ZZ Top’s legendary bearded guitarists, Dusty Hill and band leader Billy Gibbons, perform their popular duel guitar dance and they play to the crowd at Indian Ranch.

A common sight at the ZZ Top show, many fans wore fake beards similar to the iconic facial hair sported by ZZ Top’s guitarists, Billy Gibbons and Dusty Hill.

BOH stands firm on cemetery regulations

DUDLEY — Dudley’s Board of Selectmen recently made a big decision in deciding not to pursue the town’s right of first refusal on land on Corbin Road that is the target property for an Islamic cemetery. But almost a week prior to that decision, the Board of Health in town made its own big decision on Aug. 23, deciding not to further enhance or change the town’s regulations for cemeteries in the town, choosing instead to embrace current regulations and apply them to both municipal and private cemeteries for the foreseeable future. Ever since the Zoning Board of Appeals in Dudley turned down the special permit request for the Islamic ceme-

DUDLEY — Those familiar with Dudley’s Town Common on Center Road may notice something a little different upon future visits to the area. It’s not a new landmark or a new statue or building, but rather something new on an already established monument on the site, right across from the Black Tavern in Dudley. The Town Common contains a stone monument erected on the 250th anniversary of the town of Dudley in 1732. Originally

SOUTHBRIDGE — Next year is the 20th year that Southbridge will host the Relay for Life of the Greater Southbridge Area. To get inspired and prepared — and look back on last year’s success — the Relay will be hosting its annual Wrap Up Party on Sept. 16, at 6:30 p.m., at the Southbridge Hotel & Conference Center. There will be light refreshments and desserts and anyone is welcome to come and learn more about getting involved. The previous Relay year ended on Aug. 31 and raised an astounding $149,341 for the American Cancer Society. The Relay for Life of Greater Southbridge Area was ranked 15th in Massachusetts out of the 112 Relays in the state. Out of 259 Relays across New England, Southbridge’s came in 24th. Southbridge’s Relay for Life has been in the top 25 in the past as well. “This is something our town can be proud of,” said Event Chairman Jackie Broгна. “Unfortunately, many of us in this area have been affected by cancer. The Relay is a way to put any differences aside and work together for a common cause. The goal is to

Dudley and The Great New England Hurricane of 1938

Sept. 21, 2016 will be the 78th anniversary of the Great New England Hurricane (the naming of hurricanes was not started until 1953). The storm formed off Africa on Sept. 8 as a tropical storm, headed toward the Bahamas, and was expected to impact Florida. But as it reached the Bahamas on Sept. 20, it ran into a trough in the jet stream, which changed the storm's trajectory, essentially aiming it north at New England. The weather bureau in Washington, D.C. reasoned a hurricane always slowed and went out to sea before getting to New England. Warnings of possible gale force winds at the coast were issued for New England and the storm downgraded to a tropical storm. There was no warning of a possible hurricane. Boy... were they wrong. When the storm hit the jet stream not only was the direction changed. The storm's forward speed increased to an unheard of 60 mph, causing winds on the east side to increase. Because of its forward speed, it never had time to weaken over the colder water. After barreling into Long Island, it hit the southwest Connecticut coast doing 50 mph as a Category 3 hurricane. With no warning of the coming danger, coastal residents were taken totally by surprise when on Sept. 21 the skies became dark and sudden 100-plus mph winds drove the ocean into 10-foot high walls of water, destroying and flooding everything in their path. The storm's increased winds on its east side created a 90-mile-wide path of destruction in Massachusetts as the 40-mile-wide eye of the hurricane raced up the Connecticut River Valley and finally into Canada. The storm had recorded sustained winds of 121 mph with a gust at the Blue Hill Observatory of 186 mph. A gust that high has never again been recorded over land.

The huge storm hit Dudley on the late afternoon and evening of Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1938. There had just been a weather front that had passed through New England a few days before, leaving the ground saturated with 4 inches of rain and rivers and streams at flood stage. The hurricane dumped 6 more inches of rain into the already water-soaked ground. With 10 inches of rain in the ground, dams on the local waterways started crumbling. The high winds and sodden ground resulted in trees being uprooted at an unbelievable rate (one flatbed tractor trailer logging truck of today carries 6,000 board feet; this storm blew down the equivalent of 430,000 truckloads of timber). In Dudley, the Route 131 bridge over the Quinebaug River was torn from its foundations by the raging water flowing downstream from breached dams, measured at the bridge as flowing over 14,000 cubic square feet per second. Beautiful old trees on Dudley Hill were torn from the earth by 70-plus mph winds, the huge roots no longer able to keep them upright. Brick Alumni Hall, built by Hezekiah Conant for Nichols College in 1881 sustained severe damage when the walls on the south side of the building collapsed. Three grand old elm trees were felled on the Clarence McKeen property, which was at Dudley four corners. The massive old elm sitting on the lawn of the Fletcher home on the common (formerly home of Sally Healy Walker) was damaged and had to be taken down and hauled away by Mr. Bateman and his truck (pictured with this column). The following day the crew from the Dudley Highway Department had the Devil's own time of trying to saw through downed trees on the Hill to free residents stuck in their homes. Almost every tree on both sides of the Hill was down or damaged. The Nichols College campus was described at the time as "a veritable lumber yard." St. George's greenhouse in Dudley was nothing but shards of glass. Eben Stevens' Intervale Mill in Quinebaug was damaged beyond repair and a few months later closed, never to open again. Dudley's Schofield Avenue, originally an avenue of lovely trees, was practically denuded with many chimneys from homes lying smashed on the ground. Deary Brothers ice cream stand and the adjoining McKinstry Ice House on West Main Street sustained serious damage. Stevens Linen closed because of the damages caused by the hurricane and did not open again until Oct. 10.

The day following the hurricane, all the area establishments carrying photographic supplies were emptied of film by local amateur photogra-phers.

The storm was particularly hard on Dudley’s farmers. The hurricane took roofs off houses and destroyed whole barns and sheds. One farmer had his henhouse and all eighty presumably franti-cally clucking occupants taken by the wind. Silos were toppled. Herds of dairy cows had to be milked by hand due to lack of power. The Dudley summer attraction called the Top O’The Hill sustained seri-ous damage.

The storm claimed close to 700 lives. Miraculously, there were no deaths in Dudley. Carpenters were deluged with requests for their services. And 400 men working for the WPA were

Oh ... and making the best of a bad situation, with hundreds of citizens having sustained loss-es, the day following the hurricane there was an almost quarter-page ad stating Patrick Prout and Company of Webster was selling “windstorm, tor-nado, and cyclone insurance” that could be added to policies at a small additional cost. Clarence Paradis Insurance also had a similar large add in the same paper. And the banks ran huge ads offer-ing “storm recovery loans.”

St. Joseph School remembers 9/11

Courtesy photos

WEBSTER — On Sunday, Sept. 11, students and families from Saint Joseph School joined together for their first Family Mass of the 2016-2017 school year. The Family Mass was of even greater significance this year because it was also their Annual 9/11 Remembrance Mass. During mass, attendees joined together to honor the memory of those who were lost, as well as rekindle the spirit of unity and compassion that swept our nation after 9/11. Karen Lefebvre's seventh grade students were responsible for proclaiming the Liturgy of the Word and presentation of the offertory gifts. In addition, to the 9/11 Remembrance Ceremony, St. Joseph School teachers and staff took the "Oath of Fidelity." By taking the Oath, the teachers vowed to adhere with religious submission of will and intellect to the teaching of the Church and pass on to the students the doctrine of the Catholic Church. The day culminated at Webster Lake for the school's Annual Back to School Picnic.

