The little black box

Let me tell you a story about my friend, Howard...

There's a little black box that sits on a countertop in my kitchen. One would normally pass by it without a second thought.

It looks simple enough. Shiny, smooth and midnight black, it holds pencils, pens, Sharpies, dry erase markers for our calendar whiteboard, a lighter for candles, and even a screwdriver. Just looking at it, you would never think it was anything else but a normal, black box that came right from the Walmart or Target aisle.

But there's a lot more meaning behind that little black box than meets the eye. It's one of my most treasured possessions, and it all started in the fall of 2014.

It was a day like every other day. I was driving about town in my pickup truck (nick-named "Blackie"). For regular readers of my column, you all know that my truck is very special to me, as it was purchased with money left over in my brother's bank account when he died more than 10 years ago. It's a truck that he himself wanted (that's why I bought it). It's a truck that my father also owns a version of, and it even contains components of the car my brother was in when he died in that fateful car accident in 2006. A piece of him lives on in that truck, and I treat it as such. No burnouts, no senseless speeding, no showing off. Just tender, loving care.

So one can imagine the emotions running through my mind in September 2014 as I stared blankly across the street after having just gotten into a car accident after someone pulled out right in front of me. I had no time to react. My foot had barely reached the break when I slammed into the other person's driver-side door.

My first thought was that I had just killed a person. I couldn't understand the gravity of what I was facing. I was panicking, praying out loud to God that the other person was OK. Even if I was injured, I wouldn't have been able to tell, as I was going on pure adrenaline at that point. The airbag in the other car had deployed, and they coasted to a stop about 50 feet away. Police and ambulances were called. Witnesses flooded to the scene. Everyone was OK. The other person's car was totaled, and I thought Blackie was done for, as well. The impact had made it so that I couldn't even open my driver's side door. My hood was crumpled, and front end looked destroyed. I was fighting back tears as the tow truck was called because the last tangible remnant of my brother's memory was about to be thrown into a compactor. I started calling people to let them know what was going on. My hand holding the cell phone was shaking as I called my wife, then my mother and then my friend, who owned the place my truck was about to be towed to

Gobi re-elected to State Senate

DEFEATS GOP CHALLENGER EHRHARD FOR SECOND TERM

Anne Gobi

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN

It was a close race for the two candidates running for the two-year term Senate seat for the Worcester, Hampden, Hampshire & Middlesex District, but Democratic incumbent Anne Gobi was voted back into office on Tuesday, Nov. 8, with 54.4 percent of the vote (43,926), defeating Republican challenger James Ehrhard (36,809)

James Ehrhard (36,809).

As eventual President-elect
Donald Trump gained more and more states throughout the night, Gobi said she felt she did "very well," considering the large outpouring for the Republican soon-to-be-president in the district. Despite the district's support for Trump, Gobi was able to win 23 of the 28 towns, which was an improvement over the last time she ran (the district includes the towns of Ashburnham, Ashby, Barre, Brimfield, Athol, Brookfield, Charlton, East Brookfield, Hardwick, Holland, Hubbardston, Monson, New Braintree, North Brookfield, Oakham, Palmer, Paxton, Petersham, Phillipston, Rutland, Spencer, Sturbridge, Templeton, Wales, Ware, Warren, West Brookfield and Winchendon). According to Gobi, even in the communities she lost, the margin of the loss had been "cut down quite a bit" and that was very positive for the re-elected senator.

Gobi said she believes that people voted for her — despite party affiliation — because of her work ethic.

She explained: "I've been doing this job and people know it's a full time responsibility that I take very seriously. I think it's my work ethic and people can see that. They know that the issues that are important to them are important to me as well and I'm not happy unless we get satisfaction for people. I take that very personally."

LOCAL PERFORMER REACTS TO 'CREEPY CLOWN' TREND

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN NEWS STAFF WRITER

BRIMFIELD — Her name is Nicole Portwood, but most people know her as Maggie the Clown.

Usually seen at events throughout Southern Worcester County handing out balloon animals, riding her unicycle and juggling, it's hard to imagine anyone being afraid of her, in her bright mismatched clothing and smiling face paint.

But last month it seemed as though alleged creepy clown sightings were taking social media by storm and it truly disheartened Portwood and other local clowns, who were even told they couldn't wear their face paint in some circumstances.

Even while she was in India celebrating the 5th International Clown Festival last month and spreading joy throughout the country with fellow clowns, Portwood kept thinking about her friends back home and the contrasting responses they were receiving.

Olivia Richman sat down with the accomplished and beloved entertainer to discuss her amazing time in India, the importance of clowns and why she feels she was always meant to be one.

Please Read CLOWNS, page A16

Maggie the Clown and fellow clowns from all over the world put on shows in three major cities in India. The country barely knows what clowns are or what they do, but when they saw the clowns perform it not only made them laugh, but inspired them.

State lawmakers respond to passage of Question 4

BY JASON BLEAU NEWS STAFF WRITER

The people of Massachusetts have spoken, and as of Dec. 15, recreational marijuana will officially be legalized in the Commonwealth.

Massachusetts voters turned out in droves for the 2016 election, where four state-wide questions complimented the state and national elections, with Question 4 seeking to legalize marijuana for recreational use in the Commonwealth. In a vote of around 53 percent to 46 percent statewide, the question passed, marking a landmark decision for the state, and setting the controversial substance to be legalized on Dec.

Leading up to Election Day, the public opinion of approving the question was clearly mixed. Those opposed to the legislation argued that marijuana would be a gateway drug, and voiced concerns about the many questions remaining about regulating the substance, while those in favor leaned on lasting arguments that the drug is seemingly non-addictive, and has proven medicinal advantages.

* * Triday's Child

Julyzia, or "Juju" as she likes to be called, is a caring and affectionate 8-year-old girl of African American/ Caucasian descent, Julyzia absolutely loves being a helper of any kind. People who know her well describe her as funny, smart and creative. For fun, she loves to play outside, ride her bicycle and do arts and crafts. She'll even make cards for others as a surprise! Julyzia is happiest when she is playing "Just Dance" and "Mario Cart." Julyzia currently lives in a residential home and can struggle with the day-to-day routine, especially at night and during transitions. In school, she is making good progress with special education services.

Julyzia's social worker hopes to find a supportive two-parent family with a mom and dad or two moms with either no children or older children. Julyzia will need continued contact with members of her birth family including her birth parents. She is close to a 9-year-old sister who is also in foster care, and they could either be placed in separate homes or possibly together in a skilled, experienced family. She also has two other half siblings placed in a pre-adoptive home.

What does Adoption Cost?

It costs little or nothing to adopt a child from foster care. Unlike international or private adoptions, there is no adoption agency fee. There are also a number of free post-adoption support services available to families statewide, including support groups and respite care. Children with special needs who are adopted from the foster care system are eligible for ongoing financial and medical assistance after adoption. These children are also eligible for a tuition waiver to attend a Massachusetts state college or university.

To learn more about Julyzia, and about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-54-ADOPT (617-542-3678) or visit www.mareinc.org.

The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Mass Pike electronic toll transition gets underway

BY KEVIN FLANDERS

The final Mass Pike cash tolls were collected on Oct. 28, and demolition work is well underway at tollbooths across the state to pave the way for all-electronic tolling.

But as the booths come down, toll rates will be going up for drivers who don't obtain an E-Z Pass transponder.

MassDOT officials remind drivers that a six-month grace period is in effect for those applying for a transponder after receiving a pay-by-plate bill. After those six months, drivers still without a transponder will pay a higher rate when they use the Pike as part of the new system known as EZDriveMA.

For local and state legislators, it remains a priority to help make the transition as smooth as possible for residents. Sen. Anne Gobi has been active throughout her district in trying to keep residents informed about the many changes. For drivers who have paid cash tolls for their entire lives, the new system required a major adjustment.

I was glad to advocate for more equity in toll rates and a grace period to obtain the transponders," Gobi said. "I do think the six months will be adequate. This change to all electronic tolling has been well publicized, and I was glad to sponsor transponder distribution days in the district to make it easier for people to obtain a transponder."

