WEBSTER — The school system formally said goodbye to Business Manager Ted Avlas, who retired Feb. 28 after 10 years in his post and a previous 10 on the School Committee.

"It's been an unbelievable, brief 10 years sitting on this side of the table," he said after he arrived late because of another meeting that ran overtime. "It's a little different on this side from that side."

Avlas said he has found both positions "most rewarding" because of their impact on Webster's children, and sees himself as proof they can grow up to be successful and participate in their community, either as a business manager or committee member.

"No one guy does anything alone, and certainly in our office, we've been a great team," he said.

Later, he added, "I had a great staff and administration, and it was a pleasure coming to work every day with people who took pride in our work."

To prepare for his last meeting, Avlas said he Googled "famous last quotes," and found the most appropriate one to be

That doesn't mean he won't enjoy retirement?

GARDECKI NAMED ALTERNATE

BY JASON BLEAU

DUDLEY — You can't keep a good man down, so they say, and it seems that saying goes for elected town officials as well. Despite retiring from the Board of Selectmen in 2017, Peter Fox is taking a new role in the community by officially joining the Personnel Board as a full member.

Fox had been serving as an alternate on the board for several months before being promoted to full-fledged member in late February. The much-respected former selectman has been an important part of recent meetings, filling in a vacancy temporarily. He has been a participant in numerous high-profile

Costs of special ed examined

BY JASON BLEAU
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

With budget season in full swing in the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District, one of the most contentious areas of discussions always seems to be the cost of special education.

The regional school committee got an update on that area during a meeting in late February, as Jeff Ferranti, the director of special education, explained his department is working to provide whatever services are necessary and required to students in the two towns, while also keeping in mind ways to cut costs and handle certain services without third-party involvement.

"There are areas that we've identified that we want to look at closer, especially in our out of district placements and looking at how efficiently we use our out of district staff. Those are two key areas we're constantly looking at."

Shepherd Hill's Illusion female performing group celebrates numerous wins at the Connecticut Classic Festival on March 3.

BY JASON BLEAU
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

Shepherd Hill Regional High School's young performers were celebrated during a meeting of the Dudley Board of Selectmen on Feb. 26 as the bands and chorus groups were lauded by the educators that helped lead them to recent national victories.

Shepherd Hill band teacher Dave Macuga started the discussion praising the students behind the instruments and their success during Macuga's short time with the school. Calling the band a "family" that treats their duties with the group like a part-time job, Macuga explained that over the last few years the school's band has excelled, taking a national title for the third year.

"This was the 11th year that we went down to US Band Nationals and the first year they went in 2006 we won a national championship and then we moved up a division. The last time we won was actually two years ago," said Macuga. "This was the third time this past year that we won a national title and that was in division two open. The first year was Division 3A and then we moved up to Open Class. A lot of hard work goes into it. A lot of time

School admin moves into new home

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — After a couple of years of funding issues and remodeling work, the Webster school administration has officially moved to its new home at Bartlett High School from the old Filmer School.

For Maria Santerre, particularly, it's sparked a bit of mixed emotions.

"The day we moved, I had to go and make peace with the building because I'd been there so long," she said, noting she'd been "doing three flights of stairs" and seeing "a specific maple tree out my window" for 33 years. Now, she'll have time to get to know the cluster of trees outside her new window, including one that's got a bit of a twist in its trunk. "This is a really nice upgrade."

Visually, the two locations might not be more apart. Filmer was noted for its wood paneling and rather tight office spaces; the new site, in Bartlett's long-unused tech workshops that are officially 77 Poland St., is far airier, with lots of glass allowing views of the outdoors, and between offices, and space to move around within them.

Like her fellow administration staff, Lori Glennon is slowly unpacking boxes, and probably will be for a while.

Car Buying Tips

Customers ask place: When is the best time to buy a Car or Truck?

The RIGHT answer: (PART 3) The NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT theory. Almost every day is a good day to buy a new car or truck. We know that most new cars have rebates from the manufacturer. They may also have special finance terms or some combination of both. This theory is based on the fact that if you are trading your car, its value is at its highest right now. Depreciation is always eating away at the value of a used car. The other aspect to consider is the factory incentives when buying a new car. Incentives can be a volatile thing and can change at the drop of a hat. Manufacturers like Ford watch the markets very closely. They adjust their strategies based on sales and production targets in an effort keep the factories moving. As inventory levels, market share and consumer demand change the rebates and incentives change. A strong economy and low inventory might mean fewer rebates. High inventory or the desire to gain market share might mean higher rebates. In any case what we know today is how a vehicle is priced. If a customer finds a vehicle that fits their needs and the numbers make sense then buy now. Waiting could cost you more. Our current economy appears to be at a turning point. If the rebates go down or stay the same and your trade has lost more value your cost to buy will have gone up. Let us here at Place Motor show you how to take advantage of the current incentives and get the most for your trade. Let us show you why we are the Right Place to buy a Ford since 1923.

Fire companies depend on help from this friend

This aging fire support vehicle needs replacement, and residents are asked to assist the effort through a fundraiser.

BY KEVIN FLANDERS
NEWS STAFF WRITER

Firefighters are always ready to assist those in need throughout their communities and beyond. Now, with the launch of a major regional fundraiser, organizers are calling on residents to return the favor.

The Grafton Fire Department's rehab support vehicle — better known as the canteen truck — has been dispatched to countless fires in area towns over the years. After battling blazes and saving lives and property, exhausted firefighters in 26 central Massachusetts towns rely on the truck for hydration before continuing their work.

But the lifespan of the 37-year-old vehicle is almost burnt out, and fundraiser organizers are asking residents to help fund its replacement. The fundraising challenge began in February and will run through April 30. The current canteen truck, a 1981 Chevrolet van, was donated in 2003 and was outfitted by members of the Grafton Fire Department.

Since then, the truck has responded to thousands of blazes, playing just as critical a role as the ladder and pumper units that put out the fires. The truck is staffed by off-duty firefighters and even the spouses of firefighters, who understand better than anyone the importance of hydration during responses.

"I have been to a lot of fires. When you come out of a house afterward, you're exhausted. It's so important to have that place to sit down and get refreshed, especially if you have to go back into a burning building," said retired Grafton FD firefighter Andy Kjellberg, who helped promote the fundraiser.

Towns served by the canteen truck include Auburn, Brookfield, Charlton, Douglas, Dudley, East Brookfield, Holland, Leicester, Northbridge, North Brookfield, Oxford, Southbridge, Spencer, Sturbridge, Sutton, Uxbridge, Warren, Webster and West Brookfield, among others. Many fires require mutual aid services from multiple departments, and the truck remains on scene to assist all firefighters.

In addition to water and Gatorade, the truck is stocked with warm beverages in the winter months and cold drinks during hot weather. The truck has even been requested at such events as the Boston Marathon.

All of the supplies and equipment on the truck are funded entirely through donations. Depending on the size of the call, the canteen truck can serve coffee, hot cocoa, soup, and even sandwiches. With your help, officials are hoping to purchase an even larger canteen truck as a replacement (at least 16 feet long) that can serve even more firefighters.

Several Grafton organizations have established a matching gifts pool from which they will match any donation made. Now they are calling on you to help firefighters to better serve those in need during emergencies.

"So many firefighters have benefited from having this truck at the scene. It means a lot to have the community's support in this effort," added Kjellberg, who spent 23 years with the Grafton Fire Department.

Not only will community donations help fund the purchase of the new vehicle, but they will also defray the costs of several supplies and services. These include a new freezer and refrigerator to aid in food storage; blankets and clothes to assist fire victims; a stove; three sinks to meet Board of Health requirements; and a small bathroom. During lengthy fire responses, firefighters are sometimes forced to ask neighbors to use their bathrooms, and community donations will go a long way toward enhancing the services of the support vehicle.

If you would like to send a donation, please make your check payable to: Grafton Firefighters Association – Rehab. Checks can be mailed to, or dropped off at, Grafton Fire Department, 26 Upton St., Grafton, MA 01519.

If you have questions about the fundraiser, please send an email to barkerc@graffon-MA.gov.

Webster Republican Town Committee reorganizes

WEBSTER — On Thursday, Feb. 15 the Webster Republican Town Committee met for a reorganization meeting, doubling their membership and electing new leadership. In light of the upcoming US Senate race, Republicans in Webster were drawn to the committee in hopes of defeating Elizabeth Warren in this election cycle.

Political activist and local organizer Tyler Spencer was elected chairman, with State Representative and past chairman Joseph McKenna being elected treasurer, and Lori Joubert elected secretary.

"I am excited about the enthusiasm for the Republican party in Webster and the entire southern Worcester County area," said Spencer. "In Webster, we're lucky to have excellent representation on Beacon Hill with a state representative and state senator who, among other things, voted against the legislative pay raises last January."

On the US Senate race Spencer commented "We have a US Senator that simply does not represent the average Massachusetts voter. She votes consistently against things that matter here in the Commonwealth such as funding to fight the opioid crisis and tax relief for Massachusetts families."

Added Representative McKenna, "In Massachusetts we are lucky to have the most popular and effective Governor in America in Republican Charlie Baker. While we may not agree with him 100 percent of the time, Governor Baker shows everyone, regardless of political affiliation, what dignified and responsible government leadership looks like. We look forward to fully supporting his re-election this fall to maintain some political balance in the state."

If anyone would like to be involved with the Webster Republican Town Committee, they may contact Tyler Spencer at (508) 414-7937 or email him at tspencer335@gmail.com.

Please Help Fill a Ford with FOOD

The United Way of Webster & Dudley along with Place Motor in Webster are asking for the communities help with their upcoming food drive Fill a Ford with Food. The event will take place on Saturday March 17th and Sunday March 18th, 2018 from 11 am to 3 pm at Price Chopper in Webster and Park N Shop in Dudley. According to United Way Executive Director Janet Scheffler "we are very excited to be partnering with Place Motor for our first ever food drive. The food collected over the weekend will go to the food pantry at St. Vincent DePaul at Sacred Heart parish in Webster a United Way funded partner and Webster Dudley Food Share on Main Street in Webster a great United Way friend."

Steven Place CEO at Place Motor said he wanted to help out the local community and contacted Mrs. Scheffler to see if we could try and fill two Ford trucks at our two local grocery stores with food for local people and families in need. "We are proud to offer our assistance to these two wonderful organizations who help so many local families and individuals in need all year long. I was surprised and saddened to learn from Mrs. Scheffler that over 100 families per week reach out to either St. Vincent DePaul or Webster Dudley Food Share for assistance. Thank goodness they are there with healthy, nutritious food, so no one in our community needs to go hungry. The opportunity is here for all of us to help them help others" he said.

Students from the National Honor Society at Bartlett High School will be at both locations helping collect food as well. We urge our local residents to come by either location with food to donate or to buy an extra item or two while shopping that weekend at Price Chopper and Park N Shop to put in the trucks and help us "Fill a Ford with Food". Your kindness is truly needed and greatly appreciated" said Mrs. Scheffler. For more information contact the United Way at 508-943-7500.

