DANIELSON — Spring will soon be upon us and that means more outdoor events and family activities in the local towns. The Natchaug River Young Marines will be out and about helping in the communities in any way that they can. In the past they have been seen helping out for spring cleanup days, in Putnam at First Fridays downtown street festivals and even at a YMCA winter Craft Fair helping to carry packages in for the crafters, just to name a few places.

From Feb. 10 through 21, the group held Recruit Registration for youth ages 7-17. On Feb. 18, the registration was held in the Ellis Tech cafeteria. The events give kids that may be thinking about joining an opportunity to see what goes on. For the first part of the evening they participated in drills and other team building activities. At the end of the evening they had time to participate in group games.

"The program is actually run by the team and the program is about them," said Jeff Edwards of Hampton, Executive Officer and part of the program for 17 years.

The Natchaug River Young Marines won the 2019 Division One Young Marines Unit of the Year.

"It is a special award. There are 17 units in a Regimen and they compete throughout the year. We keep notes of everything we have done and submit the packet and wait to see who won. We were chosen out of six divisions," Edwards said.

"Someone found out that I was in the Marines and asked me if I would come and speak to the Young Marines," said Joe Couture, from Dayville, Unit Commander and a 14-year veteran of the program who served in the U.S. Marine Corps. "I was very impressed and I liked the structure. Kids flourish with structure, otherwise they go in multiple directions, and not all good ones."

One of the Young Marines, Kyra Shaw of Woodstock has been with the program for four years and is currently a Gunnery Sgt. Her mother had been an influence in getting her to join.

"I wasn't the best kid at home," said Shaw. "My mom signed me up in order for me to make new friends and to learn leadership qualities. I have made local, national and international long lasting friends."

She has also learned leadership skills. She has discovered a love for writing and won and essay contest. From entering

KILLINGLY — The Killingly Grange held a Meatloaf Dinner and Bluegrass evening on Feb. 22. It is a popular event for the Grange

"We hold these dinner fundraisers to help with building maintenance of the Grange and other needs such as upkeep of the grounds and heat. We hold six dinners in the winter and five of the dinners with the bluegrass bands, like tonight," said Bruce Kohl, assistant steward of East Killingly, continuous bluegrass venue at the Grange since 2000, playing "The arrangement is a winwin for both the band and the Grange. We rent the hall here from the Grange and charge admission to the audience," said Nick Anderson, head of Every month that they play, the audience is given a special treat. The Shady Creek Band always brings in a guest band. This month's second band is Mike Fishman and the Radio Ramblers from Rhode Island, and they have been recently inducted into the Rhode Island Bluegrass Hall of Fame.

The Killingly Grange has seen their membership drop as their members get older. Throughout the years the Grange's have been encouraged look to the future.

"We are currently meeting to discuss newer programs that will be of interest to the younger people and draw them in," said Kohl said Kohl.

"Many local Granges have given up and closed their doors. We use to do more for the community but with enrollment down the money isn't there. We use to do Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets but no longer can," said Glenna Bruno, member of the Grange for 50 plus years.

As life changes and people become busier with families and work, enrollment is down in many of the non-profit organizations throughout the area, not just the Grange. Everyone is invited to these functions, not just members.

Cleanup planned in advance of Courthouse 5K

PUTNAM — The Courthouse Bar and Grille in Putnam is partnering with the Hartford Marathon Foundation to play host to a trail clean-up and fun run on Saturday, March 7 — in advance of the annual Courthouse O'Putnam 5K on March 15. Participants of the clean-up and fun run will pick up trash while jogging – known as "plogging" – along a section of the Courthouse O'Putnam 5K course, about two miles total. Supplies for the clean-up will be provided.

Interested community members can meet in the parking lot of the Putnam satellite office of Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles at 10 a.m. on March 7. After the clean-up HMF will raffle off a special prize. Sign-up is not required. The annual Courthouse O'Putnam 5K race, held this year on March 15, has been supported by Courthouse Bar and Grille since the race began in 2012.

"Courthouse Bar and Grille has always been a great partner, this year they're taking their role a step further to host runners and walkers for the community clean up event," said Beth Shluger, Hartford Marathon Foundation CEO and founder. "We encourage our runners to keep the trails clean, and this event offers an opportunity to be social and get healthy while giving back to the community."

Registration for the Courthouse O'Putnam 5K is open and all details can be found at www. hartfordmarathon.com

Dayville man arrested for wire fraud

Dayville, an accounts payable clerk employed by a Providence small business that sells gifts and home décor items was arraigned in U.S. District Court in Providence on Feb. 24 on charges he allegedly misappropriated approximately $302,000 of company funds for his own personal use and for the use by an acquaintance.

Devillez, 35, was arraigned on an indictment charging him with 10 counts of wire fraud, announced United States Attorney Aaron L. Weisman and Special Agent in Charge of the FBI Boston Division Joseph R. Bonavolonta.

It is alleged that for nearly three years beginning in October 2015, Devillez was responsible for preparing lists of proposed vendor payments, and after receiving approval from the company's owner to make the payments, he was provided a bank access code by the owner to make those payments by electronic wire transfers.

It is alleged that Devillez made a partial payment or no payment at all to some vendors, transferring the balance

PROVIDENCE — Grant Devillez, of of approved funds from his employer's business bank account to his own bank accounts or to an account owned by another person. It is alleged that after making the unauthorized transfers, Devillez falsified records to reflect that full payment had been made to the vendors.

It is alleged that Devillez misappropriated approximately $302,000.

Devillez, arrested on Feb. 24 by FBI agents who investigated the matter, was arraigned before U.S. District Court Magistrate Judge Patricia A. Sullivan and released on unsecured bond and GPS monitoring.

An indictment is merely an accusation. A defendant is presumed innocent unless and until proven guilty. Wire fraud is punishable by statutory maximum penalties of 20 years imprisonment, a fine of twice the gross/gain loss, and three years supervised release. The case is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Denise M. Barton.

Serving up some turkey and friendship

BY KAREN BUTERA

KILLINGLY — Who doesn't love a turkey dinner, complete with potatoes, stuffing, gravy, carrots and bread. This was the meal that was served on Saturday, Feb. 15 at Westfield Congregational Church of Killingly third Saturday of the month meal. As if that wasn't delicious enough, it was finished off with a dessert of strawberry shortcake.

"We have these dinners as a fundraiser to help us care for the hurting of Killingly," said Kerry Methot, church congregant. "We take care of the homeless and underserved of the community. It helps to support our second Friday free dinner that we have called 'Be Our Guest.' It is for anybody in the commu-

"Meals are served from 4:30-6:30. We serve between 100 through 125 people," said Reverend Dr. Jonathan Chapman, Pastor of the church.

