North Woodstock Library celebrates 175 years

Historical Society members Anthony Reid (president) Elaine Lachapelle (cataloger) have fond memories of the North Woodstock Library, and still come to the library to get the books they want to read, and just to hang out with friends.

WOODSTOCK — The North Woodstock Library building's 175th anniversary was not only a time to celebrate the history of the building and the town it served, but a chance for residents to identify themselves in old school photographs, which were hanging all over the "one room library," as North Woodstock lovingly refers to it.

Built in 1843, the building was a school house first. And many of the former students from the classes of 1947, 1948, and 1949 are still Woodstock residents today. For the townspeople, it was a grand time socializing with other former students of the one-room schoolhouse, and reminisce about the memories it created, the memories they share.

The building was one of 17 school houses in the town. According to Woodstock Historical Society Cataloger Elaine Lachapelle, 12 of them currently are still standing. And this one has become a library.

That happened back in 1950.

And it all started, Lachapelle said with a laugh, because of a "very deep neighborhood pride."

Anthony Reid is the President of the Historical Society, and his mother was the first librarian at the North Woodstock Library, back in the 1950s.

"There's always been fierce competition between North and East Woodstock," he said. "There's the North and East Congregational churches... They have split personalities. But anything that North Woodstock had, East Woodstock had to have it, too. That was part of it."

A pastor from the North Woodstock Church had started collecting books before the space became available. People would come and borrow books from his collection, like a library.

Quinebaug Valley Showcase at Killingly High

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN

KILLINGLY — The Quinebaug Valley Talent Showcase has found a new home: Killingly High School. After growing out of their old auditorium at Brooklyn Middle School, the Special Olympics eighth annual talent show was moved to Killingly High, where almost 700 people attended on May 18 and 19 to see 115 athletes show off their talents and passions.

I sat down with Coaches Karen LeBeau and Michelle Plucenik, and Local Coordinator of the Quinebaug Valley Special Olympics Geri White to find out more about the successful night, and how important it is to not only the Special Olympics annual funds, but the athletes who make it all happen.

Tell me a bit about how the show went.

Karen - It started with 20 athletes, including partners. It's grown so much, this year we had 115 athletes.

Geri White-Weoutgrew the Brooklyn Middle School auditorium.

Karen - That place holds around 500 people. We do a two-day show. On Friday nights we had to unfortunately turn people away at the door. So we had to find a different venue. Killingly High School can hold a little more than 700 people. We're growing.

DAYVILLE — Cameras flashed. The red carpet was rolled out. Killingly High School presented its fourth annual Quiet Corner Film Festival, which celebrated short films from local high school students on May 17.

Over 120 people attended this past film festival, which continues to grow each year, and the audience was blown away by the short films made by the students.

"Nobody comes in with high expectations but at the end of the night they feel it's so amazing, and feel the students have so much to offer. I'm always so excited every year to see what the students are doing, what they're working on. I think the whole thing is great," said video technology teacher Dan Durand.

The 13 films shown at the film festival were chosen from a slew of films submitted from nine different high schools in the region. Made by students either for class, or at after-school programs, a lot of hard work and

Land trust still active in Thompson

THOMPSON — The Wyndham Land Trust continues to acquire land on Bull Hill in Thompson in an effort to protect this large, unbroken forested lot from development. The land trust now owns 771 acres on Bull Hill, including a few adjacent properties across the town line in Woodstock.

David Ostrowski and Karen Durlach, residents of Thompson, recently donated 10 acres on Bull Hill to the land trust. Ostrowski, who had owned the property for over 30 years, stipulated that it be preserved as a bird sanctuary and wild-life habitat and that the parcel be called Avian Haven Wildlife Preserve.

“We appreciate nature’s wildlife: fur, feathers, leaves, and mushrooms,” explained Ostrowski “both above and below ground. It brings satisfaction when you’re in contact with nature. It’s hard to describe, but you need that contact to be healthy. Nature has given us a lot, and I wanted to give something back by preserving this property forever.

“We have been stewards for the land trust for many years, and when we heard of the Bull Hill project we felt it was a perfect fit for preservation. We hope that the land trust continues to protect more of Bull Hill, one or two steps at a time.”

Rovero say funding will spur jobs

PUTNAM — State Representative Daniel Rovero (D- Killingly, Putnam, Thompson) praised the state Bond Commission’s approval Friday of projects that will bring and retain jobs in the area while assisting local business grow and expand.

A $1.3 million grant was approved to Walgreen Co., to assist with acquisition of equipment and training for upgrades to the former Rite Aid distribution center in Killingly and a $1.5 million loan to Magnetic Technologies Ltd., to assist with costs associated with establishing a manufacturing facility in Putnam.

“I am grateful these two projects have been prioritized in this round of state funding as they are critical to the expansion and retention of much needed jobs and economic development in our area,” said Rovero.

Both investments will retain more than 300 jobs and create more than 100 jobs long term.

“Anything that we can do to strengthen the foundation of our local businesses is of great importance to me because it’s the engine that keeps our economy going,” Rovero said.

creativity goes into the films. And this is the students’ chance to have their work viewed by a huge crowd.

“It’s validating what they do, the hard work they put in,” said Durand. “My students, I know, develop these films throughout the school year, from concept to distribution.”

This includes developing the characters and writing a script, filming, editing – basically the whole process that would go into making a

Hollywood film, but on a smaller scale.

Not only do students learn how to create a film from start to finish, but they learn how to use the cameras and other technical equipment, how to work cooperatively, and how to write.

“We want to reward them for all their hard work and want them to feel special,” said Durand.

The winner of this year’s Quiet Corner Film Festival was Thayne Hutchins from Woodstock Academy. The film was called “Fair,” a comedy about a highly competitive game of rock, paper, scissors.

The winner was chosen based on a variety of categories – from editing, lighting and cinematography, to storytelling, as graded by four professional judges: professor Tom Strolla, Boston documentary filmmaker Nick Agri, local radio host Gary Osbrey, and film maker and former student Hunter Lyon.

The audience also voted on a favorite. Killingly High School’s “Virus X,” took that award, a science fiction film about a sister struggling to find a cure to a new disease in order to save her sister.

“I’m amazed at some of the films. And so were the audience. They were blown away,” said Durand. “So many people came up to me and said it was such a great night and how cool it was that we were doing this.”

PUTNAM — Mayotte-Viens American Legion Post No. 13 Commander Ronald P. Coderre honored the Post’s oldest and youngest members before Putnam’s Memorial Day Parade. area because we look at ourselves as a very rural community,” said Reid. “Local libraries are part of that historical vibe that we would like to see continue. That’s one of the reasons the people who run the library are so enthusiastic. We want to maintain that country theme we have here.”

And current librarian Dawn Hellwig believes the library still has that close-knit-community charm.

“I love the people that come in,” she said. “It’s become a sort of hang-out place. A lot of the patrons are older, and they’ll come in and just hang out and chat.”

For Lachapelle, and other long-time Woodstock residents, the library has continued to play a big role in their life, not just currently.

“I have such fond memories of the place,” she said. “My mother, sister and I used to walk from Brickyard Road to this library to get books. It’s still a fond memory in my mind, us walking. This is the second library I had ever visited, and I was hooked. That was it.”

And it continues to be the “place to be” in its current-day state as well. For avid readers like Reid, it’s not only a nostalgic place to hang out with friends, but to get the books you want. And fast.

“I can walk in and ask Dawn for a book. Within a week she gets it from somewhere,” he said. “There’s no politics among the local libraries in the network. It’s all done in a very neighborly fashion.”

