoan chiefs were "tataued" to signify leadership roles. In ancient Greece and Rome, outcasts, soldiers, and arms makers bore tattoos. Moving into the 20th Century, sailors and entertainers illustrated their stories and professions through tattoos. Celebrities and musicians in America have inspired tattoos since the 1940's; cosmetic and medical tattoos are used to minimize marks of trauma and enhance facial features. Styles of tattoos range from "classic Americana", to cartoonish "new school" work, Japanese, black & gray, stick and poke, realism, blackwork, minimalist, and blended styles. One of the most significant trends in contemporary tattoo work is the planning out of large pieces harkening to the the sleeves and bodysuits of counterculture tattoos of the 1970's. Personal meaning may be expressed in memorial imagery such as portraits and birth/death dates. What was once clandestine has become mainstream, organic pigments have replaced minerals, and while the electric needle has largely replaced more primitive materials for tattooing tools, pushing ink into the skin has endured for centuries. (ref. authoritytattoo.com)

Bonus fun fact: "Otzi the Iceman", Europe's oldest human mummy bearing 61 tattoos made from soot or ash, was preserved in ice for 5300 years.

Woodstock Academy announces Class Night scholarships and awards

WOODSTOCK—Members of the class of 2021, families, faculty, and the greater Woodstock Academy community gathered in the Loos Center for the Arts on Thursday, June 10, for the annual Class Night and Baccalaureate program.

Throughout the evening, soon-to-be graduates were honored with over 200 awards and scholarships. Generous donors and community partners contributed to the more than $170,000 awarded to Woodstock Academy students during the event.

By a vote of the senior class, newly announced director of equity and inclusion, Denzel Washington, was chosen as the inspirational speaker for the Baccalaureate portion of the evening.

Senior class president, Clayton Singleton of Eastford, welcomed the families, guests, and classmates, and presented the senior class gift.

95 seniors received the Presidential Award for Academic Excellence awarded to students with a grade point average of 3.5 or higher.

The Woodstock Academy's most prestigious awards, the Yale Honor Cup and the Donald and Hope Williams Scholarships, will be presented during Saturday's commencement exercises.

ACT students get history lesson from Civil War soldier

OUT OF THE BOX LEARNING

WILLIMANTIC — On June 7, students at The ACT School for the Performing Arts in Willimantic assembled in their theater for the first time since the pandemic. The mood was celebratory. They were happy to be together as they waited for Mr. Kevin Johnson from The Connecticut State Library to appear in the character of Private William Webb, a Civil War soldier from the CT 29th Colored Regiment.

Students were introduced to the 29th regiment a few weeks earlier through the preparation materials provided by Windham/Willimantic NAACP which arranged the program and performance through their curriculum and education committee. During the preparation lessons students were asked to dive into the concept of freedom, the most iconic of American ideals, in the context of enslaved Africans and free Blacks who did not yet enjoy citizenship or full freedom in the 1860's. Students explored first amendment rights through case studies from the 1830's to the Civil War, including Prudence Crandall, where abolitionists argued for equal education, free speech and the right to petition, while the higher courts argued that "those of African descent were not nor ever would be citizens" (Dredd Scott, 1857).

When Kevin Johnson crept onto the stage in the character of William Webb, singing a traditional spiritual, "Freedom," the audience was immediately hooked. More than a biographical sketch, William Webb brought the students back to 1864 when he enlisted in the CT 29th Colored Regiment. He'd had his troubles as a young Black man a few years before when he committed a minor crime by stealing a boat with a friend. He was sent to prison and the conditions were so terrible, he escaped only to be sent to the Old Weathersfield Prison for a longer sentence. When Webb was finally released, he would have found it difficult to find employment. Some things never change. The CT 29th Colored Regiment provided an opportunity to turn a new leaf, become a man and fight for freedom.

Freedom was a loaded word for a young Black man, even in the North, where people of African and Native American descent were patronized as if they were children. They certainly were not shown respect or treated as citizens. William Webb conveyed the immense respect that he and the other soldiers had for one of the Black officers who stood over 6 feet tall and held command over the troops. He was the target of their aspirations "He was a man – a man that looked like me".

William Webb described the speech Fredrick Douglas gave to the 29th Regiment before they shipped out, a pep talk that instilled pride and determination as they reflected on the solemnity of their role as Black men who were fighting for the freedom of their enslaved brothers and sisters as well as a better life for themselves.

But the glitter of hope and freedom were soon lost as the 29th regiment engaged in battles and William Webb saw his friends and comrades fall around him. Most notable was the battle of the Crater at Petersburg. The 29th fought valiantly and dug the deep trenches to plant explosives. But the casualties were massive. Private Webb put a human face on the fog of war as he appeared clearly shaken by the experience. It was not lost on his young audience who absorbed the heaviness of the moment. And then he brought us all back to reality with levity as he described the hard tack biscuits which were part of his daily rations and later getting married. By the time William Webb sauntered off stage singing his old "Freedom" song, the performing arts students were already saluting him with a standing ovation.

But that was not the end of the lessons. When Mr. Johnson returned to the stage to take questions, the students rose to the occasion and showed that the lessons of the past had not been lost in the context of the present. They asked intelligent questions about the scholarship and research behind the performance, and provocative questions about racial justice. Perhaps the best lesson of the day was that of being fully human. When asked if the murder of George Floyd and current racial tensions made him angry, Mr. Johnson replied that believed that it was important to talk about race, but it was most important to put a human face on it and make positive connections through kindness. Indeed. Anger and hatred are the crumbs that sustain fear. Mr. Johnson and Private Webb fed our souls and gave us much to chew on as we reflected on the lessons of the past in the context of the present.

ACT Performing Arts Magnet High School recruiting students for 2021-2022

WILLIMANTIC — EASTCONN's Arts at the Capitol Theater (ACT) magnet high school is currently accepting academically motivated, grade 9-12 students seeking intensive study in the performing arts.

Housed in Willimantic's historic Capitol Theater, ACT enrolls students from 46 towns in its NEASC-accredited, interdisciplinary and arts-infused academic program. The school enrolls up to 150 students, making ACT an intimate, highly focused artistic learning environment.

ACT students select a major focus area from among five arts disciplines that include acting/vocal performance, audio/video production, creative writing, dance and theater production (set design, lighting design and costuming).

Students have daily creative experiences in ACT's state-of-the-art facility that features a fully equipped theater, a scene shop, audio/video editing suites, dance studios and a costume shop.

Partnerships with Eastern Connecticut State University (ECSU) and Quinebaug Valley Community College (QVCC) allow qualified ACT upperclassmen to enroll in college classes and earn free college credits through the state university system, while still attending ACT.

Students in all grade levels have the opportunity to participate in numerous professional-quality performances and showcase their artistic talents in competitions throughout the year.

In recent years, many ACT students have been recognized for their participation and excellence in Scholastic's Art & Writing Awards contest, UCONN's Connecticut Writing Project, DMV-Travelers' Teen Safe Driving Video Contest, the Quiet Corner Film Festival, the national Future of Technology Essay Competition and other state and nation-wide contests and competitions.

To enroll, students can visit www.eastconn.org/act for an application. There is currently no deadline to apply for the fall 2021 semester.

EASTCONN, which administers ACT, is a public, non-profit Regional Educational Service Center that has been serving the education needs of northeastern Connecticut's schools and communities since 1980. Learn more at www.eastconn.org.

Lawmakers vote no on highway use fees

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

HARTFORD – State lawmakers representing Northeastern Connecticut voted against a proposed highway use fee that opponents argue would increase the costs of goods and services in the state.

Republican State Representatives Anne Dauphinais and Rick Hayes voted against H.B. 6684, An Act Concerning a Highway Use Free. The bill passed on June 9 in a largely party line vote of 88 to 59. While all Republicans present voted against the bill several Democrats joined in opposing the measure including another local lawmaker, Democratic State Representative Pat Boyd, but not enough to kill the bill on the final day of the 2021 regular legislative session.

The bill has been touted as a way to add to the state’s Special Transportation Fund, which Republicans argued should be restored using existing monies. During debates on the bill Republican lawmakers in the House even sought to transfer $320 million in motor vehicle-related sales tax revenue to the STF which also failed much to the dismay of Rep. Dauphinais.