March Real Estate Market Update

Interest rates have increased compared to where they were a couple months ago. According to Bankrate.com as of 3/11/2018 the rate on a 30 year fixed loan was 4.34% which is steady with where the rate was last month. It is easy to compare our most recent rates to these rate and consider them high but the rates are still at one of the lowest levels in history. Refinancing is definitely still a good option but always look at the effective rate of your mortgage and if you have been paying it down for years the better rate may lower your payment but may not help you to pay down your loan as quickly. Today we have 1221 single family homes for sale in Worcester County compared to 6 months ago where we had 1203 homes for sale which is the first time in many months that the inventory increased in Worcester County. If we look back to 12 months ago we had 1490 homes for sale in Worcester County which shows a 18.1% decrease in inventory year over year which is the same as the year over year decrease from last month. definitely continuing to cause prices to rise in most areas. The average days on market is currently 141 days while it was 113 days in September which tells me we are continuing to cycle through the inventory but slightly slower early fall. If we look at homes sold over past 12 months compared to the same time for the previous year there is an almost 0.5% increase in sales and a 4.7% increase in average sales price while it is taking over 20% faster to sell the homes this year than last year in Worcester County. This shows that prices are still rising and homes are still selling quicker than a year ago. The increase in sales and average sales price was less than last month.

The numbers again are all positive and showing continued growth with no immediate signs of a change in the market. This is the first month that we had an increase in inventory however this is normal as we are entering the spring market. It is crucial to hire a Realtor familiar with your market especially in this market where it seems you can just put a sign out front and get a bunch of offers. The right agent will ensure you get the most money for the house in the shortest amount of time.

Beatles multi-media event in Oxford

OXFORD — A Cultural and Historical Reflection of the 1960s Through the Music of The Beatles will be presented in Oxford on Thursday, April 5 beginning at 11 a.m. at the Oxford Senior Center, 323 Main St.

The Beatles are the most influential band in history. In 1964, their breakout moment was on The Ed Sullivan Show, where an estimated 73 million viewers tuned in to see the "Lads from Liverpool" in their first live American television performance. On April 4, 1964, they became the only artists to ever occupy the top five spots of the Billboard Hot 100 chart simultaneously. With landmark albums like Revolver and Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, they consistently broke musical barriers.

They have sold more than one billion records. As a testament to their longevity and popularity, their album titled 1, containing all their #1 hits, was the best-selling album of the 2000s. Their music is timeless and appeals to fans in every generation.

This performance combines live music with a multi-media presentation to explore, not only the music of The Beatles, but the influence they exerted in every area of the cultural landscape.

The presenter is Fran Hart, founding member of the Beatles Tribute Band 4EverFab. The presentation is free and open to all.

The presentation is sponsored by the Oxford Council on Aging.

This program is supported in part by a grant from the Oxford Cultural Council, a local agency which is supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

Work on display at the Pearle showcases vibrant work

The Pearle L. Crawford Memorial Library is host the work of noted Boston-area artist David Omar White (1927-2009) now through June 30.

White's style and methods evolved greatly over the course of his long and prolific career, and the exhibit represents his most recent work, executed right up until his passing in 2009 at 82. His vibrantly colorful work spans multiple mediums, from oil, watercolor and acrylic paints, with subtle and thoughtful three-dimensional elements often utilized.

His late work drew inspiration from the myths and statuary of the First Nation populations of the American Northwest, tribal masks, and classical music.

The oldest of five children, raised by a single mother during the height of the depression, White enlisted in the Navy during World War II and pursued his fine arts education with the GI Bill. He studied under Henry Lee McFee at Claremont College, began his life as a working artist and never stopped creating.

In addition to being a painter, David Omar White was also an illustrator, muralist, printer and sculptor. He created a long-running political cartoon strip called "The White Rabbit" that ran from 1974-84. His style changed over the course of his life and he was no stranger to reinventing himself along the way.

The work on display is a small portion of his family's vast collection.

The Pearle L. Crawford Library, 40 Schofield Ave., is open Monday and Thursday 10 a.m.-8 p.m., Wednesday and Friday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Reputation makes stronger people claims speaker

With a screenshot of her book in the background, Veronika Gasparyan speaks to Bartlett students last Friday as part of Diversity Week.

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — Many people think coming to a place that gets panned on the Internet is a bad idea. Not Veronika Gasparyan.

To her, the criticism suggests its people have tougher lives and are therefore stronger people.

"I looked up your school online and I didn't read nothing good about it, and I thought that's why I've got to go there," she told Bartlett High School's full auditorium last Friday, noting Bartlett's description made her think the kids would grow up to be "real people, no BS people."

Such challenges "make the difference between regular kids and strong-willed kids. It just shows you have personality; you have strength and are not a flower," she said.

Gasparyan knows such challenges well. She was born in Sochi, Russia, daughter of middle-class intellectual Armenians (a teacher and doctor) in 1981. For the first seven years, she "had a good life." Then, for some reason, her family turned into abusive monsters.

"My brother was born and my life changed overnight," she recalled. "My mother became like a demon."

Gasparyan became her brother's primary caretaker — hence the title of her book, "Mother at Seven" — but that was the least of her worries. Within a year, physical and other abuse began, some of it at the hands of an "uncle."

"I was told he was an uncle, but he was really a family friend," she recalled, noting his assaults were varied and "not cool things for sure."

Eventually, she told her grandfather what was happening, but "he said everything happens for a reason."

Gasparyan came to find that true; to her, the abuse was "almost like a blessing because it made me really strong," although she also admits "I shouldn't have hardship to write about."

Very early on, even before the abuse got really bad, she seriously considered jumping out of her fifth-floor window (the start of her book talks about wanting to join an eagle she saw soaring), but her brother "crawled to me and grabbed my leg," she said. She realized if she killed herself, he'd probably face similar abuse, so she didn't, although she noted several later attempts.

Beyond those, she said she often "tried to get attention" in various ways, including getting expelled from school (and beaten up at home) for burning down the school's Christmas tree. Sometimes, the attention was positive: "I was a protector of the geeks in our school," she said. "They got all the abuse, and I went to fight their bullies."

To this day, Gasparyan sees bullying as "primitive." It's not a sign of strength, but "insecurity; it's something they're missing. Deep inside, you're actually asking for love... It's a call for love or a sign of love, but the person doesn't know how to do it."

Bullying took a rather unique form for Gasparyan: Her parents tricked her into coming to the US at age 17 by claiming she'd be visiting a grandmother. When she got here, she knew no English and within a day was forced to marry an abusive man twice her age, then her parents left her here.

"I went from hell to hell," she recalled.

That was 19 years ago. Eventually, she learned the language (starting with Jerry Springer) was able to run away from him and raise her son on her own. Since then, her mother has tried to reconnect with her, but she isn't very receptive. As she put it, "I have parents, but they were not good.

I'd prefer to not have parents."

For Sarah Argentieri and Alex Grande, the teachers who coordinated her visit as part of this year's Diversity Week, that's probably a feeling that resonates with quite a few of their students. Grande said she met Gasparyan at a restaurant that hosted a painting class, and they talked about her book. Afterward, Gasparyan visited her home, donated several books and Grande incorporated them into her classes, as did Argentieri.

"She connected so well with the kids in my class," Grande said. "Some kids had to put the book down because it hit home."

Both teachers agreed on that point — Gasparyan's story in print is far more graphic than what she said Friday. Argentieri noted using the book is "a balancing act" between being honest about abuse and avoiding the fact it can trigger some kids who know it all too well. That's why she, as an English teacher, tends to use less of it than Grande, a health teacher, does.

But both like the underlying message Gasparyan brings.

"She never speaks [in public], but she came for us," Grande said. "I would never have guessed that was her life."

"You can have the worst abuse possible and look at how successful you can be," Argentieri said.

Bay Path sends $22M budget to towns

BY GUS STEEVES
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — Bay Path School Committee voted unanimously to send its $22,347,358 budget to its member towns Monday, after a public hearing attended by just one person who wasn't press.

"We're very excited there are no reductions of services being delivered to students except the continuing planned phase-out of small engines," Superintendent Director John LaFleche said, referring to the fact the coming year will be the last for the power equipment shop, which is being replaced by an information support services and networking program. That's being created to teach the hardware and software aspects of building and running networks, including cybersecurity, with the fourth year being one where students take classes for credit at Quinsigamond Community College.

From a fiscal perspective, though, the overall budget will see a change from many previous years — although it's one Bay Path announced last year they have to do. To catch up to years of spending below the state's Net School Spending requirement, the district is requesting $200,000 extra this year, spread among member towns.

That's been happening "ever since the state began identifying it" in fiscal 2015, LaFleche said, noting, "The state doesn't wipe the slate clean at the end of the fiscal year."

For Bay Path, that sum has accumulated to just over $701,000, which he said is about 3.5 percent of the total budget. By law, the limit is five percent, at which point the state begins cutting its Chapter 70 aid, he said. This year's $200,000 from the taxpayers will be added to $351,027 from the school's "Excess and Deficiency" account (equivalent to Free Cash in town budgets) to pay down most of that sum, he added.

"It really ballooned up" during the recent renovation/expansion project, largely because they couldn't put funds into various programs then being redesigned, LaFleche said.

Regarding the building project itself, Business Manager Dean Iacobucci said he expects the Mass School Building Authority to vote on the final audit at either its April or June meeting, thus formally concluding it. Between now and then, there are a few "punch-list" items to complete regarding the related propane tank replacement, which wasn't actually part of the project. The committee also unanimously voted to construct a new parking lot that's been in design for some time, with funds coming from internal transfers that won't add to towns' assessments.

Since the only guest was from Southbridge, Iacobucci's budget presentation used that town as its key example of how things will work. He noted Southbridge is being allocated 44 freshman seats (same as Auburn, and the highest among the 10 member towns). That means Southbridge's foundation enrollment will stay the same at 191, while Auburn's is far lower (92 this year, 84 next); Charlton's will grow to second place with 190, and Oxford is third with 167. But the towns have significantly different assessments because of their economic conditions: Southbridge is being charged $1,156,122, while both Charlton and Oxford are higher ($1,888,782 and $1,629,663, respectively), and Auburn's is nowhere near as far below Southbridge's as its enrollment would suggest ($1,057,063).

That prompted a reaction from Oxford representative Rene Hamel, who asked, "How come there's a large disparity between what Oxford has to pay than Southbridge or other towns?"

"The short answer is that Oxford is a wealthier community than Southbridge," LaFleche responded.

Iacobucci added, "with the exception of Oxford's share of that $200,000, it's all required spending."

