

ECO program helps Windham students graduate with college certificates

WINDHAM — In 2016, Quinebaug Valley Community College teamed with Windham High School, creating the Windham Early College Opportunity (ECO) program, to provide students a chance to earn college credits in manufacturing disciplines. There were many questions along the way about curriculum, student engagement and funding sources. QVCC was creative in making this happen through College Career Pathways resources, the Windham Board of Education, and the help from the Eastern Workforce Investment Board (EWIB).

Beginning their freshman year, Windham High School students took several classes in advanced manufacturing at their school, earning 10 college credits in Manufacturing Math II, Blueprint Reading I, Benchmark and Computer Assisted Drawing. As juniors, in the summer of 2019, they attended QVCC and took Milling I and Lathe I, earning four more credits (paid for by the Windham Board of Education). Support from the Eastern Workforce Investment Board helped with a critical CNC Fundamentals course, which set students up to take one remaining class, Safety in the Workplace. This one-credit course completes their Level I certificate.

By the end of the fall 2020 semester, the students will have completed QVCC certificates in Machine Technology Level I and Advanced Manufacturing Machine Technology II. 30 credits will apply directly to an Associate Degree in Technology Studies for those who wish to continue their education. Director and Instructor Stephen LaPointe is actively seeking out opportunities to start their careers in manufacturing in the Windham area.

“I’m impressed with their long-term commitment to completing this journey. The students have come together as a cohort and Hanrahan, who has been in the security field for 25 years, began his career at DKH in 2015. Prior to joining Day Kimball, he served as a correctional officer for 20 years at the State of Connecticut Department of Corrections. In his role as public safety officer at DKH, Hanrahan is responsible for ensuring a safe and secure environment for patients, visitors, and employees of Day Kimball Hospital.

He is a dedicated worker who takes great pride in his ability to communicate with others, to which he always strives to achieve a positive outcome.”

In response to being named employee of the month, Hanrahan said, “I was surprised, but honored to have been selected for employee of the month.” When asked what he likes most about his job, he said, “I enjoy the people I work with and the patients and visitors I interact with each day.”

Local divisions returning to Thompson for 58th Annual Sunoco World Series

The Twisted Tea SK Light Modifieds race on Sunoco World Series Sunday with a 20-lap main event.

THOMPSON — Some of New England’s top weekly competitors will arrive at Thompson Speedway Motorsports Park looking to chase more than $16,000 in purses as part of the 58th annual Sunoco World Series on Oct. 9-11.

The Sunoco Modifieds, Twisted Tea SK Light Modifieds, Sam Adams Limited Sportsman and Mini Stocks will all hit the high-banks for their second races of the season. Although it looked like divisions might remain dark for the season, a new agreement with the American-Canadian Tour and Pro All Star Series leasing the track in the summer allowed these divisions to return and chase a lucrative payout to close the oval season at Thompson.

The World Series is well-known as the top short-track racing weekend in the New England region, and with 19 divisions set to compete again this year, fans won’t want to miss the action over three days in Connecticut.

The Sunoco Modifieds will race for $1,500 to win, while the Twisted Tea SK Light Modifieds will battle for a $350 winning prize. The Sam Adams Limited Sportsman winner’s value matches the SK Lights, with $350 on the line, and the Mini Stocks are set to tackle the track chasing $200 to win.

The lucrative purses include a total of $8,560 posted awards in the Sunoco Modifieds, a division that looks to steal the show as part of a busy Sunday. Keith Rocco and Todd Owen look to continue their fierce battle that started on Sept. 3 — when the two battled for the victory in the 25-lap feature. It was Rocco who would come out on top — while Owen was sidelined just laps before the finish with a flat tire after a large amount of crossover moves were pulled battling for the glory. Names like Troy Talman and former Stafford Motor Speedway champion Ronnie Williams, driving for Skowyr Motorsports, are also expected to compete in the 30-lap feature, which will follow the PASS Super Late Models on the final day of racing. Williams will be perhaps the busiest driver of the weekend, running four of 19 races during the weekend, including

NEWTON, Mass. — More than 50 second-year students at Lasell University, including Alexandra Chitwood of Dayville, are enrolled in the Lasell Works Program. Chitwood began the program's Sophomore Year Experience this fall.

Lasell Works is a career development and cost-savings initiative that offers professional mentorship and allows students to take all of their sophomore year coursework online in order to engage in yearlong work experiences. These work experiences provide students with unparalleled opportunities to connect what they learn in the classroom with hands-on experience, and a decreased tuition rate ensures that students graduate in healthy financial situations.

have relied on each other for support in so many ways. Transportation has been one of the biggest obstacles, yet they made it work. This shows me they have determination and will make great employees in the manufacturing world, which will benefit our community tremendously,” LaPointe said.

There is a continuous pipeline of Windham High School students that have committed to this pathway to a successful career in manufacturing. In September, Windham ECO student, Karen De Los Santos Dominguez and Stephen LaPointe participated in a roundtable with Governor Lamont at Eastern Connecticut State University, hosted by ECSU President Elsa Nunez with Board of Higher Education President Mark Ojakian. The discussion was focused on coping with COVID in the current environment and how on-ground classes can continue to run for hands-on learning. Karen provided valuable insight into her positive on-ground experience at QVCC’s Danielson campus.

One hundred years ago this week

I've been trying to get a feel for what was happening in Northeastern Connecticut 100 years ago, so once again, I turned to newspapers.com for a look at 1920. Since I've been watching the baseball playoffs, I was quite surprised to come across an article about a local man who had just broken into the majors. Perhaps a few of you will recognize his name. "Paul Johnson, the North Grosvenordale boy, who was transferred from the Worcester team to the Athletics of the American League, has made good during the final few games of the season in which he has appeared as a big leaguer. His hitting would be a credit to a seasoned veteran of the major circuits and he will be given a glad-handed welcome when he gets home. He is expected here Sunday morning, having wired from Philadelphia that he expects to be able to leave that city for home Saturday night" (newspapers.com; Norwich Bulletin, Friday, Oct. 1, 1920, p. 6).

Johnson was a right-handed outfielder who was born September 2, 1896 and died in McAllen, Texas February 14, 1973, aged 76. He played for the Philadelphia Athletics during the 1920 and 1921 seasons. He broke into the big leagues on September 13, 1920. (en. Wikipedia.org; https://www.baseball-almanac.com/players/player.php?p=johnspa01).

In the fall of 1920, women were elated that they had finally been given the right to vote in national elections. I came across an article about a female who had decided to run for local office. "The name of Mrs. Mabel Dupre Ryan will appear on the ballots for Monday's town election (in Putnam) as the democratic* candidate for tax collector. Mrs. Dupre is said to be the first woman candidate named in Windham County for such an important office" (newspapers.com; Norwich Bulletin, Friday, Oct. 1, 1920, p. 6). *Uncapitalized in the article.