“One amendment aimed to use the tax dollars Connecticut residents are already paying to make necessary road repairs. We realize we have roads that absolutely need to be repaired, but by rejecting our amendment, Democrats once again are telling taxpayers that they need to pay more in order for these repairs to be made. This is a bad bill that keeps increasing taxes on the residents of this state and there is no way I could support the bill as written,” Dauphinais said in a statement. “This is just another example of legislation that was passed by Democrats who rejected every sensible, Republican amendment without compromise.”

Her fellow Republican lawmaker Rep. Hayes took aim a Governor Ned Lamont whose seeks to use the STF to fund multiple transportation projects. However, Rep. Hayes sees the new use fee as a way to bolster the account through new taxation in contrary to the governor’s previous vows.

“In one breath, the governor says no new taxes, but what was just voted on here tonight tells another story. We fought this hard for six hours but as expected, the majority Democrats have their way and any amendments that we tried to put into this bill to attempt to make it better failed. I hope people across the state are paying attention to what is going on in this building,” said Hayes in a statement. “The trucking companies will have to recover their lost money and you better believe that burden will be on the consumer.”

Republicans also made an attempt during debate to exempt retail, wholesale food delivery and agricultural commodity transportation vehicles from the bill’s impact which also failed to earn enough support from lawmakers across the aisle.

Lori Hamilton named Day Kimball Employee of the Year

PUTNAM — Lori Hamilton, clinical coordinator in the medical/surgical department at Day Kimball Hospital, has been named employee of the year for 2020 by Day Kimball Healthcare (DKH).

Hamilton’s selection was announced at DKH’s staff appreciation barbecue held at Day Kimball Hospital on Thursday, May 27, where Kyle Kramer, chief executive officer of Day Kimball Healthcare, and Janice Thurlow, chairman of the Day Kimball Healthcare Board of Directors, presented her with the award.

“Lori is an exceptional employee and we are very appreciative of the positive impact she has had on patients’ lives during her tenure with DKH,” said Kramer. “We commend her for being a positive example within the organization and we are so glad we could honor her with this award.”

Hamilton, who began her healthcare career path during high school as a certified nursing assistant, has been a nurse for 24 years. Prior to joining Day Kimball in February 2000, Hamilton worked as an emergency medical technician and as a nurse in intensive care, emergency and acute rehab settings. In her role as clinical coordinator for the medical/surgical department, Hamilton is responsible for supporting the unit’s nursing staff, providing staff education, and assisting with direct patient care.

“We are so proud to see Lori receive this recognition,” said her supervisor, Deb Blackmer, clinical manager in the medical/surgical department at Day Kimball Hospital. “Her dedication of over 20 years at Day Kimball providing excellent patient care and mentoring staff and leadership on the medical/surgical unit make her well deserving of this achievement.”

In response to being named Employee of the Year, Hamilton said, “I am so honored for receiving this award. I find myself thankful and grateful for working with such an amazing team. It was great to see everyone at DKH rise to the challenges that 2020 presented.”

Hamilton earned an associate degree in nursing from Quinsigamond Community College, Worcester, Mass. in 1996 and received a Bachelor of Science degree in education and psychology from Worcester State College in 1988. She was a recipient of the eastern Connecticut’s Nightingale Award for Excellence in Nursing in 2010, a statewide nursing recognition program that honors nurses for their exceptional contributions to the profession. Hamilton currently resides in Oxford, Mass.

Day Kimball Healthcare’s 2020 employees of the month included: William Heckendorf, registered nurse and nursing supervisor; Caitlin Mather, medical social worker; Dennis Gaffney, public safety lead officer; Amanda Chambers, speech language pathologist; Christine Flynn, medical assistant; Amy Tucciarone, administrative assistant; Sylwester Czado, physical therapy; Katherine Ratelle, internal medicine referral coordinator; Michael Hanrahan, public safety officer; April Chitwood, physical therapist and clinical supervisor; Jennifer Bray, certified nursing assistant.

Day Kimball Healthcare’s employee of the month program is sponsored by Foxwoods Resort Casino in Mashantucket, Connecticut. “The Mashantucket (Western) Pequot Tribal Nation and Foxwoods Resort Casino has been focused on taking care of the people that serve within our community, and we appreciate everything Day Kimball Healthcare does,” said Foxwood’s Director of Sponsorships and Partnerships Roy Colebut-Ingram. “Supporting meaning-

United Services receives Gold Seal of Approval, Certification for Behavioral Health Home

DAYVILLE – United Services, Inc., northeastern Connecticut’s behavioral health center, has once again earned The Joint Commission’s Gold Seal of Approval for Behavioral Health Care Accreditation and this year adds Joint Commission Certification for its Behavioral Health Home program.

United Services underwent a rigorous, unannounced survey from Jan. 25-29. During the review, The Joint Commission evaluated United Services’ compliance with behavioral health care standards related to several areas, including care, treatment, and services; environment of care; leadership; and screening procedures for the early detection of imminent harm. Reviewers also conducted interviews with staff and clients.

The Joint Commission’s standards are developed in consultation with health care experts and providers, measurement experts and patients. They are informed by scientific literature and expert consensus to help health care organizations measure, assess and improve performance. The surveyors also conducted onsite observations and interviews.

“We commend United Services for its continuous quality improvement efforts in patient safety and quality of care,” says Mark Pelletier, RN, MS, chief operating officer, Accreditation and Certification Operations, and chief nursing executive, The Joint Commission.

United Services is a non-profit, community-based outpatient behavioral health center with more than 55 years’ experience serving northeastern Connecticut. The agency is the Local Mental Health Authority for 21 towns and operates more than 30 programs under its one administration, including outpatient mental health and addiction services, parenting and family programs, youth programs, and community education and prevention programs.

United Services has proudly delivered one of Connecticut’s most innovative care models – the Behavioral Health Home (BHH) – since its outset in 2014. This program was launched to improve the health outcomes of individuals with serious mental illness.

model focused on the integration of primary care, mental health services, and social services and supports for adults and children diagnosed with mental illness. A multidisciplinary team, including Nurse Care Managers and Peer Support, deliver person-centered services designed to support a person in coordinating care and services while reaching their health and wellness goals. United Services served more than 500 adults and children in its BHH program last year.

“United Services is proud to receive the Joint Commission’s Gold Seal of Approval for our agency and Certification for our Behavioral Health Home,” said Diane L. Manning, President/CEO of United Services.

“This accomplishment recognizes our staff for the hard work they do every day to provide the highest quality behavioral healthcare and wellness services to the residents of northeastern Connecticut.”

United Services’ accreditation is valid for three years and the agency’s next survey will be in 2024.

Loos & Co. donates $500 to St. Vincent de Paul Place

POMFRET — Loos & Company employees are paying it forward to their community by putting their coronavirus vaccination to further good use.

This week, Loos & Company, in Pomfret, proudly presented a $500 check to support the mission of the St. Vincent de Paul Place Food Pantry in Norwich.

This is the fourth donation in three weeks from Loos & Co. to local charities.

The donations are powered by Loos & Co. employees choosing to receive a coronavirus vaccination. Once an employee receives their vaccine, a $50 contribution is made to the general donation fund.

“We wanted to create an incentive program to help out those most in need in the community,” Central Wire Industries Rope and Assemblies Division President Tom Dodds. “We asked our employees to recommend local charities to support. The St. Vincent de Paul Place was at the top of that list for its great work.”

Donations were also given to the Pomfret Community/Senior Center, the Danielson Veterans Coffeehouse and the Putnam Daily Bread Food Pantry.

St. Vincent de Paul Place (SVdPP) was founded in 1979 to meet the basic needs of the poor and homeless in Norwich and the surrounding region. Staff and volunteers connect clients to food, hygiene supplies, social services and more.

“COVID-19 hit us hard,” said SVdPP Grant Writer and Media Coordinator Tim Hathaway. “We had less opportunities to gather together and learn more about our clients’ needs. Donations like these helps to bridge that gap.”

Loos Director of Corporate Marketing Robert Davis, Loos Director of Manufacturing Jason Kunnick and Dodds presented Hathaway with a check on Thursday.

POMFRET — In less than three weeks, Loos & Company has generously donated to three eastern Connecticut organizations from its employee vaccination donation fund.

This week, Loos & Company proudly presented a $500 check to support the mission of the Daily Bread Food Pantry. The food pantry is organized through the Interfaith Human Services of Putnam group.

This is the third donation in as many weeks from Loos & Co. to local charities.