If you would like to see the old school photos – and maybe identify yourself in one – contact the Historical Society at (860) 928-1035.

The North Woodstock Library is open Mondays from 9-1 pm, and Thursdays and Saturdays from 9-noon.

Former North Woodstock Schoolhouse students check out old school photos to see if they can identify themselves for the Historical Society’s archives. The building’s 175th anniversary allowed them to come together and reminisce about their time at the school.

Woodstock students help the hungry

WOODSTOCK — In 2010 a group of students, along with social studies teacher and department chair Sara Dziedzic, started Family Related Effective Solutions for Humanity (FRESH) to address concerns of poverty, homelessness, and food insecurity in the towns surrounding The Woodstock Academy. Eight years later the organization has developed into a sustainable non-profit assisting residents of northeast Connecticut. FRESH's newest initiative is the Caring Continues Food Pantry that feeds families and veterans in Woodstock.

The program was born when Anne Miller, Executive Director of TEEG, approached both FRESH and Woodstock Evangelical Covenant Church about partnering to address food insecurity in Woodstock. The partnership was well timed because with the addition of the South Campus, FRESH was able to designate a room in the South Campus Student Center to collect and sort food donations for the food pantry.

Senior Anna Murphy, who has been a member of FRESH since her freshman year, said they knew there was food insecurity in the area, but the program quickly grew to a scale much larger than they had originally anticipated.

"We originally thought that we would have 12 families, and we now have 60," said Dziedzic.

"(It) introduced me to the economic problems in this part of the state." Said Will Schad, a senior from Pomfret who has lead the Caring Continues initiative. "It's taught us about organization."

Seniors Will Schad, Anna Murphy, and Kathryn McLoughlin sorting food donations with advisor Sara Dziedzic in FRESH's food pantry.

Each week Schad works with Murphy to organize their peers and members of FRESH to unpack, sort, and deliver donations. Donations come from local churches, the WA community, and now, as the program has grown, a majority of the donations come from United Natural Foods Inc. and Daily Bread in Putnam. Members of WECC pack bags for each family weekly and the bags are delivered through Woodstock Public Schools.

"The first year was a learning curve and about survival," said Dziedzic. "I don't think you realize how expensive it is until you have to buy it. Thankfully, Dave Magee (Associate Pastor at Woodstock Evangelical Covenant Church) worked hard at getting the United Natural Foods donation, and this, along with Daily Bread in Putnam, allowed us to maintain this program."

Murphy has spent the past semester in an independent study with Dziedzic creating a plan to make Caring Continues sustainable. "Now we are looking at ways to improve distribution and how to best serve the families in need, but it was hard to get us here," said Dziedzic. "The easiest thing about this was The Academy support. FRESH students fully embraced this program."

In addition to Caring Continues FRESH organized a back to school supply drive for local middle schools and a sock and underwear drive to donate to TEEG to benefit the local homeless population. As a student-run organization FRESH also aims to raise awareness among students about homelessness in Northeast Connecticut. FRESH has partnered with Connecticut Coalition to End Homelessness and earlier this year the group hosted a homelessness awareness movie night on South Campus. At Halloween the group reverse did reverse trick-or-treating where they knocked on doors and delivered goodies.

FRESH also provides scholarships for local elementary and middle school students to attend area summer camps and programs. This year FRESH donated a total of $7,000 for camperships to CT Audubon of Pomfret, Capen Hill Nature Sanctuary, TEEG, Brooklyn Recreation Department, and the Hale YMCA Youth and Family Center.

"(In FRESH we) are able to see the impact that they have when they deliver camp scholarships or mentor students," said Dziedzic.

In addition to goods donated by the community, FRESH's efforts are supported by funds raised through a three-on-three basketball tournament, selling final exam care packages, and a spaghetti supper which this year raised about $5,000.

SHOWCASE

Geri – It's amazing.

Michelle – It went very well. We got a great response from everyone.

What is the purpose of the talent show?

Geri – It's a fundraiser for our program. We are a nonprofit. In order to raise money for all the sports, transportation, equipment... We are continually looking for fundraisers and sponsors.

Karen – This year we raised about $13,000 before expenses.

That's amazing!

Michelle – It more than tripled our proceeds. Everything we do, we don't charge people. We don't want to turn anybody away.

What kind of talent was at the show?

Karen – There was dancing, singing...

Geri – The very first year, we said whatever talent we would go with it. There were comedy skits. There was a baton thrower. Joke telling. Now, the coaches have a theme-

Karen – There's too many people in the show. So it needed to be more organized. There are 10 acts per half. We needed categories. One year was Across the Decades. One was Rocking USA.

Geri – The coaches got the theme – Ladies & Gents... Sort of the 'Greatest Showman' theme.

The talent show is not only a fundraiser, but a chance for the athletes to perform. What is the importance of this show for them?

Karen – My daughter is one of the athletes. It gives them an opportunity to show that people with different abilities can have amazing talents. And they can really shine on stage.

Geri – For the parents, to see their child or family member get up on stage and perform... They're in the audience. It is such a joyful experience for them. They're in tears.

Michelle – It gives them an opportunity to be a part of something they never thought they could be a part of. That they dreamed of. As parents of kids, we always look for that moment where they can shine. It's probably the most powerful and fulfilling moment you can have, when you see someone you care about able to do something they're passionate about.

Geri – I've been coaching the Special Olympics for 40 years. Practices are hard. But you get them on a stage or on a field – having a crowd watch them – and they rise to the occasion like you cannot believe. The day of... Wow! They just shine!

They are excited and proud to be up there with their coaches, and show everyone their talents.

Geri - The theme has also forced our athletes to get outside their conform zone. They have certain things they like to sing. Songs and dance routines they've never even heard of, but they're excelling in it.

Karen – We had tap dancers. My daughter had never tap danced before and she enjoyed it. I don't know of any performer who don't love doing this. They all love this. They practice twice a week.

How long had they been rehearsing?

Geri – Since March.

That's amazing dedication. Going back to the Special Olympics itself, what is the importance of the Quinebaug Valley Special Olympics for the athletes that compete in them?

Geri – There's nothing else here for our athletes recreation and activity-wise. It gives participants and families some quality of life experiences. That's why it's so important. Services are so minimal.

Karen – And they are slowly being taken away.

It's very sad.

Geri – The Special Olympics promotes fun and fitness. It's an opportunity for teamwork and comradery. A lot of our athletes – and we have all level of athletes – they were bullied in school. They were bullied on sports teams, if they were even allowed to participate. The Special Olympics gives them an opportunity to be on a team, and to play to their level of ability. There's a place for you to play, no matter what.

Karen – It's unified. It involves inclusion. Abilities and not disabilities. It helps partners grow just as much with people with disabilities.

What are some of the things Special Olympics offers?

Geri – The Special Olympics in general, even though it started as a sports program, offers athletes to expand to other areas. Global messenger program, which Karen's daughter recently joined. They can be toastmasters, give speeches. That's a very important skill out of school. If you're not stimulated, everybody decreases in their skills. But sports keeps them moving. When they get out of school – there's no moving.

That's a huge issue for all students – no learning or physical activities available during the summer months.

Michelle – In NE CT we've become a family. It's not just a sporting group. If you speak to any of the parents, they'll say that as well. Just this past week at the talent show, the parent of a younger child who is new to us – and can be difficult at times – she had the opportunity to see her child perform and behave and interact with others in a way that she hadn't thought would be possible. I heard one of the other mothers say to her, 'Welcome to our family.'