"The closing down of textile plants in this territory has caused some moving about from one village to another by families, but here is not much of this, as textile workers are aware that conditions are much the same in all mill centers as they are in Killingly at the present time and little is to be gained by moving about." (newspapers.com; Norwich Bulletin, Friday, Oct. 8, 1920, p. 6).

The downturn in the economic climate in Killingly had challenged business leaders in the town to try to attract new industries. "A first dividend has been declared by the Danielson Development association. This is the concern that was organized here last winter for the purpose of bringing new industries into Danielson. That its programme (sic) has been successfully put into operation is attested by the presence of the Paco Manufacturing company (Powdrell and Alexander). The

AT 300
MARGARET

Development association supplied the funds for the purchase of the property on Furnace Street which has been remodeled and enlarged to house an industry that is now engaged in active operations and doing a splendid business." (newspapers.com; Norwich Bulletin, Friday, October 8, 1920, p. 6). Powdrell and Alexander went on to become one of the largest manufacturing concerns in Killingly, having six factories--the one on Furnace Street, one at the corner of Maple Street, one at Connecticut Mills, and one each in Attawaugan, Pineville, and Ballouville. During P & A's time Danielson became known as "Curtaintown U.S.A."

Fall 1920 brought hunting season, as it still does. "Killingly's hunters will be out in field and brush early as the light will let many of them this (Friday) morning for the first day's sport of the season with dog and gun. Game birds are said to be quite plentiful in some sections hereabouts, notwithstanding that last winter was unusually severe. This is the first hunting season since 1918 during which the shooting of partridge has been permitted. The law is off on these birds today." (newspapers.com; Norwich Bulletin, Friday, October 8, 1920, p. 6). Partridge, Oh! I associate that with the song "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and a partridge in a pear tree, not with eating. As a child growing up in Pennsylvania, I can remember my father hunting for pheasant and the gorgeous feathers that it had. I don't remember how my mother cooked it, but I recall rabbit and squirrel potpie (Pennsylvania Dutch potpie--flat pieces of dough dropped in boiling chicken broth with vegetables).

There were number of fall fairs in Northeastern Connecticut and adjacent states, and horse races were common in 1920. "Belle at Law, a pretty black mare that has been racing very successfully at fairs in southern New England this fall, has been sold by a group of local men that have owned her for a year past. Belle at Law has been cleaning up this season, winning races at Kingston, Norwich, Brooklyn and other places. In Wednesday's racing at Brockton fair, Belle at Law took first money in the race in which she was entered and set a new mark of 2.13 for herself. She has been racing under the entry of C. H. Michaels, landlord of the Danielson Inn and one of her owners. The local owners sold Belle at Law this week for a good price and she has since been resold at $2500. Good horsemen say that it is not at all unlikely that she will lower her mark of 2.10 before the end of the present racing season. Belle at Law is only five years old and is rated sound as a dollar." (newspapers.com; Norwich Bulletin, Friday, October 8, 1920, p. 6).

"The temperature dropped to 29 degrees in Danielson during the early hours of Thursday when there was a killing frost." (newspapers.com, Norwich Bulletin, Fri. Oct. 8, 1920, p. 6).

Now I'll add a few 1933 extracts from the Oct. 12, 1933 Windham County Transcript. I'm sure some of you long-time area residents will recognize the names of the businesses mentioned below. "Allan Mopsik, who has been in business in Moosup and Plainfield since 1914, will open a store in Danielson on Friday (Oct. 13). The concern, which will be known as Allan's Clothes Shop, will be located at 22 Main St. Mr. Mopsik will handle men's suits, overcoats and topcoats, featuring Brunswick worsteds, which are woven in Moosup. He will continue his cleaning and dyeing establishment in Moosup, with the local store as a service branch, giving twenty-four hour service.

"Morris Savage, proprietor of the Boston Meat Market, is celebrating the second anniversary of his establishment in business in Danielson with a special sales event. Mr. Savage came here from Putnam, locating in the old Diamond building. When it was razed he located temporarily on the West Side and as soon as the new Diamond Block was completed he returned to occupy modern and sanitary quarters there."

How many of you remember when Veterans Day was called Armistice Day? The November festivities in 1933 had a special dedication as a main part of the program. "Plans for the Armistice Day celebration which will include the dedication of the World war memorial in Davis Park..." "Signs and Floats, place your orders now for Armistice Day. Ralph M. Shoales, 47 School St." How will we commemorate the Armistice and celebrate Veterans Day this year with Covid restrictions? It's not too early to begin planning.

Adjusting to the times: Get your antique and collectibles appraised without leaving home

The pandemic has affected all of us in some way, and non-profits are no exception. The Worcester Historical Museum recently reopened with social distancing guidelines in place. The Worcester Art Museum is scheduled to reopen this week. Cancelled events due to COVID-19 decreased revenue at these larger non-profits. Smaller non-profits typically have fewer grants and have likely suffered larger setbacks due to COVID-19. With the inability conduct in-person meetings, members of smaller non-profits have not been able to share the camaraderie with those who hold similar interests.

One local non-profit group is learning how to adapt during these unprecedented times. The Townsend Historical Society recently approached me about appraising items virtually. I had appraised items at a live appraisal event for them in Townsend in 2017. I enjoy the interaction with the public at these events and look forward to having that interaction soon, even if it's through a screen.

The event will take place via Zoom during the Townsend Historical Society's "Virtually Vintage: A Live, Online Antique Appraisal Event" on Oct. 10 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. You can buy tickets to get your items appraised on their website: townsendhistorical-society.org. Appraisals are $10 each or 3 items for $25. After you purchase your ticket(s), you can either send photos of your items and any history that you have or bring them in person to Townsend on the day of the event. Ticket holders will be able to watch the entire event or just sign in when it is time to have their items appraised.

I have been working closely with Taber Morrell, the Site Administrator for the Townsend Historical Society, to prepare for the event. In an email interview, he said that the Site Administrator is responsible for the "Reed Homestead where [they] do most of [their] tours and programs, and where [their] records and artifact collections are stored." Morrell also said: "the position extends to other historic buildings we care for as well, a 19th century grist mill, cooperage, church, and some monuments throughout town."

Mr. Morrell provided me with some additional information on the organization and event. The group has close to 300 members who are "really active with the Historical Society and its programs." He informed me that the "appraisal held in 2017 along with our Arts and Crafts Fair are absolutely the most talked about events." Unfortunately, the fair had to be canceled this year, but the organization has been working hard to make many other events accessible virtually. Mr. Morrell said that the Townsend Historical Society has run a "virtual open house, an online presentation about the history of tourism in New England, and [they are] even working on a web-based cemetery tour for October." He informed me that "members have been craving another edition of the antique appraisal [held with me] in 2017" and they hoped to "create a virtual version we could make a lot of people really happy." I look forward to utilizing modern technology to help online attendees learn more about their historical artifacts. I hope to see some regular readers of this column through my screen.

