Killingly High's Bowen notches 600th victory

2ND WINNINGEST COACH IN STATE HISTORY

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

DAYVILLE — Rich Bowen never had a master plan. After wrestling for Killingly High and graduating from the school in 1978 he went on to compete for Rhode Island College. With college diploma in hand the sport still pulsed through his veins so he returned to his alma mater to assist Redmen head coach Howard Moody — his high school mentor. Bowen had no idea Moody was on the brink of moving on. But the coach departed and Bowen — 25 years old — wrestled with what turned out to be a life-changing decision. "I wasn't expecting that he was going to move on but then when he did I said 'Well, I'll give it a shot and see what happens,'" Bowen said. "I was real young and just getting going with my life. It's really like a little escape each day. You're working hard, teaching the kids. That's what it was early on. I never really thought about it. Just kept doing it." He's been doing it for the last 33 years. Bowen gained his 600th career victory as head coach for Killingly High last Saturday when the Redmen won five matches including a 44-30 victory over Foran, which was Bowen's milestone win. "I never would have thought I would have been coaching this long for sure," Bowen said. "It just seemed to keep going. It's the families and I've had some real great assistant coaches helping me out through the years. Everybody seems to want to help and keep the success going." Bowen said 600 is just a number — the real rewards are less tangible. "Probably my biggest motivation is seeing the kids that

Sock it to me

PUTNAM — Last year, the Curtis D. Heath Memorial Sock Drive collected over 1,300 pairs of socks for foster children throughout the state. This year, they're already at 1,200, but are hoping to reach their goal of 1,500 pairs by the end of February.

On Feb. 15, from 6 am to 9 am, representatives of the Curtis D. Heath Memorial Sock Drive will be stationed in Putnam, collecting more socks for the cause.

"Most kids that are placed in foster care only have the clothes on their back and they always seem to be missing socks," said Jaime Heath.

This is important, he said, because you need socks to keep warm, especially in the winter. Children also need them for school athletics. It's a very small cost item, said Heath, that goes so far to help these children.

The Heath family is very passionate about this cause because of a very unique family history.

"We are a third generation family of foster care and adoptions," he said. "My mother had 11 children. After she had her 11 children and divorced my father, she married my step-dad. Together they additionally fostered over 50 children. The last two were adopted by them."

Heath's sister, Joyce, is mother to Kacey, who was a foster parent for a short while before adopting her daughter Kelsey. In honor of her adoption, they decided to start col-

QVCC hosts Narcan seminar

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DANIELSON — Thanks to a Connecticut Healthy Campus Initiative grant funded by the Department of Mental Health & Addiction Services, Quinebaug Valley Community College will be hosting two Saving Lives with Narcan training seminars.

The purpose of the grant is to provide awareness, education and resources surrounding opioid use, said counselor Satina Salce-Conforti.

One component of that is the narcan training. Administering Narcan to an individual overdosing on opioids will save their life. When used in high doses, opioids, like heroin and prescription medication, can slow down breathing to the point of oxygen deprivation. Narcan binds to the opioid receptors in the brain in place of the opioid drug, temporarily reversing the overdose.

"Right now I think we can say that opioid use and overdoses are an epidemic overall. We can't deny that," said Salce-Conforti.

Training participants will receive an actual Narcan kit to take home with them while supplies last. They will learn how to administer Narcan with help from the Southeastern Regional Action Council, who will discuss the purpose of narcan and how to use it.

The vision of the Connecticut Healthy Campus Initiative, according to the official website, is to "foster a campus-community culture that reduces occurrences of high-risk alcohol and other drug use and its related consequences among college students on Connecticut's campuses."

The action plan they will implement at universities across the state is to discover what services are lacking, provide training for campuses on early prevention, and "unify voices to better advocate for effective statewide campus prevention strategies."

Universities and colleges are important places to provide these programs and training, said Salce-Conforti, because college students are "not exempt from drug addiction."

Whether they are affected by their own personal use, or by an addicted family member or friend, college students need support to deal with the continuing opioid crisis across the country.

"We are a community organization," said Salce-Conforti, "and we're central within the community. This is a program that is open to not only students, but people in the area."

Saving Lives with Narcan will be held on Feb. 12 from 6-7 p.m., and Feb. 15 from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.. It will take place on the QVCC Danielson campus in Room W102. Register by calling (860) 932-4089.

Hope Barton, the President of NECTAG, at work on a new fiber art piece.

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

BROOKLYN – It's Hope Barton's mission to inspire, engage and unite local artists as President of the Northeastern Connecticut Artist Guild, an organization that provides workshops, speakers and exhibits to their members.

A people person and avid event organizer, Barton has been the President for the past two years. The passionate artist spoke about her love for NECTAG and the artists it has brought together over the years.

What does the president of NECTAG do?

As president, I run the monthly meetings. I find the speaker, an artist who talks at our meetings. I think that's important. I love getting to know artists in the area, and I love having them speak about how they got started and what inspires them. It's just inspiring to see the different art in our area. There are so many talented people in our area.

What got you involved with the local art scene?

I'm not an artist in the traditional sense. I started out as a traditional quilt maker. I had friends in the guild and decided I'd join to learn more about art, and I started making fiber art quilts. It's been a great way to learn more.

What got you interested in making quilts?

I wanted to make things for my daughter. It seemed so practical at the time.

What made you decide to get started with fiber art?

I just got restless with traditional quilt making, using other people's patterns. This was more about making my own designs. It's art. It's not just quilting. It's creative and interesting and it has problem solving. You're trying to show something important...

How do you convey that through quilting?

One of my pieces is about how music makes me feel. I had dyed a piece of music fabric. I used that as a dancing figure. It just has exuberance coming out from it. That's how music makes me feel. I just love it.

For you, what is the importance of expressing yourself through art?

I have always done creative things. Always. And it's an important part of me. This is something I've done for a long time now. It just fulfills this need to be creative.

What's the importance of NECTAG to this area?

It's wonderful to have NECTAG. It's a supportive group. It's a chance for new or returning artists – people who have been busy working careers all their life – to exhibit. To be seen. To talk to other artists. To take workshops. It's all about being in a supportive community and helps you get involved in art.

A quilt inspired by Allen Hill Tree Farm.

"Feeling the Music," done with paint, glue and quilting.

What has NECTAG meant for you personally?

To me, it's been a social and learning thing. I just enjoy it. For so many years, when I was working, meetings were so boring. But these meetings aren't boring. They're so fun.

BY MONICA MCKENNA
FOR THE VILLAGER

EASTFORD — The temperature in the center of Eastford warmed up to 4 degrees Fahrenheit, but it was too late. Scramble the Duck had minutes earlier predicted six more weeks of winter. A crowd of 60 hardy folks in fur hats and down coats turned out on Feb. 2 to hear the weather predicted — not by a fussy ground hog in Punxsutawney, Pa., but by a resident Peking duck named Scramble. Scramble's family, the Torcellinis, had long been challenged by the inaccuracies of Punxsutawney Phil.

They called on Scramble to offer a New England alternative. This year was Scramble's fifth year of predicting the next six weeks of weather and he was up for the occasion, having been 100 percent accurate for four straight years (versus Punxsutawney Phil's 39 percent). The Torcellini boys — Micah, 15, Isaac, 13, and Benjamin, 9 — dressed in frock coats, black ties and stovepipe hats as they presided in Eastford's annual "Duck Day" ceremony. Micah's formal proclamation was poetry. Was Spring on the way or would Winter last another six weeks? "It was the best of times, it was the worst of times," said Micah. "(Previous) weather revelations were conceded to Punxsutawney, yet, in the great state of Connecticut, the word was becoming loud and clear that groundhogs were inferior prognosticators."

Then Scramble emerged from a model of the Ivy Glenn building, waddled and quacked down the red carpet, stood on his podium, spread his wings and saw his shadow.

Isaac interpreted Scramble's message. "Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! My shadow I see! The snow will fall, wind will blow, plows will plow, mowers won't mow. You may have wanted early spring, but the answer is plain: Six more weeks of winter," said Isaac.

State Representative Pat Boyd of Pomfret, (50th District), State Senator Dan Champagne of Vernon (35th District) joined Eastford's First Selectman Jacqueline Dubois, Selectman Terry Cote, grown-ups, children and two dogs. Folks came from as far away as Gloucester, R.I.

Melanie Eisele of Pomfret Center bundled up Ezra, 6, Caleb, 10, and Ruth, 9, and dog, Benjie. "My children are excited to know we'll have more snow because we all enjoy sledding," said Eisele.

"I met Scramble when he came to school in a wagon, so I wanted to come," said Aaron Minor, 7, from Eastford. "What a fun, feathered annual tradition this is in Eastford," said Champagne. "Scramble the Duck is a 'celebriduck', and he didn't 'quack' under pressure."

"On this bitter cold morning, I learned from the boys that Scramble keeps warm from his down feathers and that duck feet are not bothered by the cold weather," said Cote.

Keep the long-johns out. It's going to a long, cold winter. If you missed Duck Day or any of Scramble's recent television appearances, go to: scrambletheduck.org

Thompson Congregation Church receives gift

THOMPSON — Thompson Congregational Church, United Church of Christ recently surpassed the $200,000 mark in gifts and pledges in its restoration campaign.

A disastrous fire in late December, 2016 burned the sanctuary, forcing the congregation to relocate services to the Marianapolis Chapel. Since then, new professional leadership at Thompson Congregational, United Church of Christ in the person of the Reverend Dr. Greg Gray is bringing a new spirit to the growing congregation along the partnerships with Thompson Ecumenical Empowerment Group (TEEG), the Thompson Public School System and various historical societies.