That's amazing.

Michelle – It was just this moment between parents who had younger kids... That's the biggest struggle for them.

A lot of times parents feel they are alone, or don't have a social life or support system.

Michelle - That age group is difficult to find things to do that they want to do with people who accept them and look at them for their talents and their potential. Parents just need to hear that sometimes. That their kids are just as important to other people as they are to them.

Karen – And it stems from us coaches. We all have the same goals. Same things in common. They can call me in the middle of the night, I'd answer in a heartbeat. We are all such close friends. And that branches out to athletes and partners. We are a family.

Geri, how did you get involved with the Special Olympics?

Karen – Can I just say Geri is the best!? Cannot ask for a better coordinator.

The Nerd at the Bradley Playhouse

William Corriveau as Mr. Waldgrave and Remy Jacquet as Thor

PUTNAM — The Theatre of Northeastern Connecticut at the Bradley Playhouse presents The Nerd, which opens June 8 and runs for three weekends. This wonderfully crafted comedy will keep the audience laughing throughout the performance. It's been called "... a spring tonic of side-bruising laughter..."

The Nerd was written by Larry Shue, who is also known for the side-splitting comedies The Foreigner and My Emperor's New Clothes.

Willum Cubbert is an architect who has often told his friends about the debt he owes Rick Steadman, a fellow ex-GI whom he has never met but who saved his life after he was seriously wounded in Vietnam. In a letter Willum told Rick he would do anything for him, so he is delighted when Rick unexpectedly shows up at his apartment. It soon becomes apparent that Rick is a hopeless "nerd," a bumbling oaf with no social sense, little intelligence and less tact. Willum is finally at wits end after a string of hilarious disasters and is contemplating violence, which is staved off by the surprising "twist" end of the play.

The TNECT performance of The Nerd is co-directed by Diane Pollard and Jen Briere. Architect Willum Cubbert is played by Sean O'Godditt. His friends Tansy McGinnis and Axel Hammond are portrayed by Lindsay Taylor and Kaven Matyczynski. William Corriveau appears as client Warnock Waldgrave, with Sheila Harrington-Hughes as his wife, Clelia, and Remy Jacquet as son Thor. The title role of nerd Rick Steadman is played by Dave Ring.

The Bradley Playhouse is located at 30 Front Street in Putnam. For further information call 860-928-7887. Tickets may be purchased at the theater box office, either before the performance or at the door if available. Purchasing your tickets ahead of time is recommended. Performances are June 8, 9, 15, 16, 22 and 23 at 7:30 p.m. and June 10, 17 and 24 at 2 p.m.

Pomfret sponsors free solar workshop

POMFRET — The Town of Pomfret is hosting a free solar workshop on Monday, June 18, at 7 pm, at the Vanilla Bean Cafe, 450 Deerfield Road, Pomfret. Residents can learn about the Solarize Pomfret program, be introduced to the town's selected installer, Sunlight Solar, hear about financing options, and have a chance to learn if their house is good for solar.

Solarize Pomfret is a coordinated effort across the community, supported by the Town of Pomfret. Through a competitive selection process, the Town has selected Sunlight Solar as their solar installer. Sunlight Solar will provide the solar installations in Pomfret at special discount pricing in exchange for outreach and education from the Town. The sign-up deadline is Tuesday, Aug. 14. This is the third and final workshop being offered.

Homeowners who want to find out if their home is good for solar can go directly to Solarizect.com/Pomfret. More information about Solarize Pomfret by contacting Kate Donnelly – kdonnelly@smartpower.org.

Pomfret resident Walt Hinchman has solar on his home and supports the Solarize Pomfret program.

"I was a physics teacher and consequently was interested in alternative sources of power. I realized that my barn roof faced south and would probably be a good location for photovoltaic cells. When I went to Positively Pomfret Day five years ago I met a man who was "pushing" solar cells. He told me that I could have my house evaluated for free and that there were federal and state rebates to help with the cost of installation. My home evaluation was very positive – I would get 85 percent of the available sunlight without cutting any trees and I was told that 18 panels on my barn roof would supply my electric needs for a year," Hinchman said. "I was still hesitant; the total cost of the installation was high even with federal and state rebates. I was a senior and retired on a fixed income and wondered if I would live long enough to see my investment repaid. I went to a friend who had had photovoltaics for nearly 10 years for advice. He told me that he had spent no time or money on maintenance or repairs in that 10 years. More influential was his advice that I should not think in terms of payback time, but that I should decide if I could afford to invest the initial cost after rebates and then consider the savings in electric costs as return on my investment. In the stock market I could perhaps make 4-5 percent on my investment, but if that investment would cover my electric costs I could do considerably better. My experience in the four years that I have had photovoltaic cells on my barn roof is that I am making about 15 percent return on my investment.

Walt Hinchman's Pomfret house on Allen Road is solarized.

I'm still in good health and with luck I will live to see full payback on my investment, but in the meantime I am getting a very good return on that initial cost which is giving me well over $100 each month in spendable cash in my pocket. Studies in the west, where solar is more prevalent, is that a solar installation can add as much as $20,000 to the value of a home when it is sold. My installation on my barn roof shows clearly that it is an unobtrusive structure. It is on the west side of Allen Road in Pomfret in case anyone would like to drive by and have a look."

Locals honored at Boy Scout event

MANSFIELD — The Connecticut Rivers Council, Boy Scouts of America, held its third annual Evening of Champions Reception at the UCONN Alumni Center on May 31. The event was designed as a way for the Boy Scouts of America to recognize those community partners who are impact players in the Quiet Corner.

The Scouts seek to instill service, citizenship, and community involvement to its members, and with that in mind, recognizes others who do the same. The BSA presented awards to organizations and individuals from the area.

Woodstock Academy senior Anna Murphy and Head of School Christopher Sandford were among those locals honored. Murphy received the Young American Award which is “presented to a young person who has achieved excellence, shown outstanding leadership, or demonstrated noteworthy service to the community.”

Throughout her four years at The Woodstock Academy Murphy has been a leader in student government by organizing events for the school and the community. As leader of FRESH, a student-run non-profit at The Woodstock Academy, Murphy has been a catalyst for compassionate action. She has been instrumental in creating and sustaining the Caring Continues Food Pantry that provides food for nearly 75 families and veterans in Woodstock.

Sandford received the inaugural Elbert K. Fretwell Outstanding Educator Award. The award “was established by the Boy Scouts of America to recognize the valuable contributions that educators make in the lives of young people. The Boy Scouts of America’s mission is to prepare young people to make ethical choices over their lifetimes, and we recognize that teachers, staff, administrators, and others involved in educating young people are valuable partners in that mission. This award exists to recognize individuals who go above and beyond the call of duty to prepare the next generation to be positive contributors to our ever-changing world.”

During his five years at The Woodstock Academy Sandford has led the school through the implementation of the 1:1 technology program, the acquisition of South Campus, and has set high expectations for numerous other student-focused initiatives.

Craig Gates was recognized with the Outstanding Leadership Award for his dedication to local causes and for his consistent attitude and actions of caring for others. The award was presented by his longtime friend Gene Michael Deary.

Putnam Bank, represented by Thomas Borner, was presented with the Community Service Award for their significant contribution to improving the quality of life in Northeastern Connecticut by supporting numerous local charities and youth groups. The award was presented by Charlie Puffer.

The Arc Quinebaug Valley, represented by Susan Desrosiers, received the Community Organization Award for their continued support of numerous youth groups and, in particular, their significant role in providing much needed developmental services in the Quiet Corner. The award was presented by Arc board member Gene Michael Deary.