He noted Auburn's generally strong economy puts it in a similar situation, to which representative Jack Haroian asked if it would be "to Auburn's financial advantage to give up some seats." Iacobucci said each fewer student would reduce its assessment, but LaFleche noted Auburn already doesn't fill its available seats.

Afterward, they commemorated two students for recent graphic design awards. Kaitlyn Chabot of Dudley came in third in the statewide SkillsUSA t-shirt design competition, while Elliot Zopatti of Webster won the contest to design a booklet for this year's Mass Vocational Association's annual banquet.

Those students and their peers will see a couple of changes to the student handbook next year, primarily to "increase the rate at which our students attend school," Dean of Students Daniel McGowan said. "These are processes we already have in place. We're really just putting them down in writing."

Specifically, more than eight shop days missed "may result in loss of credit," as will 10 academic days. Equally important was an increase in the penalty for on-campus smoking (either tobacco or electronic cigarettes) to in-house suspension, with simple possession getting a Saturday detention. The new rule refers to "the ability to place THC (the drug agent in marijuana) inside these mechanisms," but McGowan said he has not seen any evidence that THC "vaping" is on the rise, in part because it's hard to distinguish between nicotine and THC versions.

LaFleche thanked him for his work, saying, "the main goal is and always has been to keep students and staff safe."

OXFORD — What do music, brains, bacteria and cigarette butts all have in common?

All of them played a starring role in Monday's Oxford High Science Fair, alongside a long list of other topics.

For a couple hours, freshmen talked science in half of the gym, while you could hear basketballs bouncing on the other side of the partition.

"I was most impressed with the diversity of the projects," science department head and physics teacher Chris Kertyzak said. Provided the idea met certain criteria of measurability, "they could do anything they wanted. I was not trying to force physics on them; I just wanted them to do science and work with the scientific method."

For Danielle Johnson, the project came from seeing littering in action.

"I didn't know what to do for a project, but wanted one that was challenging enough but not college level. [Looking for ideas,] you see many that are middle school-level or college, but nothing for high school," she said. "Driving home one day, I saw someone throw out a cigarette butt and thought 'That's so disgusting.'"

When she looked it up online, she discovered the butts can last up to 12 years, and she wondered how long pieces of vegetable might take to decay in various environments. In her basement, she created three of them in buckets — rainy, hot and dry, and intermediate zones based on how much water she gave them, how close to the light they were and other factors. She tracked them for two weeks, taking photos along the way and noting by the end the wet one was "completely black" while the dry one was just "shrunken." When asked why she didn't bring the buckets she admitted "it smelled so much because of the bacteria" and didn't want to alter the experiment by using air freshener.

The bacteria themselves were the focus of a couple of other projects, which sought to compare the effectiveness of common hand sanitizers, soap and (one of them) bleach. Curiously, they came to opposite conclusions: one found aloe-infused sanitizer worked better than versions without aloe, but the other saw it as less effective. In one, the students took their bacteria cultures from their cell phones; the other got them from their shoes.

Between them, cell phones themselves took center stage, as Desmond White took a look at the electromagnetic output of cell phones when they sent and received calls (the latter is almost twice as high) and researched its effects on childhood leukemia. He noted that cancer was the only kind he could find studies for, although it made sense there'd be some effect on the brain as well.

The brain itself, or at least how we use it, starred in several places, including Rachel Gaudette's "Memory vs Personality" and Corinne Holmes/Sara Evans' work on the Stroop Effect (how colors and numbers distract people).

Gaudette said she wanted to see if 20 people's "Myer-Briggs" personality types — the famous four-letter system based on introversion/extroversion, sensing/feeling and two other pairs — had any influence on ability to remember a series of letters. She expected extroverted females would "have better memories because females usually remember faces better than males, but I found I was very wrong."

Instead, she found the only ones with 100 percent recall were all introverts (four boys, two girls), and speculated that was because "introverts are only able to spend a certain amount of time with people before they get overloaded, and have a short amount of time to remember things."

Gaudette said she was inspired to do this for two reasons — the fact her sister has "the exact opposite personality type as mine" and she's recovering from a concussion. If she were to do it again, she added, she'd like to extend it to test both short- and long-term memory and do it someplace quieter; her tests were at a "very loud" karate studio.

In the next aisle, Holmes and Evans recapitulated a classic experiment in which people were given color names in different colors (for example, "green" written in yellow) and numbers repeated the wrong number of times (nine written six times), to see if they'd recall what they actually saw. Evans said they expected the distractions would cause people to make mistakes, and that's what they found.

"We've seen the test before, but didn't know what it was used for and wanted to go into more depth," Holmes said, while Evans added that she's already talked to the school counselor about college psychology programs.

That counselor, Heidi Desautels, was coincidentally one of the day's judges, as she was last year. She said each judge received 10 projects to review, and each project got two judges.

"Any time I do a science fair, I'm always impressed with the innovation and creativity they demonstrate," she said. "Most of the time, they know more about the subject than I do."

She was particularly appreciative of the kids who were "very invested" in their material.

"I love to see them be proud of their work. Most kids don't like presenting, and when they have to present to adults, it can be intimidating," she added.

Kertyzak said he tried to make that a little easier beforehand. In class, he had the participants who were his students (most of them) practice their projects, noting "a lot of them will have to present things and talk to people, and that stuff's not natural."

Horanzy: is this bylaw in place?

Town of Webster had a town bylaw, NO VEHICLE PARKING ON SIDEWALKS. With parking fines, the fine monies would go to the town budget side not the state since it is a town by-law.

I have seen it several times during the daytime/evening hours thru out in town, vehicles park on sidewalks.

Town police cruisers drive by, they don't stop to ticket/tow the vehicle nor they don't even run the plate numbers and see if they can find the owners nearby to remove the obstruction off the sidewalks.

But it is also dangerous for the walking pedestrians that use the sidewalks every day, even the school children.

But now they all have to walk into the street facing on coming vehicles traffic where a vehicle is obstructing the sidewalk.

What does the town have to do, wait for a pedestrian/school child get hit by a vehicle to have a vehicle ticket/removed?

I went down by the station, counted about 12 police vehicles both marked, unmarked the town of Webster owns, perhaps more than that.

In other towns and the city of Worcester they don't hesitate, they ticket the vehicle, tow it, causing an obstruction.

Then we have children playing in the streets rather using their own yards on where they live.

What does the school resource officer do in the school system? It appears he doesn't teach anything to the younger kids about safety, as streets are made only for vehicle traffic.

Not recreational vehicle traffic such as ATVs, Scooters, Mini bikes or basketball hoops in the public way, blocking the free flow of traffic creating a hazardous dangerous driving condition.

At one time the town of Webster DPW (Public Safety Committee) would go around town and collect all the basketball hoops in the streets that are creating a nuisances for the operators of motor vehicles on a public way, today they don't, they just ignore the issues.

Stop at variety stores, buy lottery tickets, and drink coffee.

Side traffic shouldn't use the 'force'

CHIEF'S CORNER
STEVE WOJNAR

Traffic related questions are one of the most common inquiries I receive for this column. One recently involved the process of vehicles entering the roadway from a private driveway or parking lot. The person asking the question was concerned about rear end crashes should a vehicle stop in traffic to allow another to exit. I was asked to remind drivers not to "force" their way out into traffic from the private locations.

These are always difficult situations. When should "courtesy" rule the day and a driver allow a vehicle to enter the road in front of them versus risking a crash in order to do this? There is really no "black" or "white" answer in these instances. It always depends on the circumstances.

Vehicles exiting driveways or side streets must yield to others in traffic. Should a vehicle exit a lot and cause an accident, the responsibility would most likely be with that vehicle.

If you stop in traffic to allow another to exit and a vehicle hits the rear of your car, the fault will most likely be with the striking vehicle.

The hope is to avoid any crash. All drivers must exercise proper caution and pay attention to their surroundings.

Vehicles in traffic can stop for any number of reasons and drivers should be prepared for this. It helps to allow sufficient distance between vehicles and pay attention to speed while traveling. A "rule of thumb" is to allow one car length distance for every ten miles per hour you are traveling.

Most accidents usually have special circumstances. This is the reason clear responsibility cannot be assumed by a scenario. When exiting driveways or side streets, never assume "common courtesy" will apply to everyone. Be sure it is safe in all directions before proceeding. It is important to drive defensively and pay as much attention to your surroundings as you can in order to avoid accidents and injuries.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com.

An idea whose time has come

Since the truck itself is 37 years old, this is NOT a new idea. And for people who are not the ones out there when the need arises, having a food truck on site, serving up either hot...or cold...drinks, a hot soup, a nourishing sandwich... on the spot in the middle of a hectic event by people who do indeed know exactly what is going in that particular moment, can't be underestimated.

We admit we didn't know this existed until the need for a new truck was brought to our attention. We hadn't seen this in action at any of the particular fires we had been to.

But it has been there. It's seen the worst ones. The Worcester warehouse fire. It was onsite after the tornado. It's been at fatal house fires.

It is staffed by retired firefighters. By spouses. By volunteers who know what it takes to be on the front fire lines.

The funding is entirely by donation. And now, after 37 years and many miles; after serving thousands upon thousands of cups of coffee, being repaired a bazillion times, racking up miles from Grafton to West Brookfield and back again, having been adapted to the edges and the roof; the old truck needs to be retired.

A truck junior needs to be purchased and outfitted.

It won't come cheap.

There are plots and plans in place. As long as a new one is in the works, the dreamers have dreamed. Why don't we....

And they should.

Let's make life convenient, and better, and as easy as possible for those volunteers. They also have some good ideas for uses for the truck; from providing a portable bathroom for those fighting the fires to storage for other equipment that just makes sense.

This is firefighters taking care of their own. Yes, the Red Cross often steps up and does some of this too; but the Commonwealth and its innovative people often do more above and beyond taking care of itself. This is just one example. For nearly 40 years, this group of firefighting phenoms have taken care of their own.

So step it up, help them out. Send a buck or two to the address provided. We'd love to see this truck a shining example of volunteerism at its best. Is there a dealership out there that can provide the original truck? Some appliance companies to provide necessary equipment? Plumbers, electricians, outfitters to donate? This can be done with more than just money.

We'd love to see a bidding war for the privilege to be the ones to donate to this cause. Maybe we can put your names on the side...like race car sponsorships.

So step up corporations, dealerships, foundations, banks. Let's see your names on this.

Bill of Rights not easily changed

The present assault on the 2nd Amendment reminds us of the 2013 Western States Sheriff's Rebellion stopping cold President Barack Obama's new 23 executive orders further restricting the right of gun owners without authorization from Congress. But today Republicans need to be reminded that neither the executive branch, through executive orders, nor the legislative branch, through laws, can constitutionally legislate away an amendment of the Bill of Rights, so banning AR-15's or bump stocks is unconstitutional. Only a new amendment with 3/4ths support of the states, as outlined in Article V of the Constitution, can alter an amendment.