The donations are powered by Loos & Co. employees choosing to receive a coronavirus vaccination. Once an employee receives their vaccine, a $50 contribution is made to the general donation fund.

Loos Director of Corporate Marketing Robert Davis said employees were asked to provide suggestions as to where the funds should be donated.

Donations were also given to the Pomfret Community/Senior Center and the Danielson Veterans Coffeehouse.

“We’re working hard to be caring and compassionate members of the community,” said Loos Director of Manufacturing Jason Kumnick.

IHSP is an all-volunteer non-profit charity that oversees the food pantry, the NU2U Clothing Closet, and the Diaper Bank of Northeastern Connecticut. It also provides fuel/heating assistance, rental assistance and homelessness support.

Kumnick and Davis presented IHSP board president Karen Osbrey with a check Monday.

“Donations like these mean a lot to us,” Osbrey said. “Because of our resources, we have great spending power. A $500 donation can buy us about $1,500 in food.”

Osbrey said the food pantry serves 300 families in the Pomfret, Putnam, Woodstock and Eastford area.

First Apostolic Church collects food for local pantries

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

DANIELSON – The First Apostolic Church in Danielson held a food drive on Sunday, June 12 to benefit two local pantries as part of the church’s Youth on Missions Day.

The event was part of a day-long series of activities where local youth from the church and beyond came together to make a difference in their community. Pastor Jamie Jarvis said the event is much larger than just their single church family.

“There are churches from all around the state from the United Pentecostal Church that came here. We’re part of that church which is of the same organization. We coordinated different events throughout the town. We had the food drive set up to accommodate supporting Friends of Assisi and Access,” Jarvis said. “We had involvement from all around. It’s not as much as we would have liked but every little bit helps, and we appreciate the support we did get.”

The church collected several bags and boxes of nonperishable food items that will help feed members of the community who depend heavily on the local food banks to get by. Jarvis said the hope is that this will inspire kids to continue to be involved in making a positive impact on their community.

“We’re looking to serve the community and hope to let people know that we’re still here. The church is open and we’re teaching the younger generation to give back,” Jarvis said.

The Youth on Missions Day also included cleaning up the Killingly Library parking lot, painting wood fences as Owen Bell Park, restoring a wood kiosk at Cat Hollow Park and passing outdoor hangers throughout several neighborhoods in town.

Pomfret School teens named finalists in national coding competition

POMFRET — Students from Pomfret School in Pomfret are one of five finalists in the TI Codes Contest, a nationwide coding competition hosted by Texas Instruments. The team members are Anna Davis, Delia Bousquet, Evan Gonzalez, Lucas Canavan, and Simiao Li. The adult sponsor is Pomfret School’s Head of Science Department, Joshua Lake.

Texas Instruments challenged students across the country to design a product or process related to related to health, wellness or medicine that can improve lives in response to the global Covid-19 pandemic and use their coding skills to create a model bringing that product or process to life. After several rounds of competition, the teams have been narrowed down to the final five. Team Pomfret School designed a Germ Eliminating Rinsing Machine (GERM). GERM automates the process of cleaning circular and rectangular tables. Our rinse cycle is about three minutes long. It has telescoping arms that change length with table size. The arms stay retracted when GERM isn’t operating for dining space and portability. GERM sprays a cleaning solution using the TI water pump around the table and spreads it out with a microfiber cloth. Germ doubles as a centerpiece with flowers as well as an education tool. It features information about the different components and how they operate. You can see a video of how it works: <https://youtu.be/CuPnF1vnf2s>. From June 10-17, the public can vote on their favorite project video to determine the grand prize winner at TICodesContest.com. Each member of the winning team receives a TI graphing calculator, the TI-Innovator Hub and TI’s calculator-controlled robotic vehicle, the TI-Innovator Rover. The teacher or adult that sponsors the winning team also wins a $250 gift card to help cover the cost of future class activities.

Pomfret’s Ron Pariseau records June 10 Eclipse

BY CAROL DAVIDGE
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

POMFRET — Ron Pariseau set up his camera to photograph the eclipse of the sun in Pomfret at 4:30 a.m. on June 10. The eclipse started at 4:47 a.m. below the horizon, and became visible locally from 5:34 until 6:42 a.m. During that time, Pariseau took 143 pictures, using a Nikon D-5200 DSLR with special lens for photographing the sun without damaging his camera. “You can’t look into the camera during the eclipse. Looking at the sun, even through a special lens, is very dangerous to the eyes,” he explained. Pariseau’s interest in astronomy began as a youngster living in Dudley, Mass. In 1957, his uncle, Don Nicholson, took him to see Sputnik, the first satellite to orbit the earth (launched by the USSR). While serving two tours in the US Navy Seabees in Vietnam, Pariseau purchased his first Kodak Instamatic. He soon upgraded to a Minolta SR-15 DSLR1. He moved to Pomfret in 1993 where, in 2006, he began to photograph the region’s natural wonders. Pariseau and wife Linda have received many awards from The Last Green Valley for their pictures. “I love the country atmosphere and the American Revolutionary War history of this area. Not many people can say they live in a town where more than 60 Revolutionary War heroes are laid to rest,” he said. These include General Israel Putnam, hero of Bunker / Breed’s Hill and Rogers Rangers (“Don’t fire till you see the whites of their eyes,”) and Captain John McClelland, both of whom marched off to Lexington Green in 1776.

Maximize the harvest with proper care

Grow an abundant harvest with some timely garden care. Arm yourself with a few basic tools, a bit of time and regular visits to the garden throughout the growing season to keep plants healthy and more productive. You don’t need to invest in every garden tool on the market. A shovel, trowel, weeding tool, gloves and kneeling pad are the basics. If your budget is tight, ask gardening friends and family if they have extras to spare or lend. Now you are ready to get started. Weed control is an ongoing task. Working in a few minutes of weeding time as your schedule allows makes this a much less overwhelming task. Keep a bucket with your favorite weeding tool, gloves, and kneeling pad by the door. Anytime you have a few minutes between other activities pull a few weeds. If tools are handy, you spend less time looking for them and more time accomplishing the task. Consider keeping all your tools conveniently stored and ready for the garden in a mobile tool storage caddy (gardeners.com). It has room for short and long handled tools, a bucket for gathering weeds plus wheels and a handle for easy maneuvering.

Spread a layer of shredded leaves, evergreen needles or other organic matter over the soil surface surrounding your vegetable plants. This layer of organic matter helps conserve moisture so you will need to water less often. It also helps suppress weeds and improves the soil as it decomposes. As your seeds sprout and begin to grow, you will need to do a bit of thinning. Remove extra plants, leaving enough space for those remaining seedlings to reach full size. The seed packet recommends the proper spacing for the vegetables you planted. Good news, some seedlings like radishes, beets and spinach are edible so think of this as harvesting instead. Once you make your first harvest, leaving space in the garden, fill it with another planting. Succession, also called relay planting, allows you to grow several different vegetables in the same space. Just make sure the second planting has time to reach maturity and produce before the end of the season. Seed packets and plant tags contain information on the number of days from planting to harvest. Compare this to the number of days until the average first fall frost. Keep plants healthy with proper watering and fertilization. Water new plantings often enough to keep the top few inches of soil slightly moist. Wait until the top few inches of soil are crumbly and moist to deeply water established plants. Deep watering, moistening the top six inches of soil, encourages plants to develop a more drought resistant root system. Frequent shallow watering keeps roots near the soil surface where they dry out quickly. Insufficient water means fewer and smaller vegetables. Follow soil test recommendations for fertilizing your plants. If these are not available, consider using a fertilizer recommended for vegetable gardens. Apply it according to the label directions. Providing plants with space to grow and keeping them healthy means fewer insect and disease problems. That means a bigger harvest for you and your family to enjoy all season long.

Some words of advice for new graduates

Students around the region are flipping tassels this week, participating in a traditional rite of passage, generally symbolizing their transition to adulthood. With more and more people becoming vaccinated, ceremonies are looking a bit more traditional than they did last year.

Many seniors and their underclassman counterparts have faced big changes as they navigate the world amidst a global pandemic. This time in a teen's life is still quite pivotal.

Students will be bombarded with advice and speeches as these final weeks unfold. Our favorite bit of advice, however, is the following: 1. Don't smoke; 2. Drink plenty of water every day; and 3. Wear sunscreen (your 40-year-old selves will thank you). 4. Spend as much time as humanly possible outside; and 5. Watch the "Back to the Future" trilogy.

