Cleanup begins at Thompson church

Volunteers work to clean the interior of the Thompson Congregational Church nearly a month after a fire damaged the sanctuary of the historic building.

BY JASON BLEAU

THOMPSON — Cleanup efforts have officially commenced in the wake of the destructive fire at the Thompson Congregational Church in late December. On Jan. 28, a month after the fire, church trustee Brian Fontaine led a small cleanup crew removing debris and other disposable remains from inside the building.

Fontaine said the interior suffered significant water damage and there was a lot that needed to be removed for the church to move ahead with its reconstruction process.

“Today we hope to get any wet material out and to try and stop further damage. It’s something we as a congregation can do,”

Fontaine said. “We’re also having people come out to evaluate the structure itself. We had a structural engineer here this morning.”

Several of the pews inside the church were crushed when a portion of the interior roof fell. A large hole remains present in the back of the church above the altar in the sanctuary, now mostly covered in a black tarp. Last Sunday was not the first time Fontaine had worked with volunteers to help do some of the cleanup work. He said it will take some time before the effort is complete.

“We’ve been working quite a while at this, but we had asbestos in a couple rooms so that slows things down. It’s just a very long process to get things done,” Fontaine

Killingly opens search for Calorio’s successor

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

KILLINGLY — With the recent announcement that Mary Calorio will be moving over to Putnam to succeed the late Doug Cutler as Town Administrator, Killingly has put plans in motion to fill her seat as Killingly’s Finance Director.

The job has been posted in publications seeking qualified candidates for the position and while Calorio will begin her new job on Feb. 27, Killingly Town Manager Sean Hendricks said she is still working hard to make sure budget numbers from the town hall are complete and ready to go before her departure.

“Mary will be here through February which is when we usually put the budget together so we’ll have all the meetings with the department heads and the municipal budget will pretty much be put together by the end of the month,” Hendricks said. “The hurdle we have is once we get the Board of Education budget in March we need to put all that together and present it to the Town Council on the first of April, but Mary has a staff member who actually puts the budget books together and generates the spread sheets and they will still be here.”

While Hendricks said Calorio’s impending move to Putnam’s Town Hall is poorly timed, he is proud of her for getting the job and is working to make the transition as smooth as possible.

“Obviously the hope is it that we find someone with some sort of experience in municipal finance and so far I’ve gotten some interest. I’ve gotten a handful of resumes so we know there’s experience out there,” Hendricks said. “If we had someone in town who was qualified and was interested I’d definitely talk to them. It doesn’t look like that’s the case.”

Hendricks added that because the job is non-union the town is not required to post anything internally before seeking outside resumes and applications. Hendricks said he spoke with several potential candidates in the town hall but he didn’t believe there was much.

While Hendricks said Calorio will be a hard woman to replace, he encouraged Calorio to apply for the position in Putnam and recommended her highly to Putnam’s Mayor Tony Falzarano.

“When I came to Killingly it didn’t take long for me to identify that Mary really knew what she was doing and that she had a very broad skill set,” Hendricks said. “She’s been the acting Town Manager when I’m not around so I’ve had a ton of faith in her. We’ve had conversations over the years about

Putnam Board of Ed explores new fund

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — Putnam’s Board of Education is seeking to start a new account it hopes will help save money to offset different projects and unforeseen expenses in the years to come, assuming the board of Finance and selectmen are willing to back the idea.

Superintendent of Putnam Schools Bill Hull said that the Board of Education recently began talks with the Board of Finance to form the new account, which he said would help the school pool unexpended funds from their budget to cover the cost of future initiatives.

“The Board of Education is looking at establishing a one percent non-lapsing account. In 2010 the State Legislature passed a statute indicating that Boards of Education can put one percent of their budgets off to the side and save it for things that are nonrecurring. So it can be capital items and other things we have to deal with,” Hull said.

Hull stressed that the discussion with the Board of Finance is in the beginning stages and that the Board of Education has toyed with the idea for several years. He said the recent talks are only the first in many future conversations about the initiative.

“It would be an account that we could use to buy buses or do some capital projects. The nice thing is it would be held and it wouldn’t contribute to our minimum budget requirement when we spend it,” Hull said. “The Board of Finance had quite a few questions about it and we hope we answered them. We expect to still have conversations with the Board of Finance and Board of Selectmen about this in the future. Most town governments do have it. We know of at least 28 Boards of Education that have it. Woodstock has it and Killingly just put it in.”

Hull and members of the Board of Education were happy to see the Board of Finance even entertain the idea of starting the account. Hull said he feels there is still a lot the town needs to work out, but he feels the account could help Putnam avoid raising taxes for different projects and impacting the minimum budget requirement by providing a dedicated fund-

Lentz named editor of Villager Newspapers

Charlie Lentz

Villager Newspapers announced this week that Charlie Lentz has been named editor. Lentz had been sports editor for the Villager since the launch of the newspaper’s sports section in September of 2013. Frank Chilinski, President and Publisher of Stonebridge Press, said Lentz has been instrumental in shining a light on the personalities and events of the local sports scene in Northeastern Connecticut and would bring the same vision to the news department.

“Charlie truly gets the value of local, local, local news. He has worked tirelessly over the years to build the Villager Sports pages from the ground up,” Chilinski said. “He has a passion for Northeastern Connecticut and local news. Charlie knows the importance of a newspaper reflecting the communities it serves. I’m thrilled about what he brings to local news at the Villagers. The best is yet to come.”

Lentz looked forward to the challenge of expanding his focus beyond the sports world to include the newsmakers and happenings in local government, business, education, and the arts.

“It is an honor to be able to serve our readership,” Lentz said. “The people of the Quiet Corner really care about their neighbors and there’s an old-fashioned tightly knit sense of community here.”

Lentz, who lives in Putnam, will continue to oversee the Villager’s Sports pages. Prior to arriving in Northeast Connecticut, Lentz was sports editor of a sister newspaper in the Stonebridge Press family, the Littleton Courier in New Hampshire. Before joining Stonebridge Press, Lentz has covered news and sports for a number of newspapers including stops at the Anchorage Daily News, the Wilkes-Barre Times Leader in Pennsylvania, and The Record of Hackensack, N.J. He graduated from the University of Alaska-Anchorage and has a Bachelor’s Degree in Journalism.

Thompson residents call for Mill revitalization

NEWS STAFF WRITER

THOMPSON — Roughly 100 Thompson residents turned out for a special meeting on Jan. 25 to discuss the future of the historical River Mill at 929 Riverside Drive. The aging facility has been the subject of much uncertainty. Many possibilities are being considered for the property, ranging from demolition to reuse. The Thompson Mill Sites Redevelopment Advisory Committee gave the public a chance to speak at the meeting.

The agenda included presentations from the factory's past owners and members of the Thompson Historical Society, who detailed the mill's historical significance. The public voiced overwhelming support for revitalization of the mill. The public heard comments from several individuals close to the project, including representatives of CME Engineering, the firm performing the brownfield work on the mill. Also speaking were representatives of the State Department of Energy and Environmental Protection, and State Senator Mae Flexer and State Representative Danny Rovero.

Several companies are interested in the potential of the mill including one from North Carolina called Southend Reclaimed. But there has also been interest in demolition of the building to resell the material. Thompson First Selectman Ken Beausoleil said meetings are important opportunities for the citizens of Thompson to make their thoughts heard on what they want for the historic site.

"We need the support of the townspeople and the ideas to reinvigorate the mill because it is in the center of town," Beausoleil said. "I was on the Board of Selectmen in 2010 when the housing concept did come up. We were in the middle of an economic downturn and the process did drag on and we were not able to get the funding because of delays. We are coming out of the economic downturn and a variety of groups have found that if the mill is going to go anywhere then mixed use and housing are among the variety of things we could do with it. And being on the National Historic Register gives us come opportunities for different funding, but we need the support of the town."

Beausoleil said that the brownfield study taking place will be an important tool for showing developers exactly what needs to be done.

"That's going to be done it's going to give us a great opportunity to find out what we can do with the mill. There are a few potential investors that we are looking at. One came out and is looking at either demolishing the building or revitalizing it and putting mixed use in and of course from our standpoint we don't have a lot of commercial or industrial area in Thompson," Beausoleil said. "It will help us with our tax base and help the mill prosper. That would help the whole town. Thompson has a lot to offer and the revitalization of the downtown area with the mill incorporated into that is a win for us."

