BROOKLYN — At first glance it looked like a dog show, but at the Brooklyn Fair on Friday, Aug. 23, there was a Sheep Show Lead Line Competition. The contest shows a relationship between the shepherd and the wool products and clothing made from that sheep. During this competition, it was a normal site to see sheep and their owners dressed to complement and complete each other.

One of the competitors was Sophia Glaude, from East Putnam. She presented with her two-year-old Shetland Sheep, Shamrock. She is not a stranger to sheep. "I have 10 others at home," said Glaude. "This is a family affair. Her sister spins wool and knits while Glaude is the main shepherd.

"I have been doing this since the second grade," she said. It takes her about a half hour to take care of each one between feeding them grain and hay and cleaning up after them.

Like most other animals, maintaining most sheep requires keeping their hooves in

Ellis is new campus CEO at QVCC

DANIELSON — Quinebaug Valley Community College recently announced Dr. Rose R. Ellis as QVCC's Interim Chief Executive Officer. While Dr. Ellis is only six-weeks into her tenure, she sees the potential for growth here in Northeast Connecticut.

Appointed July 1, Dr. Ellis succeeds QVCC's fourth president, Dr. Carlee Drummer. As campus CEO, Dr. Ellis assumes the role as President, overseeing the day-to-day operations at the College. Prior to coming to QVCC, Dr. Ellis served as Dean of Administration and Institutional Effectiveness at both Housatonic and Gateway Community Colleges. She has spent her entire career in higher education, getting her start at the University of Nevada Las Vegas, and has experience in a multitude of disciplines including library services, finance, information technology, instruction and many supervisory positions.

Dr. Ellis earned her doctorate in Higher Education Administration from Capella University (2013) and her Master of Library Science and Bachelor of Arts degrees from Wayne State University. She is a frequent evaluator for the New England Commission of Higher Education accreditation teams and belongs to the following organizations: NACUBO

(National Association of College and University Business Officers), ECUBO (Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers), EDUCAUSE, Bridgeport Regional Business Council, along with many Connecticut State College and University System Office Committees.

Upon her first visit to QVCC's Danielson campus, Dr. Ellis was immediately drawn to the area fondly known as the Quiet Corner. She commented, "It's an extraordinary town with an unbelievable community. When I walked through the doors, I couldn't stop dreaming about the potential for the College. I'm a collaborator and look forward to the start of the term and working with all faculty and staff towards improving this gem of a college." When asked what drew her to QVCC, she answered, "I wanted to be at a place where I could make a difference; I wanted to be a part of a community. When I saw what was happening at QVCC, I said, 'This is my dream.'"

Outside of her established career in higher education, Dr. Ellis enjoys to swim, hike and travel. In her spare time, she likes to read, but admits she is partial to hardcover books. She also loves to spend time with her spouse, David H. Ellis, and her three cats, Thomas, Roscoe, and Bob.

Why not bake?

WOODSTOCK — From the time you are in the cradle all the way up through old age, life is always changing. You go from diapers to crawling, walking, starting school, ending school, getting married, having kids, your first house and on and on the changes come. After awhile you start to look forward to retiring. That is usually the goal - work until you reach that magical age of not having to get up early to go to your job anymore, a life where an alarm clock is seldom needed. When you are getting to that age and you can't wait to retire, you never think that when you get up that first day after retirement you would think, "Now what do I do?"

That is what happened to Woodstock resident Jody LaSalle. After going to school to learn to become a Child Psychologist, and after years of schooling, training and finally obtaining her dream job, she saw her goals met.

As with many people out there, she also had a hobby, she had a love for horses and was a well known horse trainer and instructor. To this day she still judges horse shows. Judging shows is not a full time job though, and she still finds herself with too much

Brooklyn Fair Cattle Show

BY KAREN BUTERA
FOR THE VILLAGER

BROOKLYN — The Brooklyn Fair has been going strong for over 200 years. The 2019 event was held last weekend. It is the oldest running and uninterrupted agricultural fair in America. Every year the fair is organized and by the Windham County Agricultural Society. The Fair has become very popular to the area because there is something for everyone who comes out to visit - from the ever popular Little Miss and Mr. Brooklyn Fair Pageant to the bands that play. There are also all types of events such as racing pigs, every type of animal show imaginable, cooking contests, truck and horse pulls and every other interest one can possibly have.

One of the main attractions is the carnival in the midway, calling the attention of children and adults of all ages. Especially noticeable was the towering Ferris Wheel going round and round with brightly colored lights. There were also all of the usual rides with special ride bracelets that could be purchased early in the day. The all too familiar smell of grease cooking was prevalent bringing forth the scent of doughboys, onion blossoms and even fried Twinkies cooking.

For the farmer at heart, some of the favorites are the animal shows, especially the Cattle Shows. Many 4-H members bring their animals out for showing and to possibly be one of the ribbon winners.

Mackenzie Buell of Eastford and Rock Maple Farm, a dairy farm, has been around animals since she was born and had been working around them since she could remember. She has been a 4-H member for 7 years, and this year will be a Sophomore at Killingly High School in the Future Farmers of America program.

Her whole family is involved in the farm. Her mother and father, Jennifer and Jared Buell run the farm with her brother and wife helping out also. "The cows are milked twice a day," said Buell. "I help out with the milking. I get up every day at 5 am every day."

The cow she had at the fair was almost two years old, born in December, 2017. It was her sister's Cow named Thursday. "I am raising a Jersey Yearling named Sparkle, but she is seven months pregnant. That is why she is at home." She also feeds, cleans, baths and breeds them. "I was 9 years old when I first helped to deliver one and 12 when I delivered one on my own."

At the end of the day, she came in 5th in the Showmanship Class. In this competition the judge watches how well the person presents the animal. She was a first place winner in the breed class where she was judged on how the cow formed in the body, and 4th place in Get a Sire which shows how alike three cows are to the father.

With her love for animals, in her future she may end up becoming the next Buell family farmer.

Red Cross offers safety tips for students

PUTNAM — The school bells are calling students back to the classroom and the American Red Cross wants to make sure your student is safe as they head back to school for the upcoming year.

“While safety is a top priority for all students, there are special steps for parents of younger kids and those headed to school for the first time,” said Stefanie Arcangelo, Chief Communications Officer, American Red Cross Connecticut and Rhode Island. “Make sure the child knows their phone number, address, how to get in touch with their parents at work, how to get in touch with another trusted adult and how to dial 9-1-1. Teach children not to talk to strangers or accept rides from someone they don’t know.”

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY: If children ride a bus to school, they should plan to get to their bus stop early and stand away from the curb while waiting for the bus to arrive. Cross the street at the corner, obey traffic signals and stay in the crosswalk.

Never dart out into the street or cross between parked cars.

Teach your student to board the bus only after it has come to a complete stop and the driver or attendant has instructed them to get on.

Kids should board their bus only, never an alternate one.

Make sure your student always stays in clear view of the bus driver and never walks behind the bus. GETTING TO SCHOOL BY CAR, BIKE, ON FOOT: If children go to school in a car, they should always wear a seat belt. Younger children should use car seats or booster seats until the lap-shoulder belt fits properly (typically for children ages 8-12 and over 4’9”), and ride in the back seat until they are at least 13 years old.