“We are extremely honored to receive the Community Organization Award from the Connecticut Rivers Council-Boy Scouts of America. It was great to see many community faces supporting not only our organization, but other community businesses and leaders that received awards as well. This was a proud moment for The Arc.” said Desrosiers.

The Arc provides programs for individuals with intellectual, developmental and other life-affecting disabilities. Vocational, residential, recreation, education, day and retirement services offer opportunities for people with disabilities to reach their goals and be integral members of their community.

History comes to life in Thompson

THOMPSON — A partnership between Thompson Middle School and the Thompson Historical Society provided parents, students and public visitors with a rare treat this week, as visitors recently saw historical figures come to life at the Thompson Middle School living wax museum in the Tourtellotte Memorial Room.

Working with the historical society, Thompson Middle schoolers researched local historical figures by examining the literature and historical documents, but also through interviews with local historians and experts. “Jane Ellison,” said ELA teacher Erica Groh, “actually had Mary R Fisher as a teacher, so it was great to hear her first-hand account of what life was like in the classroom in those days. She had all these little bits of information you can’t find in history books” According to Groh, Superintendent Smith has been very active in the community, and was very excited to see events and lessons around learning about the history of Thompson. “After speaking with Superintendent Smith I talked to the historical Society about the biggest figures in town. The historical society is a wealth of knowledge about those figures,” said Groh. “The historical Society helped us with primary and secondary sources. The students are having a great time, and in addition to being a great educational experience, this was a lot of fun. I think it will be a life-long memory for them It’s a great way to celebrate our town of Thompson,” Groh said.

Unforgettable June

The other day I forgot an appointment. I was looking forward to interviewing a prominent local restaurateur. She was happy to meet with me. Everything was all set. I stepped into my garden in the early morning, began working, and didn't look up for several hours. By the time I remembered the interview and called to apologize, she had gone about her business. I was mortified, worried briefly that I am losing my mind, and then chalked it up to the allure of a morning in June. The ephemeral beauty of June can't be ignored.

Summer is only ninety-one days and six hours running from the solstice until the equinox. We bask in the mistaken idea that it is infinite. We imagine that we will accomplish so much.

NANCY WEISS

We will plant a perfect garden, harvest juicy, ripe tomatoes, swim in silky water, read books under a shade tree, walk the beach, eat at roadside stands and through it all, not forget or ignore a single, important thing.

June fills up quickly with end-of-the-year obligations. Our grandson is moving from pre-K to Kindergarten. His school concert was a charming mix of songs with lots of hand motions and a brief beating of sticks to a simple tune. My heart went out to a tall girl who dissolved in stage fright. Her face became redder and redder until she could no longer hold back her tears. Finally, one of the teachers gently helped her from the stage. I hope she forgets the concert completely and next year stands up tall and sings, but her discomfort pointed to all the moments in life when something that doesn't suit us must be done.

Every graduation speaker tries to convey wisdom to their itchy audiences. It means so much to complete a course of schooling, but the actual ceremonies commemorating the feat are often tedious. The programs reflect a complicated mix of nostalgia, regret, relief, and anxiety about the future. The themes are always similar, but occasionally there are memorable moments. Remember the past, but embrace the future. Don't let fear hold you back are often repeated. My favorite speeches are from the students. They are certain they will never forget their school, their friends and their dreams. Of course there will be some slippage, but their thoughts are so positive and innocent as to inspire everyone who hears them.

Every summer we relive some part of childhood. Recently I visited the grounds of an abandoned homestead with an old friend. He and I had played on the property as children with a brother and sister, now lost to us.

The family lived in a converted barn with a tyrannical father and a sweet, long-suffering mother. Looking back, we realized that the family was deeply troubled, but what we remembered were birthday parties celebrated by swimming in chilly brook water, long bike rides and catching lightning bugs. In our memories we were school age children enjoying once again the charms of summer days spent doing whatever we wanted to do without much adult attention. We haven't forgotten the good parts.

My mother was an avid rose gardener. Every year she planted the newest variety of hybrid roses and then applied all the chemicals it took to keep them bug free. After she died the rose garden survived a few years of neglect and then was gone. I vowed never to grow roses, but I've changed my mind. I bought a David Austin rose bush. Two fragrant blossoms nod their seductive heads at me from the corner of my desk. They seem to insist that I forget inside concerns and appointments and go outside. June holds the possibility of being unforgettable, just remember the important things.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Boy Scout has more to say

To the editor:

I strongly disagree with Pomfret First Selectman Maureen Nicholson's clarification to my previous letter. It is not not my duty or responsibility to carry the box out of the Town Hall basement. I was not the one who carried it down, or asked for it to be carried down. The box was painted, and placed under the covered porch so that it would stay out of the elements and not rot, as to be available for use for many years. The weather has been cooperating for the past two months, with no snow. Weather is not an excuse for why it was in the basement for so long, as the weather has been warm, and shouldn't have been removed from the covered porch in the first place. Maureen also goes on to say she was "saddened and discouraged" I did not contact her again directly before going to the press. I found it apparent after my first meeting on April 9th, and the 36 days following up to my letter being written that there was little to no motivation for the box to be returned outside. I found my only way to get action from the administration was to go to the papers, which was successful in doing so, as the box appeared on the front porch of the Town Hall when my original letter was published. I believe a quote I heard from a Woodstock resident when she read my letter and Maureen's "clarification" is very important to hear. "Sad to see a letter to the editor is necessary to get the attention of the first Selectman." I believe it says a lot about this situation. I hope the box will stay on the porch, and be available for use by not only the Town of Pomfret, but anybody who needs to retire flags. I feel this is a strong issue in our local community, and I stand behind what I have said 100 percent.

Murphy should stop blaming the President

To the editor:

First, we very much enjoy your newspaper and the service it provides to the community. Thank you.

While we are not active letter writers or social media commentators, etc. we do feel compelled to say something about your headline article on June 1, 2018. The headline "Senator Murphy listens to vets" belies the main thrust of the story which is the Senator lecturing the vets. It appears the Senator was surprised about veterans' problems and lectured them that it was someone else's fault; and what better target than the president.

For the sake of full disclosure, our family did not vote for Senator Murphy nor did we vote for Trump or Clinton. That said, like the majority of voters who are unaffiliated, and probably many middle of the road democrats and republicans, we try to look beyond the partisan sound bites and spin for actual results.

Senator Murphy is on the U.S. Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Military Construction and Veterans Affairs, yet after hearing complaints directly from our local Vets he expressed surprise and said, "I've got some work to do...". Really? What have you been doing? Perhaps a good place to start working is to get federal employees working. The Senator can support the recent White House Executive Order requiring Department of Veterans Affairs professionals to spend less time on union matters (reported to be 100% of their time) and more time serving our veterans while on the payroll.

As for the Senator's rant about the president and lying, perhaps he has forgotten about the many lies of the former president, including one of the most famous "If you like your doctor, you can keep your doctor." If we use actual results as our measure, it appears the current president is making considerable progress in foreign policy. The Senator's claims that the US is withdrawing and sending mixed signals are just not supported by the facts. A prime example is the Administration's focus on China's unfair trade practices which Democratic leaders like Senator Schumer support saying, "He is on the right path". While we continue to see "unique" communications styles, and social media partisan jousting, voters are looking for results.

The one statement the Senator made that I do agree with is that it we need to ..." start calling a spade a spade." Well, Senator how about we start with you? What have you done for our Veterans? How about our economy? Using results as a yardstick, not much. Instead you appear very active in the press and social media blaming the president.