The most important thing you can do, however, is to find out who you are. From there the entire world opens up. Do not limit your lives to the same scene and same people you have always surrounded yourself with. This doesn't mean you need to forget people or places, it simply means that now is a great time to branch out. The more people you meet in different places, with different experiences will shed light on who you really are.

Always remember your roots. These are what has shaped you and prepared you for your next chapter. Remember how important your community has been to you, and remember to always give back.

Always practice kindness, even when it's hard. The world can aggravate and frustrate the most mellow of us. Anger is a normal human emotion, however it's what you do with it that really matters. If you have disagreements or you think the way you feel about a certain issue is correct, remember to not let your anger take you over. It never feels good, plus harboring too much anger and discontent ages us, plus it's really no fun. The more fun and kindness you have in your life, the happier you are. Try to find balance between your work and your leisure time. Spend time doing the things you love, and never forget what those things are, despite how busy your life may become.

As you go through life, you will make mistakes. None of us are perfect and mistakes can actually define who we become if we learn from them. The best formula for mistake making, is to own up to them, have some self-awareness, be gentle on yourself, learn, then move on. Simple.

Remember to follow your own gut, always, no matter what. This is your life, and that means you need to make it what it is and what it will be.

Congratulations to the class of 2021!

Created chaos

To the Editor:

In 150 days in office today, President Biden and his administration have obviously and purposely created chaos in our country. Unfortunately, he recently stated that he's been in office for 15 months, which does indicate he's not really in charge or has a handle on the facts of reality. The gaffes come faster than Kamala's laughs, and our Commander in Chief frequently comments that he will "get in trouble" if he answers questions. I do not understand their motives, but have contemplated some theories...most of which are just plain power-hungry and evil. There truly is no other explanation. Watch "Hillary's America" by Dinesh D'Souza...you will get the point.

Why would we ignore our immigration laws and policies? How do we benefit from this new policy of an open southern border? How can they repeatedly say that the border is not open when over 180,000 immigrants came through in May alone? And these are only the documented ones. Imagine the ones that came through undetected? The administration spouts its humanitarian motivation, but this mantra rings pretty shallow considering the terrible risks that people from over 100 countries face when attempting this journey. Not to mention the risks to America's citizens with drug cartels recruiting, organizing and transporting these immigrants into our communities. They are making a fortune - to the tune of 25 million dollars per week!... in human trafficking and drug trafficking. Fentanyl seizures have increased over 200 percent...hitting our communities

Controversy over Native American sports team names is an elitist invention

To the Editor:

In 2004, the Annenburg Institute conducted a nationwide study on the opinions of rank and file Native Americans when it comes to high school, college, and professional Native American sports team names. The study found that 91 percent of average everyday working Native Americans have no problem with Native American sports teams' names.

A 2016 Washington Post poll of every tribe the Post could find nationwide got the same results. The Washington Post is a very liberal newspaper, and they did not really want to hear these particular results. But the facts were undeniable, and they had to print them. White elitists went apoplectic because they have sold their souls to the belief that these names were chosen because of racism. The fact that the overwhelming number of Native Americans disagree with them was intolerable to these white elitists. Since then, they have jumped through unbelievable intellectual hoops desperately trying to make believe these studies are not true.

Overwhelmingly, the opposition to these national polls of average everyday Native Americans has come from elitists. Elitists from academia and from journalism. These elitists don't just want these polls to be not true; they need them to be not true. Their ideology demands it. So they launched their own polls, rewording the questions in a desperate attempt to get a different result.

Two of their polls worded their questions as if the debate were about mascots, which shows what a shallow understanding elitists have about the issue. Mascots are silly uniforms dreamed up by students. The issue is about sports teams' names.

Another poll quoted tribal leaders, not average Native Americans. Elitists like to quote other elitists, don't you know. Then they tried another tactic. This time, they tried to poll only those who strongly identified as Native Americans, which is a completely arbitrary tact. Describe 'strongly' — it's different for every Native American. It depends on their personal history, their relationship with their family, and their relationship with their tribe. It also assumes that Native Americans are homogeneous. They are not. Each tribe has a slightly different culture, sometimes a vastly different culture, and each tribe is very proud of their particular culture and history. Many do not identify as Native American at all, but rather as Cheyenne, for example. The pollsters at the Washington Post were keenly aware of these cultural differences, and went way out of their way to poll people from every tribe in the country, and the results were that 90 percent were not bothered by Native American sports team names. Average everyday Native Americans are just as smart as you and I, and they don't need elitists (especially white ones) to tell them what to think.

I can just imagine what all these average Native Americans think about white elit-through blatant social media advertising and access. This is a tragedy...and created chaos. No doubt about it. I just don't understand why our elected leaders are leading us down this path. Interestingly, the whole "white supremacy" dialog is being propelled by the true white supremacists and global elitists.

Canceled pipelines, no more energy independence, disrespect of and mass exodus of law enforcement, the disturbing increase of crime across our country, the doubling of costs of oil, gas, food...this is created chaos. The new definition of "infrastructure." What the...?

I think our saving grace at this point in time is our collective voice to reject and denounce the un-scientific theories that are being shoved down our throats. Parents across the country are speaking out against our educational system indoctrinating our youth instead of educating them to succeed in life with skills to succeed. Instigating racism instead of nurturing our natural, God given love of one another.

The other blessing in these times is discernment. Those who seek to deny, distract, divide and destroy have become so arrogant, their transparency is glaring.

P.S.: Trump is not our President anymore. As we Trump voters (not a cult, not Kool-Aid drinking followers or any of the other names you continue to call us...in your words, "Get over it.")

Our love for dogs unites us

"I fall in love too easily. I fall in love too fast..." A song musician Frank Racette plays well. That's how I feel watching the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show. At first, I focus on the handlers in too tight St. John's knit suits or the evening attire on the judges, but in minutes, it is all dogs, dogs, dogs. I love to look at various breeds of dogs. As each one is led into the ring and introduced, I want to pet it. I want to own it. Dogs are among the better things in life. Love of dogs links us together.

This year, Westminster was held at the Lyndhurst estate instead of Madison Square Garden. The Web site indicates it will be back in New York City for 2022, but as long as it happens, that's all that matters. The winner this year, Wasabi, is a charming Pekingese, that beat out a whippet, a sheepdog and a Samoyed. When I was a child, I had a Samoyed, named Snow. He liked to look up at the sky and chase the birds as they flew.

Often he ran into cars instead of cars running over him. He lived to a ripe old age nonetheless.

As with the Kentucky Derby, where I always pick the wrong horse, I was wrong again about the winning dog. I saw star quality in the Golden Retriever, which didn't make it to the final pack. Perhaps they are seen as common by the judges, but I know they are wonderful pets. The judge, Patricia Trotter, a much revered 85-year-old, had complete discretion to pick the winner and she like Wasabi. I loved him too, of course, even though he looks like a wind-up dust mop.

I've not met many Pekingese, except for two that accompanied their owners to shop at the local Red & White grocery store when I was little. The women, widowed twin sisters always dressed in black, were driven to the general store in a chauffeured car. They carried their small dogs like living handbags. They were happy to extend their arms so I could pet the little creatures. They kissed the dogs' faces, which I thought odd.

Out of affection, my husband was nearly drawn into a dog scam. Someone told him to look at a certain site to find a pug for me. He clicked on it and then on to another. It indicated that the breeder had many puppies, that they were nearby and the price was reasonable. He began to suspect something was up. The texts were written in unusual grammatical style and the location of the kennel was moving from one nearby town to another. Of course, he cut off contact. No pug for me.

Wherever I go I meet dogs. At the dog parks in Putnam and Killingly, dogs frolic as their owners' beam. On the trails at Thompson Dam, there are so many dogs I stop and discuss almost every one. The Airline Trail is a fine place to walk dogs and the few let off-leash seem quickly controlled. Dogs provide a mutual source of conversation as dog owners share the harrowing stories of their rescue pets or qualities of their purebreds.

We may be divided about many things, but we are united about dogs. We love them, whether they are giant or tiny, furry or sleek, pedigreed or mixed. Dogs are like the best qualities of people. They see common bonds regardless of where they come from and they greet each other with a sniff and an invitation to fall in love.

Do you have the right amount of life insurance for your stage of life?