However, on this particular night they were sold out by 4:45. Tickets are available for pre-buying at the church office before the event and that is always strongly encouraged. On this evening, people were turned away shortly after the start of the event. March's meal of Corned Beef and Cabbage is another popular choice. That meal will be the second Saturday of the month on March 14, just before St. Patrick's Day. The meal will come with potatoes, soda bread and homemade dessert.

According to Chapman, "We are a community church founded in 1750. We are the church of the town. We show up whenever and however we can." They consider themselves the Heart of Killingly.

They live for what they consider their mission in the town- to help to make the lives of the hurting people in the town easier. One of the acts of missions is to provide a free meal of hot soup on Sunday nights- Soup On Saturdays, during the coldest time of the year.

Their doors are open to any non-profit that has a like-mission to theirs.

"We open our doors to Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, Blood Drives by the Red Cross, Interfaith Stitchers, Generations Healthcare Playgroups and the WIC Clinic," said Chapman.

They will also be hosting the town's Easter Egg Hunt, coming up soon, with 12,000 eggs.

You will want to be sure to check out some of their other third Saturday meals that will be coming up — Roast Pork in April and Chicken and Waffles

Waldrop is in Tourtellotte spotlight

Branson Waldrop

THOMPSON — Each month, Tourtellotte Memorial High School's Student Spotlight program recognizes a student who has demonstrated outstanding achievement, character, leadership, attitude, and/or contributions to the school and community. February's Student Spotlight honoree is junior Branson Waldrop.

Waldrop was nominated by his fellow classmates Kaden Strom, Coady Bell, and many others.

"Brandon has been very kind since he moved here, and has been a great addition to the homeroom family,' Strom said.

Another student said, "Branson is always friendly, polite, and kind to others....We are lucky Branson has come to Tourtellotte."

When asked what motivates him, Branson responded: "My two loving parents, old friends, new friends, and so on. This very award motivates me to stay on track."

Waldrop said such recognition motivates him to maintain a strong work ethic in order to make his dreams come true. Since coming to TMHS Waldrop has actively participated in the school's band, and he hopes to join the baseball and soccer team. At other schools and communities he was a part of Waldrop helped out in any way that he could, whether it was setting up decorations or running a cotton candy machine. He plans to continue with his community service in Thompson during the summer months.

Waldrop has many plans for a bright future which include graduating high school with a high grade point averange, attending college, getting a job in the engineering field, and then hopefully traveling the world. Waldrop keeps up very high grades, earning a place on the high honor roll and Dean's List at every school he has attended. Waldrop is part of a military family which he says means,"I am no stranger

He has attended four high schools in three years which can be very challenging. But Waldrop always remains positive and says that these experiences have "shaped and defined who I am and how I respond to new challenges in a new environment."

"Today you are exactly where you are supposed to be. What happens tomorrow is up to you," Waldrop said.

This quote from his former Spanish teacher really speaks to him. Waldrop does not believe in fate or destiny, but what he does believe in is hard work.

"Everything that has happened to you was needed to get you to where you are now," Waldrop said.

NOW free track and field clinic —Northeast Opportunities for Wellness, Inc. (NOW) will once again partner with Tourtellotte Memorial High School's track and field coaches and student athletes for the fifth annual Youth Running and Track Clinic from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday, March 1, at the Tourtellotte Memorial High's gymnasium. Those interested in participating can register online or in person at the event.

Children ages 6 to 13 are invited to attend and learn a variety of skills in track and field events. This clinic is a part of a series of free events hosted by NOW designed to introduce sports and wellness activities to children in the 10-town area of Northeast Connecticut.

First held in March of 2016, the concept behind the clinic was to introduce proper form and technique to children interested in running activities. Early on, Tourtellotte's coaches were quick to express interest in partnering with NOW on the clinic, with the goal of promoting the sport to elementary and middle-school aged children. With a program planned by TMHS Coach Beth Ten Eyck, student athletes from the Tourtellotte's track and field team will lead six dynamic "skill stations" including: acceleration skills, distance, jumping, throwing, relays, and hurdling. Another signature element of the clinic is an additional skill station run by NOW staff, focused on nutrition and fitness.

NOW is a non-profit human services organization focused on youth wellness. NOW provides children with the opportunity to participate in area wellness activities and athletics programs, offering scholarships to the youth of the community with up to 95 percent of the cost being subsidized by NOW. The mission of the organization is to provide all children, regardless of financial resources, equal opportunities to achieve and maintain youth wellness,

Mother whispers during Lent

I've always been drawn to the concept of Lent. It seems attractive to give up something for 6 weeks and in the process reform one's habits and devote effort and thought to a higher power. A little sacrifice sounds good as long as it isn't too much. My brother gives up drinking alcohol every year, even though he rarely drinks very much anyway. I consider following his example, but I haven't, yet. I might give up eating chips, a treasured food, or chewing gum (done only when no one is looking and never, ever around my grandchildren.). The list could go on.

NANCY WEISS

My mother was so deeply imbued with the Puritan attitudes of her ancestors, that she felt giving something up for Lent was too showy. Of course, almost anything was too showy. She died a long time ago, but her unspoken rules roll around in my mind enough to blunt the pleasure I might take in a new spring outfit. I'll still buy something but not without a ripple of regret. The juxtaposition of emotions is how it feels to be an adult.

Adding something during Lent rather than giving up is a fine idea. What if we gave up feeling upset with each other over politics? What if we left our cell phones off while driving the car? Or even left it in our pocket when grocery shopping. What if we added a radio station that mostly plays music instead of news? How about calling an old friend rather than sending a text? They might like it or they might not, but hearing their voice will bring back good memories

Open up the local papers and there are ads for Friday fish fries during Lent. Eating fish instead of meat is part of the penitential tradition that now fits in nicely with ideas about our health and the health of the planet. I've sampled plant-based burgers and while I am not wild about them, I can adjust and eat them as well. Our area brims with volunteer groups working hard for the good of others. Add a fish fry to your calendar. I'll add one to mine. Think of all those fine people getting spattered with hot oil so the rest of us can eat fish and French fries.

People keep dying around me or getting sick. It isn't the flu, it is where I am in life and it is because I know a lot of people. Small town life connects us to others and an even longer chain of their relatives, whom we may only know from conversations. If the people are young, I am angry when something terrible happens. I can't bear the unfairness. If they are older, I think they really aren't old enough and want them well again or around a bit longer. My heart begins to feel overwhelmed by sadness and then I think about soup. If I make soup, everything is better. I can give it away to the sick or the grieving. It doesn't matter if they like it or want it, it makes all of us feel better.

