Chris Vetter has some fun in Webster's new water chair at Memorial Beach.

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — For most people, going swimming is no big deal — just put on a swimsuit and dive in.

But if you're handicapped, it's a much bigger production. Wheelchairs get bogged down in sand and physical issues make swimming difficult, among other things.

This summer, Webster floated out some amenities to address those issues, and they're already making a difference in people's lives.

"This helps in all areas of development, especially enjoyment," said Rita Vetter, whose son, Chris, was the first person to use one of two the town's new water chairs. "The first time, I made him [use it]. The second time, he voluntarily went in and wants to go back. Now he gets to cool off like everybody else."

A water chair is just what it sounds like — a floating lawn chair with big, inflated wheels, it can roll down the beach and right into the water. They're just two of several new items now available at the beach; the others include three handicap swings (one for adults) and a water mat (a blue rubber track from the parking lot to the water).

According to Anne Marie Peparato, vice-chair of the town's ADA Commission, the Dudley near completion with historic district designation

BY JASON BLEAU

DUDLEY — After years of research and work it seems the town is approaching the finish line for designating an historic district on Dudley Hill.

The commission has been working for over five years to earn designation for Center Road and the surrounding areas. In 2017 a new Civil War monument debuted on the town Common further adding to the historical significance of an area playing host to the Dudley Grange, the Black Tavern, the First Congregational Church of Dudley and Nichols College. This region of town has been the focus of a years long process to give Dudley its own historic district.

Historical Commission Chairman Edward Bazinet provided an uplifting update on the status of those efforts on July 10, telling his fellow members a report totaling 114 pages has finally been sent to Boston and the Massachusetts Historical Commission for consideration.

"It is now on their desk. I can't imagine they will tweak this anymore, but who knows," Bazinet said. "It even includes the narrative that's going to go with the PowerPoint presentation from the commissioners. This is essentially ready to go."

A hearing will be scheduled in Boston, likely for the fall, to hear the presentation on the proposal. Commission members commented on the long, draw out process to receiving the designation and Bazinet said he too will be happy when the process is finally complete and Dudley can have a region specifically designated as the centerpiece of the town's history.

"I'm excited about this. It's been a long, long wait," said

Dudley breaks ground for fire department project

Board members, town officials and fire officials from Dudley toss the dirt to officially break ground on the Dudley Fire Department reconstruction project.

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — After years of work and navigating red tape the Dudley Fire Department has finally broken ground for their long awaited rebuild project to bring new life to the 58-year-old facility.

The project has undergone many proposals including an outright relocation to the Dudley Municipal Complex. That idea was denied by voters in 2015, two years after a Fire Station Building Committee was established to examine the possibilities for a new station. In the end voters settled on a $6.5 million reconstruction effort in 2016, which will see the department remaining at its current home at the corner of West Main Street and Mason Road with the nearly 6,000-square-foot station expanding to 18,500 square-feet over the next year. The groundbreaking on Wednesday, July 11 was the official first step to on-site work.

Chief Dean Kochanowski said the project has endured a long, arduous process and finally breaking ground brought a sigh of relief that everything will finally be taking shape over the next years' time.

"We started back in 2013. We had a few roadblocks. We had one failed vote, but this finally got approved in 2016 and now finally after going through all the paperwork and jumping through all the hoops we're getting started. It's good to see," the chief said after the ceremony.

"We're going to start on the right side of the building when you're facing it from the road. They'll level the ground out and prepare for the new foundation. It will go all the way to the property line. The apparatus bay is going to be all brand new."

The new apparatus bay will be one of the highlight features of the new facility. One of the selling points for the reconstruction was the need for more space for the more modern vehicles to fit in the station. The new building addition will feature eight bays to house 10

The latest Hi-Set graduating class takes center stage at the Webster Regional Resource Center.

Seven graduate sheriff's Hi-Set program

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — A small ceremony in a crowded room at the local Sheriff's Regional Resource Center proved the truth of an old aphorism "Correction does much, but encouragement everything."

On Wednesday, seven area residents achieved their Hi-Set (formerly GED) certificates, some of them after being out of school for decades. Five were sent to the program as part of probation — Victor Otero-Lopez, Rachel McKinstry, Jesse Lloyd, Nicholas LaPorte and Sabrina Carroll — but two of them, Mahrina Jones and Jeff Wirrell, chose to do it on their own.

For Wirrell, a Douglas resident, it was a particularly fast process. Although this class (the center's second Hi-Set class) started in January, he joined it in April after his employer in Milford, Ardagh Group, closed. Wirrell had been there 26 years said he felt like he'd hit "rock bottom" because he "came here with nothing." Since then, though, he's gotten a job offer from an Owens Corning branch in New York, and just needed the Hi-Set to qualify.

"I couldn't believe I did it this quick," he admitted, noting he also didn't believe he'd passed the tests until after the fact. "I felt nobody's going to hire me. I was scared, and they took me in."