Let's all remember that our Senator was a key part of what happened in our state and that has not turned out that well, to understate the matter. Ditto for his time in Washington; as part of a ruling majority why didn't you fix all the things you now blame the current president for?

I hope the Senator will follow his own advice and get to work. I also urge your newspaper and others in the media to follow Senator Murphy's advice and "start calling a spade-a-spade". We need to hold our elected officials accountable for results regardless of party instead fanning the flames of partisanship.

Ruhlemann doesn't like Murphy article

To the editor:

On Friday June 1st an article appeared on the front page of the Villager Newspaper. The article was entitled Senator Murphy Speaks to Vets. Senator Murphy was a guest speaker at the Danielson Veterans Coffeehouse on Tuesday May 29th. The coffeehouse has a strong relationship with Senator Murphy and his staff. He was scheduled to update the veterans on issues he was working on and then to listen to them about their concerns on veterans issues. As the article states in the first paragraph Agent Orange, Prescription Drug costs through the V.A. and contaminated water at Camp Lejune North Carolina were discussed.

The Board of Directors and some veterans at the coffeehouse took exception to the article because to our eyes it did not separate what was said in the coffeehouse and what was said in an interview of Senator Murphy by the editor of the Villager. The article contains several statements reportedly made by Senator Murphy. These statements are defamatory in nature and whether I agree with the statements or not, the coffeehouse is made up of veterans of all political parties. We have Republicans, Democrats, Independents and even a couple of libertarians in our ranks. Because of this we do not allow Political discussions in the coffeehouse. Senator Murphy knows that and of course did not discuss his opinion of President Trump with the Veterans.

I had a conversation with Charlie Lentz, Editor of the Villager. In his opinion I should have realized that once I got to the part of the article where the statement "There's an enormous amount of frustration, begins with quotation marks, that this was in a personal interview between Senator Murphy and Editor Lentz. He advised me I should have known that this was now his interview with the Senator. Sorry I don't see that. It follows the previous two sentences where a veteran talked about his problems with agent orange and another veteran talked about the high cost of prescription drugs . Included in the quotation marks , Senator Murphy also makes reference to the fact that he is relatively new to the Senate and He is determined to expand access for Agent orange services. He made similar if not the exact statements to the veterans in the coffeehouse.

Editor Lentz told me I should have understood that once the quotation marks were there the article was about his interview. I did not get that. Apparently I should have understood that the article entitled Senator Murphy listens to vets was really more about Senator Murphy was interviewed by editor Lentz. Not that he listened to Veterans.

So Just to clarify, basically anything in the article after the first paragraph actually did not take place in the Danielson Veterans Coffeehouse but was apparently said in an interview with editor Lentz. I am sorely disappointed with the article as I feel it does a disservice to the veterans who were present that day.

Are you a puddle or a river

A mile or so from where I live, there is a nice spot called Heritage Way Park. I stopped by the other day to go for a walk to clear my head after a long week at work. A little way down the asphalt covered path, I came to the reservoir. At that point, the water spills over the dam into a stretch of the river that quickly narrows as it approaches what used to be several industrial mills.

This is not exactly a spot that draws National Geographic photographers, but watching the water cascade down to the surging mass is nevertheless enchanting. There's a fascinating power and energy to any river. Rivers are both life-giving and life-threatening; exciting and soothing; the life-blood civilization, yet responsible for washing away entire towns in a single flood. Water is at the same time a hypnotical and alarming substance.

Yet for all its magnanimous descriptors, water can also be just plain gross. As I turned from the river, I noticed some water on the other side of the path. Trapped in a shallow pool, was a nasty mess of stale looking water covered in slimy green film and decorated with random pieces of litter. In a way it was sad. It was a bit like looking at a caged lion. Water, Conqueror of 2/3 of the earth, Divider of continents, Feared invader of coastal towns, Guardian of oceans' mysteries, Home of earth's largest and most terrifying creatures, and Supplier of nutrients to civilizations for thousands of years. Truly, water is one of God's most versatile warriors and trusted stewards – a substance He often likened His Spirit to – yet, there it rested, a wasted, decaying, and gross quagmire.

As I marveled that, less than 50 feet from each other, two bodies of water could experience such starkly contrasting realities, I began to see this was an analogy. The river had a forceful urgency of purpose, bounding ahead with something akin to the enthusiasm of a child, yet not unlike the insistence of a person who is late to catch their flight. The sad little puddle had none of that. The only movement was the occasional ripple from a bug skimming across the water. The only perceivable life was a nasty green color. The only purpose seemed to be as a waste can for litter. If there was any change, it was a gradual, nearly unperceivable shrinking.

In a moment, I had a glimpse of two possible realities for my life. One was connected to a powerful and unlimited source. The other was cut off from any flow and was dependent on occasional rains or collecting runoffs from others. One was moving in a direction. The other had no discernable direction. One obeyed principles which both guarded its identity and guided it down the desired path. The other was listless with no discernable direction. One actively bubbled away impurities. The other collected trash.

Which do I choose to be? The lively river or the sad puddle? In John 7:38-39, Jesus said, "He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water. 39 (But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified.) God intends us to live as rivers, not as sad puddles.

How do you do it? Stay plugged into the source. Be governed by principles. Live intentionally. Stop every once in a while and ponder; am I behaving more like a lively river or a sad puddle?

Businesses in Danielson in 1957

It is always encouraging for those of us who are older to have a young person show interest in local history. Recently I had the pleasure of helping Ethan Stepney decipher cursive handwriting from letters written in the 1850's and later. He had carefully preserved them in plastic sleeves in a notebook. (More on that later in the column). His collection of memorabilia also included some small papers from even earlier dates (1798-1802). They were related to the store of Avery (Samuel) & Tracy (Thomas) at present-day 2 Canterbury Turnpike in Norwich, Connecticut. The earliest was a note from Benjamin Burnham, Jr. of Lisbon to let Samuel Clark have 10 to 15 shillings (charged to the account of Burnham). Now several interesting facts come to light from this small note. First is the monetary unit. Although the United States had broken away from England, it had still retained the monetary system of the old Mother Country--pounds, shillings, and pence. Secondly, in this instance the store was acting like a bank, dispensing small amounts of cash. Perhaps Samuel Clark was being paid for work he had done for Burnham. Keep in mind that it was the custom for individuals to keep a running account at a store and other place of business and then they would periodically "pay" for what they had purchased. Those of you who are older might recall doing that at local businesses prior to the days of credit and debit cards. Other requests/receipts were for items in stock in the store--molasses and salt. Remember that salt was not only for seasoning but also for preserving since there was still no refrigeration.

It was so good to see that Ethan was trying to take good care of his documents. Old paper is so fragile and easily deteriorates. I know many of you probably have treasured newspaper articles and letters from family members who have passed away. Lynn LaBerge, archivist for the Killingly Historical and Genealogical Society, uses archival boxes and tissue paper for storage of items that have been donated. Her "go to" book on preservation is Caring for Your Family Treasures by Jane S. and Richard W. Long. According to them, "The principal threats to family papers are similar to hazards faced by books. They are: exposure to certain chemical and environmental conditions, careless handling, mold, and animal and insect pests such as mice, silverfish, and cockroaches. Extremes in temperature or relative humidity--and frequent fluctuations in either--are harmful to paper documents... Light, especially direct sunlight, also energizes the harmful chemical processes... Excessive and improper handling is another threat to family papers. Letters and documents that have been repeatedly folded and refolded deteriorate rapidly and break on the fold lines. Oil left on paper from handling by many human hands discolors documents, and frequently used documents often get smudged with dirt or grit. Papers stored without periodic care, including inspections, may become an expensive delicacy for a variety of insects and rodents" (p.31). So carefully unfold old letters and papers and place them in archival sleeves to protect them for posterity. I use the archival ones from Staples. Just a note about reading faded documents...it is often easier to read a photocopy where the darkness of the writing can be adjusted. If the letter/paper is one that many people might want to read, photocopying is also an excellent way to preserve the original.