LIBERTY UNDER FIRE
DR. HAROLD PEASE

Many may not remember their basic U.S. history courses as to why the Second Amendment exists in the first place. Certainly, when enacted, there was no thought of restricting type of firearm, or where, or who could carry. So its placement as the second most valued freedom in the Bill of Rights had nothing to do with personal safety or even hunting, these were already assumed. It was specifically placed right after freedom of religion, speech, press and assembly to make certain that these freedoms were never taken from us. It was aimed (pun intended) squarely at the government. But certainly, we need have no fear of the government today?

One must remember that the early patriots did not ask the existing British government if they could revolt against them. They argued in the Declaration of Independence, that they were "endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" coming from a much higher source than mere man and that "whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government." God is referenced five times in this document and thus, they believed, He sanctioned their rebellion. They were expected to suffer evils while sufferable, "but when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariable the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security."

The right of revolution requires the means of revolution and this is why the Second Amendment exists. Normally the ballot box is the only self-correction needed, but they had no intention of giving up the same right that they exercised to give us freedom in the first place. Nor were they pious enough to assume that their correction would stay in place and that future generations would never need the more serious self-correction they used.

The wordage of the 2nd Amendment was stronger than any other sentence in the Constitution. "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

They saw this right as essential to freedom and specifically forbade the federal government any authority with respect to arms because historically it was always a government that took away liberty.

An armed populace had twice proved its value to liberty in the Revolutionary War. Many do not remember why Lexington and Concord were so important. The Americans learned that the British planned to go door to door to confiscate their firearms so they gathered and hid them in these two villages. Now the British night gun raid, and Paul Revere's desperate midnight ride warning the Americans enroute, make sense. The Battle of Saratoga preventing British conquest of the northeast by General Johnny Burgoyne was stopped, not by the military, but by angry farmers with their own military styled assault rifles. This American victory encouraged other countries, notably France, to come into the war on our side. It is doubtful that we would have won the war without an armed citizenry.

The Founders' attitude regarding guns — even military issue — was clear. Thomas Jefferson wrote: "No free man shall ever be debarred the use of arms." And George Washington said: "A free people ought not only to be armed," but also, "they should promote such manufactures [sic] as tend to remind them independent of others for essential, particularly military, supplies" (Gun Control, Freeman Report, May 31, 1975, p. 1).

The Utah Sheriff's Association letter to Obama was the most vocal in the Sheriff's Rebellion of 2013. It read in part, "We respect the Office of the President of the United States of America. But, make no mistake, as the duly-elected sheriffs of our respective counties, we will enforce the rights guaranteed to our citizens by the Constitution. No federal official will be permitted to descend upon our constituents and take from them what the Bill of Rights — in particular Amendment II — has given them. We, like you, swore a solemn oath to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, and we are prepared to trade our lives for the preservation of its traditional interpretation."

This is commendable, but will Congress, under Republicans, remember that an amendment, unlike a law, may not be altered to destroy or weakened — it "shall not be infringed?" The 2nd Amendment can only be altered by 3/4th of the states with a new amendment and this is not likely to happen when so many Americans fear their own government.

Staff added to proposed budget

The Webster Middle School show choir inaugurated the first School Committee meeting in its new location with a pair of songs.

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER—The School Committee voted unanimously (with Chairman Dave Hurton abstaining) to send a $20.9 million budget to the selectmen to start the annual budget process.

The proposal includes a new physical education teacher, sixth-grade teacher, several special education staff, a new school psychologist and a new part-time human resources/public relations assistant. It also shifts various existing teachers and staff around, aims to restore foreign languages at the middle school, and possibly create a new track program there. Most of the emphasis this year, however, will be on redesigning curriculum, particularly at the high school a systems approach to our needs,” specifically prioritizing academics, Superintendent Ruthann Goguen said. One key goal is also to educate the public about what’s going on, and “change the perception of what’s really happening here,” she added.

In total, they’re requesting a 4.2 percent increase from this year’s budget. Retiring Business Manager Ted Avlas noted the town’s budget hearing is tentatively slated for April 8, and the whole document is on the school website.

Hurton noted last year’s increase in funding for jobs was $158,000, largely because “a serious assessment of programs” saved $404,000 in various areas. This year’s review is still incomplete, and he said he feels Bartlett “may have more work to be done there” because “on paper” it looks over-staffed.

On the flip side, though, he also asked, “Are we asking too much for those teachers of lower-level learners, and do they need additional support?”

One issue that came up was some concern over balancing funding for athletics and other extra-curricular activities (particularly the arts). Goguen said she tried to do that largely with allocations for transportation, by hiking sports transport by $36,000 and others by $20,000. Later, she observed that she might consider not funding the proposed track program and shift that money to the other extracurricular activities. But she noted “closing the [academic] gaps comes before all extracurricular activities.”

“As we identify what their needs are, they can be blended into the budget,” she added. “That assessment has not been done.”

One aspect of next year’s budget came up separately – the bus contract. The committee voted unanimously to accept the only bid the legal solicitation process received, a three-year deal with AA Transportation for $2.5 million.

Avlas said seven firms requested bid packages, but only AA returned one, and that’s not uncommon. The firm has provided Webster’s “nine buses that do 10 runs” daily for more than 20 years, and he described them as “very loyal and dependable. We don’t want to be in the transportation business, trust

Avlas and Assistant Business Manager Monique Pierangeli both noted some area districts are looking into the idea of creating a “consortium” to purchase bus services. They urged against doing that, largely on the grounds it has made smaller districts pay more to fulfill larger, unionized districts’ prevailing wage rates. Avlas said doing so would “really limit how many local people [firms] will be able to support you.”

Similarly, the committee approved the administration’s updated capital improvement plan after accidentally re-approving one from a few years ago. Between now and 2023, it seeks to do some painting at the middle school and a long list of things at Bartlett, including replacing doors, the roof and windows, fixing the security, plumbing, and clock/bell systems, doing some paving, and other things.

“We have made the improvements we can afford,” Avlas said, but noted Bartlett’s list adds up to $15.6 million, and many of them are critical.

Before Avlas arrived, Goguen said they’re hoping the Mass School Building Authority will accept Webster’s request for a renovation project next year that would “help us with a lot of these problems,” but it has rejected Webster a few times already.

That prompted Hurton to observe, “If we continue to get denied, this is a potential town capital issue, and we will have to do something.”

In other business, the committee spent some time discussing an Open Meeting Law complaint from resident and teacher’s union president Linda Millet before voting to find there was no violation. Millet alleged the board’s Feb 3 school budget working meeting had “no agenda or materials available for the public,” included discussion of certain “non-budget items,” and “intentionally stopped me from speaking” on health insurance issues because “we have recently brought two grievances before the school committee.”

Hurton, however, said he ended discussion of the insurance issue because he “felt it was becoming a violation of the Open Meeting Law,” since insurance is handled by the town budget, not the schools, and he felt Millet “began to get into very specific details” of a “private discussion” between the town administrator and the union. He noted, and Millet’s complaint agreed, that she’d been invited to sit with them and participate during the discussion overall; Hurton added he has “allowed Ms. Millet to comment at several meetings,” including some after the grievances were filed.

“I find that somewhat absurd,” he said, noting his wife is a teacher so he has to recuse from all such votes anyway. Regarding his request for her to stop speaking, he said, “I don’t believe I said it in a rude manner. If I did, I apologize.” His fellow committee members, however, agreed he had not, and Mike Makara noted such a request is within his purview as chairman, therefore not a violation.

“I am puzzled by this statement from her, but not surprised sometimes because of her tactics,” Makara said. Brian Chenevert agreed, noting he saw it as “more of a personal issue than a violation of any laws.”

What should investors know about recent volatility?

FINANCIAL

ANTONOPOULOS

As you may have heard, the stock market has been on a wild ride lately. What’s behind this volatility? And, as an investor, how concerned should you be?

Let’s look at the first question first. What caused the steep drop in stock prices we experienced on a few separate days?

Essentially, two main factors seem to be responsible. First, some good economic news may actually have played a significant role. A 17-year low in unemployment and solid job growth have begun to push wages upward. These developments have led to fears of rising inflation, which, in turn, led to speculation that the Federal Reserve will tighten the money supply at a faster-than-expected rate. Stocks reacted negatively to these expectations of higher interest rates.

The second cause of the market volatility appears to be simply a reaction to the long bull market. While rising stock prices lead many people to continue buying more and more shares, some people actually need to sell their stocks – and this pent-up selling demand, combined with short-term profit-taking, helped contribute to the large sell-offs of recent days.

Now, as for the question of how concerned you should be about this volatility, consider these points:

Sell-offs are nothing unusual. We’ve often experienced big sell-offs, but they’ve generally been followed with strong recoveries. Of course, past performance is not a guarantee of future results, but history has shown that patient, persistent investors have often been rewarded.

Fundamentals are strong. While short-term market movements can be caused by a variety of factors, economic conditions and corporate earnings typically drive performance in the long term. Right now, the U.S. economy is near full employment, consumer and business sentiment has risen strongly, manufacturing and service activity is at multi-year highs, and GDP growth in 2018 appears to be on track for the best performance since 2015. Furthermore, corporate earnings are expected to rise this year.

So, given this background, what’s your next move? Here are some suggestions:

Review your situation. You may want to work with a financial professional to evaluate your portfolio to determine if it is helping you make the progress you need to eventually achieve your long-term goals.

Reassess your risk tolerance. If you were unusually upset over the loss in value of your investments during the market pullback, you may need to review your risk tolerance to determine if it’s still appropriate for your investment mix. If you feel you are taking on too much risk, you may need to rebalance your portfolio. Keep in mind, though, that by “playing it safe” and investing heavily in vehicles that offer greater protection of principal, but little in the way of return, you run the risk of not attaining the growth you need to reach your objectives.

Look for opportunities. A market pullback such as the one we’ve experienced, which occurs during a period of economic expansion and rising corporate profits, can give long-term investors a chance to add new shares at attractive prices in an environment that may be conducive to a market rally.

A sharp market pullback, such as we’ve seen recently, will always be big news. But if you look beyond the headlines, you can sometimes see a different picture – and one that may be brighter than you had realized.

Travel restrictions scheduled on Sagamore Bridge

CONCORD — Replacement of damaged roadway joints on the Sagamore Bridge spanning the Cape Cod Canal in Bourne is scheduled to start in late-March 2018 and continue through late May 2018, according to U.S. Army Corps of Engineers New England District officials.

During the scheduled times for work, travel over the Sagamore Bridge will be reduced from two lanes in each direction to one, wider 12-foot lane in each direction.

State and local police will be on duty at all times work is being performed to assist the motoring public.

Motorists planning to use the Sagamore Bridge during this timeframe should be aware that travel delays are likely to occur during the morning and afternoon peak travel periods each day.

