Candidates make their case for School Committee

THREE VYING FOR ONE SPOT ON BOARD

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

OXFORD — Oxford's municipal elections are on Tuesday, May 17, and in preparation for the big day the Oxford Business Association held a special forum on April 30 to allow candidates for several contested elections to speak their minds on issues concerning the town.

Last week, The Webster Times presented some responses by the candidates for the Board of Selectmen. However, while there are two seats available on that board, only one seat is available on the School Committee, which has three candidates vying for their shot at helping move the town's schools in the right direction.

From left, Oxford School Committee candidates Cassandra Sue Day, Desmond White and Karl Brown speak during a forum earlier this month, presenting their take of a series of issues facing the Oxford School District as they each hope to fill the one vacant School Committee seat on May 17.

Running for the seat are Cassandra Sue Day, Desmond White and Karl Brown, who all have children in the school system of various ages, and said they hope to become more involved in the school district as both parents and concerned citizens seeking to drive home the importance of education in Oxford.

Day is a 2006 graduate of Suffolk University and has a background in public accounting. Currently manager of the accounting department of Hometown Bank in Oxford, Day grew up in Uxbridge and is a three-year member of the Chaffee School Council and helped with the District Improvement Plan during that time.

Webster prepares for override vote on Wednesday

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

WEBSTER — As expected, Webster's Annual Town Meeting was adjourned immediately Monday night, May 9, to accommodate a May 18 vote on several items that will determine if the town will go forward with only a balanced budget or if any of four different items will be added to the spending plan before the Annual Town Meeting reconvenes in June.

Multiple items were tabled during the May 9 meeting to be considered next month, but the Annual Town Meeting was far from simple. Despite the meeting immediately adjourning, Webster resident Bob Whitelaw brought up his concerns that several items that were tabled were on the agenda without any numbers attached. Webster's Town Moderator Thomas Ralph cleared up some misconceptions on this issue, noting that while it may seem like the Town Meeting warrant is lacking information, leaving certain items without any actual numbers really works to the town's benefit.

"When there are no numbers on the warrant article it's basically for the convenience of town meeting," Ralph said.

"The law requires the town to give a warning to the residents of what would be discussed at Town Meeting. So if they were to put in a number, lets say $1 million, and then someone made a motion to amend that to $1.5 million then it would be on me to rule that out CHARLTON — Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School inducted their new National Honor Society members on Tuesday, April 26.

The formal ceremony also included a "mini graduation ceremony"

Oxford voters approve budget

COMMUNITY PRESERVATION COMMITTEE OK'D

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

OXFORD — Oxford voters approved several items at the Annual Town Meeting on May 4, including a budget with a modest increase and a new Community Preservation Committee bylaw.

Voters filed in to the Oxford High School for the meeting, which was relatively tame, with few, if any, really contentious items brought forward for consideration over the course of the night. As one of the highlight items that evening, the town approved a budget of $35,062,703 for the 2017 fiscal year. The increase is $736,828 higher than the current fiscal year, enough for a small increase but not enough for a Proposition 2 1/2 override, which was tabled earlier this year. The town also voted to maintain the School Operational Needs Committee for another year. The committee was formed last year to study the need for such an override on the school's side of the budget and its members will continue to serve in that function for at least another year at the request of the town.

Voters also approved the formation of a Community Preservation Committee, a seven-member panel that will explore the needs and potential for community preservation in Oxford and is directly connected to another proposal to be on the ballot on May 17 during the town's annual election. The panel will be changed with recommending action at town meetings concerning open space, historical properties and renovations and other initiatives in the town while also helping guide the town in setting aside funding under the Community Preservation Act. The bylaws for that committee were approved

Moore welcomes student artists to State House

BOSTON — Senator Michael O. Moore (D-Millbury) welcomed five student artists to the State House from Worcester-area colleges to unveil an art display inspired by landscapes and images of the Greater Worcester area.

In an effort to showcase the unique identity of the Second Worcester District, and to highlight the talent of local student artists, Sen. Moore contacted Worcester-area higher education institutions in February to request student art submissions for display within the foyer of his State House Office. Sen. Moore hosted an art installation and reception for the students, who were joined by family, friends and professors including Professor Mary Newman from Quinsigamond Community College (QCC) and Dr. Paul Cotnoir, Director of Design Programs at Becker College.

After a review of dozens of submissions, the five finalists included three pieces of art from students enrolled at QCC, one from Becker College and one from Assumption College. Worcester resident Travis Simpkins, a freelance artist, educator, and respected museum professional assisted Sen. Moore with launching the program, and with making final selections for display.

"I am honored to celebrate the spirit of the region by showcasing the talent of local student artists," said Moore. "As Senate Chair of the Joint Committee on Higher Education, I recognize the importance of assisting students achieve their academic, personal and career goals. I am proud to display this artwork which captures the unique beauty of the Greater Worcester area, and also congratulate all of the students on their achievements."

"My greatest inspiration comes from a French Photographer who goes by the name of Serge Ramelli," said Keveil Cole, an Applied Arts major at QCC whose artwork Worcester in Motion was selected for display. "His alluring use of colors and ability to tell a story in a single frame, with an exquisite and moody tone, are all elements that emanate from his work of art."

The art installation is available for viewing in the foyer of Room 109B at the State House until the end of June. Visitors to the State House are welcome to stop by Senator Moore's Office to view the following work from a local student:

of Assumption College. Growing up in Webster, Kellie has long viewed Webster Lake as one of her favorite places to visit with friends and family. The landscape surrounding the shore at dusk served as the inspiration for her artwork. A senior at Assumption College, Kellie is pursuing a B.A. in Chemistry with a Sociology and Art double minor.

Oxford High School senior embraces love of nature

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

OXFORD — As the “That’s A Picture!” Campaign interview series out of Oxford High School comes to a close, Webster Times Staff Writer Jason Bleau caught up with the “Outdoorsman” Alex Shepherd to talk about his love for nature and outdoor activities after he was named one of the 15 senior students in the campaign.

A future student of Syracuse University seeking a degree in electrical engineering, Shepherd said he has always had a love for the outdoors and shared some of his favorite activities and his thoughts about embracing nature and what it has to offer.

Look for the final interview in the 2016 “That’s A Picture!” campaign series in next week’s issue of The Webster Times.

Thank you for sitting down with me today, Alex. Can you explain to me what it is about the outdoors that you love so much? What about being out in nature really brings you in and makes that such a fun thing for you?

“I’ve just been outdoors my whole life, so I’ve just grown up with it. I love every season and I love doing all sorts of activities outside. I just love being active.”

Do you get those opportunities here in high school to explore nature and the outdoors?

“Well when I was in fifth grade I started doing the ski club and that was when I first started snowboarding. I did that all the way up through 9th grade. I loved doing that. After 9th grade I started doing other sports after that. I play soccer, I run cross country and track so my sports are outdoors.”

Do you enjoy those sports more because they are outdoors?

Oxford High School senior Alex Shepherd was named the “outdoorsman” in the school’s “That’s A Picture” campaign.

“Yes, especially running. I love to run in the woods and even along the roadway. Outside of school I hike and I have a good friends that I go with. We have a goal to do the 48 4,000 footers in the White Mountains. We’ve done about seven of them now. I dirt bike and snowmobile. I go four-wheeling. Stuff like that.”

We live in a day and age where technology is a dominant for on entertainment and it is hard to escape that. For some people doing outdoor activities and being in nature is not their thing and really some might even say those activities are real “old school” fun. What is it about having that outdoor experience and doing those activities that you seem to enjoy more than modern forms of entertainment?

“Well, I’ve always done outdoor stuff. My dad likes it too. We used to always go fishing so that was our time together. We still do every summer. We’ll be out there for days doing that and we hike together. There are so many different things you can do outside. There must be one thing for everyone to like. I’d just say go out there and experience it.”

What’s it like to earn this “outdoorsman” designation from your class and class officers? It’s something you enjoy doing so it’s got to feel pretty cool.

“It’s exciting. I’ve always love being outdoors and I never talk or brag about it with anyone. I do all this stuff because I love to do it so this is pretty cool.”

One last question before I let you go, Alex. Did your love for the outdoors play into your college of choice? I know that a college that’s right for your own career and educational goals is an important decision to make, but comfort level plays into that to I would assume.

“It is in a town, but everything outside of it is rural and farmland. It did play into the decision a little bit. They have a ski club and other outdoors clubs around there so that did play some part in the decision.”

Well, Alex, we appreciate you taking the time to talk with The Webster Times and share your love for the outdoors. Congrats on being named to the “That’s A Picture!” campaign and we’ll see you at graduation next month.

“Thank you.”

NEWS BRIEF

Bartlett forum to focus on opioid epidemic

WEBSTER — For some, opioid/heroin addiction starts out as simply being prescribed a medication to help alleviate pain, while for others it is a deliberate act. Regardless of initiation, many people so quickly become dependent on this type of medication. Medications that fall under the opioid category include hydrocodone, oxycodone, morphine and codeine to name a few. Heroin is also a recreational drug that falls under this category. Opioid addiction does not prey on any particular age or race, and has become a fast-growing epidemic in our nation over recent years. It has been reported that an average of four people die every day in Massachusetts from an opioid-related overdose. The official government website for Massachusetts (mass.gov) reported that Worcester County alone experienced 177 opioid-related deaths in 2015 — the third highest death toll per county in Massachusetts. The highest number of deaths was found among men and women between the age of 25 and 34. Deaths were also reported in those over 65 years old, as well as ages 14 and under. The Boston Globe also reported a 6-percent increase in opioid-related deaths from 2014 to 2015, a big jump from previous years. What can we do as a community to stop these alarming statistics from rising? Experts suggest that the response to this devastating epidemic must come from each and every community. Many of our state and local legislators, emergency responders and health professionals have taken initiative to stop this epidemic from spreading even further. Residents of Webster are no exception. The Webster Public Schools, Webster Police Department and Harrington Hospital are joining with the District Attorney's Office of Central Massachusetts to host a forum to educate the public and to discuss this issue. The event, Opioid Use and Abuse: Addressing the Crisis, will be held on Tuesday, May 17, from 6-8 p.m. The event will be held at Bartlett High School in Webster, 52 Lake Pkwy. Resource tables will be available from 6-6:30 p.m., and a panel discussion from 6:30-8 p.m. will be held in the Bartlett Auditorium. This event is free and open to the public.

Vendors will include the DA's Task Force/Hidden in Plain Sight, Learn2Cope, Recovery High School, You, Inc, the Sheriff's Office, MYR thru Community Health Link, Mass Rehab, the Worcester Police Department, Spectrum Healthcare, Wicked Sober, Harrington Hospital and the Worcester Probate/Family Court.

For more information, you can contact Elisabeth Haddad at 774-317-2158 or Jill Woodriddle at 774-317-2127. This event will provide an abundance of information related to this topic. All are encouraged to attend.

St. Joseph students learn about monuments

WEBSTER — Sr. Jeanne Akalski's fourth grade class at St. Joseph School recently spent time during their Social Studies classes learning about monuments.

The students learned that there are many kinds of monuments throughout the world and that they're created for many different reasons. Some honor a special occasion, like a World's Fair, while others honor a special person. The students also learned that monuments come in numerous shapes and sizes and can be made from many kinds of materials such as stone, metal, or a combination of materials.

At the conclusion of their lessons, Sr. Jeanne challenged her students to design a monument of their own. They had to identify how it would look, who or what it would honor and why, where their monument would be located, the materials that would be used, what the monument would be called, and finally, explain if an existing monument inspired their thinking.