As the forty days of Lent slip by, we enjoy longer days and brighter weather. Winter has been so flabby that we aren't desperate for spring, but when I sit in a pew in the jewel box loveliness of the church I attend and the sun pours in the stained glass windows, I am grateful for every ray of light, for everyone who is part of keeping up traditions of giving up and giving more, without being too showy, of course.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Let your vote do the talking

As we move toward our 2020 national election, the backdrop and list of Democratic candidates is confusing and in some cases, astounding, but this is the great USA and the conversations perpetuated by main-stream media and powerful career politicians continue to be lackluster and negative. "The Russians are Coming!" Same old, same old. To think that a communist socialist like Sanders stands a chance at a Democratic nomination does pay homage to the effective indoctrination of our youth over the last few decades and is hard to wrap your head around, but a reality. Free college, free healthcare, open borders. These talking points are just that, talking points. Nothing is free.

Sadly, while the majority of Americans are feeling good about their own economic upswing, more job opportunities and massive de-regulation to help all businesses grow, the despair and anxiety among our youth and those seeking to instill fear and anxiety in an attempt to gather votes denies the undeniable benefits about everything good that has been brought about by our current administration. The incessant name-calling, calculated news leaks and a blatant disregard for the will of the American people have been perpetuated from the sanctimonious, holier than thou dissidents of the values the majority holds dear. Their attempt to embarrass, demean and disregard our intellect and free will has been a fabulous incentive to speak out even louder than before. Thanks for that! As a fan of the Trump administration,

I often chuckle at our President's twitter quips, admire his stamina and his conviction to Keep America Great! He ran on the idea of draining the swamp and many of those career politicians have left the swamp, before being exposed for what they truly are. However, there is much to be done. The silent majority is silent no more. Not in 2016 and they will turn out in droves to support this President in 2020. It is astounding that some still do not recognize the power of the silent majority, but inevitably, they will.

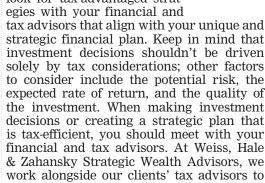

The first step to alleviate this attitude of despair among so many is to repair our thinking. Don't let their name-calling and ridiculous tags bother you. Be proud of your well-informed voting decision, which in this election, will continue to prove phenomenal results. Remove any hatred directed at you for that decision. It's called bullying and downright laughable, coming from adult leaders. Don't despair. There is no shame in voting for those who have experienced personal success without demoralizing those they were elected to protect and advance. Think for yourself. Stand up for yourself and your values. Call out those who dramatize and debilitate those among us who are less fortunate or struggling for many reasons, in an attempt to strip them of their pride, fortitude and ability to change their circumstances within a framework that truly epitomizes the American Dream. Let your vote do the talking for you.

Don't despair! The best is yet to come!

Tax-advantaged strategies

Throughout this month we have discussed various strategies related to efficient tax planning, such as backdoor Roth IRAs, and HSAs, but why? Sometimes, taxes can significantly reduce your total investment returns. When building a portfolio, it may be helpful to look for tax-advantaged strategies with your financial and help them maximize their tax-efficiency.

Tax-deferred and tax-free investments: Tax deferring is the process of delaying (but not necessarily eliminating) until a future year the payment of income taxes on income you earn in the current year. For example, the money you put into your traditional 401(k) retirement account isn't taxed until you withdraw it, which might be 30 or 40 years down the road!

Tax deferrals can be beneficial because: The money you would have spent on taxes remains investedYou may be in a lower tax bracket when you make withdrawals from your accounts (for example, when you're retired) You can accumulate more dollars in your accounts due to compounding. Compounding means that your earnings become part of your underlying investment, and they, in turn, earn interest. In the early years of an investment, the benefit of compounding may not be that significant. But as the years go by, the long-term boost to your total return can be dramatic.

Taxes make a big difference: Let's assume two people have $5,000 to invest every year for 30 years. One person invests in a tax-free account like a Roth 401(k) that earns 6% per year, and the other person invests in a tax-able account that also earns 6% each year. Assuming a tax rate of 24%, in 30 years the tax-free account will be worth $395,291, while the taxable account will be worth $308,155. That's a difference of $87,136.

This hypothetical example is for illustrative purposes only, and its results are not representative of any specific investment or mix of investments. Actual results will vary. The taxable account balance assumes that earnings are taxed as ordinary income and does not reflect possible lower maximum tax rates on capital gains and dividends, as well as the tax treatment of investment losses, which would make the taxable investment return more favorable, thereby reducing the difference in performance between the accounts shown. Investment fees and expenses have not been deducted. If they had been, the results would have been lower. You should consider your personal investment horizon and income tax brackets, both current and anticipated, when making an investment decision as these may further impact the results of the comparison. This illustration assumes a fixed annual rate of return; the rate of return on your actual investment portfolio will be different and will vary over time, according to actual market performance. This is particularly true for long-term investments. It is important to note that investments offering the potential for higher rates of return also involve a higher degree of risk to principal.

Tax-advantaged savings

Tax-advantaged savings vehicles for retirement: One of the best ways to accumulate funds for retirement or any other investment objective is to use tax-advantaged (i.e., tax-deferred or tax-free) savings vehicles when appropriate.

Traditional IRAs — Anyone under age 70½ who earns income or is married to someone with earned income can contribute to an IRA. Depending upon your income and whether you're covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan, you may or may not be able to deduct your contributions to a traditional IRA, but your contributions always grow tax-deferred. However, you'll owe income taxes when you make a withdrawal.* You can contribute up to $6,000 (for 2019 and 2020) to an IRA, and individuals age 50 and older can contribute an additional $1,000 (for 2019 and 2020).

Roth IRAs — Roth IRAs are open only to individuals with incomes below certain limits. Your contributions are made with after-tax dollars but will grow tax-deferred, and qualified distributions will be tax-free when you withdraw them. The amount you can contribute is the same as for traditional IRAs. Total combined contributions to Roth and traditional IRAs can't exceed $6,000 (for 2019 and 2020) for individuals under age 50.

Simple IRAs and Simple 401(k)s — These plans are generally associated with small businesses. As with traditional IRAs, your contributions grow tax-deferred, but you'll owe income taxes when you make a with-drawal.* You can contribute up to $13,500 (for 2020, $13,000 for 2019) to one of these plans; individuals age 50 and older can contribute an additional $3,000 (for 2019 and 2020). (SIMPLE 401(k) plans can also allow Roth contributions.)

Employer-sponsored plans (401(k)s, 403(b) s, 457 plans) — Contributions to these types of plans grow tax-deferred, but you'll owe income taxes when you make a withdrawal.* You can contribute up to $19,500 (for 2020, $19,000 for 2019) to one of these plans; individuals age 50 and older can contribute an additional $6,500 (for 2020, $6,000 for 2019). Employers can generally allow employees to make after-tax Roth contributions, in which case qualifying distributions will be tax-free.