Like most of the others going through the program, Wirrell dropped out of high school (in his case, not long before he'd have graduated, he said). The return to school, especially the increased complexity of the Hi-Set compared to the old GED (among other things, it now requires an essay), seemed a little daunting at first, especially since Wirrell recalled that'd he'd flunked the GED around 1990. But the sheriff's program provided personal support that "really feels special."

"I thought I'd failed them all [again], but they kept coming back saying you did well," Wirrell said. "They gave me the will to keep coming back." Some of his classmates admitted they were expelled, including Carroll, who came to her graduation with her newborn daughter Layla.

"I always wanted to go back to school, but the courts got me into it," she said. After taking a year to be a stay-at-home mom, she plans to start col-

Paicos, Paicos, Palaia and Kane: up the mountain and down again

KIMBERLY MASCHI
NEWS CORRESPONDENT

A group of volunteers geared up as they ascended the very steep and treacherous North Trip pyramid Mountain. This snow topped mountain resides in the White Mountain range in New Hampshire and reaches an elevation of 4,000 feet. While the length of the trail up the mountain is an 8-mile roundtrip, the hikers found the inner strength to handle the environmental conditions. The trail was steep enough to cause an icy surface complete with waist high snow. Thankfully the hikers each sported crampons to make for easier traction as reaching the summit was important for all on this epic journey.

Those brave enough for this journey were Kevin Paicos, medic and semi-retired town manager; Tom Kane, Winchendon finance committee member and retired school superintendent; Nick Paicos, former police officer and exer-

Car Buying Tips

People ask Place: My new car seems so complicated. Why do I have all this technology?

The Right answer: During our recent Classic Cruise we were able to see first hand the many differences in today's cars versus the cars of yesteryear. The new cars had so much more in electronics to increase performance, efficiency, comfort and most importantly safety. The innovations many of us have simply grown to expect in our cars were not available in the 50's, 60's or even 70's. Much of the now standard features were developed in just the last few decades. Federal regulation and of course customer demand have contributed to much of the new technology in the new cars. Even some of the new technology like your cell phone have sparked new tech in your cars. Airbags that were once only in the steering wheel now seem to come from everywhere and can create a complete "canopy" offering protection to passengers in every seating position. Ford even has available inflatable seat belts to provide rear passengers even more security. Anti-lock braking systems, stability control systems, adaptive cruise control, automatic climate control, intermittent wipers, infotainment systems, all-wheel drive, 6 and 10 speed automatic transmissions, power windows and door locks, back up cameras, electronic ignition and fuel injection are just some of the things we have seen in today's cars that weren't in those classic cars we love. In fact, did you know that in early F series pickups a passenger side windshield wiper was an extra cost option. We love those old cars and trucks. They sure are great to admire. Look closely at the new cars and trucks and marvel at the things they can do. The advancements are incredible and much more is coming to improve the next generation of transportation.

Dudley reveals solar PILOT agreement numbers

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — Following up a request from the Board of Selectmen on June 18, financial figures of the Payment in Lieu of Taxes or PILOT agreements from solar companies in Dudley have now been made public.

Selectmen revealed the figures during a meeting on July 2 where board chair Steve Sullivan read the numbers allowed.

"I asked the town administrator to prepare us a listing of solar PILOT payments because everybody wants to know how much we've been able to get by entering into these agreements," Sullivan said. "The grand total of solar PILOT payments received through April 30, 2018 is $81,264.97."

Sullivan said this covers 11 solar farm agreements in Dudley and includes figures from the final quarter of 2017 through the first quarter of the 2019 fiscal year. PILOT agreements are traditionally used as an alternate payment to taxation of a property. Businesses or organizations that enter into PILOT agreements with towns provide a payment to compensate for the property taxes lost due to a tax-exempt ownership. Sullivan said that the income is a recurring revenue source for up to 20 years.

Selectman John Marsi commented on the numbers and said he thought the results were "great" and provide a promising source of income for the town moving forward.

"I've had at least two residents ask me for that and we always talk about economic development and doing more on a business front but when you don't have a ton of infrastructure we can put these in the right place. This doesn't even include anything we'll do on the landfill," Marsi said.

He added that for the future it might be helpful to both town officials and to residents to have the PILOT agreement monies represented separately in the budget so that everyone is aware of what's coming into the town in that manner.

"I think when we do our budget and we calculate our revenues this should

Where you live as retiree can affect financial strategies

Upon retiring, many people relocate to enjoy a more favorable climate, or to be closer to grown children, or to live in an area they've visited and enjoyed. If you, too, are thinking of moving someday, you'll want to study possible locations, but you also need to be aware that where you eventually decide to live can greatly affect your savings and investment strategies – both now and during your retirement.

Here are some relocation costs to consider:

Housing – Not surprisingly, the larger the city, the more expensive the housing is likely to be. Also, locations near an ocean or the mountains tend to be more costly. But the type of housing you select – house, apartment or condominium – also can affect your financial picture in terms of initial expense, maintenance and possible tax benefits. Plus, you can now find newer types of arrangements, such as senior cooperative housing, in which you own a share of the community and have a voice in how it's run.