Putnam Economic and Community Development Director Delpha Very, from Thompson, gave her perspective on the project as a leader for growth. Very is working in neighboring Putnam, helping to revitalize a mill in town for residential and commercial purposes.

"Success begets success and one of the things when we have successful projects happening in Putnam, or any community, is success grows. When someone paints an old Victorian house pretty soon the next two are freshly painted," Very said. "In the State of Connecticut we do hear the negatives about budgets and things like that, but the state is allowing us to put a tool kit together. That tool kit we just hand to developers and that's saying we know where (work) needs to be done – I think the state is backing us 100 percent on cleaning up these historic properties."

Local and state leaders who attended the meeting expressed excitement and enthusiasm at the large turnout. Citizens at the meeting were encouraged to continue to show their support for redevelopment of the site at future meetings of the Thompson Mill Site Redevelopment Advisory Committee, which meets at 9 a.m. on every second Friday of the month.

Courtney condemns Trump’s executive orders

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Connecticut Congressman Joe Courtney, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, spoke on the House floor on Jan. 30 to condemn executive orders issued by President Donald Trump as undercutting actions to defeat the Islamic State in the Levant (ISIL) by prohibiting Iraqis who have worked with the collation military forces from traveling or immigrating to the United States.

“As we stand in the House chamber today, over 4,000 US Military personnel are bringing the fight to ISIL- ISIL terrorists- in Iraq. Navy and Air Force pilots, Special Forces, and advisors are working hand in hand with Iraqis and Kurds to eject ISIL from Mosul, the city they declared three years ago as the capital of their Caliphate,” said Courtney. “Great progress has been made. Supported by thousands of U.S. air strikes, the eastern half of the city has been reclaimed by the forces of the civilized world, and efforts are underway to finish the job in western Mosul.

“None of this could have been done without the help of brave Iraqi interpreters, who are essential to communicating all the pieces of these operations. As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, I am proud that from 2008 to 2016 we passed and re-passed a special immigrant visa program to open the door of immigration the US for these interpreters as a safe haven and also as a reward for putting their lives at risk and making sure that our troops can communicate safely and effectively in their operations.

“Incredibly, on Friday, with one stroke of the pen, President Trump slammed the door shut on that program because he cancelled all visa programs from Iraq. If anyone could imagine a more demoralizing way to undercut the anti-ISIL alliance at such a critical time, Friday’s order won the prize and we are hearing from military commanders who are over there in Iraq talking about the blowback that’s come from our allies that were literally underway in real operations in real time. We in Congress need to stop this order for the sake of our standing in the world as a beacon of hope and freedom, and if for nothing else, to support our troops and our allies in harm’s way.”

Courtney has been a member of the House Armed Service Committee (HASC) for ten years. In 2008, HASC led the effort to broaden an existing special immigrants program to include those who had worked for any part of the U.S. government in Iraq or Afghanistan, and expanded the cap from 50 to 500 with numerical limits carrying over if they were not met in a given year.

Through the end of FY2015, more than 37,000 individuals had been issued special immigrant visas abroad, or been adjusted to U.S. lawful permanent residents (LPRs)status in the United States, under the special immigrant classifications. Principal applicants accounted for about 15,000 of the total; the others were dependent spouses and children.

The 2016 NDAA passed in December of 2016, made some minor adjustments to the program, increasing the numerical limits, eliminating the sunset provisions, and implementing certain reporting requirements.

“Given the overwhelming confusion surrounding this precipitous action, as well as the pending court of appeals case, my office is on standby this week-end and going forward in the event that residents or families of the Second District need any assistance with immigration issues.”

Courtney also released the following statement on Jan. 29 on President Donald Trump’s executive order banning all refugees from around the world for 120 days and blocking entry of all persons from seven predominately Muslim countries who have lawfully obtained visas (including persons who have assisted the U.S. military in Iraq). Based on the guidance Courtney’s office obtained, this order will affect Legal Permanent Residents and valid nonimmigrant visa holders like foreign exchange students at local colleges and universities, and highly skilled workers like the doctors at Eastern Connecticut Health Network (ECHN) and United Community and Family Services (UCFS), all deemed eligible for residency or legal status under the INA and who have complied with the policies and regulations of the U.S. Department of State and U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS).

“President Trump’s new executive order freezing refugee arrivals and entry of all people from a number of predominately Muslim countries, including law permanent residents of the United States traveling abroad, will boomerang against us both morally and practically,” said Courtney. “The new President signed the order on Holocaust Remembrance Day, a day when we reflect in part on how our country failed to protect Jewish refugees from Nazi atrocities during World War II. This is not who we are as Americans: we do not discriminate against any religion, and we do not shut our doors to suffering people seeking a better life.

“Given the overwhelming confusion surrounding this precipitous action, as well as the pending court of appeals case, my office is on standby this week-end and going forward in the event that residents or families of the Second District need any assistance with immigration issues.”

Courtney’s Norwich district office is on standby in the event that residents of the Second Congressional District need assistance with immigration issues. The office can be reached directly at (860) 886-0139

Local rep Boyd introduces coal tar bill

HARTFORD — State Representative Pat Boyd (Democrat representing Brooklyn, Eastford, Pomfret, Union, Woodstock) has introduced a bill prohibiting the use of coal tar sealants on state highways.

The bill, HB 5884, will help protect the environment and public health by limiting human and wildlife exposure to coal tar sealant.

“This has been an issue discussed greatly in the Town of Pomfret since the summer and after talking with residents of the Longmeadow Farm Estates and the First Selectman it became clear to me that the state needs to take the lead on banning coal tar on our roadways,” Rep. Boyd said. “We have the support of the Department of Public Health so I am hopeful that we can get this law passed this session so no other community in Connecticut will have to go through this.”

A public hearing on this bill will be held Friday, Feb. 3rd at 10 a.m. The public hearing will be held in Legislative Office Building (LOB) in Room 1D. Sign-ups start at 8:30 a.m. in the LOB Atrium.

Already two states, Washington and Minnesota have banned coal tar sealants and dozens of other cities and counties in Illinois, Texas, New York, Maryland have also restricted use.

According to surveys conducted by the U.S. Geological Survey, “coal-tar-based sealcoat—the black, viscous liquid sprayed or painted on asphalt pavement—is a major source of polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbon (PAH) contamination in urban areas for large parts of the Nation. Several PAHs are suspected human carcinogens and are toxic to aquatic life.”

Rectory students perform at Westview

DAYVILLE — Fifth and sixth grader students from The Rectory School in Pomfret joined the patients and residents of Westview Health Care Center on Monday, Jan. 16, for a variety of musical performances. Accompanied by their coaches, Anne Grudzinski and Ms. Lyde, five students performed songs, danced, as well as played musical arrangements on clarinets and a flute.

The group has been practicing since November of 2016 and performs at area facilities as well as during halftime during some of their school’s sporting events. The students performed at Westview as part of the school-wide initiative at The Rectory School where students and staff participated in mindful community activities in observance of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day.

“We wish to thank The Rectory School and this group of performers for sharing their talents with our patients and residents,” said David T. Panteleakos, Westview administrator. “This initiative is an excellent way for these young people to gain important life skills and community awareness that not only benefits themselves but all of those around them.”

Murphy introduces bill to block President Trump’s executive order

WASHINGTON – U.S. Senator Chris Murphy, Democrat from Connecticut, a member of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee and U.S. Senate Appropriations Committee, unveiled legislation on Monday to block President Trump’s harmful restriction on refugees and immigrants from certain Muslim-majority nations in the Middle East. Specifically, the bill would withhold any funding to enforce the executive order and declares it illegal based on the 1965 Immigration and Nationality Act, which banned discrimination against immigrants on the basis of national origin. Furthermore, Murphy argues that immigration based on religion violates the U.S. Constitution and fuels ISIS recruitment propaganda, putting our nation at risk.

Original cosponsors of Murphy’s bill include U.S. Senators Maria Cantwell (D-Wash.), Jeff Merkley (D-Ore.), Richard Blumenthal (D-Conn.), Chris Coons (D-Del.), Brian Schatz (D-Hawaii), Tammy Baldwin (D-Wis.) and Chris Van Hollen (D-Md.). Murphy’s bill compliments two measures set to be introduced by U.S. Senator Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif.).