Gerardi Insurance Services Inc. recently pledged a donation that allowed the Vision 2020 Restoration Campaign to surpass $200,000 in gifts and pledges last week according to Avery Tillinghast, Campaign Coordinator.

“The Putnam based firm provided the largest lead gift of the corporate division to date,” Tillinghast said.

The campaign continues to seek funds from many sources to restore the Thompson Congregational Church on Thompson Hill.

“We greatly appreciate the support of Ed and Matt Desaulnier, owners of Gerardi Insurance for continuing their giving to charities that require the funding necessary to continue and enhance their respective missions in the Quiet Corner”, said Gray. “We are proud to be a recipient of such important support.”

Killingly Housing Authority gets federal funds

KILLINGLY — U.S. Congressman Joe Courtney (Ct: 2nd District) announced on Jan. 31 that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has awarded a combined $1,907,511 in grant funding to nine not-for-profit entities and public housing authorities located in eastern Connecticut under its Continuum of Care program. Killingly Housing Authority will receive $120,916 to operate the Danielson Wrap Around Housing Program and the Putnam Wrap Around Housing Program

“Increasing access to quality, affordable housing is crucial when so many folks are facing uncertain financial futures,” Courtney said. “This new federal funding will help these organizations to keep programs up and running, and to improve the quality of life for many residents in eastern Connecticut.”

In addition to the Killingly

Housing Authority, the announced grant awards will be dispersed amongst eight other organizations across eastern Connecticut. Alliance for Living (New London) will receive $149,964 for their supportive housing program; Bethsaida Community (Norwich) will receive $90,978 to operate the Flora O’Neil Apartments, which serve as permanent supportive housing for homeless women with disabilities; Holy Family Home and Shelter (Willimantic) will receive $130,349 to operate “Homes Plus,” its first supportive housing program for 6 families and 4 individuals; New London Homeless Hospitality Center, Inc. will receive $38,157 to operate the NLHHC Renewal Project; Safe Futures, Inc. (New London) will receive $51,596 to operate the Phoenix House Transitional Housing Program; Thames River Community Service Inc. (Norwich) will receive $195,983 to operate the Thomas River

Family Program; Thames Valley Council for Community Action (Jewett City) will receive $696,464 to operate the Homeless Collaborative Network; and Windham Regional Community Council (Willimantic) will receive $433,104 to operate Project Haven, and Project Home.

HUD’s Continuum of Care program is designed to promote communitywide commitment to the goal of ending homelessness; provide funding for efforts by nonprofit providers, and State and local governments to quickly rehouse homeless individuals and families while minimizing the trauma and dislocation caused by homelessness; promote access to and utilization of mainstream programs by homeless individuals and families; and to optimize self-sufficiency among individuals and families experiencing homelessness.

Acorn Adventure rescheduled

DANIELSON — The Last Green Valley’s Acorn Adventure, Winter Birds, scheduled for Feb. 2 at Hopeville State Park, 929 Hopeville Road, Griswold, was postponed and has been rescheduled. A pre-hike of the park on Feb. 1 revealed challenging conditions, which combined with the predicted cold temperatures on Feb. 2 necessitated the postponement.

The Acorn Adventure has been rescheduled for 10 a.m. Feb. 23. However, TLGV will wait until next week to determine whether the adventure must also be relocated. During the Acorn Adventures we will search for the winter birds that call The Last Green Valley National Heritage Corridor home and we will make pine cone bird feeders to take home and hang in your yard. The birds will appreciate the snacks. Acorn Adventures are sponsored by Putnam Bank.

Hayes, Dauphinais fight QVCC consolidation

DANIELSON — State Representatives Anne Dauphinais (R-44th District: Killingly), Rick Hayes (R-51st District: Putnam, Thompson) are a part of a Republican drafted bill that would seek to prohibit the merger or closure of an institution within the Connecticut State Colleges and Universities without the review and approval of the General Assembly.

The act, HB6474, seeks to remove the power for school consolidation and closing across the Connecticut State Colleges and Universities from the Connecticut Board of Regents for Higher Education without legislative review and input.

State Rep. Dauphinais said that she has heard from several people affiliated with Quinebaug Valley Community College in Danielson who have expressed serious concern over the future of the school.

“We wanted to be a part of this bill to allow our voices and those of the communities we serve to be heard and to protect the great work QVCC has done in educating people in northeast Connecticut,” Dauphinais said.

QVCC has one of the largest endowments in the community college system. These endowments help fund scholarships and programs for the school. The future of these endowments should the Board of Regents seek to consolidate schools would be in doubt

State Representatives will be able to track and offer input during the legislative process. They will also be able to alert the public of the progress and opportunities for the public to offer comment on this legislation.

“I couldn’t be more committed to protecting QVCC and I will continue to monitor bills that affect our communities and will work hard for the people of Putnam, Thompson, and Killingly,” said Rep. Hayes.

The bill currently sits in the Higher Education & Employment Advancement Committee awaiting review and debate

Pomfret looks to identify its brand

John Filchak, NECCOG Executive Director, addresses Pomfret citizens on Jan. 30.

POMFRET — Pomfret’s Economic Planning and Development Commission is undertaking a branding study in conjunction with Northeast Connecticut Council of Governments (NECCOG). The initial focus group met on Jan. 30 at Pomfret Community Senior Center.

At this meeting, John Filchak Executive Director of NECCOG discussed the purpose of a branding study and the process the townspeople will be using to develop Pomfret’s brand and possible subsequent marketing plan that will be used to help Pomfret grow through the coming years. The entire process should take about four months with both scheduled meetings and online surveys for members of the Pomfret community to take part in and share their ideas. This will allow for the greatest cross section of opinions to create the best possible plan for the town. Geo Bee at Woodstock Middle School

WOODSTOCK — The National Geographic Geo Bee was held at Woodstock Middle School on Jan. 29. The Geo Bee was sponsored by the Woodstock Educational Foundation for the children attending the middle school. This was the 31st year that the Geo Bee was held for students in 4th through 8th grades. Thousands of schools are competing across the United States and the five U.S territories. Also competing are Department of Defense dependent schools for all over the world. The Champion of this year's Geo Bee, Ethan Pokorny, 8th grade, will advance to the next level of competition, a qualifying test to determine state competitors. Up to 100 of the top test scores in each state become eligible to compete in the state Geo Bee. The winners of the State Geo Bee receive an all expenses paid trip to National Geographic Headquarters in Washington D.C. next May to participate in the Geo Bee national championship. They will compete for cash prize, scholarships and an all expenses paid Lindblad expedition to the Galápagos Islands aboard the National Geographic Endeavor II.

New class for Putnam Wall of Honor named

PUTNAM — Putnam High School's Wall of Honor Committee has released the names of the five individuals who will make up the Class of 2019. The award honors PHS graduates or those who have provided service to the school through demonstrated spirit, leadership, high standards of citizenship and service to their community. They will be inducted on Saturday, April 27.

This is the third class of inductees and includes: Steven Bousquet, class of 1964; Craig Gates '80; Harvey Grinsell '45; Kevin Kennedy '86; and Steven Townsend '71. Bousquet and Grinsell are posthumous inductions.

Steve Bousquet was a four-sport athlete at Putnam High before graduating from the University of Connecticut. He returned to the community where he established himself as a successful businessman, valuable citizen who served as alderman, received numerous honors and awards for his many achievements, contributed to many local service projects, and spearheaded many fund raising efforts. Craig Gates' numerous philanthropic efforts have flown under the radar. His love of the Putnam community has resulted in the establishment of foundations on behalf of deceased relatives, and during the Christmas season he has truly become a Secret Santa to many.

Dr. Harvey Grinsell, a graduate of Tufts Medical School, touched the lives of many children during his lengthy practice in Putnam. He was founder and director of the Day Kimball Pediatric Center, the first know hospital based program of its kind in the nation. His early intervention programs for infants and youth resulted in many meritorious awards both at the state and local levels.

Gen. Kevin Kennedy is Director of Cyberspace Strategy and Policy in the office of the Secretary of the Air Force. After receiving his commission from the Air Force Academy in 1990 his experience includes service on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Office of the Secretary of Defense. He has logged more than 3,400 flying hours including combat missions over Afghanistan.

Steve Townsend's family name adorns the Emergency Center at Day Kimball Hospital due to a significant family contribution. More recently, he and his wife Marge have just established an annual scholarship fund at QVCC to be awarded to Putnam High School graduates.

In an effort to recognize outstanding individuals who have a connection with Putnam High School and to keep alumni connected with the school and community the Putnam Board of Education formed an exploratory committee four years ago, and the result was the formation of a Wall of Honor. The board continues to support the efforts of the committee and this year the actual "Wall" will become a reality as it occupies space in the corridor adjacent to the gymnasium.

This class will bring the total number of honored individuals to 15. While choices have been difficult and tough decisions have had to be made, the committee feels that those honored to date have all proven themselves in their respective fields and their communities, and is a positive sign of the quality education that has been provided by Putnam High School through the years.

Members of the Wall of Honor Committee include: Nelson King, Chair, Lee Konicki, Vice Chair; Susan Johnston, Secretary; Jeanne Benoit, Treasurer; Sandra Ames; Robert Garceau; David Gaudreau, James Gothreau; and Carrie Riendeau. Superintendent William Hull, Carrie Blackmar and Edward Perron represent the Putnam Board of Education.