In addition to the virtual appraisal with the Townsend Historical Society, we also have other exciting events coming up this month. We will be holding an estate sale in Stoneham, Mass. on Oct. 17, following COVID-19 safety guidelines. Bidding will end on October 28th for our online coin auction. We are still accepting quality consignments for our multi-estate online antiques and collectibles auction ending on Nov. 11.

Pomfret Center resident graduates with Class of 2020 at Stonehill College

EASTON, Mass. — Caroline Schad, of Pomfret Center, graduated with the Class of 2020 during a virtual Commencement Ceremony this summer at Stonehill College.

Initially scheduled for Sunday, May 17 with a traditional in-person format but knocked off course by COVID-19, Stonehill's 69th Commencement finally took place on Saturday, Aug. 8, making history as the College's first virtual Commencement and the first ever held in August. Another big change this year was the presentation of candidates for master's degrees.

Live-streamed from Stonehill's McCarthy Auditorium in the Thomas and Donna May School of Arts & Sciences building the ceremony addressed 630 undergraduates, 13 graduates, their families, and a wider audience of Stonehill faculty, staff, alumni, and friends.

In prerecorded remarks, Commencement speaker New England Patriots star Matthew Slater drew on his career as a three-time Super Bowl Champion to hail the Class of 2020 for their ability to endure, persevere and thrive in the face of adversity.

Stonehill is a Catholic college located near Boston on a beautiful 384-acre campus in Easton, Massachusetts. With a student-faculty ratio of 12:1, the College engages over 2,500 students in 80+ rigorous academic programs in the liberal arts, sciences, and pre-professional fields. The Stonehill community helps students to develop the knowledge, skills, and character to meet their professional goals and to live lives of purpose and integrity.

Staying on track with your strategic financial plan

Investing to achieve your financial life goals isn't about getting rich quick. More often, it's about having a game plan that you can live with over a long time. You wouldn't expect to be able to play the piano without learning the basics and practicing. Investing for your goals over the long term also takes a little knowledge and discipline. Though there can be no guarantee that any investment strategy will be successful, and all investing involves risk, including the possible loss of principal, there are ways to help yourself build your retirement nest egg.

In last week's article we discussed the importance of creating a solid foundation for your financial plan: setting goals, a time horizon, and risk tolerance. Then you created an investment strategy, but the hard part is sticking to it. In this article, we will discuss key investment strategies and the importance of staying confident with your plan.

Compounding is your best friend. It's the "rolling snowball" effect. Put simply, compounding pays you earnings on your reinvested earnings. Here's how it works: Let's say you invest $100, and that money earns a 7 percent annual return. At the end of a year, the $7 you earned is added to your $100; that would give you $107 in your account. If you earn 7 percent again the next year, you're earning 7 percent of $107 rather than $100, as you did in the first year. Like a snowball rolling downhill, the value of compounding grows the longer you leave your money in the account. In effect, compounding can do some of the work of building a nest egg for you.

The longer you leave your money at work for you, the more exciting the numbers get. For example, imagine an investment of $10,000 at an annual rate of return of 8 percent. In 20 years, assuming no withdrawals, your $10,000 investment would grow to $46,610. In 25 years, it would grow to $68,485, a 47 percent gain over the 20-year figure. After 30 years, your account would total $100,627. (Of course, these are hypothetical examples that do not reflect the performance of any specific investment and assume that no taxes are paid, or withdrawals are made during that time.) If your workplace savings plan contributions are made pretax, as most peoples are, compounding really becomes a powerful force. Not having to pay taxes from year to year on either your contributions or the compounded earnings helps your savings grow even faster (though you'll owe taxes on that money when you start withdrawing from your account). The value of compounded tax-deferred dollars is the main reason you may want to fully fund all tax-advantaged retirement accounts and plans available to you, and start as early as you can. Investing money over time can help compounding produce potentially significant returns. With time on your side, you don't necessarily have to aim for investment "home runs" in order to be successful.

Diversify your investments. Asset allocation is the process of deciding how to spread your dollars over several categories of investments, usually referred to as asset classes. A basic asset allocation would likely include at least stocks, bonds, and cash or cash alternatives such as a money market fund. The term "asset classes" also may refer to subcategories, such as particular types of stocks or bonds.

Asset allocation is important for two reasons. First, the mix of asset classes you own is a large factor — some say the biggest factor by far — in determining your overall investment portfolio performance. How you divide your money between stocks, bonds, and cash can be more important than your choice of specific investments. Second, by dividing your portfolio among asset classes that don't respond to market forces in the same way at the same time, your portfolio.

Remember that during any given period of market or economic turmoil, some asset categories and some individual investments historically have been less volatile than others. You can manage your risk to some extent by diversifying your holdings among various classes of assets, as well as different types of assets within each class. Taking steps that can help manage the amount of volatility you experience can help you stay with your game plan over the long term.

Stick to your strategy

Try to resist the impulse to change your investment strategy with every news headline or investing tip from a relative or coworker. Timing the market correctly is very difficult; even professionals find it a challenge. Most people fare better by having an investment game plan that can weather good times and bad, and then sticking to it. The 2020 presidential election and the COVID pandemic continue to create volatility in the market and may cause you to second-guess your investment strategy. However, history shows that presidential elections and their outcomes tend to have less of an effect on the market than we think. Visit our website, www.whzwealth.com/covid19-resources for more information about the relation between the presidential election, COVID, and the financial markets.

That doesn't mean you should simply forget about your investments altogether. At least once a year, you should review your portfolio to see if your choices are still appropriate. Even if your circumstances haven't changed, you can help minimize the effects of market volatility while maximizing your chances of long-term return. Ideally, if your investments in one class are performing poorly, assets in another class may be doing better and may help stabilize market movements can affect how your money is divided among various types of investments. For example, if one type of asset has been very successful, it may now represent too large a share of your holdings. To rebalance your portfolio, you could sell some of an asset that's now larger than you intended and buy more of a type that is lower than desired. Or you could keep your existing allocation but shift future investments into an asset class you want to increase. But if you don't review your holdings periodically, you won't know whether a change is needed. You should meet with your financial advisor before making changes to your investment portfolio.

Remain calm and confident. There is no doubt that we are going through some very challenging times right now. However, it's important to err on the side of caution when making decisions about your investment strategy. Remember to focus on achieving your goals in the long-term and that you have a sound strategy to get you there. Unexpected twists and turns

Life is rarely as we plan it. What we expect often turns out differently and we are reluctantly forced to adjust accordingly. Riding the waves of life is what we make of it. It can be waves of frustration or we can allow those same waves to take us on a fascinating journey.