Your need for life insurance changes as your life changes. When you're young, you typically have less need for life insurance, but that changes as you take on more responsibility and your family grows. Then, as your responsibilities once again begin to diminish, your need for life insurance may decrease. Having the right amount of life insurance for each stage of life can save you money as well as provide peace of mind. Here's a look at how your life insurance needs may change throughout your lifetime.

Footloose and fancy-free

As a young adult, you become more independent and self-sufficient. You no longer depend on others for your financial well-being. But in most cases, your death would still not create a financial hardship for others. For most young singles, life insurance is not a priority.

Some would argue that you should buy life insurance now, while you're healthy and the rates are low. This may be a valid argument if you are at a high risk for developing a medical condition (such as diabetes) later in life. But you should also consider the earnings you could realize by investing the money now instead of spending it on insurance premiums.

If you have a mortgage or other loans that are jointly held with a cosigner, your death would leave the cosigner responsible for the entire debt. You might consider purchasing enough life insurance to cover these debts in the event of your death. Funeral expenses are also a concern for young singles, but it is typically not advisable to purchase a life insurance policy just for this purpose, unless paying for your funeral would burden your parents or whomever would be responsible for funeral expenses. Instead, consider investing the money you would have spent on life insurance premiums.

Your life insurance needs increase significantly if you are supporting a parent or grandparent, or if you have a child before marriage. In these situations, life insurance could provide continued support for your dependent(s) if you were to die.

Going to the chapel

Married couples without children typically still have little need for life insurance. If both spouses contribute equally to household finances and do not yet own a home, the death of one spouse will usually not be financially catastrophic for the other.

Once you buy a house, the situation begins to change. Even if both spouses have well-paying jobs, the burden of a mortgage may be more than the surviving spouse can afford on a single income. Credit card debt and other debts can contribute to the financial strain.

To make sure either spouse could carry on financially after the death of the other, both of you should probably purchase a modest amount of life insurance. At a minimum, it will provide peace of mind knowing that both you and your spouse are protected.

Again, your life insurance needs increase significantly if you are caring for an aging parent, or if you have children before marriage. Life insurance becomes extremely important in these situations, because these dependents must be provided for in the event of your death.

Your growing family

When you have young children, your life insurance needs reach a climax. In most situations, life insurance for both parents is appropriate.

Single-income families are completely dependent on the income of the breadwinner. If he or she dies without life insurance, the consequences could be disastrous. The death of the stay-at-home spouse would necessitate costly day-care and housekeeping expenses. Both spouses should carry enough life insurance to cover the lost income or the economic value of lost services that would result from their deaths.

Dual-income families need life insurance, too. If one spouse dies, it is unlikely that the surviving spouse will be able to keep up with the household expenses and pay for child care with the remaining income.

Moving up the ladder

For many people, career advancement means starting a new job with a new company. At some point, you might even decide to be your own boss and start your own business. It's important to review your life insurance coverage any time you leave an employer.

Keep in mind that when you leave your job, your employer-sponsored group life insurance coverage will usually end, so find out if you will be eligible for group coverage through your new employer, or look into purchasing life insurance coverage on your own. You may also have the option of converting your group coverage to an individual policy. This may cost significantly more, but may be wise if you have a pre-existing medical condition that may prevent you from buying life insurance coverage elsewhere.

Make sure that the amount of your coverage is up-to-date, as well. The policy you purchased right after you got married might not be adequate anymore, especially if you have kids, a mortgage, and college expenses to consider. Business owners may also have business debt to consider. If your business is not incorporated, your family could be responsible for those bills if you die.

Single again

If you and your spouse divorce, you'll have to decide what to do about your life insurance. Divorce raises both beneficiary issues and coverage issues. And if you have children, these issues become even more complex.

If you and your spouse have no children, it may be as simple as changing the beneficiary on your policy and adjusting your coverage to reflect your newly single status. However, if you have kids, you'll want to make sure that they, and not your former spouse, are provided for in the event of your death. This may involve purchasing a new policy if your spouse owns the existing policy, or simply changing the beneficiary from your spouse to your children. The custodial and noncustodial parent will need to work out the details of this complicated situation. If you can't come to terms, the court will make the decisions for you.

Your retirement years

Once you retire, and your priorities shift, your life insurance needs may change. If fewer people are depending on you financially, your mortgage and other debts have been repaid, and you have substantial financial assets, you may need less life insurance protection than before. But it's also possible that your need for life insurance will remain strong even after you retire. For example, the proceeds of a life insurance policy can be used to pay your final expenses or to replace any income lost to your spouse as a result of your death (e.g., from a pension or Social Security). Life insurance can be used to pay estate taxes or leave money to charity.

Don't go it alone – get help in determining what the right amount of insurance is for you, at the right time, and as part of an overall financial strategy.

Ensuring that loved ones are provided for is perhaps one of the biggest concerns many people have when it comes to their finances, and of course having an appropriate amount of life insurance is a big piece of meeting that goal. Back to summer antique shows

Last summer, the COVID-19 pandemic caused all three Brimfield antique shows to be canceled. Sadly, these cancellations were widespread and there were very few shows for antique collectors and dealers during the summer of 2020. Luckily, there will be many more opportunities available for antique enthusiasts this summer. I am pleased to report that the July 13-18 and Sept. 7-12 Brimfield shows are scheduled to run this summer.

Apart from Brimfield, there are plenty of other shows taking place throughout New England. Locally, Walker Homestead's Antiques & Primitive Goods Show takes place this weekend on Saturday, June 19th. It will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 19 Martin Rd., Brookfield. According to their Web site, 40 dealers will offer wares "on the grounds of our 1698 colonial saltbox." Also on June 19, The Dover Antiques Show & Vintage Market will take place at 282 Durham Rd., Dover, New Hampshire from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. On June 24, fields open at 9:00 AM for The Flying Pig Antiques Tailgate show at 867 Route 12 in Westmoreland, New Hampshire. If you're looking to travel even further now that the country is opening up again, on Sunday, June 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., the Wells Antiques Show & Sale "will be held under the tents and barn" at the Wells Reserve at Laudholm Field, 342

Laudholm Farm Road, Wells, Maine.

July looks to be a good month for antique shows as well. On July 10, the 61st Boothbay Region Antiques Show & Sale takes place on the Boothbay, ME Common from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. On July 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and July 25 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., the 40th Camden-Rockport Historical Society Antiques Show is scheduled at the Camden-Rockport High School in Camden, Maine. A little further south, the 52nd New London Garden Club Antiques Show & Sale will be held on July 31 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the

New London Historical Society Grounds, 179 Little Sunapee Rd. in London. And we can't forget about the return of the famed Brimfield Antiques show, beginning on July 13 at 6 a.m.

As the summer winds down, there are also shows scheduled for August. The 40th Annual Maine Antiques Festival runs Aug. 6 through the 8th. Friday's opening early bird admission of $25 gets you on the grounds from noon to 5 p.m., and allows readmission the rest of the weekend. On your way back from Maine, you can stop at The Americana Celebration

Antique Show, which will be held at the Douglas Everett Arena, 15 Loudon Rd. in Concord, New Hampshire. It will be held on Aug. 10 with early buyers admitted at 8 a.m. and general admission from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The 64th Annual New Hampshire Antiques Show will be held at the Doubletree by Hilton in Manchester, New Hampshire from Aug. 12 through the 14th. It will run from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. the first two days and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Aug. 14. Be sure to check on the status of shows you plan to attend before traveling, but it looks to be a nice summer for antiquing, and life in general, as our country continues to move forward.

Here at Central Mass Auctions, we are also returning to live events. I will be appraising items for the public at the John B. Gough House at 215 Main St. in Boylston. The event will be held on Aug. 7 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. We are also still running online auctions. Our sports and non-sports cards online auction ends on June 23. Check our Web site for other upcoming events: <https://centralmassauctions.com>.

POSITIVELY

MOORE

I love spontaneity more than the average person – whether it be a spontaneous vacation or party. This last weekend has been a weekend of spontaneous fun, celebration, laughter, eating, and story-sharing. More than a hundred people have poured in and around my home, patio, and family room over the last three days for what has felt like a non-stop celebration. My two sons, Toby and Travis, and my son-in-law, Jeff, all worked hard to take the mantle of master grill and made my special barbecue ribs better than I could have ever done. I've savored every conversation, hug, moment, and memory. By now, you might be wondering why it's been a non-stop party in my own home. Well, I will tell you why, but it is perhaps the scariest yet most courageous sentence I'll ever write to my readers.