Wyndham Land Trust expands four preserves

WOODSTOCK — The Wyndham Land Trust expanded four properties in the Quiet Corner at the end of 2018, closing out one of the most productive years in their 43-year history. The Long Pond Preserve in Thompson increased to 100 acres thanks to the acquisition of 24 acres formerly owned by Scott McWilliam. The property is mostly dry ground with many very large white pine trees, and the land trust hopes the site will become a nesting site for the Bald Eagles that frequent Webster Lake. A hiking trail forms a nice loop around the northern edge of the pond. A 27 acre-parcel, formerly owned by the late Ron Blain, expands the Robbins Preserve in Thompson along its southern boundary to 155 acres. Whip-poor-wills, an uncommon nesting bird in the state, rely on the forest in this parcel to breed each year. The property also includes undisturbed frontage on the Five Mile River.

The addition of 152 acres, situated in both Thompson and Putnam, expands the Lower Pond Preserve to 280 acres. The property was formerly owned by the Orr family. The land trust now protects the entire shoreline of Lower Pond. The new parcel contains an Atlantic white cedar swamp, white pine/oak upland forest, a grassy marshland, and a small stream. The property holds a high concentration of endangered plants and insects associated with Atlantic white cedar swamps. Ospreys nest in the dead trees that line the swamp.

“The late Dick Booth, president of the land trust for many years, was very aware of the ecological significance of Lower Pond,” said Andy Rzeznikiewicz, who spearheaded the recent acquisition of the property. “Dick focused much of his energy on protecting the entire pond. He would be so happy to know that we have finally accomplished that goal.”

Finally, the land trust acquired an additional 18 acres from the Orr family, which expands the Chafee Preserve in Putnam to 47 acres. The Chafee Preserve was donated to the land trust in 1977 by Joseph Chafee and was the first property protected by the land trust. The Wyndham Land Trust now protects more than 100 parcels in ten towns in Northeast Connecticut totaling over 4000 acres. The land trust can be reached by emailing info@wyndhamlandtrust.org or by calling (860) 963 2090. More information can be found at www.wyndhamlandtrust.org. lecting socks three years ago.

Last year Heath's brother, Curt, passed away.

“This is a project near and dear to my heart, and our entire family's heart. The day of the sock drive, on the 15th, we're all coming together for this common cause,” he said.

On Feb. 15, from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m., representatives of the Curtis D. Heath Memorial Sock Drive will be stationed at local radio station WINY in downtown Putnam collecting socks.

According to Heath, they are looking for socks of all sizes and shapes, from infant sizes to full grown, male and female. A lot of times they receive a lot of socks for infants and babies, but don't get as many donations for older children.

“We've had people donate one package with 10 pairs in it,” said Heath. “We also just had a family donate 175 pairs.”

Curtis D. Heath, who passed away last year.

There are also boxes set up at St. Joseph's School (where Kelsey attends school) and some local businesses.

“I believe we'll definitely reach our goal,” said Heath.

Who's in for term limits?

I've finally had enough. Watching our egotistical, overpaid politicians continue to squabble like children, while getting absolutely nothing done has finally set me over the edge. Nothing gets accomplished, only reelection campaigns with empty promises, followed by years of political gridlock. We can no longer accept this, it's high time that we all unite together to do something about it. Term limits. We need a grassroots effort to insure our future, by taking care of this problem at its root cause. The political structure of our country needs to transform from career politicians, lobbyists, pacs, etc. to leaders who will represent our interests fairly, free from the money and power that corrupts them. No more life-long pensions, free health care, short work weeks. In addition, we must insure that they work across the aisle and hold them directly accountable for inaction; after all it is our money that they continue to waste. No balanced budget, they're out. Government shutdown, no pay. The needs of the country must be first and foremost put ahead of reelection desires. Major issues facing our country such as universal health care, or needless involvements in useless wars must be put before the people of this great country. The people who pay the bill in this country have no say anymore, while these squabbling egomaniacs do nothing to fix our broken immigration system, spiraling deficits, failing schools and declining infrastructure. Put your partisan politics aside, and throw the bums out. We must take our nation back and once again make our voices heard. The political hierarchy will not like this, but who cares. It's time that we demand accountability from our national leaders, state representatives and stop listening to a corrupt media that distorts the entire narrative. Maybe we are at fault for allowing this to go on as long as we have, but it not too late to start a national movement for term limits. Who's in?

Garbage clutters our roads

Our roads "show off" our town - or they should! I don't remember our roads being so cluttered with garbage as they are this year. Maybe it's 'cause there is no snow to hide the debris; yet I just can't believe folks can throw non-biodegradable stuff out. In my area alone, along a span of 200 there are more than 10 plastic Dunkin Donut cold coffee containers with their tops and straws! Along another area on a well-traveled road are bags of used diapers - six or more! - not to mention "nips" by the dozen; garbage bags that have fallen out of trucks going to the landfill - get the picture?

Why? We get all involved with "causes" but we can't take care of our local area - or folks going to and fro to their jobs and use the roadside as a garbage dump?! How about a little garbage bag in your vehicle? And then empty that into your garbage bag at home?

Please folks - think of our environment - our neighborhoods! At least clean up your property borders for a start! Thanks so much.

Seven tax resolutions for 2019

FINANCIAL FOCUS
 JIM ZAHANSKY
 INVESTMENT ADVISER

If you are thinking about tax season already, you are not the only one. Tax efficiency is a part of any investment strategy and it is important to consider how it will fit into your strategic financial picture. This, along with recent tax filing changes due to the Tax Cut & Jobs Act (2017), may necessitate some extra planning. Our unique and strategic process considers your specific circumstances and builds a plan to help you achieve your financial goals with the end goal in mind: "Living Well."

Whether you have thought about it yet or not, follow along for the month of February to hear tax tips to help you Plan Well. Invest Well. Live Well.

If you're making New Year's resolutions, here's one for the top of your list: I won't complain about a surprise tax bill or lower refund if I neglected to check my withholding.

The 2017 tax overhaul made major changes to the code, such as limiting the deduction for state and local taxes and greatly expanding the tax credit for children under 17. The Treasury Department required employers and pension payers to lower withholding for 2018. This change allowed taxpayers to get the benefits of lower rates right away.

The problem here is that the broad-brush withholding changes don't accurately reflect each individual's situation. Some people who have counted on a large tax refund in the past to pay bills for holiday spending or big-ticket items will find they won't get one.

After the changes, the Internal Revenue Service posted a calculator to help people fine-tune their withholding or estimated taxes. But only a few million filers have used it, and more than 150 million individual returns are expected for 2018.

I will resist the urge to panic about the new limit on state and local tax, or SALT, deductions.: The tax overhaul capped SALT deductions at $10,000 per return, and the limit applies both to single and married joint filers.

This is a radical change, but it won't boost taxes for many filers as much as they fear. That's because under prior law the alternative minimum tax, or AMT, often eroded or erased the value of SALT deductions for taxpayers earning between about $200,000 and $500,000.

As a result, says economist Joe Rosenberg of the Tax Policy Center, the new SALT cap is likely to affect two other groups most. They are filers earning less than about $200,000 who took SALT deductions in the past but weren't subject to AMT, and high earners making about $750,000 or more who weren't subject to AMT in the past and got more value for their SALT write-offs.

I will check for errors on tax forms when they arrive: Employers typically mail or post W-2 wage forms by the end of January. The 1099 forms reporting interest, investment income and miscellaneous income often arrive later, and sometimes they're corrected after that.

Do yourself a favor: Check the forms right away to make sure they're correct—especially basic information such as ID numbers. If there's a mistake, you'll have time to get a corrected form and bypass painful back-and-forth with the IRS.

I won't bring my tax preparer a shoebox full of unsorted records on April 10: If you do, you'll likely be charged a higher fee or even turned away. Tax preparers often say they'd rather work on a partial file sooner than a complete file later.

Another preparer pet peeve is conflicting records, such as providing one total for repairs to rental property plus a list of the repairs that adds up to a different number. Finally, don't call after the return has been filed and say, "I just found one more donation for $50. Can you get that in?" That would mean filing an amended return.

I will be vigilant about tax security: Tax-related phishing scams reported to the IRS surged 60% in 2018 after declining for three years. Attempts are mostly via phone scams and email, and some of them are clever.

The IRS doesn't send out unsolicited emails or ask people for PINs, passwords, or similar information for credit-card, bank or other accounts. Also, the IRS won't demand credit- or debit-card numbers over the phone or threaten to have you arrested by local police, according to a spokesman for the agency.

I will understand the taxes on investments before I buy in: If you put that mutual fund with a winning streak in a taxable account rather than a tax-sheltered retirement account, you could wind up owing unexpected tax bills.

Those gold coins you're eyeing? They're "collectibles," and long-term capi-

Can I Ever Just Get What I Went For?

Sean and I had just woken up, and decided to head out for Sunday morning breakfast, then planned to run some errands. I went to put my favorite week-end-jeans on, only to find the seat had a big rip. "When did this happen, and how long have I been unknowingly running around with a big hole in my pants?" I asked Sean. He answered over his shoulder, "I didn't notice," not bothering to look at the five-inch hole in the butt of my jeans. Then he put on his t-shirt with the rip in the armpit, and buttoned up his flannel with the torn pocket. No shock there. Last time I folded his laundry; I tossed out seven ripped socks and an underwear waistband (That's all that was left of them). It doesn't faze him to don beat up clothing. He has jean pockets that are so worn; his wallet is going to bye-bye one of these days.

RED'S WORD

I have a friend Dino who doesn't own a single shirt with sleeves; he deliberately rips all of them off. I don't know if it's a Larry the Cable Guy tribute or if he just doesn't like sleeves. Absolutely madness I tell you! I pop a button and won't wear the clothing until I fix it.