I didn't plan on spending the last few days in the hospital, yet here I am. So, I'm writing this column on my phone rather than my laptop. I'm doing so, the old-fashioned way, without the use of my usual editing program. I'm horrified how this may be received by your newspaper but hopefully we can take it all in stride.

If you are a regular reader of my column, you know I'm fighting Stage 4 Stomach Cancer. It's not what I expected. This isn't what I planned. Lying in this hospital bed using one finger to type my column on a phone certainly isn't what I anticipated happening ... but it did.

So, what do you do when life unexpectedly changes your plans? You can react to the problem or you can respond. You can react with anger, sadness, frustration, or depression, or you can respond with courage to

POSITIVELY

MOORE

overcome the adversity. You can use your intuition to guide you. You can harness thoughtful and logical creativity and act to overcome the unexpected obstacle.

I've written about this before. There is a difference between reacting and responding. Reacting is usually a knee-jerk reaction that usually compounds the problem and makes it worse. Always try not to react.

Responding is different. When we respond, it's usually with calmness and courage to face the situation. Face the issue and always respond.

It also makes a difference in how we label things. We can call them problems or situations. Problems are nasty, headache causing circumstances that usually cause a reaction. A situation insinuates a circumstance that you can resolve. Label all your obstacle and unexpired circumstance as situations and not problems.

So, I'm choosing tonight to respond to the situation of being in the hospital rather than reacting to a problem that's out of my control. I can make this a problem or situation. I choose it to be the latter. either one true. This newspaper may fire me over this problem if I can't resolve it. I instead choose to overcome this situation with courage, careful thought and logic and not disappoint the newspaper that relays on me.

Think about interchanging these words ... react vs respond and problem vs situation. We can look at the same event and react to a problem or respond to a situation. How we label it determines what we think I, and what we think determines how we view the obstacle. And again, how we view it determines if we react or respond.

I'll admit. The fact I'm being contained in a hospital without my computer caused me to momentarily react and become frustrated, but I took a breath and said out loud, this is a situation to be solved and not a problem. Once I thought about my options, my phone was it, and I resolved my situation and began typing.

As I began this column saying, life is never perfect. There will always be unexpected events that change destroy our carefully laid plans. The only choice you have in those moments is to label it as a situation rather than a problem and respond rather than react.

I always choose to respond.

Will you join me?

P.S.: I'm going to be fine. I had a bowel obstruction which is resolving itself. I hope to be released today.

The need to unplug

Oftentimes, our ideas for editorials arise when something close to us personally surfaces that hits home, or when we hear a significant amount of chatter about a specific topic. This week, the chatter has been about national news overload.

We love the news — after all, it’s what we do. Sharing information with our readers on the local level is both an honor and a necessity. This week, however, we have heard many people say they just can’t listen to the national news anymore. They feel bombarded, often times leaving them feeling depressed and overwhelmed. News junkies watch the news every morning and night, check their Twitter feeds, listen to talk radio on their commutes and are constantly in the know. It’s important and responsible to be aware of what’s happening around you, however finding a balance is key, even for those of us in the businesses.

It seems as though the national news cycle has been nothing but chaos over the past several years, especially with regard to the current presidential election. Relentless statistics about the COVID-19 pandemic and negative commentary trying to pass itself off as analysis of the candidates and their platforms seems to ping our phones almost on the minute. This can be exhausting.

As a way to catch your breath, pick one day of the week as a ‘no news’ day, sort of like a news siesta. Get outside, unplug, read a book, listen to some vinyl or watch Cobra Kai (we do recommend for a splash of nostalgia). Attempt to shut off the little magic box we all stare at way too much on the daily. Could landlines actually still serve a purpose?

If you feel like you can’t make a difference, realize that you can. First, it goes without saying, get out and vote. Second, do something every day to make the world a better place, even if that means your own little world. Such actions result in the domino effect.

Take some time to count the blessings in your life. Positivity still surrounds us in bulk if you look for it. Family, friends, dogs, crisp fall leaves, apple crisp, bacon, a friendly wave from a neighbor, morning coffee, a cold drink, a beautiful hike or walk, a good novel and a nice music blasting session are just a few things we can lean on to always lift us back up.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Somers, Daupinais, and Lanoue deserve your vote

To the Editor:
 I am writing to ask that this Nov. 3, you come out to the polls to vote for three people who have given their all to their constituents. These three people have proven that they fight to give our region support in all aspects of our communities. Working to bring in connections to regional transportation, fighting for jobs, infrastructure and the economy. They are always available to answer questions, take the time to explain why they vote on important legislation and always listen to your input.

Please consider voting to re-elect Heather Somers – State Senate, Anne Dauphinais – State Representative, and Brian Lanoue – State Representative.

When will it be time for a third party?

To the Editor:
 It is indeed sad news that President Trump and the First Lady have tested positive for Covid-19, and I’ll give tons of credit to Joe Biden, his wife and to Barack Obama for wishing them well. However, this wasn’t the case with some useless Hollywood garbage and the squad members. I’m only going to laugh at them because I doubt that anybody actually takes these fools seriously. It was questioned as if Obama’s well wishes were genuine, as was the extent of the President’s illness, and if it will be used as an election tool, and to this I say; shame on you people!

So now it appears that the President has been released from the hospital and is heading home. That is indeed great news, but of course, that will turn into yet another moan and groan issue for the left’s news media, the fools on liberal talk radio, and probably for some of my fellow letter writers.

Now, I’m expecting to see a few accompanying letters this week commenting on the first Presidential debate. That debate was a sickening spectacle involving two men who acted like immature little brats. On the day after that disgusting mess, I listened to the comments on my usual talk radio programs, and depending on which side it came from, it was nothing more than the expected ‘hooray for my side’ rantings.

Chris Wallace indeed had a thankless job. If I was to moderate the next debate, I wouldn’t even have the candidates in the same room, and when whomever was speaking, that’s all you’d be able to see or hear. And, for the next debate, it should be made mandatory that both men apologize to each other - starting with Donald Trump! I know that this is totally a stretch, but if you want to take both the popular vote and the electoral college com-

Anne gets my vote

To the Editor:
 When I cast my vote on Election Day this Nov. 3, I will once again choose Anne Dauphinais (R-44th) to represent me and my interests in congress, and I’d like to share why.

As a lifelong resident of the Quiet Corner, I see our most immediate and important challenges to be lack of transparency in government, out of control spending, and executive overreach. Anne encourages her constituency to understand and be a part of the legislative process; she is accessible and approachable, always keeping those in her district up to date on issues that matter to us most while engaging in discussion and really listening. In congress, Anne asks tough questions and votes according to her conscience, often a vigilant voice of opposition to the majority party running the show in Hartford. Anne is committed to protecting our freedoms, the Constitution being the foundation of her core belief system, and her record speaks to that. If these issues are important to you, I hope you’ll join me in my support for Anne too.