The times, they are a-changin’

Having sold real estate for four decades, I have seen the process of selling a house change. Sellers need to understand consumer awareness has made buyers savvy regarding purchasing a home.

Buyers in today's market are concerned with the following: 1) houses being energy efficient, 2) environmental issues; such as radon, mold, asbestos, 3) sewerage systems (maintenance/types – septic/cesspool), 4) permits and workmanship.

Buyers have their experts to assist them in making good decisions such as home inspectors, Title 5 inspectors, and a Buyer Agent. None of these experts were available to them 40 years ago. Buyers were told “caveat emptor” (let the buyer beware). Not so today – buyers have an army of experts assisting them.

Sellers need to know their property's strengths and weaknesses, and how these factors will affect their selling price and negotiations. I highly recommend sellers should also become informed consumers. Although a good real estate agent can give them guidance, they could gain first hand knowledge by attending seller seminars, nightlife classes, or free real estate informational programs. They can acquire needed information long before they decide to place their house on the market. Sellers are watching television and searching the Internet to gather information, however, there is no substitute for the opportunity to discuss Title 5 or radon in person with an expert. Many septic inspection companies offer programs to educate homeowners on types of systems and how they operate. They explain “Title 5” and its costs and requirements.

There is no substitution for knowledge. Sellers need to stay alert for educational opportunities regarding real estate. It will make the process of selling your house less stressful, easier, and more profitable and will make you part of the team of seller agent and homeowner. Sellers get better results in their sale by understanding the costs and issues that will affect their sale.

Jahlil, Jamarie & Ricardo are a sibling group of three of Hispanic and Caucasian descent whose wish is to live in a family together. Their worker describes all three children as smart and kind and they are doing well in their respective foster homes.

Jahlil, age ten likes to attend school, play soccer, and build with Legos He is described as a very protective older brother who loves his siblings dearly. Jahlil completed the fourth grade where he had a good year and thrived in his classroom setting. He has enjoyed attending an afterschool program offered at his school. Jamarie age seven is the middle child and only girl of the sibling group. She enjoys playing with her dolls, watching television, and being around adults. Jamarie is able to vocalize her feelings and tell stories. Jamarie started playing soccer this year, which she really enjoys. She also enjoys journaling.

Ricardo is five years old and the youngest of this sibling group. Ricardo loves to follow his older brother Jahlil and do everything he does! Ricardo loves Legos and he also loves to sing! He says his favorite singer is Adam Levine. Ricardo was in daycare this year where he did well. He will now be attending Kindergarten in the fall.

Jahlil, Jamarie & Ricardo will need a family that is patient and energetic. A future family should allow them to be the youngest children. The siblings will need a family open to four post-adoption visits a year with their birth mother. The boys have some allergies that would need to be monitored including significant allergies to cats. Ricardo also has allergy symptoms around dogs so it is recommended they not be placed in a home with either animal. All three children are thriving, however they wish is to be in a permanent family and be placed together!

Have you ever considered adopting a child or sibling group from foster care? ZZ Top brings classic rock riffs to Indian Ranch

WEBSTER — They're one of the biggest rock bands of all time, and if there were any questions of the staying power of ZZ Top, anyone in Webster on Sept. 10 would disagree. The legendary Texas-based group brought their biggest hits to Indian Ranch on the shores of Webster Lake for a sold out crowd with hits like "La Grange," "Sharp Dressed Man," "Cheap Sunglasses" and more. As one of the most highly anticipated shows in the venue's recent history, ZZ Top brought everything to the stage and gave the crowd at Indian Ranch an experience they'll never forget.

Whiskey Church served up some massively entertaining rock covers to kick off the afternoon at Indian Ranch on the Corral Stage. Lead singer Chip Zale was quite the entertainer, spending several songs interacting with members of the crowd by leaving the stage and dancing and signing through the lines of tables.

A sold out crowd made ZZ Top this biggest show of 2016 for Indian Ranch. The legendary band brought fans of all ages from all across New England to enjoy a show composed of many of the band's biggest and most popular hits.

Nothing like a little air guitar to get you in the rock n' roll mood.

Dean and Katie Benway of Webster stopped by Indian Ranch for their first concert at the venue as devoted fans of ZZ Top.

Julie and Bruce Warblow of North Grosvenordale, Conn., pose for a photo as they prepare to head to their seats for the big show.

Sheila and Peter Martin of Providence made the trip to Webster to enjoy one of their favorite bands, ZZ Top.

ZZ Top drummer Frank Beard — ironically the only member of the group without a beard — plays away as the legendary group begins their show at Indian Ranch.

Erin Harpe, a Boston performer who is no stranger to the Indian Ranch stage, served as the opening act for the legendary ZZ Top.

Despite all the controversy about National Anthem protests in the United States, you found no one protesting as the anthem was sung before ZZ Top took the stage. In fact the entire crowd started singing along creating an amazing showing of patriotism and national pride a day before the 15th anniversary of 9/11.

OXFORD — Runners and supporters alike turned out for the landmark fifth anniversary of the Kisses for Kayla 5K in Oxford on Saturday, Sept. 10, as one of the area’s most respected and cherished fundraising events continued years of tradition in honor of the late Kayla Millette. The organization helps families with children with health illnesses and has supported community programs to give local youngsters a place to play, most recently helping support the newly opened splash pad in town. Countless runners took to the course, many from Oxford, to show support for the cause.

9/11: From the Archives

Editor's note: This week's column is a reworked version of a column published back in September 2011, commemorating the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. Now 15 years later, we at Stonebridge Press continue to remember the families affected on that fateful day, as well as the men and women in our U.S. Armed Forces defending our freedom, both at home and abroad.

I remember exactly where I was, what I was doing and whom I was with when the world changed forever.

THE MINOR DETAILS

about what they were doing on Sept. 11, 2001, when they found out about the terrorist attacks at the World Trade Center in New York City, the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., and a field in Shanksville, Pa., that left nearly 3,000 dead in a day that will go down in history as one of the darkest days ever recorded.

Let me tell you my story. I was a freshman at Eastern Connecticut State University, in Willimantic, Conn. I was new at the campus, barely a week into my college experience. I was buying books, getting the lay of the land, getting to know my classmates and teachers, and preparing for my first semester as a college student.

Nothing could prepare me for what I was about to see.

One of the things I made a point to do when I started school was to schedule classes for early in the day, because in order to pay for my tuition, I had to have a part-time job on the side. I was lucky to find one, as a teacher at the after-school program at Eastford Elementary School, my alma mater. I worked afternoons there, so I had to get my classes out of the way before then.

This is why I had a class that started at the obscene hour of 8 a.m. It was a basic course in Microsoft Office — PowerPoint, Word, Excel — the basics. After about an hour of course introduction, the professor, whose name escapes me at the moment, finally let us log on to our computers — but there was a problem. I was never given a student password.

Off I went, just before 9 a.m. on Sept. 11, 2001, walking across campus to the tech support desk to get my password. As I entered the building, a few students stood transfixed at a television perched in the upper corner of the lobby. I glanced at it as I walked by, not really paying attention, but noticing it enough to know they were watching the news. I continued on my way.