Annuities — You pay money to an annuity issuer (an insurance company), and the issuer promises to pay principal and earnings back to you or your named beneficiary in the future (you'll be subject to fees and expenses that you'll need to understand and consider). Most annuities have surrender charges that are assessed if the contract owner surrenders the annuity. Annuities generally allow you to elect to receive an income stream for life (subject to the financial strength and claims-paying ability of the issuer). There's no limit to how much you can invest, and your contributions grow tax-deferred. However, you'll owe income taxes on the earnings when you start receiving distributions.*

Tax-advantaged savings vehicles for college. For college, tax-advantaged savings vehicles include: 529 plans — College savings plans and prepaid tuition plans let you set aside money for college that will grow tax-deferred and be tax-free at withdrawal

Finding the beauty in others

POSITIVELY SPEAKING

> GARY W. MOORE

I love people. It is so rare for me to meet someone and feel that I didn't like them. I think what we look for in life and in others, we usually find. If we have a general mistrust of others, we'll find others untrustworthy. If we believe everyone is out to get us, we'll subconsciously work to make it true. Our mind works overtime to make our belief system accurate, even if it's not. If you are suspicious of everyone, you will find bits and pieces of unconnected information and assemble them into a tale that conforms to your belief.

I've always loved and trusted people. And yes, I have been deceived, hurt and disappointed a few times but overall, when I expect the best intentions from others, I usually get it. I believe when people realize you expect the best from them, they don't want to disappoint.

I've only known two people in my entire life that I felt were dishonest to the point of almost being evil. One male and one female. One systematically tried to destroy an entire business organization because he felt slighted. He didn't care how many families were hurt or jobs destroyed. The other lied and deceived me in ways that I still find mind-boggling and did so purposefully and without regret. So yes, there are bad people in the world. However, the vast majority would never allow themselves to treat others as these two did. If I were to base my beliefs in human nature on the actions of these two, I'd live a miserable life, always on guard and suspicious of others. I choose to recognize that of the thousands I have met, those two were an anomaly. The overwhelming vast majority of people are good natured and kind.

Rather than focusing on a couple of bad actors, l choose to believe and expect the best of others. I like and trust everyone I meet unless they give me a reason to feel otherwise. And even if for some reason I meet someone who does, I certainly don't wish them any harm. You may not be a friend but that does not mean you should be my enemy. Why should it have to be an either/or proposition? As my mother use to say, live and let live. I don't need nor want enemies in my life and I think most people with enemies helped create them.

Rather than making enemies, let's make a positive impact on others, friends or not. Make a lasting impression on others by being helpful and caring. Everyone you meet is going through something. Your kindness may lighten their load. Scripture (Philippians 2:4) teaches us that we should not only look out for our own interests but also take an interest in others. There is the old saying that says "No one cares how much you know, until they know how much you care.

Being kind to others is easy. It takes no special talents or gifts. To make a difference in the lives of others, you don't have to be beautiful or handsome. You didn't have to attend an Ivy League University or graduate from high school. You don't need talent or any special ability at all. To make a difference, all you must do is care.

There comes a time in everyone's life when kindness is needed. I've met people who say that they don't need friends or the help of others. I always shake my head, realizing the fallacy of that belief. There comes a time when we all need someone and if we have never cared about others, how can you expect others to care about you?

Quilts, codes, and the Underground Railroad in Killingly

African American History Month Dobard but put it aside to read during (Black History Month)* is drawing to a close so I thought I'd write a little more about the subject. Since some educators read this column, I'll mention a resource that you might not be aware of. In 2002 Killingly Historical & Genealogical Society member Marcella Houle Pasay published Full Circle -A Directory of Native and African Americans in Windham County, CT and Vicinity, 1650-1900 (Heritage Books, two volumes). The first volume contains an alphabetized surname listing; volume two has individuals with no surnames. In addition Volume II has one appendix which names non-white individuals who fought in the Revolutionary and Civil Wars. I found another, Appendix B, quite interesting since it contained extracts of African-Americans and Native Americans in the 1830 U.S. Census (listed together). The following non-white heads of household were listed from Killingly: Jesse Cornelius, 1 male 55-100; 2 females 36-55. Nancy Malbone, 1 female 10-24; 1 female 100 +; Stephen Murray 1 male 24-26 (2 others in household); Jeremiah Proffit, 1 male 36-55, 1 female 36-55, 1 female 55-100; Robinson Lewis 1 male 10-24, 1 male 24-36, 3 females to 10, 1 female 24-36. In addition, the following white heads of household in Killingly had non-whites in their homes: George Appleton, 1 female 36-55; Elisha Danielson, 1 male 24-36 making a total of 17 non-whites in 7 households (p. 685). In the 1830 census Brooklyn had 50 non-whites in 21 households; Canterbury had 68 nonwhites in 30 households; Plainfield has 76 in 33 households; Pomfret had 92 in 28 households; Thompson had 83 in 17 households; Woodstock had 88 in 33 households (pp. 682-691). Full Circle is still available online. *(See https:// www.loc.gov/law/help/commemorative-observations/african-american. php for a history of Black History/ African American History Month).

Last summer I purchased the book Hidden in Plain View-A Secret Story of Quilts and the Underground Railroad by Jacqueline L. Tobin and Raymond G.

KILLINGLY AT 300 MARGARET

this month. I'm finding it fascinating and have learned through internet research that the book and the topic are very controversial and have spawned many other books, exhibits, and quilts with codes. The book is based on the oral traditions passed on to African American quilter Ozella McDaniel Williams who told them to Tobin. She told how African American slave women themselves were making quilts that helped escaping slaves plan their escapes and flee towards freedom in Canada. Certain patterns and knots were part of the "code." Tobin explained, "According to Ozella there were ten quilts used to direct the slaves to take particular actions... The ten quilts were placed one at a time on a fence. Since it was common for quilts to be aired out frequently, the master and mistress would not be suspicious when seeing the quilts displayed in this fashion. This way the slaves would nonverbally alert those who were escaping. Only one quilt would appear at any one time. Each quilt signaled a specific action for a slave to take at the particular time that the quilt was on view. Ozella explained that when the Monkey Wrench pattern was displayed, the slaves were to gather all the tools they might need on the journey to freedom...When the quilt with the Tumbling Boxes appeared, the slaves knew it was time to escape" (p. 70). I'm finding the authors' research in the African cultures from which the slaves came fascinating as similarities are uncovered and discussed. The book is not a particularly easy read due the small print in the paperback edition, which I'm reading, but I'm learning

Food for thought! What level of importance do you think oral traditions should be given? Although some in the historic community thought the concept of codes hidden in quilts bore merit and began writing about it and using it in interpretation, there were others who debunked the above "code" as folk tales that were not to be believed.