The students took on the challenge with great enthusiasm and creativity. Some chose to research existing monuments such as the Golden Gate Bridge, Eiffel Tower, and Washington Monument, other students reflected upon history for their inspiration. Those monuments included "World Peace," "The Pearl Harbor Historic Sites," and "One Small Step" in honor of Neil Armstrong. Other students designed monuments to honor Notch, the creator of Minecraft, and Mary Pope Osborne, the author of the book series The Magic Treehouse. However, many students looked to their family, school, and town for motivation. Those monuments included "Mount Siroberson" and "Gronek and Bialik Rushmore" in honor of parents and grandparents; "The Seven Summits" in honor of the benefactors of Saint Joseph School; "Scruffy: My Best Friend" and "Dog of All Dogs" both honoring family pets; A tribute to a sibling called, "My Big Brother Alex;" And, a monument honoring the Nipmuc Indian Tribe.

One student chose to honor "The World's Best Teacher." The monument recognized Sr. Jeanne because she made this fourth grader "the greatest student he could be and she helps him with his reading."

Finally, one student designed a monument named "Mother and Child" honoring all mothers and their unconditional love for their children.

She said, "I made the model of my monument out of paste made from a mixture of salt and water. I also used some glue and real oil based paint. I chose these materials because salt shows that a mother's job is not always sweet or easy. The water represents the purity of her love. The glue represents her ability to hold the entire family close together. Finally, the paint represents a good cover to a bad situation that we sometimes put our mothers through."

Each student had the opportunity to present their monument to their classmates and display their model in school.

FD to have rescue boat on Webster Lake

WEBSTER — Residents and visitors to Webster Lake will have one more reason to feel safe on the water this summer — a new rescue boat owned by Webster Fire Rescue.

The boat is a Silver Ships Ambar 22-foot rescue boat. Originally designed as an ocean vessel, it will be equipped with both rescue equipment and a fire pump, enabling the crew to help individuals who may find themselves in trouble while enjoying all Webster Lake has to offer.

The boat was purchased with federal funds through the Federal Excess Property Program. While the boat itself was structurally sound, it needed new motors before it could be used on the lake. At an estimated cost of $30,000, Webster Fire Rescue did not have the funds to purchase the motors.

Upon hearing this, local businessman Chris Robert stepped up with a donation, enabling Webster Fire Rescue to purchase the motors. Chris is also donating dock space for the boat at Indian Ranch, the campground and concert venue on Webster Lake. It will dock alongside the Indian Princess, an authentic paddle wheeler that also has fire pumps on board, and can be used in case of emergency on the lake.

"As both a resident and a local business owner, I appreciate all that Webster Lake has to offer. People come from across the state to enjoy fishing, boating, waterskiing, swimming and sailing on the lake," said Robert. "To ensure everyone's safety, it's important that our Fire Rescue department have the tools they need. I'm happy to be able to help."

Webster Fire Rescue hopes to have the boat in the water before Memorial Day.

"Webster Lake is one of the largest lakes in the Commonwealth," said Chief Brian Hickey of Webster Fire Rescue. "The well-being of our residents and visitors to the lake is a priority for us and we have a strong safety record. Having a rescue boat available to us on the lake is one more tool that allows us to ensure the lake remains safe and enjoyable for all. We thank Chris Robert for helping to make this happen."

One of several students to receive special awards prior to their degrees, Juliana Cecera was presented the Faculty Award by Associate Dean of Liberal Arts Mauri Pelto. The award is presented each year to a graduating student for their achievement in "industry and consistent application."

Gov. Charlie Baker gave an inspiration and, at times, tear-jerking commencement address before the Class of 2016 where he implored the graduates to "be constructive, be positive and try to focus on what works and not what doesn't."

Victoria Hippert, who graduated with a degree in Hospitality Management, waves to her mom as students acknowledge their parents and families before making the walk to the stage.

President of the Class of 2016 Sean Hoey presented one of the most quotable graduation speeches, himself quoting his favorite football team, the Patriots, by telling the Class of 2016 to "do their job" and to make an impact on the world around them.

St. Joseph School presents 'Living Wax Museum'

Courtesy photos

WEBSTER — On Friday, April 29, Ms. Bailey's fifth grade class at St. Joseph School presented the Living Wax Museum.

The Living Wax Museum was a two-part project that focused on reading biographies. First, her students were required to read a biography about a person in history — present or past. Next, they had to present their book report in a unique way. The class was asked to dress-up as the person they were portraying and be able to speak as that person. Some requirements included knowing about the person's birth and childhood, as well as how they contributed to our society.

The Living Wax Museum was attended by parents and fellow Saint Joseph School Students. Visitors approached the statuesque figures and were required to press a button to make them come to life.

"It is their favorite report of the year," said Bailey, "the students not only love being part of the museum but visiting it as well."

Living Wax Figures included

Amelia Earhart, Sacagawea, Hellen Keller, Norman Rockwell, Bethany Hamilton, Silas Robertson, Pele, Dr. Seuss, Thomas Edison, J.K. Rowling, Frederick Douglas, Blake Griffin, Susan B. Anthony, George Lucas, Rosa Parks, Babe Ruth, Wilbur Wright, and Anne Frank. It was certainly an educational experience for all who attended and participated!

Lake Chargoggagoggmanchauggagoggchaubunagungamaugg

Around 1642, Nathaniel Woodward and Solomon Saffery, surveyors for the Massachusetts Bay colony named the lake "The Great Pond." Today, the meaning of the name of the lake is still obscure — even though everyone repeats what the editor of the Webster Times, Lawrence Daly, wrote in the 1900's — "You fish on your side. I fish on my side. Nobody fishes in the middle."

At least six islands can be seen sprouting up throughout the lake. As a native of Webster, I often swam in the lake, ice skated on it, traversed the lake in canoes and boats and fished many times with my late husband, Frank, usually before dawn, and when a bass spat out the lure, we found it floating in the water at first light. Another time, Frank strung the caught fish on a chain, which he hung in back of the boat, only to lose them all when he started the motor!

I was out paddling a canoe, one day, by myself, when a strong wind kicked up and I couldn't maneuver the craft, so I jumped into the water and holding on to the canoe, swam to shore.

When a teenager, I wore a two-piece bathing suit only to come out of the water, one day, to find the top of my suit around my neck! I was so embarrassed, I ran back into the water and stayed there until everyone around me left.

Years ago, in the winter, you could find many ice boats on the lake propelled by sail. My brother, Armand Lapierre, rode in one, which sped across the lake at approximately 50-60 mph. A thrilling ride, indeed! And in the summer, the Nipmuck Water Ski Club sponsored aqua shows. My nephew, David Lapierre, won the eastern regional water ski championship for mixed doubles in 1960. That same year, he won sixth place at the National Water Ski Championship held at the Lake of the Isles in Minneapolis, Minn. (today, Davie is a great-grandfather).

There are three major sections of the lake known as North Pond, Middle Pond and South Pond. Total shoreline miles of the lake is 17.01 miles (excluding swamps). The most widely known sections of the lake are known as Memorial Beach (also known as Second Island), Beacon Park, Birch Island, Union Point, Snug Harbor, Point Breeze — which opened in 1881 and still is a popular restaurant today — Colonial Park, Lakeside, Killdeer Island and Point Pleasant.

Webster gets its town water from pumping station, located between Memorial Beach and Beacon Park. In 1893, they began digging 11 test wells with the main well being 30 feet deep and 16 feet wide in diameter. Frank Upham, of Webster, built the station along with a roof for the well. This original P.S. was operated by a coal-piston pump, producing 1 million gallons every 24 hours to a stand-pipe. Two more P.A. have been added, one in the 1950's and the other in the 1960's, located, I believe, near Memorial Beach. Swimming was never allowed at P.S. but you could picnic there. I once brought my Brownie troop there to let them fly assembled balsa-wood planes, which flew when a twisted elastic wrapped around the propeller and landing gear was released.

Indian Ranch Campground on Route 16 was first named "SHOWBOAT" and did indeed carry passengers in their paddle-wheeler around the lake. IR has hosted outings since at least the 1940's. Cranston Print Works, for whom my father worked, held their annual outing at IR and all the employees' young children received gifts from their CEO. I've been to weddings, school reunions and country-western shows which are still held at IR on Sunday afternoons during the summer.

The Nipmuck Native Americans inhabited central Massachusetts many, many years ago. The word "Nipmuck" means "fresh water fisherman."

I have it on good authority that "the wall" we used to swim out to and stand on at Memorial beach is nothing but a pile of rocks. But my question is — how did they get there? I have told people, kiddingly that I learned to swim before I learned how to walk. Up until the 1980's one could find boats tied up at pumping station as well as oar boxes found along the shore that housed motors paddles, etc. Can you spell the name of the lake? I can.

ELECTION LETTERS POLICY

Editor's Note: With an election season upon us, Stonebridge Press will occasionally publish its guidelines for submitting election-related letters. Should you have any questions, do not hesitate to call us at 508-909-4130.

Believe it or not, it's that time of year — election season.

In Oxford, voters will voice their decisions on Tuesday, May 17. Meanwhile in Dudley, Monday, June 13 is the day.

Candidates in our community are gearing up for Election Day. Just as they are hoping for a good voter turnout, Stonebridge Press wants to hear from you. Who do you support in your town's upcoming election? Why? What issue is most important to you?

Our Election Letters Policy is as follows:

Absolutely no anonymous Sound Offs may be submitted in endorsement of any candidate for political office. Any mention of a political candidate and/or issues he or she has addressed, and any election-related matter, must be done in a signed Letter to the Editor.

While space dictates how many letters are published in each issue, prompt submission will increase the likelihood of inclusion. In other words, writers are advised not to wait until two weeks before an election to submit a letter.

Election letters are no longer being accepted in Webster or Oxford. For Dudley election letters, the last edition including political letters for will be the Friday, June 3 Webster Times. Dudley letters must be received by the editor no later than 12 p.m. Thursday, May 26, at 5 p.m.

No Oxford election letters are being published in this edition. No Dudley election letters will be published in the Friday, June 10 edition.

All letters must be signed, with a place of residence and phone number supplied for verification if needed. Failure to include any of that information could result in your letter not being published.

All letters must be free of personal attacks and libelous remarks. Letter writers are encouraged to remain focused on endorsing a candidate, and to refrain from commenting negatively about opponents. Failure to follow that guideline could result in rejection of a letter to the editor.

Letters should not be written as though to a particular individual (for example: "Your decision was wrong. You should not act in that way."). Refer to individuals by name, and then by "he" or "she" or "they" in subsequent references.

For election-related letters only, there is a 500-word limit, and all submissions will be published as space is available.

Any candidates for office will be allowed one letter to introduce themselves and their candidacy. Candidates will not be allowed to submit any other election-related letters.

The editor reserves the right to edit any and all submissions at his discretion. When possible, attempts will be made to allow the letter writer to rewrite, but the final decision rests with the editor.

No "Your Turn" columns will be accepted as candidate endorsements.

The editor reserves the right to refuse a submission if it does not meet any of the aforementioned guidelines for publication. The editor may otherwise edit or reject a letter at his discretion.

There are a lot of important issues facing every town this year and you deserve a say in them. You'll get one chance at the polls on Election Day. You have another chance on our Op/Ed pages.

So what are you waiting for?

'Pooper scooper' bylaw

CHIEF'S CORNER
STEVE WOJNAR

During a recent visit to a local store, I was asked to address an issue that occurs in many parts of town.

Many people walk dogs outside the boundaries of their property. This can be for exercise or for them to simply "do their business." Often, these animals may defecate on the property of another.