Health care – If you are 65 or older when you retire, you'll have Medicare to cover some of your health care costs, though you'll still likely need to purchase some type of supplemental coverage. However, out-of-pocket health care expenses may vary in different parts of the country, so this is something else you'll want to check out before relocating. Of course, the availability of good medical facilities may be just as important to you as health care costs.

Taxes – You may hear about people moving to a different state to lower their tax burden during retirement. A few states don't have personal state income taxes, and many others offer favorable tax breaks on retirement income, so, if taxes are a major concern, you'll want to research the tax situation of prospective retirement locations. You may also want to consult with your tax advisor.

These aren't all the areas you will need to consider when estimating your total cost of living in a retirement destination, but they should give you a good idea of what you can expect. And your choice of where to live as a retiree can affect your financial strategy in at least two ways: how you invest today and how much you can withdraw from your retirement accounts when you're retired.

Regarding how you invest today, you should evaluate whether your current investment strategy is likely to produce the resources needed to support you adequately in the retirement location you've chosen. So, for example, if you think you're going to live in a fairly expensive place, you may need to reduce your expenses, delay retirement or work part time.

Your choice of a retirement destination also may affect how much money you withdraw each year from your 401(k) and IRA. When choosing an appropriate withdrawal rate, you'll need to consider other variables – your age, the amount of money in your retirement accounts, other available assets, etc. – but your cost of living will be a key factor. A financial professional can help you determine the withdrawal rate that's right for you.

When you retire, it can be a great feeling to live where you want, but you'll enjoy it more if you're fully aware of the costs involved – and the financial steps you'll need to take.

Protestors rejoice at decision made

KIMBERLY MASCHI
NEWS CORRESPONDENT

OXFORD — Protestors who have been fighting against the injustice of mistreated dogs inside the Laughlin Kennel on Larned Road were shouting "we won, as a decision by the Oxford Zoning Board has been granted in their favor. For over three years, this kennel has been protested against, and finally, real action has been taken against the kennel.

Leader of the protests and animal activist Cheryl Berthiaume states, "We never gave up. As long as those pups were kept in those inhumane conditions, we would be their voice. We were determined to see this through. The puppies won."

Decision made. The kennel is in a residential-zone, and upon discovery that no one actually lives at the residence the kennel is not allowed to receive trunk loads of puppies shipped in from other states. The disruption and chaos these truck loads of puppies bring to the residential-zoned neighborhood has been recognized and demanded to cease.

Oxford's zoning by-laws do not allow commercial kennels and or pet stores in the zone where the kennel is located.

Neighbors have complained for years, and while those who operate Laughlin Kennel believe they can do as they wish, the Oxford Zoning Board disagrees.

The final decision is as follows, the business run is no longer allowed to bring in truck loads of puppies from other states but can instead breed their own puppies on location.

The ruling feels good to all those who have protested this kennel over the past three years.

Fire Station Building Committee Chairman Michael Spahl said the project has been carefully planned out to prioritize certain aspects of the new building during the warmer months in hopes of beating the winter weather and keeping the project within its one-year timeline.

"For four years this has been in the making so it's good to see it come to fruition finally. We just have to hope the project goes smoothly for the next year and hope winter doesn't come too fast on us," Spahl said. "The new bay building goes up first and then we'll get the trucks out and hopefully get the existing building enclosed before winter and we can get all the equipment in the new bays. There's demolition work to do because where the bays are now is going to be office space. This is something we've been needing for some time. The process is just so drawn out. It's finally here though. Within two weeks you're going to see a dramatic change already take place."

Kochanowski also brought up the drawn-out process to getting to the ground breaking. While voters approved the reconstruction in late 2016 they had not seen a lot of progress on site and the Chief promised that residents will soon see physical progress being made on the facility on route to a brighter future for the department.

"It takes a lot to get all the bids. The whole process is very complicated, and I don't think everybody understands that's why it took two years from the time the money was approved to get the actual groundbreaking to happen," said the chief. "Now that this moment is here we're pretty excited to see things happen for real."

Should I think about resale when purchasing a home?

The answer to this question is always yes. You never know when life will change and you will want or need to move again. Even if someone tells me they never plan on moving again I will always point out downfalls with a home that could cause a resale issue even if the person purchasing the home does not care about that downfall. Some of the important factors to consider that can affect the resale of a home are as follows:

Buying a home on a busy road - Many people are fearful having kids or pets on a busy road or the road could be a detractor as well.

Buying a home with 2 bedrooms on 2nd floor and 1 bedroom on 1st floor - If a family has children then they may not want them on a different floor than them and this can cause an issue.

Home being on a private road - For you buying a home on an unpaved private road may be nice to keep people driving slow through your neighborhood but for someone else they want a smoother ride home and let dirt and dust and the uncertainty of who may be fixing the potholes in the road may be a deterrent.