“President Trump’s irresponsible and shameful executive order makes America less safe, and Congress needs to block its implementation immediately. Trump has handed ISIS a recruitment gift that ultimately will get Americans killed,” said Murphy. “We’ve already seen its consequences. Connecticut resident Fadi Kassir’s five year-old and eight year-old daughters were turned away at the airport on Saturday morning traveling from Syria after being approved as refugees. Those kids are the exact same ages as my two sons. Thinking about how scared they must have been, and still are, makes me furious. Congress needs to show the world that America is better than this.”

Murphy added, “Trump’s discriminatory executive order does not reflect who we are as Americans, and it puts our servicemembers and the American public at risk. Both Republicans and Democrats criticized Trump for campaign promises of a ban on Muslims. Now that Trump’s hateful rhetoric is reality, it’s time for all Members of Congress to stand up and support our bill.”

NEWS BRIEF

Cleanup funds available from The Last Green Valley

The Last Green Valley is once again looking for people who care about this beautiful place we call home. TLGV will provide funds to nonprofit organizations and municipal, regional, state or federal agencies that sponsor a 2017 land or river cleanup in the region. Last year, 1,559 volunteers from 35 groups removed more than 66,101 pounds of trash from our rivers, parks, and roadways.

TLGV will reimburse organizations up to $500 for expenses like publicity, cleanup supplies such as trash bags and work gloves, and food for volunteers. TLGV will also help publicize the event and work with each organization to recruit more volunteers.

Interested organizations should submit a letter to TLGV, on their organization’s letterhead, at least four weeks before the proposed event. The letter should: include basic details about the cleanup – what, when, where, and who – plus contact information, including an email address; explain what you hope to accomplish; provide a budget detailing how you will use TLGV funds; let TLGV know who will be picking up and disposing of the trash (TLGV can’t cover that cost); describe how youth – the future stewards of The Last Green Valley — will be involved in the cleanup; and include a plan for publicizing not just the event, but the results. Nonprofit organizations should also submit a copy of their 501(c) designation letter from the IRS.

TLGV reserves the right to approve or deny funds based upon the likelihood of project success and the availability of funds. Decisions will be made within two weeks of project submission. Funded organizations will be asked to sign a short agreement and to acknowledge TLGV’s funding in all publicity materials. Funded organizations will also be asked to complete and return TLGV’s “Trash Tracker” form to compile region-wide results. For more information, contact LyAnn Graff at (860) 774-3300 or lyann@tlgv.org.

Rectory School opens new academic building

POMFRET — Rectory School opened its new academic addition with a ribbon cutting and grand opening ceremony on Monday, January 23. Students, faculty, administrators, board members, alumni, and community members joined the celebration to open the new 10,000 square-foot academic building, housing the Hale Elementary Wing for grades K-3 and the Smith Learning Center, which includes seventeen tutoring rooms for Rectory's signature

Individualized Instruction Program. Headmaster Fred Williams welcomed the gathering by reflecting on the anticipation Rectory's students displayed throughout the year-long construction process. "I am awed by the pride and excitement the kids have expressed as we occupy this building for the first time today," Williams said. Williams continued by quoting former Governor General of Canada Adrienne Clarkson by saying, "Each of us is carving a stone, erecting a column, or cutting a piece of stained glass in the construction of something much bigger than ourselves. The opening of these new spaces furthers the mission started nearly 100 years ago by Rectory's founders, Frank and Mabel Bigelow, and allows us to more effectively continue our important work - the education of young people."

Rectory's Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Laurence Hale spoke about what makes Rectory such a special community, referencing the School's website.

"At Rectory, we build foundations for life...this new building represents an investment in both the structural and academic foundations that Rectory students can build upon," Hale said.

Hale went on to highlight the unique Individualized Instruction Program (IIP), "At Rectory, we teach with an individualized approach, something which lead us to invest in a Rectory education for our three children. They have each benefitted greatly and grown academically from the one-on-one tutoring and mentorship of the School's legendary faculty through participation in IIP."

Rectory's Director of the Elementary School, Maria Carpenter, who Fred Williams

referred to as "the mother of Rectory's Elementary School," expressed her appreciation to everyone who helped make the new academic addition possible.

"I have always felt that our elementary experience was exceptional in design, even when we were scattered about this wonderful campus," Carpenter said. "We have been waiting, since we opened Rectory's kindergarten in 2004, to have a space where children and teachers could connect and collaborate in one space...and that dream is becoming a reality today."

Freddy Nagle, Rectory's Director of Development, graciously thanked donors who supported this project.

"Because of you, Rectory is able to provide an education that goes above and beyond, in state-of-the-art facilities like the one we are celebrating today, that creates a hands-on learning environment, guided by our outstanding faculty," Nagle said. "Because of you, Rectory has the foundation and tools necessary to meet students' needs and interests, while empowering our students to ask questions, explore new ideas, and connect multiple subject areas so they can begin to understand how their studies apply to the world that awaits them."

The following donors, who were in attendance at the celebration, were recognized: Betty Hale, for her generous support of the Elementary School Wing.

Melissa, Jim, Blake, Brooke, and Brody Zahansky, for their generous support for the fourth-grade classroom.

Robert S. Perkin '62, for his generous support of a tutoring space given in honor of John B. Bigelow, James Barber, and C. Stanford Murray.

Fred and Marcia Williams, for their generous support of a tutoring space given in honor Nancy Nielsen Williams.

Karl Norton, Susan Roarabaugh, John Everett, and Kevin Tubridy for their hard work and dedication to this project, a tutoring space was named in honor of Karl Norton Architects and New England Design.

For their hard work and dedication to this project the Rectory recognized John Darigan and Lupachino and Salvatore General Contractors.

Rectory is planning several open houses in the coming months, including a reception prior to a public Parent Technology Night, featuring a free showing of "Screenagers: Growing Up in the Digital Age" on Feb. 28. ## Charter Oak Credit Union offers scholarships Charter Oak Federal Credit Union is now accepting applications for its $2,000 individual scholarship giveaway to students in New London and Windham counties. Applications can be found at CharterOak.org, and must be returned to the credit union by Friday, March 31.

A total of 45 scholarships will be awarded. The scholarship program rewards students who are involved in their local communities through volunteer activities and who maintain a strong grade point average. The credit union prides itself on community involvement, and has awarded more than $1.7 million since 2009 to college-bound students, non-profits and community organizations.

This unique scholarship program will reward at least one high school senior from each eligible high school in New London and Windham counties with a $2,000 scholarship. Most high school student applicants will essentially be competing against their peers, rather than competing with students throughout eastern Connecticut.

Current college students are welcome to apply; their applications will be reviewed and scholarships will be awarded at Charter Oak's discretion. All scholarship recipients will be recognized during a private reception at Charter Oak's Waterford headquarters.

Last May, the credit union presented 44 scholarships, totaling $88,000, to students during its recognition ceremony. Students along with their family members celebrated their accomplishments and mingled with credit union executives and board members.

"There are so many intelligent, community-minded students throughout eastern Connecticut," said Brian A. Orenstein, Charter Oak's President and Chief Executive Officer. "The committee responsible for reviewing the scholarship applications is looking forward to reading all of the essays and learning more about what interests' students have today."

This year's essay question requires students to reflect upon how they are making a positive difference within their community.

Eastern Professor authors Book on Banditry and Borderlands

Courtesy photo

In route to a highland village in the Lao Cai Province, Vietnam

WILLIMANTIC — After more than a decade of research and travel throughout China and Southeast Asia, Bradley Camp Davis, assistant professor of history at Eastern Connecticut State University, has authored “Imperial Bandits: Outlaws and Rebels in the China-Vietnam Borderlands.” The book describes banditry and the culture of violence in the mountainous borderlands between China and Vietnam.

In the mid-19th century, bandits from southern China made their way into northern Vietnam, seeking control of commerce, specifically opium. Using violence and coercion, as well as crucial drug-trading networks, they were able to establish positions of political power in the borderlands of the two countries.

“When Vietnam fell under the authority of the French Empire,” explained Davis, “some of these bandits were woven into the colonial administration—providing security, collecting taxes and doing other services for the French—while others joined the anti-colonial resistance.

“In contemporary Vietnam and China, there’s a clear division in how people remember these groups. You have heroes and villains; those who collaborated with the French and those who supported the anti-French resistance.”

What is a bandit?

“For me, a bandit is someone who’s able to negotiate with formal political power, but is not necessarily beholden to formal political power,” said Davis, relating the imperial bandits to powerful criminal organizations such as the Mafia. “Even though they may have cooperated with formal political authority, they may have had no real allegiance to the state.”