The $1,695,000 contract for replacement of damaged and worn roadway joints was awarded to R. Zoppo Corporation of Stoughton. The contractor will work seven days a week with double shifts in order to complete this work prior to the peak summer travel season. Additionally, similar work on the Bourne Bridge is scheduled for fall 2018.

This bridge work is critical to maintaining the structural integrity of the bridges, which are a vital component to the transportation system of the Cape, the Islands and southeastern Massachusetts.

Work will include the replacement of bridge joints on the roadway, repair of corroded steel and concrete supports at the affected joints, patching of damaged pavement surfaces, and replacement of deteriorated waterproof membranes along the roadway curbs. In addition, USACE work crews will conduct various periodic maintenance activities on the bridge lighting and structure during this timeframe.

Traffic signs, message boards and bridge work alert emails will be used to help inform motorists about pending lane restrictions and bridge work. To sign up for bridge work alert emails send an email to CapeCodCanalBridges@usace.army.mil with the subject title “Bridge Work Alerts.” An email alert is sent when there is a major change to the bridge work status or schedule.

Additionally, updates are available from the Corps’ New England District via Facebook and Twitter at CorpsNewEngland or visit the District website at <http://www.nae.usace.army.mil>.

Stocking the lakes with fighters a priority

.....
RALPH
TRUE

Now that ice fishing has ended early in Massachusetts on local ponds & lakes, some anglers are still fishing Maine waters that have 20 + inches of ice on them. Some local fishermen are also setting their sights on some steelhead and brown trout fishing in upstate New York.

The two anglers in this week's photos show a couple of anglers holding large steelhead and brown trout, taken on the Salmon River in upstate NY a while ago, while fishing with the Yankee Anglers Guide Service. The steelhead trout are the most acrobatic fish in the river, and will give a fisherman the thrill of a lifetime when they are hooked into one of these hard fighting fish. You do not need a guide to fish the Salmon River, but extreme caution should be used when navigating the river from the shoreline while using waders or hip boots. The rocks in the river are extremely slippery and require an angler to have felt pads or studded boots to keep from slipping on the bottom structure. March and April are prime times to fish the Salmon River, and it is only five hours away.

ponds and lakes in the coming days and weeks. The Division of Fish & Wildlife has more than 500,000 trout to stock this year. Reports of some brood stocked salmon being stocked in Connecticut waters recently, has some anglers hopeful that Massachusetts may be in line for some of these fish in the coming weeks. Stay tuned!

Prior to the last two snow storms, tree frogs were busy singing their mating calls in my backyard pond. I thought for sure spring had arrived, but that was wishful thinking. I had taken the lawn chairs out and started to wear my shorts, but they have all been put back into storage.

I did get to pull my boat out of storage and managed to get it ready for opening day at Wallum Lake before the snow returned. Wallum Lake is still closed to all fishing. It will reopen on April 14. The interstate pond provides Massachusetts anglers with the only opening day for trout fishermen in the area, and is governed by Rhode Island regulations. Five trout are allowed daily. Efforts by local fishermen in the valley to make Wallum Lake a trophy brown trout fishery by Massachusetts and Rhode Island more than 30 years ago, failed when the two states were unable to communicate with each other. Fishermen were the losers!!!

Numerous efforts to introduce smelt into the lake were not realized mainly because of acid rain problems, but that was corrected when this writer and other local fishermen were successful in having "Living Lakes" bring in more biologists were reluctant to introduce the new strain of brown trout into Wallum Lake. Maybe the new fish biologist will be willing to give it a try. I hope so!!! They are still available.

This past week I spoke with the new owners of the Al's Goldfish Lure Company at the Saltwater Fishing Show in Providence RI. Back when I was a youngster, I always had a goldfish in my tackle box, and so did everyone else, and we still do today. Today Al's Goldfish Lure Company has introduced numerous new fresh and saltwater fishing lures. Check them out on their web site at www.alsgoldfishlurecompany.com.

The Uxbridge Rod & Gun club will host their annual spring archery shoot Sunday March 25. Anyone that enjoys shooting their long bow or compound bow is invited to attend. Breakfast will be available. Noel Rabidor, chairman of the event, does an exceptional job setting up the course, and has some new 3-D targets for attendees to shoot at this year. For more information go to the web site at www.uxbridgerodgun.com.

Note: Because of bad weather the public hearing to extend the archery season in zones 10-14 was postponed to April 10 at 7:00 p.m. at the Mass Fish & Wildlife field headquarters.

introduce smelt and shoal spawning alewives into the lake over the years, with the shoal spawning alewives having some success. Maybe it is time to try the alewives again, and to work with Rhode Island, limiting anglers to a daily brown trout bag limit to two fish. Wallum Lake is capable of growing four pound and six pound browns and better if the bait fish are introduced into the lake. I know, because I myself, and others, caught them not long ago.

This writer also approached Mass Fish & Wildlife about acquiring a brown trout strain from upstate NY! Anyone that has fished Lake Ontario for browns, know what I am talking about. The brown trout grow fast and are aggressive feeders. Trout do not grow fast on insects. At the time, Massachusetts fish than 10 tractor trailers full of lime. The money was made available by large factories out west, that were identified as the major cause of the acid rain. The lime was spread out over the lake using a large boat that was equipped with the latest equipment, capable of spreading the lime using some of the first computerized technology. Prior to the spreading of lime at Wallum Lake, Massachusetts had stopped the stocking of rainbow trout because of the acid rain problem. Rainbow trout are now stocked annually at Wallum with no problems. We hear very little about acid rain today, but it has not gone away, and could get worse with the lifting of regulations on emissions by President Trump.

Celebrate Soups!

KAREN
TRAINOR

Soup, whether it's simple or fancy, is steeped in memories, and many a long, cold New England winter has been cheered by bowls of soup that warm both body and soul. While fast food and quick fix suppers often win out over slow simmering stews and soups for busy weeknight meals, soups still have a place in today's suppertime scramble. Soups are not only deliciously filling, they're typically made with fresh, healthy ingredients. Add in the money saving factor, the convenience of one pot cooking and the opportunity for unbridled culinary creativeness, and it's easy to see why America is rekindling its love affair with soups and stews.

Read on for a dose of inspiration to cook up a pot of soup this season!

Heirloom Soups: A generation or so ago soup suppers were not uncommon. Many of these diverse dishes reflected the ethnic background of the family at the dinner table. A hearty bowl of pasta fagioli and crusty bread was a familiar supper in Italian neighborhoods, as Jewish families enjoyed chicken matzo ball soup with braided challah, and those of French Canadian decent baked Johnny cake to go with a pot of green pea soup.

Today, many of these family recipes have been passed down to new generations. While the recipes may be tweaked by enthusiastic Food Network inspired cooks, the tradition of preparing a soup supper, whether it's made from chicken or beans, remains the same. As most cooks will attest, something magical happens when a big pot of water begins filling up with ingredients. Kids stop their homework to peek into the pot; spouses sneak in for a quick taste; and like the classic French fable "Stone Soup," a dash of this and a handful of that contributed by family members add up to not only scrumptious soup, but precious memories as well.

Tip: Start a "soup tradition" by preparing a pot of soup to honor an ethnic tradition once a month.

Inspirational Ingredients: In some cultures, it is believed a cook's mood, good or bad, can ultimately affect the taste and enjoyment of the meal he or she has prepared. Some claim this to be particularly relevant to soups, simply due to the many chopping and cutting tasks required for soup and stew preparation. "Spiritual cooking" has become a buzz word in the culinary world as mindfulness and love, as well as chanting and prayer are being integrated into cooking chores in the belief it will heighten both flavor and awareness.

Tip: Make it a habit to de-stress before cooking, take a few deep breaths, smile and think positive thoughts as you prep and cook in the kitchen.

Food for Thought - Fun Soup Facts:

*The earliest evidence of humans eating soup was 6000 BC. The main ingredient was hippopotamus.

*The ladies of the French court of Louis XI subsisted mainly on soup because they believed that chewing would cause them to develop facial wrinkles.

*The story goes that in the late 1700s, French royal chefs created a clear broth (called consommé) because the king wanted to see his reflection in his bowl.

*Soup is a breakfast food in Japan. The day is often started with a bowl of fish broth with rice.

*There is an old Yiddish saying, "Troubles are easier to take with soup than without."

*Frank Sinatra's contracts often specified that chicken and rice soup be in his dressing room prior to performances.

*Andy Warhol said he painted soup cans because he had soup for lunch every day for 20 years.

Crock Pot Tomato Soup

Whole tomatoes and basil bring freshness to this classic, healthy soup. Best of all, it cooks while you're at work!

Ingredients: 8 medium tomatoes; 1 medium onion, chopped; 2 carrots, peeled and thinly sliced; 1 garlic clove, crushed; 1 tablespoon brown sugar; 1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil; 1 tablespoon chopped parsley; 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/8 teaspoon pepper; 3 cups chicken broth or bouillon.

Directions: Drop tomatoes in a pan of boiling water for 15 to 20 seconds; immediately rinse with cold water. Remove skins. Cut in half crosswise; squeeze out and discard seeds. Combine in slow-cooker with onions, carrots, garlic, brown sugar, basil, parsley, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and broth (or bouillon). Cover and cook on low 5 to 6 hours or until vegetables are very soft. Puree in blender or food processor fitted with metal blade.

Giada De Laurentiis' Italian Wedding Soup

This homemade recipe comes from the kitchen of the famous food network cook.

Meatball Ingredients: 1 small onion, grated; 1/3 cup chopped fresh Italian parsley; 1 large egg; 1 teaspoon minced garlic; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 slice fresh white bread, crust trimmed, bread torn into small pieces; 1/2 cup grated Parmesan; 8 ounces ground beef; 8 ounces ground pork; Freshly ground black pepper

Soup Ingredients: 12 cups low-sodium chicken broth; 1 pound curly endive, coarsely chopped (1 pound of escarole would be a good substitution); 2 large eggs; 2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan, plus extra for garnish; Salt and freshly ground black pepper.

Meatball Directions: To make the meatballs: Stir the first 6 ingredients in a large bowl to blend. Stir in the cheese, beef and pork. Using 1 1/2 teaspoons for each, shape the meat mixture into 1-inch-diameter meatballs. Place on a baking sheet.

Soup Directions: Bring the broth to a boil in a large pot over medium-high heat. Add the meatballs and curly endive and simmer until the meatballs are cooked through and the curly endive is tender, about 8 minutes. Whisk the eggs and cheese in a medium bowl to blend. Stir the soup in a circular motion. Gradually drizzle the egg mixture into the moving broth, stirring gently with a fork to form thin strands of egg, about one minute. Season the soup to taste with salt and pepper. Ladle the soup into bowls and serve. Finish soup with parmesan cheese if desired.

Shepherd Hill's comeback for the ages gives Rams Division 2 championship

The Shepherd Hill Regional boys' varsity basketball team poses with the MIAA Championship banner following the Rams' 53-47 victory over Marlborough High for the Central Mass. Division 2 Tournament title.