Events have been held across the state to increase awareness, and transponders have been available at service plazas along the Pike. All electronic tolling will increase efficiency and reduce environmental impacts, officials said.

"We are committed to educating the public about the transition to EZDriveMA," said Mass. Highway Administrator Thomas Tinlin.

Meanwhile, the process of removing existing toll plazas is occurring in phases to ensure the safety of drivers and work zone crews. The first phase, which began on Oct. 29, involves drivers being rerouted to the outer lanes of the toll plazas as demolition continues in the center portions of the plazas. Once this work is complete later this month, the newly paved center portions will accommodate drivers as work shifts to the outer booths on each side.

The second phase of the project will include the demolition and removal of tollbooth structures, access tunnels, parking lots and toll plaza buildings. The roadway will then be reconstructed and widened to accommodate vehicles operating at higher speeds through the plazas.

For now, drivers will use reduced speeds (currently 15 miles per hour) during all phases of demolition, and traffic backup is expected during peak travel hours. The entire project is expected to be completed by the end of Drivers hitting the Pike over the last two weeks have reported a mostly smooth ride through the toll plazas, with the majority of congestion occurring during rush hour periods. MassDOT officials were pleased with the results at most plazas, though significant backup has occurred at certain exits during peak travel hours. Drivers have flagged the eastbound Palmer/Ware exit as a particularly problematic area, with exiting traffic regularly clogged for a mile in the Mass Pike emergency lane during the evening rush.

Officials remind drivers to be patient and reduce distractions while proceeding through the toll plazas.

Overall, the EZDriveMA conversion is expected to save motorists 280,000 hours every year, in addition to a savings of 875,000 gallons of gasoline. To learn more about the project and expected activities through the winter months, visit www.ezdrivema.com.

CHARLTON — Faculty, staff and teachers at Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School came together at the beginning of the school year to create a food pantry for students in need.

Through fundraisers, donations and generosity, Bay Path hopes to keep expanding their food pantry to further help students and their families.

One afternoon, some instructors got together, including Cabinet Making Instructor Ray Mahon, and they began to discuss the idea of kids being hungry over the weekend.

He recalled: "We felt we take a good job of taking care of kids during the week, free or reduced breakfast or lunch. But what happens over the weekend or over vacation without those services? That's really how it was born."

One major component of the food pantry is its discreetness. Located in a pantry in the school, not many students even know where the pantry is. There are no forms, no eligibility requirements. If an instructor knows a student in need of assistance, they bring it to the attention of guidance, who will provide the student with a small pull-string backpack with spaghetti, granola bars, canned food and other easyto-make food items, as well as toiletries. The food is usually given to someone who the child feels most comfortable dealing with, making it "very low-key," noted Mahon.

"It's tough enough being a kid. Tough enough being in this situation," he continued. "We don't need to add to that stress and that stigma. We are just looking to help each other

Many of the students are already benefiting in big ways from the faculty's generosity. Senior Nadia Colone said she's been struggling to get government assistance so the food pantry has put food on the table for her and her family.

"I haven't gone hungry because of it," she said. "I think it's awesome. It's very beneficial. I'm honestly shocked they did it. You don't hear about a lot of schools doing it. But there are so many needy kids out there who need programs like this. I'm very happy that Bay Path has come up with this.'

The faculty's philosophy is to help and make a difference, one student at a time. But the food pantry is on the fast track to helping more and more students, because of the generosity of the community and employees.

"On half days the superintendent allows staff to wear jeans, but it comes at a price. Some organization charges $5 or whatever the case may be. The

The food pantry doesn't only help out students by providing easy-to-make food items. It also has toiletries and soon they hope to provide clothes to needy students as well.

food pantry put out a request - bring in one non-perishable food item and that will allow you to wear jeans for the day. The amount of food that came in that day was unbelievable," said Mahon. "People were bringing boxes and shopping bags full of stuff. We continue to have teachers bring in on a weekly basis, a box of food

There are a handful of students who stock all of the received food items and put it away, categorizing it in the pantry. They also help put together the packages, based on the kit that's requested.

There is also talk of expanding the food pantry to include clothing items. According to Mahon, this is another need many students have. Some students even skip school if they don't have any clean clothes to wear.

Working with local grocery stores and organizations, Bay Path's food pantry is looking into future fundraisers to keep the food pantry growing more and more, in hopes of helping out every student in need at the school.

St. Christopher's Craft Fair offers something for everyone

BRIMFIELD — St. Christopher's Parish located on Route 20 in Brimfield will hold its annual craft fair on Saturday, Nov. 19, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 20, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

New to the fair this year is pictures with Santa on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

There's no need to wait in long lines at the mall for a professional photo," said fair coordinator Cindy Skowyra. "We've got everything taken care of for you, just bring your smile.' With more than 35 vendors offering anything from handcrafted jewelry, primitives, blankets, quilts, scarfs, Christmas decorations and ornaments, organic lotions and soaps, knitted goods, pet gifts and toys to name a few. The fair is great place to find unique gifts for everyone on your shopping list.

"It's not just your holiday gift shopping but think ahead for baby showers, birthdays, weddings, hostess gifts, you name it," said Skowyra. "There is something for everyone at all different price ranges.'

The kitchen is open serving breakfast and lunch throughout the day for anyone wanting to stop in for some delicious treats. The group will also have winter boxes available for decorating your home or cemetery. They will continue to sell those in the following weeks at the parish. Also not to be missed is the popular cookie walk held on Saturday. The group suggests coming early as this always sells

There will be raffles with donations from generous parishioners and local businesses that include gift baskets, dinner at local restaurants, DCU Center & Mechanics Hall events to name a few. There's even an overnight get away to the Greenfield Inn B&B in Greenfield, N.H.

Club President Sheila Fortier said, "This past year we were able to help pay a substantial portion of the cost to paint and side the church. There's a little life left on the roof but we know it's about due for replacement so the group has committed funds raised to be allocated for a new roof for the

"The women's club does great work for our parish," said Father Brennan. "Their efforts are making a big impact on our parish. The building was in dire need of a facelift. It looks wonderful now! We invite you to join us not only for the fair, but anytime, our door is open."

Admission to the craft fair is free. For more information contact the parish at 413-245-7274 or e-mail stchrisbrimfield@gmail.com or check it out on the church's Facebook page.

Sides still at odds over motor sports venue construction

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN NEWS STAFF WRITER

CHARLTON Many residents in Charlton and Sturbridge believe that 508 International (formerly Sunset City) is a "done deal."

The sports entertainment hub — which features motor sports for people of all ages and experience levels—has already begun construction and plans to be open in the spring of 2017. But Residents Against Noise & Traffic (RANT) want the community to understand that it's not "good to go," and the project is still "in limbo."

When RANT didn't agree with Building Inspector and Zoning Enforcement Officer Curtis Meskens' determination that the racetrack was allowed in an agricultural and residential zone, RANT founder Ron Charette filed to the Zoning Board of Appeals. The issue ended up making its way to court.

For a while, RANT and other residents were quiet. 508 International had began to build their race track and many believed that the words of the Zoning Enforcement Officer had ended RANT's efforts to stop the construction of the track, which they believe will create dangerous traffic on Brookfield Road and cause an extreme amount of noise and dust pollution to the residential areas surrounding it.

But Charette stated that it's time the public became aware of the facts — Justice of the Superior Court Thomas P. Billings ruled on Oct. 20 that the opinion of the zoning enforcement officer was only advisory.

Said Charette: "He doesn't have the right to make a judicial determination whether or not it's allowed in the zone. That was false information for us and for the town.'

According to findings from Billings, "Neither the ZBA's decision nor the Jan. 8, 2015 decision of the Zoning Enforcement Officer in response to Ronald Charette's inquiry shall have any force or effect.