By delving into official archives in France, China and Vietnam, as well as the oral traditions of the remote communities within the borderlands, Davis sought to understand the history of violence in this region.

“I like to think of archives as buildings where documents go to die,” admitted Davis. “They get housed in boxes, you read them and come up with your own stories about them, but I discovered early on that not all things that happened found their way into documents.” He added, “Documents can lie. Just because it’s written down doesn’t mean it’s accurate. There could be implicit bias; the accounts of things could be massaged or left out.”

Armed with research visas and training in Chinese, Vietnamese and French, Davis carried out research several times in those countries between 2004 and 2011. He did not limit himself to archival documents: “I got on a motor bike and went into the mountains to as many villages as I could and talked with as many people as possible.”

In total he coded approximately 200 conversations with distinct individuals—predominantly village elders with historical memories of the bandit groups. “The stories I included in the book were those I was able to verify against other accounts.

“I saw a great deal of consistency, but sometimes the lies were more interesting,” he said, explaining that some stories were embellished or off topic altogether. “In a way I was learning parallel stories; I was learning about the 19th century, but even more about the 21st century.”

Among his findings, Davis discovered that in many ways borderlands are not divided; they follow their own order after the border is drawn. “Borders sometimes mean more to those who live in the political capitals than those who live in the mountains. To those at high altitudes, the border is negotiable.”

“Imperial Bandits” was published in January 2017 by the University of Washington Press, and with support from the Office of the Provost and the Office for Equity and Diversity at Eastern Connecticut State University. It was on display at the American Historical Association 2017 annual meeting in Denver and will be on display at the coming Association for Asian Studies annual conference in Toronto.

Food for thought

In the end, the best thing we can do it feed each other. A birth, a birth-day, a funeral, a bout with the flu are part of the endless ebb and flow of life. Sometimes there is the joy with the birth of a granddaughter and sometimes there is sadness at the loss of someone special. Though it all, we cook. Make soup, bake a loaf of bread or pour a con-soling glass of some warming liquid for ourselves and each other. It isn't surprising that the centerpiece of religious services is often the giving and receiving food in an actual and spiritual form.

I've been cooking a great deal. Our little granddaughter came home from the hospital last week. My husband and I wanted to make sure her home was filled with tasty things to eat. Her nutritional needs are taken care of by her mother, but the rest of the family requires com-forting meals to fill the days and nights that blur together in the unregulated early days of living with a newborn. I started with soup.

One of the legacies of a Yankee back-ground like mine is a rather limited pal-ate. When I think of my mother's cook-ing, I realize that there were two basic tastes, salty and sweet. Even when she embellished a dish, it was with Gravy Master, a dark brown, sauce of concen-trated salt or Worcestershire, a spicier drop of concentrated salt. If her friends came to play cards, she filled a rib of celery with cream cheese and covered it with celery salt. She made oyster stew, corn chowder and opened cans of con-summe and tomato soup. Whether they came from the store or her own efforts, the soups were salty with an extra sprin-kle added at the table. I've learned to do a bit better.

When a pot of chicken soup is simmer-ing on the stove, I feel there is order to the universe. I toss in carrots, celery, onion, garlic, and spices and wait until it all melds together. The broth is sooth-ing and, of course, a bit salty. Soup lasts from one meal to the next and in the comfort of sameness, it fills us up with calories, liquid and a feeling of being taken care of.

A friend helped me refine a bread recipe from the NYT, that appeared sev-eral years ago. No Knead Bread caused a furor of letters to the food editor because it seems too darn easy. I was intimidat-ed by yeast until I tackled the simple mix of flour, yeast, water, and of course, salt. Mush it up, pop it in a cast iron pot and toss it in a very hot oven. When it comes out, it is a round, crusty, nourish-ing loaf. Slap a little butter on a slice and all is right with the world, at least for a moment.

Balancing the plain, hearty food I make, is my husband's flair with sugar, mixed most often with chocolate. He hauls out cookbooks, a giant mixer and specialized pans. When the flour is fly-ing, he is in heaven. He is calling up the spirit of his late mother, who liked noth-ing better than to assemble a banana bread and invite her friends for tea. His layer cakes, cookies and truffles fill the air with sweetness. The things he cooks hold the possibility of celebration, a con-versation over a plate covered with trac-es of half eaten ganache, and the belief that sweet treats are important in life.

Many of my friends are remarkable cooks. While my skills are not as fine as theirs', I follow a recipe and make something edible. There is pleasure in packing up a tote bag with a pot of soup, some bread and a plate of cookies. Bringing it to others completes a circle of comforting one's self and others with the communion of sharing food, salty and sweet, just like life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Executive order barring refugees is disturbing

To The Editor:
I was highly disturbed by the recent exe-cutive order barring Syrian refugees indefi-nitely and suspending all refugee admissions for 120 days. In addition to the dangerous implications for national and global security (which Republican Senators John McCain and Lindsey Graham state “may do more to help terrorist recruitment than improve our security”), this order violates our most fundamental principles as a nation. The poetic inscription on the Statue of Liberty proclaims, “Give me your tired, your poor, / Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, / The wretched refuse of your teem-ing shore. / Send these, the homeless, tem-pest-tost to me, / I lift my lamp beside the golden door!” Who fits this description better than refugees fleeing untold trauma in search of safe harbor for themselves and their chil-dren?
Furthermore, as a Christian pastor, I feel compelled to say that while the Bible is not a policy manual and does not dictate what the U.S. government’s approach should be, it does provide a clear and unambiguous perspective on this issue for those of us who look to scripture as a moral compass. There are not many topics on which the Bible is completely consistent—after all, it is made up of 66 books written by a variety of authors, in a variety of contexts, over the course of more than half a millennium. But on the issue of refugees, the witness of our scriptures is unequivocal. In both the Old Testament and the New, over and over and over again, the people of God are called, even commanded, to welcome, care for, and love the stranger, the foreigner, the sojourner.

Leviticus 19:34 reads as follows: “The alien who resides with you shall be to you as the citizen among you; you shall love the alien as yourself, for you were aliens in the land of Egypt.” There is no qualification by nation-ality or religion or any other trait—only the mandate to love the alien, whoever he or she may be, as yourself.

Indeed, Jesus spent his early years as a ref-ugee in Egypt, where his family fled to escape persecution and execution at the hands of King Herod. And toward the end of the gospel according to Matthew, Jesus instructs his fol-lowers that when they feed the hungry, clothe the naked, or welcome the stranger, they feed, clothe, and welcome Jesus himself—and when they deny food to the hungry, and leave the naked out in the cold, and bar the gate to keep the stranger away, they do the same to Jesus.

May we have ears to hear and courage to follow.

Connecticut’s gradual emancipation act followed history’s trail

For Christmas I received the book Slavery & the Underground Railroad in South Central Pennsylvania by Cooper H. Wingert. Since the home I grew up in was reputedly used on the Underground Railroad, the topic always inter-ests me, and I’m always looking for comparisons to what was happening here in Connecticut. Since February is Black History Month, this seems an appropriate column to mention a little of what I have learned. To be quite hon-est, I have looked at abolition as a nineteenth century issue so was surprised to read about the efforts at the time of the Revolution and even before. After all, if all men were created equal, didn’t that also mean people of color? Why should they be enslaved?

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (the capital of that colony) was home to a number of Quakers and a number of slaves. The city was also a bustling port where slave ships docked. By the early 1760’s a movement was underway to stem the flow. “In 1761 the Assembly enacted a 10-pound duty per slave imported into the colony.” (In 1773 it was raised to 20-pounds per slave). The following year, 1762, a docked slave ship was blamed for the outbreak of a mysterious deadly dis-ease. Slavery began to decline even more.

The Friends were advocating free-dom for the slaves, and in 1774 the “yearly meeting banned slaveholding altogether” (pp. 29-31). Finally on March 1, 1780 a bill passed the Pennsylvania legislature, which was considered “the first legislative abolition in America, and the first of its kind world-wide. However, any slave born before March 1, 1780 was still facing a life of perpetual servitude. Children of slaves born after that date were required to serve their mother’s master until 28” (pp. 38, 39).