So, after breakfast we set out on a screws, bolts, and jeans quest. Sean has been rebuilding his 1975 Harley Davidson Shovelhead so parts are very difficult to find. We went to three different stores trying to find particular bolts he needed! We finally ended up at Runnings, where they happen to carry what he needed. "They have jeans here you can look through," he said, before heading off into the hardware section, leaving me to wander around the ladies section. I started picking through the racks of jeans determined to replace my holy favorites, when I looked up and saw them... Seeds! I raced over to the racks of perennial and vegetable seeds, ignoring my inner voice that said, "You came here for pants not plants". Before I knew it I had seven packs of seeds in my hand. "Well I can't very well buy the seeds and not pick up the little greenhouse kits so I can start these babies indoors." So I grabbed two greenhouse kits...and a new plant light. I haven't been able to find my old one since we moved into the house three years ago. Oh and, don't forget a bag of seed starter soil with peat moss, perlite, and vermiculite in it.

Arms laden with gardening supplies, I turned to leave the isle, and there was Sean standing there watching me. "Nice jeans" he said. "Well I saw the seeds and, I kind of lost control after that" I replied sheepishly. "So you can work on your indoor garden but you have no pants," he retorted. "Maybe you can sew all the empty seed packages together and, make a pair." So I spent the rest of Saturday in the basement, lovingly planting sixty little green children and, setting up their nursery light...and I still have no jeans.

Whining About Whining

We all know them - the whiners and chronic complainers of the world. No matter how silly or temporary a problem, they have to comment and complain to anyone who will listen.

Traffic... the weather... the price of gas... the long line at the store... the price of lettuce...too much rain... not enough rain... they never seem to run out of material.

Why so much whining? What is the benefit of having such a negative outlook? And why do these constant complainers always need to share their views with others? Do they want to assure themselves that the rest of us understand just how inconvenienced they are? Do they need someone to sympathize with them and validate their concerns? Or do they just like to hear themselves talk?

The worst whiners are the ones who complain about small things they can actually change, if they really want to. But they seem to cling as hard to the thing they complain about as much as they want to be rid of it.

Obviously it's not easy to find a new job, or a new place to live, or a better car. Those things don't happen simply because one wishes they would. And many people do not have the means or support or privilege to achieve them. All of this is understood. Those problems are tough to deal with and not easily solved.

But what about the person who chronically complains about the drive-thru service at a fast food place, yet never parks and goes inside? Or tries another restaurant? What about that co-worker who talks incessantly about how bad the office coffee is, but never brings her own? And the guy who likes to make sure everyone in line knows that his time is precious and he just can't be late to his meeting - couldn't he have left earlier? Couldn't he come back later? Those are small solutions to small issues, yet the whiners seem to relish the pain without fixing the problem.

So we let them whine, and maybe as a kindness, acknowledge their problem and sympathize. If all they need or want is a listening ear, even for five minutes in line at the grocery store, let's give it to them.

If someone listens, at least that's one less thing for them to whine about.

FROM THE PUBLISHER

Pass the bankie

How we react to being sick is up to us. I'm not talking about serious illness, that's a different story. I'm referring to the modest, runny nose, slight fever sort of malady that strikes us this time of year. Despite every type of hand sanitizer, diligent hand washing and avoiding sneezing, coughing people, a little dose of midwinter illness lays us low.

NANCY WEISS

My family included some world class complainers about health. My father, who smoked like a proverbial chimney, never ascribed any of his health problems to cigarettes. If he had a cold, it was generally the fault of someone "bringing" it to him. One could imagine a stealth pass of a pool of invisible microbes being tossed his way and collecting in his nasal passages. He would take to his bed and spend the day yelling to anyone within ear shot that he needed the hot water bottle warmed up, another round of Vicks, and, by late afternoon, a toddy made of honey, lemon, hot water and, of course, scotch.

My mother-in-law was a beautiful woman, who took great pleasure in dressing carefully and appearing in public only when fully coiffed. She was, however, constantly ill. Something was always amiss. Perhaps she had food allergies that hadn't been diagnosed or a general anxiety that transformed itself into various physical complaints. Whatever her problem, she believed that it needed to be treated immediately by a doctor. She saw a physician as often as she could. She also liked to hear about other people's problems, often recommending courses of action. world. Florida was Paradise for her. She lived to be 99.

My brother, who lives near Chicago had minus 25 on January 31. My younger son Gabriel Weaver, who works for the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign had minus 15. Channel 3 was reporting people in Northwestern Connecticut who reached minus 20. My old house was in the fifties. Brr! Anyway, the temperatures gave me the topic for this column.

The earliest reference that I have for weather in Eastern Connecticut is the Diary of Joshua Hempstead of New London, Connecticut, published by the New London County Historical Society, which spans the years 1711 to 1758. Three hundred years ago, at the end of January and beginning of February 1719, Joshua made a number of entries that provide clues to the weather that winter. "Tuesday, January 27. Snow toward night. Wednesday, fair; Thursday, fair; Friday, it rained Smartly most of the day. Saturday, 31st, fair and moderate. (That day he went to the mill and was in town). Sunday, February 1, fair; Monday, fair and cold; Tuesday, fair; Wednesday, lowering and some snow. That day he "went to Mohegan to the Court at Bradford's and to Norwich at night. Lodged with Cousen (sic) Wm Hides... (Hempstead was at Court several days) Fryd, 6th Snowy and Cold; Saturday 7th a Pleasant day."

New London County historian Frances Manwaring Caulkins wrote of Hempstead in the introduction to the diary that he was a remarkable man and the "diversity of his occupations marks a custom of the day; he was at once farmer, surveyor, house and ship carpenter, attorney, stonemason*, sailor and trader. He generally held three or four town offices: was justice of the peace, judge of probate, executor of various wills, overseer to widows, guardian to orphans, member of all committees... Of the Winthrop family he was a friend and confidential agent, managing their business concerns whenever the head of the family was absent." (*Hempstead was known to have carved tombstone inscriptions).

Another diary that I have access to is that of Dr. Edwin A. Hill of East Killingly. January and February entries for 1869 give a glimpse into Killingly's weather that winter. Saturday, January 9. "Cloudy, warm, and muddy. Monday, Jan. 11, Cloudy a.m. and p.m. Rainy evening with snow and sleet. The weather didn't deter Hill and his family from going to town that evening. "Went with Sarah (wife) and Charles (son) to Danielsonville to hear Petroleum V. Nasby and his popular lecture 'Cursed be Canaan'. Tuesday, Jan. 12. Went fishing in the forenoon in Eddy Reservoir. (He did again on Saturday and "went up with him and skated"). Sun., Jan. 24, Pleasant and warm all day. (There are no entries for early February and few for the month). Saturday, Feb. 13, Pleasant all day. Very muddy. (The Diaries of Dr. Hill 1851-1896, edited and researched by Marcella Houle Pasay).

I live in an old center chimney colonial with five (non-working) fireplaces. While shivering during my many tasks that I could not do under the covers, I was wondering what it must have been like to live in this house in the 1700's. I found the following article quite interesting. "Keeping Warm in the Winter" by Tom Kernan.

"During colonial times, one of the most daunting tasks people faced was trying to stay warm during the cold winter months. Although cast iron wood stoves existed in colonial America, they were generally rare in many households. Settlers in upstate New York typically heated their rooms with fireplaces that, during the coldest winter months, at times would not even bring the room temperature above freezing. Warren Johnson, while visiting his brother Sir William Johnson at Johnson Hall in Johnstown, N.Y., wrote in his journal: 'December the 28th, 1760. It was so cold as to freeze almost anything even by the fire's side: The frost is soe intense, that if you walk in leather shoes & gloves, you are frostbitten.' 'January 11, 1761. That strong Punch in 20 Minutes, is covered with a Scum of Ice, & Ink on a Table is frozen, before the fire.' 'January 24-25, 1761. The weather soe cold that handling Brass, or Iron leaves A Blister on the fingers & in Bed People are cold even with ten blankets on.'

"Therefore, it was important to have certain implements in the house to help [people] stay warm during winter. One of those items was a bed warmer.

A bed warmer is a brass pan and lid attached to a long wooden handle.

By filling the pan with hot embers and running the pan under the covers, colonials could warm up their beds before getting in. Another similar item was the foot warmer. A small box made of either brass, wood and tin or just wood with a tin pan inside, it too was filled with hot embers and placed at the feet to keep one's toes warm. To keep your food warm while eating, hot plates were used. These are deep hollow plates usually made of pewter or ceramic filled with steaming hot water. To keep the body warm, people dressed in layers of thick wool clothing starting with long underwear, which stayed on the body until the weather warmed up in the spring."

(<http://www.doe.mass.edu/mcas/pdf/2017/EL312611RP.pdf>). In historical fiction novels I recall hearing of people heating bricks and wrapping them in cloth to either put in their beds or their sleighs.

I heard that both ground-hogs predicted an early spring. Wouldn't that be a welcome relief? Time will tell.

Don't pit cities against our towns

Over 3,000 bills are currently being proposed in the Connecticut General Assembly; just around 200 bills will have final action taken on them by the time we adjourn in June. Any legislator can propose any bill and it gets referred to a committee where most bills die.

Two recently proposed bills SB 454 and SB 431 have stuck out to me. Both were proposed by Senator Martin Looney (D-New Haven), who also serves as the President Pro-Tempore of the State Senate. These bills, if enacted, radically change how towns and schools are funded in Connecticut and the changes are not to the advantage of small towns.

To give some context, I represent five rural towns in Northeastern Connecticut, including the smallest municipality in the state, the town of Union, which has a population of 854. The largest town I represent is Brooklyn, ranked as the 108th (out of 169) largest town in the state.