If a teenager is going to drive to school, parents should mandate that they use seat belts. Drivers should not text or make calls use their cell phone and should avoid eating or drinking while driving.

Some students ride their bike to school. They should always wear a helmet and ride on the right in the same direction as the traffic is going.

When children are walking to school, they should only cross the street at an intersection, and use a route along which the school has placed crossing guards. Parents should walk young children to school, along with children taking new routes or attending new schools, at least for the first week to ensure they know how to get there safely. Arrange for the kids to walk to school with a friend or classmate. DRIVERS, SLOW DOWN! Drivers should be aware that children are out walking or biking to school and slow down, especially in residential areas and school zones. Motorists should know what the yellow and red bus signals mean. Yellow flashing lights indicate the bus is getting ready to stop and motorists should slow down and be prepared to stop. Red flashing lights and an extended stop sign indicate the bus is stopped and children are getting on or off. Motorists must stop when they are behind a bus, meeting the bus or approaching an intersection where a bus is stopped. Motorists following or traveling alongside a school bus must also stop until the red lights have stopped flashing, the stop arm is withdrawn, and all children have reached safety. This includes two and four-lane highways. If physical barriers such as grassy medians, guide rails or concrete median barriers separate oncoming traffic from the bus, motorists in the opposing lanes may proceed without stopping. Do not proceed until all the children have reached a place of safety. PREPARE FOR EMERGENCIES Know what the emergency plan is at your child’s school in case a disaster or an unforeseen event occurs. Develop a family emergency plan so everyone will know who to contact and where to go if something happens while children are at school and parents are at work. Details are available at redcross.org/prepare.

TAKE A FIRST AID CLASS The Red Cross First Aid App provides instant access to information on handling the most common first aid emergencies whether it be before, during or after school. Download the app for free by searching for ‘American Red Cross’ in your app store or at redcross.org/apps. Come to Eastford’s inspiring 5K for cancer patients

BY CAROL DAVIDGE FOR THE VILLAGER

EASTFORD — On September 14, at 10 a.m., the 8th annual “5K: We Never Stop Fighting in Loving Memory of Marilyn T. Krom” will kick off from Eastford Town Office Building, followed at 10:10 am by “Owen’s Run,” a fun event for children age 12 and under. People from all over New England have turned out for this, the only timed-race in Eastford. The people supported this year by the 5K are Lory

Kneeland and by Owen’s Run, the anonymous kidney donor for Eastford’s 30-year fire-fighter, Lincoln Budd. Registration for the 5K by 6 pm on Sept. 12 is $20; Day-of-Race Fee is $25. “Owen’s Run” has early sign-up fees of $10 by 6:00 pm on Sept. 12, or $15 for Day-of-Race registration. For either race, register online at runsignup.com. Group are discounts available-contact Sean@marilyntkromfoundation.org. To register or donate by check, make check payable to The Marilyn T. Krom Foundation, and mail to: Recreation Commission, Town of Eastford, PO Box 98, Eastford, CT 06242, or to “Go Fund Me For Our Friend Who Is ‘Sharing His Spare’” to assist the donor: <https://dm2.gofund.me/For-Our-Friend-Who-Is-Sharing-His-Spare>. Volunteers are needed. For information, contact Valerie at 860-933-8012.

Expenses for people facing serious illness - including the organ donor, are not covered by insurance. This year the donor will lose income during the surgery and recovery period, something that many families experience when a loved one is seriously ill. Such serious illnesses create never-ending financial, medical and emotional challenges. Lincoln Budd has lost one kidney to cancer, and the remaining kidney is struggling due to Chronic Renal Failure. Lincoln is one of Eastford’s faithful, serving in the Eastford Independent Fire Co. for 30 years and always helping with children’s activities and major events and fundraisers. Lory Neeland faces Non-Hodgkin Lymphoma. Lory is a volunteer through the Congregational Church of Eastford, and over the years has given much to the Eastford Community. The 5K race brings out people of all skills and interests - observers, competitive runners, walkers, parents pushing children in strollers, teens and members of the “Run 169 Towns Society.” Numbers are assigned at the Eastford Elementary School parking lot at 12 Westford Road starting at 8am. Winners in all categories receive medals. The race is in memory of Marilyn T. Krom, a nurse who helped many Eastford families before she died of uterine cancer in 2009.

good condition and trying to provide a good dry surface for walking on when possible. Most sheep are also sheared at least once a year. It is also important to keep an eye on their general health.

The five contestants from the Senior Class took turns showing their sheep by walking them in a circle before the judges. Some sheep wore coordinating collars to their owner’s clothing. Glaude’s sheep wore a pink scarf knitted by a family friend, while she wore a white wool skirt. Items could either be handmade or store bought, but a bonus was given to those items that were handmade.

Superintendent of the Sheep event said, “A contestant can earn up to 10 points. We are judging both the sheep and the garments. They are also judged on the lead line and how the garments complement each other between the owner and sheep. The garments should fit properly and be clean.”

Ray Doyle, one of the Judges and Glaude took fourth place on this interesting twist on a fashion show.

Locals see Navajo Code Talkers on 75th anniversary of WWII

DANIELSON — More than 150 youth members of the Young Marines, a national youth education and service program with troops from across the country, gathered in Window Rock, Arizona, to honor and learn from the Navajo Code Talkers from World War II.

Young Marine Sergeant Kyra Shaw, 16, of Woodstock Valley, and Young Marine /Master Sgt Aaron Zalewski, 16, of Webster, Mass., both youth members of the Natchaug River Young Marines in Danielson, traveled to Window Rock, Arizona last week to honor and learn from the Navajo Code Talkers from WWII. There are just five remaining Navajo Code Talkers from the 420 Navajo Marines who coded messages in WWII. More than 150 youth members of the Young Marines from across the country traveled to Arizona for three days of service culminating with a ceremony for National Navajo Code Talkers Day - Wednesday, Aug. 14.

Every year on August 14th, the Navajo Nation celebrates an elite group of World War II veterans - the Navajo Code Talkers. These remarkable patriots served their country by transmitting top-secret messages across enemy lines using the Navajo language as code - the only code unbroken by the Japanese in World War II. To date, only five of these veterans remain.

Since 2006, the Young Marines have traveled to Arizona each year to celebrate the Navajo Code Talkers and to meet the few remaining survivors in person.

The Navajo Code Talkers' story has been top secret for years, but the Young Marines help to keep their legacy alive.

"Navajo Code Talkers Day is an event that the Young Marines and the Navajo Code Talkers look forward to every year," said Brenda McNulty, Young Marines event coordinator. "Our partnership between the descendants of the Navajo Code Talkers and the Young Marines has strengthened year after year since 2006. It is a collaborative effort in which both parties create a successful event for everyone to enjoy."

The Young Marines participate for three days on the Navajo reservation. They escort the Navajo Code Talkers during Navajo Code Talker Day also participate in a parade, a trail run and clean up, community service at a zoo, and museum education. It is a jammed-packed three days of education and service.