Jason O'Regan of Shepherd Hill receives the championship trophy after the Rams won the Central Mass. Division 2 Tournament.

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

WORCESTER — It was the greatest comeback ever.

That was the consensus of the Shepherd Hill Regional boys' varsity basketball team, its coaching staff and its fans after the Rams rallied for the ultimate of come-from-behind victories, upsetting top-seeded Marlborough High, 53-47, in the championship game of the Central Mass. Division 2 Tournament at WPI's Harrington Auditorium on Saturday, March 10.

And why wouldn't the second-seeded Rams and their fans think that?

After all, the team rallied from a 21-point deficit (30-9, 5:26 left, first half), an 18-point deficit (36-18, halftime), and a 10-point deficit (42-32, end of the third quarter).

"This was, without a doubt, the greatest comeback game I've ever played in," Rams' senior Jason O'Regan said while clutching the championship trophy. "I love the Clark Tournament and we won it twice while I was here, but this win, especially the way we won, is much sweeter."

O'Regan poured in a team-high 24 points, 14 in the second half.

"This is kind of what we do," O'Regan said, trying to explain yet another comeback victory. "The first half we've got to get the jitters out. Then we went into the locker room and told the guys we've got to really step it up right now and that's what we did. We pushed the ball and we pushed the tempo. That was the key to the comeback."

With the win, its seventh straight, Shepherd Hill (19-6) advanced to the Division 2 state semifinals where it played Western Mass. champion Taconic High (16-7) of Pittsfield (scheduled to be played Tuesday, March 13, after press time). Marlborough finished its season with a 19-4 record.

The Rams' comeback began in earnest with five minutes left in the third quarter when O'Regan hammered home one of his three dunks, which made the score 40-24 Marlborough. More importantly, the dunk began a string of eight straight points by Shepherd Hill (four scored by junior David Bilis), that cut the Panthers' advantage down to 10, 40-30. It was still 10, 42-32, as play moved into the final quarter.

"We knew we had to speed the game up. The first half was really slow-paced. Whenever we play a slow style, we don't shoot the ball well because everything we do is off our energy," Shepherd Hill head coach Mike Byrnes said. "In the second half we threw a press on them, got a couple of turnovers, hit a couple shots and we just played off of our energy and started playing with confidence."

Facing a harassing full-court press for virtually the entire second half, Marlborough committed 12 turnovers, six of which the Rams turned into points.

Three times during the regular season, Byrnes said, the Rams rallied from 18-point deficits to win games.

Shepherd Hill opened the fourth quarter by scoring the first nine points to pull to within one, 42-41, with 3:45 remaining. O'Regan had two 3-pointers in the spurt, and other points were scored by junior Cody Adams (nine points) and senior Danny Cavic (10 points).

University of Notre Dame-bound Chris Doherty (24 points) pushed the Marlborough lead back to three, 44-41, when he hit a pair of free throws with 2:53 to play, but Bilis (six points) brought it back to one, 44-43, with a short shot in the lane with 2:53 left.

With 1:53 to play Adams gave the Rams their first lead of the game, 46-44, drilling a 3-pointer from the left corner.

"That shot Cody hit to give us the lead was ridiculous," O'Regan said.

"I wasn't hitting any shots early, none of us were, but coach said to keep shooting, that the shots would go in eventually and he was right," Adams said. "The key to this team is we never doubt ourselves. We always bring the energy. It comes on the defensive end first, we start getting some stops and that gives us some energy. Then we pick up the pace and we hit big shots on the offensive end. The press gets us up-tempo; it gets us some quick buckets."

After Marlborough's Alex Santos hit one of two free throws to bring the Panthers to within one, 46-45, Cavic extended the Shepherd Hill lead to four, 49-45, by gathering in a long cross-court pass from O'Regan and burying a long left side 3-pointer with 1:18 to play.

Doherty cut the Shepherd Hill lead to two, 49-47, with a lay-in with 29 seconds remaining, but senior Kenny Flynn (four points) and Cavic both hit a pair of free throws in the final 23 seconds to account for the 53-47 final.

"We just never give up; on ourselves or each other," Cavic said. "We believe in each other. We know we're going to get through it. This team doesn't know how to quit. This is the greatest comeback I've ever been a part of because it came in a championship game on such a big stage against a very good opponent. We never stopped believing we could do it."

Byrnes said O'Regan's performance against the Panthers was the difference for the Rams between winning and losing.

"Jason has been huge for us all year long; we wouldn't be here without him," Byrnes said. "He plays 32 minutes for us every game and he plays the game hard."

O'Regan said the key to the Rams' second district title in school history — they won the Division 3 crown in 1978 — is Byrnes, their first-year coach.

"Coach Byrnes has been great this year. He's just been the best coach. He's been helping us, motivationally, mentally and physically," O'Regan said. "He's been preparing us for the works and that's what we got today. This is all coach Byrnes. The fact that we're standing here at WPI celebrating a Central Mass. Division 2 championship is all because of coach Byrnes. I'm just so happy right now."

Shepherd Hill's David Bilis employs a full-court pressure defense on Marlborough, which turned into one of the keys to the Rams' come-from-behind victory.

Cody Adams of Shepherd Hill takes and makes a sideline 3-pointer that gave the Rams their first lead of the game, 46-44, before defeating Marlborough for the district title, 53-47.

HOW THEY GOT THERE

Rams defeat Westborough — again — this time to reach district final

Mathew S. Plamondon photos

Shepherd Hill's Cody Adams slices to the basket on the Westborough defense.

he had them ready to play," expressed Byrnes of the Rangers. "I don't know if it was nerves but we came out a little flat, but we came back and punched back."

To start the game Westborough was lights-out shooting, but it didn't cause Shepherd Hill to alter its game plan. The Rams started to buckle down defensively and execute a plan of attack after a slow first quarter.

"We did a little better closing out on people," Byrnes said. "Our thing tonight was to chase them off the 3-point line and make them put the ball on the floor for dribble pull-ups. The Doherty boys hit a lot dribble pull-ups early and stuck to the game plan. We did a great job."

"Energy, for most of the first quarter they [Westborough] didn't miss a shot, they were knocking down everything," added Byrnes. "We finally hit a couple shots and got a couple spots, which gave us some confidence to get us going. All year we have been playing off energy and it came from that."

In the beginning the Rams were settling for outside shots and not utilizing their big men in Kenny Flynn and Jason O'Regan as much as they would like. From the second quarter until the final buzzer the Rams used a balanced inside-outside game to set up easy offense and open 3's. They also picked up their pace of play.

"We knew we had to get the ball inside and when Jason and Kenny get going it is very hard to stop them," explained Adams. "When teams start to collapse on them it opens up outside shots for the guards."

"It feels good because we are a fast-paced team and when we get a few fast break layups it gives us energy and it makes our half-court offense a lot easier," added Adams.

Shepherd Hill outscored Westborough, 63-35, after the Rangers opened up a 23-13 lead after the first quarter. It was the third time the Rams defeated Westborough this season, with the others coming in the regular season and in the Clark Tournament Large Schools final.

O'Regan scored 19 points — 16 in the second half — Flynn added 15 points — 13 in the first half.

Performing at WPI is quite the accomplishment and getting there had a lot to do with the hard work the Rams put in to improve.

"It's huge, they have come a real long way since the beginning of the season," expressed Byrnes. "I am very happy to be here playing at WPI and having the chance to move on."

Shepherd Hill will play once more at WPI, this time against top seeded Marlborough High (19-3) for the district championship. The Panthers defeated the Rams (18-6) in their lone regular season matchup, 78-52.

WORCESTER — Cody Adams scored 15 of his game-high 25 points in the second quarter to push the second ranked Shepherd Hill Regional boys' varsity basketball team past No. 6 Westborough High, 76-58, in the Central Mass. Division 2 Tournament semifinals played Tuesday, March 6 at WPI's Harrington Auditorium.

"He is a gamer — football field, basketball court, wherever it is — he is a gamer," praised Shepherd Hill head coach Mike Byrnes. "He gets it done."

There was 4:44 to go in the second quarter, the Rams were down, 25-24, and Adams was at the free throw line to shoot two. He hit both free throws to give Shepherd Hill a one-point lead after a lackluster first quarter that put them in a 10-point deficit early.

Auburn sees season end at hands of Tomahawks, 4-1

FITCHBURG — Back on Jan. 31, the Auburn High boys' varsity ice hockey team tied Algonquin Regional, 1-1, at the Horgan Arena.

And, when the Rockets took on the Tomahawks in the semifinals of the Central Mass. Division 3 Tournament at the Wallace Civic Center on Tuesday, March 6, Auburn and Algonquin again found themselves tied, 1-1, through two periods of play.

But the second ranked Tomahawks scored three times in the third period — one being an empty-netter late in the contest — to end the third seeded Rockets' season, 4-1. Goalie Cam Carpenter was outstanding in net for Auburn, as he turned aside 33 shots.

The Rockets, whose co-op team also includes athletes from Shepherd Hill Regional, Tantasqua Regional and Millbury High, finished with a record of 13-6-3. Algonquin advanced to the district final, where they then lost to No. 1 Shrewsbury High, 4-1.

Auburn's Drew Darger attempts to shoot the puck up and over the reach of Algonquin defender Jack Shemligian.

Auburn's Collin McKeon works the puck along the boards and past Thomas Ackil of Algonquin.

Kyle Spurr of Auburn skates the puck into Algonquin's defensive zone.

Auburn goalie Cam Carpenter reaches his glove out to make a save, while Algonquin's Henry Afford is stationed in front of the crease looking to tip the puck.

SHEPHERD HILL

goes into it. Those kids start Tuesdays and Thursdays after school in May.”

Macuga added winter programs are also excelling at Shepherd Hill and these winter performance groups are also succeeding. In fact, Shepherd Hill recently placed high in a national level contest in New England, a far cry from where the group started only a few years back.

“The past few weekends the winter percussion and winter color guards had been performing in Winter Guard International, which they have a regional show in Salem, New Hampshire and the color guard came in third place. The last time we went to that regional was two years ago, where they came in last out of 12, and the growth that they’ve had in two years has been incredible under the direction of Julie Brown,” Macugas said.

“(In February) the winter percussion made their debut and they came in third place at Dartmouth High School. We continue to chug along and keep on pushing those kids to new levels.”

As for the vocal performers of the regional high school, music teacher and choral director Becky Bussiere discussed the school’s successes with show choirs and the male and female vocal groups that have also helped the region shine on a national level. In addition to hosting the Central Massachusetts Show Choir Festival in 2017, the chorus groups of Shepherd Hill have become quite a force on the national stage, winning several honors including recently performing at Mechanics Hall in Worcester. The Illusion female choir also took top honors at the Connecticut Classic Festival on March 3, days after Bussiere lauded her own performers before the Board of Selectmen.