508 International co-owner Russ Jennings said that within the town's zoning bylaws, they are allowed build and open their venue "by right" and that RANT are just "beating a dead horse." A page out of the Charlton Zoning Bylaws book shows that "other private predominantly recreational area" have a "Y" written next to it, meaning that the project is allowed by right without a site plan review.

"Many, many other things that exist in our town are not specifically spelled out in zoning, but they're allowed," said Jennings. "It's a recreational sport. RANT's argument is that it's not spelled out in hearing. But many, many other things that exist in town like disc golf are not specifically spelled out but they're allowed. This project involves outdoor recreation in many other forms other than motocross. That's just one of the many things that we do."

Feeling jaded by some of the town's elected officials - who RANT members feel are not properly addressing the situations or hearing out their citizens – the group's focus right now is educating the town on this newly received informa-

Said Charette: "The town made a number of missteps in this process that we learned about, starting with giving out wrong lists of abutters and empowering the zon-ing enforcement officer with the wrong powers and making a ruling at Zoning Board of Appeals that is absolutely wrong. In my opinion, Meskens caused harm to all parties by his decision. We are going to present it to the town. Corrective actions need to be taken. We want to make it very clear that 508 International has no authority to go forward."

As of press time, members of RANT are looking at a number of different areas of concern, looking for ways to interject if that's what they choose to do.

"They're in limbo. They're moving forward, not knowing if they can legitimately open or not," Charette explained. "They can move forward in any direction they want. But when there's a need for permits, that's when enforcement action have to be taken into account. Nothing is final. They may not be permitted. It may not be allowed. We are looking at all of our options and seeing what makes the most sense."

Jennings stated that he believes RANT is a "very small group of people" that "continue to fight an issue that's never been an issue." He stated that they "won't let it die" and refuse to give up on a cause they have dedicated themselves to.

"We plan to open in April," said Jennings. "It's all been going amazing so far. We are really excited about what we are bringing to the community come 2017."

Members of RANT also noted that this is also a huge concern for the future, noting other projects like this may arrive down the road. Despite 83 percent of Charlton being considered agricultural zones, Charette stated that Meskens stated in court that "anything can go in those zones," including amusement parks, strip ioints and shooting galleries.

"This is very concerning to us," said Charette. "There's really no protection. There's nothing in place that will protect any residents from this. We aren't just a bunch of antagonists. These are our homes, where we've lived for 20, 30, 50 years. Our rights are not being protected. We aren't out to hurt people. We aren't anti-anything. There's just no protection for anyone in this town and that concerns us. It's very troubling."

Veterans honored at senior center luncheon

"I'm a veteran in more ways than one," said Otto Winkler, joking about his 68-year marriage to his wife Jean. "I was underground in Denmark, helping sabotage the Germans and rescue American flyers who came down. I was in the Navy after the war ended."

STURBRIDGE — In honor of Veterans Day, the Sturbridge Senior Center held their annual Veterans Lunch on Wednesday, Nov. 9. A great meal and great music kept the crowd of veterans and their guests entertained, as well as seeing old friends they normally never have a chance to chat with. The veterans discussed the importance of celebrating Veterans Day, while some also looked back at their time serving the country.

"The meal is great," said Robert Selvey. "You want to forget what happened 80 years ago, but make great memories with friends here and now.

Curt Litchfield (VFW Southbridge Post 6055) and Wayne Russell (Past Commander of the Southbridge American Legion Post 31) said the meal was wonderful. They said: "It gives you a chance to get together with all the people you never get to see."

Bob Peltier (U.S. Marine Corp), Bob Maynard (U.S. Marine Corp) and Rolland Provost (82nd Airborne) said it's always "fantastic" when the veterans get together at the Senior Center.

"It's fabulous for the veterans to be here and very nice to honor them," said Stanley Pelczar. Said Stella Smith: "I'm glad they're still here!"

Richard Gelinas (Air Force, Vietnam), Jerry Suprenant (Navy, Korean War) and Frank Dorighi (Air Force, Korean War) said that it's great to celebrate Veterans Day because it's about "the freedom handed down from generation to generation."

Best process for selling your home

People most of the time decide to sell their home because that is what they need to do in order to buy the home they really want.

A common phone call we will get is: "I just found the perfect home online. I want to go see it before we miss out

This call, many times, is from people we didn't know had interest in buying and it was just this one house that sparked their interest. We could go look at the house and fall in love with it, but if another buyer does the same thing and they are preapproved and either don't have to sell a home or already have a buyer for their home then they will most likely get their offer accepted instead, even if their offer is lower.

My suggestion is, if you are thinking about moving, then talk to a lender to get preapproved so you know how much you can spend and be prepared if you do find the right house. If you do have a home currently, I would find out from the lender if you need to sell vour home in order to buy a new home. If you don't then you could decide to wait to list your nome for safe to ensure you find the perfect house first. If you do have to sell your home to buy, then I would have your realtor do a comparative market analysis on your home, and if the price makes sense for you, to sell it, then list it for sale, and wait until you have a ready, willing and able buyer on your home before finding the home you are moving to. It will eliminate lots of stress and frustration on your part.

However, I think it is a great idea to go to open houses in the location where you are looking to buy a home just to get a good idea of what you will get in your price range but mentally knowing that it is best to wait for a buyer for your home before offering on another home.

We have definitely had some scenarios that we didn't follow the exact process above and it worked out fine, but the majority of the time it didn't. I would recommend discussing this with your realtor if you are planning on moving to decide what will be the best process for you to achieve your

Political memorabilia

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES

& ESTATES WAYNE TUISKULA

Now that our presidential race is over, I thought this would be a good time to discuss collecting political memorabilia.

A good place to begin is with our first president. A collection of 37 George Washington inaugural and memorial buttons drew considerable interest when they went to auction in 2003. J. Harold Cobb started collecting Washington buttons in the 1950's. He had over 60 at one point before trading some while keeping the finest examples. One of the buttons had an interesting Massachusetts connection. In the 1940's a library was being renovated in Southampton. A tree limb was cut during the work. A bag fell out with five Washington buttons. One of them made its way into the Cobb collection. A button with "Pater Patriae" (father of our country) picturing George Washington brought the highest price at the auction selling for $25,300.

Innovation changed political memorabilia throughout history. The introduction of photography allowed images of candidates to appear on buttons and pins. Printing went from one color ink broadsides to brightly colored campaign flags, textiles and lithographed posters. Candidates would make use of all of the new advances to campaign. Prices for some pinbacks and posters of presidents from the 19th and early 20th century can easily fetch prices in the thousands of dollars.

Signed documents by George Washington and Abraham Lincoln can command figures in the five-figure range. If there is important historical content prices can go much higher.

The website just collecting.com listed the top 10 prices for U.S. Presidential memorabilia at auction. They are:

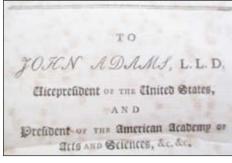

10. Abraham Lincoln's inaugural speech sold for $1,320,000 at auction in 1992.

9. A letter by Thomas Jefferson regarding plans for the Lewis and Clark expedition letter sold for $1,439,500 in a 2002 auction.

How should you use retirement plan distributions?

FINANCIAL Focus JEFF

BURDICK

During your working are (hopefulputting money into your IRA and 401(k) vour employer-sponsored retirement plan. But once you've retired, how can you maximize the benefits you get from these plans?

First of all, you need to be aware of the rules governing withdrawals from your retirement plans. If you are older than 59½, you can withdraw money from your traditional IRA without paying penalties, though the withdrawals will typically be taxable. But once you reach 70 1/2, you generally must start taking "required minimum distributions" (RMDs) from these accounts, with the annual amount determined by your age, the account balance and other factors (the situation is different with a Roth IRA. If you are the original account holder, you are not required to withdraw funds from your Roth IRA at any age. You can choose to withdraw your contributions at any time, tax and penalty free. To withdraw your earnings tax and penalty free, you generally must have owned the account for at least five years and have reached age 59 1/2).