"Just being around these exceptional veterans make us feel as though we could take a step back in time," said Col William P. Davis USMC (Ret), national executive director and CEO of the Young Marines. "The Young Marines are assuring the legacy of these very special veterans. They will not be forgotten."

About the Navajo Code Talkers: The Navajo code talkers took part in every assault the U.S. Marines conducted in the Pacific from 1942 to 1945. They transmitted messages by telephone and radio in their native language, a code that the Japanese never broke.

The idea to use Navajo for secure communications came from Philip Johnston, the son of a missionary to the Navajos and one of the few non-Navajos who spoke their language fluently. Johnston, brought up on the Navajo reservation, was a World War I veteran who knew of the military's search for a code that would withstand all attempts to decipher it.

Johnston believed Navajo answered the military requirement for an undecipherable code because Navajo is an unwritten language of extreme complexity. Its syntax and tonal qualities, not to mention dialects, make it unintelligible to anyone without extensive exposure and training. It has no alphabet or symbols and is spoken only on the Navajo lands of the American Southwest. Less than 30 non-Navajos, none of them Japanese, could understand the language at the outbreak of World War II.

Early in 1942, Johnston met with Major General Clayton B. Vogel, the commanding general of Amphibious Corps, Pacific Fleet, and his staff to convince them of the Navajo language's value as code. Johnston staged tests under simulated combat conditions, demonstrating that Navajos could encode, transmit, and decode a three-line English message in 20 seconds. Machines of the time required 30 minutes to perform the same job.

In May 1942, the first 29 Navajo recruits attended boot camp. Then, at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, California, this first group created the Navajo code. They developed a dictionary and numerous words for military terms. The dictionary and all code words had to be memorized during training, so there was nothing in writing to fall into the wrong hands.

Once a Navajo code talker completed his training, he was sent to a Marine unit deployed in the Pacific theater. The code talkers' primary job was to talk, transmitting information on tactics and troop movements, orders and other vital battlefield communications over telephones and radios.

The Navajos won praise for their skill, speed and accuracy.

"Were it not for the Navajos, the Marines would never have taken Iwo Jima," said Major Howard Connor, 5th Marine Division signal officer.

Connor had six Navajo code talkers working around the clock during the first two days of the battle. Those six sent and received over 800 messages, all without error.

The Japanese, who were skilled code breakers, remained baffled by the Navajo language. The Japanese chief of intelligence, Lieutenant General Seizo Arisue, said that while they were able to decipher the codes used by the U.S. Army and Army Air Corps, they never cracked the code used by the Marines.

In 1942, there were about 50,000 Navajo tribe members. As of 1945, about 540 Navajos served as Marines, 420 of those as code talkers. The rest served in other capacities as well as hundreds more serving in the other branches of the military.

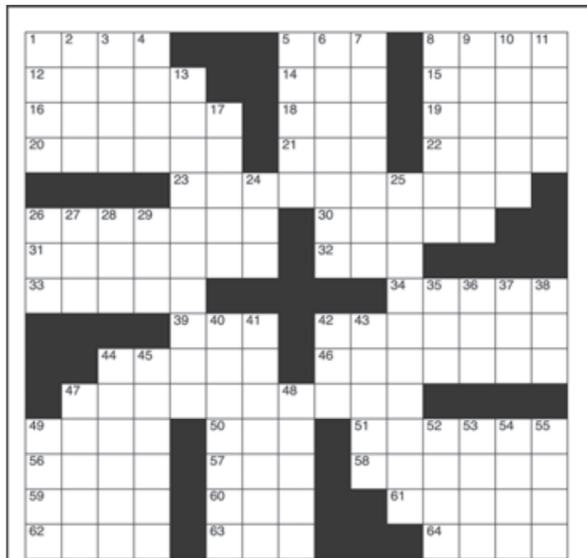

Navajo code talkers remained potentially valuable even after the war. For that reason, the code talkers, whose skill and courage saved both American lives and military engagements, only recently earned recognition from the government and the public.

In 1982, the code talkers were given a Certificate of Recognition by U.S. President Ronald Reagan, who also named August 14, 1982, as "Navajo Code Talkers Day."

The Code Talker Recognition Act of 2007 recognizes every code talker who served in the United States military with a Congressional Gold Medal for his tribe and a silver medal duplicate to each code talker.

About the Young Marines: The Young Marines is a national non-profit 501c (3) youth education and service program for boys and girls, age eight through the completion of high school. The Young Marines promotes the mental, moral and physical development of its members. The program focuses on teaching the values of leadership, teamwork and self-discipline, so its members can live and promote a healthy, drug-free lifestyle.

Since the Young Marines' humble beginnings in 1959 with one unit and a handful of boys, the organization has grown to over 264 units with 8,500 youth and 2,500 adult volunteers in 40 states, the District of Columbia, Japan and affiliates in a host of other countries. For more information, visit the official website at: <https://www.YoungMarines.com>.

Harris, named employee of the month

PUTNAM — Wilbert Harris, housekeeper for Day Kimball Healthcare has been named employee of the month for July by DKH.

Harris began working at DKH in July 2015 after retiring from his own commercial cleaning business. Prior to that, Harris volunteered as a Painter Pressman for The Hartford Times and was a subcontractor for several carpet and upholstery cleaning companies. In his role as a housekeeper, Harris is responsible for cleaning and maintaining sanitary, orderly and attractive conditions in spaces occupied by patients, staff, and visitors at the Hospital.

According to his supervisor, Rae-Lynn Salisbury, General Manager for Sodexo, "Will is most deserving of this award which recognizes his outgoing and helpful personality. Whether he is assisting patients, visitors, or co-workers, he is always willing to lend a hand and say a kind word. He is very outgoing and personable and genuinely cares about people. Will loves both his work and the opportunity to serve his community through working at Day Kimball."

In response to being named employee of the month, Harris said, "I am surprised to have been selected. I feel blessed to have been nominated for this award. I am truly thankful for this acknowledgement."

When asked what he likes most about his job, Harris said, "I love the daily interactions I have with people throughout the Hospital. This job gives me the opportunity to give back to this community by taking care of people every day."

Harris grew up in the Hartford County area before moving to Northeast Connecticut in 1998. He currently resides in Thompson, Connecticut with his life partner, Linda. Harris is a full time caretaker for Linda, and on a personal note he shared, "My partner and I have been patients on several occasions at Day Kimball Hospital. I am thankful to DKH for saving Linda's life a couple of times."

In his spare time, Harris volunteers in the community to help those in need. When not working or volunteering, Harris enjoys being outdoors and can

Back to school and back in time

PUTNAM — As school kids of all ages have been preparing for and returning to the ringing of the school bells, the Aspinock Historical Society of Putnam has a grade A program on tap.

The community is welcome to the free event, The History of Putnam's Many Schools, slated for Wednesday, September 11th at 7 p.m. at the Board of Education Pempek Conference Room, located at Putnam High School, with best entry and parking from Milton Street.