We need Christine Rosati Randall in Hartford

To the Editor:
 Many people already know who they are voting for for President, but let’s not forget our local candidates who play a very important role in our towns. Christine Rosati Randall has been a tremendous advocate for Northeast Connecticut long before running for office and even after her term ended in 2017. She’s running for state representative again and I ask all the voters to learn more about Christine.

Remember when DEEP came to Killingly and killed a beloved swan? It was Christine that took on DEEP and was effective in having them change their protocols. She has invested in our communities, raising her family in Killingly and working on a variety of important causes. She currently works for Day Kimball Healthcare, connecting families to parenting support, which is especially important during this COVID crisis.

She is a board member for Access Agency, which provides assistance to many of our families with fixed or low incomes, including operating shelters and housing programs for our homeless populations. Christine is always willing to listen, but takes that information into action and ultimately, results. She is a hard worker and someone the forgotten corner needs in their corner. Elections matter and their results have consequences. We are heading into an uncertain future. We will need an effective and tireless advocate... we will need Christine.

Thank You,

Larry Groh will bring represent us well in Hartford

To the Editor:
 The 51st District Connecticut State Representative race gives voters of Killingly, Putnam and Thompson the opportunity to send to Hartford a strong candidate with years of successful public service to put our local best interest forward.

Larry Groh, Jr. has a record of integrity, responsiveness to our townspeople and a calm, nonreactive manner during times of strife.

Larry served our town of Thompson well for three terms as First Selectman, passing five annual budgets on the first vote. He did this by engaging with stakeholders, ordinary citizens and other town officials. But Larry also listened to the needs of children-who have no vote-and to those who may not even be voters. All people in our town were his constituents and they all mattered, regardless of political impact.

Larry is approachable, unassuming, available, and knows how to work hard to bring about results that improve quality of life while keeping the big picture in mind.

Best of all, Larry is a listener who thinks through facts, weighs fairness and need, and will fight if necessary using what he has learned instead of merely implementing the agenda of a political party. His manner is invariably respectful and level-headed.

Larry will bring a necessary change to our Hartford presence that will benefit 51st District citizens. We believe he deserves that chance, and that our citizens deserve the kind of representation he offers. We urge voters to choose him on Nov. 3.

Preparing for winter

Like a squirrel gathering nuts, I’m working on putting aside ideas and projects to keep me going through the long winter that is slipping in right on schedule. As I gather colorful leaves and insist that autumn is less striking than usual, I am collecting my own ‘acorns’ and ideas to make the dark days more bearable, productive and pleasant. Rather than hibernating, we can let our New England heartiness kick in and actually accomplish something. Or feel a bit less glum.

We’ve bought two outdoor heaters. They run on propane, and they look like fiery lamp posts. When I saw them years ago in France they seemed exotic. Now they seem indispensable. The cost rose significantly between the first and second purchases, so perhaps they are selling out. They don’t throw much heat, but they give the illusion of warmth and that is enough for a socially distanced drink outside. We have a free-standing fire pit that came with the house. It too is more illusion than effectiveness, but it is safer than a wood fire during this droughty time.

No matter what happens, get outside every day for a deep breath of fresh air and a walk. The Airline Trail is a wonderful, safe and easy place to take a dog, a friend or both for a few flat miles of stretching one’s legs on foot or a bike. The trail is pleasantly boring with trees, weeds, brush and the sky. When I stroll along it, I think about the engineering marvel it was and the hard working immigrants who carved a train track out of the rocky wilderness. Work is being completed on two overpasses and one underpass within my town. I’ll welcome the chance to use all three. At least it will be something new to experience.

I’ve checked out my snow shoes and find that the new ones, made from aluminum, courtesy of LL Bean, are much better than the giant old ones that look like tennis rackets. I suppose they still have some utility if used to decorate a rustic cabin. I plan to lace up my boots, slip on the snow shoes and troop off into the snow drifts. Let’s hope we have plenty of snow for sledding and tramping and cold temperatures to freeze local ponds. Safe distancing won’t be hard outside and masks will feel good.

Bird feeders are the cheapest entertainment around. I bought a giant bag of sunflower seeds to get started and a case of suet. Every day I sense little eyes peering through the windows demanding that I refill the feeders immediately. I comply. In return, I get an ever changing show of shapes, feathers, personalities and avian style. This year, I plan to add more feeders and a few different kinds of seeds. I work on identifying every visitor to the buffet, but I’m not sure about some of the tiny brown birds. This year, armed with ‘Birds of Connecticut’ I’m sorting out the wrens from the sparrows. I resist characterizing some birds as greedy or too aggressive, seeing some as ‘better’ than others. We’ve got enough of that going on with humans. I’ll enjoy the birds for being exactly who and what they are, especially if I know their names.

My husband made a list of warm clothes he needs. One daughter ordered children’s boots as they might be in short supply. Another is buying black beans, chickpeas, chicken broth and books! With about 75 days until the winter solstice, I’m stockpiling sun light, deep breaths of chilly air and time with my feathered friends.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lisa Thomas has my support

To the Editor:
I would like to express my support for Lisa Thomas for State Senator for District 35.
As a former student of Lisa’s, I can speak from personal experience about her strength, intelligence, and caring nature. In Lisa’s classes at Hebron Elementary School, she challenged me to think critically and to explore topics, ideas, and books that I had never experienced before.
While she taught in Hebron, Lisa introduced the Future Problem Solving Program, which teaches students critical problem solving and teamwork skills and encourages them to engage with complex social and scientific issues. After getting my start with FPS in sixth grade under Lisa’s coaching, I participated in the program for seven years, and I look back on my experiences as an FPS-er as some of the most formative of my young adulthood. The program taught me how to work with others on a team, how to think creatively and analytically, and how to lead, and it is thanks to Lisa that I had that opportunity.

Today, we face significant challenges: the global pandemic, the ongoing struggle for racial justice, climate change, and many more. We need a State Senator who knows how to solve problems, who is a passionate advocate for education, and who is committed to her community. Lisa Thomas is that person.

ANNA NEWMAN
TOLLAND

I support Lisa Thomas for Senator for the 35th District

To the Editor:
My kids were lucky to attend good schools and had some great teachers. But for both Steve and Amanda, one teacher stood out Lisa Thomas. Lisa ran the Challenge & Enrichment and Future Problem Solvers programs at Hebron Elementary School. She taught kids how to think critically, opened their minds to issues affecting people way beyond their town limits, inspired them to persist when stuck, encouraged them to work together on teams even when it was hard and they didn’t all agree, she taught patience and diplomacy and compassion for one other. I’m sure that she influenced my kids’ career choices (international relations and fuel cell technology).
Lisa has gone on to public service and is now running to be the State Senator for Connecticut’s 35th District. I’ve followed her as she’s spoken out on issues that I care about. These include improving access to quality health care (and mental health care), supporting small businesses and promoting economic growth for Eastern Connecticut, preserving our natural resources, and of course, continuing to provide high quality education for all.