A few years later Connecticut also would pass a gradual emancipation law. The following is from connecticuthistory.org. “In 1780, Pennsylvania passed a gradual emani-cipation law, and Connecticut and Rhode Island followed suit in 1784. New York and New Jersey, each of which had an enslaved popu-lation of well over 10,000 after the Revolution, initially resisted acting against slavery. However, by 1799 in New York and 1804 in New Jersey, gradual emancipation laws had been enacted. By the turn of the 19th century, slavery was well on the road to extinction in the North. In 1800, Connecticut still had more than 1,000 people held in slavery, a num-ber that would diminish slowly but steadily over the following years. Connecticut’s grad-ual emancipation act freed children born to enslaved women after March 1, 1784. It did not free the mother, the father, or any other adults. Neither did the children gain their full freedom until they reached, for men, age 25, and for women, age 21. Prior to those ages, the children remained under the custody of the parents and/or owners and were required to labor as the master direct-ed. The master could also apprentice them to another, or hire them to someone else and keep the proceeds. Thus, prior to attaining their age of majority, these children were legally held in a transitional state between slavery and freedom. Slaveholders were required, however, to register the birthdates of children born after the March 1, 1784, date and many complied. The children were no longer valued as slave prop-erty and were listed as free. Subsequent laws, passed later in the 1780s and 1790s, lowered the age at which the children would be freed and forbade the sale of any of these children or slaves outside of the state.... Slavery, however, would remain present in the state, albeit in ever-dwindling proportions, over the ensu-ing decades and would not be fully abolished until 1848.” The road to freedom was a long, difficult one even in the North.

Several weeks ago I wrote about Killingly in conjunction to the alphabet, beginning with A’s. This week I’ll extract a few of the many B’s in Natalie Coolidge’s Killingly Business Encyclopedia. Some busi-nesses you may never have heard of, but some are more recent and hopefully will bring forth many memories. One entry was for Frank E. Baker, who happened to be a blacksmith in town during the 1880’s. Issues of the Windham County Sunbeam, a short-lived paper, listed him in Danielsonville doing general blacksmithing and wagon repairing. Gone are the days of the village smithy, and also the next business--ambro-tylist. In 1861 John A. Barker was listed on Main Street in the 1861 Windham County Business Directory. He was a photographer in the Danielsonville village during the Civil War. “His gallery was on wheels and stood by the roadside a few rods northeast from the batting mill” (H. V. Arnold, Making of Danielson, p. 225).

The next business is within more recent memory. How many of you recall Barker’s Discount Department Store, which was locat-ed on Route 101 in Dayville? According to an extract from the September 14, 1972 Norwich Bulletin in the Killingly Business Encyclopedia, Barkers officially opened September 13, 1972. Donald Smith was the General Manager. According to Lynn LaBerge, who worked there, after Barkers closed King’s Department Store occupied the site for just a couple of years; it closed December 4, 1982. The following year Ames Department Store took over the space.

The second store to occupy space in what was then a new shopping plaza was Beit Brothers Supermarket, Inc. Reference to its grand opening was found in the November 30, 1972 Norwich Bulletin. We probably don’t think anything about it now that so many years have elapsed, but the construction of this small plaza began to change the busi-ness district from downtown Danielson to Dayville. The proximity to the interstate highway, then Route 52, now I-395 certainly played a part in this shift just as the opening of the railroad in 1840 led to the growth of Danielson.

Please share your memories about any of these businesses by emailing me or by calling the Killingly Historical Center.

Working Together for Woodstock

Over the last few years the Woodstock Public Schools and The Woodstock Academy have worked together to strengthen their relationship to benefit both educational programs and have a positive impact on students. This positive relationship has one goal in mind; providing the best education possible for all Woodstock students. While a sense of cooperation has not always been the norm, with many recent changes, the new-found partnership has allowed a great deal of positive collaboration which has reduced costs and increased the overall educa-tional impact.

While there are many examples of our collabora-tion we wanted to highlight a few. The Academy and the public-school system share the same calendar which allows for common time for professional develop-ment where staff from both schools can get together and align curricular initiatives. This past summer, while the roofs were being redone at the Woodstock Public Schools, The Academy hosted the Woodstock Summer Learning Initiative Camp, which allowed for 50 elemen-tary school students to take advantage of Woodstock Academy’s facilities. This was at no cost to the pub-lic-school system.

Each year, The Academy and the public schools col-laborate in educational opportunities that ben-efit students from both institutions. Each year, students from the Early Childhood program are able to spend time at Woodstock Elementary School to work with and observe students in pre-k and kindergarten. This program also hosts an annual gingerbread house activity during which all kindergarten students visit the Academy each December for a host of special holi-day activities designed by Academy students. There are plans to increase and grow this collaboration in the future.

This new-found collabora-tion has allowed both institu-tions to lower overall costs. Over the last few years, The Academy has assisted send-ing towns by reimbursing for transportation of our home-stay students. This has provided over $50,000 in transportation credits back to the town of Woodstock and over $100,000 to all of the sending towns overall. This year, the public school has grown its late bus route to include an Academy stop, which gives high school students in Woodstock the opportunity to stay after school for activities or to meet with teachers and still have transportation.

This year the schools took the major step of beginning to share staff. The special education program is now directed by one individual providing for a true PreK-12 program. While this endeavor has presented us with some challenges it also provides for a much closer blending of pro-grams, especially between Woodstock Middle School and Woodstock Academy. The sharing of staff will grow as conversations con-tinue about what staff can be shared, thus lowering costs for everyone.

We continue to explore ways which we might collab-orate in the future, includ-ing IT services, security services, and foreign lan-guage opportunities. There will also be opportunities for collaboration brought about by the proximity of the new South Campus and Woodstock Middle School.

The approach is to think out of the box and break-ing down obstacles to allow for new initiatives that will strengthen both institutions and the Town of Woodstock as a whole.

Victory Toth is Superintendent for the Woodstock Public Schools. Chris Sandford is the Headmaster of the Woodstock Academy

A Charlton reader offers handy way to jog your memory, plus a bonus kitchen tip!

Another Christmas Holiday has passed and I find that living in a townhouse with three levels can be challenging. Many times, I take to the stairs and forget what I was heading up or down for, and that can be so annoying. I now leave a note pad and pen at the top of each staircase to always be prepared to note what I need and what is on my mind!

Also, holiday recipes that you are working on can be placed into the plastic sheet protectors to keep them clean and handy right in your kitchen also, rather than a book or a piece of paper floating around!

Dealing with the hassles of snow and ice just got a little bit easier, thanks to this reader's duo of interposing tips:

When I came back after some time off for Christmas I found a couple inches of old snow and ice on my windshield.

1. I took an empty yogurt cup I keep in a bucket of salt/sand and was able to brush off the snow and ice with the open end (defroster was on) keeping my hand clean and warmer.

Yogurt cup — recycling at its finest! works great for spreading the salt/sand mixture and is always at the ready in the bucket near the walkway.

2. I took an old 1/2 gallon milk jug, cut the bottom out so it left me with a scoop complete with handle and lid attached. For larger storm events, I can fill the jug scoop, take of the lid and walk with a couple fingers over the hole while dispensing salt/and mixture, for great coverage and less waste.

Peace and serenity.

Swapping out oil for a healthy fat makes this dessert a non-guilty pleasure!

I had some over ripe (not brown) avocados and I substituted them for the oil in a boxed brownie mix. They came out delicious with the added benefit of healthy fat and less calories than the oil recipe. My daughter loved them and it was a great way to sneak vegetables into her diet. The recipe is as follows:

1 box dark chocolate brownie mix
1/2 cup mashed avocado
1/2 cup water (no eggs)
Stir until smooth. Bake according to box based on pan size used.
Enjoy!

Who knew? No muffin pan, no problem!

I came across this hint and thought I would pass on to you. Pretty neat and I would have never thought of it. If you are in a pinch for a muffin pan, you can use mason jar lids. Place the jar rings (wide side down) on a cookie sheet. Set your baking cup in each one and fill it with batter and bake. The ring will act as your muffin holder.

Online estate auctions

There are many different ways to liquidate estate contents. Taking items to auction or running an estate tag sale were the traditional ways of selling personal property in an estate. Selling items in an online estate auction is now becoming increasingly popular.

My experience shows that various types of items will sell better through different channels. We typically bring rarer and more valuable items to our live auctions. An estate sale may be better for more contemporary items, tools or when a home is packed full of items. When there are higher priced contemporary items we find that an online estate auction is a great option.