The following is one such commentary on the book by Stacie Stukin (http://content.time.com/time/ arts/article/0,8599,1606271,00.html; Los Angeles, Tuesday Apr. 3, 2007): "When Jacqueline Tobin and Raymond Dobard explored in their book Hidden in Plain View: A Secret Story of Quilts and the Underground Railroad (Random House) a family legend that said messages encoded in quilts helped slaves escape to freedom on the Underground Railroad, they had no idea that their hypothesis would inspire rancor from scholars who declared it false. They also couldn't have predicted how their story, published less than 10 years ago, would capture the popular imagination — being treated as fact on The Oprah Winfrey Show, in museum exhibits, in children's textbooks and on the Web, and spawning an industry of quilt code books and patterns." (She quoted) Giles Wright, an Underground Railroad expert who works for the New Jersey Historical Commission Underground Railroad is so rife with distortions and misinformation, and this is just one more instance when someone comes across folklore and assumes it's true,' he says. Folklorist and quilt historian Laurel Horton, who has lectured and published papers about the quilt code, says she's given up on trying to debunk the myth. Instead, she says she's more interested on focusing on why the story continues to persist. 'This whole issue made me realize it's not a matter of one group having the truth and another not. It's matter of two different sets of beliefs. It's made me realize that belief doesn't have a lot to do with factual representation. People feel in their gut that it's true so no one can convince them in their head that it's otherwise."

The following is from (https://folklife.si.edu/magazine/underground-railroad-quilt-codes): "Perhaps the code, true or not, is a vehicle for African Americans to explore the trauma they inherited—and the hope... Nowadays, some African American women make coded quilts for their daughters and granddaughters, and that will keep happening. Whether or not the codes are 'real,' Tobin and Dobard are responsible for a twenty-year tradition of craftsmanship that has cropped out of a confidence in what they wrote, in the codes. Now the lineage of artisans using quilt codes is robust. For them, the codes are poetry, healing, and, especially, a means of expressing history.

Marie Claire Bryant is a poet, storyteller, and archivist interning at the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage.'

According to Horatio Strother in the Underground Railroad in Connecticut, Prosper Alexander of Killingly was a known agent on the Underground Railroad. Grey's 1869 map shows him living near present-day Owen Bell Park in Dayville.

I grew up in a house in Pennsylvania that, according to oral tradition, was used during the Underground Railroad. Although there is no known documentation to support the story, I like to believe it is true. Such may well be the case with using quilts as codes. If nothing else, it makes us explore and think!

Something's been bugging me

Shout out to Eleanor Wentworth of Putnam this week! I'm happy you are enjoying my column! I shouldn't complain about the weather this winter because it's been pretty mild so far. I'll complain anyway but I really shouldn't. We're New Englanders, so of course we rant about the weather! It's not even as cold as some years but it's still too cold for me. I would love spring, summer, fall, spring, summer, fall.

Imagine if all the rain we've had was really snow? It would look like Newfoundland here! I have family in St. John's, and those people are getting nailed this year.

Sean bought a new truck, an F250, because a 100ft pine tree crushed the last one on Halloween night. He hasn't even rushed to put the plow on because. why? I just probably jinxed him by writing that. The only drawback for having a mild winter is that this summer will be extra buggy. The mass amount of bugs! The bugs we will Red's have because winter wasn't cold enough > that falls into that category of creepy. I know we are supposed to love and try to save bees because they are in decline, so I won't kill one (but I will run screaming from it). I just haven't had good luck in the insect department during

to take care of the little demons. I am

terrified of all insects, bugs, arachnids, and

pretty much anything

this lifetime I think my first run-in with the insect mafioso was, when I took a trip to Roseland Park as a child to enjoy the swings and the slides, but I tripped in a ground nest and got stung by a gang wearing yellow jackets 13 times. I went to a cookout as a young adult, attempted to learn to play horseshoes but overshot the pit, hit a nest, and got stung 11 times. As a new homeowner, I was going into the shed for the mower, and naturally there was a nest on the door, and I got stung 4 times. Last summer in NH I was selling advertising in a bait shop and random wasp came out of nowhere and stung me twice...and let's not forget the time I tried to take down a white-faced hornets' nest with a Super Soaker 200. I totally deserved those watersoaked stings for stupid decision making, but the rest of them? Maybe they just have it out for me. Maybe all bugs have it out for me!

Ever kill a beetle with a body part going 45 miles per hour on a motorcycle? How come horseflies are only attracted to the top of your head if your trying to swim? I've spent countless summers shouting "Go under. it's on you!" We can't forget mosquitos and ticks! And they won't let us, because they can cause you some serious damage. Those will be plentiful this summer I'm sure. My oldest has had Lyme disease three times, the younger one had it once, and I had ehrlichiosis one time. I complain, but the bugs are still worse down South! I lived in South Carolina years ago and their roaches, aka Palmetto Bugs, use landing strips! The first time I saw one was on the outside porch of the condo I lived in. It yelled at me to go back in the house. I killed it with a can of Agua Net because I didn't have any bug spray. You can't even step on them because it would be like stepping on a mouse! Not even a month later, a customer reported there was a scorpion on the sidewalk outside of the salon I worked at. I stopped sweeping the hair I had just cut, and went out of my way to beat it to death with the broom. I figured, it was either me or him! I've lost way too many times to lose to a scorpion. Anyway, I'd rather live up here and be afraid of smaller bugs, thank you very much. Sean and the girls took me to a butterfly sanctuary in Massachusetts last year. I almost had a nervous breakdown. "Just don't start swinging and kill anything" he warned me. I'll stay awake all night hunting if I lost a spider in the bedroom, and I know a lot of people who would do the same...and no, they aren't all women. So, store your shovels and invest in a lot of repellant. I think this summer we're going to need it. Are you itchy now? Stay Warm!

at the federal level if the funds are used for qualified education expenses. These plans are open to anyone regardless of income level. Contribution limits are high — typically over $300,000 but vary by plan.

Coverdell education savings accounts — Coverdell accounts are open only to individuals with incomes below certain limits, but if you qualify, you can contribute up to $2,000 per year, per beneficiary. Your contributions will grow tax-deferred and be tax-free at withdrawal at the federal level if the funds are used for qualified education expenses.

Series EE bonds — The interest earned on Series EE savings bonds grows tax-deferred. But if you meet income limits (and a few other requirements) at the time you redeem the bonds for college, the interest will be free from federal income tax too (it's always exempt from state tax).

Invest well: Though tax considerations shouldn't be your only investing concern, by putting your money in tax-ad-vantaged savings vehicles and investments when appropriate, you'll keep more money in your pocket. Also, before investing consider whether vour state offers a 529 plan that provides residents with favorable state tax benefits. The availability of tax and other benefits may be conditioned on meeting certain requirements. There is also the risk that the investments may lose money or not perform well enough to cover college costs as anticipated. For withdrawals not used for qualified higher-education expenses, earnings may be subject to taxation as ordinary income and possibly a 10% federal income tax penalty.* Withdrawals prior to age 59½ may be subject to a 10% federal income tax penalty unless an exception applies. * Other state benefits may include financial aid, scholarship funds, and protection from creditors.