Big House and Small Yard - You may love the idea of having a nice easy yard to maintain while many people looking for a large home have a large family and they want lots of outdoor yard space.

Wallpaper and Carpet - You may be fine with the wallpaper and prefer the carpet over the hardwoods. Most people prefer to have painted walls and will prefer hardwoods over carpets and sometimes the carpets are an allergy issue. Luckily these are things that can be changed.

Close to railroad tracks - You may not mind the tracks or even think the sound of the train going by is soothing. Other people it will wake up in the night and they may be concerned about their children or pets ending up on the tracks.

Home with no basement - You may feel you don't need that extra storage space in the basement. In many areas of the country homes do not have basements but around here it is more common to have on and most people want it to have the ability to store items there.

Biggest house in the neighborhood - People prefer to buy homes that are in a neighborhood with other similar homes. If you have a 3000 square foot colonial in a neighborhood of 1000 square foot ranches you will have a challenge reselling the home compared to one in a neighborhood with similar homes.

These are just a few examples of things to consider. If you are buying a home then consult with a local Realtor who can let you know when they see things that could impact resale and you can decide if you overlook them as it is the perfect home for you.

idea of obtaining these things dates back to about five years ago, when the committee itself was reconstituted. They're not cheap; just one water chair costs $2,500, and the total came to about $15,000.

"We were playing with that idea in our heads, but we had no budget and no idea what to do because we'd never seen such a thing," she said. "Doug [Willardson, the town administrator,] came to us with some fantastic ideas. He came to us from Grafton, and they have some of these things at their beach."

Vetter said Chris, who is autistic, blind, and has cerebral palsy, used it for the first time in Webster June 30. Previously, he used one at a Rhode Island ocean beach. The former was his first time at Memorial Beach; the latter was his first time in the ocean. He's 34.

"I like it...to ride it, to get around the beach," Chris said in the background as Vetter talked on the phone, prompting him every couple of words. Then she added, "Now he can go to the beach whenever he wants to."

"This is an asset for the town of Webster," Peparato said. "People have responded in Facebook. One guy said 'I haven't been able to get in the water for years'."

She said the devices are available on a first-come basis by asking one of the lifeguards for access. Users need to come with someone who can help them in and out of the chairs or swings; the lifeguards can't do that for liability reasons.

Despite that limitation, "the lifeguards are very accepting and accommodating," Vetter said.

She'd love to see a swing that's big enough for Chris's chair to roll into because "he'd probably feel more secure and it would be good therapy for him," although she admits Chris doesn't really like swings anyway.

Going forward, Peparato said the commission "would love to renovate the bath house so it's completely handicapped-accessible," including making at least one unisex bathroom. But they're also "always looking for suggestions" to improve access all over town, noting she personally sees Slater Park as a serious issue. There, parking on both sides of the street and in the sidewalk and downed trees force wheelchair users into the street.

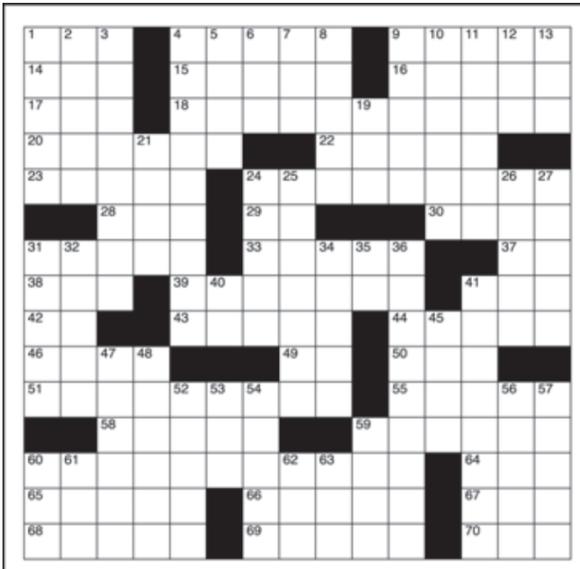

Both of those, however, would require "big bucks," so Peparato unabashedly admits she'd love to have "a philanthropist with deep pockets" come forward to help.

HISTORIC DISTRICT

Bazinet. "Once it's in good shape and it's approved then we'll wind up printing (the report) in some format for places like the library and others that would want it. We'll have to look into how expensive that might be. It's going to be a very good resource for specific properties and the general feel for that area — I'm looking forward to it being done and inviting the governor out. He owes us a visit. This would be a good reason for him to show up and celebrate with us."

In preparation for the potential approval of the proposal on the state level the historical commission will be setting up a meeting with land owners to inform them of what this designation would mean. This would be the third such meeting and would provide insight into how a historical designation would limit or change what can be done on specific properties on Dudley Hill. Bazinet explained there are three properties in the proposed district up for sale right now and that the properties in the district would only be impacted when it comes to demolition, which would require an automatic one-year hold because it's a nationally registered area.