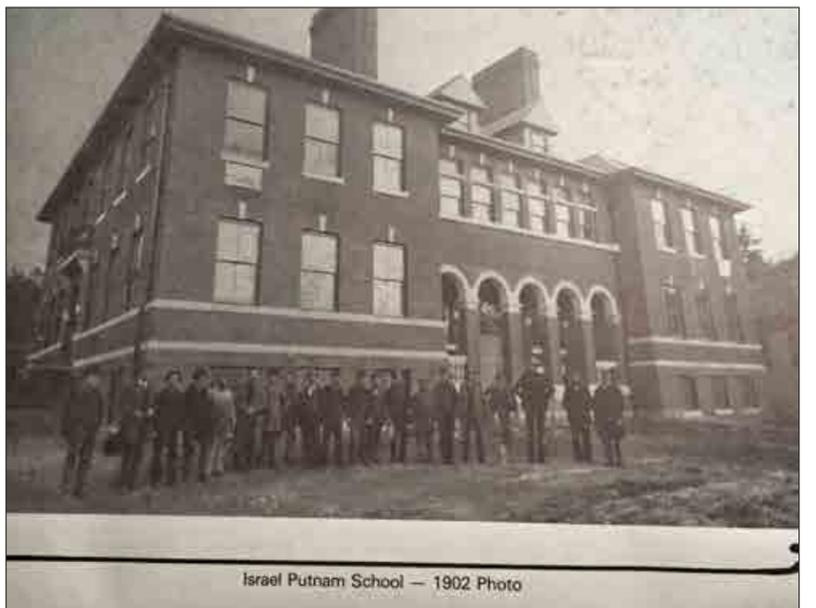

The History of Putnam's Many Schools will explore the evolution of education in Putnam and will celebrate Putnam Schools - from Cady-Copp Cottage, Israel Putnam School, Smith Street School and many more. Our "instructors" for the program will be two of Aspinock Historical Society's board members and retired teachers themselves, Louise Pempek and Jeanne Benoit.

There is plenty of room, so bring a friend, bring your school memories and see how things have changed in Putnam's Schools.

time on her hands. After retiring in 2014, she quickly got bored. After going to a farmer's market one day to purchase her fruits and vegetables, she was on her way home when she thought, "Why not bake products and sell them at local farmer markets."

"I have always loved baking," said LaSalle. "I would watch my grandmother bake and at age 3 or 4 I would stand on a stool and help her." That was the age she was when the bug for making bread bit her. She baked frequently for many years throughout her life, but once she obtained her job as a child psychologist, and was also training horses she found that the time she wanted to spend on baking was no longer there. She would only bake for the holidays. She never lost her love for baking.

Her retirement gave her an opportunity for another dream, her love of baking more often to come true. She was able to open Dugg Hill Farm Bakery in Woodstock. Her products were so popular with the farmer's market crowd that they built a commercial kitchen in the downstairs of her home. Baking bread is her main love, but so is making and selling various pastries - including pies, scones, cinnamon rolls, cookies and other delicious desserts.

Her breads are made with European non-GMO/chemical free flours, European or Cabot Butter and Connecticut free range Eggs. They grow their own herbs in their garden for their pastries and breads. They also make some gluten free and vegan friendly items.

For the holidays, she even makes her pie crusts gluten free.

She is busy woman once again, enjoying the time she spends in the kitchen baking. You can find LaSalle at the Putnam Farmer's Market on Monday afternoons and Saturday mornings, or contact her at team.lasalle@hotmail.com.

Brooklyn Fair, founded in 1809, going strong

BROOKLYN — This year's Brooklyn Fair ran from Thursday, August 22 through Sunday, August 25. The fair was founded in 1809. After getting off to a slow start for the first day this year due to the rain, the weather turned and the rest of the weekend couldn't have been better. Many local and non-local residents came out to see the shows, see what the vendors had to offer, ride the rides and eat some of the ever-popular carnival food.

Bins of memorabilia

The round table was piled high with glittering silver pieces. There were trays, covered vegetable dishes, candlesticks, coasters and more. The charming neighbors, an older couple offered them all to our daughter, if she wanted them. She was embarrassed and yet wanted several items as she likes to entertain. After she selected a few, the neighbors added more. They are moving to Florida and, as now so often the case, the items they lovingly collected, bought or inherited needed new homes. Once these objects, all silver plate but very pretty, were treasures, now just like brown furniture, few people want them.

I grew up in a house stuffed with furniture, rugs, books and prints that had belonged originally to other people. When she got the chance, my mother painted everything in her bedroom celery green. She wanted a blond coffee table and a large red ottoman and happily relegated other things to a slow death in the barn. Years later my husband and I zip stripped furniture, complaining bitterly about the paint my mother had applied. Tastes change over time.

Now we are in an era when "brown furniture", collections, anything that needs polishing, oriental rugs, china and crystal are out. As baby boomers downsize and millennials go minimalist, things I thought were lovely, useful and even valuable are often none of the above.

A friend told me recently about a collection of family letters she found that document life in the early 19th century in New Hampshire. She read the content of the letters into her computer and can access, save and share them with ease. Going forward I wonder how history will be studied. As we don't write letters, I suppose email will be the archive. I have thousands of photos on my little phone. The plastic bins of memorabilia I kept for our daughters can be preserved in the ether rather than stacks of their drawings from grade school. I have a bucket of plaques and trophies in the barn that were given to members of our family. It seemed irreverent to toss them out, but I will.

When I was in graduate school, I bought something I thought was really "cool". It was a set of inflatable furniture - orange inflatable chairs and even a small couch. For several months they looked fine and were fairly comfortable. Not everyone was impressed, but I thought I was being very modern. Around the holidays I gave a party. Someone had a pin or a pocketknife. When I awoke the next morning, my décor had deflated into pitiful pools of orange plastic. I tossed it all out. It was far junkier than what young people are buying today.

Our dining room chairs are apt to collapse under the weight of an average adult or a wiggling small child. There are rings on most of the tables from glasses placed without coasters and the fringe on our rugs shows signs of being chewed by long dead family dogs. A cupboard holds my wedding china and crystal, which I still use, but the door is crooked. An armoire is filled with my husband's clothes. It's likely none of it is of any value, but it feels like home to us.

I read that auction houses now focus on contemporary art, jewelry and wine. Well, good for them. I'll hang on a bit longer to the things we were given, we bought or were made by my husband. I'll take a spin through local antique shops, go to a few auctions, resist tag sales. Good things will always be in style.

A deception with plastic bags

This is pretty ludicrous! Look around your house. How much plastic is in the construction and day to day living of our lives? That the powers that be have placed a 10 cent charge on flimsy plastic bags at our checkout counters is just a revenue grabber. If it were truly a plastic problem, our entire way of life would be flipped. Bottom line, this state and many others are looking for revenue under a false narrative that charging for plastic bags at the checkout counter will have much of an impact. And, for those who want to avoid it, check out the recyclable, washable, larger bag for 7 cents at Aldi's.

The problem is not plastic. If it were, it would all be banned. It is the recycling of that plastic. How about some new ideas to deal with the issue of plastic harming our oceans and our world?