Our urban centers are the largest municipalities in the state and have real problems and tremendous poverty, whereas Connecticut's suburbs are some of the wealthiest communities in the state. Senator Looney's idea is that lower property taxes on higher property values in suburbia can be equalized with the high taxes and low property values combined with a lack of wealth in the cities in order to provide more resources to invest in our urban areas. Senator Looney is proposing a concept to improve the quality of life in New Haven, I get it. I am also acknowledging that the issues facing our urban centers are real and we need our cities to be prosperous. However, rural Connecticut is not in the equation and is constantly being lumped in by some as having the same characteristics as a suburb. Eastford is not Norwalk, Woodstock is not Greenwich.

Windham County is the poorest county in the state of Connecticut. Urban poverty is different from rural poverty and outside of charity and our non-profits, we do not have a plan to deal with it. We have a problem with homelessness, and I sit on a committee that meets once a month at TEEG, one of our non-profits, and we sit around the table spinning our wheels on how to end homelessness with virtually no resources. I could go on and on, but the bottom line is that rural towns run lean municipal budgets and cover basic government services and education. Towns plow and fix the roads and also operate a school. There is no town-provided water service, limited-to-no town-provided sewer service, no trash pickup, a regional state police troop, volunteer fire departments, and a relatively sparse commercial footprint. We cannot afford to simply repeal the and it will not go to local services. The towns I represent would not be able to function independently under this proposed system, period. Connecticut is a home rule state, meaning that the General Assembly has incorporated towns/cities, most of them founded in the 1700s, and have given them the authority to manage their own affairs. I would much rather have had the debate be genuine over repealing "Home Rule" than dismantling small towns by suffocating them financially.

Lastly, forcing the consolidation of school districts which currently have less than 40,000 students, as suggested in SB 454, is simply untenable. This bill would set up regional districts that mirror probate districts. So basically, a student who lives in Ashford could potentially attend school in Thompson, which is roughly 22 miles or 30 minutes in a straight shot, not counting stopping, to pick up students. This is ridiculous and no parent, educator or legislator thinks that is a good idea for a first grader. This is an extreme example but still a possibility under this proposed legislation.

Small rural towns have looked to regionalism to more efficiently use the taxpayer's dollar. Towns in the 50th district operate, in effect, a regional high school in Woodstock Academy, Regional 911 Dispatch, Regional Paramedic Service, Regional Health District, Regional Animal Services, Regional Engineering and Planning Services, Regional Veterans Services, share heavy equipment, and many more examples of towns helping each other. These decisions were all voluntary and were made on the local level.

It could be said that Senator Looney, while proposing these bills, is merely representing the needs of his constituents. However as the President Pro Tem of the Senate, the top leader in that chamber he has failed to look at the big picture and suggest a public policy that does not pit residents in one part of the State against residents in another. Yes, we need to make our cities stable, but it cannot be at the expense of rural small town Connecticut.

State Representative Pat Boyd represents the towns of Brooklyn, Eastford, Pomfret, Union and Woodstock, composing the 50th district of the Connecticut General Assembly. He lives in Pomfret.

When I feel sick, I align myself with a Corgi dog we owned named Toby. He was a sweet fellow with a sensitive face and an insatiable appetite. He ate anything and often paid a heavy price. Once roofers came to our house to pound glistening wood shingles into the ancient building. They brought coffee, donuts and sandwiches, which they left in the back of their trucks. Toby found all of these items delicious. Stealth was not his strong suit, but he crept into the trucks. He created a cache of paper cups under the porch and spent happy times eating every morsel and more difficult moments being sick from what he ate. He was always discreet and uncomplaining.

Crawling under a porch or a pile of warm blankets to work out one's maladies is a fine course of action in my book. It is a perfect time to retreat from the world and neither complain or blame. Catch up on reading or just stare at the ceiling and think interesting thoughts. A slight fever adds a lively touch to afternoon dreams and makes waking up just off kilter enough to inspire all sorts of ideas.

Certain famous people take health issues to the next level. I'm a fan of author E.B. White, whose stepson, Roger Angell, graduated from Pomfret School. White was a hypochondriac and believed that the slightest problem was going to lead to his death. Roger Angell thought White's drama began as a way to get attention as the youngest child in a family of six.

After one day of hanging around the house, I woke up in good spirits and good health. I stopped blaming someone at the gym for my head cold. I stopped thinking I needed to eat only chicken soup and I stopped pretending that the hot toddy I wanted was purely medicinal. A brush with midwinter illness is just what we need to be grateful for good health.

tal gains are taxed at a top rate of 31.8% versus 23.8% for stock, according to Troy Lewis, a CPA practicing in Draper, Utah.

I won't blame the IRS for tax problems that are Congress's fault: People forget that the folks on Capitol Hill make the law; the IRS's job is to interpret and enforce it.

Are you mad that the tax code is so complex? Or that now you can't deduct the cost of taking a client to a ballgame? Or that it's hard to get an IRS employee on the phone? If so, vent at Congress. Lawmakers pile provision on provision and slash or add tax breaks.

Plan, invest, live well: Hopefully you are sticking to the resolutions you made in the beginning of the year. How is the progress going? Remember that reviewing your goals is a necessary step to achieve them. As tax season approaches, you also want to stick to what you said to make it an easier experience. Visit www.whzwealth.com/resources to view an exclusive checklist on choosing an accountant.

Day Kimball Valentine's Dance

The Woman's Board of Day Kimball Hospital held its annual Valentine's Dance on Saturday, Feb. 2 at the Stonehurst At Hampton Valley in Hampton. This year the long-standing organization partnered with Day Kimball Hospital to kick off the start of both group's 125th anniversary serving the community as well as introduce the Woman's Board new $200,000 pledge initiative to redo 14 birthing rooms in the hospital's Burdick Birthing Center.

The inspiration of two sisters, Misses Elizabeth and Gertrude Vinton, wanting to start a local care facility for the sick, Day Kimball Hospital of Windham County opened its doors in Putnam on September 1, 1894. Funds to start the hospital came from Mrs. Moses Day Kimball of Boston who donated $5,000 for the construction of the original infirmary building, with a request that the institution be named in honor of her recently deceased son, Moses Day Kimball.

Other Kimball family members pledged an additional $4,000 to the cause, and community members added another $1,000. With $10,000 total donations in hand, Day Kimball Hospital was born. The Woman's Board of Day Kimball Hospital, then known as The Woman's Aid Society was also established at the same time.

The success of the dance came as a result of a coordinated effort between a committee of Woman's Board members, led by Linnea Sarantopolous and Arlene Baril, under the direction of current President, Nancy Dziki, working in conjunction with Director Kirsten Willis and her staff from Day Kimball's Development Office. The dinner and dance event had over 300 guests in attendance showing support for the woman's group and hospital that has served it's community for 125 years.

Special Olympics dinner dance set

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN

THOMPSON — Dance the night away for a good cause at the Quinebaug Valley Special Olympics' Dinner Dance Fundraiser on Feb. 16. From 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Valley Springs Sports Club in North Grosvenordale enjoy a lasagna dinner. Dancing will follow. There will also be raffles and prizes.

"This is a popular fundraiser of ours," said local coordinator Geri White. "It's a fundraiser, but it's just a fun night out. Our folks love to dance."

There are currently 300 people involved with the QV Special Olympics.

"It provides our members with a great quality of life experience. It's something to look forward to in their life," White said.

While the Special Olympics provides sports all year long, like bowling, soccer, swimming, cycling and their popular Spirit Squad, it's also a chance for people with disabilities to socialize with other people. Members also gain confidence and priceless experiences through various programs the Special Olympics offers.

One participant she knows has learned how to be a public speaker, from writing speeches to delivering them. She travels to events and represents the Special Olympics and herself.

"The Special Olympics changes lives, whether you're an athlete, partner or volunteer," said White. "I might get as much out of it as the folks who participate. I get so much out of it. It's just a great way to give back and feel good. This is a major part of my life and I'm very passionate about it."

Having a brother with down syndrome, it's always been an area of passion for White. She majored in special education later down the road.

When she went to a Special Olympics event in New York in 1969, and saw how much it meant to the people involved back then, she knew she wanted to be involved.

White started the Windham Special Olympics program 40 years ago, and now she's involved with the QV Special Olympics as well.

The dinner will be one of many fundraisers held throughout the year that benefit the QV Special Olympics.

"If you like to dance and laugh, come and join us," said White.

Tickets are $12 per person, and will benefit the QV Special Olympics. The QV Special Olympics are a non-profit, all volunteer program that run year-round sports and recreation activities and competitions. The money raised at this fundraiser will go towards equipment and transportation, as well as many other expenses involved. If you would like more information, or are interested in buying tickets, contact (860) 377-4103.

Five named to Wall of Honor

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — Putnam High School's Wall of Honor Committee has revealed the names of the five accomplished individuals who will make up the Class of 2019. This Wall of Honor recognizes PHS graduates who have proven successful in their chosen fields after graduation, or have made a difference within their community through spirit, leadership and service.

"I think it shows what Putnam High School is all about. It shows that the education they received at the school helped them be successful in their chosen path," said the committee's Chair, Nelson King. "That's what the board had in mind when they came up with this idea."

The individuals receiving the honor this year are Steven Bousquet, class of 1964, Craig Gates of '80, Harvey Grinsell, class of '45, and Steven Townsend, who graduated in 1971.

Bousquet was a Putnam High star athlete who went on to serve as alderman, spearheading many fundraisers for the community and contributing to local service projects. Gates has established foundations in Putnam. Grinsell was the founder and director of Day Kimball Hospital's pediatric center, "the first known hospital based program of its kind in the nation. Kennedy logged more than 3,400 flying hours, including combat missions over Afghanistan, during his time on the Air Force. He also served on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Office of Secretary of Defense.