Venture to the Hobbits Hollow in Dudley

KIMBERLY MASCHI
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

What is Letterboxing? Letterboxing is a scavenger hunt where the clues lead you through a hike into nature. At the end of your adventure you will find a box with a notebook, pen, handmade rubber stamp, and ink pad. What you bring with you is your own rubber stamp that represents you, and a notebook. You ink your unique stamp into the notebook with a written note about your journey. You then take the provided stamp and log it into your notebook. It is a great opportunity to get outdoors with a purpose. With this Letterboxing adventure, you will also learn things on the way. As always, be safe, bring water, clip out this article to take with you, and spray yourself with bug spray.

Our quest begins in the beautiful town of Dudley. To find the letterbox you will need to first find where to start. There is a meadow filled with mischievous creatures. Turkeys run wild and free. Birds nest low enough for you to take a peek inside their nests. The butterflies approach as their curious beauty glides on the wind. This Meadow is sanctuary to all creatures especially the brown thrasher and eastern towhee. When you find the area park along the white garage and walk past the gate and onto the path.

Your path will change multiple times in this journey, this area is full of mystery, and the numerous paths all lead to new and amazing adventures. Your path will change from grass and dirt to soft fallen pine needles. Enjoy the cushy walk while it lasts, a small rocky section is next. As you walk along the rocks look out to the left and count the plethora of cattails. Continue on and you will come to your first fork in the road. Take a left, this meadow is a circle, but for this journey, you must experience all that nature has to offer. There are over hanging branches that shade you. Take a closer look.

The birds that reside here feel safe and secure enough to style their sacred nests directly above your head. Along this path many critters crawl from forest to meadow. Continue along the circle and to your left you will see birch trees scattered in the forest. This is where you will see your first marker for the Woodland Looptrail, venture down into the trail, blue markers will line your way. At the fork on this path stay to your right. You will now see yellow markers. Up ahead you will be able to see Hobbits Hollow, a cavernous collection of boulders and stones covered in bright green ferns. This is a magical place. Continue on, walk through the split fallen tree and keep to the left as you follow the path.

A grand tree stands to your left. It is enormous, ancient, and holds the crawling smaller trees up, while some others lay at his feet. This is the grandfather tree. Soon after the grandfather tree is another trail on your left. You are back to blue markers. There are wild blueberries and raspberries lining the path. Leave them be for the animals need them more than you. A rock wall winds on your right, follow this and you will come to the miniature Christmas tree forest and lucky you, another plush pine needle path awaits.

Follow the George Marsh Trail on your right and soon you can look out at a glorious pond. The waterlilies skim the surface while wildlife flows all around you. Watch out for the beaver trees ahead. They have been busy chewing away and they mean to knock down as many trees as they can. Before you go any farther, turn around, and look carefully at the rock wall. Looking away from the pond you will see fallen trees and the star shaped root. This is where you will find the letterbox! Congratulations! Feel free to continue on your journey. For a faster trip back to the lot, at the grandfather tree take a left out into the meadow and follow the path straight for an easy exit.

Visiting museums

Some of you may be heirs to the Rockefeller fortune or may have founded an internet startup that got purchased for billions of dollars. But the rest of us won't ever have the money to own a painting by Renoir or Monet. That doesn't mean that you can't see art by some of the greats, though. Visiting museums is one fun and affordable way to gain more knowledge about art and antiques.

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES & ESTATES
WAYNE TUISKULA

I was fortunate enough to visit France recently. Auguste Rodin's "Le Penseur" (The Thinker) statue, along with many of his other works are on display in an outdoor garden at the Rodin museum in Paris. The Musee d'Orsay houses works by many of the greatest artists of France, along with important works by artists from other countries. There are works by Cézanne, Monet, Gauguin, Renoir, Manet and Degas. Vincent Van Gogh's famous self-portrait is also exhibited there.

The Louvre Museum, also in Paris, was formerly a royal palace. It was founded in 1793 and is the world's most visited museum. It offers artwork from across the globe. A travel guide told our tour group that if you spent 10 seconds looking at every piece of art in the museum it would still take you over three months to see them all. The Mona Lisa, the statue of the Winged Victory of Samothrace, and Venice de Milo are three of their more famous works.

You don't need to travel to France to see great art, though. We have many wonderful local museums. Boston has the Museum of Fine Arts, the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum and the Institute of Contemporary Art. Worcester Art Museum will exhibit "The Poetry of Nature: Hudson River School Landscapes from the New-York Historical Society" beginning on Sept. 8. The Fitchburg Art Museum will host "Interior Effects: Furniture in Contemporary Art" beginning on Sept. 23. The Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford contains a wide range of objects ranging from the Morgan collection of Greek and Roman antiquities to the Samuel Colt firearms collection.

When I began selling antiques, I took a course with George Michael. He was a New Hampshire antique dealer and auctioneer who hosted an antique show that ran nationwide on PBS during the 1960s to 1980s. He showed us slides picturing antiques that he had sold, seen or owned. One of the slides was of an unusual antique basket used by the people of Lappland that he had seen in a museum. Mr.