I am dying.

I believe transparency is an important component in relationships. Whether it's between husband and wives, parents and children, teachers and parents and students. Anywhere a relationship exists, transparency is important. Transparency must always lead to vulnerability, and that is always a terrifying experience. In the beginning of the Bible, we read about Adam and Eve discovering their vulnerability in their nakedness, and they were ashamed and hid. I don't feel shame and I don't feel afraid to die but being transparent and vulnerable about this reality is hard.

"Vulnerability is not winning or losing. It's having the courage to show up when you can't control the outcome." — Brené Brown

Most of you know, I've been fighting Stage 4 Stomach

Cancer for years. There is no cure. I've been working with a brilliant young oncologist who is a world leader, Dr. Pashtoon Kasi at the Holden Comprehensive Cancer Center at the University of Iowa Hospitals. My treatment has been cutting edge, and has extended my life by at least nine months.

Unfortunately, every treatment works until it doesn't, and my chemo that was eating my cancer began eating healthy tissue and organs, and we had to stop. We tried another but it also failed. At the same time, I was being fed through a feeding tube and my body began rejecting the food. I have been removed from all treatment and placed on hospice care.

What does it mean? It means to some that I am off treatment and being kept comfortable until I die. But I am not a "go quietly in the night guy," I refuse to give up or give in;

If I am breathing, I am fighting. If a new option or treatment becomes available, I'll be the first in line. Fighting also means doing everything that I love – spontaneous parties into the night, being with the people I love, endless trays of food, laughing, and being present in every single waking moment.

You are now wondering how much time? I've been given estimates of six days up to a month. But a month is generous. My daughter bought me a bracelet that says in morse code, "Never Give Up!" I'll fight to be present; I will fight to be with the people I love until my last breath.

My daughter, who is a pastor, continues to remind me that this is a sacred and holy journey as I cling to the hope of the future. I do believe in God's promises. I believe in the God of resurrection, and though I will someday die, I also believe that I will be raised to new life.

I believe that someday I will join the great cloud of witnesses and experience an inextricable joy that I've never before known. I am at peace.

In the meantime, I will continue writing this column until I'm gone. You will know I'm gone when my daughter publishes my final column, which has already been written.

My relationship with you is precious to me. I'm grateful for your love and loyalty, and I cherish every note of encouragement. I'm not planning on checking out of here soon, but when I do, I will miss you. Cling to hope, dear friends.

Ronald “Ron” A. Hemingway, 75

Bradenton, FL – Ronald “Ron” A. Hemingway, 75, of Danube Circle formerly of Sturbridge, MA, and Dayville, died April 19, 2020, at home. He was the loving husband of Elizabeth (Tokarz) Hemingway. Born in Putnam, he was the son of the late Armand and Palma (Billings) Hemingway. He joined the United States Marines right after high school and served for six years, including two tours in Vietnam.

Mr. Hemingway worked in many sales positions over the years, the last being with McCord Corporation in 1970. He then owned and operated a liquor store, Ron's Spirit Shoppe, in Putnam, CT for twenty-eight years until his retirement. Ron married Elizabeth Tokarz in 1971, and the couple resided in Dayville, CT until 2015, when they purchased residences in Sturbridge, MA and Bradenton, FL.

He was a member, first of the Putnam, and later, the Danielson CT Lions Club. He was elected District 23C Governor for Lions year 1996-1997 and served the state as MD23 Council Chairperson the following year. As a resident of Chateau Village in Bradenton, FL, Ron served the association both as Treasurer, at the time of his death, and as President from 2015-2018. He enjoyed traveling, especially cruising, playing cards, hosting dinner parties, shopping, exploring restaurants around the city of Bradenton, listening to country music, and watching mystery movies and his favorite TV shows (NCIS, Seal Team).

Ron leaves behind his wife of forty-eight years, Betty, four brothers-in-law and two sisters-in-laws, Dennis and Sharon Tokarz and Joseph and Denise Tokarz of Dudley, MA, Robert Tokarz of Webster, MA, and Steven Tokarz of Putnam, CT, and several nieces and nephews and grand-nieces and nephews.

Relatives and friends are invited to visit with Ron's family from 9:00a.m. to 11:00a.m. with a Lions Club Memorial Service at 10:00a.m. on Friday, June 25, 2021, in the Gilman Funeral Home and Crematory, 104 Church St., Putnam, CT 06260, followed by a Mass of Christian Burial at 11:30 a.m. in St. James Church, 12 Franklin St., Danielson, CT 06239. Burial will follow in St. Joseph Cemetery, Dayville. Memorial donations in Ron's memory may be made to the Connecticut Lions Eye Research Foundation “CLERF” P.O. Box 848, Watertown, CT 06795. For memorial guestbook visit www.GilmanAndValade.com.

Shirley (Weaver) Breton passed away peacefully on October 23, 2020 at the age of 92. She was born on July 17, 1928 as one of six children in a wonderful family. A woman of great beauty she never let it go to her head and remained a humble and sweet person her whole life. A natural athlete in an era when athletic opportunities for women were limited, she still found a way to shine. In an era before TV and computers when people actually went out and did things all the time, roller skating was all the rage among young people. Shirley was the queen of roller skating. She won local championships and regional championships in MA and East Providence. She married and raised two sons. Shirley started her working career as a secretary and then spent the rest of her life working in local textile mills. In retirement she and her husband traveled the whole country time and time again. She is predeceased by her husband Reginald and her youngest son Richard. Shirley is survived by her son Gary and her brother Thomas Weaver. A Memorial Mass of Christian Burial for Shirley will be held at Our Lady of LaSalette Church on Route 6 in Brooklyn on Friday June 25, 2021 at 10 AM followed by a graveside service at St. Joseph Cemetery in Dayville. In lieu of flowers, please donate in Shirley's memory to your local catholic church. tillinghastfh.com

June is National Fresh Fruits and Vegetables Month

Fresh fruits and vegetables from the backyard garden are a summertime treat like none other. So what's the next best thing to a homegrown crop? Try “pick your own” at area farms and look for weekly Farmers Market events to ensure the freshest picks. How to choose fabulous fruits and vegetables at an outside market or grocery store? The following tips can help you pick perfect produce!

Beans, snap: Look for small seeds inside straight, fleshy pods. If you can see large seeds through the skin than the beans are probably too old. Avoid beans with dry-looking, rusty, wilted or damaged pods.

Broccoli, Brussels Sprouts, Cauliflower: Look for tightly compacted flower clusters on broccoli and cauliflower, and compact, uniform sprouts. Avoid wilted, yellow, or dirty heads, and avoid loose, open sprouts or those that are yellow or pale green.

Cabbage and head lettuce: Look for firm compact heads that are heavy for their size. On leaf lettuce, choose unwilted, compact, crisp-looking compact plants.

Carrots: Look for deep orange colored and smooth skinned roots. Avoid carrots with purple or green shoulders or pale in color, or ones with forked or crooked roots. Oversized roots usually mean they are woody. If tops are still attached on carrots, they should be fresh.

Celery: Choose large, firm stalks with uniform stalk and a white bottom. Avoid spindly, wilted stalks.

Chard: Look for fresh, dark green leaves with bright, tender stalks. Avoid wilted, poorly colored leaves.

Collards and kale: Check for tender, green, full-sized leaves with tender tips; avoid wilted, tough or overly large leaves.

Corn on the cob: Choose for well-filled cobs with plump, straight rows of kernels. Avoid large, wrinkled kernels.

Cucumbers: Pick long, slender cukes that are medium to dark green.

Peppers: Look for firm, darkly colored fruit with uniform size, color, and number of lobes. Avoid wrinkled or shriveled ones or fruits that are sunburned (contrasting color spots).

Radishes: Choose medium-sized, firm, crisp roots. Avoid wilted or soft roots or those with growth cracks or insect damage. Oversized roots will be pithy. Sunburned crowns are also not desirable.

Summer squash: Choose ones that are uniform in size, color, and shape. Avoid large fruits (over mature) or ones with scarred skins, missing stems, or that are soft or wilting.

Tomatoes: Look for smooth skinned,

firm fruits with uniform color. Avoid fruits with growth splits, sun scald, or overripe (soft) fruits. Apples: Choose firm, well-colored fruit that feels crisp. Blueberries: Pick plump, firm, deep blue berries with their natural waxy silver coating.