So, assuming you do have a traditional IRA and a 401(k) or similar plan, what should you do with the RMDs? You'll probably require at least some of these distributions for your living expenses, but if you don't need it all, what should you do with the "excess"?

Here's one suggestion: As part of your overall retirement investment portfolio strategy, you can reinvest the money into these three "buckets":

Near-term income bucket - For this bucket, you're not concerned with high returns - you just want the money to be there when you need it for expenses and unexpected costs, such as a major car repair, a new furnace, and so on. It's always a good idea to have an emergency fund containing three to six months' worth of living expenses - and your short-term income bucket could be an ideal source to help build such a fund.

Medium-term income bucket -During retirement, you can probably never have too many sources of income, so you may want to fill a bucket with intermediate- and long-term bonds, which make regular interest payments.

Long-term income bucket — Even when you're retired, you will need some growth potential in your portfolio to help keep you ahead of inflation in the long run. So this bucket should be filled, not surprisingly, with growth-oriented investments. These investments can fluctuate in value, but as long as you don't need to tap into them in a hurry, you may be able to avoid taking withdrawals when the price is down.

In addition to this "bucket" approach, you do have other options for your RMDs. For example, you could give your grown children some financial assistance, possibly for help in funding their IRAs. Or, you could contribute to a college-savings vehicle, such as a 529 plan, for your grandchildren. And you can always make charitable contributions, which allow you to support worthwhile organizations and, by doing so, earn some potential tax benefits.

Clearly, you can do a lot with your RMDs. And you worked hard for them so make sure they work just as hard

I know I am not as busy as I will be as my kids get older, but right now I feel like there are not nearly enough hours in my day to do much of anything, especially cook an elaborate healthy dinner for my fam-The one thing I have going for me is that my son will eat just about anything, having a preference in healthy, and my daughter who was once pickier than anything, is starting to actually give in and try something other than plain pasta and peanut butter sandwiches. Everywhere I turn lately, I feel like I am seeing these meals called freezer meals, and my curiosity was peaked. If someone mentioned "freezer meals" to me years ago I would have assumed they meant those sodium packed TV dinners that barely fill up a toddler. So, I started my research. With crock-pot season upon us I was very excited to see that not only are these meals ready to go, but all I would have to do is thaw it in the fridge overnight and stick it in my favorite appliance (my Crock Pot) and not have to do another thing. All I needed to do was food shop for meals as opposed to just ingredients and get a large box of gallon size freezer bags. I should also mention that while I love my money savings on store brand, this is one thing I think you should consider getting the best quality you can. It will guarantee a good seal to defend against freezer burn, and it will also help minimize the chance of cross contamination in your freezer in the event of leakage. So while going through I compiled some of my favorites, and I hope you enjoy making some of these for your family and as always I love getting feedback and recipes.

Historic helpings for Thanksgiving

Americans have much to be thankful for, and while details of the "first" Thanksgiving are debatable, there is no denying the major role American Indians played in the lives of early settlers.

From teaching colonists to hunt turkey and deer and cultivate corn to showing them how to tap Maple syrup and cook wild cranberries, Native Americans are credited with preventing mass starvation in early settle-

Indian Pudding: Among the most memorable of New England comfort foods, Indian Pudding is a regional dessert that frequently makes an appearance on the Thanksgiving table. The many hours required to cook the thick cornmeal and molasses custard, along with the high calories and richness of the old fashioned dish make the "once a year" dessert worth waiting all year for.

While the sweet, steamy pudding continues to be served up as a rustic treat in fine Yankee restaurants, the traditional dish boasts a humble history.

Tracing its roots to the Colonists' love of England's "hasty pudding," Indian Pudding was made with cornmeal, which was plentiful in the New World, along with molasses and maple syrup, two common sweeteners of the day.

Scrape batter into the slow cooker and cook on high 2 to 3 hours or on low 6 to 8 hours. The center will be not quite set.

Serve warm topped with ice cream, whipped cream, or light cream.

Cranberry Chutney & Sauce: Wild cranberries have long held an important rank in Native American culture. American Indians ate cranberries in a variety of dishes and used the bright red berries as a natural dye to color textiles. The native fruit was also hailed as valuable medicine, as a poultice of the berries was applied to wounds, including serious war injuries.

Native Americans introduced the tart berry to the settlers who gave the cranberry its current name. The pink flower blossoms on the cranberry reminded early Colonists of the Sandhill Crane in their native Take THE HINT KAREN

Cranberry Chutney, American Indian Style

Ingredients: Three cups cranberries; one dozen cored apples; one onion, sliced; one cup golden raisins: 1 1/2 tablespoons ground ginger; two ounces chili peppers; four cups apple cider vinegar; two tablespoons salt; one pound dark brown sugar; two tablespoons flour dissolved in 1/4 cup water.

Directions: In a heavy large saucepan mix together apples, onion, raisins, ginger, chilies, vinegar, salt and brown sugar. Cook over low heat for about 30 minutes. Add cranberries and flour/ water mixture. Simmer until cranberries pop and mixture thickens, about ten minutes. Let set to cool and further thicken. Refrigerate after cooling.

Succotash: Corn was a staple crop of American Indians and they prided themselves on cooking it many different ways. Succotash, of which corn in a main ingredient, is a simple yet delicious dish that is familiar to most folks of Native American descent. The hearty "stew" typically consists of corn, beans, and sweet peppers. The low cost and relatively easy access to homegrown ingredients made this common fare at Thanksgiving time and all year round.

Succotash Stew

Ingredients: Four ears of fresh sweet corn: four cups of fresh lima beans (frozen may be substituted); 1 1/2 cups of water; 1/2 cup butter; 1 1/2 cups of sliced green onions; one green and one red bell pepper, diced

Directions: Cut corncobs into 1 1/2 inch lengths. Place corn, beans, water, and butter in a large saucepan. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover and bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat to medium-low and simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in onions and peppers and continue to simmer for 6 to 10 minutes, until beans are tender and peppers are slightly tender. Remove lid and cook over high heat for 3 to 4 minutes, until liquid is reduced to about a half

I told him, my voice breaking. "I can't lose this truck."

'We'll do what we can," I remember him saying. He knew how much Blackie meant to me. After all, he was the one who helped me purchase it all those 'We'll do what we have to do," he added. His tone was reassuring.

As the days went on, I dealt with insurance companies, and the process stretched out over a few weeks. At first. they wanted to total the truck, but we fought for the money and did all the necessary repairs. I soon had what looked like a brand new truck in my driveway. My brother would have been proud to see Blackie 2.0 in all its glory.

My apologies for the long introduction to what this column is really about, but the explanation is necessary

Maybe a month after getting my truck back, my friend Howard, who was working at the aforementioned car shop at the time, approached me with a wrapped box. My birthday had already passed, and it wasn't Christmas yet. Puzzled, I opened it up, and inside was a little black box — smooth, shiny and midnight black. He saw the curious look on my face, smiled, and told me, "I made it from one of the old pieces we had to take off your truck. I know how important that truck is to you. I thought you might like to have a piece of it to keep with you. It's nothing fancy, but you can use it for pencils, or whatever, for your desk."

After a nice man hug, I nearly broke down at the generosity of the gift. He had fashioned a small pencil box out of sheet metal from one of the broken pieces of my truck. He told me it was from one of the fenders. I couldn't believe how thoughtful it was. Yet, I wasn't surprised at all, because that's the kind of guy Howard is — thoughtful, loving and sincere — and always willing to do something to make you smile...

...Which is why it was so heartbreaking when he got sick about a year later. He started getting unexplained pain in his abdominal area. After several doctors' visits, he was diagnosed with appendiceal cancer in January. He battled it with everything he had. He had surgery, but they couldn't remove the tumor. He tried chemotherapy, but nothing worked. Finally, on Thursday, Nov. 10. Howard succumbed to the cancer and he passed away, leaving behind a loving wife and three grown children that I have come to love as well.