Lisa has the intelligence, temperament and communication skills to be an excellent legislator. While she has strong beliefs and great ideas, she asks good questions, listens well and works together with her colleagues to get things done. Her experience as a lawyer, educator and a public servant (having served on the Coventry Town Council for 11 years), will help make her an excellent State Senator.

Why I’m supporting Larry Groh

To the Editor:
My vote this election feels more important now than in past years and it has everything to do with how I see candidates on the issues that I’m most concerned about. In helping me choose the right candidate to represent me I had a chance to review the voting record of the sitting State Rep., Rick Hayes, 51st district. I was shocked to learn that among the many votes he participated in the past two years he chose to vote against those that had a direct impact on his constituents. His no vote to cap Insulin prices was only 1 of 4 no votes. As a person recently diagnosed with Diabetes I couldn’t understand why anyone would choose to vote against this bipartisan bill. I later heard him on a local talk show respond by saying... “It was going to pass anyway” when asked why he voted no. That’s not the answer I wanted to hear. His no votes to establish a workforce pipeline for manufacturing jobs was another shock to me. Why would anyone vote against a pipeline for manufacturing jobs when we have such an outstanding program for just that at QVCC. His no vote to ensure adequate staffing at nursing homes was just another mind boggling vote. Again, another bipartisan vote. It’s clear to me that Mr. Hayes fails to work across party lines for the benefit of his constituents. That is the reason my vote will be for Larry Groh who has a history of working with all people regardless of party.

To the Editor:
I met Anne several years ago, when she was knocking on doors during her first campaign. We hit it off instantly, and I felt she would represent our best interests in Hartford. She has not let me down.
Anne has the same beliefs & concerns as many people in our area and relies on her core values to guide her voting decisions. She is fiscally responsible, while also looking out for our freedoms, safety and independence. I watch her talk and more importantly listen to people...even the ones that may have a negative comment. During these crazy times, Anne is exactly who we need in Hartford and I am proud to say she is my State Rep and my friend.

Karma

To the Editor:
Donald Trump arrived at the hospital with Covid-19 just days after mocking Joe Biden for wearing a mask --- more than a little ironic. The same Donald Trump who called Covid1-9 “a hoax,” “fake news,” and “a liberal conspiracy.” The same Donald Trump who’s trying to repeal The Affordable Care Act, while he gets the best medical care that taxpayer money can buy.
I feel extremely bad --- for over 200,000 Americans that have suffered and died, and for their loved-ones left behind. For the thousands of Americans who have lost their jobs and a place to live. For all the stressed-out Front-Line Workers who deal with this nightmare every day. But for Donald Trump, who could have done so much more to help and protect the American people, but chose to play politics instead, I can only think of one word --- karma.

The rush to replace Ginsburg is appalling

To the Editor:
It is appalling, the rush to replace Ruth Bader Ginsburg on the Supreme Court. The woman has not even been properly mourned. Politicians and the press should be ashamed of their actions. She was an amazing inspiring woman who did a lot to further equality for women. To have women treated on the same footing as men.
Lincoln said a house divided cannot stand. We are a divided country; there is no decency or justice in politics. We need to value the creeds and ideals that unite us rather than focus on the differences. Empathy for the loss and suffering of others is important, being treated equally regardless of race, gender, religious belief or sexual orientation is important.

Peaceful protest is important. No one wants violence or looting, no one wants a pandemic that kills people, no one wants police brutality or racial profiling. We need to stand up for the rights of all people. And we need to elect people who believe in the values that have made America great not elect people who are dismantling our democracy and rushing to pack the supreme court with no regard for the will of the people.

Dauphinais’ votes defy logic

To the Editor:
Last week’s letters supporting Anne Dauphinais were very interesting. One says “Government is...a necessary evil.” Another says Anne “pushes back against this insanity.” A third rails about loss of “constitutional freedoms.” Not one of these letters claimed Anne Dauphininais actually solved any problem affecting the citizens of the 44th District.
None claimed Anne’s vote against capping the price big pharma can charge for a medicine Donald Trump said should be as cheap a water would benefit District 44. They didn’t because it didn’t. It did benefit big pharma, though.
Anne recently spoke passionately against Gov. Lamont’s actions to contain the spread of the Covid virus. Given Connecticut’s very good position compared to all states nationally and even adjoining states, why would anyone want to go in the direction of Florida or Texas? Polls show the vast majority of Connecticut residents support the Governor but a small group, including Anne Dauphinais oppose what he has done. Is wearing a mask the kind of insanity the writer was referring to?
Earlier, Anne took the position opposing highway tolls. What did she and

Don’t be duped by Dauphinais

To the Editor:
Please do not be duped by Dauphinais. She was elected to be a public servant and represent the values of the people in her district. Her voting record has proven she is only working to push her own far right, extremist views. She will tell you what she thinks you want to hear and say anything to get elected.
Anne shows up for photo ops and takes credit for other people’s work. She defends each of her bad votes by manipulating the public, claiming we do not understand the bill. She She’s unbelievable!

Remember the storm we recently had where most people lost power for days? Many lost all of their food. Well, just last week, our Representative, Anne Dauphinais, voted no to requiring Eversource to give us a credit for those losses (HB 7006). The CEO made over $19 million last year, and we can’t get $250 for lost food? This is not the first time she has sided with Eversource.
There was another bill in 2019 (SB 469) that would look at Eversource’s performance and minimum staffing

How does such a small person
Encompass such Greatness?

It looks like this:
You get up every morning
With a purpose in your heart,
A commitment, not for yourself,
But the “Other”,
Your sisters, the migrants, the poor and disenfranchised,

A commitment to Democracy
And a country that stands on the freedom
To choose the life that is right for you.

This commitment is your life
Day in and day out,
When you are well
And when you are sick.
You show up and you defend
What you know is right, with Kindness and humor
And love.

How do we honor such a life?
We put on our high heels, sneakers, sandals
And working boots.
We march together
And speak as One,
And we vote

As if our lives, our daughters’ and granddaughters’

the Republicans propose instead? Use the rainy-day fund and borrow if there is ever a crisis. Well there is a crisis and thanks to level headed thinking we have those funds. Nobody wants a tax, but the gas tax is too high and is insufficient to maintain the roads and bridges. In a world with high mileage gas engines, hybrid and electric cars where are the extra funds coming from? Bottom line; no solutions, out-of-state trucks and cars continue to transverse the state for free, and roads and bridges remain in poor condition. I suspect even Thomas Paine would see fixing the state’s infrastructure is the “necessary” part of the “necessary evil.”
I want more from my representative than a person who is “against” the government she is a member of. I want to get a mailing from my representative with more than vague statements about how she “fights for us.” I want specific actions, a list of co-sponsored legislation passed, and specific projects she has worked on to benefit our district. On Nov. 3, Election Day Registration allows eligible people to register to vote in person and cast a ballot on Election Day if he or she meets eligibility requirements for voting and is either (1) not already an elector or (2) is registered in one municipality but wants to change his or her registration because he or she currently in lives in another municipality. A person is eligible to register and vote if he or she is a U.S. citizen, age 18 years or older, and a bona fide resident of the municipality which he or she applies for admission as an elector.