We started running online auctions to provide a solution to a client's problem. The home was located in a rural area in southern Worcester County. They had hired a company from out of state that ran a traditional estate sale but only a few items sold. There were some antiques but most of the items were high quality furnishings and accessories. We ran an online estate auction that drew bidders from throughout Massachusetts and Connecticut. The online auction process also ensured the majority of items sold and there was minimal cleanout afterward.

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES & ESTATES

There are other situations when an online auction may be the best solution such as with classic cars. We recently sold a 1969 Volkswagen Beetle in an online auction. A local person was the winning bidder, but by promoting on the web we were able to draw a pool of bidders from around the country.

With online auctions, large and heavy items that aren't easy to transport to an auction site can easily be sold in a home. We sold a digital milling machine weighing thousands of pounds a retiree had setup in his garage. The winning bidder brought the riggers he needed to move the sophisticated piece of machinery.

Online auctions also bring piece of mind to an estate personal representative. The representative has to show they acted with due diligence when selling personal property. The competitive bidding at auction is a proven method for selling personal property and ensures items will sell for fair market value.

As mentioned, there are different selling methods and advantages and disadvantages with each. At an estate sale, you have to decide instantaneously whether you want to buy something. If you put the item down there is a good chance someone else may pick it up and buy it. A live auction allows you time to inspect items during the preview but there is a much shorter time from when you first see it to when you need to bid. An online auction allows bidders a long time window from the start of the preview until the end of bidding. We typically offer online bidding for two weeks or more when we run online timed auctions. A live preview also typically takes place the weekend prior to the end of the bidding. Bidders are able to inspect the items in person. Some bidders don't attend the preview and just enter their online bids. In other instances, they will travel a great way to view items. One bidder asked me where the nearest airport was to one of our online auctions. He flew his plane to Massachusetts from Virginia to attend the preview.

I will be teaching my "Evaluating Your Antiques" class for the Bay Path evening school on March 6. Other events are currently being scheduled. See www.centralmassauctions.com for more information on our upcoming events.

"The Board of Education has been discussing this for a while. There's no driver behind the discussions other than we are looking for ways to handle capital projects or other things that might come about and we don't have to say 'Oh by the way we have to do something and we need extra money,'" said Hull. "In essence it's a savings account off to the side for the school district to use the way in which the ordinance is written that it can be used. Some towns are very specific with what it can be used for and we are collecting data on that as we continue discussions with the Board of Finance."

said. "We have the insurance company involved with the contents. We don't have insurance on the building, but we do have insurance on the contents so we had to have them evaluate the contents before we could start doing anything. Even now we're throwing away construction waste, but if we're throwing anything away that would be deemed part of the contents of the building we have to catalogue that and take pictures of it and write down what we are throwing away."

Fontaine noted that many of those present for the clean-up were not members of the church, although some were members and others had connections to the church through family and friends. He said that they are a small congregation and many of their members are older.

Fontaine said the church is still evaluating where they will go from here. The church is preparing a fund-raising effort they hope to kick off "really soon" and are expecting to receive quotes on how much it will cost to rebuild the back of the church and fix the damage properly. Fontaine said he expects it to be a lengthy process but one he feels the congregation will see through and persevere.

The fire at the church was sparked from an electrical issue in the church basement. The fire worked its way into the sanctuary where much of the damage was done. Further cleanup efforts are expected to take place from week to week. Fontaine said the church will be utilizing social media to get the word out about when those clean-ups will actually take place.

The name Florence Foster Jenkins has been guaranteed to produce derisive laughter. In the 1930s and 1940s, this wealthy society eccentric suffered under the delusion that she was a great coloratura soprano when nothing could be farther from the truth. The climax of her career was a single concert at Carnegie Hall in 1944. Famously, it sold out in two hours. "Souvenir" by turn hilarious and poignant, tells her story through the eyes of her accompanist, Cosme McMoon. A talented musician, he regards her at first as little more than an easy way to pay the rent, but, as he gets to know her, his initial contempt gives way to reluctant admiration, then

Charcuterie meats for perfect Super Bowl party paninis

(MS) — Serve these tantalizing crusty bread sandwiches to your guests.

Salami Panini with Tomato-Chili Jam
Makes: 3 sandwiches

Ingredients:
3 Italian crusty buns
1 package Black Kassel Old Forest, Picante, or Mustard Seed salami
1 1/2 cups baby arugula
4 ounces semi-soft cheese, such as gouda or Havarti, sliced
1/2 cup tomato-chili jam (purchased, or recipe follows)
2 tablespoons olive oil

Directions:
1. Cut buns in half lengthwise. Layer salami slices on each bun; top with arugula and cheese slices. Spread tomato-chili jam generously on the inside of the top of each bun.
2. Heat oil in a large frying pan over medium heat. Place sandwiches in pan and place another large heavy pan on top of them. Cook for 8 to 10 minutes or until bread is golden and cheese melted, turning sandwiches halfway through. Cut in half to serve.
Tip: For another taste, try Black Kassel Speck, which is like a smoked prosciutto.

Tomato-Chili Jam Recipe

Ingredients:
1 28-ounce can diced tomatoes
1 jalapeno pepper
2 teaspoons garlic, chopped
2 tablespoons ginger, chopped
2 tablespoons fish sauce
1 cup brown sugar
3/4 cup red wine vinegar

Directions:
1. In a food processor, purée half the tomatoes and their juices with jalapeño, garlic and ginger. Place in a deep pot with fish sauce, sugar and vinegar and boil slowly, stirring constantly.
2. When it reaches a boil, lower heat to simmer and add remaining tomatoes. Simmer gently for 30 to 40 minutes until dark red and jam-like. Pour into a bowl, cool and refrigerate until needed.

Cook up the perfect pizza for your Super Bowl party

(MS) — Make this delicious meal for your guests, whether you serve it at a home or tail-gate party.

SPECK AND ARUGULA PIZZA

Serves: 4

- Pizza Topping:
- Flour, for dusting
  - 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil, divided
  - 1 garlic clove, crushed
  - 1/2 teaspoon fresh rosemary, chopped
  - Kosher salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste
  - 1/2 cup partly skimmed ricotta cheese
  - 1 cup mozzarella cheese, grated
  - 2 cups baby arugula
  - 1 small shallot, thinly sliced
  - 1/2 lemon, juiced
  - 4 slices Black Kassel Speck, cut in half lengthwise
- Pizza Dough:
- 1 3/4 to 2 cups all-purpose flour
  - 1 cup cake and pastry flour
  - 2 1/4 teaspoons instant or bread-machine dry yeast (or 1 envelope)
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/4 cup very warm water

DIRECTIONS:

1. To make pizza dough, stir together all-purpose flour, cake flour, yeast and salt in a mixer fitted with a dough hook; make a well in the center. Add water. Mix on medium speed until all flour is incorporated into dough; add remaining flour as needed to have soft, slightly sticky dough. Alternatively, you can mix by hand. Turn out on a well-floured surface. Let rest covered for 10 minutes. Divide into thirds.

2. Place a pizza stone or upside-down baking sheet in the oven and preheat to 450 F. Gently flatten dough into a circle or rectangle on a lightly floured surface, creating a rim. Transfer to a cornmeal-dusted pizza peel or another upside-down baking sheet; slide dough onto the hot pizza stone or baking sheet. Bake for 8 minutes.

3. Meanwhile, combine 2 tablespoons olive oil in a bowl with garlic, rosemary and salt and pepper to taste. Remove pizza from oven. Brush with olive oil mixture and top with ricotta and mozzarella. Return pizza to oven, baking until cheese is golden and bubbly, about 6 more minutes.

4. Toss arugula and shallot slices in a large bowl with lemon juice, olive oil and salt and pepper to taste. Top the pizza with arugula salad, speck and shaved Parmesan cheese.

5. Cut into wedges or squares with scissors; serve immediately.

Tip: As an alternative to speck, you can try Black Kassel Old Forest, Picante or Mustard Seed salami. You can also buy store-made pizza dough and simply layer on the toppings.

Woodstock climbing toward tourney berth

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

WOODSTOCK — Before they laced up their basketball sneakers for the first game of the season the Centaurs of Woodstock Academy made a trek to the top of Skinner Mountain in Massachusetts. Coach Aaron Patterson hoped the symbolism wasn’t lost on a team that has failed to qualify for the state tournament the last two seasons — long and steady climbs trace the only sure path to the top.