Some owners do not properly pick up after them in many instances. I was asked to explain our local dog "pooper scooper" bylaw.

The rule in Dudley for cleaning up after your dog is addressed by Article 27 Section 11C (2) of the town by-laws. It states in part, "the owner/keeper of any animal who shall be found by the Animal Control Officer to have defecated on private property other than that of its owner/keeper, or on public property without proper disposal and removal... shall be punished by the imposition of fines as follows..." This applies to most locations outside the boundaries of your property, including public places, and requires the owner to clean up the mess. Dog owners who are found in violation can suffer a $25 fine for a first offense, $50 for a second, and $100 for a third or subsequent violation.

It is important for dog owners to be aware of this issue. It is not only a bylaw, it is a simple matter of common courtesy. Property owners should not be required to clean up after another person's dog. In many cases, people may not be expecting this substance to be on their lawn and may step in it, or worse. In addition, owners should pay particular attention if they allow their dogs to be off a leash. This is an entirely separate issue. They are supposed to be leashed or under "full control" at all times. According to the by-laws, "full control means that the dog will respond to the command, order or signal of the owner or other person responsible for the dog and shall at all times, by his command, order or signal prevent his dog from bothering, worrying, annoying, chasing or barking at any person, domestic animal or livestock." Therefore, animals should not be out unattended. If this is properly observed, it should limit the possibility of the owner being unaware of the fact their dog has "done their business" on the property of another.

Dog control issues can be complex and complicated. They are addressed on a case-by-case basis. In order to limit issues, please be good neighbors by controlling your animals and properly cleaning up after them. This will help keep the peace and tranquility in your neighborhood so everyone can enjoy their time outside.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or e-mail at swojnar@dudleypolice.com. Opinions expressed in this weekly column are those of Chief Wojnar only and unless clearly noted, do not reflect the ideas or opinions of any other organization or citizen.

SOUND OFF

Stop looking for trouble

SOUND OFF:

I have been reading about the protest on Larnard Road about the dog business that's been going on every weekend since January.

It's a shame the town let it go on. Those people must pay taxes. I wonder if a selectman or police officer lived on the street if it would go on every weekend.

Maybe, if the protesters worked, they would understand about having a quiet weekend.

Why don't they do something useful, take a bag and pick up trash on the road if they want to be noticed in the town? Wear a sign, saying "I pick up trash," cleaning up Oxford roads. Do something useful for a change and not look for trouble.

Whatever it takes

Sometimes, you have to do whatever it takes to get the job done — even it includes wearing a tutu ... and a tiara ... in public.

I'll explain.

As loyal readers of this column know by now, I have two healthy, vibrant, rambunctious kids. They were also born preemies. Their stories have been told numerous times over the past few years, so I won't delve too deeply into it this week. But this past Saturday, our family traveled to Mystic, Conn., to walk in the annual March for Babies put on by the March of Dimes. Over the past few months, we have been trying to raise money for the cause as part of our MinorMIRACLES team. We received a ton of support, from people we know and even from people we don't, and even some from readers of this column, which we are eternally grateful for (www.marchforbabies.org/minormiracles for anyone still interested in donating...it's never too late!).

But as we all know, even the simplest of fundraisers need a little injection to give it some life, something to motivate people to give — some kind of stakes. That's where we were about a month ago. Things were moving along OK, but I felt like we needed to do more. Something was missing.

A few weeks ago, my wife and I decided to add an old-fashioned reward to our fundraising goal. So, after much thought and consideration, I decided that we would set our goal, with the reward being me dressing up in a tutu for the walk.

Well, apparently, everyone I know really wanted to see this happen, because needless to say, the fundraiser kicked off into high gear soon after that, and we easily met our goal within a week. In fact, we hundreds over our goal, just for good measure.

It was tutu time. Never a man to let it be, however, I upped the ante again. Only 24 hours before the walk, I challenged everyone I knew that if we could raise $300 more, I would add a tiara to my ensemble.

At midnight, the night before the week, we hit our goal, and the person that put us over? It was mother. Go figure.

I am a man of my word, and as the picture attached to this column can attest, I donned that tutu and tiara with pride in Mystic, for all the world to see. And it was, well, interesting.

For the most part, I got a lot of people pointing and yelling out "Awesome!" I even got a few women coming up to me and my wife, telling us that next year, they were going to get their husbands into tutus for the 2017 walk. I didn't know how to take that one. Inspiring other men to wear tutus? I'll take it, I guess...

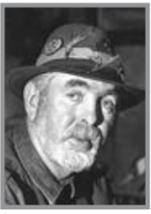

The reaction was what I thought it would be — overwhelmingly positive, and grateful. My response was that I would do "whatever it takes" to support a cause that no doubt saved the lives of my children — even if that meant dressing up in a ridiculous costume in front of hundreds of people. If that's what it takes, I'll do it every year. They're worth it.

Besides, I thought I pulled the look off. Now, the question is, how do we top it next year?

Turkey and fishing season updates

.....
RALPH

With only one week left for area sportsmen to fill their two turkey tags, the warmer weather this past week had hunter success rates rise.

Birds were a lot more vocal, and with the absence of many hens being bred and sitting on eggs, the tom turkey was becoming lonely and making mistakes by answering hunters' calls and walking into a few decoys. The new registration of turkeys harvested by hunters is working out really well, but gaining access to the up-to-date harvest numbers and successful hunters take a few weeks to acquire.

Stripers are in at the Providence River with numerous keeper bass being caught daily in the Bold Point area, according to Archie's Bait & Tackle shop in Riverside. Large schools of porgies (baitfish) are also scattered throughout the bay. Striper fishing is only going to get better in the coming days and weeks. Snagging a few live porgies to fish with is the best way to insure your chances of catching a big striper. Attaching a live porgie to your hook and allowing the baitfish to swim away from your boat is the most exciting way to catch a big striper for this writer. Anglers using a 9-foot medium action rod and a bait runner reel equipped with 50 pound test Power Pro braided line, 6 feet of 40-pound test leader material and a circle hook, is this writer favorite and most successful way to catch a big striper. Fishing from a boat allows the angler to chase the big striper down when the reel spool only has 50 feet or so left. Circle hooks are the way to go if you intend to release fish.

Tautog fishing in the Providence River has been slow, so if you are planning to do a bit of tautog fishing it is best to call ahead for the availability of crabs (bait) at Archie's shop.

Fluke fishing in Rhode Island opened on May 1 this year with a great daily catch limit. Fluke (summer flounder) has a recreational daily limit of eight fish at a minimum of 18 inches in length this year. At one time a 21-inch limit was imposed on recreational anglers. Although no reports of the first fluke being caught in Rhode Island to date, it could happen any day now. This year winter flounder are basically closed to all of Narragansett Bay including Potters Cove, Point Judith Pond, and the Harbor refuge. If you can find any winter flounder in other parts of the state the limit is two fish. What happened to the once abundant winter flounder population in Rhode Island? A date to remember is Sunday, June 12. That is the day of the 200 Sportsmen's Annual Clambake this year. The club does a great job on food preparation and entertainment for all in attendance. A live country band will be on hand again this year. If you like steamed clams and chowder, lobster, chicken BBQ, or many other tasty treats from the kitchen, you cannot miss this great outdoor event. See you there!

The Mass. Division of Fish & Wildlife will celebrate their 150th anniversary this year at their new field headquarters in Westboro on Saturday, June 4. Check the event out on their website at www.massfishwildlife.com!

Shad fishing on the Connecticut River in Holyoke should get a lot better in the coming days. This is a great way to get a kid hooked on fishing.

Take a kid fishing and keep them rods bending!

The miracle of spring

"We glibly talk of nature's laws; but do things have a natural cause? Black earth becoming yellow crocus; is undiluted hocus-pocus." -From Grooms by Piet Hein

The annual rejuvenation of our flower beds and lawns by the warming sun and the spring rains always seems like undiluted hocus-pocus to me. There is a mystery amidst the recurring cycles of life. Each year the New England seasons change, the brilliant colors of fall leaves give way to the cold north winds with their blanketing snow falls, then, abruptly the cold rains and brisk spring winds subside and everything changes. Seemingly overnight, the birds sing, the tree leaves fill in their empty limbs, the flowers pop and add color to the day and the sun drenches us, once-again in the warmth of its rays, umpires yell "Batter up!" and spring abounds.

Our days have a routine, a timing that provides an ever-present backdrop to the journey of life and yet, for all of the seeming repetition, nothing is ever quite the same. In many ways, I think we need that background of pseudo-constancy just so we can handle the constant changes that we are actually experiencing. There may be a circumstantial validity to the old adage: "The more things change, the more they stay the same." However, on an individual basis we are changed everyday by those around us, just as we impact innumerable lives by our actions. Jesus tried to teach a group of recalcitrant Pharisees who questioned his curing of a blind man on the Sabbath and in doing so breaking all of the prevailing traditions. Jesus strove to encourage them to see beyond the everyday to greater things. He said to them "I came

OXFORD, UNITED

that they may have life and have it abundantly." (John 10:10)

As I write this, it is 44° and drizzling outside, the Red Sox did win last night but still, it hardly feels like spring. The buds on the trees outside my window are ready and waiting, the birds are chirping as they make their nests and the squirrels, well the squirrels are doing what they always do. This dreary weather leaves me wanting for the magic of an 80° afternoon and the abundance of the fully orchestrated Rites of Spring bursting through the clouds.

What constitutes an abundant life for you?

Most of us would likely say it starts with family and good health and surely those are often most important.

However, life is much more than those basics. Meaning and purpose in life heighten that which makes life abundant. Making a positive difference in the well being of those around us causes our lives, and theirs, to blossom. Mentoring a young person, encouraging a co-worker, supporting an emotionally stressed parent, helping a senior and the myriad of other ways we are able to touch the world are open to us on a daily basis.

Since, there will never be another day like today, seek out those possibilities for creating moments of abundance for yourself and those around you. You may be surprised to find, that by your actions, some undiluted hocus-pocus has brought forth growth and renewal in all of your places of living.

May God's rejuvenating blessings be upon you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Time to cowboy up, Webster'

To the Editor:

I recently went to the Webster Public School's informational meeting on why they are asking the residents for the override and what the funds will cover if it passes.

Not surprisingly, not many actually bothered to show up. In fact, the attendance was very small. It appears to be easier to just complain about it, make up fictitious reasons why the school system is asking for it or simply not have the ability to look beyond one's own nose rather than deal with facts. It has nothing to do with what teachers in other towns make. The very modest increases that Webster's teachers make is already covered in the traditional budget. Oh, and that increase was negotiated in their contract so the pass or fail of this measure has no bearing on that.

I was also fortunate enough to attend the Bartlett Super Team banquet this week. After hearing some of these kids stories and how the above and beyond efforts of the Bartlett faculty have made a difference in their lives ... they earn it and then some.

Webster has a choice. It's on the verge of being a very good school district again. We can stay on that course or we can save for today. The items that are being asked for now will be required in order to be compliant soon anyway. The problem is, if we put it off, it's going to cost a lot more later. The problem is, if we choose to stay stagnant, we'll be falling behind again.

The reality is that this is an investment in many ways. If you insist on voting no for selfish reasons, think about this instead. Your property value will go up in excess of what you will pay by having a great school system. That is a proven formula.

Time to cowboy up, Webster.

Chauvin: 'Excited about the next three years'

To the Editor:

I would like to take the time to thank everyone who came out to vote for me last week.

I would like to thank my friends, my family, my Town Hall family, all the voters, and especially my wife Terry, for all her support. I am excited about the next three years. My office has much to accomplish. For the first time in a long time the town seems to be moving ahead in a good direction. With everybody working together we can succeed and thrive as a town.

