As anyone who has lived with a cat knows, sleeping with a feline who owns you can be a challenge; as is well portrayed by Jennifer Niles.

Furry friends become messy muses

KIMBERLY MASCHI
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

Inspiration can come in many different ways. For Jennifer Niles, it came from her two cats, PK and Nellie.

"In 2001, I thought I'd try painting my two cats using acrylics. They were very cute and always doing adorable things," says Niles on what inspired her to begin painting.

"I had grown tired of my art being only 8in black and white. Those first paintings of my cats were what started my whole animal art business," says Niles.

Niles currently has many of her paintings up for display at the Oxford Public Library for the month of August. The library features a new artist each month and Niles paintings bring color and imagination into the space.

"I always wanted to be an artist," says Niles.

Niles paintings are enthralling and so much fun to look at. Each one tells a story and Niles captures the wild nature of each animal she paints. Although her parents did not believe art was a practical venture, Niles always kept it near to her heart.

"When I had a child, I wanted to stay home to raise him," she said so, Niles left the busy workforce and made the decision to really delve into her art.

Fallon opens Summit ElderCare site in Webster

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

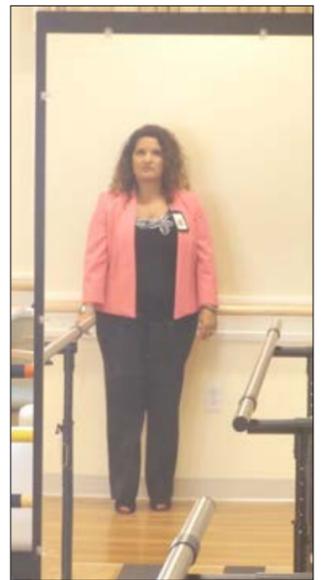

WEBSTER – Seniors seeking "wrap-around" services to keep themselves out of nursing homes have a new option in Webster.

Earlier this summer, Fallon's Summit ElderCare set up shop on Thompson Road, shifting many of its services from Overlook in Charlton. The site combines a senior day program with on-site primary medical care, exercise, activities, food, a spa, transportation and other services provided in coordination with the family.

At present, it averages about 60 clients a day, but is aiming to grow to around 270, which Executive Director AnnaMaria Salisbury said is "what the team can manage based on ratios."

"Nursing home care is so expensive, and this is an alternative," Salisbury said. "People prefer living at home if they can, and we help them stay at home safely."

Baker challenger upbeat despite apparent odds

BY GREG VINE
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

Four years ago, Dr. Scott Lively ran for governor of Massachusetts as an independent, garnering just over 19,000 votes; about .9 percent of ballots cast. Lively is running for governor again this year, but instead of seeking the office as an independent he has taken on the apparently Herculean task of trying to snatch the Republican nomination away from incumbent Charlie Baker in the September 4 state primary.

At the Republican State Convention in Worcester last April, Lively stunned many political observers by capturing the support of nearly 28 percent of the delegates, well over the 15 percent required to earn a spot on next month's primary ballot. However, a WBUR/MassINC poll conducted in late June showed Baker leading Lively among likely primary voters by a margin of 70 percent to 17 percent.

But three months is a lifetime in politics and, for his part, Lively remains unbowed.

"I'm very unhappy with the direction Charlie Baker is taking the Commonwealth," Lively told Stonebridge Press in a recent interview. "He's taking the entire Republican Party and shifting it farther

FD to assess communications after tornado

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — While the recent EF1 tornado in Webster may have caused significant damage to that town, it's important to remember that Webster was not the only community effected by the storm. The twister also caused issues for neighboring Dudley, who assisted in responding to the damage on West Main Street right across the town border while also assessing minor damage to buildings and properties in this community.

After being credited during an Aug. 13 meeting of the Board of Selectmen for responding professionally to the tornado and preceding storm, Fire Chief Dean Kochanowski credited his crew and the leadership of Captain Paul Konieczny for responding swiftly and effectively to the situation, and providing effective assistance to Webster to handle the damage after the storm hit. Kochanowski assessed the response and communication between personnel, the department, and the public.

"We had multiple ways to communicate. We got things out on Twitter and got things

Fire damages home on West Dudley Road

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — An early morning fire caused significant damage to a home in Dudley Aug. 13, bringing numerous departments to town to help control the blaze.

Calls came in at around 5:41 a.m. to dispatchers reporting a possible building fire at 32 West Dudley Road. The incident was called in while fire personnel from Dudley were already on the scene of a motor vehicle incident on West Main Street prompting a second alarm to be struck and other departments called in to assist. Dudley's Engine Two arrived on the scene to find a single-story home with fire pluming through the roof. Fire Chief Dean Kochanowski gave a full report to selectmen during a meeting later that evening saying the fire left the home uninhabitable.

"It was fully involved. It came in at 5:41 a.m. Nobody was in the house, it was vacant. The woman that did live there was living elsewhere. They were trying to renovate it to sell it. They were only doing painting and things like that and putting a septic system in," the chief said. "First crews got there and there was fire through the roof. The call came in initially through passersby. We had a little water issue in the beginning. We could have used a hydrant out there. We ended up getting a tanker to the pond down the road and we shuttled water and made a good recovery. The house is still standing. It was a total loss and was accidental."

Car Buying Tips

People ask Place: My new car seems so complicated. Why do I have all this technology?

The Right answer: During our recent Classic Cruise we were able to see first hand the many differences in today's cars versus the cars of yesterday. The new cars had so much more in electronics to increase performance, efficiency, comfort and most importantly safety. The innovations many of us have simply grown to expect in our cars were not available in the 50's, 60's or even 70's. Much of the now standard features were developed in just the last few decades. Federal regulation and of course customer demand have contributed to much of the new technology in the new cars. Even some of the new technology like your cell phone have sparked new tech in your cars. Airbags that were once only in the steering wheel now seem to come from everywhere and can create a complete "canopy" offering protection to passengers in every seating position. Ford even has available inflatable seat belts to provide rear passengers even more security. Anti-lock braking systems, stability control systems, adaptive cruise control, automatic climate control, intermittent wipers, infotainment systems, all-wheel drive, 6 and 10 speed automatic transmissions, power windows and door locks, back up cameras, electronic ignition and fuel injection are just some of the things we have seen in today's cars that weren't in those classic cars we love. In fact, did you know that in early F series pickups a passenger side windshield wiper was an extra cost option. We love those old cars and trucks. They sure are great to admire. Look closely at the new cars and trucks and marvel at the things they can do. The advancements are incredible and much more is coming to improve the next generation of transportation.

#MeToo luncheon planned in September

Woman in Business, Inc., a Sturbridge-area support group of dynamic women of all types of careers, has announced its September luncheon.

Held Wednesday, Sept. 12 at the Southbridge Hotel and Conference Center, the informative session will focus on the "Me, Too" movement — what employers are doing, what employees should know, and what changes are happening on a state and national level.

#MeToo spread virally in October 2017 as a hashtag used on social media in an attempt to demonstrate the widespread prevalence of sexual assault and harassment, especially in the workplace. Since then, it is a topic that countless women have responded to with their own stories and experiences. It also launched a movement that continues to call out and bring down men in all spheres of business and politics, who are now being held accountable for their actions and inaction.

WIB welcomes the public to join the conversation with Lisa Mason, SHRM-SCP, and Amelia J. Holstrom, Esq.

Mason is the director of human resources for Harrington HealthCare System, a position she has held since 2009. In this role, she provides leadership and counsel in HR matters including employee relations, salary administration, benefits, staffing, compliance, training and education to the health-care system's 1,400 employees. She has also designed, developed and delivered training programs including employee engagement, sexual harassment prevention and employment law. Prior to her role at Harrington, Mason was the HR director for the (then) Hubbard Regional Hospital. She has more than 30 years of experience in HR, including 13 years at Allmerica Financial (now Hanover Insurance) where she managed employee relations and staff development for 6,000 employees.

Holstrom is an attorney with Skoler, Abbott and Presser, P.C., with offices in Springfield and Worcester. Since 1964, Skoler Abbott has exclusively represented management and employers in the fields of labor relations and employment law. Skoler Abbott's clients range from small, not-for-profit agencies to national Fortune 500 companies. Since joining the firm, Holstrom has provided legal advice to employers who want to remain union-free; represented clients at arbitrations; and defended employers against claims of discrimination, retaliation, harassment, wrongful termination, as well as actions arising under wage & hour law and other state and federal laws. Additionally, Holstrom frequently provides counsel to management on taking proactive steps to reduce the risk of legal liability that may be imposed as the result of employment practices, including comprehensive policy and handbook reviews. She is a current member of the board of directors and executive committee for GSCWM; member of the board for Clinical and Support Options, Inc.; and an ad hoc member of the personnel committee for the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts. Holstrom was a selected as a 40 Under Forty honoree by BusinessWest in 2015; received the Massachusetts Bar Association Community Service Award in 2016, and was named as an Up & Coming Lawyer Honoree by Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly for its Excellence in the Law Event in 2017.