“Before the season started we took a run up Skinner Mountain. It’s a mile straight up hill just about,” Patterson said. “We talk about that all the time in terms of right now we’re in the last third of the mountain. We’re just trying to keep climbing, and getting better, that’s all really we’re focused on, is just getting better.”

The climb continued last Friday at Alumni Fieldhouse. Woodstock defeated Killingly High 56-37. The win lifted the Centaurs record to 6-7. Eight wins are required to gain a berth in the Class L State Tournament. Against Killingly, Woodstock clawed back from a 16-7 deficit late in the first half and used a trapping zone defense to get back in the game.

“We ran a 3-2 (zone), we started trapping them and we knew we would be very successful with it,” said Woodstock senior forward Jared Bouten. “We created turnovers. We started running on them.”

The Centaurs outscored Killingly 42-21 after halftime.

Trailing 16-14 after the intermission, Woodstock outscored the Redmen 21-14 in the third quarter with senior guard Nick Short scoring all 14 of his points in the third quarter including three three-pointers.

“I took the reins off and challenged the guys to shoot the ball and knock down some shots,” Patterson said. “Told them they’ve got to let it fly. Nick Short was the man. He came up huge. That’s the Nick we know. He was confident. In my opinion when you have good players they do good things at good times. And Nick stepped up and made some big plays.”

Sophomore guard Chase Anderson sank a three-pointer with 1:30 left in the third quarter to give Woodstock the lead for good, 32-29. Short knocked down a three-pointer with :51 remaining in the third frame to push the Centaurs lead to 35-29. Killingly never cut its deficit below five points the rest of the game. Coach Patterson was pleased with the Centaurs effort in the second half but said basketball is a game that spans an entire 32 minutes.

“Although we’re glad we won. I was not satisfied in terms of the fact that I did not think we played as well as we could for the entire game,” Patterson said. “The big thing was we were able to make adjustments at halftime, execute the adjustments, change the pace of the game, and I think we scored 42 in the second half which was one of the most points we’ve scored in a half, more than some games we’ve had.”

The game became physical in the second half and although Killingly High was whistled for two technical fouls, the Centaurs managed to stay focused.

“The thing that I was most proud of in this game was the fact that we kept our composure, didn’t get chippy, and just played the game the way the basketball game should be played,” Patterson said. “Forget the win and the loss and the points and all that. When your kids act appropriately that’s most important.”

The Centaurs earned some payback as well, Killingly defeated Woodstock 40-39 back on Dec. 20 at Killingly High School.

“That was the first game of the year. We’re a much different team now. Honestly I felt like the first game of the year was a different season,” Patterson said. “They’re different. We’re different. We’ve gotten a lot better. We’ve worked very hard to get to this point.”

Anderson led Woodstock with 17 points against Killingly. Sophomore forward Cole Hackett added 15 points. The Centaurs are next scheduled to travel to Montville on Friday, Feb. 3, with tipoff scheduled for 7 p.m. The climb continues.

“I really want to make the state tournament, we didn’t make it last year,” Bouten said. “We’re just trying to build this program back up.”

THOMPSON — Putnam coach Shawn Deary gives Lucas Basilio the green light — common coaching sense when you have a talented 6-foot-3, 220-pound power forward who can score from both the perimeter and the paint. But Basilio is a Brazilian import with flair — a transfer student finishing up his schooling at Putnam High — and his freelancing South American style has to be roped in at times.

Deary needed a lasso after Basilio hoisted a three-point attempt in the first half against Tourtellotte that found nothing but air in a key rivalry game against the Tigers on Jan. 26. The coach caught his Brazilian bomber's attention after the air ball — Deary shrugged his shoulders and with upturned palms signaled his displeasure from the sideline.

"The guy can shoot. We've never had any ill feelings about him taking a three," Deary said. "But in the flow of basketball a shot can feel good, but when you're forcing it bad things happen. That's why I looked at him and I gave him the 'We didn't need that one. We need to do it in the flow of basketball.'"

And yet Deary never blinkered the green light for Basilio and that helped drive Putnam's 53-33 victory at Canty Gymnasium. Basilio scored 17 of his game of his game-high 27 points in the second half. He knocked down three three-pointers over the final 16 minutes including two treys in the fourth quarter.

"I just go out there and keep shooting," Basilio said. "The team chemistry was good, they gave me good passes."

Basilio scored 12 points in the fourth quarter and the Clippers outscored Tourtellotte 19-2 in the final frame — turning a 34-31 lead into a runaway victory. Basilio finished with 18 rebounds.

Coach Deary said his burly newcomer has been a welcome addition this season but he's altered the team's chemistry and the Clippers have spent much of the season trying to regain the right mix.

"It's kind of like when you add a new family member to a family. It becomes a little difficult for him to conform from the outside to in. So that's been the struggle," Deary said. "(Basilio's) style is different versus what were used to. He's a great player — 27 points, 18 rebounds — but everybody's got to be on the same page going to that. That's where we've been missing out. And tonight, we were on the same page to start. We got off of that page for little while, (Tourtellotte) got back in it, it was a close game. Then we decided to play as a team again and finish the game strong."

The win broke a four-game Putnam losing streak. The victory lifted the Clippers record to 6-6.

"We needed this win very badly. We needed a team win," Deary said. "I've been trying to stress for the last couple games, 'United We Stand. Divided We Fall.' We've been playing divided basketball. Not playing in the flow. Not using each other the way we can. When you don't go to your full potential you're going to lose games."

Putnam is next scheduled to play at Grasso Tech on Tuesday, Feb. 7. The Clippers travel to Woodstock Academy to take on the Centaurs on Thursday, Feb. 9, with tipoff scheduled for 7 p.m. at Alumni Fieldhouse.

Deary has the lasso ready on the sideline — but Basilio also gets the rope he needs.

"One game at a time," Deary said. "You want to be playing your best basketball right before tournament time, obviously, so hopefully we can keep striding in the right direction — learn to get better and take it home with the better basketball we know we can play."

DAYVILLE — There would be no more easy wins for Killingly High. Monday night's 53-41 victory over winless Fitch High boosted Killingly's record to 7-8.

The Redgals needed one more victory in their final five games to gain the required eight victories necessary to guarantee a berth in the Class M State Tournament and junior forward Reagan Morin knew that might be a tough task.

"We've got to play as hard as we can and just do everything we can to get that last win," Morin said. "It's going to be hard but we're up to the challenge."

Morin scored a game-high 22 points against Fitch including 10 points in the third quarter. With Killingly leading 23-16 at halftime, the Redgals put the game away by outscoring the Falcons 21-12 in the third frame and then led 44-28 going into the fourth quarter.

"Reagan played excellent. She came out here and she worked hard, that's all we can ask from her," said Killingly coach Gina Derosier.

Derosier is also asking her team for at least one more win. The coach knew Killingly had its work cut out for it over the final stretch of the regular season. Among its final opponents: New London was 15-0 through 15 games, Stonington went 11-4 through 15 games and defeated Killingly 53-37 in their first meeting on Dec. 23, Bacon Academy was 7-8 and defeated Killingly 70-40 in their first meeting on Jan. 6, and the Redgals play Waterford (10-4 through 14 games) twice down the stretch.

"We've got to knock somebody off that people don't expect us to," Derosier said. "We've just got to just dig in deep and keep the ball rolling."

It's going to test our character, that's for sure. We got No. 7 tonight. It's one game at a time. We have to work harder than we've worked all season now, especially with what they're up against. They know what they're up against. They know it can be done. They've got the determination and the hard work to do so."

Ciarra Jimenez scored a team-high 18 points for Fitch (0-15). Killingly is next scheduled to travel to Bacon Academy on Friday, Feb. 3. Morin knew qualifying for the state tournament will take a solid effort — no more easy wins on the schedule.

"We're going to have play better than we have all season and just work as hard as we can. That's all we can ask," Morin said. "Since beginning of the season we've kept saying we want to go to states. We haven't given up for sure."

Roller coaster ride continues for Killingly

BY CHARLIE LENTZ

WOODSTOCK — Killingly coach Jim Crabtree could only shake his head and sigh after pondering a disheartening loss at Woodstock Academy. Last Friday’s game at Alumni Fieldhouse mirrored the roller coaster ride that has likely given the coach a case of motion sickness this season. Crabtree witnessed a scenario against Woodstock that he’d seen before — the Redmen raise their game one minute, then sink beneath the radar shortly thereafter.