I exited the elevator, password in hand, at 9:03 a.m. I know this so specifically, because at this point, the lobby was packed with students, eyes glued to the TV, and I suddenly realized this was no ordinary newscast. My eyes watched in horror as a plane suddenly appeared on the TV screen.

"There's no way this is real," I thought. Then it happened.

The crowd shifted with a collective gasp as what I found out to be the second plane hit the South Tower of the World Trade Center in a blazing fireball.

I asked the people around me what had happened, and a helpful student filled me in, tears in her eyes.

"We're being attacked," she said. "One plane has already hit, and another just flew into the other tower."

She quickly turned back to the TV. I stood in shock for a minute, but quickly realized I had to get back to class, and as I entered, the majority of the group was already on the Internet, surfing CNN and other news media outlets, getting the latest on what was going on.

The rest of the day was a blur from that point. The dean closed the school early that day, and I was sent home, glued to my radio all the way home and then to my TV as I soaked in every last horrible detail of that day. I must have watched the news for about 14 hours straight, late into the night. I couldn't believe what was happening. The world would never be the same.

I have to admit, I was one of the lucky ones. I didn't have any family members or dear friends in or around the World Trade Center that day. My heart broke for those that did.

Fifteen years later, it is hard to believe I was just a 17-year-old kid on that day. Putting this into perspective, there are students today in our high schools that were born after the attacks.

How time flies. But as the years go by, and the events of 9/11 recede further and further into the recesses of our collective memory, let us never forget what happened that day — a day when our faith was tested, our freedoms were challenged and lives were changed forever.

I won't ever forget. Adam Minor may be reached at (508) 909-4130, or by e-mail at aminor@stonebridgepress.news.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

DES awarded generous grant

To the Editor: It is with deep humility that I wish to publicly thank The Janet Malser Humanities Trust for awarding Dudley Elementary School with a grant for $2,825 this past spring.

The money will be used to fund a cross-district concert with the Heritage School in Charlton featuring the musicians of Crocodile River Music in Worcester. Students will showcase African drum and dance skills they learn during a 3-day residency program in late October and early November. Along with funding the concert, this grant will allow our school to purchase 3 Djembe drums for student use for years to come.

Our community is so very fortunate to have The Janet Malser Humanities Trust, which continues to support the arts in many facets. The arts brings people together in unique ways and I am proud of the Board's vision to keep the arts alive and well for residents of all ages to enjoy.

'Book a Cruise' a huge success

To the Editor: "Book A Cruise" is a summer reading program. This year, it was again sponsored by the Chester C. Corbin Public Library and the Webster Lake Association. The children who complete the program are eligible to attend this event at Memorial Beach.

The event was held on Aug. 8. More than 20 WLA members volunteered their time and boats. There were approximately 200 readers from the library and the Boys and Girls Club who took advantage of a tour of the lake and lunch at the beach. Lunch was provided and prepared by AJ Alkire of Point Breeze Restaurant. The kids enjoyed hamburgers, hot dogs, chips, watermelon, juice, and water.

Ray Travis again served as the coordinator for the boats. The WLA is pleased to help support this excellent program.

Thank you, Malser Trust, for supporting WDHS

To the Editor: In appreciation for its commitment to historical efforts the Webster-Dudley Historical Society wishes to thank the Janet Malser Humanities Trust Fund for this year's grant, which affords us the ability to ensure our museum has a sound structure and adequate preservation resources.

We recently had exterior repairs completed by the Three W Construction & Development Co. of Thompson, Conn.

The Malser Trust encourages the restoration and preservation of historic sites, of which the Little Red Schoolhouse (the museum of the Webster-Dudley Historical Society) is one, having been added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1991. The schoolhouse was built in 1835.

How important is pricing your home?

The two big concerns people have about selling their home are how quickly it will sell and how much money they will get for the home.

How much money they will get is typically the most important. The most common comment I hear is: "We can always lower the price but we can't increase it, so let's just start a little higher and see what happens." I do agree that increasing the price is not a great strategy once you have listed the home for sale. This causes people to assume that you will take an offer for the initial price or lower so they tend to ignore the new price when deciding on what to offer. However, I don't think purposely overpricing the home is a good strategy either.

The first two to three weeks are the most crucial in your marketing time to get the most money for your home. If you are getting a full price or better offer it will typically be in the first few weeks. Buyers want to feel they have gotten a good deal and if your home is on the market for a couple months at the same price and other buyers have not purchased the home, then the buyers will want a discount. After being listed for sale for a month or two and you lower the price, now the buyers think you are motivated and they can again offer lower for the home and get a deal.

Obviously, we don't have a lot of neighborhoods where every home is exactly the same and can easily be priced. I suggest hiring an experienced realtor who is familiar with your area as to not price incorrectly because your neighborhood sells for a different price than the comparable homes that are used to come up with price. Price the home as closely as you can to the expected sales price which if there is low inventory you may end up with an auction situation resulting in more than one buyer thus driving up the price of the home. This is the best way to get the highest price because about 90 percent of buyers are working with a real estate agent who can pull list of comparable homes and they know if your home is priced correctly or not.

Private parking lots

The topic of driving in private parking lots or other similar areas was brought up to me recently. The person has seen signs reading "No U Turns" at the entrance to some private lots and wondered about any consequences for people who disobey them. I was asked to provide some further information on this.

There is a section of the motor vehicle laws which addresses this issue. It is under Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 90 Section 16. This law includes many aspects of "illegal operation" such as excessive smoke or noise from vehicles. The first paragraph covers the "No Turns" aspect. It states in part, "No person shall operate a motor vehicle, nor shall any owner of such vehicle permit it to be operated, in or over any way, public or private, whether laid out under authority of law or otherwise, which motor vehicles are prohibited from using, provided notice of such prohibition is conspicuously posted at the entrance to such way..." This law prohibits the operator, or potentially the owner, from traveling across, on, or over any location if a sign is properly posted. It is very broad in its definition and includes both public and private places. Therefore if a sign is in place and a person violates this law, they are subject to a first offense civil fine ranging from $35 to $100.

Vehicles can be prohibited from further operation from many places for a variety of reasons. There could be a risk of injury or damage to people, property, or animals. Accidents could be possibilities or frequent occurrences in many locations. Some places are often "convenient" for U turns and property owners simply wish to stop this activity. Whatever the reason may be, it is important to obey these signs and drive accordingly.

Fishing adventures continue

Saltwater fishing returned back to normal this past weekend in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island waters.

Bottom fishing for sea bass and fluke is great again if you know where to fish and what to use for bait. Small pieces of squid were working well when baited on a jig, and fresh silversides were very good if fished on a jig. The bay is still loaded with silversides and can be easily netted in the bay. Drifting a single hook baited with fresh silversides also worked well when drift fishing in 20 to 30 feet of water.

This past week, Steve Mercure, of Uxbridge, landed a 19-inch sea bass that sported a littoral tag. It was exciting to catch a tagged fish and we could not wait to find out the history of the fish. After calling in the numbers of the tag to the Littoral Society the following information was revealed: The fish was actually tagged a mile from where it was caught. The fish was tagged by Captain Stephen Tombs of the charter boat “Shearwater Charters” based in Galilee, R.I., on Aug.

24! Oh well! Steve will receive a patch from the Littoral Society to sew onto his fishing vest along with a letter of appreciation for his catch.