Again, everyone, thank you.

Help 'stamp out hunger' this weekend

To the Editor:

Saturday, May 14 marks the 24th anniversary of the National Association of Letter Carriers "Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive." Letter carriers walk throughout the community every day, often coming face to face with a sad reality for too many, hunger.

So, each year on the second Saturday in May, letter carriers across the country collect non-perishable food donations from our customers. These donations go directly to local food pantries to provide for families in our own community in need of help.

Last year, on this one day over 71 million pounds of food was collected nationally. Over the course of its 23-year history the drive has collected well over one billion pounds of food, thanks to the Postal Service's universal network that spans the entire nation, including Puerto Rico, Guam and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The need is great. Currently 49 million Americans (1 in 6) are unsure where their next meal is coming from. Nearly 16 million children feel the impact of hunger on their overall health and ability to perform in school and 5 million seniors over age 60 have to decide between daily meals or paying for rent or needed medications.

The timing of this annual event is intentional and crucial. Food banks and pantries receive the bulk of their donations around the fall and winter holidays. By springtime many pantries are depleted, entering the summer with low supplies at a time when many school breakfast and lunch programs are not available to children in need.

Participating in this year's Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive is simple. Just leave a non-perishable food donation in a bag by your mailbox on Saturday, May 14 and your letter carrier will do the rest. Please join in America's great day of giving and help us in our fight to end hunger.

Bartlett softball versus Burncoat washed out

Bartlett pitcher Alyssa Ward winds up before tossing the ball in the top of the first inning versus Burncoat, the only half inning played between the two teams on Friday, May 6.

Nick Ethier photos

Shortstop Madison Johns of Bartlett fields the ball and fires over to first base versus Burncoat.

WEBSTER — Local high school athletic directors were scrambling last week when rain was in the forecast for parts of each day, forcing postponements and causing multiple games to be pushed back toward the end of the season.

On Friday, May 6, the skies were clear for most of the day as the Bartlett High varsity softball team welcomed Burncoat High. But as the teams began warming up, the floodgates opened. The Lady Indians and Patriots attempted to play ball, but only the top of the first inning commenced before the umpires deemed the field to be unplayable as the infield dirt turned to mud and puddles began to form, which started to resemble nearby Webster Lake.

Alyssa Ward pitched the top of the first for Bartlett (2-6) and had a relatively easy inning, allowing just one base runner. Katie Kobel was about to step into the batter's box from her leadoff position in the home half of the first, but that's when the game was called.

Clearer skies were in the forecast for the week ahead, as of press time, so hopefully Bartlett — and all other local teams — will be able to get in as many games as possible.

Anticipated Bay Path baseball tilt with Valley Tech washed out

BY NICK ETHIER
SPORTS STAFF WRITER

UPTON — Back on Thursday, April 28 the Bay Path Regional and Blackstone Valley Tech varsity baseball teams were engaged in a pitchers' duel that pitted the Minutemen's Tucker Hetherman against the Beavers' Tyler Brodeur. Bay Path won the game, 2-0, and another thriller looked to be in store when the same teams — and the same pitching matchup — squared off again on Wednesday, May 4.

But the slow, steady rain turned into a complete washout after two innings of play. The field was deemed to be unplayable, and the teams left with the game still scoreless before the top of the third inning commenced.

A makeup date had not been set when the game was called, but when the teams take the field again it will start in the top of the third, which is a new rule recently added to the Colonial Athletic League (CAL).

"What our league voted on was that we pick it up like it's a suspended game," explained Bay Path head coach Mark Sansoucy, adding that a prior Valley Tech game changed the rule. "They had an incident out at Monty Tech. It was a huge score and it was the fourth inning and they started it all over again."

That original game, played May 15, 2012 in Fitchburg, was called in the top of the fourth inning with the Beavers leading, 10-3. The game then had to be played from the very beginning at a later date.

"After that incident that's when the league decided to pick it up where it left off," said Sansoucy.

Sansoucy agrees with the new rule and with the decision to call the present game with the Beavers off, as puddles began to form around home plate and the first and third baselines.

And while only two innings were played, Sansoucy enjoyed what he saw from both starting pitchers, just like what he saw six days prior.

"I think it was just what you expected — just what you wanted — a continuation of last time," he said.

Brodeur was the hard-luck loser in the first installment, as he limited Bay Path's strong offense, but the Minutemen came alive late to pick up the victory.

"We only got four hits but they were strung together, so that's huge," Sansoucy said.

That win propelled Bay Path to 9-0 and they currently sit at a perfect 10-0 before the rained out contest. The Minutemen have already qualified for the Central Mass. Division 3 district tournament with a potential CAL title and State Vocational Tournament berth in sight.

"I think they're all reachable," said

Sansoucy. "If we play the way we're capable of playing and if pitching lines up, we should be good."

The pitching is led by Hetherman, a senior with a 3-0 record and 0.32 ERA through 22 innings before squaring off with Valley Tech a second time. Hetherman had allowed one earned run and walked six with 35 strikeouts. Hetherman was perfect through two innings versus the Beavers with another three strikeouts.

Sansoucy added that Hetherman is "hitting the ball great."

Hetherman's average before the game with Valley Tech (6-3) — where he was 0 for 1 on a fly-out to center field — was a monstrous .571 (16 hits in 28 at-bats) with four doubles, two homers, 11 runs scored, 16 RBI and just one strikeout.

Webster resident honored at Red Sox game

BOSTON — Donating life-saving blood recently turned into an experience of a lifetime for Webster resident Paul Terranova.

He was named Blood Donor of the Game and was honored on the field at Fenway Park prior to the Boston Red Sox game against Atlanta Braves on April 27. Paul entered to win the chance to become Blood Donor of the Game after recently donating blood with the American Red Cross.

Together with the Boston Red Sox and Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, the Red Cross is proud to honor lucky presenting donors through the Blood Donor of the Game program. Fans are invited to enter to win after stepping up to the plate and volunteering to help patients in need.

"We are thrilled to honor Paul Terranova as one of our Blood Donors of the Game," said Donna M. Morrissey, Director of National Partnerships for the Red Cross. "Thank you to Paul and all of our other generous volunteer blood donors who roll up their sleeves to help ensure blood is available for patients in need."

All presenting donors at Red Cross blood drives or donation centers in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont will have the opportunity to enter to win the honor of becoming Blood Donor of the Game from now through the end of the 2016 regular baseball season. In addition to winning 2 tickets to a game at historic Fenway Park, the Blood Donor of the Game will be presented with a commemorative souvenir and most will have the chance to take part in a special on-field experience prior to the start of the game.

The Blood Donor of the Game program is a unique way for the Red Cross to thank volunteer blood donors during the spring and especially during the summer months, when the need for donations is critical.

For additional information about the Blood Donor of the Game program and information regarding donor eligibility please call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or visit redcrossblood.org.

Unearned runs cost Shepherd Hill baseball a 4-3 loss to Wachusett

BY GREG BARLOW
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

HOLDEN — Sebastian Gruszecki pitched a complete game for the Shepherd Hill Regional varsity baseball team, recording 10 strikeouts and allowing just one earned run on three hits, but the Rams fell to Wachusett Regional, 4-3, in a cold and rainy game played last Friday, May 6.

“Any time we have Gruszecki on the mound, we have a chance to beat anybody in the state, but we need to not give up three of the four runs,” said Shepherd Hill head coach

Bear Dunn. “That’s what happens in this conference against all these good teams. The margin of error is so small that if you’re not clean, somebody is going to take advantage of it. They played with heart, and the energy and attitudes have been great all year. We just need to learn how to win those close games against quality competition.”

The Rams now stand with a record of 4-6 this season, as they will need some wins to be playoff-bound by the end of the month. The Mountaineers improved to a comfortable 7-4.

Shepherd Hill out-hit Wachusett, 8-3, as catcher Nick Ostrowski was a perfect 4 for 4 with three singles and a double with an RBI. Gruszecki and first baseman Ryan Sanderson also added RBI’s.

“Coach Dunn always stresses how we have to play together as a team,” said Ostrowski. “We have to stress those mental errors and pick ourselves up, keeping our heads in the game. And at the plate, I’m just taking hacks — just letting the ball come to me.”

With consistent rain showers throughout the contest, the slick conditions proved to be an obstacle for the Rams, as half of the Mountaineers’ runs were scored on errors.

Wachusett took an early 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning. With runners on first and third, Al Despres chopped an infield grounder to claim an RBI on a fielder’s choice.

The Mountaineers extended to a 2-0 advantage in the bottom of the third inning. With one out, Kenan Kolanda bunted to get on base from an error. Kolanda then stole his way to second before advancing to third on a passed ball. Up next, Despres’ hit turned into an error at second base, which scored a run.

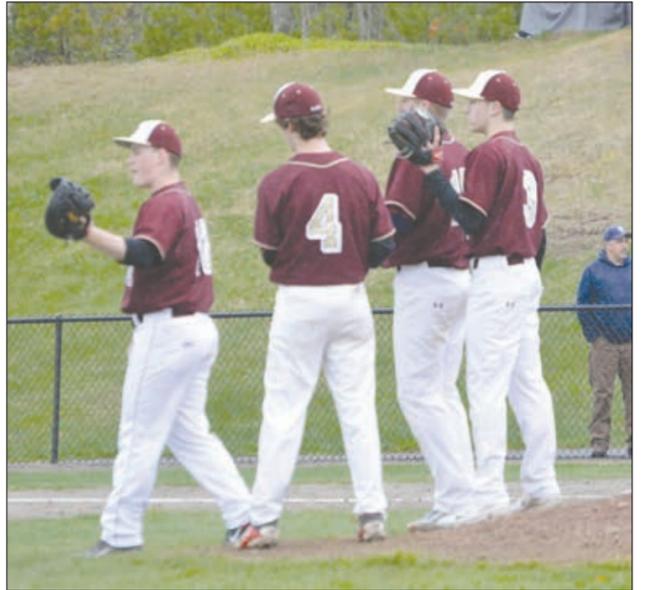

The action picked up in the bottom of the fourth inning when Shepherd Hill started to shift the momentum in its favor. Under pressure with a runner on third base and no outs, the Rams’ defense made three straight plays to prevent a run. First, shortstop Josh Welch and third baseman Kyle Radziewicz each perfectly fielded back-to-back grounders hit to them, looking back the lead runner before firing the ball to first base for an out. Gruszecki struck out the next batter to get the third out of the inning.

Shepherd Hill followed with a three-run surge in the top of the fifth inning to take the lead. Mike Gauvin kicked off the rally with a single down the third base line into left field before Conor Durward dropped down a sacrifice bunt to advance him to second base.

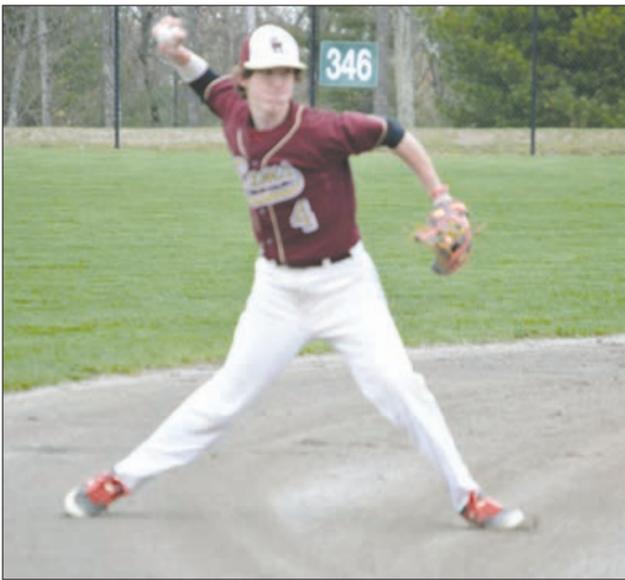

Gruszecki then cranked an RBI single to center field, and Ostrowski followed with an RBI double to the left field fence to tie the game at 2-2. Sanderson’s RBI double to center then gave the Rams a one-run lead.