I'm noticing extremism in some letters

While I agree with some of Tom Pandolfi's comments regarding the change to the American character, I don't think immigrants and liberals are completely to blame as the letter seems to imply. Yes! We do have too many citizens* (note: citizens-Americans) who want everything free without working honestly for it. I believe most of the immigrant families come here for a better life and are very willing to work for the American Dream. I'm not referring to the gang members who do enter illegally for criminal purposes and I don't think all immigrants should be labeled as illegal. These immigrant families seeking refuge at our borders are desperately fleeing the very same suffering from extremists and terrorists in their homelands, as are the refugees escaping from the Middle Eastern countries that espouse extremism.

I remember 9/11, but I don't associate Muslim-Americans with the atrocities that the Islamic extremist/terrorists committed that day or any other since.

I'm noticing more "extremism" in some letters submitted lately to this paper. Why does everything have to get extreme? What's wrong with common sense and compromise? Why can't we disagree, debate, and even argue issues without anger and hatred for another who has a different opinion? Why must we label all Democrats as leftist, socialists or extreme liberals? And why assume all Republicans are bigots, women-haters, or Trumpists? What happened to "We, the People"?

We, the People, are being ruled and bullied, and divided by the partisan extremists in the Senate and White House.

No to Killingly gas power plant

NTE Energy's proposal for a fracked-gas power plant in Killingly has been approved by the Siting Council. The plant is not necessary to meet Connecticut's energy needs, is inconsistent with the state's green energy goals, is bad for the environment, and adds few jobs. Governor Lamont needs to reverse that decision.

We can meet our energy needs without the Killingly plant. Offshore wind is projected to produce 30% of our need. Department of Energy and Environmental Protection Commissioner Katie Dykes has said, "When that offshore wind is built - in compliment with all of the other zero carbon resources that we are deploying - it will squeeze out this natural gas power plant."

The plant would be inconsistent with legislation mandating green energy goals for the state. It would emit more than 2 million tons of carbon dioxide each year. And a recent Cornell report shows that there has been a surge in methane in the atmosphere due to the increased use of fracked gas. Methane is about 80 times worse for global warming than carbon dioxide in the first twenty years.

The plant would cause harmful pollution to the neighborhood and would only add about 20 permanent jobs. Wind and solar power have become cheaper than natural gas and the Killingly plant might well fail economically.

We are in a climate crisis. We must switch from gas to inexpensive wind and sun.

Please spend a few minutes phoning the Governor at 800-406-1527. And perhaps attend an organizing meeting Wednesday, September 4, 7 p.m., at the Killingly Library, 25 Wescott Road.

JOCK McCLELLAN
WOODSTOCK,

Which voice will you believe?

I was perspiring even though it was bitterly cold. I locked my gaze down the long slope and was stunned by the difference in perspective. From the base of the mountain, the run looked shallow and manageable but from this vantage point ... it seemed nothing short of treacherous. Falling and breaking a leg, or worse, were the thoughts coursing through my mind.

I took a breath, dug in my ski poles and pushed off. Just as in my lessons, I moved cautiously, slaloming from side to side, enjoying the experience. The bright sun, blue sky and white powder created a picturesque and perfect moment. A smile played across my face. I was in Vail, Colorado and somewhat gracefully enjoying a picturesque moment, balanced perfectly on top of my ski's.

Then it hit me. I'm inexperienced and potentially in a dangerous situation. I felt the downward momentum increasing. My heart raced. A picture in my mind replaced the beauty before me. As though it was real, I could see the ski patrol in their bright orange clothing, placing me in their stretcher and pulling me down to the base of the mountain to the waiting helicopter and the short flight to the local trauma center.

I visualized the danger so vividly I began scanning the snow ahead, searching for a place of my choosing to execute a controlled fall and I did.

I laid on the ground as other skiers whisked by, enjoying their day. I took inventory of my limbs and found everything was in working order. I was not paralyzed. Nothing was broken except my confidence and pride. I removed my ski's and spent the next few hours walking down the access road from an 11,000-foot peak.

I never put skis on my feet again.

Fear is a natural emotion that is ingrained into our DNA and can be useful in some situations but can also be an irrational response to events that are unreal and only imagined. Fear may someday save your life, but more often, this strong emotion will limit your experiences, success and fun.

The late great Zig Ziglar taught us that

POSITIVELY

MOORE

F.E.A.R. is nothing more than False Evidence Appearing Real. A perceived danger amplified in our minds that pushes us to have an irrational response.

I'd taken ski lessons every year, while visiting slopes in Wisconsin and Michigan. Tall hills to be sure, but nothing like the ski resorts of the Rocky Mountains. I mastered the midwestern slopes with ease and felt assured that I was ready for Vail. Physically and technically I was prepared. Mentally ... not so much.

I allowed doubt in my experience and ability to seize control over my thoughts and destroy my ski trip. I suddenly found myself expecting to fall and did so.

What if I would have expected to make it the bottom of the mountain, safe and sound and feeling the exhilaration of accomplishment and success?

My vacation was sabotaged. Not by an enemy that decided to steal my enjoyment, but by the voice in my head telling me all the ways I was going to be hurt. The only voice in my head is mine.

Skiing isn't an essential part of my life, but how many important life events or opportunities are destroyed with the same negative self-talk?

My skiing experience was almost thirty years ago. Life has taught me many lessons since then. If I were atop Vail Mountain today, looking down that breath-taking slope, I wouldn't listen to the voice of fear.

What is the voice telling you not to try? What job opportunity is the voice telling you that you are not qualified to take? What risk are you restricting yourself from taking that may be positively life changing?

The voice of truth.

You have the power within you to achieve greatness. Why should others enjoy the fruits of risk- reward? Why shouldn't the thrill of victory be experienced by you? Do you really believe the best of life is reserved for others or is it possible that the only person keeping you from living your dreams is you?

The best of life is only found on the other

How grandparents can help with college costs

.....
JIM ZAHANSKY
INVESTMENT ADVISER

As the cost of a college education continues to climb, many grandparents are stepping in to help. This trend is expected to accelerate as baby boomers, many of whom went to college, become grandparents and start gifting what's predicted to be trillions of dollars over the coming decades.

Helping to pay for a grandchild's college education can bring great personal satisfaction and is a smart way for grandparents to pass on wealth without having to pay gift and estate taxes. So what are some ways you can Plan Well and Invest Well, so one day you (and your grandchildren) may Live Well.TM too?

Outright cash gifts: A common way for grandparents to help grandchildren with college costs is to make an outright gift of cash or securities. But this method has a couple of drawbacks. A gift of more than the annual federal gift tax exclusion amount — $15,000 for individual gifts and $30,000 for gifts made by a married couple in 2019 — might have gift tax and generation-skipping transfer (GST) tax consequences (GST tax is an additional gift tax imposed on gifts made to someone who is more than one generation below you). Another drawback is that a cash gift to a student will be considered untaxed income by the federal government's aid application, the FAFSA, and student income is assessed at a rate of 50%, which can impact financial aid eligibility.