The Littoral Society is more than 50 years old and has had anglers tagging numerous species of fish for as many years. Anyone can become a member, which costs $40 and $14 for tag kits totaling $54. The American Littoral Society is a non-profit organization, which will make members eligible for a tax deduction. For more information, go to www.littoralso-ciety.org. Sea bass legal length in Rhode Island is 15 inches for anglers to retain the fish, and must be measured from the head to the tail, not including any extending pieces of tail that are often found on sea bass.

The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club, in Douglas, will hold their annual Field Day this Saturday, Sept. 17, at their club grounds off of White Court. The event is open to the public and has plenty of free parking. A clambake and chicken BBQ will be available along with food from the kitchen. Club grounds open at 12 noon.

Black bear hunting opened last week on Sept. 6. The season will run until Sept. 24, for the first segment of the 2016 season. All Zones 1-14 will be open again this year for bear hunting. Hunters need a permit to hunt bear and can use a rifle. Hunters need to be very careful and read the entire rules and regulations on bear hunting listed in the 2016 Mass Fish & Wildlife regulations. A report of a 400-plus pound bear being harvested in Barre last week was indeed impressive. Bear hunters in Maine are having a hard time luring bear into their baited area because of the massive crop of blackberries this year.

Trout stocking is expected to begin in Massachusetts this week if the cool weather persist. Anglers are ready to resume their fishing activities and trout fishing is one of them. After the extremely hot summer the cooler weather predicted this week it is indeed long overdue.

Cod fishing in Rhode Island waters is still good, but huge cod like the one in this photo are extremely rare. It was caught a number of years ago on one of the Clipper fleet boats that has since gone out of business because of the cod fishing restrictions in the gulf of Maine waters. Market size cod are being caught daily at Cox Ledge.

Psychology of the paint palette

Perhaps nothing provides the “wow” effect as fast (or as cheaply) as redoing the walls of a room. After all, paint offers an easy and inexpensive means of transforming a living space — but that’s not all. While paint can make a significant difference in a room’s appearance, it can also make a difference in the mood of the people within those four walls.

Case in point: Several years ago prison officials discovered cell walls painted a bubble gum pink color calmed violent prisoners. Alexander Schauss, Ph.D., director of the American Institute for Biosocial Research in Washington, who was the first to research and report such evidence, stated: “Even if a person tries to be angry or aggressive in the presence of pink, he can’t. The heart muscles can’t race fast enough. It’s a tranquilizing color that saps your energy. Even the color-blind are tranquilized by pink rooms.”

Who knew slapping some paint on the wall could be so profound (or potentially dangerous)! For all those painting this season, here’s a rundown on the psychology of paint.

Creative Color: Want to foster your creativity? Try painting an office or work space light blue. Light blue also promotes imagination, inner security and confidence! Need to be more organized? Try pairing light blue with yellow, to stimulate the mind and help with organizational skills.

low, to stimulate the mind and help with organizational skills.

Deep Sleep: Dark blue, however, tends to encourage deep and peaceful sleep, which makes the dramatic color ideal for a bedroom.

Diet Aid: According to the Paint Quality Institute, medium blue is an appetite suppressant, so you might want to avoid using it in the kitchen or dining room, unless you’re on a diet. In that case, a blue plate might just do the trick.

Bright and Brighter: The color yellow is not only bright, it inspires mental brightness too! Yellow is associated with intelligence and expressive thoughts. Yellow is even credited with improving memory. If that’s not enough to sell you on the color, yellow is a mood booster too! But with yellow a little goes a long way, and too much bright yellow can over stimulate the nervous system.

Chit Chat: Aqua or Turquoise encourages communication, making it the perfect paint color for a teenager’s room — or in a salesroom office where the deal is sealed.

Hunger Pangs: It’s no secret red inspires hunger, and many restaurants use the color psychology to whet a diners appetite. Red also increases the heart rate, energy and passion. But don’t run off to buy a gallon of red yet. Studies show too much of some intense reds can cause irritability and anger. If you’re using red in your room, try a darker shade of red, or try painting one wall to avoid becoming overwhelmed by the energetic color.

Spa Shade: Green is considered a healthy color, fostering comfort, relaxation and a sense of wellness. Green is a good choice for a bathroom, sun porch or reading nook. On the other hand, lighter shades of green such as mint green, can refresh and invigorate the mind. Darker greens, however, add a sense of calm to the decor and are another favorite bedroom color.

Bust the Blues: Depressed? Try painting your walls orange, or at least a workable shade of orange, such as peach or terra cotta. Orange is the top mood booster, according to experts. Orange fights depression and cultivates good humor. The powerful energy of orange even promotes the capacity to forgive!

The latest antique news

The last Brimfield antique show of 2016 just ended. If you missed this year’s shows, mark May 9, 2017 on your calendar so you’ll be ready for next year.

The Sept. 8 edition of “Architectural Digest” contained an article on “what it’s really like” to shop at Brimfield. The writer cataloged their day starting beginning with waking up at 4:45 a.m., arriving at 7:40 a.m., sampling the food and being ready to leave at 3:45 p.m. with sore legs and a full trunk.

For those who want to try something a little different there are a number of yard sales around the company that stretch for miles. There was one this month on Route 7 in Ohio. Yard sales and vendors stretched up and down the 60-mile route.

In upcoming news, “US Magazine” reports that the dress worn by Marilyn Monroe when she sang “Happy Birthday” to President John F. Kennedy is hitting the auction block. The previous owner was Martin Zweig who had it professionally mounted on a mannequin. It is expected to fetch between $2 million and $3 million an auction.

The Washington Post reports that the Internet has changed the way antique collectors hunt to acquire pieces for their collections. A collector of turn-of-the-century wooden cameras used to search at flea markets, in catalogs and shows. He and other collectors now scour the web and are making some great finds. Bidders have to be cautious when bidding online though. There may be issues that you aren’t able to see from pictures. Some auctioneers allow you a preview period to view the items before bidding though. Those who do bid online sometimes make some great discoveries. Bidding on a painting that was found in a New Jersey basement recently started at $1,000. The painting reached over $800,000 when European buyers realized that it was a lost Rembrandt.

I should also note that along with eBay there are other online auctions that serious collectors should be checking to grow their collections. We use the website proxibid.com when we run online estate auctions. Auctionzip.com lists both live and online auctions on its site. Liveauctioneers.com is another site where collectors can find antiques and collectibles being offered at auction.

Another recent discovery fetched a good sum for a Michigan estate. An auctioneer was called to evaluate a local estate. The auctioneer found two barns filled with over 40 cars. There were 28 Thunderbirds, a 1932 Ford Model B, a 1973 Buick Riviera Coupe and some motorhomes. Although most were in rough condition, the auction still brought in over $300,000.

Our schedule continues to stay busy. We are running a live antique radio auction onsite in Carlisle on Sept. 18. We have an estate sale in Plainville on Sept. 24. The preview for an online estate auction with over 500 lots will take place in Harvard on Oct. 1 and 2. A Worcester estate preview will take place on Oct. 8. Make the most of gifts to grandchildren

Did you know that National Grandparents Day is less than a week away? While this “Day” is not as widely known as Mother’s Day or Father’s Day, it is nonetheless important, as it recognizes the key role that grandparents play. If you are a grandparent yourself, you might expect some cards or phone calls or emails from your own grandchildren – but you will probably experience even greater enjoyment in the gifts you can give them. If you’re thinking of making a financial gift, consider your options carefully.