They will be inducted on Saturday, April 27, a ceremony open to the public. Townsend recently established scholarships for Putnam High graduates.

The ceremony to follow is also a way to bring people back to the school and see what has changed since they graduated. The high school recently went through a major renovation.

"Many communities have established halls of fame, which look towards the accomplishments of athletes while they are at the school," said King. "The difference is that this wall is about what they did with the education once they left."

Nominees must have graduated more than five years ago.

The current inductees are the committee's third class. The Board of Education started the committee four years ago as a way to recognize alumni.

The community has been very supportive of the idea. They currently have over 40 nominations total between the three years, which they will consider next year, along with any new nominations they receive this fall.

While some nominees have been locally famous individuals, like a former governor, and author Gertrude Warner, some are people the board has never heard of. It often leaves them pleasantly surprised at what PHS graduates are capable of and how much they care for their communities.

"I'm a graduate of Putnam High School and a former principal," said King. "Even though I now live one town over, I still have a high regard for whatever Putnam High School did for me and continues to do for current students. I care about the school and the community."

For more information, contact King at 860-774-4049.

do come through the program become successful out in life," Bowen said. Although the competitive fire still burns for the 58-year-old. "I guess it's still a lot of fun for me, working with the kids. It's gotten easier over the years. I've gotten a lot of good support from the families and the people in Killingly. It makes it that much easier to do the job really," Bowen said. He celebrated his 500th victory just three years ago, on Jan. 10, 2016, in a win over Manchester High. Bowen is the second winningest coach in Connecticut high school history. He trails only Derby's Buster Jadach, who has 612 wins. The Redmen went 31-2 last year, setting a school record for single-season wins as they also won the ECC championship and tied for second at the State Open meet. Killingly is 26-2 this season.

Back in the day Bowen wrestled at 119 pounds for Killingly High, Class of 1978, before competing for Rhode Island College at 134 pounds and 142 pounds. He returned to his high school alma mater in 1986 after college graduation. Bowen said his collegiate career prepared him for his coaching tenure.

"For me anyway (college) was definitely the part that made me understand the sport. I think in high school I really didn't understand all the technique and how things melded together. As you get into a higher level you really learn how everything works — not only physically, but technique, and then the mind — the mental part of it is a huge, huge factor also," Bowen said. "It was just a learning experience being at a higher level, being able to see what you can do out there on the mat — not just throw one move here, one move there, and expect to win matches. It's a whole package that goes with it, how to be successful."

His career record was 600-177-2 through last Saturday, Feb. 2. During his tenure the Redmen have won five state titles. Bowen said few can truly comprehend the Spartan training regimen that is demanded of a competitive wrestler. He said the parents of his grapplers have played a big role over the years.

"I don't think people understand the effort and dedication it takes to be a wrestler. It's a lifestyle. That's why when I see the families that work with the kids and really support them, that's what makes it successful. And that's what makes it a lot easier for me to be able coach for this long. If it was always pulling teeth it would be lot harder for me to be successful, that's for sure," Bowen said.

One of Bowen's most accomplished disciples was Doug Meagher. Meagher was a three-time State Open champion for Killingly High — the best in the state at 103 pounds in 1992, 119 pounds in 1993 and 125 pounds in 1994. Meagher went on to earn an appointment to the Naval Academy.

"(Meagher) was one of the most dedicated guys I've ever had in the sport. He made himself that good, just with his dedication and his desire. He took it to a whole new level actually. I was a younger coach then, just getting into my own really too, and to have a kid like that come through was exciting for me to see what level we could go with it," Bowen said. "He got to be a Naval officer. I think he has his own command. I think he's out in San Diego now, has his own ship that he commands. Just an outstanding thing to see."

The coach said all of his wrestlers have been special no matter their accomplishments.

"The guys that are just steady performers, and maybe aren't the best guys, they go on — you know I've had many guys go in the service and are very successful there. They're looking for something and wrestling gives it to them — gets them out to explore the world and do different things," Bowen said. "Some of the guys come back and tell me stories, those types of things go a long way. You feel like you've done a little bit for those guys to make them a little more successful maybe."

Discipline and camaraderie are huge influences in the maturation of a wrestler.

"The team becomes a team really. Everybody helps each other out to get to the goal because it's not easy. To have to watch your diet, make sure you're at a certain weight class, your teammates are expecting you to do it — you do become friends for life," Bowen said. "Most of my best friends are through wrestling just because of that dedication and effort it takes to be successful."

The top Killingly grapplers this season are Dan Charron (106 pounds) and Derek Turner (170), both ranked No. 1 in Class M. Renee Bernier (285), Dave Charron (126) and Greg Gosselin (160) are ranked No. 2, and Mike Charron (113) is ranked No. 3. The Redmen are shooting for another strong showing at both the ECC and state tournaments.

"I think my team's come a long way this year," Bowen said. "We've got some guys who are really pulling together. We're hoping we can make another good run in the ECCs and the states. You never know what you're going to run into it. It's always a battle."

When he's not shouting instructions off the mat — Bowen teaches technology education, robotics, and computer drafting in middle school to seventh and eighth graders at Captain Nathan Hale School in Coventry. He's been married 34 years. He and his wife, Linda, have two grown children — a son, Kyle, who is 34, and their daughter, Kayla, 30.

Bowen never had a master plan — but a wrestler might say he made a superior decision when he accepted the coaching offer. Thirty-three years and 600 victories later — his verdict on that decision is perhaps the understatement of the last three decades of high school wrestling in Connecticut.

"It worked out kind of good," he said. "I'll just take it a year at a time. We'll see how far I go."

Anderson tops 1,000 as Centaurs beat Redmen

Woodstock Academy’s Chase Anderson fires a jumper against Killingly High last Saturday, Feb. 2, in Dayville.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

WOODSTOCK — Chase Anderson can tell you exactly where he was on March 14, 2014. Just a seventh grader, he was sitting in the bleachers in Windsor High School’s gymnasium, rooting for Woodstock Academy in the quarterfinals of the Class L state tournament. On that Friday five years ago in a jam-packed gym, Anderson watched Centaurs senior guard Chris Lowry score 19 points as Woodstock fell to Windsor 77-64 — the last game of Lowry’s high-school career. It was a bittersweet ending for Lowry because his effort pushed him past 1,000 career points, he finished with 1,004. Anderson never forgot.

“I was at the game when he hit it. It was just such a special moment,” Anderson said. “I just dreamed of it ever since. It was obviously a cool environment.”

That seventh grader imagined a faraway day when he’d join Lowry in the Centaurs pantheon of 1,000-point scorers. Last Saturday at Killingly High School — Woodstock’s 6-foot-2 senior guard proved dreams can come true — provided you mix them with hard work and a deadly jump shot.

Anderson poured in a game-high 31 points including a trio of three-pointers in the Centaurs 67-50 victory over Killingly on Feb. 2 — reaching the 1,000-point plateau on a bucket from close range with 3:39 left in the third quarter. He exited Killingly High with 1,011 points and counting.

He played sparingly on Woodstock’s varsity as a freshman and his father — Otto Anderson — used to needle him about his chances of reaching the milestone.

“I barely saw any varsity time my freshman year. Even my Dad, remembering, he might have said it jokingly, but he was like ‘You’ll never get to a thousand, you don’t have enough time,’” Anderson said. “All love to him but I just would play every day.”

Son was determined to disprove father’s theory — he balanced the equation with hard work.

“I just put my head down, grinded in the gym, and it just came as time went on,” Anderson said.

The achievement was the end product of a long journey for the basketball lifer.

“Ever since I was walking, I have a picture from when I was eight months old, standing — just a ball in my hand and an old Michael Jordan jersey on, from the Bulls,” Anderson said.

The victory over Killingly High was a big one for Woodstock Academy last Saturday, lifting the Centaurs record to 7-7. After getting the win over the Redmen, Woodstock needed just one more victory to gain the required eight victories needed to guarantee a berth in the Division 4 state tournament.

“It’s nice to get here and play one of our rivals on their court and walk out with a ‘W’. The guys fought hard,” said Woodstock coach Marty Hart. “We hope we can start to put together a run. We learned a lot in the first half of the season. We played stiff competition from top to bottom in the ECC. We talked about just getting better and making the right plays. Lately we’ve been stringing together more of the right plays and more often.”

Needless to say Anderson has been finishing a lot of those plays. Hart saluted his milestone. Anderson is the fifth player in Woodstock’s hoop history to score 1,000 points.

“It’s a team accomplishment. We share it with Chase. He’s our leader. He’s the heart and soul of the team. We appreciate that he works so hard. He’s out front in all of the conditioning. He works hard on defense and rebounding and he’s a very good passer,” Hart said. “When the ball finds him and he takes a great shot in rhythm he’s able to put it in — that makes us go. He’s done it for quite some time at Woodstock and 1,000 points demonstrate that. I’m very proud of him and his teammates for supporting him and working with him. We trust and love playing with him and we couldn’t be happier.”

From now on Chase Anderson can tell you exactly where he was on Feb. 2, 2019. There are at least a 1,000 reasons why he’ll never forget.

“I’m the fifth kid on that list at this school,” Anderson said. “Woodstock’s been around forever. It’s just an honor to be on the list.”

Tourtellotte boys edge closer to tourney

Tourtellotte Spencer Fulone gets a layup against Wheeler

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

THOMPSON — Spencer Fulone knew they were must-win games. This is Fulone's senior year at Tourtellotte Memorial and he wanted to make one last trip to the state tournament before he leaves high school behind.