If a voter does not have a pre-existing illness, and there is not a widely available vaccine, the existence of COVID-19 virus allows a voter to vote by absentee if they so choose for their own safety.
When you receive your application, and you chose to vote with an absentee ballot, please return the application promptly. This will allow the Town Clerk’s office to process the application and get the actual ballot back to you for your voting. Town Clerks will begin mailing ballots out on Oct. 2, and you can submit your ballot as soon as you receive it. Please follow the instructions carefully! You must sign and seal the inner envelope for your ballot to be valid! You may return the ballot via USPS or directly to your town’s secure Ballot Drop Box at your town hall but it must be received (not just postmarked) by 8 p.m. on Nov. 3 to be counted. Top open-wheel racers preparing for World Series Modified, 350 Super Opens

THOMPSON — Some of the top open-wheel racers from throughout the Northeast are getting ready for two major open events as part of the 58th Annual Sunoco World Series of Speedway Racing at Connecticut's Thompson Speedway Motorsports Park. The Budweiser Modified Open and 350 Supermodified Open on Saturday, Oct. 10 have big prizes up for grabs and big names ready to chase them.

The 75-lap open event for Tour-type Modifieds has more than $26,000 in posted awards with $5,000 for the winner. Notable Modified racers such as Eric Goodale, Chase Dowling, Jeff Gallup, and Mike Christopher Jr. are preparing their ground-pounders for one of the most anticipated events on the packed World Series schedule.

Of the early entries for the Budweiser Modified Open, Bethlehem's Dowling might be the one to keep the closest eye on. The 22-year-old hot shoe is already a winner at Thompson Speedway in the Modified Racing Series at the 2019 Icebreaker.

Dowling also has victories with the NASCAR Whelen Modified Tour, Tri-Track Open Modified Series, Modified Touring Series, and Stafford Motor Speedway SK Modifieds in his young career. For the Budweiser Modified Open, he will team with veteran car owner Jimmy Paige and his #00 Troyer machine. Dowling will also drive a NEMA Midget during the weekend, and says the Modified might feel like slow motion, compared to the winged midget around the .625-mile oval.

"We've been good at Thompson in the past few years, winning or finishing second," Dowling said. "But we've been struggling lately with Jimmy's car. The guys took the car apart, found a few things wrong with it and I think we will be good going back there. Thompson is its own character... the racing has been aggressive there lately, which is good for the fans. It's creates a risk versus reward."

Riverhead, N.Y.'s Goodale comes into the Budweiser Modified Open on an upswing. The veteran recently won the pole for the NASCAR Whelen Modified Tour event at Stafford, producing a much-needed highlight in a tough season. The multi-time NASCAR Modified winner has a career-best Thompson finish of third and looks to improve on that in his familiar #58.

The Mike Christopher, Jr. entry is one of the most intriguing to date. Wolcott's Christopher, the nephew of the all-time leading Thompson Speedway winner Ted Christopher, will drive for Tommy Baldwin Racing in the Budweiser Modified Open. The pairing of the second-generation racer and the Daytona 500-winning crew chief has run up front in the Stafford Open Modified series this year. Christopher has a Sunoco Modified win at Thompson and now is aiming for an even bigger score.

Agawam, Mass.'s Jeff Gallup, Center Conway, New Hampshire's Andy Shaw, and Copiague, N.Y.'s Glen Steger are among the other Modified racers who have field entries. Gallup and Shaw are proven frontrunners in various touring Modified divisions while Steger is a longtime competitor in the local Sunoco Modifieds. The many rules options for the event allows these racers and many more to share the asphalt at America's oldest paved race track.

Several household names are also gearing up for the 30-lap, $2,000-to-win 350 Small Block Supermodified Open. Two racers from Windham, Maine, Bobby Timmons III and Brad Babb, have committed to the event.

Both had successful careers in Late Model and Super Late Model racing before transitioning to the Supermodified ranks. Babb won the 2017 championship at Epping, New Hampshire's Star Speedway in his first Supermodified season. Timmons recently won the Star Mayor's Cup and was a top-5 finisher in the Star Classic.

Seabrook, New Hampshire's Rich Eaton is another noteworthy entry for the 350 Supermodifieds. Eaton is a winner at Star Speedway this year and scored a podium finish in the 2019 Oswego Classic at New York's Oswego Speedway.

Drivers can still enter both the Budweiser Modified Open and the 350 Supermodified Open. The entry forms and rules are available at www.thompsons Speedway.com, www.act-tour.com/thompson-speedway (link is external), and www.proallstarseries.com (link is external).

These events are part of a 19-division card at the 58th Annual Sunoco World Series of Speedway Racing. The three-day racing festival from Friday, Oct. 9 to Sunday, Oct. 11 also includes the NASCAR Whelen Modified Tour, ISMA Big Block Supermodifieds, ACT-type Late Model Open, NEMA Midgets, Street Stock Open, North East Mini Stock Tour and much more.

General admission at the Sunoco World Series of Speedway Racing is $55 for a three-day adult ticket and $15 for kids ages 12 and under. Advance tickets can be purchased by visiting <https://happsnow.com/event/Thompson-Speedway-Motorsports-Park-YHPQ-WORLD-SERIES-NO2QX> (link is external). Grow garlic this fall for flavorful meals and health benefits

MOMENTS
.....
MELINDA
MYERS

Add a bit of flavor and health benefits to your main course with some home-grown garlic. This vegetable has been used for thousands of years as both food and medicine. Today it is credited with fighting heart disease, lowering blood pressure and cholesterol, and boosting the immune system while fighting cancer. Grow garlic in a well-drained soil and full sun. Plant cloves in fall about six weeks before the ground freezes in cold climates and early winter in warmer regions. Garlic needs 6 to 8 weeks of cool temperatures below 40 degrees for the shoot and bulb to develop. The leaves will form during cool, short days then slows as bulb growth begins when the days are warmer and longer.

Plant individual cloves with the pointed side up and the base of the clove 2 to 3 inches below the soil surface. Space cloves 6 inches apart in rows 12 to 14 inches apart or more depending on the variety.