The cost is $20 for members and $25 for guests.

WIB is welcoming new members to its organization. The group holds events year-round including an annual scholarship fundraiser, networking receptions, breakfast presentations and luncheon seminars. Members also receive newsletters, social media attention, a website listing and other incentives to further expand professional development and growth. Dudley officials denounce Warren's statements on law enforcement

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — Town officials have fired back in the wake of controversial comments made by U.S. Senator for Massachusetts Elizabeth Warren during a Q&A session on Aug. 3 on New Orleans at which she called the criminal justice system in the United States “racist.”

Senator Warren, who many believe could be a potential Democratic presidential nominee in the future, made the statements during a session hosted by the Congressional Black Caucus Chairman Cedric Richmond at Dillard University and almost immediately the statements caught backlash from elected officials and emergency responders nationwide. On the local level, Dudley's selectmen and police chief have both spoken openly through statements or public forum to make their disappointment in Warren's statements known.

Dudley Police Chief Steve Wojnar serves as president of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association and released a letter to Senator Warren's office on behalf of the organization calling her claims troubling.

“Labeling the entire criminal justice profession as ‘racist’ spreads false and damaging information about our members. We feel we do a very good job in Massachusetts of producing professional and community-oriented police officers. These men and women, from a variety of backgrounds, provide dedicated service to their respective communities under difficult and highly scrutinized circumstances each day,” Wojnar's letter read.

“As leaders, we are always concerned about having our officers conduct themselves professionally and fairly when dealing with the public. When our elected officials make generalized and inflammatory statements about our entire profession, without any information to back their position, it creates further hostility toward our officers and can damage the positive relationships with our residents that we have worked long and hard to establish.”

Wojnar went on to state Senator Warren's comments seems strategically placed in order to garner support for her position on the matter, and mentioned recent deaths of local law enforcement officers in Yarmouth and Weymouth as well as the shootings of two Falmouth police officers who were “simply doing their jobs.” Wojnar said the outpouring of support in the wake of these incidents is evidence Senator Warren's position does not reflect the local public opinion of police.

Wojnar was not the only officials from Dudley to speak up. During a meeting Aug. 13 several Dudley selectmen made their voice heard immediately at the start of the gathering with Selectman Steven Sullivan saying he wishes Senator Warren would help find a solution rather than feeding into any problems she may perceive in regard to law enforcement.

“A year and a half ago the Dudley Board of Selectmen put out a statement of support for all our first responders with all the turmoil and craziness going off in the world. We just want to state publicly we back our police chief. We back our fire and EMS, our emergency management people, our highway, all our public safety people and we support Chief Wojnar with the letter that he wrote calling Senator Warren for the comments that she made concerning her opinion of the criminal justice system,” Sullivan said. “It's sad that she chose a forum so far away from her home state to say something that was so inflammatory that was almost beyond belief. I don't speak for the whole board, but I speak for myself when I publicly ask Senator Warren to be part of the solution not part of the problem.”

Selectman Jonathan Ruda agreed with Sullivan's remarks while Selectman John Marsi added some comments of his own to the discussion.

“We support our public safety team. We've seen what they see. We have reports on it. Why would you politicize something like that? Let's be part of the solution, not part of the problem,” said Marsi.

Selectmen Kerry Cyganiewicz and Paul Joseph were not present for the meeting and thus were not able to share their comments or positions on Senator Warren's statements.

SUMMIT CARE

vices (Programs of All-inclusive Care for the Elderly). According to the state's website, PACE is “administered by MassHealth and Medicare to provide a wide range of medical, social, recreational, and wellness services to eligible participants. The goal of PACE is to allow participants to live safely in their homes instead of in nursing homes.”

A long list of services is available through PACE without co-pays, including prescription drugs, nutrition counseling, various kinds of therapy, medical equipment, lab testing, and family caregiver support, among others, provided it is “approved by your interdisciplinary team,” the state site states.

“This is very coordinated care,” Salisbury said. “Our team gets to know every participant and their families,” meets daily for patient updates, and does “comprehensive assessments” at least twice a year.

Participants “must meet all of the eligibility criteria” the state sets out. Those include being 55+, on Medicare and/or Medicaid, eligible for nursing home care but still living in the community, meet Title XVI disability standards, and “agree to receive health services exclusively through the PACE organization.”

Most of the PACE organizations are somewhat geographically limited and often overlap. Summit has six sites in Worcester, Hampden, Hampshire and Middlesex counties, while Harbor Health covers Middlesex, Norfolk and Suffolk counties and the other firms cover two or fewer counties each. At the moment, seven Bay State counties do not have a provider, particularly all of the southeastern counties.

In Summit's case, the firm is “both a health plan and a provider of care,” Summit spokeswoman Caroline Wattu noted.

In 2014, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services evaluated 22 then-existing studies on PACE's effectiveness and found “none offers strong evidence on the effectiveness of PACE.”

“There is some evidence that PACE improves certain aspects of care quality – for example, those related to management of specific health issues such as pain – and that PACE enrollees have a lower mortality rate,” authors Arkadipta Ghosh and team found. They also noted, “PACE enrollees have fewer inpatient hospitalizations than their fee-for-service counterparts, but they appear to have higher rates of NH [nursing home] admission.”

Their paper is available at <https://aspe.hhs.gov/basic-report/evaluating-pace-review-literature>.

Particularly, the review was critical of cost issues, stating, “PACE has no significant effect on Medicare costs, but it is associated with significantly higher Medicaid costs, with the Medicaid spending gap between PACE and matched comparison enrollees decreasing over time. Therefore, based on currently available evidence in the literature, we conclude that PACE does not save costs for either program, and it raises overall cost through an increase in Medicaid expenditures.”

The Medicare website notes that Medicaid members do not pay premiums for their long-term care or prescriptions under PACE, but Medicare members without Medicaid do.

On the other hand, a California cost study that's undated states, “PACE costs less on a per member basis than other services and programs serving frail seniors, is effective in managing beneficiaries with multiple chronic conditions and keeps frail seniors in their homes and communities and out of expensive hospitals and nursing homes.” Available at www.calpace.org, it shows that state's PACE program per-patient costs in 2015 were 5 percent below its Medi-Cal fee-for-service rate, and 24-31 percent less than institutional care costs.

Salisbury said the program is a “primary nursing model” with care led by either a doctor or nurse practitioner. Among other things, it can provide various in-home services, including homemakers, health aides and meal delivery via Meals on Wheels.

“It's the way healthcare should be,” she said. “This is the way of the future. This model is going to continue to grow, but I don't know if enough people know about this model.”

How many homes should I look at before I find the right one!

The most important part is to follow the best process for your home search. I highly recommend that you get a preapproval right away before deciding to look at homes unless you are paying cash. The reason for this is that if you look at the perfect home today and it takes till tomorrow to get a preapproval and write an offer then

have a preapproval in place and know what price you are comfortable with you should sit down with a Realtor for a consultation. This consultation should include questions to help them understand your wants and needs and possibly even help you discover what you really want and to decide if this is the agent you will hire. This agent should then be looking for homes for you as you do the same and when you send them homes to see they should research to see if there is any reason this home will not be a fit for you and bring out those reasons. This will prevent wasting your time looking at the wrong homes. Once this process is followed you should be able to find the right home within 6-10 homes or less unless your criteria changes or you are in a competitive market and you keep getting beat out on offers.

If you are not really sure what you want, then it may make sense for you to stop by some open houses to get an idea of what is out there prior to starting your home search. This way you can just go when they are open on Saturday or Sunday and not have the sellers have to leave for a showing if you are not serious about buying a home just yet.

"I sold only paintings at first, but then moved onto murals and teaching 'Paint your Pet' classes," says Niles.

Niles' classes have been very popular and it is easy to see why. The paintings displayed at the library show crisp and dedicated lines. Fun, bright, and calm colors. While looking at the paintings Niles makes you feel you could be an artist as well.

When art is explored and experienced, each artist feels connected with each piece. It can be hard to part with pieces. The artist always leaves a bit of their soul behind when a piece is finished. Niles says she gets happiness from creating.

"My art is cheerful and bright, and it celebrates things from everyday life."

When others see Niles paintings they immediately smile. Niles says that even if she doesn't sell a piece, she loves to make people happy with her art.

While Niles has a hard time choosing which painting is her favorite; she says her customers definitely have favorites. A popular piece is a painting of dogs at the beach for the Children's Hospital in Boston.

"I think it really captures my whimsical and colorful style in general," says Niles.

Another favorite is "Beware of Cat Kisses" which pictures a cat cleaning itself in a very humorous position.

"So many of my paintings have a special place in my heart," says Niles.

Visit the Oxford Public Library to see the art by Jennifer Niles and other artists to come. Be sure to visit JenNilesArt.com and Facebook at Jen Niles Art.