To begin with, don’t forget about your own needs. As much as you love your grandchildren, you can’t afford to provide significant financial gifts to them at the expense of your own retirement savings or the resources you might need for health care or long-term care. So, review your budget to determine what you can afford to give. This amount may change year by year, depending on your circumstances, so you may want to review your potential gifts annually.

However, assuming you can afford to give regularly to your grandchildren, how should you go about it? Here are a few possibilities:

Establish a 529 plan. A college degree is a very good investment in your grandchildren’s future – but higher education comes with high costs. If you want to help your grandkids go to college, you could establish a 529 plan. Earnings in a 529 plan can grow federal tax-free and will not be taxed when the money is taken out to pay for college. Plus, you may receive state tax incentives if you invest in your home state’s 529 plan. (However, if withdrawals are not used for higher education expenses, the earnings portion is fully taxable and will incur a 10-percent penalty.)

for school will be treated as student income on the next year’s FAFSA, and so could lower your grandchild’s financial aid package. So you could wait for your grandchild’s final year of college, when he or she won’t be applying for future financial aid, before you allow withdrawals from the 529 plan. (You may want to discuss a 529 plan’s potential financial aid impact with a financial aid professional.)

Contribute to a custodial account. You can give money to your grandchildren through a custodial account, known as UGMA or UTMA. These are irrevocable gifts that minors gain control of at the age of majority. Be aware, then, that once they get the money, they can do with it as they choose, and their choices may be far different from what you had intended.

Pay college bills directly. You can simply write a check to the college to help pay for your grandchild’s expenses.

By making any of these gifts, you can help your grandchildren move forward through life — and their journey can provide you with the gifts of pride and joy.

Place's late goal lifts Bartlett boys' soccer past Rams

Owen Simonis of Bartlett gains a stride on an incoming Northbridge defender.

BY NICK ETHIER
SPORTS STAFF WRITER

WEBSTER — It appeared that the Bartlett High and Northbridge High boys' varsity soccer teams were destined to play to a scoreless draw in the season opener for both squads on Wednesday, Sept. 7. Nearly 78 of the 80 minutes had been played, but good saves and posts hit had kept the action at a standstill.

At that moment, Indians' head coach Ryan Renauld made an adjustment that proved to be beneficial.

"I literally just asked the official how much time was left and he said, 'Two minutes,' so I started sending a couple of extra guys up," Renauld explained.

Left outside back Christopher Place moved from his defensive position and saw an opening to potentially win the ball in a battle with a Rams' midfielder.

"It was just a 50/50 and I ran up for it," explained Place, who then had sole possession of the ball.

"I love that he trusted his instinct there," added Renauld.

Upon turning around and having his body positioned toward Northbridge's net, Place let a shot fly.

"I saw that I had the open shot and I just let it go," he said. "I was just trying to get it on frame, maybe have a rebound and have someone come on to it."

Place's shot hit the under portion of the crossbar and into the net, a strike that Northbridge keeper James Crawford could do nothing about after making 11 nice saves beforehand.

"We are fortunate enough to be on the winning side of that late goal," said Renauld.

On the flipside, Ram head coach Jeff Kozik mentioned that the loss, "Will keep me up tonight."

The Indians will gladly take the two points for the win instead of one point for a tie, especially a year removed from finishing 6-9-3, just three points shy of postseason inclusion. Bartlett had reached the playoffs 11 straight years before the 2015 season.

"I'm still shaking," Place said of the victory. "It's the Taven Phanthavong of Bartlett slides to make a save ahead of a multitude of players.

seniors' last year and we have to give it our all."

Renauld mentioned that, "Heartache is helping these guys. I think they've got a little bit of a chip on their shoulder and they want to prove that they can make districts and they are a district team."

Bartlett keeper Taven Phanthavong made 11 saves, including many of the punching variety on high shots that seemed destined to go in.

"The impressive thing is that he works very hard on his footwork and his angles to be in the right spot," Renauld said of Phanthavong, who is about the same height as the diminutive Renauld (5 feet, 5 1/2 inches). "He can reach the bar. He has enough of a vertical to get to the bar."

Northbridge, meanwhile, had great offensive chances off the feet of Codey Batista (crossbar) and James Baldwin Von Brunow (left post).

Despite the loss, the Rams remain to have high expectations for the season.

"Our goal has got to be to win a state championship every year," said Kozik, adding that the primary sub-goal is, "We obviously want to make districts."

Northbridge may endure growing pains in the earlier portion of the year, though, as Kozik said, "We have a lot of new faces. We graduated 12 or 13 seniors last year. I think it's going to take a while to get into it."

RAM TRANSFER MENSAH UNABLE TO PLAY AS COACH LINDSTROM SITS, TOO

Shepherd Hill quarterback Ryan Wong-Li looks downfield for an open receiver during a 34-27 opening night loss to Shrewsbury last Friday night, Sept. 9.

BY JON GOUIN
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — "It's never easy," said Shepherd Hill Regional offensive coordinator and stand-in head coach Ryan Dugan as he walked the sideline during an eventual loss to Shrewsbury High, 34-27, on Friday night, Sept. 9, at Carmignani Field.

The Rams were missing big things in the opener, not counting a win, as head coach Chris Lindstrom was absent following the opening ceremonies of the game, and All-State running back and new transfer Kevin Mensah — formerly of Holy Name — did not suit up. When asked, Dugan had this to say.

"Coach Lindstrom made the decision — the team knew about this yesterday — that in solidarity to Kevin, if Kevin wasn't going to be able to play today, that he wasn't going to coach. It was a personal decision that he made with the support of all the coaches and all the players."

Dugan went on to note that he wasn't "entirely sure" why Mensah was not playing, and jokingly added that it was "above his pay grade."

"All I know is it's an issue with the MIAA [Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association]," concluded Dugan.

On the field it was a back-and-forth game, as the two teams traded big shots throughout. The Hill got on the board first as Zack Magdis (8 carries, 155 yards, 2 touchdowns) broke away for a 56-yard score with 2:30 to play in the first quarter, giving the hosts a 7-0 lead.

Shrewsbury got on the board just 48 seconds into the second quarter as Drew Campanale (10 of 11, 124 yards, 2 touchdowns) hit Jared Godek (5 receptions, 99 yards) on a 17-yard pass play that made it 7-6. Later in the period, the Rams' Josh Gelb (7 carries, 97 yards) broke a 69-yarder to make it 13-6.

Shrewsbury eventually took a lead just before halftime after the Rams failed to convert a big fourth-and-two at their own 33-yard line. The Colonials only needed three plays to make it a 20-13 game as Campanale (16 carries, 40 yards, 2 touchdowns) pushed it in from 4 yards out. Tim Rioux rushed for the two-point conversion.

The second half was a bit different from the first as the heat and humidity began to wear down players on both sidelines. A number of players succumbed to leg cramping.

Josh Gelb of Shepherd Hill is stood up by the Shrewsbury defense on fourth down, essentially ending any chance of a Rams' comeback with just 1:36 remaining on the clock.

Dugan said. "We've got a tough football team and they showed that here tonight in pretty difficult conditions."

Shepherd Hill showed that toughness and scored on the first play from scrimmage in the third quarter, tying the game at 20-20 as Magdis broke free for a 79-yard score. Jacob Tondel added the extra point kick.