Letter to the Editor:

A Thanks and an Assurance

The QVCC auditorium was packed for the LiR Open House on Friday Feb. 21st - thanks to those within LiR who arranged for our speaker-Marty Podskoch. His topic, visiting CT's 169 Towns, and his inter-active presentation style got the whole auditorium involved. Kicking off the Spring 2020 semester, he filled every one of the 200 auditorium seats with fellow adults who love to keep on learning... and everybody had fun. After the presentation, Marty stayed for questions, and, BTW, sold 6 cases of his book "The Connecticut 169 Club: Your Passport and Guide to Exploring Connecticut. The LiR (for all adult life-long learners) Open Houses welcome the public and have the purpose of "Educational Entertainment." As always, the Open House included a succinct introduction of all the 43 presentations that we have scheduled for the spring, which starts on March 16. Our presentations will be in categories, such as Travel, History, Local Interest, Wellness, Need to Know, Music/Arts as well as some that do not fall into any one of these categories. A special Series will focus on the Heritages/Ethnicities of Northeastern CT, and will provide Members the opportunity to participate! There are many chapters of LiR organizations, allied with colleges around the nation... this is our local LiR 's 26th year, in affiliation with QVCC, with yearly membership of about 400. We keep accurate records of our activities, giving us insight to member interests and guiding us in our selection of future presenters. Our structure and operation is directed by precedents of success, our By-laws, our Constitution and by Robert's Rules. An all-volunteer organization, we utilize a monthly Council meeting of 20 members, which believes in continuous improvement and has implemented minor and major adjustments over our 26 years of success in meeting our members' desires. From 23 different towns and 3 states, our members are from all walks of life. and have many interests and views-but "interested" is a word that describes us all. Although in earlier years we defined ourselves as an organization devoted to retirees, we have for some time, broadened our appeal to adults of any age who share an interest in learning about the world around us and want to meet others with similar aims.

Our efforts are rewarded when we have full Open Houses, hear and observe pleasure and appreciation, as we did this last week! It was evident in the auditorium aa well as during the free Snack time following the presentations. The volume of voices alone told us how pleased the attendees were!

Again, thank you to LiR's present membership and prospective members. Thank you to those who make the Open House success all happen-the speaker, the refreshments and the organizing. And to those who look at knowledge and social activity as we do- our efforts will continue to focus on member satisfaction and will continue to use our time-tested ways and dedicated people to find interesting topics and presenters and make them available to our members.

Give LiR a thorough look. Check the website: LiR Adult Learners at QVCC. The whole Spring Program is there, in detail, with registration information. Come On Down and Join Us.

To expect honesty from others, be honest. To make friends be a friend. To expect kindness, give kindness in advance. Creating lasting relationships is about investing your time and attention to create them.

As I've mentioned, I am currently fighting a health issue. I'm optimistic of my outcome, but I have been touched in ways that I never expected by the kindness of others. New friends, and old friends alike, have expressed their concern and offered encouragement. Friends have brought meals to our home, offered rides to distant hospitals and pledged their support in any way needed. Readers of my books and this column have called and written to me saying, "I pray for you daily." For me, that is better than any prescribed medicine or treatment.

I'm hopeful I will not need help, but I know it's there if required. I feel blessed. You can feel those same blessings when you reach out and become a blessing to others.

Who can you bless today with an act of friendship and kindness?

Killingly High celebrates after winning the Eastern Connecticut Conference Division 2 Tournament championship on Tuesday, Feb. 25, at Mohegan Sun Arena.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ

UNCASVILLE Putnam High Killingly High took their backyard rivalry 40 miles down Interstate 395 on Tuesday night — motoring to Mohegan Sun Arena for the Eastern Connecticut Conference Division 2 Tournament championship. A pair of seniors drove their respective teams to the title game — Putnam's Kayleigh Lyons and Killingly's Trinity Angel. The four-year starters collided head-on one last time. Killingly survived with a 55-49 victory — but Angel knew the designated driver who had to be stopped.

'We had to make sure we kept a body on Kayleigh at all times," said Angel, the lone senior on Killingly's roster. "She really determines the team. She's the playmaker of the team." Something had to give between two teams that had both won ECC divisional titles. Class S Putnam captured first place in ECC-Division 4 with a perfect 8-0 divisional mark. Class MM Killingly won the ECC-Division 3 crown with an 8-0 record. The ECC Division 2 tourney included all ECC teams in Divisions 3 and 4. This was the third meeting between the two clubs. Killingly defeated Putnam 55-35 in the first game between the two teams on Jan. 6. Putnam won the rematch 47-33 on Jan. 22.

Lyons would have preferred a different ending but she said the Clippers never gave up — trailing by 12 points with under two minutes left in the third quarter but rallying to pull within four points on a pair of free throws from Lyons with 57 seconds remaining in the game.

"A lot of people doubted the fact that we would be able to make it here tonight. Just the fact that we got her, playing a double-M team, with only 12 girls on our bench — a lot of people doubted us," Lyons said. "But we were here. We fought. Even though you come out with a loss we were still playing our hearts out. I'm proud of my team, my family."

Putnam coach Mandi Hogan said her players never gave in.

"That's us. That's Putnam. That's why That's we're here in the first place. These kids proved everybody wrong and they fought bigger schools. They just kept battling," Hogan said. "I'm just proud of them. They worked hard. We move on to states."

Hogan saluted Lyons, her playmaker. Lyons tallied a team-high 17 points and junior forward Abby St. Martin added 16 points for the Clippers, but no other Putnam player tallied more than five points. The effort was there but the shots just didn't fall.

"The kids that are out there are going to do everything they possible can to compete with whoever is standing in their way," Hogan said.

Killingly sophomore guard Emma Carpenter stood in Putnam's way in the tourney final. Perhaps Carpenter should have tossed some dice at Mohegan Sun's casino later on Tuesday evening after the hot hand she displayed on the hardwood. Carpenter finished with a gamehigh 23 points including five three pointers.

"She brought it today and she had ice in her veins," said Killingly coach Gina Derosier. "I told Emma yesterday (in practice) if they collapse on Trinity and you knock one down you're going to open things up for everybody. Once you knock one or two shots down they've got to get a hand on the shooter. It's going to be 'pick your poison'. Leave Trinity open then she's going to knock them down on the inside. But if vou collapse down on her and give my three guards out there an opportunity, they're going to knock them down too.'

Carpenter got in the flow early and was hard to stop.

"Definitely I was on tonight. I knew I had to step it up for this game, especially being the ECC championship, so there was a lot on the line tonight," Carpenter said. "Once you're on, you're on. You keep going. You try and get those open shots, and open opportunities, and they just start going in."

Carpenter was complemented on the outside by freshman guard Ella Lach (nine points), and sophomore guard Sophia Moore (eight points including a pair of three pointers). Carpenter's outside touch seemed contagious for her backcourt mates.