An American dream made real

On July 7, 1902, Vincent Grzyb and Tekla Bilka, both immigrants from Poland, were married. They lived in the Jericho section of Dudley and had 12 children. On Aug. 11th of this year, a Grzyb family reunion took place at Camp Foskett in Charlton. Approximately 80 people, representing five generations of descendants of Vincent and Tekla, were in attendance. Family from all over the country came to enjoy the event and had a chance to reconnect and meet relatives. The event included a buffet of Polish food, polkas, family photos and games.

On Aug. 11, 116 years later, more than 80 family members, descendants of Vincent and Tekla, gathered for a reunion.

At either end of the front row sit proud Tekla and Vincent Grzyb surrounded by their 12 adult children.

Making a connection for the cats

The Saint Joseph School National Junior Honor Society (NJHS) recently presented Dave Obuchowski, volunteer coordinator at the Community Cat Connection, with cat litter, dry and wet cat food, treats, laundry detergent, and paper towels, as well as a check for $125. After presenting their donations, the students toured the facility and learned about the mission of the Community Cat Connection and volunteer opportunities at the shelter. They also had a great time playing with some of the many kittens and adult cats that are available for adoption.

The Honor Society Students raised the money during their Lenten service project. Each member created a fun Easter basket that they raffled-off to fellow students. They raised $300.

National Junior Honor Society members include Benjamin Duval, Emilia Pianka, Szymon Mamro, Remonda Mankarios, and Kaileigh Strong. Their advisor is Mrs. Karen Lefebvre.

Students are eligible for an invitation to the Saint Joseph School NJHS at the end of their 6th or 7th grade academic year. Cumulative Grade Point Averages (GPA) are calculated based on every completed quarter of middle school, starting with the first quarter of 6th grade, and invitations are sent to those who have a 3.50 or higher cumulative GPA in the core subjects: religion, math, literature, language arts, science, social studies, and spelling. In addition to academic excellence, students are expected to demonstrate good citizenship and be of excellent character, which deals with responsibility, compassion, honesty, self-discipline, fairness, trustworthiness, integrity, perseverance, respect, cooperation, courtesy, work ethic, modesty, and tolerance.

Adult basic education now serving Southbridge and Webster

For 19 years, the Webster public schools' adult basic education program has supported offering adults in South County the opportunity to build basic academic skills and to improve English language skills. As summer draws to a close, the program is excited to announce exciting changes, as well as announce class offerings for the 2018-19 school year.

First, the program has a new name. The Webster Adult Basic Education is now known as Webster ABE Linkages. This name change celebrates the program's evolution into a true education and employment program. French River Park excels

To the Editor:
 Last Thursday night, Webster's French River Park was the setting for a troupe of talented actors to bring the words of the Bard to life! Just like in Elizabethan times, the traveling production company brought a theatrical performance out of the city and into the countryside. And what a lovely setting it was, along the French River on a warm summer evening, for one of Shakespeare's delightful comedies!

The evening was almost as magical as the antics in the Forest of Arden where most of the play transpired in As You Like It. The Brown Box Theater Project (brownboxtheatre.org) erected an imaginative set in the center of the park. The lighting and sound were exceptional, and the large audience, seated on the ground or in lawn chairs, was close to all the action served up by the polished, professional players. I have attended many Shakespearian plays in London, and this production was certainly of London quality. And to think, it was presented in what until a few years ago was a jungle of trees and weeds!

The fact that the town of Webster is able to enjoy this type of theatrical production is due to the dedication of individuals and groups that had the foresight to see potential and work to achieve it. The French River Connection, the town of Webster and the owners of the land, Holden Block, LLC, worked together 10 years ago to achieve this transformation of unused space into the vibrant park it is today. It now hosts weekly concerts during the summer, art displays, a farmer's market, as well as events for local groups and businesses. It offers a wonderful view of the river and a pleasant place to sit or walk along the Riverwalk that is taking shape, with a new addition each year. What was once an eyesore is becoming a focal point of one of Webster's natural resources. Success can be attributed to the care given to the park by the town's highway department, and the police who keep an eye on it, and the volunteers who plant flowers, and the Office of Community Development which oversees the growth and direction of this wonderful expansion of the Riverwalk. The Recreation Committee brought this particular event to town by securing a local business to support a major part of the expense (Thanks Page Chiropractic!).

Since the first concert in the park in 2012, produced by the French River Connection with a grant from the Janet Malsler Humanities Trust, to this wonderful theatrical event just six years later, the French River Park has come of age! Keep up the good work volunteers. We look forward to more exciting events.

When us the right time to give up driving?

CHIEF'S CORNER
STEVE WOJNAR

The decision to give up a driver's license, particularly for senior drivers, is a very difficult one. Family members, medical professionals, and police officers are often involved in these cases. This is also a difficult aspect of my job when it becomes necessary to file a petition to have a person's license taken away.

One possible option to consider is the voluntary surrender of a license. There are several reasons why this is a good option for people and I wanted to provide some further information about this program.

The main concern many people have is they may never be able to regain their license once it is surrendered. There is good news there. A person who gives up their license voluntarily can reapply. They will be most likely asked to provide medical documentation stating they are competent to receive a license. The Registry may also require a road test if the situation warrants. Therefore, a voluntary surrender of your license is not permanent unless it is necessary. Further information can be found by logging on to the Registry web site at www.massdot.state.ma.us/rmv/, or at any RMV branch.

In addition to the restriction on freedom, many people are concerned with having no formal identification. Since this is needed for medical care, banking, and other functions, what will someone do if this is gone? There is a solution to this also. According to the Registry, anyone who voluntarily surrenders their driver's license can receive a Massachusetts Identification card free of charge. A person can complete what is called a Voluntary Surrender Affidavit form located at any Registry branch or on line at <http://www.massrmv.com/rmv/forms/21860.pdf>. By completing this, a person voluntarily surrenders their license. This then entitles that person to a free identification card. They will have a valid, state issued ID.

People who may have difficulty driving face the tough decision of giving up their license. This is not easy as people sacrifice a great deal of freedom when this privilege is lost. Many people need to self-assess their ability to safely drive a motor vehicle. This is especially true as we age and if medical restrictions are present.

No one wants to be a danger to themselves or others while traveling on the roads. If a person has any apprehension about maintaining proper identification without a driver's license, they have this valuable program to assist them in making the decision to surrender their license a bit easier.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com.

EDITORIAL

Continuing: Free speech is for BOTH sides

When you read the letters to the editor today, you might find one from someone not from your town. That is because we are using it as an example for this editorial. You see, we need to stress yet again, that you don't get to choose who gets free speech.

Right away we need to say we don't agree with the letter writer, and we continue always to stress to our opinionated people to make certain they tell those reading it is indeed their opinion, even if they are attempting to cite facts as they know them.

Example: no, America is not "85% Christian." The latest Gallup poll conducted in 2017 had people self identifying as Christian a bit less than 75% of the time, and mostly without an affiliation to any specific church. The trend, according to Gallup, was expected to continue downward, as the younger respondents did not identify with any organized religion at all.

The controversy over the raising of a statue of the 10 Commandments at the Little Rock AR state capitol is not a done deal. The American Civil Liberties Union has a lawsuit pending in federal court over the matter, stating obviously it violates the First Amendment against establishing religion in government. It has been the site of several continuing protests, had a car driven into it, and the statue of Baphomet is just the latest protest.

Baphomet, who is actually a made up "deity" and if anything is a demon and not the devil at all; was originally described as the idol of the Knights Templar when the church was attempting to discredit them centuries ago. Descriptions of "him" vary depending on which compendium you choose to read, but it is known that Alistair Crowley, one of the earliest "magicians" who attempted to codify the various branches of the occult in some fashion, took the name as his own magical identification.

And yes, there does exist a group calling itself the Satanic Temple. Its headquarters are right in Salem (how appropriate); and it does not call itself a church. It does have enough organization, to launch freedom of speech and religion campaigns nationwide, include lawsuits in Missouri and Arkansas. Among its seven tenets of conduct is "The freedom of others should be respected, including the freedom to offend."

The group manages to do that quite well. And the eight and a half foot (even the size is quoted wrong by the letter writer) statue of Baphomet (by the way the name, which is combination of Greek and Roman words, means torch of wisdom), which they will continue to use as a tool and representation of their group at various venues where they feel a point should be made.

Will it offend. Yes.
 Should they have the right to do so. Yes.

Should the letter writer have the right to decry the event. Absolutely. But please get the facts correct.

People become passionate about what they believe in. From both sides. And we support that.

Dubois: blasphemy is not free speech

To the Editor:
 Last Friday, "The Satanic Temple" used a truck and a forklift to bring a giant 7.5 ft. tall bronze statue of a goat-headed-and-winged creature to the Arkansas state capital in Little Rock and attempted to display this next to the 10 commandments. This is blasphemous and as Americans we cannot allow this to continue.