The Mountaineers answered in the bottom of the sixth inning to score the final two runs of the game, though, to earn the victory. Nick Zottoli reach because of an error at first base, allowing a runner to round second and third for the score. Matt Pingtore hit the winning RBI with a sacrifice fly to right field.

Welch and Ostrowski each had hits in the top of the seventh, but the Rams couldn’t get the edge, as the Mountaineers held on for the 4-3 win.

Blackstone Valley Cats hoping to claw their way to better CNEBA season

The big bat of John Burke, an Oxford native, will again be in the lineup for the Blackstone Valley Cats.

Uxbridge native Mitch Goldman returns to the Blackstone Valley Cats this summer.

BY JON GOUIN
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

DOUGLAS — It was a bit of a storybook first season in the Central New England Baseball Association (CNEBA) for the Blackstone Valley Cats, a team based out of Douglas, last summer. As a first-year squad in the hotly contested college-aged and up baseball league, the Cats finished in fourth place, at 17-13.

Following a slow start, the Cats put together a terrific second half to make their push into the postseason, setting a league-high in victories for first-year programs in the wooden-bat league that was established back in 1989-90.

Led by a number of local standouts, the Cats advanced past first round opponent Lunenburg, two games to one, after dropping a tough Game 1 shutout, 4-0, but showed the resilience and drive they displayed all season in coming back to win two straight. Unfortunately for the team who calls historic Soldiers Field home, the season ended in a second round two-game sweep to eventual league champion Clinton.

This year, the Cats are primed and ready to take the next step in their evolution with a new coach and some key additions to the roster.

Scott Kennedy of Sutton High takes over the reins from former player/manager D.J. Reed, and team owner Dean Wagar couldn't be more excited.

"He's a much respected high school coach and I think he brings a lot of knowledge to the game for us," Wagar said of the new skipper during a phone interview on May 5. "He took that Sutton team from being a weak program to having some real good years."

The Cats will need new additions to fill the void being left by some big stars from 2015. The impact felt by the loss of Tyler Lamonda, of Auburn High fame, will be tough to cover, but adding Becker College standout Joe Nicolace and Sutton High bulldog Dylan Jepsen just might be the remedy.

The two will figure to anchor a formidable pitching staff, one much like the Cats had a year ago. This year figures to feature some combination of Jepsen, Nicolace, Mitch Paige, Mitch Goldman and perhaps former Oxford High ace Nick Lemay or Spencer's Oliver Collette.

"I don't think we're going to have many issues on the mound, and defensively we will be sound," Wagar noted. "We lost a couple decent bats, but we feel like we have a lot of guys who will keep us in games, and we're planning on there being some excitement Friday nights in Douglas."

Offensively, the Cats return a number of sparkplugs including leading hitter Anthony Razzano, Joe Cortese and Oxford's John Burke. Ryan Petrone of Leicester who was great a year ago will be sidelined with a broken ankle for much of this year, but the addition of Robbie Fraser — a former Northbridge High outfielder with experience winning and playing hard-nosed ball — figures to help the offense go.

While their 30-game schedule has yet to be finalized, things will look to kick off May 28 with a doubleheader at Lunenburg, while the Cats open at Soldiers on June 3 as they host Shrewsbury at 6 p.m.

Any time the Cats are home is a great time to catch some top-rate baseball action and the squad looks to be at home on Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays this season.

"We definitely want to make the finals and I think we can," Wagar said of his expectations and goals for the team after reaching the semifinals in year one.

School Committee candidates make opinions known before election

"I believe that our children are our future and that I'll always put the children first in any decisions that we make," Day said of her aspirations to become a School Committee member. "I purchased a home in 2006 in Oxford. I have three small children in Chaffee School. My experiences there have been wonderful. All the teachers and the principal and everyone is very supportive there and I'd like to see that brought throughout all of Oxford."

White's twin seventh graders are a little older than Day's, but White said they have spent their school career in the Oxford system and will be there until their graduation from high school. An Oxford resident for 18 years, White has a chemistry degree from the University of Glamorgan in Wales and has worked in biotechnology for the last 20 years, most recently at Harvard in a research capacity. White said he hopes to become more involved in his community and get involved in the conversations to improve the school system and inspire pride in Oxford.

"I think what I would bring to the position is just a different perspective," White said. "I have a different background and my way of looking at things is through a very scientific method."

The third and final candidate at the forum was Karl Brown, a 20-year resident of Oxford whose twin children are enrolled in the school system in town as well. Having been a member of several groups and committees in the school system and said it's something he has enjoyed. He said if elected he will advocate for all children, whether they need basic or special education, and help provide opportunities for them to become a productive part of the community.

"As a School Committee member it's not all about just being a budget policeman. Fiscal integrity and being budget conscious are important, but it's not the only thing in these difficult times. Being able to work collaboratively with the unions, administrative staff, town elected officials and various committees is vitally important also," Brown said in his opening statement. "It's also important in today's world to do our best to partner with both industry and retail corporations so we may utilize some of their education or vocational opportunities that they may be willing to explore with our schools. It's also necessary to open and be willing to investigate innovative programs and ideas."

The candidates were questioned about several different issues in the town in terms of education, including policies, the significance of foreign language teachings and the teaching of practical skills. One of the first topics covered however was the integration of creative teaching and hands on projects into the education processes in Oxford, which each candidate said they support heavily.

White said he has seen the benefits of hand-on learning in his own children and he believes it's a concept that every student in Oxford can benefit from.

"My own kids are in seventh grade, so they're doing STEAM and a lot of the learning there is done through hands on. Here's a problem and here's what you're trying to start, figure it out. I see it myself in my work. You can look at a board all day long, you can listen to lectures all day long but when you get in a lab, that's when you learn. So I think that's a great approach," White said.

Brown also spoke from his own experience, saying he knows through his professional life the value of learning through hands-on programs. He too stated clear support for integrating such teachings in the schools.

"I'm a vocational education graduate so my whole education was based on hands-on learning. I find it more rewarding and the children learn easier," he said. "Also what I think it does, especially in today's electronic world, is it helps them build social skills. As we can all admit we see children becoming more and more introverted just paying attention to their screens. When they're interacting with small groups it forces them to learn social skills."

Day said she believes hands-on learning is the best way to learn and that if Oxford were to incorporate more of those teaching methods in the schools the students would not only learn better, they'd would enjoy it more.

"My own personal experience throughout my education, the best way to learn is actually by doing it. That's how you learn," she said. "I think they do a good job through school with the groups projects and getting that out and I know that in Chaffee they're working on and just received a grant to kind of integrate that with Boston Public School so that they learn in groups and by doing and building things. I think it's extremely important."

The candidates were also questioned about their thoughts on the implementation of early education opportunities through preschool classes and while the candidates questioned the ability of feasibility of mandating such a course in Oxford, they did show respect to the impact earlier educational opportunities can have on the young generation to prepare them for higher grade levels and expectations in schools today.

"Preschool I feel is vitally important. It helps our children. It gets them used to the schedule and also we're there for early intervention in case they may be some children who may be slightly on the autism spectrum or something where our professionals can pick that up," said Brown. "With any luck they can get the special training early and be able to get integrated with the regular classes, which is extremely important and in the long run saves the town a tremendous amount of money."

Day spoke from experience, saying she feels earlier education opportunities are needed these days for children to be ready for even kindergarten courses.

"This is a topic I know a lot about because my son is in preschool right now," she said. "You have to go to preschool nowadays just to be ready for kindergarten. They expect you to read and know all the letters before you get there so if you don't have that skill before you get to that point you're already behind. Although I don't think it would be possible in the budget to get a mandatory preschool initiated, but it's important for parents to get their children kindergarten ready."

White agreed on the importance of providing early education in schools and spoke to how this also helps provide for students whose parents are working their own jobs and may be unable to find the time to provide those educational opportunities in the household.

"A lot of families have two parents working. They're not home all day. A lot of the caregivers will try to provide stuff, but if the town can afford it they should provide it. It's a good start for the kids," he said.

As always, the concept of sports in school was a big topic of discussions this election season, and all three candidates presented respect and an understanding for the significance of sports in schools. Considering Oxford Middle School lacks many sports programs, the candidates each made their case for why sports should, or shouldn't, be made a priority for the Oxford School District going forward.

"Sports are obviously important for many reasons. They help with the children and bring the community together. Unfortunately in these tough times with budgets it's like everything, it's a very tight balancing act," Brown said. "I would actually love to see our schools get a little more involved with sports for special needs children. I think that's something that's becoming more and more popular and frankly I see that bringing the community together also."

White said he agrees that sports are important and also said that the town needs to understand it can't break the bank to make the programs happen.

"I love sports. My kids are playing with the Oxford-Webster Pirates football and they'll be playing 8th grade football next year. They'll transition to the high school. I've seen changes last year in the high school. There were so many people going to the games. It was brilliant. It was the whole 'Friday Night Lights' thing going on and it was cool," White said. "This doesn't happen back in Ireland. It's great and it's really important, but the one thing is it shouldn't be a detriment to other things. Don't cut sports, but also if it's a budget issue don't cut something else because you want the sports."

Day said sports are extremely important to the educational process and believes Oxford is a truly dedicated sports town. She said she hopes adding sports back to Webster Middle School and supporting such programs financially is something the public would be willing to back.

"As you can see just the last season in basketball, it brings people in and makes you want to get involved as a community when that is highlighted," she said. "I think it is important that we do provide that for everybody. I personally sign my kids up for everything because that helps with their socialization skills. It should be important to everybody."

The three candidates are all hoping to see their name at the top of the list on Election Day as the single vacant seat will be filled on May 17. The full forum and the candidates' responses to even more questions from the floor and the public at large can be found through Access Oxford's online video streaming service.

cated to building up their academic success, but are invested in the school. This is their family, their community. They want to make Bay Path a better experience for themselves and everyone else."

To apply, students have to put together a "binder of evidence," write an essay and collect letters of recommendation. There is a five-person faculty council that reviews the applications and accepts the members who have proven that they qualify.

To qualify, students need a minimum 85 average. The council looks for four values — scholarship, service, leadership and character.

Said McNamara: "We look for kids who have done community service, either here and school or in their towns. We look for kids who have taken leadership roles in the school, like student council or captains of sports teams or done work for teachers. We look for kids who talk in the essays about why NHS is important to them and how they want to make the school better, what ideas they have."

NHS is a community service organization all about taking these high achieving students who want to be leaders in the community and giving them an opportunity to help others, said McNamara.

"We try to hold a lot of events in and out of school," she continued. "We have done blood drives this year. We raised money for polio vaccinations through the rotary club. We had a food drive to help the Webster Food Bank. We did a jeans drive that will be for the charity Sole Hope, which sends recycled materials to Uganda to make shoes for underprivileged children."

The students also do "little things" around school. The Friday before February vacation, the NHS kids go around putting compliments on all the lockers in the school. It's a "little thing," said McNamara, "but it makes it a very nice day. The kids came in and got a great compliment to start their day. We do really big things with a huge impact, or something small like passing on a moment of kindness. It's always fun."