One workaround is for the grandparent to give the cash gift to the parent instead of the grandchild because gifts to parents do not need to be reported as income on the FAFSA. Another option is to pay the college directly.

Pay tuition directly to the college: Under federal law, tuition payments made directly to a college aren't considered taxable gifts, no matter how large the payment. So grandparents don't have to worry about the $15,000 annual federal gift tax exclusion. But payments can only be made for tuition — room and board, books, fees, equipment, and other similar expenses don't qualify. Aside from the obvious tax advantage, paying tuition directly to the college ensures that your money will be used for the education purpose you intended, plus it removes the money from your estate. And you are still free to give your grandchild a separate tax-free gift each year up to the $15,000 limit ($30,000 for joint gifts).

However, colleges will often reduce a student's institutional financial aid by the amount of the grandparent's payment. So before sending a check, ask the college how it will affect your grandchild's eligibility for college-based aid. If your contribution will adversely affect your grandchild's aid package, particularly the scholarship or grant portion, consider gifting the money to your grandchild after graduation to help him or her pay off student loans.

529 plans: A 529 plan can be an excellent way for grandparents to contribute to a grandchild's college or graduate school education, while simultaneously paring down their own estate. Contributions to a 529 plan grow tax deferred, and withdrawals used for the beneficiary's qualified education expenses are completely tax free at the federal level (and generally at the state level, too). Participation in a 529 plan isn't restricted by income level and lifetime plan contribution limits are

Hear the cotton mills humming in Killingly

KILLINGLY
AT 300

WEAVER

During the summer the Killingly Historical and Genealogical Society was asked by second grade teachers at Killingly Memorial School to provide information about mills which had been in Killingly. Since many of the visible landmarks, the factories themselves, are slowly disappearing, I thought that many of you might also find the topic interesting. This week's column will focus on mills prior to the Civil War.

Did you know that in 1836 Killingly was the Greatest Cotton Manufacturing Town in Connecticut? (This was even before the advent of the railroad in 1840 when more mills were constructed). I always find that most impressive!

As families settled in Killingly throughout the 1700's, they immediately needed saw and gristmills. They were fortunate to have a number of rivers and brooks in town for waterpower. Following are just a few of the earliest mills in the present town. In East Killingly the Chestnut Hill proprietors established a sawmill on Whetstone Brook by 1715. Nicholas Cady utilized the waterpower at the present Elmville (near the Dayville post office) end of the same brook and established both grist and sawmills a year or two later. A grist mill was operated on the Five Mile River above Daniels Village (Stone Road) by the mid 1720's. Members of the Danielson family ran one or more early mills on the Five Mile River in the present Danielson part of town. There were many others.

Throughout much of the 18th century many families imported clothing and/or cloth from England and abroad. The Revolution changed that. The need for "American" textiles was paramount. Killingly's greatest natural resource WATER became an economic blessing.

In 1787 the Connecticut General Assembly granted William Cundall of Killingly permission to establish a lottery to raise funds to introduce woolen manufacturing in the town. By 1789 he had established the factory on the Five Mile River in present-day Danielson (across from the Danielson post office near the parking lot). It was one of only four in the entire state. By 1810 that same area became the site of the first cotton factory of the Danielson Manufacturing Company. William Cundall Sr. and Jr., James Danielson and Comfort Tiffany (father of New York jeweler Charles L.) were among the original shareholders in this small wooden mill. Three additional small cotton mills were soon erected in other parts of town—in 1810 Stone Chapel in present-day Attawaugan; 1813, the Chestnut Hill Manufacturing Company of Judge Ebenezer Young on the Whetstone Brook in East Killingly, and in 1814 the Killingly Manufacturing Company in the Daniels Village section of town. (Weaver, Margaret and Geraldine & Raymond Wood, Miles of Millstreams, p. 61,62)

"By 1819 Killingly contained four cotton factories, one woolen factory, one gin distillery, one paper hanging manufactory, four dye houses, three clothiers' works, three carding machine, three tanneries, eight grain mills and eight sawmills" (Miles of Millstreams, p. 63, extracted from the Town Meeting Records).

During the 1820's additional small wooden mills were constructed on the Whetstone Brook, Quinebaug River, and Five Mile River: In 1824, Killingly Centre Factory on the Whetstone; about 1825, a cotton factory by Jabez Amsbury and Leonard Ballou in present-day Ballouville (a converted corn mill); in 1827, the Williamsville Manufacturing Company (the only cotton factory on the Killingly side of the Quinebaug River; in 1828, Leffingwell and Leavens (Sacramento) on the Whetstone below

Young's Chestnut Hill Factory; about 1828 Asa Alexander's mill on the Whetstone; by 1832 the Valley Mill on the Whetstone; by 1833, a mill by Thomas Pray and others at Elliotville below the Valley Mill; by 1833 the mill of John Day and William and Prosper Alexander on the Five Mile River at present-day Dayville; by 1833 the Amsbury mill in the present Pineville section of Killingly. These small mills often changed ownership and later second generation mills would be constructed. Unfortunately, these wooden mills were extremely flammable and a number of them burned.

Although it was located on the Brooklyn side of the Quinebaug River, the ca. 1827 Tiffany Mill of Comfort Tiffany was closely related to the economy and growth of the Killingly. In 1848 the Tiffany factory was purchased by a group of Rhode Island investors and construction on the factory of Quinebaug Company commenced. It was one of the catalysts that led to the formation of the Borough of Danielsonville (which originally included the factory village on the west side of the river).

"Directly across the Five Mile River from the westerly mill [of the Danielson's] stood another small cotton factory of the same type as the others. It appears to have been built by Cyrus Whitmore in the later thirties, and was called the Whitmore mill. Its north end abutted upon the river, just below the lower dam. Close east of this mill and lying along side of its mill pond (?), stood the village saw mill. The saw blade was of the old-fashioned vertical kind, of about four feet stroke, its powerful downward clips cutting a quarter inch into the pine logs, one to two feet thick at the butt, once every second, sixty clips per minute or thereabout." (WCT 2-8-1917; Danielson Before the War).

"At the mouth of the (Five Mile) river, on the south side, stood the little Cundall woolen mill, owned by Isaac Cundall, and built about 1830. It is said to have been a two-set satinet mill and was burned in 1855, nothing thereafter occupying the site" (Danielson Before the War).

The coming of the railroad spelled a new era for the textile industry. Previously raw materials and finished cottons had moved by wagons and teams through the greater Providence area. The north-south railroad changed the direction and facilitated movement of supplies and products to Norwich, New London, and points north and south. A number of second-generation investors, particularly in the mills along the Five Mile River from Attawaugan north, were prominent Norwich individuals.

In the 1850's Sabin and Harris Sayles constructed a small woolen mill in what is now Cat Hollow Town Park. It was destroyed by fire about 1858 but was rebuilt. — perhaps not until the 1870's (see Site #13 in Mills Along the Whetstone Brook by Richard Adams). In the 1850's the Sayles also operated a second woolen mill on the Five Mile River in Dayville. In the 1880's this was replaced by the Sayles factory (Prym's)

There were a number of mill fires during the 1850's, and the second-generation factories that replaced the original small mills were much larger than their forerunners and were constructed of brick and stone. I'll talk about those in another column.

high, typically $350,000 and up (limits vary by state).