The organizers gathered for what they called a "First Amendment Rally." They called the Satan statue a symbol of tolerance. There is nothing more intolerant to Christians which represent 85% of the country than Satan. As a society, we don't allow hate speech, and we shall not allow hate statues. I don't even think the Satanic Temple is real, I think it is a bunch of hell-bound atheist college students trying to mock Christianity and Christians. Thankfully they were forced to remove the statue at the end of their rally.

The legislature of Arkansas has been courageous through it all. They were admirable for erecting the 10 commandments monument in front of the state capital, on the Capitol grounds in 2015. I commend them for passing a law in 2017 requiring all monuments be sponsored by an elected legislator in an attempt to avoid the predicament they are in. The Satan statue is offensive, it is hate speech, it is blasphemous, and it is NOT free speech.

When things fall apart... we come together

On Saturday, Aug. 4, I woke at around 8:30 and went for a walk. I wear a Fitbit, and I find that if I am going to get in my "steps" in the hot weather, I need to go out early. Neither I nor my four-footed exercise machine, otherwise know as my dog, care for hot weather. So out the door I went and around and about for a couple of miles. I went back home, changed and was reading a book when my phone started going crazy. "Tornado in Webster", it said. Wait, what? I grew up in Georgia and thought I had left tornadoes behind when I moved to New England.

I should point out that although I pastor a church in Webster, I was sitting on a beach in South Georgia that morning on my last full day of vacation. I didn't know how severe the damage was, so using my mad investigative skills, I checked out the Webster, Dudley, Oxford Thompson Facebook group. There were pictures and reports of damage, but there were also, within hours, links to fundraising pages to support the small businesses that had been damaged, locals who owned restaurants offering to provide food, reports of the Red Cross on the ground, and the Senior Center opening as a shelter.

On Tuesday, I spoke to the director of the Senior Center, who told me that in a conversation with some of the relief people, they commented to her that they had been quite impressed with how the community had come together to help those who had lost businesses and homes.

She said, "We don't see that everywhere."

I'll say that sometimes that community FB group I mentioned earlier frustrates me. It can be a useful source of information, but it's also easy to use it as an outlet when things go wrong.

 "My trash didn't get picked up today."
 "The public beach is littered."
 And so on.

I've heard it said that the Chinese word for crisis combines the characters for "danger" and "opportunity." I don't speak Chinese, so I can't vouch for that, but I like the concept. In every crisis, we can choose to come together and become fixers and problem-solvers, or we can retreat into our shells and have a pity party. I am one of the first to admit that Webster has problems. Drugs, addiction, joblessness, homelessness, and I'm sure you can add to the list. As we move forward as a town, though, I hope we can take some lessons from our response on a Saturday morning in August. Webster, seen through the eyes of others who came to help, is a community that can come together to solve its problems. May we be the town that others see.

Time to put excess cash to work?

You'll always want to base your investment decisions on your own needs and goals. But there may be times when you might consider adjusting your portfolio because of risks and opportunities. Now may be one of those times.

Here's some background: In recent months, the Federal Reserve has raised short-term interest rates several times, and given its generally favorable outlook on the economy, it has indicated it may continue bumping up interest rates gradually over the next year or so. The Fed doesn't control long-term interest rates, but these rates often follow the lead of short-term movements. However, longer-term rates haven't yet risen as much as short-term ones, which means the difference between short- and long-term rates is relatively small, historically speaking.

This doesn't mean you should make drastic changes to your portfolio. You still need to stick with the asset allocation that's suitable for your situation, which typically involves owning a certain percentage of growth-oriented vehicles, such as stocks, and a certain percentage of fixed-income securities, such as bonds. However, if you do have space in the fixed-income part of your portfolio, you may find the higher interest rates offered by short-term bonds and certificates of deposit (CDs) to be attractive. To take advantage of this opportunity, though, you will need to have the cash available to invest.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Some people hold too much in cash, waiting for interest rates to rise, or as protection against the risk of a market decline. But holding excess cash involves its own risk - the risk of not investing. So, if you have your cash needs covered, you may want to consider investing any excess cash.

To determine if you are holding excess cash, you'll need to review your entire cash situation. For example, do you have enough cash, or cash equivalents, to create an emergency fund

Next move, closeout all opposition media?

Conservative outlets are aflame with what appears to be Internet giants Facebook, Google and Twitter's intentional move to closeout conservative viewpoints on their platforms. This is significant because the big five Internet companies' collective worth is estimated to be about $4 trillion, a total that places them above the GDP of nearly all countries. Since they are the major vehicles through which all information is disseminated globally, should they succumb to a collective political view they could control the world. If conservatives are correct this may be in progress.

We show we are free to the extent we tolerate opposing viewpoints. How does one know he is free unless everyone is free to express himself?

In July Facebook suddenly dropped a campaign ad from California Republican congressional candidate Elizabeth Heng claiming the ad, showing scenes of Cambodian genocide experienced by her family, was "disrespectful" content. No such barometer is used on left of center outlets. Something similar happened, conservatives argue, to other conservatives this year notably Diamond and Silk (said to be "unsafe to the community"), Ben Shapiro, Dave Ruben and Dennis Fraser.

But the incident bringing this to a head nationally last week was when Internet giants ganged-up on Alex Jones. Apple pulled several of his podcasts from the iTunes store, Facebook unpublished four of his pages, and YouTube "suspended the Alex Jones channel with its $4 million subscribers," all charging that he violated their "hate speech" policies (Laura Ingraham, The Ingraham Angle, August 7, 2018). Hate speech has become synonymous with opposition speech. All this begs the question, "Is the next move of the globalist to close out all opposition media?"

Ingraham told her audience that this Internet heavy handedness began in earnest last February when "Facebook launched a new algorithm that would cause top conservative pages to see a dramatic drop in traffic and this included personal pages by the way. President Trump's Facebook page saw a 45% drop."

She asked, "Why do leftist... always seem to escape big tech censures?"

"But this isn't about Alex Jones," she argued, "This is about freedom and our access to information from the sources we as individuals trust and like. If big tech can control the information flow then they can also perhaps even influence the outcome of the midterms and even future presidential elections... And that is the point! Controlling who has a voice and who doesn't on these monster platforms is tantamount to limiting speech."

In the national media war, it is increasingly obvious that the Establishment Media, mostly the over 300 Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) members who have dominant power in it, seriously threaten the 15% (as reported on The Tucker Carlson Show Aug. 8) that is not yet controlled by them. The fact that still half of Americans have not heard of this ever growing influence over the last nearly 100 years, because they are already hooked on only Establishment News sources is evidence of its power expansion. A very real possibility exists that those who do not already know of CFR control over the media and government never will, allowing a future existence of no opposition media. We would have entered an Orwellian society from which there exists no exit.

But when this dominance moves to Internet giants Facebook, Google and Twitter this threat becomes global. The conservative panic watching their diminished ability to resist the "secret combination" chorus of the globalist, the Deep State, and the Establishment media for ending free speech opposing them is not new to those who read or view more than just Establishment sources.

Internet bias against alternative news has been going on for more than a decade. Matt Drudge, Alex Jones, Steve Bannon of Breitbart and Mike Adams of Natural News have all talked about it. Over a year ago The New American reported: "Breitbart News, the Drudge Report, InfoWars, Natural News, and dozens of other Internet-based news providers have already been targeted and are feeling the impact of the corporate-government jackbooted heel on their jugulars" (News: Alternative, Real, Fake, May 8, 2017, p. 11).

But bias against alternative news sources was not enough. A second tier of the attack has been to cut off conservative advertisers. Each has complained about this — even Rush Limbaugh.

AppNexus, who specializes in Internet ad delivery and handles about $2.5 billion in ad spending, has also adopted the "ideological squeeze play" as have Omnicom and AdRoll "two additional huge advertisement buying networks that have joined the thought police."

Over a year ago ADRoll informed InfoWars that their advertising campaigns were suspended.

"All content on your website should be relevant, accurate, informative, and up to date. Any claims should be easily verifiable" (Ibid.).

Using this criteria, anything could be excluded. Since so much of MSNBC, NBC, CNN and other news cites dominated by CFR globalists are not accurate or verifiable, as per the Trump Russian Collusion story, why should they get a pass? That is the point.

As reported the latest play in the "ideological squeeze play" is the current practice of Internet giants Facebook, Google and Twitter's intentional move to closeout conservative viewpoints on their platforms by removing their pages or even, in the case of Alex Jones, suspending his channel. It does appear that the present move of the globalist is to close out all opposition media?

out on Facebook. We were able to communicate with portables, with cell phones as a back-up. The gaps listed is, there was no pre-incident information, but I was told by MEMA that a prewarning did go out," Kochanowski said.

He added the lack of a public information officer, or PIO, was another weakness the department discovered in their response to the situation. There was no clear path for information and details to be sorted through for release to the media. There were concerns false information of homes and displacements of residents were reported as facts. Selectmen and fire officials were also surprised social media played such a big role in early information being sent out about the tornado as citizens turned out to inspect the damage done by the storm in both Dudley and Webster.