Being a part of the NHS helps out the school and the community, but it's also a way to set NHS members apart from the pack. It's another way to make students competitive for college or the workforce by showing that they have held themselves to a high standard and have given back to the community as a teenager.

"The ceremony is a good way to start off the next generation of NHS kids," concluded McNamara. "It's a family within our Bay Path family. It shows them all the places they could go. It's also nice and gives seniors the opportunity to thank their family and people within the school who helped them get to graduation. It's a really nice moment. Every student who got to graduation had someone else helping them out, which is nice to see."

National Honor Society sophomores.

"Being in the NHS shows our students are really dedicated to building up their academic success, but are invested in the school," said Eileen McNamara. "This is their family, their community. They want to make Bay Path a better experience for themselves and everyone else."

Help your mother prepare for retirement

Mother's Day was last weekend, so many were recently shopping for the flowers or candy for Mom.

But this year, why not also go beyond the traditional? Specifically, if your mother is still working but getting close to retirement, consider providing her with a gift that can help make her days as a retiree more pleasant.

Here are a few suggestions:
Contribute to her IRA. As long as your mother is employed, she can contribute to an IRA, and she may already have one. If so, help her fund it for 2016. You can't contribute directly to her IRA, but you can certainly write her a check for that purpose, and by doing so, you can make it easier for Mom to "max out" on her account this year. Assuming your mother is over 50, she can contribute up to $6,500 per year to her IRA. As you may know, an IRA can be a great way to save for retirement because it offers significant tax benefits. Contributions to a traditional IRA are typically tax-deductible, while any earnings can grow tax deferred. Roth IRA contributions are not deductible, but any earnings can grow tax free, provided the account owner meets certain conditions.

Give Mom some stocks. You know your mother well, so you are probably familiar with the products she likes. By giving her shares of stock of the companies that produce these goods, you will provide Mom with a feeling of ownership that she may enjoy — along with the benefit of possessing investments that could potentially increase in value.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Discuss retirement income strategy. Even if your mother has made some smart financial moves, such as investing in an IRA and her 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan, she may still need some advice on how best to initiate and manage her retirement income. To cite just one action she needs to take, she must start making withdrawals from her 401(k) and traditional IRA once she turns 70 1/2. But if she withdraws too much each year from these accounts, she could deplete them sooner in her retirement years than is desirable. To develop a solid retirement income strategy — one that can help her avoid outliving her income — she will need to coordinate withdrawals from her retirement accounts with her Social Security payments and any other sources of income she may have available. Because it's so important to put together an appropriate income strategy, it's a very good idea to consult with a financial professional. If your mother does not currently work with one, encourage her to meet with someone you know and trust.

Of course, your mother may be married and have her finances commingled with those of her spouse. Nonetheless, every one of the suggestions mentioned above is applicable and relevant to your mother, whether she is singled, married, divorced or widowed. Women must be prepared to take full charge of their financial situations, no matter their marital status.

Anything you give Mom on Mother's Day will be appreciated. But if you can add a gift — whether in the form of investments or knowledge — that can help her make progress toward an enjoyable retirement lifestyle, you will be providing her with an enormous "thank you" for all she's done for you over the years.

Override items set for vote next week

of order and it would not be reasonable for people who read the warrant seeing $1 million to think that $1.5 million would be expended. So without the number on there it allows more flexibility at the town meeting level."

Whitelaw said he appreciates the flexibility that this process gives the town, but he feels that if other articles were approached with the same efficiency as the proposed override items have been over the past few weeks there would be less confusion from those attending the meetings who want to know exactly what they will be voting on.

"I think [everyone] has done a great job with providing information for the override, both the school department and the town," Whitelaw said. "If that same concept can be applied to the articles I think everyone would be a happy camper."
Acting Town

Administrator Pam Leduc addressed concerns that certain numbers were left undetermined or blank on the town meeting warrant saying that until the town knows exactly what it's looking at it would be irresponsible for her to present anyone with precise figures.

"The general fund budget has been available for some time," she said. "It would be irresponsible of me to put out any numbers until the Board of Selectmen adopted a utility rate. It would be irresponsible to recommend a number when we don't know what that number is yet. Until I have the revenues available to fund the budget I can't estimate a budget. That's irresponsible."

A special election addressing four potential override items will be held on May 18, and the Annual Town Meeting in Webster will reconvene on June 6 at 7 p.m. at Bartlett High School.

during the town meeting but the official formation of such a committee will need to pass a vote at the poles on May 17th. That ballot question will ask to establish a Community Preservation Act funding account and source for use in the projects put forward and approved through the work of the Community Preservation Committee. A surcharge of 1.5 percent would be enacted on the annual tax levy on real properties starting July 1st, but the first $100,000 of residential property tax assessment would be exempt from such a charge. Low to moderate-income families and senior citizens would also be exempt. The town hall anticipates this to cost less than $30 annually to the average taxpayer.

Another major item approved during the meeting was the funding for renovations to the town's Memorial Hall clock tower. Taxpayers approved $327,000 for the rebuilding of the interior masonry on the tower as well as new flooring with the money to be borrowed and repaid likely through normal taxations processed through the Community Preservation Act funds if the ballot question were to pass. This would make the tower the first official project funded and authorized through the formation of the Community Preservation Act account and Committee.

Voters also approved just over $669,000 in capital projects ranging from work at the town hall to the schools and public works as well as some cosmetic work to the EMS and Fire Department. Much of these projects involved technological and vehicle upgrades for different departments throughout the town.

Growing natural insect repellents

Summer will be here before we know it, and along with the warm weather will come evenings of mosquitos, ants and flea invasions.

But, don't run out for the insect spray yet. Summer bugs don't have to turn your outdoor parties into an itching marathon if you combat the buzzing biters with strategic planting. Now is the perfect time to plan to plant some natural insect repellents.

With public concern about chemical repellents escalating, growing crops of natural insect repellent plants and flowers is quickly becoming a first choice for many. Mother Nature's bug deterrents are not only effective, they add beauty to the landscape and outdoor living space. Read on for the rundown on what varieties best chase away lawn and garden pests.

Note: Some herbs and plants are poisonous if applied to skin or ingested. Be aware of what you are planting (also check with local nursery or garden center on which plants are dangerous to pets).

***

Marigolds & Mosquitos: Bright, brassy marigold buds command attention in the garden, but it's their distinct odor that deters mosquito and other pesky bugs from invading their space. Marigolds do double duty when planted in pots and placed on decks and porches. The sturdy flowers not only add a pop of bright yellow and orange to an outdoor space; they are extremely effective at keeping bugs at bay. Easy to grow, potted marigolds are always on duty, and they can easily be moved at leisure to keep insects away.

***

Sho Fly Yarrow: Yarrow, which also grows wild, is another effort free bug deterrent that is not only a hard worker, but a looker too! Yarrow's fern like leaves and forever budding white flowers offer a complete season of fly control. For a double dose of bug repelling properties, fill bottles with sprigs of yarrow with a few marigolds mixed in. Use this "bug-off bouquet" as a centerpiece, or scatter several around during outdoor gatherings.

Yarrow also repels ants, making it a favorite plant with backyard picnickers. Spread leaves and flowers in areas where ants are found.

Note: Do not plant yarrow near where pets congregate as the plant can be poisonous to animals.

***

Catnip: Not Just for Fluffy Anymore: Catnip is very easy to grow, and the hardy perennial requires practically no attention! Cats love it, but mosquitos don't. In fact, a 2010 report by entomologists at Iowa State University revealed catnip is ten times more effective than the highly controversial chemical DEET in repelling mosquitos! Fast growing catnip thrives planted in the ground or in container pots, which makes it an ideal candidate to battle the buzzing insects. Try growing catnip in long deck rail pots to literally surround the outdoor sitting area with natural mosquito repellent.

Here's how to take catnip to the next level of deterrent: a catnip bug spray!

To do: Harvest strong stalks of catnip with leaves. Pull off the leaves and process them in a food processor until they resemble pulp. Place catnip leaves in a saucepan. Pour two cups of boiling water over the catnip and allow it to steep for about 15 minutes. Strain the leaves out. Pour into a spray bottle and allow to cool in the refrigerator. Spray clothing to repel mosquitos and other pesky insects.

***

Lemon Balm Citrus Bomb: Another very easy to grow herb, Lemon Balm has a refreshing citrus fragrance, but its claim to fame is its natural insect repellent properties. Lemon Balm grows quickly and is at home in the garden or in pots. Pluck leaves and scatter in areas where insects are bothersome. Or, simply crush a few leaves and rub on arms and legs to keep mosquitos away.

TRAINOR

An effective Lemon Balm bug deterrent spray can be easily made by picking Lemon Balm leaves (add catnip also if you like) and stuffing them in a mason jar. Pour witch hazel (available at drug stores) over the leaves to cover. Screw on the lid and allow to steep in a cold, dark place for one to two weeks. Strain out leaves. This infusion concentrate can be used to whip up several bottles of bug repellent. Simply fill a small spray bottle or mister half way with the infusion and add water to fill. Use as you would any commercial insect spray.

***

Lovely Lavender: Lovely lavender has many virtues, not the least of which is the ability to deter mosquitos and other insects. Clumps of lofty Lavender grown near outdoor sitting areas offers a delightful seasonal fragrance, and it's these same natural oils in Lavender that aid in keep the insect population away. Lavender is also hailed for its ability to repel fleas and ticks, which is yet another reason to grow it near where pets gather. Lavender grows tall and thick in patio pots, making it an excellent choice for container growing.

***

Citronella Scents: Most people are aware that Citronella is a main ingredient in natural mosquito repellents, including candles and oils. But the best way to reap the bug busting benefits of Citronella is to grow it in the garden, as it is strongest in its natural state. A quick growing grass, Citronella can grow several feet, making it a great privacy plant. Planting Citronella grass in large pots on a deck or patio provides a dual purpose: as a natural (and eye appealing) privacy screen and an effective bug deterrent.

While it's debatable whether the growing leaves release enough of their deterrent oils to do a satisfactory job of keeping bugs away, it is a proven fact that crushing the grass is an excellent way to release the oils, which means you can simply crush the leaves and apply directly to skin.

Tansy: The Good Weed: Tansy, which is a weed, traces its history as an effective mosquito repellent to the Middle Ages to modern times. Modern research confirms oil from the plants is successful in deterring the insects. In fact, Tansy was such an advantageous herb for its antibacterial properties that in the 1600s it was deemed a "necessary" herb for gardens of that era. Tansy, which is related to the sunflower grows wild many regions of the Northeast. The weed's strong aroma enhances its insect repellent properties. And, the weed is often planted as a companion plant in organic gardening to repel insects from crops.

Nicknamed "Golden Buttons," the weed is both adored and abhorred. Loved for its daisy like flowers and medicinal and repellent properties, and disliked due to its habit of invading the garden with Tansy "weeds."

Pennyroyal Makes Fleas Flee: Pennyroyal, a member of the mint family, is another plant that has been used to keep insects away for centuries. The plant is especially successful at repelling mosquitos and fleas.

Mother Earth News reports pennyroyal stems stuck in your hat and pockets really will repel gnats and mosquitos, noting dog owners often see their dogs rolling in pennyroyal patches, and dog instincts can usually be trusted.

The magazine also recommends scattering dried pennyroyal leaves around pets' bedding area, and rolling up some fresh stems in your dog's bandana before hiking in the woods. (Mother Earth also notes pennyroyal oil used in flea collars has largely been phased out because it caused miscarriages in cats, so only use the fresh leaves. If a pet or person could be expecting, don't use pennyroyal at all.