As we discussed previously this month, there are two types of 529 plans: savings plans and prepaid tuition plans. A 529 savings plan is an individual investment account where you direct your contributions to one or more of the plan's investment portfolios, similar to a 401(k) plan. Funds in the account can be used to pay total qualified expenses (i.e., tuition, fees, room and board, books, supplies) at any accredited college in the United States or abroad. Funds can also be used to pay K-12 tuition expenses, up to $10,000 per year. By contrast, the less common 529 prepaid tuition plan allows you to purchase college tuition credits at today's prices for use in the future at a limited group of colleges that participate in the plan, typically in-state public colleges.

Grandparents can open a 529 account and name a grandchild as beneficiary (only one person can be listed as account owner, though) or they can contribute to an already existing 529 account. Grandparents can contribute a lump sum to a grandchild's 529 account, or they can contribute smaller, regular amounts.

Regarding lump-sum gifts, a big advantage of 529 plans is that under special rules unique to 529 plans, individuals can make a single lump-sum gift to a 529 plan of up to $75,000 and married couples can make a joint gift of up to $150,000 (which is five times the annual gift tax exclusion) and avoid federal gift tax. To do so, a special election must be made to treat the gift as if it were made in equal installments over a five-year period, and no additional gifts can be made to the beneficiary during this time.

Significantly, this money is considered removed from the grandparents' estate, even though in the case of a grandparent-owned 529 account the grandparent would still retain control over the funds. There is a caveat, however. If a grandparent were to die during the five-year period, then a prorated portion of the contribution would be "recaptured" into the estate for estate tax purposes.

If grandparents want to open a 529 account for their grandchild, there are a few things to keep in mind. If you need to withdraw the money in the 529 account for something other than your grandchild's college expenses — for example, for medical expenses or emergency purposes — there is a double consequence: the earnings portion of the withdrawal is subject to a 10% penalty and will be taxed at your ordinary income tax rate. Also, funds in a grandparent-owned 529 account may still be factored in when determining Medicaid eligibility, unless these funds are specifically exempted by state law.

Regarding financial aid, grandparent-owned 529 accounts do not need to be listed as an asset on the federal government's financial aid application, the FAFSA. However, distributions (withdrawals) from a grandparent-owned 529 plan are reported as untaxed income to the beneficiary (grandchild), and this income is assessed at 50% by the FAFSA. By contrast, parent-owned 529 accounts are reported as a parent asset on the FAFSA (and assessed at 5.6%) and distributions from parent-owned plans aren't counted as student income. To avoid having the distribution from a grandparent-owned 529 account count as student income, one option is for the grandparent to delay taking a distribution from the 529 plan until any time after January 1 of the grandchild's sophomore year of college (because there will be no more FAFSAs to fill out). Another option is for the grandparent to change the owner of the 529 account to the parent.

Colleges treat 529 plans differently for purposes of distributing their own financial aid. Generally, parent-owned and grandparent-owned 529 accounts are treated equally because colleges simply require a student to list all 529 plans for which he or she is the named beneficiary.

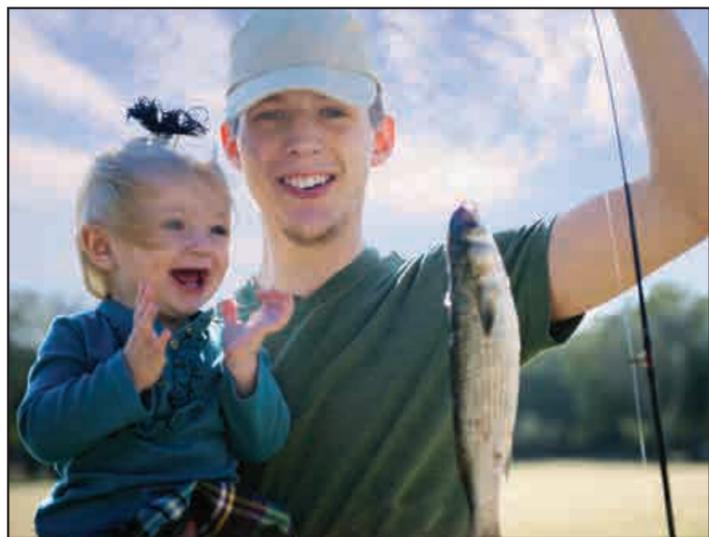

Generational planning: Many grandparents find paying for their grandchildren's education to be rewarding. They might have gotten a college education and want to pass on the gift of education, or maybe they weren't able to attend school and want to make sure their grandchildren do. Whatever the reason, it's important to know the differences of a grandparent-funded education, rather than the other options we have discussed this month.

As the school year begins, people of all ages may be applying to various schools, deciding on their major, or looking at post-graduation career options. One thing in all college students have in common is the concern for how to pay for their education. This month of articles was meant to ease the stress by showing you that planning is an essential part of paying for college. Following the strategic Plan Well. Invest Well. Live Well.TM process can illustrate how your goals overlap and how being proactive can be beneficial. MOORE

Let me share the words of one of my favorite songs by a group called Casting Crowns ...

Oh, what I would do to have
The kind of strength it takes to stand before a giant

With only a sling and a stone.
Surrounded by the sound of a thousand warriors shaking in their armor
Wishing they'd have had the strength to stand.

But the giants calling out my name and he laughs at me

Reminding me of all the times I've tried before and failed

The giant keeps on telling me time and time again

"Boy you'll never win! You'll never win!"

But the voice of truth tells me a different story.

The voice of truth says, "Do not be afraid."

A beautiful song. Wise words.
Where is your mountain? Who or what is your giant?

Will you stand or will you run?

Now ... put down this newspaper and

Pick up your sling and stone.

FOR THE VILLAGER

THOMPSON — Tourtellotte Memorial High School was well represented earlier this month in the 38th annual Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC), which to date has raised more than $700 million for cancer research at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Kim (Maynard) Aucoin, Tourtellotte Memorial High School Class of 1991, and her brother Corey Maynard, THS Class of 1992, both completed the longest leg of the ride; the 192-mile stretch from Sturbridge to Provincetown that takes two days to complete.

Aucoin and Maynard both said that they know many people who have been through the ordeal of having cancer, including their mother, Dorothy, who is a cancer survivor.

This summer’s ride was Aucoin’s third straight year participating in the PMC; Maynard joined his sister on the ride two years ago.

“It’s such a great event; I definitely plan to ride again next year,” said the 46-year-old Aucoin, who lives in Dudley and works in Webster at MAPFRE Insurance. “It’s the people cheering you on along the way that makes this so special to me. There are so many hills in the beginning and, because of the heat, you don’t think you’re going to make it. But then the people start cheering you on, telling you that you can do it — and they’ve got signs in their front yard encouraging you, too. It’s all awesome, and you somehow push through.”