"We found this to be one of our weakest areas. We probably should have set up some type of command post with a unified command and had a PIO officer of some type. We were a little short in that area. There was no secondary PIO appointed," Kochanowski said. "There wasn't a real clear line of how we disseminated information to the media. There was some false information put out there after we triple checked. I think some of this should have been reported back to emergency management and they should have been able to disseminate the information and that didn't happen."

Still, a tornado is a rare occurrence in the Webster and Dudley area, so Kochanowski admitted the incident was a learning experience especially with the need to set up a quick response where other more typical storm events allow hours or even days to set up a command post and response plan.

"This is all stuff you learn by doing more of these events. A tornado is a bit of a different animal because it's only on the ground for a minute. It's a real brief thing. It wasn't like in 2011, when we had the October snow storm and it was a multi-day event and we had a lot of time to set things up and get things going," said the chief. "You get overwhelmed with a snow storm but it's over a longer period of time. This is over in, what, one minute? I think all of the departments did an excellent job. It's just a different type of situation and the gaps we can work on."

In the end, no injuries were reported and only an estimated 25 homes were damaged in Dudley, but not enough to consider them uninhabitable or unsafe. Chief Kochanowski said his crews went door to door to triple check each home that was in the path of the twister. "There were no Dudley residents that were permanently displaced. There have been a couple that went to stay with relatives and friends while the power was out but we're 99.9 percent sure that no Dudley residents were displaced," said the Chief.

of three to six months' worth of living expenses? This fund can be vital in helping you pay for things like a major car repair or an unexpected medical bill without dipping in to your long-term investments. And, of course, you need enough liquidity to provide for your lifestyle, including your regular spending needs — your mortgage, utilities, groceries and so on. Also, you may want to set aside enough cash for a goal you want to reach in the next year or so, such as a vacation.

But if you have taken care of all these needs and you still have excess cash, you may want to consider putting this cash to work, possibly by investing in short-term fixed-income vehicles now being issued at higher interest rates.

And keep in mind that regardless of where interest rates are going, bonds and other fixed-income investments can offer some key benefits to investors. In addition to providing a source of regular income, these types of investments can help reduce the effects of volatility on your portfolio. While bonds can, and will, fluctuate in value, they typically can provide more stability to your portfolio and tend to behave differently than stocks over time.

After years of historical lows, shorter-term rates now have risen to levels that are more attractive to investors. Take the time to review your situation, perhaps with the help of a financial professional, to determine if taking advantage of these rates may be appropriate for you.

Alexis is a joyful nine-year old girl of Caucasian descent whose smile and laugh lights up the room! Alexis has had many medical challenges in her short life, but she has an optimistic spirit and brings so much joy to those who know her. While she cannot speak, Alexis makes her needs known in other ways through adaptive technology and non-verbal cues. She also does make sounds and her caregivers are very attuned to what her different tones mean. Alexis loves being around other children and likes participating in different activities with her peers. She loves to

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples. The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-54-ADOPT (617-542-3678) or visit www.mareinc.org.

The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

WEBSTER — At least 100 people brought lawn chairs to French River Park last Thursday to be transported to the Forest of Arden for a couple hours in the inaugural Webster performance of Brown Box Theatre's traveling Shakespeare comedy "As You Like It."

Typical of the Bard, it was a contrast in lifestyles. Relaxed forest life confronts uptight castle demands. Girl plays boy wooed by boy and girl. Another boy goes after girl who hates him. And everyone gets together in the end.

Orlando (Drew Cleveland) introduces himself to Jacques (Jesse Garlick) and Duke Senior (Spencer Tew) in a rather challenging way that quickly proves to be a misunderstanding.

Rosalind (Margaret Clark) in disguise as Ganymede.

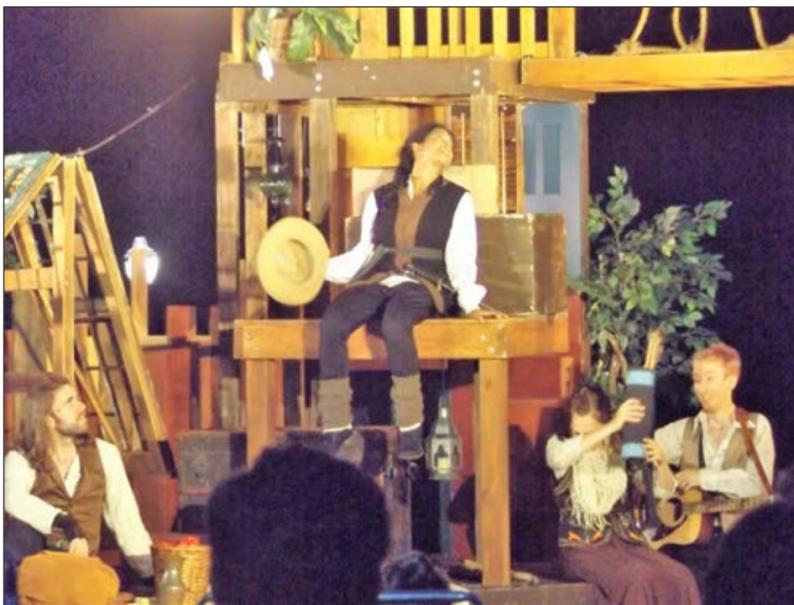

Celia (Austyn Davis) and Rosalind (Margaret Clark) figure out how they're going to escape to the forest.

Aliena, above, looks on as Ganymede confuses Orlando into addressing "him" as Rosalind.

Celia and Rosalind, revealed as themselves again, marry Oliver and Orlando.

Life in Arden is relaxed and musical, with Amlens (Khyati Sehgal) taking center stage.

Duke Frederick (Patrick Curran) consults with Oliver de Boys about how to best find Oliver's brother, Orlando.

Shepherd Corin (Chris Kandra) listens as Celia (Austyn Davis), in costume as Aliena, mocks poetry she found posted all over the forest addressed to Rosalind, who was also listening.

Investigators are leaving the cause of the fire undetermined but Chief Kochanowski hypothesized that the cause could have been electrical. He said dogs were brought in to sniff the area but found no suspicious substances that would indicate foul play. The fire ended up as a third alarm blaze due to the limited water supply. Departments from Charlton, Douglas, Quinebaug, Southbridge and Webster were called in to assist Dudley on the scene while Community Fire Company out of Thompson covered the Dudley Fire Headquarters. Webster also provided EMS services although no injuries were reported as no one was living in the home.

Kochanowski also reported a post-incident fire involving Dudley's Engine Three, which experienced an electrical issue after the event while being serviced at the Dudley Fire Department. Engine Three caught on fire itself during cleaning which the chief said is likely the result of the vehicles age and natural wear and tear.

"We're running two front line trucks that are over 25 years old. I said this when I first became chief here, I found just about every drop of money from every corner of the planet that I could. The department was in disarray when I first came here. It's got aging equipment and while we're catching up there's still more to be done. I don't know how much it's going to be to fix this. It might be expensive, it might not," Kochanowski said.

and farther to the left. He just signed a biggest state budget ever; he's anti-Second Amendment, having signed the so-called 'Red Flag' bill; he's funding Planned Parenthood. Baker is more aligned with the Democratic platform than with the Republican platform."

Lively is also critical of Baker for failing to support President Trump.

"He opposes the Trump agenda," said Lively. "I am 100% pro-Trump. His priorities are right on the money. I want to be the most pro-Trump governor in America."

The 60-year-old Lively, who has earned a PhD in theology and a Juris Doctor of Law, proudly boasts of his support for the Second Amendment.

"I believe in the Second Amendment codification of the right to self-defense," he told Stonebridge. "Any attempt to restrict weaponry runs counter to the Constitution. Whatever weapons are in the hands of those who would kill us should be available to the citizenry. I might even consider what they do in some areas of the south by enacting mandatory gun ownership."

When it comes to economic policy, Lively says, "The ever-expanding service economy favors the large urban centers. We need to restore manufacturing to help revitalize the smaller cities and towns like Winchendon. But with the way things are, why in the world would any company, any manufacturer, want to come to Massachusetts? Businesses here are over-regulated and taxed to death. Liberal policies have driven companies out of state."

"President Trump's economic miracle," he continued, "is benefitting the state in a macro sense. More could be done. But Charlie Baker has shown disrespect to our president at every opportunity. He even refused to meet with Vice President Pence when he came here. It infuriates me. We need someone to cooperate with President Trump."

While not denying it will be tough to unseat a popular sitting Republican governor, Lively remains steadfast in his quest.

"I don't take positions based on whether they're popular," he said, "they are based on my strongly-held beliefs. Charlie Baker panders to the left in order to win. I was up against a stacked deck at the Republican convention but still managed to pull of a huge upset. No one expected me to get that kind of support. But I'm giving voice to the conservative base of the Republican Party."