I've known Howard and his family for years — since I was a kid, really — but have developed an even closer relationship with the family over the past decade or so. I lived next door to Howard for seven years up until 2014, and our relationship grew even deeper over that time. I would often walk next door with the wife and kids and we would just talk about random, hilarious YouTube videos of people blowing stuff, shows we were watching on Netflix, random movie quotes, welding and automotive projects he was working on, kids, my youth group, and all kinds of other topics. He would also work on my car from time to time, free of charge, just because he wanted to help me.

He was a mechanic and an engineer, with an artistic flair. He created a giant advertising sign out of foam board insulation for a water-themed night at my youth group, one of the coolest pieces I have ever seen. A metal owl sculpture he built from a saw blade, nails and various other metal pieces (similar to the one pictured in this week's headshot box), sits at my front door, a Christmas gift I bought for my wife just because I thought it was so cool. The talent exuding from that man was ridiculous. He was gifted in so many ways.

But as much as he was talented, he was also humble. In fact, if he were here to read this, he probably wouldn't care for me writing this about him. He was a caring friend who showed me time and time again what it looked like to love and serve others, whether it was helping someone split and stack wood, or going on missions trips to foreign countries to help pave, build or design something, he was always doing something to benefit someone else. He's a man who was guided by his faith in God, and remained unwavering, even in the fearsome face of death. That's an example I will strive to follow.

I was blessed to have a friend like Howard, and I know I am only one of many that can say the same thing. I will miss him dearly...

There's a little black box that sits on a countertop in my kitchen. One would normally pass by it without a second thought. But now, that little black box means more to me than it ever has. It represents the loving kindness of a great friend. It represents something broken that was made new, much like his earthly body that was made new when he finally met his Savior last week. That little black box, which holds pencils, pens and all sorts of other knick-knacks — also holds a whole lot

So, as I said goodbye to Howard last weekend, amongst his family and friends at our church, I thought about that little black box ... and even in my tears, I smiled.

Goodbye for now, Howard — I'll miss you, but I'll see you soon.

Wachusett ends Warriors' season in district quarterfinals

BY OLIVIA J. CAPPOLI

HOLDEN — On Nov. 4, the Tantasqua Regional girls' varsity soccer team punched their ticket into the Central Mass. Division 1 district quarterfinals following a 5-0 first round victory over No. 9 Hudson High to open the tournament. After celebrating that win, the eighth ranked Warriors focused on the new task at hand, which was top seeded Wachusett Regional in the quarterfinals.

Tantasqua entered the contest, played Tuesday, Nov. 8, determined to take down the Mountaineers on their own field turf, but Wachusett used that home field advantage as momentum. Goals from Sara James, Katie Quinn and Patricia Pallotta lifted the Mountaineers (15-1-3) past the Warriors, 3-0. Wachusett keeper Emma Trudeau helped preserve the win with four saves.

Tantasqua (10-7-3) knew their work was going to be cut out for them against a dominant Wachusett squad, but they displayed solid soccer that proved that rankings don't always mean everything.

Senior Abby Befford gave the Warriors an early opportunity to take the lead after she recovered a Mountaineer turnover near midfield. Befford broke away and raced up the right side with the ball, but a Wachusett defender came up on her blind side and stole it back.

After Befford missed out on the key scoring chance, Wachusett gave themselves the 1-0 edge in the 20th minute. On a crossed pass from Monica Pallotta from the left side of the box, James aired the ball from the top of the crease and watched it slip into the top left corner past Tantasqua senior keeper Kelsey Emrich.

With Wachusett now holding the 1-0 advantage, it only upped Tantasqua's fight to win as play became more physical throughout the half. The Warriors gained yet another scoring opportunity in the closing minutes of the half as Trudeau came out of the crease and lost control of the ball, but Tantasqua's shot attempt went wide to the right.

In terms of what the team needed to do to help momentum swing back in their direction, Tantasqua head coach Matthew Rickson said that they needed to, "keep the possession more in the attacking third."

Rickson also said that playoff experience from his nine seniors would help lift the rest of the team in order to pull out a victory.

"That puts you through everything," he said. "The experience they've had, that carries through."

It seemed as though the Warriors' offense and defense began to work as a unit in the second half as they began to pressure Wachusett on both sides of the ball to make a comeback more attainable as they were able to hold the game at 1-0.

However, with five and a half minutes left in regulation, Wachusett broke through with two goals in a 25-second span to put a Tantasqua comeback out of reach.

Wachusett tallied its second goal after Quinn recovered a loose ball that Emrich had lost control of outside of the crease with 5:30 on the clock. Then, Pallotta happened to be in the right place at the right time. A shot attempt deflected off Emrich and Pallotta was there to bury the Mountaineers' third goal into the back of the net.

A loss this deep in the playoffs can make a team emotional. Out of the nine Tantasqua seniors, five of them have played on varsity together since freshman year. It was not so much the loss that made them emotional, though, said Rickson.

"The emotion wasn't so much the loss — it is the end of their high school season or career," he said. "They won't be playing together because they won't be going to the same colleges."

Maggie the Clown speaks out after negative clown press

CLOWNS

How did you end up at the International Clown Festival?

"Last year, there was the first-ever worldwide circus summit at the Big E. Different circus people from all over came to it. I met the president of the World Clown Association, which I've been a member of for years, and she asked me if I wanted to go to India. In India, we visited three cities, where we performed in auditoriums and some smaller venues."

How was it being a clown in India?

"The thing about India is they don't know clowning like Americans know. It's much more advanced in the U.S. The vice president of the WCA is from India — he's been a clown for over 20 years — and he was trying to bring the art of clowning to the country. For them, they think of clowns as the Joker from Batman. They never see people in makeup. Their circus is basically dying. The new generation doesn't even know what a clown is. So this has been his dream.'

How did the public react when they first saw you and the other clowns?

"People were not used to seeing us. In India, they're a lot more reserved, especially the women. So at the beginning — when we would be performing in malls or the auditoriums they didn't know what to think. But once they would see the show it was like night and day. It was amazing. At the end of the show we would need all 15 of the mall bodyguards to keep people back. Everyone want-

During the month of October, Nicole Portwood (second from right) — better known as Maggie the Clown — traveled to India to participate in the 5th Annual International Clown

ed to take selfies with us and hug us and shake our hands. It was crazy."

How did you feel about people's reactions? To see their excitement over something you are so passionate about doing?

"It was amazing to hear some of the comments. We let all the kids come up and shake our hands afterwards. Every single one of those school kids made a line. We were there for an hour. Some had little notes for us saying it was the best day ever. One 10-year-old boy said it was the best day of his life and he wants to be a clown someday."

That's amazing to think you changed some children's lives!

"It was very touching. They were so appreciative. We had one elderly Indian lady and she had to touch every single one of us. She kept saying 'God bless you.' It was amazing. My friend went last year. She said she had a pregnant Indian woman come up to her after the show and said her baby was going to be born healthy now. In India, they believe if you're not happy the baby may be born sick. But the show had made her smile so much.'

Wow! You must have felt great being there and making such a positive impact on all of these people.

"What was really neat was experiencing all of that positivity. But meanwhile in the states we were hearing all of the negative creepy clown things. It was very disheartening to see what we were doing – how positive it was - and knowing our friends in the U.S. couldn't even wear clown makeup to some of the Halloween festivals they were doing."

That is horrible. That must have felt terrible knowing you were making such a huge difference with clowning, but back in the U.S., they were not getting the same responses. I felt the whole "creepy clown" thing on Facebook was so obnoxious.

"Movies and things don't help. People tell me they're afraid of clowns. I ask why. They reference a movie nine out of 10 times. These kids are 7 or 8. Who is letting them watch these movies? I tell the children they can control what they watch. They can close their eves and leave the room. I never saw a creepy clown movie as a child.

How did you become interested in being a clown?

"I've been doing this for 32 years. I started being a clown as a teenager. Everybody I knew worked at Riverside (an amusement park in my small town), whether they did rides, games ... My first year of high school I did games. I would see this clown walking around. I said to myself, 'I can't believe he is getting paid to play.' I wanted that job. The next year I heard they were doing a clown show and I auditioned. I got in."