Michael told us that he later saw another Lappland basket like the one in the museum being offered at a local auction. He was the only one in the crowd who knew what it was and purchased a museum piece for very little money. Visiting museums literally paid off for him.

We have many events taking place and others being scheduled. We will run an estate sale in Holden on July 21 and July 22 and another in Spencer on July 28 and 29. We plan to run a live coin auction and an antique estate auction in the Fall. I will be teaching my "Evaluating your antiques" class on Oct. 15. I'll be appraising items for the Winchendon Historical Society on Oct. 28 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.. See www.centralmassauctions.com for details on these and other upcoming events.

Middle School students recognized

Alex Popovich and Molly Starzewski, students at Dudley Middle School, were honored at the 19th annual Middle Level Scholar Leader awards banquet at the Best Western Royal Plaza in Marlborough on May 16. The students were presented with an award whose criteria included demonstrating academic initiative and scholarship, providing service to classmates and school, exemplifying positive attitudes and demonstrating leadership in the classroom and school activities.

Over 400 guests, including students, educators, and parents, attended this year's banquet, which celebrated the achievements of middle level students who are representative of the many outstanding young adolescents in middle level schools in Massachusetts. The guests included 84 students from 42 schools from all over the state were addressed by keynote speaker, Randy Pierce.

The Middle Level Scholar Leaders Award is organized annually by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Middle Level Educators and the New England League of Middle Schools, with supporting sponsorship from Massachusetts Secondary School Administrators' Association and Lifetouch National School Studios.

cise specialist; and former town manager of Oxford Brian Palaia. At the base of the trail, there to provide logistical and safety support, was Stanley Bates, police chief. This trek up the mountain was to join together in comradery and generous spirit for a very important goal, a thermal imaging camera for the Oxford fire department.

A thermal imaging camera can be a vital necessity to the Oxford Fire Department in any upcoming battles with structural fiery blazes. This specific type of camera can detect temperature differences to miniscule degrees. It will be able to provide access inside the inferno from the outside. In a smoke-filled room the fighters would be able to view if there was a victim on the floor suffering. With this knowledge, they can make the necessary movements to ensure a safe recovery. The team of firefighters can enter a burning building, scan the area with the thermal camera and discern hot spots. This will prevent the fire from spreading by acting upon the hottest areas within the blaze.

Chief Paul Ford states on the importance of this $1,400 camera, "Having this tool available can be crucial when searching for someone trapped in a structure fire or preventing the structure from being a total loss."

On July 10, the Oxford Board of Selectman voted to accept the donation achieved from this hike. The goal was to raise $500, instead these amazing adventurers raised $1,070. Kudos to the brave explorers who raised funds for such an important cause.

The Dudley Senior Center was treated to a pastel painting workshop with award-winning painter Gregory Maichack. Participants were instructed on proper techniques in using pastels, smudging, and using those techniques to paint a water lily and lily pads. The event was sponsored by the Dudley Cultural Council and saw approximately 28 people come to paint. Margaret Bussiere, Council on Aging coordinator, said that there are not any more programs they have planned at this moment, more should be coming in coming months.

Friday's Child

Jaeden
10-Years old

Hello! My name is Jaeden and I am a loyal friend!

Jaeden is an imaginative girl of Caucasian descent. Those who are close to her describe her as feisty, sweet, outgoing and sometimes silly. Some of her favorite activities include making up stories and songs, playing with her Barbie's, and playing dress up with jewelry and make-up. She also enjoys riding her bike and playing outside, whether it's swimming, going to the beach or playing with friends. Jaeden likes to be in charge and independent but is also described as a loyal friend. She enjoys the structure of school, and in general thrives in an attentive environment with lots of positive reinforcements.

Legally freed for adoption, Jaeden will do best in a family with a mother and a father or two mothers. If there are other children in the home, they will need to be an older female. Most importantly, Jaeden needs a family who will stick by her side through ups and downs. A family must also be open to helping Jaeden visit with her birth parents three times a year and maintain contact with her two sisters with whom she is close

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples. The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for. To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have a "permanent place to call HOME."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rubin: Early won't debate

To the Editor:
 Yet again, I challenge the incumbent to a debate. I have made numerous requests for a debate over the past three months through social media, radio, television and most recently an article in the Worcester Telegram, which ran on June 8, 2018. To date, the incumbent has refused all my requests. His refusal to debate me is nothing short of disrespect to the voters of Worcester County. With your help, I would like to conduct multiple debates across Worcester County.

By comparison, the Suffolk County District Attorney's race has already had six debates and forums, with at least one more scheduled. Due to the incumbent, the transparent process taking place in Suffolk County is regrettably absent in Worcester County, and quite frankly, disrespectful to its residents who deserve more.