A memory on Mother's Day

I'd like to preface by saying this is a reprint of an article I wrote last year. This article got more responses than I ever thought possible and have felt so touched by so many of my readers' stories back to me. Throughout the past several months I have received requests for this story again because they wanted to relate. So many of my e-mail recipients equated this story of mine to how they have felt about the mother figures in their lives. So I decided to reprint this.

It's funny how the smallest things can spark a memory. I remember being young, and being the light in my grandmothers' life. Now, 30 years later, I still can smell the perfume she would wear, taste her cookies, and feel her soft carpet under my feet as I ran barefoot around her house. My Nana was the most important lady in my life. She was truly an inspiration. She was the caretaker for her 3 younger sisters. One with crippling MS, another with disease related mental retardation, and the third just a baby. She joined the Navy to be a medic, and was a WAVES (Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service) in the 1940's in WWII. After meeting and marrying my grandfather she finished her schooling, and was a dental hygienist for as long as I can remember. She worked hard and was still the classiest woman I knew. There was always a starched and pressed tablecloth on the table. Even just for breakfast the table was fully set with all the correct cutlery and dishes. Her house was always spotless down to her baby grand piano being perpetually dusted. Every bed was made with hospital corners, a bed spread, and a pillow sham before we even left the room in the morning. She was known as the most proper person in our family. Yet, I was the sunshine in her world. I could run into the house with muddy shoes on her white carpet and it was ok. I asked her for clashing pink and black high top sneakers in the late 80's and it was ok. I listened to rock music in her car, and again, because it was me, it was OK.

She taught me a lot. She made me tapes of Beethoven and Mozart. She took me to fine restaurants. We spent every free weekend at the Museum of Fine Arts. She traveled the world and always brought me back a beautiful souvenir. She taught me the importance of reading classics, writing for the love of it, and always speaking properly.

Nana was beautiful. She kept herself healthy and her hair perfectly coifed. Her nails and makeup were always neutral and modest, but always done. No one had hands as soft as hers. I would crawl into her bed at night and sleep next to her; it was safe there. I thought we had such a strong connection that we woke up at the same time, but she would wake up and just look at me. Smile at me. Hug me.

She was always my biggest fan, and I was hers. I wasn't her only grandchild, but everyone knew I was her favorite.

I remember going to visit her in Florida after she retired there. Her memory was starting to go, but she still carried on as if it wasn't. As if having Alzheimer's was something to be ashamed of. As the years went on she slowly got worse. From forgetting to turn off the stove, to not knowing where she was or what she was doing. She became angry and frustrated and we had to put her in an assisted living home back here in Massachusetts. I visited her often and took her places she always loved. We would spend a day at the Museum, and she wouldn't know what we were doing there. I would take her out to eat and she wouldn't remember how to use a fork.

I moved away and after a year came back to visit. I couldn't wait to see her. I went into the nursing home and her nurse said she was in the meeting room listening to a story. I waited patiently at the door and trying to get her attention I politely waved and smiled when she looked my way. As the patients were coming out and back to their rooms I saw her and smiled this huge grin and held out my arms to hug her. She walked right by me. She had no idea who I was. I called her name, "Nana" I said, "It's me. How are you?" she just looked at me, frightened as if to say, "Who is this girl that won't leave me alone." Her nurse came over and said, "This is your granddaughter here to visit you. Say hello, give her a hug." She smiled at me and walked away.

I was thrown back into a whirlwind of panic and sadness. I kept a brave face until I got outside and I let my emotions out. I was heartbroken, I was angry, and I was confused. I knew then that the Nana I had my entire life would have to live on as a memory, her body was upstairs in that nursing home, and it looked like her, smelled like her, was as beautiful as her, but it wasn't her.

Many years later I went to visit her again. My son was a toddler and I had to muster up the courage to see her. I wanted my husband to meet the woman who impacted my life so strongly. I wanted her to see her great grandson. She sat barely moving. She didn't know how to eat anymore, speak anymore, and do much of anything anymore. I took some pictures and hugged her and we left.

That was the last time I saw her. And as tough as it was, I knew her spirit died a long time ago. She was so bright and vibrant, that is how she would have wanted me to remember her. She passed away a year ago. It was so hard but finally she was at peace. We keep her picture up, her jewelry is shiny and well kept in the beautiful sterling jewelry box she gave me many years ago, and we named our daughter after her. I had to stop being sad for her and smile at the person she helped me become. I feel happy when I think of her and we keep her spirit alive in our home all the time. Whether it is a recipe she used to make that I put my own spin on and make it for my family, or displaying some of the many beautiful trinkets that used to be hers. I smile when I hear classical music, or take my own family to the museum. I remember her, I love her, and I smile for her every day.

It's funny how the smallest thing can spark a memory. And it's a good feeling to turn anything sad into something amazing. Here's to you Nana, wherever you are.

Should everyone own a home?

BLACK

The answer: Not necessarily. Keep in mind this article is just my opinion. I think home ownership is great and as Chief Economist Lawrence Yun predicts that in 2016 the net worth gap will widen even further to 45 times greater for homeowners over renters. Be aware that not at every time in your life is the right time to buy a home. Let's say you just moved to a new area and only expect to be there a couple years — it may make more sense to rent. Rather than take the risk of the market dropping in those couple years and being left with a home that you need to rent out. This is assuming you did not want to be a landlord.

Sometimes we get pressure by the market and people that care about us because interest rates are rising and prices are rising that we need to jump in before we get priced out. Yes, it does make sense to buy at the best price and interest rate. However, if you have not had a chance to save up enough money to get a down payment and a reserve fund of 3-6 months of expenses in place prior to buying the home, it may make sense to wait. You do want a broken hot water heater or a leaky roof to bankrupt you.

At this point you can buy a home with no money down and some of the programs give you a good rate but we also have to make a decision to protect ourselves even if the bank is willing to loan us the money.

The Central Mass. Mother of Twins is a non-profit club to benefit those who are raising multiples and provide support and an outlet. The club meets from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. every first Thursday of the month at the Oxford Community Center to discuss twins-related issues and have relaxing events such as movie nights and outings to take the children to and or your spouse or just for Moms. Anyone who is a childcare provider to multiples is welcomed and the meetings are held on the second floor of the building of the old school house.

DUDLEY

Do you have a family member struggling with addiction or alcoholism? You are not alone. Join Families Helping Families Support Group. Meetings at Dudley Senior Center every other Monday, 6:30-8:30 p.m. We spend so much time with our addicted loved one, that we become victims ourselves. Join us. It's informal, confidential, with tough love advice from the heart, sharing of resources, hope and hugs.

Chair Yoga and so much more every Tuesday from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. at The First Congregational Church, 135 Center Road, Dudley (please park and enter through the right side basement entrance). Class Fee: $5/class voluntary contribution (Cancer patients always free). Proceeds donated to the First Congregational Church of Dudley. Instructor: Joanne LaLiberte, Holistic Health Practitioner. This class of Chair Yoga is to expand the lungs and strengthen all the body's major muscle groups, for stability and mobility, balance, increasing flexibility, muscularity of hip and legs and increasing range of motion with our "rear view mirror" twists. We work through the entire body, quieting the nerves, relieving stress, realigning posture and we leave renewed. Chair Yoga is open to adults of all ages. It is kept light-hearted with respect for every member of the class. We honor the body as it is right now and work to improve its overall health. We come to class as individuals and leave as family. Get to know yourself through the eyes of Chair Yoga and build a body that serves you better. Wear comfortable clothing. As with any exercise program, check with your healthcare professional before starting.

Come join the Drop In Knitting Group from 10 a.m. to noon on Fridays at the Pearle L. Crawford Memorial Library, Schofield Avenue, Dudley. All ages and levels, from beginner to expert, are welcome. For more information, call Mary Kunkel at 508-943-8107 or Jacqueline Vassar at 508-892-4754.

Fellowship Meals Program — Free hot meals at St. Andrew Bobola Parish — Church Hall, 54 West Main St., Dudley, from 5 to 6 p.m. starting in February, every first and third Wednesday of the month. Please join us! Phone: (508) 943-5633. E-mail: Rectory@standrewbobola.com.

SOUTHBRIDGE

How to sell books of coins

As a member of the NAA (National Auctioneers Association) and an "expert" on coins and currency, I often receive inquiries about coins from other auctioneers. They occasionally get coins in an estate they're handling and they want to know the values and whether there are any particularly valuable ones that they should sell separately.

PAUL JOSEPH

One recent inquiry was from a good friend in Georgia who has two blue Whitman albums: a Mercury dime (1916-1945) album and a silver Washington quarter (1932-1964) album. He said that the majority of the coin were circulated, especially the early dates. My advice to him was the same I would give to my other clients...

On the dime album, look for the key dates, including the 1915 D, the 1921 P (no mint mark) and 1921 D, the 1942/1 P and D. Most often collectors filled the coin openings in the albums by pulling out coins they found in circulation. This was not difficult as silver coins commonly circulated until the government replaced silver coins with clad (copper-nickel cladding over a copper core) in 1964. Most of the early silver coins had been heavily circulated by this time so the dates and mintmarks are often hard to read.

Of the key dates noted, the only one I would get certified by a grading service is the 1916 D because there are quite a few counterfeits in the market place. Counterfeiters would remove a D mintmark from a Mercury dime of later years and add it to the reverse of a 1916 Philadelphia dime, which had no mint mark. However the style of the D mintmark used in 1916 was unique. Experts can tell if the is an incorrect style. In addition, the counterfeiter often did not place the added D in exactly the right location.

For the 1916 D and the 1921 P and D Mercury dimes let's assume a grade of Fine 12. The value of a counterfeit is zero dollars to a collector. A 1916 P is valued at $4.75; a genuine 1915 D is at $1,965. While the value for other Mercury dimes after 1921 is between $2 and $4, the 1921P is $80 and for the 1921 D it is $145. The 1942/1 dimes are commonly found in grades of VF 20 or better, so let's value coins of that period at EF (Extra Fine). Common date Mercury dimes between 1940 and 1945 are worth about $5-$9. However, the 1942/1 P is worth $500.00 and the 1942/1 D sells at $485.

For the Washington quarter album there are only three readily available rarities...the 1932 D and S, and the 1934 and 1937 DDOs (double die obverses). Let's look at the values of these coins in two grades: VG-8 and VF 20. Common date Washington silver quarters are worth between $5 and $7 in VG and $6-$9 in VF. But the 1932 D in each of those grades is worth $80 and $115. The 1932 S is worth $80 and $110. The 1934 DDO's values are $40 and $90, while the 1927 DDO's values are $100 and $300.

My advice to the auctioneer was to get the 1916 D certified and graded professionally and sell the other key dates separately from the albums. The bottom line is, if your selling complete sets, make sure you know what key dates you have and double check them because collectors have been known to put non-key date coins unto key date holes in albums.

In our next column we'll take a look at other key date coins found in complete or nearly complete albums.

20 year durability study shows Renewal by Andersen® windows stand the test of time.†

We actually pulled 10 of our original windows from their home. Windows that had been through 20 years of brutal Minnesota winters and muggy summers. We then performed extensive technical tests on all of them to see how they held up. Two decades later, they still opened and closed as easily as the day they were installed, and what's more, our Fibrex® material remained incredibly strong, with no cracking, peeling or chipping!‡

Color Helps People With Diabetes Take The Guesswork Out Of Blood Sugar Test Results

People with diabetes should test their blood sugar regularly and use that information to help make lifestyle and therapy adjustments, as recommended by their doctor. Now, that can be easier to do.

(NAPS)

Color has long been used to help communicate important information when it matters most. In fact, people process color before they're even consciously aware of it.