Asked if he'd consider attempting another independent bid for governor in the event he loses the GOP nomination, Lively demurred.

"I wouldn't do that," he said. "I'm committed to rebuilding the conservative base in the party; to taking it back from the Republican establishment."

"I think I have a very good chance of winning. The anger of Republicans against Charlie Baker is palpable. Some people will vote for me simply because I'm not Charlie Baker. But there are a lot of people who know who I am, who know what I stand for, and who are working hard to get me elected. They're getting out the message."

Lively said a major motivation for challenging Baker is corruption.

"I want to work for the restoration of ethics. Charlie Baker has talked about doing away with patronage but he's the worst culprit ever. We've had a culture of corruption in this state for a very long time. He didn't introduce it, but it's gotten worse under his administration."

The Shelburne Falls resident points to the recent State Police overtime scandal as just one example of corruption in the Baker administration.

Lively has been married to his wife Anne for 36 years and the couple have four children.

Celebrating peach season

Here in New England, summer is celebrated with the long awaited peach crop. Native peaches are offered up by area orchards, local farmers markets and roadside stands. Patrons, eager to taste the first juicy peach of the summer, often extend the short peach season by toting home a bag or bushel of fresh peaches to become holiday pies and top shelf jams and jellies.

In recognition of the refreshing, ever so sweet, summertime peach, this week's column will celebrate the pleasures of peaches.

Peach History: Did you know?

Peaches were first grown in China, traced as far back as 551 BC. Peaches are a member of the same family as the rose, which accounts for its sweet fragrance. But early peaches, which were tiny and tart with a larger pit and lots of fuzz, barely resembled today's plump, juicy fruit. Despite its shortcomings, the historic peach earned its place in early Chinese folklore, as it was considered to bring luck and immortality. In fact, today, the Chinese still consider peaches as proper birthday gifts.

Strains of early peaches attracted favor and the tasty fruit traveled from China through Europe and finally to the "New World," gaining legions of fans along the way. The Romans fondly dubbed peaches "Persian Apples," for the country that first introduced the sweet fruit to the west. Louis XIV of France was so fond of peaches that he once awarded a pension to the man who provided him with peaches from Montreuil, a suburb of Paris.

While Spanish explorers brought the peach to America, Native Americans are credited with spreading their cultivation. Eventually, Georgia was named the Peach State, for its abundant peach crops, which flourished in the warm, southern climate.

Tips to Pick Perfect Peaches

Peaches should be picked at their prime of ripeness as the fruit does not always ripen well after its been plucked off the tree. Choose your peaches carefully, as a fruit picked prematurely could spoil before it ripens.

A peach that is ripe to be picked has a yellowish color, which extends to the stem area. Avoid peaches that show a greenish tinge, as they may have been picked too early to contain the desired sweetness. And ignore the peach's red blush, as it does not promise superior taste, simply an abundance of sun exposure.

The flesh of a peach should have a slight give. Not sure which peach to pick? If all are ready to harvest, choose the larger fruits as they have been on the tree longer, upping the odds of a sweeter pick.

To properly pick a peach, carefully twist the stem off the tree. Experts advise handling freshly picked peaches as if they were eggs to avoid bruising. A soft tree-picked peach should be eaten within two days of picking.

To ripen peaches at home, spread them on a flat surface and do not allow them to touch. Bruising can be fatal to a peach, so keep handling to a minimum. Or place peaches in a brown paper bag to escalate ripening. Do not pile peaches in the bag, rather spread them out so they do not touch. Ripened peaches will keep their flavor for up to five days in the vegetable crisper drawer of the refrigerator.

Health Benefits of Peaches

Peaches are low in calories and are rich in beta-carotene, vitamin C, calcium, boron, magnesium, phosphorus, potassium, fluoride, iron and flavonoids. The fruit is also a moderate source of vitamin A and B carotene.

One average peach is typically under 50 calories and provides almost three quarters of the daily vitamin C requirement. Peaches are also an antioxidant, diuretic, expectorant, and a laxative. Studies show the potassium in peaches, coupled with the fiber of the fruit, can help lower blood pressure.

In addition, peaches have also been touted as a weapon in treating the following ailments: anemia, asthma, acidosis, bronchitis, bladder and kidney stones, constipation, gastritis, and poor digestion.

Peaches are also used to improve skin tone and elasticity; strengthen the lungs, aid in proper circulation and reduce perspiration.

simple project, which requires only a peach pit and patience. Here's how: After you enjoy a fresh peach, remove the pit, wash it, and store in the refrigerator until the weather just begins to cool, usually in late September, or early October. At that time, plant the cooled pit in the ground about five inches deep. Cover with soil. In the spring you will see green sprouts. Continue to water and fertilize the growing plant and your young tree will bear fruit in as little as two years!

Peachy Recipes

Shortcut Peach Jam

Don't have time to "put up" jars of peach jam? Try this shortcut way to produce peach preserves:

Ingredients: Two cups fresh peaches, peeled, pitted and mashed; four cups sugar; two tablespoons lemon juice; two teaspoons Fresh Fruit; one 3ounce pkg. liquid pectin (Sure Gel); one quarter teaspoon cinnamon.

Instructions: Combine peaches, sugar, lemon juice, Fresh Fruit and cinnamon in a large, deep casserole dish. Microwave on high, uncovered, for five minutes. Stir well. Microwave on high uncovered for about 16 more minutes, or until a full rolling boil is reached. Stir in pectin, skim off foam with a spoon. Pour into hot sterilized jars, leaving a quarter inch space. Cover with metal lids, and screw on bands. Let stand at room temperature until cool. Store in refrigerator up to 3 weeks. Makes seven half pints.

Peachy Salsa

This salsa balances sweet and hot, for a versatile topping that's sure to be a crowd pleaser.

Ingredients: one pound peaches, (about three medium); one tablespoon lemon juice; two ripe tomatoes; six large green onions; one tablespoon canned jalapeño peppers, chopped; 12 tablespoons good quality olive oil; six tablespoons sherry vinegar; two table-spoon honey.

Instructions: Dip peaches into boiling water and then peel the skins. Cut peaches into thin strips and throw away pits. Toss with lemon juice. Dip tomatoes into boiling water, then peel and seed them. Cut into medium julienne strips. Combine peaches and tomatoes. Add onions and peppers. Whisk together oil, vinegar and honey. Pour over other ingredients. Refrigerate.

Fresh Peach Pie
Homemade made easy (and scrumptious!)

Ingredients: Ten fresh peaches, pitted and sliced; one third cup all-purpose flour; one cup white sugar; one quarter cup butter; pastry for a double crust pie

Instructions: Mix flour, sugar and butter into crumb stage. Place one crust in the bottom of a 9 inch pie plate. Line the shell with some sliced peaches. Sprinkle some of the butter mixture on top of the peaches, and then put more peaches on top of the crumb mixture. Continue layering until both the peaches and crumbs are gone. Top with lattice strips of pie crust. Bake at 350° F (175° C) for 45 minutes, or until crust is golden. Allow pie to cool before slicing. Best when eaten fresh.

Salmon on the run and anglers ready to make the pursuit

Salmon fishing on Lake Ontario has started to heat up for anglers in pursuit of king salmon. A report from Fat Nancy's Bait & Tackle shop in Pulaski, N.Y. this past week was all good news for local anglers that want to make the trip to the area to catch king salmon.

.....
RALPH
TRUE

At the end of the day we caught and released close to 100 seabass, retaining our six fish limit.

Numerous boats were observed chasing schools of false albacore as they fed on schools of bait (bunker fish) near the surface.

Seagulls and other shore birds also fed on the baitfish allowing the anglers to constantly monitor the feeding fish. Catching these hard fighting fish with a fly rod can provide a lot of fun for the angler as they strip line from the reel. The boats often need to chase the fish down to retrieve some line before the reel is totally stripped. After we had called it a day, we observe a large school of albacore surface feeding on the schools of baitfish near the entrance of the west wall, but they quickly disappeared to deeper water as we approached them. Most all of the seabass that we caught were feeding on the bunker and coughed them up while we were removing them from the hook.

The first segment of the Massachusetts goose season is scheduled to open on Sept. 4 this year statewide. The 15 bird daily limit of Canada geese will be hard to fill if not impossible. Most of the corn fields in the area will not be cut prior to opening day due to the heavy amounts of rain. Some fields are so waterlogged that harvesting the crops anytime soon is going to be tough for the local farmers. The heavy rain has impacted many crops of vegetables in the area this year, including resident back yard crops.

The regular Massachusetts waterfowl season opens on Oct. 9 in the Central District for ducks and geese. Teal were the number one bird that provided this writer with some great shooting in my younger years, but seem to have disappeared from the area. Flights of blue wing teal and green wing teal migrating south were early in October, and we always asked Fish & Wildlife to consider this when setting the duck season, giving waterfowl sportsmen the opportunity to harvest some of the birds before they passed through the area. The local duck population is in good shape with wood duck populations increasing every year. Mallards and black duck populations are also increasing in the area.