"My last year, obviously senior year — we know it's in our grasp," Fulone said. "We want it more than anything."

Eight wins were needed to guarantee a berth in the tourney and Fulone's Tigers reached that threshold with a 49-48 win over Lyman Memorial on Monday night, Feb. 4. And three nights earlier on Friday evening Tourtellotte defeated Wheeler, moving it one step closer to a slot in the 32-team bracket for the Division 5 state tournament. Coach Neil Bernier drove the message home to his troops before the tipoff against Wheeler.

"I said there's no option to come out and lose this game, just not even something that should enter into your mind. We have to come out and carry over from the last game. We can't have a letdown. We tend to have a good game and then we have a letdown. We start playing lethargic," Bernier said.

The Tigers didn't let their coach down. With the help of a third-quarter surge Tourtellotte defeated Wheeler 58-36 at Cauty Gymnasium on Feb. 1.

"I thought in the third quarter is where we really came out and had laser focus finally and did the jobs that people have to do," Bernier said.

With Tourtellotte leading Wheeler 23-21 at halftime, the Tigers put the game away by outscoring the Lions 19-3 in the third quarter. Sophomore guard Brady Monahan sank a pair of three-pointers during the third-quarter run. Junior center Devin Dalpe scored a pair of buckets from inside during the surge. Fulone capped the outburst with a three-pointer at the buzzer to give the Tigers a 41-24 lead going into the final frame.

Monahan and Dalpe have emerged as secondary scorers for the Tigers. Monahan finished with 11 points and Dalpe tallied 14 points against Wheeler. Senior forward Josh Dodd (15 points and eight assists vs. Wheeler) and Fulone (13 points) are the Tigers top two point producers this season. Monahan and Dalpe's complementary scoring has broadened Tourtellotte's offensive attack.

"Brady (Monahan) and Devin (Dalpe), they've really been helping out.

Devin on the interior and Brady giving us a three-point threat, definitely stretches the floor out, makes it easier for Josh and I to get our points," Fulone said. "It's just a better team effort all around."

Dalpe has given the Tigers a strong force in the middle. Monahan has provided the complementary outside scoring the Tigers missed when senior forward Tony Ferraro was lost midway through the season with a fractured right elbow.

"Having an inside presence always adds something to a team no matter who it comes from. Brady gave us something we thought we lost with Tony Ferraro when he got hurt — someone who can be a relatively consistent shooter from the outside and spread the defense out," Bernier said. "It's nice to dial up a few plays and knock down a three once in a while."

The win over Wheeler lifted Tourtellotte's record to 7-7 with six games remaining in the regular season. Fulone said the Tigers are playing well down the stretch.

"We've just been maintaining focus. We kind of caught our groove. It's just been clicking better than it was early on in the season," Fulone said. "We just keep rolling with it, keeping up the intensity. We stayed consistent from tip 'til the end, definitely one of our better games. Definitely one of the better games we've had as a team from start to finish. We've had some rough patches here and there but definitely not tonight. If we can keep this rolling we've got a good shot at making a run."

Bernier said the Tigers are finally rolling in the right direction. The coach went back to square one after a debacle at the Clipper Classic tournament at Putnam High School back in December. At the Classic the Tigers were blown out by Putnam High 67-42 and crushed by Parish Hill 59-31.

"We went back to the basics after the Christmas tournament. I thought we went there and just put two really dreadful performances together. And I said we're going to go back to the basics. We're going to go back to everything that I don't think you really have absorbed all the way from middle-school years," Bernier said. "We just did a lot of drills, basic stuff. It started to pay dividends."

The loss to Tourtellotte dropped Wheeler's record to 3-11. Tourtellotte (8-7) is next scheduled to play host to Griswold on Tuesday, Feb. 12. The Tigers hope to keep it rolling.

"When we've had to make the shots and the free throws we've made them. And that's been the big difference," Bernier said. "We want to get to eight (wins) but it doesn't have to be eight. We can go nine, 10 — I don't have a problem with that. It's all up to what we want to bring on the court."

LEBANON — The Tigers qualified for the Division 5 state tourney with the win over the host Bulldogs on Monday, Feb. 4. The win lifted Tourtellotte's record to 8-7 and avenged a 66-48 loss to Lyman Memorial (10-6) back on Jan. 10. For the Tigers: Dodd had 18 points, six rebounds, and five assists; Fulone scored 11 points, with four rebounds, and two steals; Dalpe notched 10 points and 10 rebounds. Stephen Scrapchansky and Nima Sherpa came off the bench and shut down Josh Perry, Lyman's leading scorer, who scored 26 back on Jan 10. Dalpe hit two clutch baskets and sank two free throws over the final minute and thirty seconds to help lock down the state tourney berth.

Revamped Killingly girls heading toward tourney

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

DAYVILLE — The bad news for Killingly High's girls basketball team is that it might not reach the required eight victories needed to guarantee a berth in the Class L state tournament. The good news for the Redgals is that a bunch of Class L teams also won't reach the eight-win plateau. So although Killingly fell to Plainfield High 34-20 last Saturday, dropping its record to 6-11, the 32-team bracket must be filled and the Redgals will likely make the tournament.

"We're probably going to make the states," said Killingly coach Gina Derosier.

The Redgals will have a revamped lineup when then Class L tourney arrives in the last week of February. With one addition and one subtraction Killingly is a different team than just two weeks ago. Junior forward Trinity Angel, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, is likely out for the rest of the season. Sophomore guard Abbie Burgess missed the first two-thirds of the season but has returned to the team after starting for the Redgals last year as a freshman. Burgess joins a youthful roster. Burgess will be able to share time running the point with freshman guard Emma Carpenter.

"There's no secret we're a very young team. Not having Trinity obviously hurts us. Offensively, it's going to be a little more difficult for us — defensively, I don't think I've seen a change in stride in defense from my girls," Derosier said. "The girls are going to work hard on defense no matter what. Offensively we're going to have to work a little bit harder and not rely on one person so much."

Burgess, the leading scorer for Killingly High's girls soccer team last fall, spent much of the winter playing for several indoor soccer teams. Burgess's soccer commitments have eased and she was welcomed back to the basketball team with the approval from the Redgals team captains.

"Her schedule has lightened. Defense-wise, there's actually no question, she's going to bring a whole element for us," said Derosier of Burgess. "Offensively, it's going to help alleviate the burden on Emma Carpenter too, because they can split time at the point. We can put Em (Carpenter) to the side, we can get her a couple shots off the wing, which she hasn't been able to have all year because the ball's constantly in her hands. So it will be really nice to give (Carpenter) a break at the point and push her to the side for a second."

And with a young team, the performance down the stretch of this season will also serve as a prelude to next season. The roster includes Carpenter, Burgess, sophomore forward Grace Nichols, sophomore center Maddie Sumner, freshman guard Sage Lamparelli, and freshman guard Makala Dube.

"I had three freshmen and

three sophomores playing the majority of the game today," Derosier said. "We're in the toughest part of our season right now so it's going to be a learning experience for our girls. But we didn't give up. I preach to my girls 'Just work hard every single game' and they do. The last three games are not going to be any different."

Madison Kelly scored a team-high 15 points to lead Plainfield past Killingly. The win lifted Plainfield's record to 12-5.

Prachi Patel tallied six points and Carpenter notched five points for the Redgals (6-11).

Killingly is next scheduled to play host to Stonington High on Friday, Feb. 8, with tipoff set for 7 p.m. at Killingly High School. The Redgals close out the regular season at Windham High on Tuesday, Feb. 12.

Tourtellotte girls still in hunt for states

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

THOMPSON — Lauren Ramos knows it's a long-shot but that's OK with Tourtellotte Memorial's senior forward. The Tigers are fighting for a berth in the Class S state tournament and if they qualify they'll be seeded near the bottom of the field. That means they would play one of the top teams in Class S in the first round of the tourney. For Ramos that's better than staying home.

"My freshman and sophomore year we didn't make states. Last year we made states and we ended up going all the way down to Coginchaug," Ramos said.

Last season Tourtellotte earned the 24th seed in the Class S tourney and traveled to Durham to face No.-9 Coginchaug. The Tigers lost 66-30 — Coginchaug went on to win the state championship. Ramos finished with four points, seven rebounds and six steals in that loss but she'll always be able to say it took the state champs to knock Tourtellotte out of the tourney.

"They ended up winning the state championship. And it was still fun to be a part of it because we still made it there," Ramos said. "I'm still hoping to end on making it to states."

Tourtellotte defeated Wheeler 52-20 last Friday night at Canty Gymnasium. The win lifted the Tigers record to 6-11 with three games left in the regular season. Eight wins are needed to guarantee a berth in the state tournament but Tourtellotte might sneak in with seven wins because a number of teams in Class S have failed to reach the eight-win threshold as the regular season nears its conclusion. The Tigers were ranked No. 35 before the win against Wheeler. The Class S bracket holds 32 teams.

Like Ramos, Tourtellotte coach Carla Faucher said there's still a chance to make states.

"It's anybody's game. If they play the way they did against Wheeler, they're realizing if the other kids step up it takes a lot of pressure of Lauren (Ramos) and Ashley (Morin)," Faucher said. "They get more relaxed and more relaxed equals better shooting for us."

Ramos finished with a game-high 16 points with 14 rebounds, four assists and five steals against Wheeler. Morin added 13 points with three rebounds, three steals, and three assists. Junior guard Emily Angelo stepped up and tallied 15 points and hauled down four rebounds. Leci Snow had four points and four rebounds and Zeynep Acun grabbed four rebounds and scored two points for the Tigers.