Performers from Shepherd Hill show their skills.

So what makes the music programs at Shepherd Hill so competitive and strong?

According to Bussiere there are many factors, not the least of which is familiarity and a sense of pride in Shepherd Hill as a school.

“We have a really great music department and I think part of it is because we’re all alumni. We were trained there, and our staff is basically all alumni and the family never leaves,” Bussiere said. “We’re just going into competition season now. Last year we had a phenomenal season. Illusion was a clean sweep all across the country — we are constantly pushing the envelope with our shows and we are the standard. We really are the standard for New England and we are nationally recognized.”

For Bussiere and Macuga the sky is the limit for their students and the potential certainly shows in the recent success of all the musical groups from the school. There’s no telling where these students will go next, but according to Bussiere it’s a guarantee that the students will push even harder to perfect their talents and test each other on new levels going forward.

“We’re constantly at the top of our game and they work very hard. The students are always at their rehearsals,” Bussiere said. “We’re pretty much there every vacation, every week day, every night, it’s pretty hard to get an auditorium because we’re always in it. But, it’s balanced. We make sure the kids focus on growing and the love of music and making sure their grades are good enough. Competition is great, but we teach them that it’s about the growth and about representing the school. It’s a beautiful thing.”

The box piles are almost as tall as Superintendent Ruthann Goguen, and there are still quite a few more to be moved over from the old Filmer School.

The inside view from Monique Pierangeli's office shows how the site was designed to promote lots of natural light.

But to Superintendent Ruthann Goguen and several other administrators, the most important part of the move is proximity to the high and middle schools.

“We’ll be closer to the action much more frequently,” she said, creating more opportunities to meet with students, including creating a student advisory committee, getting into classrooms, and having “little service learning projects.”

“Just because I’m superintendent doesn’t mean I’m on top of a hill. I want to be accessible,” said Goguen.

For Food Service Director Ellen Nylen, even this location is a little farther from the action than she’d like.

“If I had my druthers, I’d have my office in the kitchen,” she said, adding that she likes the chance to walk between the schools and plans to have a bike in her office to pedal to Park Ave School.

“It was a great team effort; everybody pitched in with moving and cleaning,” Goguen noted. “It was a project in the making for a long time,” and she particularly wants to thank the people of Webster who funded the renovation and move.

The work itself isn’t quite done. Besides dozens, maybe hundreds, of boxes to unload and quite a few to still bring over from Filmer, there are a handful of “punch-list items” to finish. But staff members are generally quite satisfied with the work Bay Path students and specific contractors did here, mostly over the last year or so. A rotating group of students converted what used to be the big, open spaces of metal, woodworking and graphic arts shops Bartlett had disbanded before 2012. The first part of the project, the HVAC system, metal studs and windows, were done by hired contractors, as was the last part – doors and carpeting, for which town meeting approved funds in October. But pretty much everything in the middle was in the kids’ hands under the supervision of various teachers and clerk of the works Mike Garceau.

In total, the project cost a bit less than $1 million, and the move itself has been “very smooth,” assistant Business Manager Monique Pierangeli said. She noted one key staff member didn’t want to make the move – Business Manager Ted Avlas.

“His desk is still there; he’s going down with the ship, he said,” Pierangeli remarked, referring to the fact Avlas is formally retiring soon after 10 years in his job and another 10 on the School Committee. His last School Committee meeting was the board’s first in its new room in the administration suite on Tuesday.

“We had so many years at Filmer. There’s so much ancient material there,” she added.

Goguen noted they still have to wade through some of the documents. State law defines which ones they must keep, and which can be recycled or shredded, so settling in will take a while. She expects that to be done by the end of this school year at the latest, and plans a public open house sometime this spring.

“We’re hoping to get some good use out of this building,” Goguen added.

Superintendent Ruthann Goguen lets us into the inner sanctum. (OK, it’s just their lunch room.)

staff and students – but “One thing I won’t miss is the 4 a.m. wake up call to check the weather to see if we have to call off school.”

His successor and longtime assistant, Monique Pierangeli, said Avlas has always been “a team player,” and brought “very good experience for policy and procedure” from the private sector when he began as business manager 10 years ago. “That’s how he enhanced my career,” she said. “We wish him many happy years in retirement.”

When asked for an incident that was particularly telling about him, Pierangeli recalled a time when he showed up at school early, “put on a crossing guard vest and worked to facilitate traffic. He always pitched in when needed.”

Chairman Dave Hurton agreed, commending Avlas as “an invaluable asset” over the years. He said he’d had “the privilege of working with you” for 10 years, starting with the Park Avenue building project, and he noted Avlas has been involved in several town efforts.

Avlas himself said he intends to stay involved in several things, including helping to wrap up the Park Avenue school project, shepherd Webster’s application for renovation of Bartlett, and finish the new library.

“Our district is better off because of your years of service,” Hurton said.

In response, Avlas turned it around.

“You should be proud of what you do,” Avlas told the committee. “I think we’ve got a really good thing going here, and I know it will continue in my absence.”

Mike Makara has an even longer track record with Avlas, going back 18 years. He thanked Avlas for being “the model” of how to run effective meetings, adding, “Ted Avlas bleeds green and white.”

Ferranti said. “There are a lot of past practices and traditions and those do need to be respected, but we also need to embrace a little bit of growth. We do need to look at our practices and make adjustments as need be depending on our population and the kids who are moving in.”

One area of concern for Ferranti is making sure students have more developed language skills when they enter higher grades. He said speech pathologists in the district have expressed fears students may be progressing in grades without retaining language skills to the same level as past generations. With that in mind, Ferranti said he wants to speak with educators throughout the district and explore what other skills kids might be lacking as they enter the schools for their first years of education and as they move up from grade to grade.

One of the biggest expenses the district has to endure each year is students with disabilities. Ferranti said there are 566 kids with disabilities in the district, of 14 percent of all students.

These including around 140 students with impairments or disabilities that require access to the general curriculum without requiring a designated instructor. In total, the district employs 31 special education teachers, 65 special education instructors and a behavior specialist among seven schools.

“Within our school district right now we have close to 60 percent of our kids in what’s called full inclusions, which means they’re with their general education peers at least 80 percent of the time. We have another 25 percent that are between 40 and 80 percent included, and we have a small number of students what could be considered substantially separate. We’re close to the state average in all those numbers. We’re probably a little lower in full inclusion in what the state average would be. That’s something the principals are looking at on a daily basis,” Ferranti said.

Looking at placements in out of district settings, Ferranti told the school committee these are “significant tuitions,” and involve students with emotional disabilities and are enrolled in private and day school programs. These students alone are a big cost driver for the district.

“The cost is close to $1.4 million with transportation being a little over $400,000,” Ferranti said. “That’s close to $100,000 per kid if you end up sending them out to a private day program. What we’re doing now and what we’ll be continuing to do, is look at what conditions got those students out and if we can replicate those programs in district. Sometimes you can, sometimes you can’t because of the severity of the needs of the children.”

As the school district continues to work around increased costs and approaches a contentious budget season, the special education department is working with whatever they can to bring costs down on their end. For now, however, there are commitments that can’t be overlooked or ignored. As Ferranti and his staff continue to explore ways to serve special needs students properly at lower costs, they are working hard to maintain and control the services already provided to allow for the regional school district to continue to be a welcoming and courteous district to students who need a little more help than others in Dudley or Charlton.

discussions including several requests for increased wages within the town hall, something for which he has voiced support.

Lorna Wade, the chair of the Personnel Board, made the official request to selectmen to promote Fox on Feb. 26. Her request included a compliment to Fox for being an important part of what the Personnel Board has been able to accomplish in the last year.

“Peter has been invaluable. He has so much information that he has been able to offer the board,” Wade said. “He has been able to provide me with information through his experience and I think he is the best we can find.”

Fox was soft spoken following his promotion to full membership, simply thanking his former partners on the Board of Selectmen who voted unanimously to approve his promotion. Fox’s term will expire in June of this year.

With Fox joining the Personnel Board full-time a successor needed to be named for his alternate seat, and it was another familiar name recommended by Wade for that post. Joan Gardecki was promoted to the position by a unanimous vote of selectmen after Wade pointed out Gardecki’s history with the town and her past success serving the community in different capacities.

“I think that Joan is an excellent candidate. She served as our clerk and secretary and she came forward immediately and wanted to volunteer,” Wade told selectmen.

Gardecki’s term will expire in June of 2021.

Selectman Paul Joseph spoke highly of both candidates, having served on boards with both individuals in the past, and said that the Personnel Board is getting two very dependable and dedicated members to help continue the board’s work.

“I don’t think there’s anybody in town (other than Fox and Gardecki) who know more about the personnel and the workings of the town,” Joseph said.

When hair becomes valuable

When I was appraising items at the event for the Quaboag Historical Society, someone brought in a mourning locket. It had a painting of the deceased person and a lock of his hair inside a small glass chamber. Making jewelry from the hair of a loved one was a fairly common practice during the 19th century.

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES & ESTATES

A 2016 National Geographic magazine story discusses the Victorian trend of making mourning jewelry with hair. Queen Victoria publicly grieved for 41 years after the death of her husband, Prince Albert in 1861. She often wore a lock of Prince Albert's hair around her neck. Queen Victoria's influence extended well beyond England. Many in the United States began the practice of wearing mourning jewelry. Hair jewelry and wreaths were a way to show your connection to a departed loved one. The use of hair was more common during this era. Women of the era exchanged locks of hair as a love token.

The trend wasn't limited to the upper class. The middle class also wore mourning jewelry. Wreaths made of wire and human hair from a departed loved one were fashioned together. Sometimes hair from both living and deceased family members were combined into a wreath.

Mourning jewelry sells for a wide range of prices. Some pieces sell for well under $50, but others can bring much higher prices. Like any other piece of jewelry, the materials that were used and the craftsmanship are important factors. We sold a 24 karat gold brooch with seed pearls, diamond chips and a compartment that held hair for over $2,000 at one of our auctions.

Hair from deceased celebrities and historical figures can bring huge prices. A Time Magazine article listed some auction prices for human hair. A lock of John F. Kennedy's hair sold for $3,000, as did a lock of Neil Armstrong's. Mickey Mantle's hair set a buyer back $6,900. Beethoven's hair reached $7,300.

Auction records show that a lock of Ulysses S. Grant's hair sold for $5,000 in 2012. Rock singer, David Bowie's hair brought $15,000 in 2016. George Washington's hair sold for $26,000 the same year. Abraham Lincoln's sold for a bit more at $32,500. Lincoln's assassin's hair, John Wilkes Booth, went to a buyer at $25,000. CNBC reported that a tress from Marilyn Monroe sold for nearly $40,000 at auction in 2016. A lock of John Lennon's hair fetched $48,000. A letter signed by Robert E. Lee, along with a pocket knife and lock of hair reached $55,000 in 2014. A former CIA employee sold the fingerprints, death photos and lock of hair from Che Guevara. The lot brought $110,000 at auction. Elvis Presley's personal barber surreptitiously stashed away a strand of Presley's pompadour. It sold for the hair raising price of $119,500.