Now, it's being used in an innovative way to help people with diabetes. The new OneTouch Verio Flex blood glucose meter with ColorSure technology uses color to take the guesswork out of understanding test results. This can be good news for many of the nearly 30 million Americans with diabetes who regularly test their blood sugar to detect highs and lows and work with their healthcare professional to make therapy and lifestyle adjustments as needed to stay healthy.

Color Brings Clarity

With each test, the meter uses blue, green or red to instantly show whether a test result is low, in range or high. This can be particularly important if the result is low and the person needs to recognize and respond to low blood sugar quickly. The low and high range limits set in the meter can be customized for each patient based on a healthcare professional's recommendations.

In a clinical study of 99 patients conducted in October, 2014, 93 percent agreed that the simple color range indicator of the meter helped them easily interpret their blood glucose readings. This is key because understanding what your results mean is the first step in making better decisions about your diabetes management.

The same study also showed that 70 percent of patients agreed that the meter's color range indicator could encourage them to test their blood sugar as often as their healthcare professional recommends.

More For Those Who Want It

While the OneTouch Verio Flex meter has broad appeal as a simple meter on its own, for patients looking for additional capabilities, it also features built-in Bluetooth Smart Technology so it can wirelessly connect with the companion OneTouch Reveal mobile app available free for both Android and iOS mobile devices.

In combination, the meter and app help patients manage their blood glucose on the go... in the moment and between office visits.

Balancing Simplicity With Understanding

"Research shows that ease of use remains a very important reason for meter selection by a majority of patients, while, at the same time, one third say they can't make sense of their blood sugar results," says Dr. Jeremy Pettus, Endocrinologist and Assistant Professor of Medicine at the University of California, San Diego. "The new OneTouch Verio Flex meter is designed to help people with diabetes better understand and manage their blood glucose. It provides basic information when all they want to know is their number and if they're in range; while the mobile app provides key insights and information sharing if they're interested in more."

Covered By Most Insurance

The new OneTouch Verio Flex system is available nationally wherever diabetes testing supplies are sold and uses OneTouch Verio test strips which have the lowest co-pay on the most health plans<sup>1</sup> and could save users $40 a month.<sup>2</sup> In addition, the test strips are always covered by Medicare Part B.<sup>3</sup>

1. Some health plans might cover more than one test strip at the lowest co-pay.

2. Co-pay savings is based on average co-pay differential between preferred and non-preferred tiers.

3. Not a guarantee of coverage and payment. Coverage and payment may be subject to co-insurance, deductible, and patient eligibility requirements.

Five Eye Care Tips

A few simple suggestions can help you see better, longer.

(NAPS)

The National Eye Institute (NEI) reminds you to make your eye health a priority and encourages you to take five important steps to protect your sight.

Get a dilated eye exam. Getting a comprehensive dilated eye exam is the only way to know if your eyes are healthy and you are seeing your best. Talk to your eye care professional about how often you should have one.

Live a healthy lifestyle. Eating healthy foods, maintaining a healthy weight, managing chronic conditions and not smoking can lower your risk of eye disease.

Know your family history. Talk to your family members about their eye health history. It's important to know if anyone has been diagnosed with an eye disease, since many are hereditary. This will help to determine if you are at higher risk for developing an eye disease yourself.

Use protective eyewear. Protect your eyes when doing chores around the house, playing sports, or on the job to prevent eye injuries. This includes wearing safety glasses, goggles, safety shields, and eye guards that are made of polycarbonate. Talk to your eye care provider about the appropriate type of protective eyewear for your sport or job. Make a habit of wearing the appropriate type at all times and encourage your teammates and coworkers to do the same.

Wear sunglasses. Wear sunglasses outside to protect your eyes from the sun's ultraviolet rays. When purchasing sunglasses, look for ones that block out 99 to 100 percent of both UVA and UVB radiation, so you can keep your eyes healthy. Prolonged exposure to sunlight can increase your risk for getting an eye disease like cataract or age-related macular degeneration.

These steps can help you keep your eyes healthy and prevent vision loss and blindness from eye disease.

Daily Rituals Can Help Or Hurt

A coffee shop-quality beverage you can make at home, Chocolate Almond Coffee has only 21 calories, so it's a sweet treat you can feel good about.

(NAPS)

If you're like most people, you have your own personal rituals. Some people can't start the day without their favorite newspaper, an early run or a warm shower. Personal rituals are comfortable and, in many cases, automatic. Unfortunately, a familiar ritual can sometimes turn into a bad habit. When you find yourself habitually reaching for junk food or scrolling through your phone before going to sleep, it may be time to re-evaluate your routine.

Certain rituals can affect not only your day, but potentially your life, so it's important to make choices that help you stay balanced.

Keeping Your Habits In Check

When bad habits form, many people don't realize they might be slowly putting themselves at risk for serious health conditions. Even small changes in your daily schedule can have surprising benefits. Consider the following:

- Are you missing opportunities to be active? Try walking or biking to work, choosing the stairs and taking breaks from sitting at your desk.

- Are you working too much? Prioritize your work-life balance. If you're staying an extra hour at the office each day, consider delegating work or discussing expectations with a supervisor. Make time outside of work to embrace your hobbies.

- What are your sleep habits? Turn off the TV and avoid looking at your phone once you're in bed. A consistent sleep schedule will help you fall asleep faster, have a better night's rest and feel energized throughout the day.

- How's your diet? Nearly 30 million people have diabetes, 95 percent of them type 2, a condition affecting the way the body processes blood sugar. You can make smart and flavorful substitutions by swapping out sugar for Equal 0-calorie sweetener in your coffee, tea and other beverages. Sweetener substitutions can help reduce sugar and calorie intake without sacrificing sweetness in your daily treats.

- Can you cut down on costs? Often, people spend more than they realize on the little things. Try bringing your lunch to work. Enjoy a coffee shop-quality beverage at home. Because it's sweetened with great-tasting Equal 0-calorie sweetener and only 21 calories per serving, it's a drink you can feel good about.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND COFFEE

- 1 cup hot coffee
- 2 packets Equal sweetener
- 2 teaspoons unsweetened cocoa powder
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract

Combine all ingredients in beverage mug until blended.

Brain Health Registry: Speeding Path To Alzheimer's Cure

(NAPS)

The statistics on Alzheimer's disease bear witnessing. The prevalence of the condition is estimated to triple by 2050, growing from 5.3 million today to 16 million. It is the sixth leading cause of death in the United States and the fifth leading cause of death for those aged 65 and older.

And costs for the disease are taking a toll: In 2015, caring for those with Alzheimer's was estimated to be $226 billion, with half of the costs borne by Medicare, according to the Alzheimer's Association. By 2050, the cost of Alzheimer's could jump to $1.1 trillion (in 2015 dollars).

That makes Alzheimer's disease ripe for breakthroughs in prevention and curative treatments. The Alzheimer's Association says that new treatments for the disease cannot be discovered without clinical trials, which are seeking tens of thousands of volunteers, both with and without the disease.

Getting On Board With A Registry

One of the easiest ways to participate in a clinical trial for Alzheimer's disease is through a health care registry, which matches individuals to clinical trials. The Internet-based, free national Brain Health Registry launched in 2014 is one such registry. With 40,000 current members, its goal is to double the number in 2016.

The Brain Health Registry aims to reduce the cost of patient recruitment for clinical trials by building a large online pool of potential candidates.

Once volunteers are registered on the site, they complete questionnaires about basic demographics, health, lifestyle and medical history, along with cognitive tests and a consent form on the Brain Health Registry website, www.join.brainhealthregistry.org.

The National Institute on Aging makes a strong case for participation in clinical trials:

- Help others, including future family members, who may be at risk for Alzheimer's disease.

- Receive regular monitoring by medical professionals.

- Learn about Alzheimer's and one's health.

- Test new treatments that might work better than those currently available.

- Get information about support groups and resources.

The state of research for Alzheimer's pales when compared to other diseases. In 2011, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) spent only $480 million on Alzheimer's, while cancer research received about $6 billion, heart disease, $4.2 billion and HIV, $3.2 billion.

Alzheimer's Affects More Women, Minorities

Alzheimer's disease affects a disproportionate number of women, African Americans and Hispanics, as well as older adults over 65. Two-thirds of the 5.1 million people currently suffering from Alzheimer's disease are women.

Unfortunately, African Americans represented 12 percent of the U.S. population in 2011 but only 5 percent of clinical trials, and Hispanics comprised 16 percent of the population but only 1 percent of clinical trial participants.

A recent University of California at Davis study shows that despite a congressional mandate that research financed by NIH include minorities, nonwhites comprise fewer than 5 percent of participants in NIH-supported studies.

The FDA's Office of Women's Health identified major barriers to minorities: lack of disease education; insurance status; patient inconvenience costs; unavailability of transportation; distance to a study site; and patient and family concerns about risk.

You Can Help

To help increase participation in clinical trials and help speed the path to cures, people are encouraged to join the Brain Health Registry for free at www.join.brainhealthregistry.org.

TV star Linda Gray, among millions with friends or family members affected by Alzheimer's disease, hopes a PSA she made will encourage others to support and sign up for a clinical trial registry.

Making Laser Vision Correction Surgery Affordable—A Look At The Options

(NAPS)

With more than 600,000 procedures taking place every year, laser vision correction surgery—such as LASIK—remains an extremely popular option for adults interested in reducing or eliminating the need for glasses or contacts to see clearly. With an average price of $4,500 for the most advanced procedure, many people interested in LASIK are often challenged to find a way to pay for it. Here are a few suggestions from the American Refractive Surgery Council:

- Of course, if you have enough money on hand, paying for the procedure yourself is naturally the simplest option. You can feel good about investing in LASIK knowing the cost of glasses and/or contact lenses over a lifetime is far greater than the one-time cost of LASIK.

- Many LASIK practices offer payment plans for procedures. Some programs are interest-free for a set period of time, but make sure you understand all the terms related to the amount you borrow.

- Although most insurance policies don't cover elective eye surgery, you should always check with your insurance company to confirm your specific coverage and benefits. There are a few policies that offer coverage or discounts for vision correction surgery.

- Credit options

Glasses and contacts aren't for everyone, which is why thousands of Americans are looking into ways to pay for LASIK.

may help make LASIK affordable for you now and allow you to pay back the money you borrow over time. Some credit cards with no or very low interest rates and other attractive offers such as no-fee balance transfers can help you pay for your procedure over time without incurring additional expense. But, as with any credit decision, make sure you understand all the terms and that it fits within your budget.

- Your job benefits may include access to Flexible Spending Arrangement (FSA) and Health Saving Account (HSA) programs that allow you to set aside tax-free money for your procedure. By using tax-free funds to pay for LASIK, you effectively reduce the overall cost of the procedure. However, for the tax year 2016, the IRS limits an individual to up to $2,550 in an FSA and up to $3,350 in an HSA, which likely won't cover the cost of LASIK, but will help. Married couples and families have a higher contribution limit, $6,750 for an HSA. Your company's benefits manager can advise you on the specifics of your programs.

- Choosing to pay for your vision correction with cash gifts from family or friends, a tax refund, or bonus allows you to turn a financial windfall into a significant lifestyle benefit: excellent vision.

- Depending upon your medical expenses for the tax year, you may be able to deduct some or all of the cost of your LASIK procedure, which can help make your vision correction surgery more affordable. Laser vision correction procedures are a qualified medical deduction if you meet the requirements, but confirm the facts of your specific situation with your tax professional.

The cost of LASIK is a significant amount of money for most budgets. Weighing the options for paying for laser vision correction surgery can help you see how this one-time investment in excellent vision has important lifestyle and financial benefits.