That the incumbent refuses to give the residents of Worcester County an opportunity to hear a discussion on the issues is outrageous. More outrageous is the outright denial of the incumbent politician to address my numerous requests for this debate. One can only surmise that the incumbent is not willing to speak publicly without the benefit of the carefully crafted and scripted press releases he quotes from that are drafted by high priced political consultants he pays for from his campaign account. I, on the other hand, have been speaking directly to the public for over 22 years without the assistance of political consultants or three press consultants who are currently on the DA's payroll at an annual cost of approximately $196,000 to the taxpayers.1

As an attorney with over 16 years of experience as a prosecutor and 5 years as defense counsel, as well as having worked in 3 different District Attorney's Offices, I know how the precious resources of the public should, and more importantly, should not be spent. If elected, I will spend the vast majority of the budget on paying and retaining experienced, dedicated and ethical prosecutors to work in the courtrooms representing the citizens of Worcester County. I am opposed to using taxpayer dollars to pay high priced administrators, supervisors, support staff and others who don't directly further the cause of public safety.

I am ready, willing, and able to discuss ALL issues of interest to the residents of Worcester County.

As a candidate for Worcester County District Attorney, on the ballot for November 6, 2018, and more importantly a resident of Worcester County, I request your assistance in moderating a debate with an incumbent who refuses to do so. The residents of Worcester County deserve no less.

Thank you very much.

BLAKE J. RUBIN
 CANDIDATE FOR WORCESTER COUNTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Wilson: very disappointed

To the Editor:
 "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." How many men, women, and children have died over the years so that these words might live? These words might be spoken and heard across our globe, but they were bought and paid for by the original patriots of our United States.

Katie Steinle had these rights and enjoyed our liberties. She was murdered.

America how long will you allow yourself to be shot in the foot before you feel the pain? Illegal immigrants (please do not politically correct me here now, or perfume it over with the word 'undocumented' — these people like the felon who killed Kate are illegal and some are thugs) have killed enough of our citizens to warrant a bill presented to the US Senate floor by Ted Cruz of Texas.

The bill was not for Republicans nor for Democrats. This bill was for us. They live in sanctuary cities, enjoy our rights, and feed off our taxpayer money.

I was very disappointed, indeed mad, that both Massachusetts senators Elizabeth Warren and Ed Markey, voted against this bill.

"We the people" will vote in November. Remember Kate and all the others who had their "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" wrongfully and needlessly stolen from them.

CARL W. WILSON

Yost: is it in our interest?

 Lock the Cookie Jar Taxpayers`
 Seems to me, with elections on the horizon, this information should be brought to everyone's attention, especially those on Social Security and the younger generation starting careers and families. The concern, for these groups in particular, is the 'Tax and Spend' state legislators. Those 'cookie jar' salaried representatives of the people. Ask yourself if they have our interests, or just their political affiliated party's interest in mind, when voting to spend our money?

To understand, check the voting records of our legislators below. Remember, they are spending our money. Let's look at how your party's legislators are representing you, or more to the point, "Ripping you off!"

Here's how the MA Senate & House Voted on three Bills.

#1. Amending MA Constitution to allow for 80% more spending 'Yes' 154-D vs 0-R.

#2. Provide only 3hr review of bills [to help hide hidden spending] 'Yes' 151-D vs 0-R and finally, and most disturbing of all, #3. 153-D vs 0-R voted to raise the pay of public officials by an average of 40%.

Have you ever gotten a 40% raise where you work ??? Who will end up paying, the 'taxpayer'.

Therefore, Democrats need to understand, the taxpayers wallet is not a cookie jar for them to pilfer as part of their agenda. Confirm this information at www.massfiscalscorecard.org

Its time for taxpayers in MA to understand the 'facts' and not the rhetoric of political campaigns. Remember, Vote but verify the facts.

The rules concerning handicap parking spaces

CHIEF'S CORNER
 STEVE WOJNAR

During a recent visit to the Dudley Post Office, the continued problem of handicap parking violations was brought to my attention. The space at this particular location is quite often used by people who do not meet the appropriate requirements.

I was asked to remind people of the laws regarding parking in handicap spaces.

Handicap parking spaces are laid out according to law for use by those individuals who meet certain disability criteria. These spaces are generally limited in number so it is important to keep them available for use by authorized people only. Two forms of disability permits can be issued by the Registry. They are either license plates, which are issued to a vehicle, or a placard, which is issued to a particular person. The placards can be used in any vehicle in which the person with the disability is riding. They do not need to be the driver.

Penalties for illegal use of these spaces can vary in severity depending on the type of violation. A person parking in these spaces without a permit is subject to a parking fine which can range between $100 and $300. The vehicle is also subject to removal. The penalty for the actual misuse of a handicap plate or placard is more stringent. A person is subject to a civil motor vehicle fine of at least $500. In addition, their driver's license can be suspended for 30 days for a first offense penalty. The person who has the plate or placard issued to them can be subjected to the immediate revocation of their permit.

Many people improperly using the space at the Post Office will often just "run in" quickly to drop off mail. A person who is looking to save a few moments and benefit from the ease of parking closer to their destination takes a risk of stiff fines and penalties.