"Once somebody's on the rest of the players start shooting and that definitely happened tonight," Carpenter said.

Killingly's perimeter shooting opened up the paint for Angel, who scored 15 points.

"Ella (Lach) started shooting her threes and Trin (Angel) started getting her short shots," Carpenter said.

Angel had an easier time in the lane than she did in the 47-33 loss to Putnam on Jan. 22 when Killingly had trouble scoring from the perimeter.

"It made it easier. It boosted our confidence. It kind of gave us a whole new energy," Angel said. "They were covering the outside more, leaving the inside a little more open."

Killingly withstood a 7-0 run by Putnam to open the game. Coach Derosier said she had to remind her players not to be daunted by the atmosphere inside Mohegan Sun Arena.

"It's just basketball. I said the rims are 10 feet high. The free throw line is 15 feet and the threepoint line is 18 feet," Derosier said. "It's just the same as any court that we play on. We wanted them to get the jitters out. It's big, a beautiful venue, professional arena. We gave them a lot of time to walk around and get the awe-factor out. We sat them down before the game and said the lights might be a little bit brighter, the floor might be a little bit wider, but the rims are the same height. It's a basketball game. It's easy get caught up in the awe." Angel wasn't awestruck and went to work.

"She knew going in that this was her last opportunity, just like any senior has. But this game meant a little something more to her," Derosier said. "She was locked in. She wanted this game and she's wanted this game more than probably any one she's had in her career so far."

After Putnam's 7-0 start out of the gate Killingly's Moore knocked down three-pointer with 4:59 left in the first quarter to stem the tide and pull Killingly with four points, 7-3. Moore's early three-pointer jumpstarted Killingly's offense.

"We didn't come out as strong as we'd like and I think that (three-pointer) kind of set the momentum going forward for the rest of the game," Moore said.

Killingly outscored Putnam 12-4 over the final five minutes of the first quarter and led 12-11 going into the second frame. Carpenter sank a pair of three-pointers and tallied eight points in the second quarter to help Killingly outscore Putnam 11-5 — with Killingly taking a 23-16 cushion into the locker room at halftime.

"During halftime we knew we had it in the bag and that's exactly what happened," Carpenter said. "We knew we had to step it up in this game and that's exactly what we did."

Killingly led 36-29 after three quarters but Putnam hung tough. St. Martin scored from close range with 1:18 left in the game to pull the Clippers within four points, 48-44. Killingly's Moore answered with a layup off the fast break with 1:07 left to push the lead to 50-44. Putnam's Lyons sank both ends of a one-and-one with 57 seconds remaining to cut Killingly's lead to four points, 50-46.

With Putnam forced to foul and Killingly in the bonus — Killingly went 5-for-10 from the foul line over the final 52 seconds to hang on to the win. Lach sank a free throw with four seconds left to push Killingly's lead to 55-46 and Putnam's Lyons sank a three-pointer at the buzzer to complete the scoring. Killingly's Moore was tasked with containing Lyons, who scored 17 points.

"That was our game plan, it's always been our game plan when we play Putnam, we've got to shut Kayleigh down," said coach Derosier. "You shut Kayleigh down you beat Putnam. Kayleigh had to work very very hard to get the ball, never mind get a shot off."

Moore said it wasn't

"Kayleigh's a phenomenal player. And I know it's a lot of work to stay on her. She's fast and very athletic so I just try to keep her in front of me, contain her, and do the best I can," Moore said. The win lifted Killingly's record to 18-5 overall. The loss dropped Putnam's record to 19-4. Lyons and Angel are both four-year varsity performers and on Tuesday night they battled one last time at Mohegan Sun Arena — a big backyard for a couple of big-time players.

"It was nerve-wracking at first. We had to get used to the whole environment, the arena and everything," Angel said. "But you know, we're still playing the game of basketball."

THOMPSON — Nothing's been easy for the Tourtellotte Memorial girls basketball team this season but that hasn't stopped the Tigers from bouncing back from setbacks all year long. Over the first half of the regular season Tourtellotte's record was 1-9 and it could have gone downhill from there. So while the 10th-seeded Tigers 61-40 loss to second-seeded Killingly High on Feb. 20 in Conference Connecticut Division 2 Tournament wasn't what they wanted — it was another step in a rebuilding

"The kids really are gelling together," said coach Carla Faucher. "And understanding their abilities, what everybody could do."

After winning just one of its first 10 games, Tourtellotte went 5-6 over its next 11 games -capped by a 42-33 victory over Lyman Memorial in the play-in round of the ECC-Division 2 Tournament on Feb. 19. The tourney road win at Lyman Memorial, seeded seventh in the ECC tourney, was part of a second-half turnaround for the 10th-seeded Tigers. Tourtellotte had lost twice to Lyman Memorial during the regular season — 29-25 on Dec. 28 and 36-23 on Jan. 28 — and been held to below 30 points in both defeats. So Faucher was pleased with the Tigers overcame the Bulldogs in the playin round of the ECC tourney.

"They came out, we really we're prepared for it," Faucher said. "We're peaking at the right time. It's just having to come in a low seed and then having to play a higher seed."

And the Tigers bounced back against Killingly despite the loss. Killingly High held Tourtellotte in check in a pair of games this regular season winning 58-17 on Dec. 23 and 50-21 on Jan. 31. But the Tigers offense has been clicking as the season heads toward the Class S state tournament and they notched 40 points against Killingly in the quarters.

Further evidence Tourtellotte's offensive improvement came against Wheeler and St. Bernard. The Jan. 4 but won the rematch 48-46 on Feb. 4. Tourtellotte fell to St. Bernard 44-26 on Jan. 9 but topped the Saints 42-31 in the rematch on Feb. 8.

while 10th-seeded Tourtellotte's 61-40 loss to second-seeded Killingly in the ECC quarterfinals wasn't what coach Faucher would have wanted — it came against a much larger school. The ECC Division 2 Tournament includes schools from the ECC's Division III and Divivision IV. Tourtellotte competes in Division IV of the ECC this season while Killingly competes in Division III. And Killingly will likely get moved up to Division II next season.

"Knowing that Killingly's going to be in Division II next year, I told the kids to use this as a learning tool and let's break it down quarter by quarter," Faucher said.

outscored Tourtellotte Killingly 18-17 in the third

"We won the third quarter and that was a good one," Faucher said.

So the ECC tourney had its benefits — a win over Lyman Memorial on Feb. 19 and a loss to Killingly on Feb. 20 — both were good preparation for the upcoming state tourney.

"It was tough game last night (against Lyman), getting that win, coming in here (to Killingly), they're beat up — I'm trying to tell them this is going to get us ready for states. We've got a week to prepare now so we'll see what happens," Faucher said. "Hopefully they can keep their spirits up, and heal up, rest up, and come ready to play come states."