Mulch the soil with weed-free straw after the ground freezes in regions with cold winters. This provides added insulation and helps prevent frost heaving that occurs when temperatures fluctuate, causing soil to alternately freeze, thaw and shift throughout the winter.

Water thoroughly and often enough to keep the soil evenly moist during active growth. Inconsistent moisture during the growing season results in misshapen bulbs. Mulch the soil with shredded leaves, evergreen needles, or other organic matter to conserve moisture, suppress weeds, and improve the soil as it decomposes.

Double your garlic harvest by using the curly Q stems, called scapes, in cooking and flower arrangements. Watch for these curled stems about a month after the spring leaves appear.

Remove the scape soon after the swollen part appears at the tip of the stem. Cut or break the scape off just below the swollen area. All parts are edible and can be used fresh or cooked just like garlic. You will not only enjoy the mild flavor but removing the scapes helps increase the size of the garlic bulbs.

Harvest garlic when about one third, but less than one half of the leaves turn brown. Start by digging one plant and checking the garlic for maturity. Cloves should be plump and fill the skin. Immature garlic does not store well while over-mature bulbs are subject to disease.

Cure garlic for 3 to 4 weeks in a warm, well-ventilated location. Once dried, remove the tops and store in a cool, moderately humid location with good air circulation and out of direct sunlight. Properly harvested and cured

Thompson resident graduates with Class of 2020 at Stonehill College

EASTON, Mass. — Megan Romprey, of Thompson, graduated with the Class of 2020 during a virtual Commencement Ceremony this summer at Stonehill College.

Initially scheduled for Sunday, May 17 with a traditional in-person format but knocked off course by COVID-19, Stonehill's 69th Commencement finally took place on Saturday, Aug. 8 making history as the College's first virtual Commencement and the first ever held in August. Another big change this year was the presentation of candidates for master's degrees.

Live-streamed from Stonehill's McCarthy Auditorium in the Thomas and Donna May School of Arts & Sciences building the ceremony addressed 630 undergraduates, 13 graduates, their families, and a wider audience of Stonehill faculty, staff, alumni, and friends.

In prerecorded remarks, Commencement speaker New England Patriots star Matthew Slater drew on his career as a three-time Super Bowl Champion to hail the Class of 2020 for their ability to endure, persevere and thrive in the face of adversity.

Stonehill is a Catholic college located near Boston on a beautiful 384-acre campus in Easton, Massachusetts. With a student-faculty ratio of 12:1, the College engages over 2,500 students in 80+ rigorous academic programs in the liberal arts, sciences, and pre-professional fields. The Stonehill community helps students to develop the knowledge, skills, and character to meet their professional goals and to live lives of purpose and integrity.

Putnam High School Wall of Honor ceremony postponed

PUTNAM — Due to the uncertainty of the available use of Putnam High School and the ongoing concerns of the Caronavirus pandemic, the PHS Wall of Honor induction ceremony, scheduled for Oct. 24, has been rescheduled for the second time. The new date will be April 24, 2021.

Following a meeting with Superintendent of Schools, Dan Sullivan and Board of Education representation, the Committee came to the conclusion and decision that attempting to hold the induction ceremony in October carries too much of an unpredictable risk.

Although a summer of planning enabled Putnam Public Schools to open in September with a hybrid schedule, major modifications to buildings and classrooms placed limitations upon the facilities and impacted room capacity.

The current 2020 class of five individuals will now become the class of 2021 with no new honorees added. The list includes: Ira Cutler (posthumous), Ronald Coderre, Jeffrey Jankot, Jeffrey Macdonald and William Lychak.

Notices will be sent to individuals who have already committed to the ceremony with an explanation of available options for ticket refunds.

Putnam the next two Sundays, Oct. 11 & 18, from 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m.

The Scouts will have a variety of products available including popping corn, caramel, white cheddar, and blazin' hot popcorn. This year's collection of popcorn products features healthier varieties as well as new flavors.

the NASCAR Whelen Modified Tour, Budweiser Modified Open, ISMA Supermodifieds and Sunoco Modifieds.
The Mini Stocks are at the opposite end of the spectrum, opening the weekend with a 15-lap feature on Friday night, giving drivers the opportunity to prepare their car for the North East Mini Stock Tour race on Saturday night if they wish. Jared Roy looks for his second win of the season off a dominant performance on Sept. 3, holding off Dave Trudeau and Tommy Silva late. He's expected to be joined by Dave Trudeau, Jr., Steve Michalski and more of the top Mini Stock competitors in the area.
The Twisted Tea SK Light

Modifieds are back for their own 20-lap race on Saturday night, with Josh Carey looking to repeat with his second career win. The division continues to produce some of the region's best upcoming Modified talent, with names like 2019 division champion Bryan Narducci making his presence felt in the class before moving to the SK Modifieds this year over at Stafford.
Chasing more than $3,000 in posted awards, the Sam Adams Limited Sportsman return to the track looking to pick up on their intense battle from September 3. Shawn Monahan, a multiple-time Thompson champion, led more than half of the race, but was passed by Ryan Waterman in the late laps after a tussle for the top spot. Monahan, Larry Barnett, Diego Monahan and newcomer Nickolas Hovey completed the top-five. The Limited Sportsman drivers may also decide they want to take their chances in the $1,000 Open Street Stock race on Friday night, especially if they have a second car in the stable. Three-wide racing is usually a staple of this division, and it's expected to keep fans on the edge of their seats again.

The Thompson Late Models can compete in the ACT-type Late Model open, a 75-lap feature on Saturday night, worth $2,000 to win. The race pays a total of $17,040 in total purse value throughout the field, including lap money collected by some of the competitors and race teams.
Outside of the local divisions, the Sunoco World Series card includes countless other divisions across three days of racing from Friday, October 9 to Sunday, October 11. The NASCAR Whelen Modified Tour, ISMA Big Block Supermodifieds, Budweiser Modified Open, Pro All Star Series Super Late Models, 350 Supermodified Open, and NEMA Midgets are just some of the highlights on the busy card.

A three-day general admission ticket for the Sunoco World Series of Speedway Racing is $55 for adults and $15 for kids ages 12 and under. Advance tickets can be purchased by visiting <https://happsnow.com/event/Thompson-Speedway-Motorsports-Park-YHPQ/WORLD-SERIES-NO2QX>. Pit passes will be sold at the track and are $75 for adults and $40 for kids ages 12 and under.

Director of Planning and Development Tyra Penn-Gesek (left) and State Senator Mae Flexer (right) celebrate the successful conclusion of Thompson's "Nips for Holiday Cheer" anti-litter initiative at Riverside Park in Thompson. With support from Three Tiers for Connecticut's "Don't Trash Connecticut—Nip It In The Bin!" campaign, this months-long initiative encouraged town residents to collect and turn in discarded alcohol "nip" containers over the course of 2020. In total, 48,000 containers were collected from local roadways and public spaces.