Cantaloupe: Look for a smooth shallow base; thick, coarse, corky netting that stands out from skin. Should yield slightly when pressed on non-stem end and have the slight scent of cantaloupe.

Cherries: Should be dark in color, glossy, plump, with fresh looking stems.

Mangos: Pick fruit that has plump, smooth, dark green skin with patches of red, yellow, or orange color; should be slightly soft.

Nectarines: Fruit should be plump, slightly soft along “seam”; either orange-yellow or greenish between red-blushed areas depending on variety.

Oranges: Choose firm oranges, heavy for its size; smooth-textured, with bright-looking skin.

Peaches: Should be somewhat firm, becoming slightly soft; red with creamy, orangy base color.

Pears: Look for firm fruit, just barely beginning to soften. Bartlett's: pale to rich yellow; Boscs: green to brown yellow.

Watermelon: Should be symmetrical with bright green rind with a creamy yellow underside. Choose a watermelon that's heavy for its size.

Planting hope for the future

DAYVILLE — A common scene at Westview Health Care Center is to witness multiple staff departments unified in pursuit of a mutual goal. They can be seen huddled around their patients in shared compassion or rallied around each other in empowering solidarity.

On June 8, a selection of 32 such Westview Warriors stood proudly united around the new Magnolia tree planted on the Westview grounds. This recent addition to the Westview campus is meant to commemorate the lives lost, the love gained, and the hope for new growth following the COVID-19 pandemic. Representing each department of the Dayville skilled nursing facility, their combined presence in this photographic moment created an enduring image of the team-first attitude that helped to maintain the professional passion and compassionate care needed over the last year. One of Westview's second-shift Charge Nurses, Gloria Albert, first suggested this idea to the facility's leadership after sensing a need to signify the impact of this tumultuous era.

Westview Administrator David T. Panteleakos sensed the emotionally healing potential this concept possessed as soon as he heard about it from second-shift Charge Nurse Gloria Albert. In his comments about the Westview staff, Mr. Panteleakos highlighted their hard work, acknowledged their many sacrifices, and praised their dedication to their profession.

"Our amazing inter-departmental team has displayed an unending desire to continue their work at the height of their ability—regardless of how difficult the days and nights became," he said.

Mr. Panteleakos went on to say, "The dedication, loyalty, and adaptability displayed by our team has been nothing short of remarkable and when Gloria mentioned this idea to me, we both agreed that it was the perfect way to have a lasting symbol; serving as a reflection point for the departed, commemorating the way our staff have met countless challenges, and offering optimism for more beautiful developments in the seasons to come."

Having worked at Westview since February 2013, Gloria Albert has seen many different trials, tribulations, and triumphs in the health care setting. She readily acknowledges there was never a cross-department challenge as comprehensive as the COVID-19 fight. After posing prominently in the group photo with a shovel in hand, Albert also referenced the dual symbolism of the new Magnolia tree as a way to look backwards and forward in light of recent times.

"As we were having our picture taken, my mind traveled to those we lost—those who are so dear and near to all of our hearts," she said.

Albert continued, "I'm glad 2020 is done, and I'm looking forward to this year's team blossoming with an improved outlook for the healthcare landscape."

This commemorative tree can be seen on the corner of Thompson Turnpike and Ware Road, right next to Westview's "Caring for Generations" sculpture depicting a family holding hands. Additional developments are also planned for this point of the Westview Commons four corners. Specifically, a stone marker will be placed next to the tree, featuring a stylized Westview logo and an Alfred Tennyson quote: "Shape your heart to front the hour. Dream not that the hours will last." This quote selected as an acknowledgement of the Westview staff's determination in dark times presented and optimism for brighter days ahead. A life-altering event such as this pandemic cannot be forgotten, and this landmark at Westview stands at the juncture of its somber memories and hope-filled future.

Westview Health Care Center is a 103-bed inpatient skilled nursing facility, which includes a distinct and self-contained 28-bed sub acute short term rehabilitation unit and outpatient physical, occupational and speech therapies including: Sports Medicine, Adolescent/Pediatric, Adult, and Aquatic Outpatient Centers, all dedicated to providing outstanding quality health care services. The Dayville, Connecticut facility is consistently ranked among the top nursing facilities in the nation, according to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services as well as U.S. News and World Report, for the past 13 years.

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

WOODSTOCK — It was a hardware haul for the Woodstock Academy girls' golf team at the inaugural Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference (CIAC) Division II championship, held Monday, June 7, at Farmington Woods Golf Club.

The Centaurs not only won the team title, thanks to finishing four strokes better than Berlin High (369-373), but junior Mia Dang, on the strength of her tournament-best, 8-over-par 80, was the individual champion as well.

"I couldn't be any more pleased with the way the season unfolded," Woodstock Academy coach Earl Semmelrock said. "I knew that we had some experienced players coming back, and I knew we had a transfer player [Dang] that was supposed to be good. But I hadn't seen Mia play at that point and until we actually got on the golf course I wanted to keep my expectations at a reasonable level. I thought we'd have a successful season, but I had no idea that we would have the season that we had."

Dang, the 10th-ranked girls' golfer in Connecticut, competed in the girls' State Open championship on Saturday, June 12 at Old Lyme's Black Hall Club.

Seniors Kaily LaChapelle, Alex Vaida, Ciara MacKinnon; and Maria Santucci were the other four golfers who contributed to WA's team win. LaChapelle finished with a 92, Vaida a 96. All four were on the team as sophomores as well.

The rapid development of Dang, who transferred to WA from St. Peter-Marian Central Catholic High School in Worcester, Mass., was clearly the subplot to the Centaurs' storybook season.

"Mia is a hockey player, too, so she was looking for a school that had both girls' hockey and girls' golf, St. Peter-Marian didn't offer girls' golf as a sport; she had to play with the boys' team," Semmelrock explained. "So, in her school search she was looking for a school that had a girls' golf team as well as a girls' hockey team. Woodstock Academy filled that bill nicely."

"When Mia was considering transferring here I looked at some of the scores she was (posting) in some of the tournaments she was in and I could tell that she took the game very seriously and wanted to be good," Semmelrock said. "She plays at a pretty high level in terms of playing all summer in junior tournaments. She's used to the rigors of golf so I thought she would be very good."

Semmelrock said Dang passed the "eyeball test" quickly.

"The first couple practices we had I could tell she was the real deal," Semmelrock said. "Just the way she handled herself around the golf course, the makeup of her bag, how she approached the shots; I didn't have to tell her anything, she knew what she was doing."

"The first time we got to play our home course [Quinnatisset Country Club in Thompson], she was a couple over par, playing the eighth hole, and she holed out from the fairway for eagle. And it wasn't a mistake; it was a real golf shot," Semmelrock said. "I could tell right then she was going to have a good year."

As dazzled as Semmelrock was by Dang all season, he was especially dazzled with how she played in the CIAC Division II Tournament.

"What impressed me the most was how she handled the match that day," Semmelrock said. "It was the first time we played 18 holes all year and she was paired with three of the best players in Division II, who were all ranked higher than her. It was a really hard day to play well because it was so hot, and the course was so demanding."

"But that's when she really showed me how good she can be. She was laser focused that day," Semmelrock continued. "She beat all three of the girls that went in with a higher ranking than she did. I was keeping an eye on the Division I Tournament [played the next day] and Mia would have placed second in that tournament."

Killingly High wins ECC Open Title
Sophomore Cameron Seiffert fired a 6-over-par 77 and classmate Ethan Lackner was right behind with at 78, both helping immensely to lead the Killingly High boys' golf team to the ECC Open Championship on Thursday, June 3, at Putnam's Connecticut National Golf Course.

Killingly finished with a score of 317, five strokes better than runner-up East Lyme High.

Seiffert was the second overall finisher in the tournament and Lackner was third overall. Joining the duo in the top 15 were sophomore Harrison Giambattista (80, fifth overall), senior Cooper Morissette (82, eighth overall), and sophomore Logan Gagnon (86, 14th overall).

The victory was Killingly's seventh ECC Open Championship in the last eight years. The team finished the season 18-1, its lone loss coming to East Lyme earlier in the season. East Lyme, in fact, was the only team to win an ECC Open Championship during Killingly's current run, and that came in 2019, after Killingly had won six straight titles.