Senior guard Ashley Morin and sophomore forward Zeynep Acun each scored 10 points for Tourtellotte (6-16) in the quarterfinal loss at Killingly High on Feb. 20. Trinity Angel tallied

24 points and Aila Gutierrez added 11 points for Killingly

The Class S state tournament is scheduled to begin with playin rounds on Feb. 27 and Feb. 28. The Tigers will likely be playing a much-higher seed in the state tournament and the odds don't favor Tourtellotte — one of the smaller schools in Class S in terms of enrollment. Tourtellotte's roster is filled with underclassmen and no matter what team it plays, the state tourney will be another step in the rebuilding process. Faucher said her underclassmen will learn from the expe-

"It's good to see what it's all about, see what else is out there in the state, and build for next year," Faucher said.

Nothing's been easy for the Tigers this season as they head toward the state tournament why change anything now?

"That's what we work for all season," Faucher said. "We want to try and get more wins during the season so we can get a little higher up (in seedings) so we don't have to play the harder teams in the beginning. But, you know what? It builds character. We just say 'Do the best you can. We made it the states.' Some teams don't make

Killingly tops Tourtellotte in quarterfinals

BY CHARLIE LENTZ

DAYVILLE — Step one in Killingly High's quest to reach the title game of the Eastern Connecticut Conference Division 2 Tournament came against Tourtellotte Memorial in the tourney quarterfinals at Killingly High School on Feb. 20. Killingly coach Gina Derosier wanted the first step to be a strong one and she got it with a 61-40 victory over the

"This was definitely a good start," Derosier said.

Killingly finished with an 8-0 record in Division III of the ECC and won the regular-season title of its division. But Derosier said that's irrelevant in the postseason.

"The regular season doesn't matter at this point. It doesn't matter what happened," Derosier said. "It's ECC Tournament time, state tournament time, it's a whole new ballgame. Everybody rises to the occasion. Everybody brings out their best because nobody wants to go home. Now you have to expect the unexpected and be prepared. That's what we're trying to do with our girls, is keep them prepared."

Second-seeded Killingly gave Derosier what she wanted against Tourtellotte

Memorial with a strong effort from the opening tipoff. Killingly jumped to a 15-5 lead over 10th-seeded Tourtellotte after one quarter and pushed the margin to 26-12 at half-time. But the coach wasn't pleased with the third quarter, when Tourtellotte outscored Killingly 18-17. Tourtellotte was coming off a win over seventh-seeded Lyman Memorial in the play-in round of the ECC Division II Tournament on Feb. 19.

"There were some moments that we had some defensive lapses which I definitely wasn't happy about," Derosier said. "Give credit to Tourtellotte, they've definitely improved. They had a strong win last night (over Lyman Memorial) and they were ready for us today."

The win lifted Killingly's record to 16-6 overall. Senior forward Trinity Angel led Killingly with 24 points. Freshman guard Aila Gutierrez added 11 points for Killingly. Ashley Morin and Zeynep Acun each scored 10 points for Tourtellotte (6-16).

OBITUARIES

Dagmar Joyce Noll, age 91

EASTFORD— Joyce Dagmar (Christensen) Noll, age 91, died in Windham Hospital on January 14, 2020, having received excellent hospice care there after suffering a major stroke on January 10, 2020. She was born on December 8, 1928 in Waukegan, IL to Herman and Nellie (Winslow) Christensen.

Dagmar graduated from Waukegan Township High School. She loved swimming in Lake Michigan, was an excellent swimmer when she was young, and was proud to have earned Red Cross lifesaving certification. She was thrilled to swim in Crystal Pond in 2019 at age 90.

Dagmar attended the University of Illinois where she met her future husband, Clifford R. Noll, Jr. to whom she would be married for 59 years, until Clifford's death in 2008. They moved to Wisconsin, Michigan, Rhode Island, Maryland, and Massachusetts before moving to Eastford, Connecticut in 1965 to live with their three children on property Clifford bought after World War II. Dagmar obtained her Bachelor's Degree from Goucher College in 1961 and had a Fellowship as a Graduate Student in Mathematics at Johns Hopkins University for the year prior to their move to Massachusetts. Years later, she completed her Master's Degree in Mathematics at the University of Connecticut. She was highly skillful at teaching mathematics, including to students who had difficulty with mathematics in the past. She taught mathematics at Woodstock Academy, Eastern Connecticut State College, and Greater Hartford Community College. Dagmar was particularly pleased to have had the opportunity to contribute to the education of students in the Nursing program at Greater Hartford Community College.

Dagmar was also an avid genealogist. She spent considerable time over the course of years discovering her own and her husband's genealogy, and she did genealogy for others on occasion. Historical preservation was important to her, and she enjoyed being the Historian for the Town of Eastford for many years. Given the importance of democratic process to her, she was also pleased to have served as a Registrar of Voters for the Town of Eastford for years.

Dagmar also had artistic ability and particularly enjoyed drawing. The year the Noll family lived in Providence, RI, she took a drawing class at Rhode Island School of Design.

Dagmar loved to travel to Denmark and to the British Isles because of her interest in her and Clifford's ancestry, the cultures and history of those cultures. She took several trips with Clifford and, after his death, with other family members. She was pleased to make a last trip to Denmark in 2018 at age 89.

Dagmar had a "free spirit" quality that allowed her to be spontaneous. She was a very loving and giving wife, mother, grandmother and great grandmother. She could readily be self-sacrificing when the situation called for it. She had tremendous love for her grandchildren and provided childcare to them when possible. She also had deep love for her parents and sisters, her sisters' children and their children, and numerous members of her extended family. She maintained strong friendships from her childhood and young adulthood and made new friends of decades duration after she moved to Eastford. She enjoyed playing cards, walking on the road at her house, swimming at Crystal Pond, and eating at Corriander Cafe with family members and friends. She loved the rural environment Eastford provided.

Dagmar is predeceased by her sisters June (Christensen) Holland, Janice Christensen, and Jane (Christensen) Renarb. She is survived by her children, Rebecca Noll and Rebecca and William Busby's daughter, Kamaria Busby; Bradford Noll (Lynne) and their children, Jessica (Noll) Stebbins (Geoff) and Karl Noll; and Edmund Noll (Sophanna) and Edmund and Susan (St. King) Klare's daughter, Dagmar S. Noll. She is also survived by her two great grandchildren, Jessica and Geoff Stebbin's two children, Charlie and Dexter.

Anyone who wishes to make a donation in memory of Dagmar is encouraged to give to Eastford Independent Fire Co. (P.O. Box 333, Eastford, CT 06242), Ashford Fire Department (46 Westford Road, Ashford, CT 06278), or Restoration for Unitarian Universalist Meeting House in Brooklyn, c/o Dennis Landis, P.O. Box 38, Brooklyn,

A memorial service will be planned in the spring or summer. If you wish to share a memory of Dagmar, please do so at www smithandwalkerfh.com.