I've been reorganizing my overcrowded home history bookshelves and came across a photocopy Tom Bunning had given me of the 1957 Danielson Business Directory, which also included listings in Brooklyn. I thought you might find some of the categories interesting, and you certainly should remember some of the following local businesses. Aircraft Sales: Pierce Inc., Wauregan Road, Brooklyn. Aluminum Doors and Windows: K & R Aluminum Mfg Co., 44 Furnace Street, Windows of Windham County, 46 Water Street. Aluminum Siding: Windows of Windham County. Antenna Installation: Television: Oliver's Radio and Music Shop, 31 Main; Marion Pryor (no address given); Radio & TV Electronic Supply Co, 56 Maple Street. (In this age of cable television and satellite dishes it's easy to forget we once used rabbit ears and antennas to try to catch the signal). Perhaps some of you are too young to even remember them. Antiques: Frederick Appleton, Hartford-Providence Road, Brooklyn, The Salvage Shop, 14 Furnace Street; Felicia C. Terry, Hartford-Providence Road, Brooklyn; Treasures and Trash, Hartford-Providence Road, Brooklyn. Appraisers: Arthur's Real Estate, corner of Main and Broad Streets,

Bussiere Real Estate, 8 Center Street. Architects: Arnold Katz, 64 Reynolds. Armories: 6 Commerce Avenue. Artists-Commercial: Mariette Paine, 32 Morin Avenue. Asphalt Paving: E. Billington & Co., 103 Furnace Street. Attorneys-at-Law: Harry E. Back, Jr., 120 Main; T. Emmet Claire, 112 Main; Searls Dearington, 101 Main. Auctioneers: John C. Witter. Automobile Accessories and Parts-Retail: Benny's Auto Stores, 102 Main; Goodwill Stores, Inc., 102 Main; Wells Mobil Service, 129 Main; Western Auto Associate Store, 64-66 Main. Automobile Body Repairing: General Auto Body Service, Hartford-Providence Road, Brooklyn; Walt's Auto Body Works, 40 Lewis Blvd; Windham Auto Body Works, 1 Mechanic. Automobile Dealers--Commercial Cars and Trucks: The Del Chevrolet Sales Co., 2 South Main, Brooklyn "just across the bridge". How many of you are old enough to recall when the bridge over the Quinebaug went to South Main Street? Automobile Dealers-Passenger Cars: Carito Buick Co., North Main; Danielson Sales and Service, Inc., North Main; The Del Chevrolet Sales Company; Griffin Oldsmobile Co., Route 6 "4 miles beyond the Connecticut State Police Barracks on Route 6"; Santerre Motor Sales, Westcott Road; J. W. Smith, Mechanic. All but Carito Buick and Santerre Motor Sales were also listed as selling used cars. Automobile Garages: Cliff's Garage, 27 Academy; Master Auto Body Works, 37 Dyer, Route 12; Mazz Garage, 133 Quebec Square, Brooklyn; Rayland Garage, Hartford-Providence Road, Brooklyn. A few different businesses than those who sold automobiles were listed under Automobile Repairing: Ed's Fixit Shop, 32

Water Street; Henry's Friendly Service, 242 North Main; Jerry's Service Station, 2 Mechanic; Phil's Garage, 107 South Main, Brooklyn; Sorel's Garage, Hartford-Providence Road, Brooklyn, Union Street Garage, Union Street. I did not duplicate automobile dealers who also did repairs. I'm hoping this list from 1957 has taken you back to that bygone era when everything did not move at such a fast pace. Please share your memories of the above businesses by emailing me or by calling the Center.

Living well: encore careers and becoming your own boss

What is it that you have always imagined yourself doing? Are you headed in the direction of that dream? We know that your money is more than just an asset – it is an important resource to living the life you want. At Weiss & Hale Financial, we call the fulfillment of these dreams Living well, and we know that getting there is often not by mistake. Throughout this year, this column has focused on Planning and Investing well topics so that you can ultimately Live well. And with the summer months finally upon us, we thought there was no better time than now to focus on your dreams and aspirations. So, this June, we will be focusing on Living well in the context of self-improvement. We will focus on topics such as healthcare, starting a new hobby, or beginning a new career in retirement. Becoming your own boss is a common goal for anyone, and after years in your career you have gained enough knowledge to start a business and pursue something you have always dreamt about.

Over the past decade, Americans ages 55-64 have been at the head of the startup pack, launching more businesses than any other demographic. Armed with knowledge, skills, and professional networks cultivated in their previous careers, this new wave of baby boomer entrepreneurs is showing that they have what it takes to launch successful businesses later in life.

Why the business boom among older Americans? For many older entrepreneurs, retirement offers an opportunity to pursue lifelong passions and interests. After working in more structured environments for years, some boomers are attracted to the flexible lifestyle and supplemental income that running their own businesses can provide. And some are going into business for themselves out of necessity, having been laid off or fearing for their prospects.

Of course, entrepreneurship has both its benefits also face greater risks. If you may need a loan, the U.S. SBA can help with startups. For more info, go to www.weissandhale.com/articles and see "SBA" under related links.

Is entrepreneurship for you?

If you or someone you know is thinking about embarking on an encore career as an entrepreneur, it's important to weigh every aspect of the decision. As you evaluate this major life change, here are a few tips to keep in mind.

You can maximize your skills when you have experience in an industry. Starting a business in your area of expertise will allow you to capitalize on your existing network and experience, increasing your chances of success.

If you are going to do this it will take a lot of time and effort, but if you love what you do it will be worth it. Business ownership is hard work, so it's essential to be excited about the product or service you plan to offer. If you're 100-percent passionate about your business, you'll be better able to deal with obstacles and remain energized when the going gets tough.

Before you embark on this journey, you should conduct a self-assessment. Before moving forward with your business idea, be sure to gauge your risk tolerance. Looking back on your career, were you a risk taker? Do you consider yourself competitive and enjoy making decisions? Do you have the same drive that you did and pitfalls. According to the U.S. Small Business Administration, half of new businesses fail within the first five years. The good news for older entrepreneurs is that they're often better equipped than their younger counterparts to withstand the stress and hardships of business ownership. On the other hand, since they tend to have higher living expenses, greater family obligations, and less time to recover from failure, older entrepreneurs may when you first started working? Be honest with yourself about how much risk you're willing to take on and your level of motivation.

Rather than diving in head first, just test the waters. If you are worried about launching a business and then it is becoming a bad decision, try out the idea in your spare time before investing money or leaving another job. For example, if you want to open a restaurant, take a part-time job in a café to see if you like it as much as you think. If you're diving into an industry in which you don't have much experience, learn all you can by attending conferences and training sessions. Finding a mentor can also help you determine whether you're cut out for business ownership.

It is important to choose the right business model for your company. Franchises, sole proprietorships, and home-based or online businesses are often a great fit for older entrepreneurs because they're less expensive to start and offer more flexibility.