Again, though, the Colonials answered back as Campanale led a five-play, 71-yard drive, which he capped with a 1-yard touchdown run, ultimately making it 26-20 for the visitors. The score then stayed that way until 10:13 remained in the game when Ryan Wong-Li, the Rams' dual-threat quarterback, found Magdis for a 29-yard strike in the back of the end zone, and the Rams led once again, 27-26.

But alas, a long drive for Shrewsbury, covering 57 yards and over six minutes of game time in which they converted two huge fourth down plays, would be the demise for the Rams. The drive ended with Campanale hitting Chris Campbell, who dove into the end zone to make a fingertip grab and give the Colonials the lead for good, 34-27, once Campbell hit Matt Mulcahy on a half-back pass for two.

At 0-1, the Rams will face a tough task in their next game on Friday, Sept. 16, when St. John's comes to town.

"We'll be back next week, and we'll be ready to go," Dugan concluded.

Oxford boys' soccer team drops decision to Tantasqua

STURBRIDGE — Following a 2-2 tie to David Prouty Regional in their regular season opener, the Oxford High varsity boys' soccer team then visited Tantasqua Regional to take on the Warriors, a strong Division 1 club, on Monday, Sept. 12.

Tantasqua netted four goals in each half to win 8-0, improving to 2-0 in the process, while the Pirates slipped to 0-1-1.

The score could have reached nine goals or possibly double digits, but Oxford keeper Calib Goyette registered 21 saves.

On the offensive side, the Pirates nearly scored in the final minute of the first half. There, Matt Murphy dribbled in from the left side and cut toward the center. He then released a strong shot on net, which Tantasqua keeper Colton Pelicane turned aside to preserve the shutout.

Richard Lesieur of Oxford boots away a free kick opportunity.

Health officials make no changes to cemetery requirements

tery so the town could decide on its stance on the right of first refusal, the Board of Health has been addressing concerns from the public about a lack of updated regulations and requirements for any cemetery that comes into town. Utilizing data and regulations applied during the expansion of the Waldron Cemetery in town in the late 1990’s, the Board of Health announced that it would not be changing the town’s regulations, but rather would use the regulations and requirements of that expansion project as the precedent for any future cemetery project.

“After reviewing everything, speaking with (Health Agent) Tom Purcell, we’ve decided to look through all of (the information) and see what they used for regulations,” said Board of Health Chairman Jennifer Cournoyer. “We pulled out old plans, saw what they did for the expansion ... [and] seeing that they’ve set a precedent, this is what’s been used in past procedures.” Cournoyer listed off five specific requirements that are included in the regulations, including requiring clearance from the Department of Environmental Protection and Conservation Committee, the performance of deep hole testing on the property in question, having a finished grade of 6 feet above the water table prior to the issuance of a permit by the Board of Health, a 100-foot buffer zone to al properties and wetlands and that vaults and coffins be used for keeping the ease of the care for the cemetery and level of the ground on the property consistent.

Dudley Health Agent Tom Purcell said the move was in line with his recommendations as he had examined the procedures and requirements from the Waldron Cemetery and felt that many of the concerns for the current proposal were answered.

“They had to adjust the grade of the entire site before they could perform any burials to bring it so that the finished grade was at least 72 inches, or six feet, above the water table. That was step one and that’s what they did in October of 1997. The practice was reviewed by DEP and a letter of acceptance or approval came from DEP,” Purcell said. “There was a complete site plan and we have a copy of the full print of the site and what they did and pre-construction and post construction grading, which was just as we called for in our preliminary discussions with the applicants.”

Purcell said in the following year after the expansion got the go-ahead further burial regulations were finalized and that he feels these are the guidelines that Board of Health should follow at this time.

The decision to halt on imposing further regulations for cemeteries was met with frustration fro citizens in attendance who voiced their displeasure after the vote was taken by the Board of Health with the consensus being that despite the Waldron Cemetery project setting a precedent concerned citizens still feel the town can do more in providing more up-to-date limitations for any cemetery coming into the town.

John Briare, a member of Dudley’s Economic Development Committee and one of the more recent outspoken members of the public on the cemetery issue, said he feels like there is still plenty of work to be done on the town’s regulations and especially considering what he said was a perceived lack of clarity on what can or can’t be done in the town with such projects.

“The best way to avoid things like this in the future is to have a clear and concise regulations that way everybody knows the rules of the game and the process,” Briare said. “One of the challenges is where exactly does Chapter 114 step in versus the Zoning Board of Appeals in the process and procedure, and where exactly should conservation be engaged. We totally redid the rules and regulations of subdivision of land in early 2000. What seems to have worked in the past with the Attorney General’s blessing at the time was to really clarify our rules there and do almost like a preliminary plan and a definitive plan where the preliminary plan goes before the other boards and everybody signs off and by the time it comes to the Board of Health you have the documents you need in order to then move on and do your job - The clearer we can make the guidelines and processes and advertise them ahead of time where it needs to go the better we’re going to be.”

The Board of Health argued that it’s not their job to decide who should go before another board of commission in town and when, with Cournoyer reasserting that the Board of Health is in support of the regulations as they stand.

“What we have set for the town is what we have set for private cemeteries. At this point we’re keeping it a level playing field and keeping consistence. Things always can be added to or taken away from our regulations,” Cournoyer said. “As the Board of Health we have the right to do that – After reviewing lots of information at this time, what’s good for the municipal cemeteries is good for private at this point.”

Another concerned citizens, Richard Raymond who has been a consistent voice as a Corbin Road resident throughout this whole process, said that despite the work done in the late 1990s setting a precedent, many years have passed since then and things have changed and he feels the regulations should too to reflect more modern ideas and requirements.

“Over the last twenty years science has grown, things have changed, things become more identifiable as to what problems may be,” Raymond said. “The regulations as reaffirmed are almost 20 years old and there’s been new scientific evidence since then and you may have an opportunity to address those deficiencies and modernize. No regulation is set in stone as long as we have a process. Things are always changing and evolving. I think we identified some deficiencies. This is the first we’ve heard of these procedures. It’s been a six months process now and stuff is starting to get uncovered, but there’s still almost twenty years with new scientific evidence out there and I’d like to see the board consider some of that evidence in establishing and adopting the rules and regulations that the scientific community is suggesting we do.”

With the Islamic Society of Greater Worcester seemingly set on bringing its cemetery to Dudley, it’s likely these reestablished regulations will be put into play sooner rather than later. Only time will tell if the regulations address all the concerns citizens have with the proposed project, or if the next few months will be a repeat of the debates and deliberations that have made 2016 a very contentious year for the town of Dudley.

Monument now pays tribute to founding Dudley families

a one-sided monument with a brick covering on the back the monument is now fully visible all around and has some new features on its back, with 38 family names of the founding members of the Dudley community in 1732 etched in the stone for everyone to see.

Dudley Historical Commission Chairman Edward Bazinet said that he was inspired to go forward with etching the names into the monument after noticing just how empty the reverse side looked facing the Congregational Church. While exploring possibilities for another project the idea of using the monument to honor the founding members of the Dudley community dawned on him and now it has become a reality.

“One thing we’ve done over the years, in cooperation with the Dudley Women’s Club, is we’ve had a fundraising historical scavenger hunt that raised money to build interpretive plaques that would go on the common so you’d be able to see what it looked like before with pictures of old buildings that may or may not be there anymore,” Bazinet told The Webster Times. “We were planning that project and I was walking and trying to lay it out with someone and I looked at the back of this other monument and said ‘This is a blank piece and it’s just sitting here waiting for something.’ It dawned on me that what we hadn’t done anywhere in the town is give credit or pay homage to the founding families that were here that first year in 1732.”