And you kept going with it.

"I was supposed to be a nurse. I was a senior in high school. But I literally found out four weeks before I was supposed to go to college that I was accepted to Ringling Brothers Clown College. If you had told me I was going to be a clown the rest of my life a few years earlier ... I would have laughed all the way home."

What do you like about being a clown?

"I think I like the fact that you can do and be whatever you want. The neat and cool thing about clowning is that whatever you like to do, you can incorporate it into clowning. For me, the skills unicycling, juggling, stilt walking — were what got me. When I watched the clowns at the circus, it wasn't about being funny, it was about entertaining."

A lot of people associate clowns with just being funny.

"There's two clown categories — skills or funny. I'm a skill clown. At Ringling each group would tease each other.

Nicole Portwood (right) has been performing as Maggie the Clown for 32 years. She loves to entertain, especially with skills like juggling and balancing acts. She also hopes to spread awareness that clowns are not scary: They're there to make you smile and laugh.

They'd joke about how I'm not able to make people laugh! Some people can walk into a room and just entertain for hours. I don't necessarily look for the laughs. But I do like to talk to people, young or old. I like talking to people, asking them questions. I love the friendliness aspect. I like that I can use my creativity and my artistic talents, like sewing the costumes. I like thinking up shows and magic shows. For someone who has high energy, it's just never-ending, the possibilities. It's a huge toy box in front of you. That's your

Being a clown is obviously your passion. How do you feel that you were able to be so successful in this tri-community doing something you love?

"When I first moved back from California in 2009 — where I was with my husband for 17 years — it was hard. Everything was social media, not the phone book like I had been used to in previous years. One thing I did with my marketing degree is to just get out there. If people aren't seeing you, you just need to get out there. I looked in the paper to see what events were coming. The first year I was here I simply called all the places with events in the newspaper and I asked if I could come to the event for free, volunteering this year. They were all over it. That's all it took was one time. Then they wanted me back next year after seeing what I did and were willing to pay me."

Having such a positive response must feel

"Part of my reasoning for wanting to get a positive article in the paper is to combat what just went on last month. Clowns are doing really great things for people. If you look at clowns and what they were always meant to be — they're supposed to make you happy, make you smile. That's all we're still trying to do. The last thing we want to do is scare people or make people not like us. We just want to brighten your day. That's all we want to do. That's all I want people to know. That is our number one goal. There's enough stuff in the world to make you not smile. We're just trying to spread a little joy, that's all."

Legislators: Marijuana legalization still poses issues

In Southern Worcester County, it seems the majority related to the latter opinion, and local towns all voted in favor of the legislation, albeit by relatively close numbers to other areas of the state.

The following is the results from the question in the Stonebridge Press cov-

Following the results, Stonebridge Press reached out to some local state officials about the new law, and while the bulk of the region's elected leaders in Boston openly opposed the question, they said they certainly accept the fact that the voters have spoken.

State Rep. Joe McKenna (18th Worcester District), said he doesn't necessarily agree with the decision, but noted his opposition was based purely on concerns with the legislation itself, and not his personal beliefs about marijuana use.

"I was very outspoken against it, not on a philosophical level or whether marijuana was good or bad, but because of the details and the tax rate that was included," McKenna said. "There are so many details of this bill that are deeply flawed. We as a Legislature will need to correct that. It will be a major agenda item statewide."

McKenna's fellow state representatives seemed to agree that while the voters had their say and approved the legalization of marijuana, there are concerns about abuse of the drug, how to regulate it, taxation of the substance, and the legal ramifications of its abuse that all still need to be resolved.

"I did vote against it, but the people have spoken and we will respect the will of the people," 6th Worcester District State Rep. Peter Durant said. "Now we will have recreational marijuana, but because now it is a law, or will be, it's subject to amendments just like any other law, and we will consider some of those amendments. We're just starting to talk about it, really. Maybe we'll have a roundtable with local lawmakers and police chiefs to discuss it ... that's something we're considering. We'd like to get some ideas of what we may need to do to look at some of the

"The challenge now is getting the tweaks done on this new legislation, but overall it's something that will now happen in Massachusetts," 7th Worcester District State Rep. Paul Frost said. "I know my district was close. Statewide it was fairly close. It's going to be a law, it passed ... and I don't foresee the Legislature preventing it, but I do see some potential flaws and tweaks and problems with this law."

what exactly will happen, I think, will take shape over the next few weeks. I think there is room to make sure we address some of the vagueness in the law and some public safety concerns. We want to make sure that local communities will be able to properly zone where any sort of store is and we want to make sure edibles won't get into the hands of children. There are some issues of concern, but we will have to find a way to work within the law without overturning it.'

Worcester-Norfolk State Sen. Rvan Fattman said he too disagrees with the legislation, but said now the real work begins as lawmakers prepare to initiate the law and resolve some of the loopholes and issues that still remain a concern.

"I do have concerns about it, one of which is law enforcement has no ability to measure or gauge when someone is high and driving. There's not a scientific way of testing it like there is with blood alcohol level," Fattman said. "Also, it's still illegal on the federal level, and I'm concerned because I don't know what (President-elect Donald) Trump's Justice Department is going to do. Back in 2005, the Bush Justice Department had prosecuted people selling medical marijuana in California. So, I'm always cautious that you have to be careful with things like this because just because the state made it legal, federal law still exists and is supreme. I doubt anything would happen there. I think we're living in a different age where these laws will be changing, and at the end of the day, you have to respect the will of the people."

Stonebridge Press also spoke with Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis about the new legislation, who said he was also against the question, and while many in favor of making marijuana legal looked to law enforcement arrests of users to ridicule its illegality, he said the issues he has with the substance stemmed from much more wide-spread consequences of using the

"One of the rationales people had about it was that it's unfair for people to get arrested and go to prison for possession of marijuana and things like that. From the get go, that was a red herring," Evangelidis said. "It doesn't happen, and that's the fact so there are no people incarcerated today for possession of marijuana or small amount of marijuana, unless there is the complication of a small undercharge, like breaking probation. But we are in the middle of an opioid crisis, and I talk to inmates every day and they tell me the same story. It was always essentially marijuana that was a gateway for them to try other drugs. When they got high it changed everything for them. I don't think it's a good message to send to young people. It's a gateway drug for a lot of people, and I saw it as the wrong signal at the wrong time." Evangelidis said it's the first time he remembers in his six years that sheriffs throughout the state were on the same page with a piece of legislation, and while he respects the voters' decision, he hopes that some of the concerns he and others in the state have are addressed properly before the law takes

"We respect the will of the voters, and we'll work to help it be put into place in a responsible and careful way taking into consideration the potential of marketing to children, driving under the influence and other things that can and need to be regulated properly so it doesn't get out of control and we start looking back thinking that it was a bad decision," Evangelidis said.

With less than a month before the new law takes effect, it appears lawmakers have a lot of work ahead of them. While many are cheering the decision to approve marijuana for recreational use in the state, others fear the decision may cause more harm than good. Only time will tell just how harmful or insignificant the decision will be.

Gobi: 'Nothing is changing ... I'm back at it'

Another reason Gobi felt she may have pulled ahead was her opponent's "negative campaigning," which she felt may have turned a lot of people off, noting people "saw through it."

Despite that, Ehrhard only had positive words for Gobi after the race ended. He said: "It's unfortunate we lost, but we wish Gobi the best."

Although seemingly disheartened by the loss, Ehrhard said he was very proud of their campaign and noted that their race was the "closest Republican race in the entire state. We were the number-one Republican challenger by far. This district should have a Republican state senator and it's as simple as that. It can be done.'

The loss wasn't hard on Ehrhard because he lost. For Ehrhard, it was hard seeing the faces of his supporters and campaigners when the election results were announced.

"I would have liked to get those people a win," he stated. "This election isn't about me. It's about the people who came out and supported us. Looking at their faces on election night was the toughest part. It was all about the team we put together.'