Pursuing a new business venture later in life can be risky, but it also presents the opportunity for great personal and financial reward. No matter your age, careful planning and the advice of a knowledgeable financial advisor can help pave the way to small business success.

Live well – Many people imagine themselves running their own business and being their own boss. If this is something you have dreamed of doing, you may be in the right position at a later stage in your life since you have experience and knowledge. ## Legally Speaking

by Kathleen Cerrone
Attorney at Law

THE PERSONAL SIDE OF LITIGATION

Should your lawyer decide that your case is worth pursuing, you may want to look beyond the legal aspects of your civil case and consider the effect litigation may have on your personal life. While your lawyer will be handling the details and following procedures, you will also be quite involved. Lawsuits are not only time-consuming and potentially expensive, they often lay bare facts that can cause stress. As a result, a lawsuit can be a divisive force that disrupts businesses, friendships, working relationships, community life, and even families. With so much at stake, one or both sides may become unhealthily obsessed with the case. These are all matters to carefully consider before embarking on a legal course.

HINT: Even though the vast majority of civil cases are settled out of court and never reach trial, the procedures leading up to settlement can be stressful in and of themselves. Launching a business? Writing a will? Facing a lawsuit? In any of these situations, you may consider hiring a lawyer to advise you or represent your interests. The first, and perhaps most important, quality is that you should feel comfortable with your lawyer. A comfortable and open relationship will allow you to share relevant information to your case openly, honestly, and completely.

Ag Days at Brooklyn Fairgrounds

BROOKLYN — The Brooklyn Fairgrounds were lively last weekend with antique tractor engines, a giant swap meet, working steers, livestock and crafts for Ag Days. And of course, the antique tractor pull. Celebrating agricultural traditions of yesterday, Ag Days has been entertaining families since 2003.

Steve and Dan Smith were making their way over to the livestock barn to see the cows, pigs, donkeys and baby chicks.

The livestock was a huge draw for Ag Days. Local farmers brought their unique cattle.

PUTNAM – Thompson resident Alecia Underhill spent a weekend painting horses at the Silver Circle Art Gallery, where her artwork is currently on display in downtown Putnam.

All of her paintings subject matter are of animals. More specifically domesticated animals. And even more specifically, portraits of domesticated animals.

“We have a connection with them that we don’t have with wildlife,” said Underhill.

Each of her animal portraits captures the personality of the subject, just as a painter would do with a portrait of a person. A snapshot that doesn’t only capture their likeness, but their personality.

“I want people to look at the work and wonder what they’re thinking and feeling,” Underhill said.

Instant Treeline has Quiet Corner roots

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

POMFRET — If there's anyone that knows how special and intimate it is to play at the Vanilla Bean, it's Will Leet, the lead singer and guitarist for Instant Treeline. Having played in New York City and beyond, the band — which is made up of Quiet Corner natives and UConn graduates — can't wait to be back in Pomfret on June 16 for their 8 p.m. concert at Vanilla Bean.

"This area is our old stomping ground in a way," said Leet. "People's parents, teachers, some kids who still live in the area post-graduation. This is a really good way to reach those people. This is the closest venue to UConn."

Leet, along with drummer Dane Scozzari, guitarist, vocalist and vibraphone player Tyler Campbell, and lyricist Chris Burns, played at the Vanilla Bean back in August of 2017, and are excited to bring their new, original songs back to the community.

"It's a really wonderful, supportive community," Leet noted. "Everyone came out and really listened. It's practically like a living room. Playing music in a casual setting, sharing our songs with people. It feels really special that way."

Instant Treeline are a folk rock band, with songs focused on storytelling. In fact, that's how it all began — back in college, Leet playing guitar and singing, Burns writing lyrics.

"We just found common ground with the songs we wrote, emotionally speaking,"

Instant Treeline.

Leet said.

Leet moved to New York City five years ago, and for a while he was playing solo gigs. But for Leet, it wasn't opening up enough doors. Having a band made everything more upbeat, and gave the songs a more positive vibe, said Leet. For Instant Treeline, it's all about encouraging the audience to be free and have a good time at their show.

Back in college, at 19, Leet and Burns wrote about their younger days. And they still play those songs today, including one of Leet's favorites, "Linger."

"It's a very nostalgic song to us. A snapshot into our 19 year old days, a lot less on our plate to worry about. We were just college kids. It sets the scene of the morning after a party, discussing and laughing about the night before while sitting on a porch, feeling the after-effects," Neet said.

Their new material will make up the majority of their upcoming show, songs off of a new EP they released that outlines the stages of a break up, from initial loss to reckless behavior soon after.

"Then to seeing your ex-lover again," said Leet. "Falling back into the relationship. Realizing that it's really over. That was a big theme of our last record. Chris and I had both gone through breakups at the same time, both dealing with that. We were really emotionally charged."

He's noticed that he and Burns have a lot more to say at 26, and the songs have just been "flowing out of them." It also helps that Leet isn't new to making music.

Leet got into playing the guitar back when he was 12 years old.

That's when he discovered the Beatles.

At the time he was taking piano lessons, but felt the guitar was "cooler." He also started writing songs at 14 years old, and has been writing ever since.

"It's definitely the number one way I express myself," he said. "At the end of the day, I'm just so passionate about playing and writing music. Even if it's just me strumming with a guitar alone in my living room, I just truly feel so connected to it. I just love it. It's what I want to do forever."

And there's something even more special about performing, said Leet, especially at a place like the Vanilla Bean. The intimate setting is perfect for their very personal songs.

"There's nothing like performing a song to a group of people that you know are really listening. Sharing that story. It can be a very cathartic experience," Leet said. "Performing live, I feed off of the energy I get from the crowd the most. Best performances are when I know the crowd is connecting in a way. That brings it to the next level. And I love playing with my bandmates. That's another beautiful thing — playing music with other people. A very organic thing."

First Fridays downtown street festival

PUTNAM — Celebrating the Quiet Corner's cultural heritage, June's First Fridays continued the "Mill Town Mosaics" theme with a night dedicated to the African American experience.

"The Connecticut Freedom Trail notes sites that embody the struggle toward freedom and human dignity and celebrates the accomplishments of the state's African American community," noted a press release, "including a location in Putnam."

With live music, great food, unique vendors, and fun crafts, First Friday continues to attract visitors to downtown Putnam from all over New England.

Redmen win playoff to capture state golf crown

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

HEBRON — “One shot at a time. Three deep breaths before every shot.” That was the mantra Killingly High coach Kevin Marcoux pitched to his golfers before a pressure-packed three-hole playoff to determine the winner at the CIAC Division III State Golf Championships on Monday at Tallwood Country Club. The playoff came on Tallwood’s first three holes.

“It’s a lot of pressure. Not only the pressure but it’s a huge mental letdown after we got done playing 18 holes, we were pretty much in the lead the entire round. Mentally we had to get right back on track quickly,” Marcoux said. “So we rallied the troops. We got together. The older kids looked at each other, they grabbed the kids in and pulled them in, and they said we’re going to get this done. Let’s go. Let’s get focused. We’ve got three holes, starting from scratch. Let’s go. We were ready to go.”