"It was so good to see Emily (Angelo) be successful," said Faucher of her junior point guard. "She had her chocolate ice cream before the game so I told her that's what you're having before every game now. I'm superstitious, I'll do whatever I have to do. But it's just getting them to believe in themselves."

Faucher's main task this season has been getting her complementary players to believe they can augment Morin and Ramos, who are the Tigers' leading scorers.

"It's life lessons. There are moments in life where you may not succeed, in the classroom or after school you may not succeed in the job, and you can't let that get you down. You can't give up," Faucher said. "You've got to keep fighting. And if there's something you want, you set a goal and you do your best to strive for that goal. When you see those little successes it builds you up. And then you realize there's nothing that can stop you. You can shoot for the moon. It's a great group of kids. It's a team effort."

Ramos battled a knee injury during her freshman and sophomore seasons and during both those years Tourtellotte failed to qualify for the state tourney. She took a trip to states last year and coach Faucher knows how much Ramos and her teammates want to get back to the tourney.

"They still want that challenge because that's one of the season's goals. We know we probably don't have a chance of winning a league championship but to say you went to the states, not many kids can say that. I keep telling these kids that my 2001 team — we were 3-12 going into the last five games of the season — we got into states and we went to the state semifinals," said Faucher, in her 23rd season. "So you know what? You never know. We could be peaking at the right time now."

The coach hopes the Tigers make it and Ramos doesn't have to stay home.

"I want it just as bad as she does," Faucher said. "If we stay together and we work hard we're going to get that."

The loss to Tourtellotte dropped Wheeler's record to 4-12. Annie Dussault led the Lions with eight points. Tourtellotte is next scheduled to play host to St. Bernard on Friday, Feb. 8. The Tigers close out the regular season at Montville on Monday, Feb. 11. The chance to make states still lives.

"It goes according to your power points. If we can beat these teams here it's going to put us in a much better position I believe," Faucher said. "We could sneak in with seven wins."

Crunch time for Killingly High boys

Killingly High's Shayne Bigelow drives with Woodstock Academy's Luke Mathewson defending last Saturday, Feb. 2, in Dayville.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

DAYVILLE — The Killingly High Redmen didn't do themselves any favors in their drive to earn a state tournament berth last Saturday. They faded in the second half in a 67-50 loss to Woodstock Academy, dropping their record to 5-10 with five games remaining on their regular season schedule. The Redmen needed to win three of their last five games to secure a berth in the Division IV state tournament. Coach Jim Crabtree said three wins were still out there.

"There's game to be had. The question is 'Do we want them?' The games are there. They can be had. We need to play 32 minutes to win any game," Crabtree said. "Right now my focus over the next 48 hours will be: Find me six guys that want to battle for the next two weeks."

Crabtree said the Redmen must play better than they did in the loss to the Centaurs on Feb. 2 at Killingly High School. Killingly trailed Woodstock by just two points, 28-26, at halftime but was outscored 39-24 in the second half.

"They killed us on the backboards. They killed us with energy. Good game for two and a half, three quarters. They out-hustled us. Basically they just put the gas pedal down and we decided to wave the flag," Crabtree said.

Killingly had several winnable games down the stretch and could gain the three victories needed for a berth in the state tourney. Of the five games remaining on its schedule following the loss to Woodstock, Killingly's opponents included Plainfield High and Bacon Academy, two teams they have defeated earlier this season. Also remaining on its schedule were Windham, Waterford, and Lyman Memorial. Without eight wins the Redmen will stay home come state tournament time in the first week of March.

"It's eight or nothing," Crabtree said. "Waterford's Waterford, the other four — they can beat us and we can beat them. So we have a chance. There's no waving the flag now unless they want to tell me different when we get back on Monday. I'm hoping they want to battle."

Senior guard Luke Desaulnier scored a team-high 13 points in the loss to Woodstock Academy. Junior guard Shayne Bigelow added 11 points for the Redmen. Woodstock senior guard Killingly High's Chris Lackner fires a jumper against Woodstock Academy last Saturday.

Chase Anderson led the Centaurs (7-7) with 31 points. Crabtree will look for leadership from his top players down the stretch.

"Right now we've got to figure out who's going to lead the charge. Our 'A' and our 'B' man, whatever order you want to put them in, we're struggling with that right now," Crabtree said.

Killingly is next scheduled to play at Waterford on Friday, Feb. 8. The Redmen return home to play host to Lyman Memorial on Monday, Feb. 11. Killingly finishes out the regular season at Bacon Academy on Friday, Feb. 15.

Will the Redmen qualify for the Division IV state tournament when it arrives in March? Like the tipoff at the start of any game, that's up in the air right now.

"I'd like to play into March," Crabtree said. "February's too early to put the balls away in my book — but the kids are going to determine that in the next few days."

Putnam girls look to regroup as postseason nears

Putnam High's Abby St. Martin works in the paint against Fitch on Feb. 4 at Putnam High's gymnasium.

PUTNAM — There are times when selective amnesia is a coach's best option. Putnam High coach Mandi Hogan will try to forget the Clippers performance in the second half of a 38-30 loss to Fitch in an inter-divisional Eastern Connecticut Conference game on Monday night at Putnam High School.

"We have to move on from it," Hogan said. "This is a great game for us to go into the last two games of the year and then into the ECC and state tournaments. We needed this type of a game. We just have to move on, work on things, high-pressure situations better, ball security — we just need to function better."

The Clippers functioned well throughout most of the first half and led Fitch 27-17 after Putnam sophomore forward Abby St. Martin sank a bucket from close range with 6:48 left in the third quarter — but it was the last field goal Putnam would score the rest of way. The Falcons outscored Putnam 21-3 over the final 12 minutes and 15 seconds to pull away for the victory — with the Clippers sinking just three foul shots over that span.

"We have to take care of the ball better. We had too many turnovers. We let them right back in this game. We gave it to them actually," Hogan said.

Clippers junior guard Molly McKeon scored 10 points and junior point guard Kayleigh Lyons led Putnam with 11 points but Lyons managed just one point in the second half as the Falcons double-teamed her whenever she had the ball. The Clippers will have to find complementary scorers when opponents focus on stopping Lyons.

"They're going to run a lot of triangle-and-twos and box-and-ones and double teams on Kayleigh. Everybody else around her has to make adjustments to help Kayleigh out," Hogan said. "Obviously if there's a double team on her then somebody's open."

Nyseanah Ishmael led the Falcons with a game-high 15 points. The win lifted Class L Fitch's record to 8-11. There is still plenty of time for Putnam to regroup before the ECC Tournament and the Class S state tournament. The loss to Fitch dropped Putnam's record to 14-4. The Clippers travel to St. Bernard on Monday, Feb. 11, and then close out the regular season on the road at Parish Hill on Tuesday, Feb. 12.

Through last Tuesday Putnam was ranked No. 5 in Class S and if the Clippers can win at home in the first round of the state tourney they will also play host to a second-round state tourney game at Putnam High School. The Clippers will look forward to that — and likely try to forget about the second half against Fitch.

"It's just a little fine tuning of some things that we've got to work on and we'll get through it," Hogan said. "The last two games we've been in a shooting slump. Hopefully we'll work our way out of it. We're due."

Jean Barlow, 92

EASTFORD – Jean Barlow of Eastford, 92, went to be with her Lord on January 31, 2019 ending her long battle with dementia. Jean (Trepal) Barlow was born in the Phoenixville section of Eastford September 27, 1926 to Edward A. Trepal and Leta (Sabin) Trepal. She had three younger sisters; Helen, Dorothy and Elaine. Jean was a 1943 graduate of Woodstock Academy and received a Home Economics degree from UCONN in 1947. After graduating from UCONN she taught Home Economics for two years at Portland (CT) High School. Her life changed in 1950 when she married Herman E. Barlow. Over the next eleven years they had six sons together. Jean's home economics training turned out to be very practical.

For many years Jean enjoyed tending a large vegetable garden; cooking, canning and freezing the produce. She also washed and cleaned milking equipment daily as the family raised cows for their own food. She sewed clothes for her boys and provided for her family in every way. She also helped Herman launch Mansfield Supply in 1954.

Community service flowed out of Jean's life. Early in her marriage, she led a Home Economics Club where she taught other women skills to provide for their families. She served many years as secretary for the Eastford Elementary School Board. She also dedicated time to impart her wisdom to young boys, working both as a Cub Scout leader and a 4-H leader. She started a dairy 4-H Club with Franklyn Buell. Later she led "The Little Rascals," a science-based 4-H Club, with Ralph Yulo. After her boys had grown, Jean enjoyed many years volunteering at Day Kimball Hospital.

Jean was active in the Eastford Baptist Church for 50 years, participating in the Women's Fellowship, the Ladies' Bible study and the Gideon's International Auxiliary. She always made sure to invite kids to Vacation Bible School, hosting them in her home when necessary. She was unfailingly hospitable, always welcoming extended family members and her boys' friends into her home. Whether they came for a meal, or stayed for a week, they were always made welcome. As she said, "When you're cooking for eight, what difference does an extra one or two make?"

Jean will be missed by her five surviving sons; David (Ruth), Glenn (Su Ann), Bruce (Linda), Herman, Jr. (Diane), James (Kathy Jean), and her daughter-in-law Joan, all of Eastford. She was predeceased by her son Dennis (Joan), and her husband Herman, to whom she was married for 59 years - until his death in 2009. Jean also leaves 17 nieces and nephews, 16 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

Jean will also be missed by her sister Elaine Mannhardt of Keezletown, Virginia. She was also predeceased by her sisters, Helen Yulo and Dorothy Clark.