The Town Common came into the town’s possession in 2014 when the First Congregational Church signed the land over, and since then, the Center Road land has served as the heart of the Dudley community and home to many town events as well as sitting adjacent to the Nichols College campus. The area is a fitting location for such a monument to honor Dudley’s founding community members, and after much hard work and determination, the family names are now permanently engraved on the monument.

“I did a little research and I had to look through old birth and death records and marriages. We looked through anything that would indicate a family name for that one-year period in 1732,” said Bazinet. “That was the criteria for whose name got on the monument. We may have missed a couple. You never know how these things go. The minute you finish them someone will step forward and say ‘Hey wait a minute, here’s someone you missed.’”

Anticipating the potential for more names to come forward, the Dudley

Historical Commission worked with Mercer Monument Works, who was contracted to engrave the names, to leave some space for potential future additions if new family names are discovered and proven to have been part of the founding group of Dudley residents. The project cost around $3,346 with a $3,098 grant from the Janet Malser Humanities Trust Fund helping with the bulk of the cost.

“They obviously served the town as anyone would that we would send in the military to protect the citizens and make sure that the town thrived,” said Bazinet of the founding families. “I felt it was about time we recognized that.”

Relay Wrap Up Party caps off $150M year end cancer. It’s still a hard economic time in this area. ... It goes to show this is a cause that means a lot to people. Some people cannot give as much as they used to, but they’re still giving.”

Having been in Southbridge for almost 20 years, Brogna said that the Relay is part of the town’s history. Many people in town grew up participating in the Relay in one way or another. She said: “The Relay has become part of our lives.”

The Wrap Up not only looks towards another year of Relay, but celebrates the participants who made all of this possible. They will be giving an award to the top three teams and top three participants, people who went above and beyond to raise money for Relay.

“We like to do it because it’s a thank you to everybody for all of their hard work. It’s more about thanking everyone for participating and get ideas rolling for next year. We have a vote for next year’s theme,” said Brogna. “The Wrap Up is a great way to meet people if they’ve never had a team before. You can meet people who have had successful teams and maybe start networking. You can get a sense of what Relay is about.”

Getting involved in the Relay for Life is a very rewarding experience, said Brogna. It not only benefits the American Cancer Society and helps fight cancer (as well as help patients receiving treatment) but it benefits the people who take part, giving them a whole new community to bond with.

“People put aside their differences,” she said. “It’s a common goal. It’s a gamut of emotions. If you’re there on Friday night and you watch the Survivor Lap you see how many people have been affected and beaten the disease. At the same time, many of us know there are people who are no longer there. It’s a very emotional time. But there’s camaraderie. The people there have all gone through it. You can talk to anyone, find support, share your stories, find hope.”

The new Relay For Life website is not active as of press time. But anyone who would like more information about starting a team or becoming part of the committee can reach out to American Cancer Society staff partner Alyssa Tracy at alyssa.tracy@cancer.org or at 508-270-4659. There will also be many ways to learn more and get involved at the Wrap Up.

The generation gap

I was listening to a talk radio show the other morning as I was driving along my morning routine and one discussion was about a “#hashtag” war between millennials and preceding generations, mainly the Gen X’ers and baby boomers. They have been going back and forth, with the older generations poking fun at how lazy, ignorant, uneducated, and technology obsessed the millennials are, while the millennials lash back with how the previous generations have made it almost impossible to succeed in life, afford education, achieve homeownership, and even start a dreaded family.

So while I am listening to each point of view I feel their arguments are getting more valid at every turn, on both sides. I am a Gen X’er, but I went through my early adult years as the millennials were blooming and the world was being taken over with technology. I grew up with landlines of corded phones and a rotary wall hanging model in avocado green (to match the kitchen appliances of course!), I spent days at a library doing research for a homework paper where I would hand write my rough draft before going home to type it out on my electric type writer. Granted, I had friends who had computers at that point, and sometimes I was able to take my knapsack full of research to my dads and type it out there. He always had the coolest new technology!

So as I listen to the older generations talk about how “kids these days will never understand,” I got a reminiscent longing for “the good old days.” When I was younger I took care of myself and everything I had to do each day, just like every other kid my age. If I played a competitive sport, we either won or lost, there was no mercy or (heaven forbid) trophies for all. If I skipped school I suffered the consequences of a truancy officer dragging me back to school. If I was bullied, which we all were at some point, it was done to my face and not behind a screen, the bully had to actually have to guts to look you in the eye while making a lame comment. If I disrespected my parents I had to face that wrath, and that was a wrath like no other. I was taught that if I wanted to be anything in life I had to work for it, and if I didn’t succeed it was no ones fault other than my own. And I feel my inner grumpy-old-lady coming out when I see my neighbor get berated and verbally assaulted by her twenty-something degenerate son. While I watch a friend work herself to the bone trying to take care of her home and family while her child’s father is quite possibly the laziest human being I have ever seen. And this make me so angry that I worry for my kids’ future and I find the millennial generation absolutely despicable.

But the more the younger generation spoke back the more I could see their point in many areas. How are they to succeed in all the parts of life we expect them to if we never prepared them for the repercussions of our generations’ actions and mistakes? How can they get a top education if we make it so unaffordable and decide our only option is to provide free education for all (defeating the purpose of working for an education)? We have given this generation an “all or nothing” ultimatum. This generation is trying to be more sustainable and we scoff at them for the change. This generation is riddled with food allergies yet we are the ones who started and approved all the artificial foods and preservatives causing a serious breakdown in the human immune system. We expect them to work as hard as we did, but we don’t demand it from them. And yet, we sit here and blame them for not knowing what it was like in the “good ol’ days”.

I had my kids in my late 20’s and early 30’s. Most of my friends did as well.

And while I wanted to be able to provide my kids with the same childhood I had, of playing outside and drinking from outdoor hoses, and riding bikes and playing until the sun sets, I wanted them to know what the Dewey Decimal System was, learn how to win and more importantly learn how to lose, I wanted them to be smart and successful and curious and respectful. I told myself my kids would only eat organic and not watch television until they were five. Well my son had a favorite show and a television in his room starting at about two years old, the same age my daughter got her tablet. And I laughed as friends would tell me “I will definitely limit screen time with my child” knowing full well, that wasn’t what this generation is about. Granted I highly limit what my children watch, but the television is on, sadly, most of the day. We are in a technology era. And yet as I sat with my daughter playing on her tablet I realized she is playing games I would not have been able to figure out until I was much older than her. She is playing a game currently where sick animals go into an animal hospital and she has to play nurse and fix them up. The monkey comes in with a bellyache only to find out during an X-ray that his bones are all in the wrong places. So

Relay for Life remembers, celebrates, offers support

Cancer survivors celebrate their accomplishments.

Survivors take a moment to reflect.

AUBURN — In a two-day event of hope and remembrance, the community came together on Sept. 9-10 at Relay for Life to celebrate cancer survivors and honor those who lost their battles. Always strongly supported, the Relay's Central South County event takes place each September at Lemansky Park. Several returning teams once again impressed with their fundraising totals, and new teams made their marks as well. Organizers also thanked Auburn Mall for its sponsorship of the event.