“We’ve got to figure out that when you’ve got a lead you can’t stop playing,” Crabtree said. “Other teams are going to work hard to come back.”

Killingly took a commanding lead deep into the first half against Woodstock before fading to a 56-37 loss on Jan. 27. The defeat dropped Killingly’s record to 5-7. It’s been a perplexingly up-and-down year for Crabtree and his coaching staff.

“I don’t understand it. We’ve had a couple of good weeks of practice and games,” Crabtree said. “And we come up here and I guess we thought we were going to pound on our chest and scare them or something.”

Killingly topped Woodstock 40-39 in their first meeting on Dec. 20 at Killingly High School. In recent action the Redmen were narrowly defeated by Lyman Memorial (42-41 on Jan. 23) and Bacon Academy (a 46-39 loss on Jan. 6), but Killingly handled Montville easily in a 52-34 victory just three days before falling to Woodstock Academy.

Killingly broke from the gate quickly en route to a 16-7 lead over Woodstock — moving the ball smartly for open shots with senior guard Jared Gosper and sophomore guard Luke Desaulnier both knocking down three-pointers to fuel the early run.

“We were just playing basketball, keeping it simple, then we tried to be fancy with our passes,” Crabtree said.

Crabtree said his players need to refocus on the fundamentals if they want to earn a berth in the state tournament as the regular season heads down the homestretch. He was disappointed with the Redmen’s attempt to break Woodstock’s zone-trap defense — which fed the Centaurs comeback.

“Simple hard cuts, point to wing to post —

pass and cut and spring. When Woodstock went to their zone trap we never made two hard passes. We stood still. We got the ball to the middle and then four guys watched it. To beat a trapping zone it’s got to be one pass to the middle, back out, and then attack,” Crabtree said. “We just thought we were going to do it our way and it was never really a team effort.”

Against Woodstock, Killingly raced to a nine-point lead with junior guard Gavin Turner sinking a 15-footer from the right baseline with 7:29 left in the second quarter to stretch Killingly’s lead to 16-7. But after Turner’s bucket the Redmen were shut out the rest of the first half as Woodstock closed its deficit to 16-14 at halftime. The Centaurs outscored Killingly 42-21 in the second half. Crabtree was dismayed that a few of his players lost their cool and were assessed technical fouls in the second half.

“We haven’t gotten a technical all year. We got two tonight. We lost our heads,” Crabtree said. “They got in our heads. We broke down. They were the bigger men tonight. We acted like babies. It was embarrassing what we did out there tonight. Acting up, talking back to the officials. That’s not what we preach. It’s not what we do. That will be addressed.”

Desaulnier led Killingly with 12 points. Turner finished with nine points. The Redmen are next scheduled to play host to Bacon Academy on Friday, Feb. 3, with tipoff scheduled for 7 p.m. at Killingly High School. Killingly needed just three wins in its last eight games in order to guarantee a berth in the Class M State Tournament. Coach Crabtree hoped Killingly’s effort becomes more level-headed down the stretch — or his case of motion sickness might return.

“There’s winnable games there,” Crabtree said. “We need to go back to just playing basketball and worrying about ourselves, the people in the red uniforms. Basketball is a team game. We had too many individuals tonight. Maybe they’ll decide that we’ll do this as a team, and if not — then we’ll find some new bodies.”

Fourth quarter meltdown dooms Tourtellotte

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

THOMPSON — Tourtellotte junior guard Simon Silvia knew repeat performances of Tourtellotte’s fourth-quarter effort against Putnam High on Jan. 26 might spell the end of the Tigers chances to reach the state tournament. The Tigers could not sink a field goal in the fourth quarter and were outscored 19-2 in the final frame of a 53-33 loss to Putnam High on Jan. 25 at Cauty Gymnasium.

“We certainly can’t play like that,” said Silvia, who led Tourtellotte with 13 points against Putnam. “We’ve got to play a lot better.”

Tourtellotte sophomore forward Josh Dodd sank two free throws in the fourth quarter, the only points the Tigers could muster over the final eight minutes when Putnam High turned a 34-31 lead into a 20-point win.

The loss dropped Tourtellotte’s record to 5-8. The Tigers needed three wins over their last seven games to gain the required eight wins necessary to guarantee a berth in the Class S State Tournament. Silvia said the Tigers’ road to the state tourney would be an uphill climb if they keep playing like they did against the Clippers. He said they obviously would have to improve offensively in pressure situations.

“It’s just been our scoring lately. Our defense, we kept (Putnam) to 53 points and that’s not bad. It’s not great but it’s not bad,” Silvia said. “It’s our offense that’s really been struggling. We just need to keep contributing, get it to the right guys.”

Tourtellotte 6-foot-5 junior center Jackson Padula was held scoreless by the Clippers and Silvia said that can’t happen down the stretch.

“We need to give Jackson more touches. I mean the dude’s 6-5, he needs to touch the ball more,” Silvia said.

The Tigers needed three wins in their last seven games. Tourtellotte is next scheduled to play at Windham on Friday, Feb. 3. Silvia said the the loss to Putnam won’t derail the Clippers but only make them more determined.

“This makes us more aggressive,” Silvia said. “We just learned that if we play like this we’re not going to beat other teams. So we need to play hard and be aggressive.”

E. Verna [Worrell] Fish, 100

Worrell of Southampton Township, New Jersey.

She began her working career as a bookkeeper at Samoset Laundromat in Plainfield, New Jersey. Then after having her children, she modeled women's wear for Tepper's Clothing Store in Plainfield, New Jersey. After moving to Connecticut in 1974, she began her sales career at BugBee's Department Store in Putnam. In 1990 she began working as a clerk at Sturbridge Village, where she worked for 20 years until she retired at the age of 94 in 2010. She loved her co-workers at the Village, especially Shirley, and meeting and helping all the guests that visited the gift shop. She always said that working kept her young.

In her spare time, she would visit with her many friends in her knitting club and often shared stories and techniques about her 90 years of knitting expertise with others during the knitting hour at the Jacob Edwards Library in Southbridge, Massachusetts. She was fond of feeding and talking to the hummingbirds and cardinals, gardening, vacationing and taking walks on the beach at Long Beach Island or Cape Cod with her family, spending evenings watching QVC, collecting antiques, and snuggling with her cats.

Verna was predeceased by her loving husband of 66 years, James H. Fish, Sr.; her sister, Julia (Wells) Shontz; and her daughter, Lois Mae Fish. As the family thread and matriarch, she is survived by five generations including Verna lived an incredible life and will be truly missed. "Time endears, but cannot fade, the memories that we have made", and memories of time spent with this elegant, loving woman will live on in the lives and hearts of all she touched.

Verna's family wishes to thank the staff at Douglas Manor, especially Lynn, for their kind and compassionate care over the past year. She made many friends while at Douglas Manor and for this her family is most grateful.

William F. Hoss, 85

DAYVILLE -- William F. Hoss, 85, of Alexander's Lake, Dayville, passed away January 27 at home, surrounded by his loving family. Born September 7, 1931, in Indianapolis, Indiana, he was the son of the late Frank and Thelma (McDermid) Hoss. Bill moved to Killingly with his parents and sister Bette in 1945. He attended Killingly High School, Class of 1949, where he was Class President for three years, and an outstanding scholar and athlete. After graduating from the University of Rhode Island, he served as an Officer in the U.S. Navy, and was named to the All-Navy basketball team. In 1956, he married the love of his life, Nola O'Connor, who has been his wife for 60 years.

Bill enjoyed his career in education, first as a mathematics teacher, basketball coach and athletic director at Saddle Brook High School in New Jersey, then as an award-winning school administrator who always put children first. He was Principal of the Killingly Memorial Elementary School for 17 years, then Principal/Assistant Superintendent in Lisbon. He also participated in numerous civic activities, including Rotary and the Danielson Springtime Festival, serving as President during the Bicentennial Celebration. He was active in St. Albans Episcopal Church as a Sunday school teacher, vestry member, and Senior Warden.

Throughout his life, Bill was an avid competitor; whether pitching horseshoes, playing softball, ping pong or squash, shooting hoops, or on the tennis court, Bill strove to win, and he often did. His drive and athletic ability culminated in his induction into the Killingly Athletic Association Hall of Fame on November 19, 2016.

After retiring, Bill had more time to indulge in his many passions, including golf, bridge, travel, volunteer work, telling stories and spending time at the lake with his family and friends. In short, Bill loved life and people, and we loved him back.