Maddilyn Rose Burgess

OXFORD - Heaven gained another beautiful angel on August 9th, 2018 when Maddilyn Rose Burgess passed into the loving arms of our Lord. Maddilyn, 'Maddy' was born on June 15th, 1990 to her loving parents, Cindi Ciani and William Burgess. Maddilyn loved spending time with her sister McKenzie whom she adored, her 'big brother' Greston, and her 'boys' Nolan, or 'Noli-cannoli,' and Caiden whom she so proudly called her 'little man.' She will be greatly missed by her 'Grammy' Dorothy Walker, her grandfather Richard Graves, her 'Nana' Rose Burgess, her Auntie Lori and Uncle Kenny, Uncle Mike and Aunt Terry, Uncle Wayne and Auntie Kris, numerous cousins and a very large extended family. Maddilyn grew up in Oxford and cherished the many memories she made with her childhood friends. Maddilyn loved taking long walks and appreciated the beauty of nature, the rain, the stars, and especially the ocean. She loved to read, found deep meaning in the lyrics of her favorite songs, and enjoyed keeping a journal of quotes and mantras that inspired her. Her silly dance moves brought joy to many and she was often a source of encouragement to others with her sweet, genuine soul and infectious smile that lit up an entire room. Although her spirit rests peacefully with the Father above, Maddilyn will always remain our precious daughter, devoted sister, loving granddaughter, cherished niece and forever friend. Maddilyn is rockin' the heavens above, free from all earthly pain and sorrow. She would want to be remembered for the beautiful person that she was, and have her life celebrated without guilt, remorse or anger. NEWS BRIEF

Senate passes automatic voter registration bill

BOSTON — Senator Anne Gobi (D-Spencer), Senate Chair of the Joint Committee on Election Laws, and the Massachusetts Senate passed H.4671, An Act automatically registering eligible voters and enhancing safeguards against fraud. The legislation creates a framework in which eligible voters will be automatically registered to vote when receiving services from the Registry of Motor Vehicles, MassHealth, and other participating state agencies. The framework will be overseen and implemented by the Secretary of State.

“Automatic voter registration will allow the Commonwealth to work towards making sure that the hundreds of thousands of eligible citizens who are currently not registered to vote can participate in our democracy,” remarked Senator Anne Gobi, “Enacting this legislation will help engage more individuals politically while giving the Commonwealth a valuable tool that will help clean up active voter lists and ensure that they are clear and free of error.”

“It should be the state’s burden to register voters – not yours,” said Senate President Harriette L. Chandler (D-Worcester). “Long work hours and confusion about the registration process are barriers for many citizens. And thousands of Massachusetts citizens are eligible to vote today, but aren’t registered. Registering to vote must be as simple as possible, and this legislation implements a process where any eligible citizen receiving certain state services is automatically registered. Today is a major victory for voting rights and social justice.”

The legislation bolsters voter-data security. It updates the requirements for transmission of voter registration affidavits and requires the Secretary of State to promulgate regulations to ensure registration is done through electronic transmission, with data security protocols and integration with the online portals.

The legislation increases penalties associated with voter fraud. It orders that whoever knowingly provides false information in connection with automatic voter registration shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for up to 5 years or both.

The legislation includes multiple opt-out procedures for those who do not wish to be automatically registered and it expands the Secretary of State’s Address Confidentiality Program to allow voters to withhold their information from municipal street list records.

For more information please contact Senator Gobi’s office at 617-722-1540.

How to conserve energy throughout summer

Ceiling fans can reduce reliance on costly air conditioners when cooling homes in summertime.

Energy bills tend to be high in summertime, when many people crank up their air conditioners in an attempt to combat the heat. For some households, higher energy bills might be stretching their budgets, while others might be looking for ways to reduce their carbon footprints.

Conserving energy can help homeowners save money and help the planet at the same time. And reducing energy consumption in the summer does not require men and women to sacrifice comfort in the name of conservation. In fact, various strategies can help homeowners and apartment dwellers reduce their summertime energy consumption.

- Stop cooling an empty home. A cool home might be the ultimate necessity during summer heat waves, but there's no reason to cool a residence when no one is home. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, operating thermostats more efficiently can help homeowners trim their cooling costs by as much as 10 percent. One way to be more efficient with thermostats is to keep the house warmer than normal when no one is home. Programmable thermostats can be set so air conditioning units turn on shortly before residents arrive home, ensuring the house is comfortable and no energy is wasted.

- Narrow the gap between indoor and outdoor temperatures. The DOE notes that the smaller the difference between the temperature indoors and outside the lower cooling costs will be. While it may be tempting to set thermostats to room temperature (68 F) on days when temperatures reach 90 F or above, that's an enormous temperature gap that will result in a high energy bill. Instead, the DOE recommends setting thermostats to 78 F whenever possible.

- Open the windows at night. Daytime temperatures, particularly during the dog days of summer, may necessitate the use of air conditioners. But men and women who live in climates where temperatures drop considerably at night can sleep with their windows open. This reduces energy consumption and saves money, and can be a great way to introduce fresh air into a home during a time of year when air can become stagnant.

- Do not set air conditioner thermostats at lower than normal temperatures when turning them on. The DOE notes that setting thermostats at lower than normal temperatures when turning air conditioners on will not cool homes any faster than setting them at typical temperatures. Such a strategy will only lead to excessive energy consumption and higher energy bills.

- Install ceiling fans. Ceiling fans can improve cooling efficiency in a home. According to the DOE, ceiling fans allow men and women who use air conditioners to raise the thermostats on their AC units about 4 F without adversely affecting comfort levels. Men and women who live in temperate climates may find that ceiling fans are enough to keep rooms cool without the need for air conditioners.

Homeowners can combat high utility bills and excessive energy consumption during the summer with various eco- and budget-friendly strategies.

Clean indoor air can help reduce asthma attacks

Did you know that, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, more than 25 million Americans, including roughly seven million children, have asthma? It's true, and those numbers have steadily risen in recent years.

Asthma is more than occasional wheezing or feeling out of breath during physical activity. Asthma is chronic and can lead to coughing, wheezing, shortness of breath, fast breathing, and chest tightness, states the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America. In the 21st century, people spend significant time indoors at home, school or work, and indoor air environments could be triggers for asthma. Improving indoor air quality can help people breathe clearly. The AAFA notes that the following agents can adversely affect indoor air quality, potentially triggering asthma attacks.

ALLERGENS

Allergens such as mold, dust mites, pet dander and fur, and waste from insects or rodents thrive in many homes. Ensuring indoor air quality is high can cut back on the amount of allergens in the air. People with asthma can invest in an air purifier and vacuum regularly, being sure to use a HEPA-equipped appliance. Routinely replacing HVAC system filters can help prevent allergens from blowing around the house. Also, frequent maintenance of HVAC systems will ensure they are operating safely and not contributing to poor indoor air quality.

Mold can be mitigated by reducing moisture in a home. Moist environments in the kitchen and bathroom may promote mold growth. Ventilation is key to keep mold at bay.

TOBACCO SMOKE

Thirdhand smoke, or THS, may be unfamiliar to many people. A 2011 report published in Environmental Health Perspectives says THS is an invisible combination of gases and particles that can cling to clothing, cushions, carpeting, and other materials long after secondhand smoke has cleared from a room. Studies have indicated that residual nicotine levels can be found in house dust where people smoke or once smoked. Studies have indicated that smoke compounds can adsorb onto surfaces and then desorb back into air over time.

Keeping tobacco smoke out of a home can improve indoor air quality and personal health.

VOCs

Volatile organic compounds, or VOCs, are gases released from commonly used products. These can include paints and varnishes, cleaning supplies, air fresheners, new furniture, and new carpet. People with asthma may find that VOCs can trigger attacks. Airing out items, reducing usage of products that are heavily scented and choosing low- or no-VOC products can help. Making cleaning products from baking soda, vinegar and liquid oil soap also can keep indoor air quality high.

Homeowners who plan to renovate their homes can consider using the appropriate specifications for HVAC systems to promote good indoor air, as well as address any other potential problems that may be compromising indoor air quality.

Run air conditioners without wasting energy

Having central air conditioning units serviced before the start of summer can ensure they run as efficiently as possible when temperatures begin to rise.

Few people can make it through the dog days of summer without turning on their air conditioners. Men and women concerned about the environment and conserving energy may try to avoid using their air conditioners, but doing so on especially hot days can be challenging and potentially even deadly.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that roughly 600 people die from complications related to extreme heat each year. Heat stroke can result when a body overheats after prolonged exposure to or physical exertion in high temperatures. The Mayo Clinic notes that the condition is most common in summer and that a lack of air conditioning during periods of sustained hot weather is a risk for heat stroke.