Meanwhile, Gobi didn't take even a minute break from her job as senator. The next day, Wednesday, Nov. 9, Gobi was already in Charlton discussing their contaminated water issues and attending Veteran's Day programs. "Nothing is changing," said Gobi. "I'm back at it."

Gobi wished to thank the town clerks and poll workers throughout the state who "did an awful lot of work and continue to make sure the integrity of our voting system is kept." She is also thankful to her supporters.

Said Gobi: "I have great people that help me and many people who have been here with me since 2001. I'm very fortunate to have a big and loving family. I have the best supporters anywhere."

'It's so nice to see the community come together'

on Sunday, Nov. 6, trying out various chowders from 20 local vendors. For new JACF advisor and Culinary Arts Instructor Marcie Wood, the event was a huge success.

"It has a reputation for being a great venue to get some really tasty food," she said. "We had so many types of chowder and so many people love chowder. There was sweet potato with chicken sausages. There was a Mediterranean seafood chowder and chicken corn chowders.'

Guests had the opportunity to try out every chowder (multiple times) and vote on their favorite one. There were three winners this year: The Nazareth Home For Boys, The Twisted Fork and Tantasqua's The Cornerstone Café.

"I liked Tantasqua's the best, personally," noted Wood. "I liked the contrast of the crunchy bacon on top of the smooth chowder, the textural differences and the layers of flavor.'

But what Wood liked even more than the chowders was the community support. Many of the restaurants donated not only their chowder, but their time. They spent all Sunday preparing the food and serving it at Bay Path's Chowder Fest. Vendors that couldn't make it either sent their chowders to be served by Bay Path students or provided gift cards. Individuals that weren't from any particular restaurant also participated in the event, serving their special recipes.

"It's so nice to see the community come together," said Wood. "The money raised at this fundraiser pays for the students' membership in the JACF and for their trip to New York City."

A culinary instructor at Bay Path for the past six years, Wood recently applied to take over the Junior ACF. For the trip to NYC Wood hopes to let the students experiences they wouldn't normally get in "small rural areas," like checking out ethnic markets and nice restaurants with meals served by NYC professionals. And Wood is also hoping to get on a taping of The Chew, which features a panel of professional and famous chefs.

Members of the Junior ACF are culinary students at Bay Path that want to "do a bit extra," said Wood. The students come after school to try out ice carving and other things that aren't taught in class, like breaking down a fish and working with foods that the classes don't have during service.

New York City is an especially fun place at Christmas Time. The huge tree in Rockefeller Center will be lit, there will be skating on the rink, the stores are all decked out, and the hustle and bustle makes you get into the spirit of the season. It includes two nights' hotel, two breakfasts, two dinners and sightseeing with a local guide for two days, and entrance to the 9/11 Museum. A local guide will take you all around the city visiting places like Central Park, Times Square, Wall Street, and of course Rockefeller Center. All trips originate from the Whitinsville WalMart. Everyone is welcome to join the group on any of these trips. Call Sue L'Heureux at 508-476-5820 for more information on any of these trips.

Departure: Town Hall, 71 W. Main St, Dudley, 8 a.m.

Day 1: Depart in a spacious, video and restroom equipped motor coach and set off for beautiful Savannah, Ga. This evening you will stay at an en route hotel

Day 2: Enjoy a continental breakfast. Today you will continue your journey, then enjoy a leisurely dinner and check in to Savannah area hotel for a four-

Day 3: After a continental breakfast you will start your journey with a guided tour of genteel, beautiful, and historic Savannah, the "Belle of Georgia." You'll see architectural marvels, beautiful oak-lined streets, and lovely "Town Squares." Enjoy free time on historic River Street, featuring unique 18th century "ballast stone" streets and 19th century cotton warehouses that are now fine eateries, unusual shops and antique galleries. Later, enjoy a tour of one of Savannah's historic and famous homes. Tonight, you'll enjoy dinner and entertainment before returning to your hotel for the evening.

Day 4: Enjoy a continental breakfast before departing for fascinating and history rich Jekyll Island. See how the nation's wealthiest citizens like JP Morgan and William Rockefeller lived and played — including a stop at what was once the "Millionaires Club." Later you'll take a guided tour of St. Simons Island where you can take a stroll among moss-draped oaks or shop at the interesting boutiques and specialty shops in the historic area. After dinner you'll return to your hotel to rest for the next fun filled day.

Day 5: Today, after continental brakfast, enjoy a guided tour of magnificent Beaufort, S.C. "Queen of the Carolina Sea Islands." Beaufort's history dates as far back as the 1500's. Its striking mansions and scenery served as a backdrop for many major motion pictures including, "The Big Chill" and "Forrest Gump". You'll also tour the Parris Island Marine base, where 22,000 men and women complete their training each year. Highlights of your tour include the Iwo Jima Monument, Parade Field, and the Parris Island Museums. Tonight, enjoy a nice dinner before returning to your hotel for the evening

Day 6: Enjoy a continental breakfast at your hotel before leaving for the Airborne and Special Operations Museum in Fayetteville NC. This evening relax at your en route hotel.

Day 7: Today, after enjoying a continental breakfast, you will depart for home. A perfect time to chat with your friends about all the fun things you've done, the great sights you've seen, and where your next group trip will take you!

Make Head Checks A Weekly Habit At Home

Performing proactive head lice checks at home can prove beneficial for families.

(NAPS)

While school days can mean an influx of head lice cases as children are together in close quarters, you can help protect your family.

The Problem

spread through direct headto-head contact—not typically through sharing hairbrushes, scarves and hats. Research also shows that lice are often transmitted between siblings or neighborhood playmates.1 Lice are most commonly Performing weekly head checks at home can be a smart way to stop an infestation before it affects the entire fam-

It can take four to six weeks for infestation symptoms (such as itching) to show up.2 And catching lice early is vital to controlling them, so vigilance is key.

What You Can Do

Here are three tips on how to check your child's head for

Work under a bright light and use a nit comb to remove anything you find. Part your child's hair and watch for movement (lice quickly travel away from light).

Part the hair to look for eggs stuck to the shaft near the scalp. About the size of a poppy seed, lice often look like dandruff that can't be easily removed.

Pay particular attention to the nape of the neck, behind the ears and from bangs to the crown of the head. Recently laid eggs are nearly transparent, so it's helpful to examine hair from different

If your child does have lice, you may be glad to know Vamousse Lice Treatment kills lice and their eggs in one treatment. It uses non-toxic ingredients to dehydrate lice and nits rather than relying on pesticides such as permethrin and pyrethroids, to which super lice have become resistant.3

If your child has been exposed, Vamousse Lice Defense is recommended for daily use during high-risk periods and for 10 to 14 days after potential exposure to defend against an infestation. As with all the company's products, it's generally affordable, available over-the-counter, non-toxic and safe for the entire family.

Lice can quickly advance through several life cycles before being caught, so conducting routine head checks is a vital step toward helping your entire household stay licefree all year.

Teaching Your Child Healthy Habits

(NAPS)

If you're like most parents, you work hard to make sure your children eat their veggies, brush their teeth and always say "please" and "thank you," but one important habit is often forgotten.

Experts advise parents to teach children the importance of smiling. Smiling can positively affect you and the people around you, and lower stress, which should improve your child's quality of life.

What You Can Do Here's a look at a few of the habits that can be crucial to ensuring dren enjoy a healthy life-

Setting a regular bedtime: According to the National Sleep Foundation, children need at least 10 to 12 hours of sleep. By the age of 2, children have spent more time asleep than awake. Why is this? Sleep is vital to children's development and lets them be alert, fresh and ready to learn every day. While bedtime tantrums can be frustrating, they may well be an indicator that your child needs sleep. Avoid active endeavors right before bed and replace them with 30 minutes of relaxing, quiet activities. This

Keeping active: Encourage your children to play outside, join a team or take part in some other activity outside of school. This provides a

Smiling more often: Teach your child the importance of proactive oral care to ensure fewer trips to the dentist and a bright, healthy smile for life. Getting your children to brush and floss twice a day may not be easy, but parents can ensure their kids have a complete oral care routine by using Sunstar GUM®'s suite of toothbrushes, toothpaste and flossers for kids featuring popular themes such as  $Crayola^{TM}$ , Power Rangers $^{TM}$ , Dragons $^{TM}$  and Lalaloopsy $^{TM}$ . The new kid's toothpaste collection lets kids add color to their brushing routine. You can find your child's favorite colorful toothpaste, toothbrushes and flossers in retailers such as Target and online at www.gumbrand.com.