I'll be appraising items for the Leicester Historical Society on March 19. The event takes place at 7:00 p.m. at the Leicester Senior Center. See www.centralmassauctions.com for details on this and other events.

Grow a bountiful garden and share with the hungry

Do you always squeeze in an extra tomato plant, another row of beans or hill of zucchini? It seems like a good idea at the time, until they all start to produce all at once. Your family, friends and co-workers start to hide as you try to pawn off yet another bag of zucchini or tomatoes. Here is a solution that satisfies your gardening obsession and feeds the hungry in your community. Designate some growing space to a Giving Garden and donate the harvest to your local food pantry.

GARDEN MOMENTS
MELINDA MYERS

Feeding America reports that 41 million Americans struggle with hunger. And many are children and seniors. Gardener's Supply Company is inviting gardeners to lend a hand and take the "Garden to Give" pledge to grow food to give to those in need.

They surveyed food pantries to find out what types of fruits and veggies people most enjoy eating, and those that store well. You'll find a simple Giving Garden plan for beets, carrots, cabbage, Swiss chard, kale and winter squash on their website at gardeners.com. Best of all these late maturing vegetables will be ready for harvest all at about the same time, so you can make your donation in just one trip.

Don't let a lack of space stop you from participating. Plant a row or container of one or more of these vegetables to share; join forces with a neighbor who may have the space, but only limited time to garden; or gather a few friends and rent a community garden plot. Together you can grow fresh produce and memories to share.

Get the children in your life involved in growing and giving. Gardening increases focus, decreases stress and elevates children's moods. Giving helps children grow into caring well-rounded adults. Plus, if they grow the vegetables, they are more likely to eat them!

Be sure to capture a few photographs of your donation to inspire others to follow your lead. Starting in August, you can enter Gardener's Supply's online "Show What You Share," photo contest for a chance to win a prize for you and your local food pantry.

With the "Garden to Give," program, everyone who participates is a winner. The real prize is making a difference while doing something you love. Once you've experienced the benefits of sharing fresh produce with the hungry in your community, you are likely to find yourself making regular donations of garden fresh fruits and veggies to those in need... and feeling great about it, too.

Melinda Myers has written more than 20 gardening books, including Small Space Gardening. She hosts The Great Courses "How to Grow Anything: Food Gardening for Everyone" DVD set and the nationally syndicated Melinda's Garden Moment TV & radio segments. Myers is a columnist and contributing editor for Birds & Blooms magazine and was commissioned by Gardener's Supply for her expertise to write this article. Myers's web site is www.melindamyers.com.

You Can Get On Track For Retirement

(NAPS)

There's good news for anyone worried about saving for retirement—you already have what it takes to be a smart saver!

A recent survey by AARP and the Ad Council revealed that Americans are getting the most out of every dollar in many areas in their lives, with 92 percent using money-saving hacks like comparison shopping, using coupons, and signing up for customer reward programs.

Yet, fewer Americans have applied this savviness to their retirement savings. Two in five households headed by Americans age 55 to 64 have no assets saved for retirement, according to the National Institute on Retirement Security. Furthermore, while many companies will match their employees' retirement plan contributions up to a certain amount, only three out of 10 Americans are contributing enough to maximize the company match—which means they're essentially leaving free money on the table.

To address this savings shortfall, AARP and the Ad Council have launched a new campaign to help people save for retirement with a new free

Americans are resourceful when it comes to getting the most out of every dollar in their day-to-day life.

interactive online resource, AceYourRetirement.org, to empower people to take control of their financial futures.

"Retirement planning can sometimes leave people anxious, confused or even paralyzed," said Debra Whitman, executive vice president and chief public policy officer, AARP. "This campaign breaks down retirement savings into easy, actionable steps for all Americans."

What You'll Find at AceYourRetirement.org

AceYourRetirement.org features a friendly digital retirement coach named AvoSM, who guides you through a series of questions about your life, savings goals and retirement plans. In just a few minutes, Avo provides a personalized action plan that highlights your top three action items—the simple, practical things you can do right now to save for retirement. The tips cover a wide range of topics, including how to turn a hobby into a source of income during retirement and how to have a conversation with family members about getting on the same page financially.

Tips To Help You Get On Track With Your Retirement Savings:

- Try to increase your contributions to your retirement savings plan every year, even if by only 1 percent.
- If your employer offers matching funds for your retirement savings plan, contribute at least enough to get the full employer match. Don't turn down free money!
- Brainstorm ideas for earning money in retirement, such as turning a hobby into a source of income, or taking on seasonal part-time work.
- Wait as long as you can—up to age 70 if possible—to begin collecting Social Security. This increases your annual benefit.
- Evaluate your budget to see if you can reduce some of your expenses. This can help you put away more money now, and also have a lower cost of living in retirement.

Get Your Plan
Though saving for retirement can be intimidating, it's never too late to get on track for a more financially secure future. For your personalized retirement savings action plan, visit www.AceYourRetirement.org.

OBITUARIES

Ada Esther Watt

Ada Esther "My Little Nemo" (Salderon) Watt-Ada went to sleep with angels on January 8, 2018. Sadly missed by her husband Donald Watt, whom she always put first above others and herself, Ada leaves her daughter Jessica Villefane of Raleigh, NC and her three grandchildren, also her son Angel Ruiz of Somerville, MA.

Born in Marovis, Puerto Rico, Ada and her many siblings, grew up in a life filled with abuse and trauma, and through it all she managed to raise to two very nice children.

Ada worked for Liberty Mutual, as a dental assistant and even a long haul tractor trailer driver for a few years before working for Macy's Department store, as a Supervisor in the Security Department for 28 years before retiring in 2015.

Ada was a very private and simple person. Enjoying the little things in life. Rain days, holding hands, lakes, streams, trees. Every season had it's own special meaning, a Summer Breeze, the Fall colors and watching the leaves covering the ground.

Sleep with Angels, Ada.

OBITUARIES

Vada Mae Barrett, 88

WEBSTER - Vada Mae (Eggers) Barrett, a "Steel Magnolia", age 88, passed away in her own home in the early morning hours of March 5, 2018. Her passing was imminent as she had steadily declined, both physically and cognitively, over the last 4+ years, leaving her family with a deep yearning for the love of Vada they had known before the strokes & onset of dementia rendered her incapable of being the strong, self-reliant woman she always was. To her family's delight, she remained spirited to the end! Her loving husband of 63 years, John Alton "Jack" Barrett, died on October 9, 2017.

She leaves behind 3 children, Sharon Pelletier and her husband Bryan, Katherine Barrett, all of Webster, and her son Alton Barrett and his companion Debra Henault of Prudence Island RI; 5 grandchildren, Kyle and his wife, Sutton Tucker Bennett, Tyler Bennett and his wife Dr. Jillian Reed Bennett, Michaela & Desiree Pelletier and Aribella Barrett; 3 great grandchildren, Sakaya, Oliver & Cooper Bennett; 2 sisters from Forest VA: Mattie Droog & Helen Davidson; 2 step-granddaughters, Mary Ellen "Mimi" & Juliana Henault. She was preceded in death by her 3 brothers: Albert, Charles Franklin Jr. and Ralph Kenneth Eggers, and by her 2 sisters: Vera Lee Tucker, and Estelle Arnette and by her son-in-law, Gary E. Bennett who died in 2017.

Vada also had a special place in her heart for her many nieces and nephews, their husbands, wives, children, grandchildren & great grandchildren, from New England to Virginia & beyond! The Martins & Cote-Cyr families were like her Northern family and were among her closest friends.

Vada was born & raised in a strict Southern Baptist home on a farm in Forest, Bedford County, Virginia on the outskirts of Lynchburg, on June 2, 1929. She was a daughter of Charles Franklin Eggers, Sr. and Bonnie Lenora (Perry) Eggers, and was one of eight children.

Vada, the rebellious one, followed the love of her life to Massachusetts, where she married Jack at his family's farm on Cudworth Road in Webster on May 29, 1954. They settled in a humble home on the shores of Webster Lake at Colonial Park where they raised their family. Vada was a stay at home Mom for many years before going back to work. She was always hard-working, conscientious, and very adept with her hands. Vada & Jack were owners and operators of Mothers Market in Webster for 5 years. She worked as a spinner in a textile mill, and later on from home, where she assembled component parts for their business, Barrett Stitching, Jack's leather goods manufacturing company.

Jack & Vada, lovingly known as JAVA, were inseparable in their later years. They lived many happy years on Prudence Island RI and travelled all over Narragansett Bay in their good ship JAVA, often with grandchildren in tow. Vada was really a landlubber at sea, more comfortable with two feet on the ground! They adventured off to Rocky Point Amusement Park, Newport for the Tall Ships, Dutch Island for camping, Block Island & Cuttyhunk Island for hiking, fun & a little romance. She could dig clams like a pro and taught the grandchildren how it was done, but SHE would never think of eating them, blah!

Vada had a green thumb and loved to garden. She canned the old fashioned way every year - tomatoes, garden special green beans, jams & jellies & pickled beets. Jack lovingly called her the Food Dude as she had her way in the kitchen! She was famous for her potato salad & banana pudding at Barrett Family Reunions!

They say that "Actions Speak Louder than Words", and you'd better believe it! VADA was a woman of few words and strong action! She may not have been able to get a word in edgewise, amidst her husband Jack's constant discourse about world events, politics, poetry & music, the meaning of life, and on and on; but, make no mistake, Vada was the very backbone of the man & family she loved! Vada was a powerful force to be reckoned with, with plenty to say behind closed doors!!

Vada had a strong moral compass! She taught her family basic values to live by; like integrity, compassion, kindness, and respect. She was a somewhat serious Mother, (it was, after-all, a serious endeavor), nonetheless, deeply nurturing, kind & loving; and then, out of the clear blue ~ she became a care-free and absolutely fun-loving "Gram" with her grandchildren!

Her family learned their lessons well, rose to the occasion to love and care for her tenderly. They are now among the knowing, a bit raw from their experience, but humble and full of respect for the caretakers of the world! Our sincere appreciation and thanks to Becky Farren, CNA of Heritage Home Health Services of Sturbridge, the many kind and patient souls at Accord Adult Day Center in Webster and Suzanne & Stephanie from Laura's Guardian Angels.

The funeral will be held on Saturday, March 17, 2018, at 10:00 A.M., Reverend John R. White officiating, in Scanlon Funeral Service, 38 East Main St. Burial will be in Mount Zion Cemetery. A calling period will take place on Saturday from 9:00 to 10:00 am before the service. Donations in her name may be made to: Accord Adult Day Center, 10 Cudworth Rd, Webster MA 01570-3100.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