The Redmen apparently were ready — winning the three-hole playoff by two strokes over East Catholic of Manchester at Tallwood on June 4 en route to capturing the state crown. Junior Nolan Marcoux led Killingly with a 76 to tie

CT MUSTANGS WIN TOURNERY

BROOKLYN — The CT Mustangs 9U baseball team is based in Brooklyn and has players from six different quiet corner towns on its roster. The team won a tournament called the Memorial Day Blast held in Providence, R.I. on May 26-27. The tournament consisted of 10 teams from four different states and it was a great accomplishment for the boys of the Quiet Corner.

for seventh place overall in individual standings. Senior Dylan Deotte shot 77 to finish ninth and junior Jack Aitken and senior Ben Lovrien each shot 78 to tie for 11th overall. Sophomore Shayne Bigelow fired a 90. The top four scorers on each team are counted.

It was the second state championship in the last three years for the Redmen. After 18 holes on Monday both Killingly and East Catholic tied for first place with aggregate totals of 309. The Redmen won the three-hole playoff by a score of 52-50. Tyler Woodward, from Coginchaug, was the overall medalist with a score of 5-under-par 67.

Last year Killingly finished second at the state tourney. Two years ago the Redmen won the D-III state crown and twin brothers John and Drew Aitken were seniors then and the top players on the team. Jack Aitken is their little brother and Nolan Marcoux is the coach's son. Coach Marcoux wasn't surprised by this year's title. Marcoux said for the first time in school history the Redmen were the top-ranked team in D-III going into this year's state tourney.

"Two years ago certainly we had a ton of experience and some older kids. Last year we were younger, we still had a very successful year and we only lost one kid from that team going into this year. So going into this year we had really high expectations," Marcoux said. "Winning a state championship, obviously it was a goal of ours to win it. I'm not going to say that's what we expected to do. But it's not a surprise for sure. I knew we were going to be contenders. I knew it was going to take a special day and it did."

East Catholic has been Killingly's chief rival for several years in Division III and they play out of Tallwood Country Club. To equalize East Catholic's familiarity with the course Marcoux brought the Redmen out to Tallwood several times this spring for practice rounds.

"They're a great program for sure. It's friendly rivalry. They're great kids and they're very talented. We wanted to mirror their program. They're deep. We wanted to be deep. We wanted to have five kids who can play golf," Marcoux said. "Tallwood is East Catholic's home course so we were at a huge disadvantage as soon as we set foot on that course. To neutralize that we've actually been up there seven times, pretty much every weekend for the last seven weeks we've been up there practicing. We knew the course very, very well. We actually wanted to make it our strength, the knowledge of the golf course. And it certainly paid off today."

It was the second state title in three years for Killingly but Marcoux said championships don't come easily and the Redmen took nothing for granted this season.

"This is year-round. These guys are working year-round, playing a ton of golf in the summer, playing competitive tournaments in the summer. Playing a lot in the fall, and then even in the winter time they hit the weight room. They do all the things that they're supposed to do to get bigger, stronger, faster — I know that sounds funny for golf but it's true," said Marcoux, in his eighth season. "Lots and lots and lots of work. I get to see it from March to June but these guys are working year round."

CIAC Division III State Championship team results: 1) Killingly 309 (+21); 2. East Catholic 309 (+21); 3.

Coginchaug 326 (+38); 4. Tolland 333 (+45); 5. Lewis Mills 336 (+48); 6. Northwest Catholic 338 (+50); 7. Suffield 347 (+59); 8. St. Joseph 352 (+64); 9. Stonington 356 (+68); 10. ## Philip G. Peterson, 59

WOODSTOCK – Philip G. Peterson, 59, of Rte. 197, passed away unexpectedly at Day Kimball Hospital on May 28, surrounded by his wife and soulmate, Naomi Peterson and his loving daughter Candice Zamagni. Born in Putnam, he was the son of Glenn Peterson of Putnam and Johanne (Gagnon) Peterson of Thompson.

He was a graduate of Tourtellotte Memorial High School and went on to graduate from Harvard H. Ellis Technical High School. He was a man that held his friendships deep and close to his heart. He never made an acquaintance, but rather made life-long friends that he did everything with. His hobbies included deep sea fishing, clamming, scuba diving, snowmobiling and camping. With each one of these activities, it molded him into the person he was.

He was affectionately known as “Uncle Peaches,” Captain,” “Bud,” “Pops,” “Big Phil,” and “Naomi’s Best Friend.”

He was a toolmaker for over forty years and recently took up teaching at QVCC. He loved sharing his trade with his students. Sharing his knowledge in tool making or any other hobby he enjoyed fulfilled him.

His recent joys in life were watching his grandchildren, Mason and Lenora “NaNa” grow and change every day. The two of them brought such joy to his life.

He will be remembered as the rough, tough, giant Phil. But for those that knew his soft, loving, caring and compassionate side knew he had a heart of gold. He learned the art of storytelling from his “Pepe” the late Leo Gagnon.

He is survived by his wife of 36 years, Naomi Peterson of Woodstock; and his daughter, Candice Zamagni (the light of his life) and her husband Matthew of Woodstock. Matthew was welcomed by Phil into the family as his son and enjoyed all the time they spent together, sharing knowledge and wisdom that Philip forever cherished and was eternally thankful for walking his daughter down the aisle. It was the hardest thing to do, but knowing Matthew was going to cherish her made him happy. Philip was also survived by his sister, Kathy Langer and her husband David and their daughter, Emily Langer all of Thompson; his niece Chrysty Bolte of Kingston, New Hampshire; as well as nieces and nephews, Timothy Bates, Kelly Bates, Tammy Peterlin, Mike Bates, David Birch, Jennifer Skeens and Stephanie Neal. He was predeceased by his son, the late Joshua S. Peterson in 2007.

Since enlisting his care in 2011 to Dr. Murray Buttnr and then to Dr. Kristin Keller, he was forever grateful for their expertise medical care and guidance. He was not an easy patient, however, he loved them both as though they were family. He is saddened to know he will never make it to Alaska to visit the Great Bearing Sea.

Calling hours were held Saturday, June 2, in the Gilman Funeral Home and Crematory in Putnam, which was followed by a service in the funeral home. For memorial guestbook visit www.GilmanAndValade.com.

OBITUARIES

Marjorie Rogers Tyler, 101

CANTERBURY - Marjorie Rogers Tyler, age 101, of Canterbury, passed peacefully on Monday, May 28, in the presence of her family. Midge was born on February 15, 1917, in West Springfield, Massachusetts; she moved to Canterbury in 1939 with her husband William F. Tyler, Jr. Bill and Midge started their family and raised pigs, chickens and a few cows on a small farm during the Depression. By the 1950s they began a dairy farm with their sons which is still in operation today as Ledgebrook Farm. Midge loved the farm life and gatherings with family from near and far. When asked what her secret was to living to 100 she often responded with a warm smile and a twinkle in her eye: "... the farm way of life." Midge worked on the farm assisting with feeding the calves until she was 95 when she decided it was time to retire from the physical labors of farm life. She continued to participate in the "daily business chatter" until her passing. Midge was a gentle, elegant and graceful woman ... she will live forever in the hearts of her family and friends.

Midge was predeceased by her husband Bill and son Daniel R. Tyler. She is survived by two sons and daughter in laws; Charles H. Tyler and Marie Tyler; William F. Tyler III and Catherine Tyler; three grandchildren, Mary Tyler, Stephen Tyler his wife Kristie; Jamila Tyler and her husband Nawfal Ezzagaghi; and five great grandchildren, Aidan Tyler, Addison Tyler, Tristan Tyler, Khawla Ezzagaghi and Omar Ezzagaghi.

A "Celebration of Life" service will be held on Friday, June 8, from 6 to 7pm at Tillinghast Funeral Home, 433 Main Street, Danielson. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in her memory to the First Congregational Church in Canterbury, Connecticut. tillinghastfh.com