Reading for pleasure: Encourage your kids to take a break from video games, social media and other distracting forms of technology and pick up a book instead. Reading for pleasure will help expand your children's imagination and develop their reading skills. Once their homework is complete, designate a daily "screen-free" hour or make it a family activity by reading a chapter or two together before bed each night.

Five Tips To Prepare Your Children For Success In School

One of the best things you can do for your children is to make sure they attend school every day. After all, we want our kids to have the best possible chance of doing well in school and achieving their dreams. But getting a child to school isn't always easy. While some absences are understandable, it's important to understand the impact of each absence.

Although most parents understand the importance of getting their child to school every day, many believe that missing three or more days of school each month won't make a difference. In reality, as early as elementary school, students who miss just two school days per month are more likely to fall behind in school, and less likely to graduate from high school. Even when the absences are excused or understandable, absences add up. Students who miss just two days of school each month end up missing 18 school days, or 10 percent of the school days in a year.

By following these five simple tips, you can help ensure your child attends school every day. Attending school every day puts your child on the path toward success in school and in life.

What to Do:

Keep track of how many days of school your child has missed.

Figure out why your child is absent from school. Is your child dealing with a chronic illness such as asthma? Is he being bullied or struggling at school? Is she staying home to help care for a family member?

Ask teachers and community leaders for advice and specific resources. Reach out to other parents, too, to ask for help and share tips.

Consider enrolling your child in a mentoring or an afterschool program. When kids work with mentors, they learn about the importance of attending school every day. With an additional support system in place, kids learn strategies to address their day-today challenges. Similarly, when kids get involved in afterschool programs, they are more likely to feel connected to their school communities and are less likely to be absent.

Visit AbsencesAddUp.org for information on the impact of absences and resources to help prevent them in the future. On the website, you'll learn how to help children who are struggling in school, being bullied, managing chronic illness or dealing with mental health challenges. Additionally, the site

Sleep Is Key To Helping Teens Recharge For Success In School

Most teens, research suggests, lack sufficient sleep, putting them at risk for health and behavioral problems.

(NAPS)

Here's eye-opening news: For most teens, one of the best ways to find success in school is to get enough sleep.

When well rested, teens are more likely to be healthy, energetic and have a positive attitude toward life in general helping them be their best and do their best in school and at home.

To help, the National Healthy Sleep Awareness Project launched the "Sleep Recharges You" campaign, urging teens to get eight to 10 hours of sleep per night to promote optimal health.

"It's important to make sleep a priority," said Dr. Ronald Chervin, president of the American Academy of Sleep Medicine (AASM) and spokesperson for the National Healthy Sleep Awareness Project. "Setting and sticking to a routine to get as much sleep as possible is one of the best things teens can do for their health, academic achievement and athletic performance."

Lack of Sleep Jeopardizes Teens' Grades, Health and

More than two-thirds of high school students in the U.S. are failing to get enough sleep on school nights, according to a 2016 study published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Results show that 69 percent of surveyed students in grades 9 to 12 reported sleeping less than eight hours on an average school night. Insufficient sleep in teens can impact everything from grades to safety.

Sleepy teens may fare worse in school than their well-rested peers. Studies show that teens who are sleep deprived may be more easily distracted and recall information more slowly. Sleeping fewer than the recommended hours is also associated with attention, behavior and learning problems.

Lack of sleep may also affect teens' athletic performance. When teens sleep, hormones are released that help them grow taller and develop muscles. Sleep helps restore energy to the brain and body.

Studies show that teens who sleep less than the recommended hours are more likely to be overweight and develop hypertension and diabetes. Additionally, insufficient sleep in teenagers has been found to increase the risk of depression and is associated with increased risk of self-harm, suicidal thoughts and suicide attempts.

Insufficient significantly also increases teens' risk for drowsy-driving accidents. A 2014 study found that teen drivers who start class earlier in the morning are involved in significantly more motor vehicle accidents than those with later start times. Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for teens in the U.S., according to the CDC.

Parents, Caregivers Play Crucial Role

Teens should be encouraged to get enough sleep every night to recharge. The AASM advises parents and caregivers to help by modeling healthy sleep habits, promoting a consistent sleep schedule and creating a quiet sleep environment for their

Additionally, setting restrictions on screen time before bed is key to helping teens get to sleep on time. Teens may be tempted to keep using their laptops, smartphones and game consoles late into the night rather than going to

"Teens are still growing and developing and sleep is a crucial part of these processes," said Dr. Chervin. "One of the best things parents and caregivers can do for their children's health and well-being is to encourage routines that will help them get enough sleep.

According to the AASM, a natural shift in the timing of the body's internal "circadian" clock occurs during puberty, causing most teens to have a biological preference for a latenight bedtime.

It is also important that parents and local school boards work together to implement high school start times that allow teens to get the healthy sleep they need to meet their full potential.

Official Consensus

The AASM recommends that teens sleep eight to 10 hours per night on a regular basis to promote optimal health.

Parents concerned that their teen is sleeping too little or too much should consult a board-certified sleep medicine physician or visit www.sleepeducation.org to find an accredited sleep center nearby.

Making The Grade: Getting High School Seniors Ready For College

(NAPS)

Nearly 17 million high school seniors graduate each year, the U.S. Department of Education estimates, and many plan to attend college. But are they all really college-ready?

Data suggests the answer is a resounding "no." According to the 2015 "Condition of College & Career Readiness" report from American College Testing (ACT), 31 percent of the ACTtested graduating class is not meeting any of the four subject benchmarks: reading, English, science and mathematics.

These low-readiness test scores coincide with college dropout figures that top 29 million, making the number of Americans who have dropped out of college greater than the number of American adults who have not obtained their high school degrees.

While test scores provide a benchmark for high school seniors, college readiness is an important issue for everyone headed to college, whether they are a new high school graduate or an adult learner returning to the classroom," said Jennifer Fletcher, Ph.D., program dean for general education at University of Phoenix. "Being prepared for the challenge can help ensure students aren't forced to take remedial course work and are able to stay motivated and on top of their workloads, ultimately resulting in a successful collegiate experience."

The pressure to earn a college degree is higher than ever. The White House has set an ambitious goal of producing a higher share of college graduates than any other nation by 2020. The plan is to return the United States to the topranked nation after dropping into twelfth place.

"More and more, employers are seeking college graduates for jobs that previously required a high school diploma or other subbaccalaureate training," Dr. Fletcher said. "For the nearly two-thirds of U.S. adults who do not have a bachelor's degree or higher, this can create barriers to career growth, unless they are able to pursue higher education."

She offers the following advice to high school seniors and adult learners heading off to college:

Use summer months to take courses in English and mathematics to refresh high school level skills. Courses can be taken at community colleges or via online professional development resources such as University of Phoenix's continuing education programs, Udemy, StraighterLine and

Lynda.com. Don't overburden your first semester course load. There are always opportunities to add courses deeper into your college career or over summer and winter intersessions.

A few simple steps before you go to college can help make sure you do well when you get there.

Team up with your college adviser your first semester. College advisers are available to discuss your goals and a graduation timeline and can offer guidance on the best ways to manage coursework.

Attend skills center sessions for assistance in coursework and free proofreading.

Organize study groups with peers to work together on complex materials and to gain different perspectives to approaching assignments.

Take advantage college tools and resources. Computers, Internet access, office hours and a study location free of distractions are all things students can access that affect student success. When you couple this with healthy organizational and study habits, students can improve their chances of having a positive academic journey.