Conserving energy during summer is a noble pursuit, but people should not jeopardize their health in an effort to conserve energy. Air conditioners might not be the most eco-friendly appliances, but there are ways to run them without wasting energy.

- Use a window unit or zoned system overnight. The U.S. Department of Energy notes that central air conditioners are more efficient than room air conditioners, which are typically installed in windows. But central air conditioning systems that are not zoned may be cooling empty rooms overnight. Apartment dwellers may find window units less wasteful, while homeowners who can afford to install zoned air conditioning systems may rest easier knowing they are only paying to cool certain parts of their homes overnight. Zoned systems come equipped with programmable thermostats that homeowners can adjust when they go to bed, ensuring they won't be cooling empty living rooms and basements overnight.

- Have units serviced before summer begins. Well-maintained central air conditioners will work more efficiently. Routine maintenance of air conditioning systems will ensure that systems aren't working harder, and therefore consuming more energy, than necessary to cool a home.

- Let fans and air conditioners work together. The DOE notes that using fans and air conditioners simultaneously is an effective way to circulate cool air throughout a home. By running both fans and air conditioners at the same, the air conditioners won't have to be run as long or as hard as they would if no fans were turned on.

- Conserve energy in other ways. Because the dangers of heat stroke and heat exhaustion are so considerable, men and women should never keep their air conditioners off on hot days simply to conserve energy. Finding safer alternatives to conserving energy on hot days can be just as effective and won't put consumers' health at risk. Unplug appliances that are not being used and prepare cold dinners so ovens that can make home interiors feel hotter won't need to be turned on. In addition, take advantage of the longer daylight hours in summer and keep lights off until the sun goes down. These are safe ways to conserve energy on hot days.

Air conditioners can keep people safe during summer, and there are ways to use them and still conserve energy.

How to conserve water as the mercury rises

Conserving natural resources is often so simple that people make some adjustments without affecting their daily lives at all. But sometimes it's not so easy to conserve.

Summer is one time of year when conservation efforts tend to require more sacrifice than normal.

Even the most devoted conservationist may find it difficult to conserve water during the dog days of summer, when drought and soaring temperatures make it difficult to maintain lawns and gardens. Thankfully, there are ways to help lawns and gardens withstand summer's dog days without wasting water.

- Water wisely. Watering lawns and gardens in the early morning hours is a savvy move for various reasons. Heat-related illnesses such as heat stroke and heat exhaustion pose a serious threat to people of all ages, and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends cooling off in air conditioned places as temperatures climb. By watering their lawns and gardens early in the morning, homeowners are ensuring they won't be outside watering during those times of day when their risk for heat stroke and heat exhaustion is at its peak. In addition, watering in the early morning when the sun has not yet reached its peak decreases the amount of water that will be lost to evaporation, thereby increasing the amount of water that will make it into water-needy lawns and gardens.

- Shower at the beach. Beach enthusiasts can conserve water and save money on their water bills by taking quick showers at the beach to wash the sand off. A cold shower can be the perfect remedy after a long day of soaking up some sun at the beach. And because beach showers use cold water, beachgoers are less likely to take luxurious, potentially wasteful showers than they might at home.

- Take nights off from doing dishes. Hand-washing dishes may seem like a more effective way to conserve water than using a dishwasher, but that's not the case. The National Resources Defense Council notes that hand-washing dishes can consume as many as 27 gallons of water, while Energy Star®-rated dishwashers consume just three gallons of water. Before running the dishwasher, make sure it's full.

- Cover your pool. Keeping pools covered during the dog days of summer reduces the likelihood that pool water will be lost to evaporation. In fact, the GRACE Communications Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to creating sustainable food systems, notes that uncovered pools can lose as much as 1,000 gallons of water to evaporation each month.

Conserving water during the dog days of summer may require some sacrifice. But such sacrifices are easier than many people may expect.

Green options in home siding

If new siding is on the list of must-do home projects this year, there are many factors to consider. Though it's a transformative renovation, replacement siding is a significant and potentially expensive undertaking. Therefore, careful consideration must be given to the materials used and their maintenance, longevity, insulation factor, and cost. Many homeowners also want siding that is eco-friendly.

Sustainability is an important consideration for many homeowners. Data from the National Association of Home Builders' "Green Multifamily and Single Family Homes 2017 SmartMarket Brief" indicates that at least one-third of single-family and multifamily home builders who were surveyed said that green building is a significant portion of their overall activity (more than 60 percent of their portfolio). By 2022, this number should increase to nearly one-half in both the single-family and multifamily sectors. Green building has become an important and established part of the residential construction sector.

Where siding is sourced, the materials that go into its fabrication and how well that siding insulates a home are key aspects of its "green factor." The following are some of the more sustainable options in home siding.

RECLAIMED TIMBER

A house sided with clapboard, or a log cabin-inspired look, is iconic. These types of siding are typically made from insect-repellant pine, cedar, cypress, or redwood. While lumber certified by the Forest Stewardship Council is environmentally friendly, homeowners may want to seek out reclaimed lumber. This wood has history and causes very little environmental impact. Plus, timber salvaged from old buildings or fallen trees may be superior to new wood because it likely came from slow-growing, old trees with dense grain.

Stucco, reclaimed wood and brick can be more eco-friendly than vinyl siding and other materials.

BRICK

Avoid any negative environmental impact by choosing locally produced or reclaimed bricks — or those made from post-consumer content. The longevity of bricks can often offset the energy expenditure in their manufacture. Plus, many bricks are made from natural clay, which can be an excellent insulator.

STUCCO

HouseLogic says traditional stucco is made from sand and Portland cement mixed with water to make a usable plaster. It's tough and durable — often lasting the life of the house. Eco-friendly variants include stucco made with an earth-and-lime mixture, offsetting the CO2 emissions associated with cement production. Stucco can reduce air infiltration that causes drafts in a home.

FIBER-CEMENT

Fiber-cement is similar to stucco in that it is made from sand, Portland cement, clay, and wood pulp fibers. It can be fire-resistant and insect-proof and will not rot. It's a stable material that can recover almost 80 percent of the initial cost, according to the National Association of Realtors®.

STONE

This nonrenewable resource can be beautiful on a home and durable, but mining it can impact the environment. If homeowners can use reclaimed or displaced stone, those are more sustainable options. Manufactured stone, which is cement and other materials molded to look like stone, is also aesthetically appealing and more eco-friendly.

Replacing siding is a significant undertaking. Homeowners can consider sustainability when selecting replacement siding materials.

Maintain indoor air quality all year long

Ducts may need to be serviced by professionals in homes where indoor air quality is poor.

Millions of people anxiously anticipate the arrival of spring. Months spent cooped up indoors as temperatures outside dip below freezing can take their toll, and those first warm, sunny days of spring can be just what people need to kick the winter blues.

Winter can be dreary for people confined to indoors as temperatures drop, and poor air quality in a home can add to that dreariness while adversely affecting individuals' health. Air quality tends to suffer most in winter, but there are ways to ensure the air inside a home stays healthy all year long.

- Inspect and address any sources of carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide, or CO, is an invisible, odorless gas that can contribute to poor indoor air quality and a host of health problems if it goes undetected in a home. According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, potential sources of CO in a home include improperly vented natural gas appliances, such as stoves and water heaters, gas-powered tools that are used indoors, clogged chimneys, or blocked heating exhaust vents.

Men and women can periodically inspect potential sources of CO and address any issues they find while also making sure all CO detectors are properly installed and functioning optimally.

- Inspect HVAC ducts. Ductwork is used to deliver warm or cool air in homes with heating and air conditioning systems. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency notes that much of the dirt in air ducts adheres to the duct surfaces without ever entering living spaces. However, the EPA notes that homeowners should consider having their ducts cleaned if an inspection uncovers substantial visible mold growth. In addition, the EPA recommends homeowners consider cleaning if ducts are infested with vermin or clogged with excessive amounts of dust or debris.

- Avoid chemical cleaning products. Chemical cleaning products may be great at disinfecting dishes, countertops and other areas in the home, but such items may be toxic and adversely affect indoor air quality. For example, chemicals such as bleach and ammonia, which are used in many commercial cleaning products, can linger in the air, irritating the eyes, nose, throat, and lungs. Homeowners concerned about the quality of air in their homes also can avoid scented products, such as air fresheners and scented detergents, which the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health notes may release volatile organic compounds into the air.

- Inspect bathrooms for mold growth. Mold can grow on surfaces that are routinely wet, and that makes poorly ventilated bathrooms common sources for home mold infestations. Mold can adversely affect indoor air quality when mold spores are released, potentially triggering allergic reactions, asthma attacks and respiratory conditions. After bathing in bathrooms without vents, men and women can open windows so the room dries before mold can grow. In bathrooms with vents, make sure vents are running during baths and showers and afterward until ceilings, walls and floors appear dry.

Poor indoor air quality can be easily addressed to ensure individuals stay healthy throughout the year.