Auburn's Kelly Willard attends the event for the first time with her daughters, Sophie, 11, and KK, 7.

after trial and error she has learned where each rib goes, what the femur is and how it is the strongest bone in the body, and how many joints are in this strange human shaped monkey hand. So maybe this screen time epidemic isn't so bad. Just like everything else, it's all about smart choices and moderation.

We know that logic and common sense has to prevail. I am not making excuses for those foul mouthed teen walking down the street talking back to their mothers, and I am certainly not making excuses for the late twenty-something parents who would rather live off the system and not go to work because they are too tired, only to lay on the couch with their phone in their faces all day. I am jaded enough not to have pity for those who don't try. But next time you hear a mom talking about their kids favorite show, don't roll your eyes and assume the child is babysat by a flat screen all day. And next time you are behind a parent in line buying a tablet for their toddler, think perhaps this parent has good intentions of using it as educational. Whether we want to admit it or not, the past is gone and we are in a technology world now. We might as well embrace it and learn proper use ourselves, and teach our children the same. We don't have to be our kids' best friend, but maybe if we get down on their level more often we can get the generation of younger kids to learn that respect and motivation we crave from the millennials.

Group that helps homeless may soon be ‘homeless’ themselves

DUDLEY — The Blessed Backpack Brigade, a small group of volunteers working under St. Andrew Bobola Parish in Dudley, may soon find themselves without a place to store items that have been donated to help the homeless.

As of Sept. 18, they will have to move out of a storage area that had been donated for their use, as the owner had a prior commitment for the space as of that date.

They have been contacting area businesses, but to date have had no luck.

The Brigade, which was born out of the St. Andrew Bobola Fellowship Meals Program, provides items for free to the homeless to help make their lives just a little bit easier. They have been collecting and distributing tents, sleeping bags, backpacks, food, personal hygiene items, clothing, and other articles as the need arises. A barrel in the lobby of the Dudley Police Station is the collection point for donations.

Fellowship feeds them at the church; the Backpack Brigade takes that one step further and helps them out on the streets.

They have also been assisting in computer education, and helping find available jobs.

One of the homeless, a veteran with cancer, has just started a full-time job in Dudley and is working toward finding a room or apartment to call his own closer to his place of employment.

Another has just started working at an establishment in Webster.

In this Year of Mercy, they are abiding by Mother Teresa’s words...

“At the end of our lives we will not be judged by how many diplomas we have received, how much money we have made or how many great things we have done.

We will be judged by: I was hungry and you gave me to eat, I was naked and you clothed me, I was homeless and you took me in.”

In speaking with one of the volunteers, she said: “Your job is not to judge. Your job is not to figure out if someone deserves something. Your job is to lift the fallen, to restore the broken, and to heal the hurting.”

It’s not an easy job, as trust is an issue. But as time goes by, more and more are coming to them for help.

Now, they need help themselves.

If anyone in the Dudley-Webster area has a space (about the size of a large classroom, or a two-stall garage that has outside access day or night) that you would be willing to donate, please call Lisa at 508-330-7242 or Lauri at 774-230-8988.

Sheriff donates fresh food to Food Share

WEBSTER — The Worcester County Sheriff’s Office announced its 5th Organic Farming Season is well under way.

Tended to by inmate labor and located on a 12-acre parcel of jail land, the farm is maintained and sustained all for under $1,000. Recently, Sheriff Lew Evangelidis stopped by the Webster Dudley Food Share to deliver fresh organic produce grown by the inmate farming program including green beans, summer squash, zucchini & potatoes. In addition to the Webster delivery, over 5,000 pounds of fresh prison produce have already been distributed to dozens of local food banks, veteran groups and food pantries throughout Worcester County.

Staff from the Webster Dudley Food Share were happy to receive the Sheriff’s donation as well.

“Our mission is to do whatever it takes to ensure members of our community don’t go hungry. We are open 52 weeks a year, twice a week to help feed all that need it and today’s delivery of fresh vegetables is a tremendous help. We can’t thank the Sheriff and his team enough for this generous produce donation,” said Webster Dudley Food Share President James Alkire.

“For us, jail farming is a growing trend that helps so many. Inmates learn new skills and a sense of self-worth and dignity that comes from a day of farming work at the same time local food banks and those in need in our community benefit as well,” said the sheriff.

Annual Chili Cook-Off to benefit local schools

WEBSTER — The Webster Dudley Business Alliance and Isador’s Organics of Oxford are partnering once again to host a Chili Challenge on Sunday, Oct. 16, from 3-5 p.m. The event will take place at the American Legion Post 184 located at 9 Houghton Street in Webster with all proceeds benefiting local schools in the tri-town area of Webster, Dudley and Oxford through the Hand Fruit Program.

Area restaurants, caterers and individuals are invited to enter their best chili recipe, from spicy to mild, meat to vegetarian. Email contact@thewdba.org for an entry form. For a $5 suggested donation anyone may sample the entries and cast their vote for a People’s Choice Award. Additional 1st, 2nd and 3rd place awards will be given by a panel of judges representing the Webster, Dudley and Oxford school districts. There will be gift basket raffles featuring items donated by local businesses. Tickets will be available at the door.

The Hand Fruit program was established by Justin Szostakowski, owner of Isador’s, several years ago.

“Isador’s Hand Fruit Program raises funds through community events in order to supplement Massachusetts public school lunch programs with organic fruit. Each year the event continues to grow and benefits elementary schools in Webster, Dudley and Oxford.” Justin also added, “The main purpose of the cause is to provide a practical education to young people about the importance of whole food nutrition.”

CASA Project hires new executive director

WORCESTER — The Board of Directors of the CASA Project of Worcester County is very excited to announce the appointment of Robb Zarges, PhD as their new executive director.

Dr. Zarges joins CASA having had 24 years of previous nonprofit management experience, 10 of which were as an Executive Director. He was Executive Director of Straight Ahead Ministries, Inc. for Worcester and New England Director. Dr. Zarges was Executive Director for Bridge Over Troubled Waters, Inc., Boston. Additionally, he is an adjunct Professor at Clark University. Dr. Zarges has a PhD in Organizational Leadership.

CASA is a financially stable, well-respected, non-profit human service corporation committed to abused and neglected children in the care of Worcester County Juvenile Court.

And since 1981, we have provided court advocacy for abused and neglected children by recruiting, training and supervising volunteer Court Appointed Special Advocates/Guardians ad Litem (CASA/GALs) who are appointed by a judge to serve one child or sibling group at a time.

In 2015, less than half of the above children in the court system in Worcester County received a CASA advocate. There are not enough trained volunteers. The board and staff have committed to double the number of children served by 2020 by ensuring a sufficient core of trained and supervised CASA advocates are available for all children in need of a court-appointed advocate.

Child abuse and neglect exists in many forms throughout all the communities of Worcester County; it is not limited by geography, race or socio-economic conditions. CASA Advocates serve in all five Worcester County courthouses where these cases are heard: Fitchburg, Leominster, Worcester, Dudley and Milford.

The CASA Project is in the midst of a transformation, growing from an organization powered by a network of dedicated volunteers to a mature, mission-driven and outward-facing organization that will be a partner and leader across Worcester County’s human service sector. Dr. Zarges, as our new Executive Director, joins at a very important time for the organization.

Dr. Zarges started as Executive Director effective Aug. 29, 2016.

For more information regarding CASA Project, Inc. visit www.casaworcestercounty.org.