Aucoin, who was part of MAPFRE’s 17-member PMC team, raised $5,585 this year, while MAPFRE raised nearly $420,000. A portion of the money MAPFRE raised came through its policy holders. Any policy holder who donated $25 was offered a five percent discount on their auto insurance. The $25 donation goes directly into the pool of MAPFRE PMC donations.

Her work with the PMC is not Aucoin’s first foray into cycling to raise money for a worthy cause.

“I’ve been involved with cycling, on and off, for about 20 years,” Aucoin said. “In 1998 and 2000 I participated in AIDSrides. I rode both years from Boston to New York. It’s about a 300-mile ride; it took three days, and I completed it both years on a mountain bike.”

Maynard, who also had mountain biked back in the day, got back into cycling to improve his health.

“I started riding again back in 2012 for fitness; I wanted to lose weight,” said Maynard, who participated in the PMC as a solo rider this year and raised $8,866. “I work in Boston for Gillette and I was in Berlin [Germany] on business and I went out cycling with a co-worker.

We were on road bikes — like Kim, I had always ridden a mountain bike — and I thought ‘this is great.’ So I came back from that trip and bought a road bike.”

It was no simple feat, however, getting his sister to convert.

“It took me two years to convince Kim to buy a road bike,” said Maynard, a Northbridge resident who will turn 45 next month. “We would ride together, me on the road bike, she on the mountain bike, which weighed three times as much as a road bike. At one point I was like, ‘hey, you’re slowing me down. Get a real bike.’”

Maynard said he didn’t participate in the PMC with Aucoin back in 2017 for one simple reason.

“I wasn’t ready for it. I was 40 pounds heavier and really didn’t want to do a 200-mile ride carrying all that excess weight,” said Maynard, who shed the pounds by increasing his riding mileage and training a lot in the gym. “Back then we both lived in Dudley so we would meet up and go on rides together. The more we did that the more I got into cycling.”

Both Maynard and Aucoin train for the PMC from April to July, riding outdoors three days a week and indoors on a spin bike another three to four times a week. Aucoin prefers her training to involve road work.

“I love it; I’d ride outside every day if I could,” Aucoin said. “If it’s nice out I’m outside riding. I try to ride every day if I can.”

There is a third Maynard family member involved in the PMC. Older sister Pam Maynard doesn’t ride, but she does help out.

“I’m there for support. I pick them up at the end of the race when they’re finished,” said Pam Maynard with a laugh.

Maynard, however, does more than that.

“This year I volunteered to work with the PMC. MAPFRE set it up that any employees who wanted to volunteer, they would provide transportation to the PMC headquarters in Needham,” Pam Maynard said. “We were there for about six hours putting together ‘rider packages,’ which basically consisted of a list with bike jersey size, identification bands for the riders, luggage and bike tags.”

Priscilla was predeceased by her husband, John S. Armitage, Sr. of 14 years and son, John S. Armitage, Jr. She is survived by her daughter, Karen Harper and husband Cornelius of Ashford and son Ralph W. Armitage of Eastford; She had 8 grandchildren and 14 Great Grandchildren. Priscilla is survived by her sister Joan Blash, brother, James Dobson and sister, Elaine Tennis and her husband James along with her two dogs, Chichi and Princess.

Priscilla will be fondly remembered as "Ma Bear" and/or "Boss" by many. She will be missed dearly. Her favorite past time was shopping and traveling. Lots of what she purchased went to many others. She loved to go shopping at tag sales and second-hand stores, always looking for a bargain. She spent her days with her dogs, watching the birds from the window, gardening if weather permitted and watching her stories. There will be no services at her request.

Thomas "Tom" P. McNulty, 58

Thomas "Tom" P. McNulty, 58, passed away on Friday, August 16, 2019 at his home in Putnam after an illness. He was born in Meriden, CT on April 11, 1961, son of the late Gerald and Maryann (Molgoliski) McNulty. Tom is survived by his wife Robin and his son Connor (and fiancée Olivia) currently of Idaho, his sister Marlene (McNulty) Robarts of Haverhill, MA, as well as his small family in Woodstock.

Tom was a nature lover and loved walking in the woods at the Audubon Society in Pomfret with Connor and their golden retriever, Bear. Tom enjoyed reading and collecting books, listening to music and watching the Red Sox. He loved family celebrations at Thanksgiving and Christmas (especially the leftovers) and sang the praises of Converse All Stars as the only shoe he wanted to wear.

There will not be a public service, but his family will be celebrating with one another privately. Arrangements by Smith and Walker Funeral Home, 148 Grove Street, Putnam, CT. In lieu of flowers, a donation may be made in his memory to the Connecticut Audubon Center at Pomfret, P. O. Box 11, Pomfret Center, CT 06259. Share a memory at www.smithandwalkerfh.com

Cruising tips and tricks

Cruising can be an ideal vacation for people of any age, but particularly for seniors. Cruises combine all-inclusive meal packages with accommodations, breathtaking ports of call and pre-arranged activities, so vacationers do not have to lift a finger for days on end. Cruising also can be a social activity, meaning singletons can meet up with other like-minded people and enjoy the cruising experience together.

Cruise Lines International Association, a global organization advocating for the cruising community, found that 25.8 million passengers expected to take a cruise in 2017, and various cruise companies invested more than $6.8 billion in new ocean vessels.

Whether a person is new to cruising or is a seasoned ocean or river traveler, there are always techniques to try to score great deals or enjoy the experience even further. Consider these tips and tricks, courtesy of Royal Caribbean, The Cruise Critic, the Travel Channel, and other vacationing experts.

- Research the ships, and not just the cruise lines. Cruise lines each offer their own amenities and are known for certain features. One cruise line may be a better match for young singles, while others may cater to families. In addition, certain ships may have their own special features such as water slides, athletic events, casinos, and more. Choose a ship that meets your needs.

- Arrive the night before. There's no need to rush to the port to board the ship. Extend the vacation a little further by arriving a night or two before and checking into a nearby hotel. Some hotels may offer free parking or shuttle service to the ship.

- Choose a close port. Select a port within driving distance to avoid airline costs and the extra hassles of coordinating luggage and travel to the port.
- Book dining ahead of time.

Cruise ships often have a main dining room and then specialty restaurants. If you want a particular meal, make reservations before leaving port. Certain restaurants may offer discounts or perks, such as a free bottle of wine or premiere seating.

- Understand what's included. Cruise ships have many foods and drinks that are included in the packaged price. Certain branded items, such as specialty coffees or ice creams, may be available at an additional charge, as are premium drinks. But chances are you can find a free, similar version elsewhere on the ship.

- Explore special discounts. When shopping for a cruise, see if there are discounts available for seniors, teachers, people in the military, or those who belong to certain clubs. Cruises often love to incentivize, so it pays to ask about discount pricing.

- Make a list of activities. It can be easy to get overwhelmed by all of the offerings on a cruise ship, so much so that there's some stress over trying to fit it all in. Recognize that you can't see or hear it all, and prioritize what's important to you. Make sure you have plenty of time to relax.

- Book at the right time. Cruises may be more available after Labor Day when kids go back to school and the weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas when others are too busy to travel.

Cruising can be an ideal vacation for travelers who are savvy enough to do their research.