"This was the culmination of a lot of hard work by this young group and a complete team effort," Killingly golf coach Kevin Marcoux said. "Cooper was a tremendous leader for us this year as our lone senior. He kept the team focused and driven all year. This group took on a very talented and experienced East Lyme team and never flinched. We had a game plan coming in and our guys followed it perfectly."

Killingly followed up its win in the ECC Division II Open win with a fourth-place finish at the Division III state tournament on Monday, June 7, at Stanley Golf Course in New Britain. Killingly shot a combined 335, six shots behind first-place finisher St. Joseph's of Trumbull.

Based on their play all season, Seiffert, Lackner and Morissette were named to the ECC All-Star team.

30th Anniversary Steeple Chase fundraiser roars back to Eastern Connecticut

WILLIMANTIC — After a year of Coronavirus-related social distancing and safety protocols, Steeple Chase Bike Tour participants are excited to again gather in-person on bikes or on foot to raise money for critical Eastern Connecticut human service non-profits. This year's 30th anniversary event will take place on Saturday, Aug. 21, starting and ending at St. Mary-St. Joseph School in Willimantic and winding through the country roads of Windham and surrounding towns. Registration is now open at <https://steeplechasebiketour.org/register/> and www.bikereg.com/steeple-chase-bike-tour.

This year's event will start in the school's parking lot at 35 Valley St., and will feature three supported cycling routes and a five-mile ride/walk tour through the parks of Willimantic. Cyclists and walkers can also participate virtually by choosing their own route – in-state, out-of-state, on-road or off.

The Steeple Chase Ride/Walk benefits three critical social service organizations in eastern Connecticut that help people struggling with drug addiction, homelessness, mental health challenges, and poverty. For the fourth straight year, every dollar raised by participants, donors and sponsors will be matched by the Jeffrey P. Ossen Family Foundation, doubling event proceeds.

"So many people took up cycling during the pandemic that there was a bike shortage," remarked Victoria Nimirowski, chairperson of the Steeple Chase planning committee and executive director of Windham Area Interfaith Ministry. "This is a great opportunity to use those bikes to do good for others. Our non-profits – Perception Programs, Windham Area Interfaith Ministry, and the Windham Region No Freeze Project – help the most vulnerable, most at-risk members of our community every day. Throughout Covid, our organizations worked overtime, exceeding our already tight budgets, to keep people safe and healthy. This event is the biggest fundraiser for all three organizations and will help replenish our budgets so we can continue our life-saving work."

Event organizers have created three dedicated cycling routes and one official walk/ride for the 30th Anniversary Steeple Chase. These in-person routes will start and end at St. Mary-St. Joseph School.

The classic 20-mile route is almost as old as the event and travels through the low-traffic backroads of South Windham, Windham Center, Chaplin, North Windham, Mansfield and Willimantic.

The new 30th Anniversary route celebrates this event milestone by traveling 30 miles through Windham, Chaplin, Mansfield and Willimantic.

The Half Century route covers 50 kilometers - or 62.5 miles - of eastern Connecticut backroads and is one of the most beautiful rides in the state, with sweeping views and challenging hills.

A newly-designed five-mile ride/walk will take participants through nine Willimantic parks and gardens and will showcase the community's rural beauty.

Cyclists committed to the event's beloved 100-mile Century Ride are invited to ride the route unsupported. In addition, virtual Steeple Chase participants can ride or walk wherever they want – through their neighborhood or hometown, on one of Connecticut's traffic-free Rail Trails like the Hop River or the Airline Trail, or on out-of-state roads or trails. Virtual participants can ride or walk whenever they want, starting and finishing their route at a convenient day and time and donating by Aug. 21.

By registering online and asking friends, family, employers and others to sponsor the ride, participants can generate desperately needed funds used to shelter and secure housing for people experiencing homelessness, offer a path to recovery for people with addiction and mental illness, and provide basic needs from clothing to heat for individuals and families living in poverty. Over its history, the Steeple Chase Bike Tour has raised approximately $1.75 million to help fund its beneficiaries' important work.

Pre-registration for the event is $25 for individual riders or walkers. In addition to registration, each rider is asked to raise a minimum of $75 in donations. Online registration for the Steeple Chase will continue through Aug. 21 at www.steeplechasebiketour.org and www.bikereg.com/steeple-chase-bike-tour.

The Steeple Chase benefits from the generosity of corporate sponsors and donors including The Jeffrey P. Ossen Family Foundation, The Chronicle Newspaper, Thread City Cyclists, Home Selling Team, Sarazin General Contractors, WILI AM, Willimantic Waste Paper, the board of directors of the Windham Region No Freeze Project, and many others. Companies and organizations interested in sponsorship should call Perception Programs at 860-450-7122.

For more information, visit www.steeplechasebiketour.org, call (860) 450-7122, email steeple.chase@perceptionprograms.org, or follow the event on Facebook @SCbiketour, Twitter @SCbiketour, Instagram @steeplechasebiketour, and on LinkedIn.

Only a handful of submissions earn this unique status. Only three other Connecticut high school publications earned awards: the Mane Street Mirror of Joseph A. Foran HS of Milford, the Academy Times from the Academy of Aerospace Engineering in Windsor, and the Redcoat Review of Berlin High School.

Though The Redline has earned a number of Second Place rankings, also difficult to achieve, the last time it earned a 1st place was 10 years ago.

“This is a very difficult ranking to achieve,” adds Mr. Martin, who has been the advisor since 2000 and is a veteran journalist himself, having written for The Providence Journal, Providence Magazine and a number of other periodicals. “It is a very rigorous examination. Martin adds that he had a feeling this year’s crew was up to the task.

“From the beginning of the year, despite covid problems, these students have done an exceptional job,” he adds. “They are a talented crew who gets the job done and gets it done well. I submitted the issues expecting and hoping they could pull off a 1st place finish, and they didn’t let me down.”

Martin submitted all but the last issue, this one, which, ironically, he adds, is probably the best issue all year. It is a 66-page special senior issue aimed at end of the year awards, senior reflections and other KHS accomplishments.

“This issue is the culmination of the year really,” he says. “They did an excellent job!”

Laney Dunn, the Assistant Editor-in-Chief said she was not surprised.

“I am honestly not that surprised,” she says. “I knew we had a lot of really good writers and a great deal of teamwork and communication so that made for many really well written issues.”

“Being the recipient of such an award is such a tremendous honor!” adds Editor-in-Chief Abigail Driscoll. “Writing for The Redline is already such a great opportunity, I’m so ecstatic that we placed so well. This class of journalists works so hard to get such wonderful issues of our school newspaper out to our peers, and Mr. Martin is the best teacher this side of the cosmos that we could have possibly asked for. I’m just so proud of this class and to be a part of something so wonderful. Journalism is my passion and it feels so great for our paper to be recognized for all the work we put in.”

The best part, agrees Dunn, was just being in the class itself.

“The experience you get is invaluable,” she explains. “You get a lot of real world communications experiences. almost like you have an actual job. You get close to the people you are in class with so you form a lot of good relationships, also.”

“You’re planning on the water supply people getting additional tankers and setting up a refill site. You should have enough water flow for what they’re going to be using on the fire. It’s easier said than done,” said Baron. “I don’t think we ever lost water at the scene, but it does require a lot of departments and a lot of manpower to pull that off. The departments that participated really did a great job. The building is pretty much totaled but a lot of the contents in the building is salvageable.”

Firefighters from Woodstock, Muddy Brook, Bungay Fire Brigade, Eastford, Pomfret, Putnam, East Putnam, Quinebaug, Community Fire Company, and West Thompson as well as crews from Southbridge, Webster, and Dudley in Massachusetts all responded to the event. The East Thompson and Thompson Hill Fire Departments covered the rest of Woodstock while crews were busy on scene.

departments at the scene, three of them from Massachusetts, who were assisting with water supply and tankers and fighting the fire.”

Four of the occupants were treated for smoke inhalation and one was sent to UMass for further evaluation according to Baron. Several dogs and a bird perished in the blaze. Baron said the cause of the fire is ongoing although investigators do have an idea of where the fire may have started.

With the building located in a rural area without a dedicated water source for firefighters the blaze proved to be a practice in efficiency as several different departments came together to bring water to the scene and tackle the fire effectively. Baron said all crews worked well as a team to save what they could.