More importantly, the space is not available for use by those people who truly need it to enjoy many of the same opportunities most of us take for granted. Please make every effort to avoid this situation.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com.

EDITORIAL A history lesson to relearn

While the lofty ideals of the American Dream would have us all religious zealous intent on creating heaven on earth, idolizing a perfect democracy already in our hearts as we set forth boldly where no one had gone before in the late 1500s and early 1600s to that great unknown continent; the bitter truth is so, so unkind.

Most of us were not so inclined. The Cotton Mathers of the world were few and far between.

The explorers had found a wild land, ripe for the taking and the exploitation; to hell with the people already there.

The business people were wringing their hands with glee, great corporations created just to rape those profits as quickly as possible: the licenses to settle given over only through them and the right to ship and receive goods only through their trading companies.

Immediately the need for more hands and muscle was needed. Not education, not intelligence, just strong backs. Those corporations, the Hudson Bay Company, East India Trading and so on were only the beginning and as they grew stronger, or smaller splinter companies broke off and became independent, they had to find ways to populate their colonies, cheaply.

Deals were struck. Jails were emptied. Poor houses and debtors' prisons were cleared.

Not that they didn't fill again, because life was hard; but there was opportunity offered. Indentured servitude was one way out of a hard life, and judges were convinced to give banishment to the colonies as a punishment in some cases.

Some were just plain bought. And not even for much of a bribe.

Documentation from the time, from those who lived it, and those who were trying to make it work, say it all:

"A great part of the new company," says Mr. Stith, "consisted of unruly sparks, packed off by their friends to escape worse destinies at home. And the rest were chiefly made up of poor gentlemen, broken tradesmen, rakes and libertines, footmen, and such others as were much fitter to spoil and ruin a Commonwealth, than to help to raise or maintain one. This lewd company, therefore, were led by their seditious captains into many mischiefs and extravagancies. They assumed to themselves the power of disposing of the government, and conferred it sometimes on one, and sometimes on another. To-day the old commission must rule, to-morrow the new, and next day neither. So that all was anarchy and distraction."

Excerpt From: John Marshall. "The Life of George Washington, Vol. 1." iBooks. <https://itunes.apple.com/us/book/the-life-of-george-washington-vol-1/id492181829?mt=11>

It is no wonder our rebellious spirit continues to this day. We just don't like government much. Never did. Never will.

We cast fish eyes at anyone who tries to rule. We have a history of it.

So when someone comes along who isn't a politician, swears he will do it different, will drain the life out of those already there, will shake it up...of course we listen.

We were "led by our seditious captains into many mischiefs" and continue to be so.

We may now recognize that perhaps our rebel does have an agenda and his own cause. And he really doesn't understand that politics is a different animal and his business practices don't always work the same way in this world as they did in his private world. We may have had our rose colored glasses about him rubbed a bit less shiny; and do understand there are some problems with his revolving door policies with aides and appointed henchmen; a peek into ethics might be needed.

He is far, far, far from being an innocent in any sense of the word. He is manipulative, arrogant and a narcissist; and it has always worked for him in the private sector, not so much in the public sector.

But he is the president, he does have the power that goes with that office; and while he wields that power whether we agree or disagree with him; like or dislike how he represents our country, he's it.

Our history as rabble rousers and libertines means if we don't like it we can very well rise up and throw him out the next time around. What was a golden boy this time can easily become pond scum the next time. It has happened before and will again.

It is a lesson to learn and relearn.

I tried a cycling class at the Oxford Community Center. Who knew that traveling fast to go no where was going to be so much fun? Usually when one gets on a bicycle they have a destination in mind. But in this class, the only destination is a super work out with the aftermath of sore legs and butt.

I am on a new journey of discovery.

I wish to experience all there is in life and a cycling class was something I always wanted to try. When I exercise it is very difficult for me to stick to a routine. I don't want to say I get bored easily, I just need difference, uniqueness in my life and that includes my exercise routines. I'm setting out on a fitness journey that I hope will keep me interested, involved, and moving. The OCC was kind enough to let me join in their Sunday morning cycling class. It is a class where I burned calories, had fun, and most importantly I tried something new and will share my experiences with you.

To start the class everyone boarded their bikes and got to pedaling. I sat in the back of class and adjusted my bike about 15 times before I felt comfortable, got this', and 'this is great no problem at all'.

The instructor, Pati Jermyn, smiled so sweetly as she gave her first instructions after the warm up, "oh look!" says Pati, "There's a hill up head!"

To ascend this imaginary hill, you have to crank the tension dial to "pushing through pudding" setting. After that first hill, I began to call the tension dial, "The Dial of Disdain". This dial would soon become my worst enemy, or my friend, it depends on how you look at it.

All the other stationary cyclists were amazing in their smooth strides and perfect posture. While I am in the back trying not to grunt and beg for mercy. When Pati said flat road, we were able to lessen the tension and relax.

I miss flat road. Flat road was nice.

Pati gave us nice little rests on flat road but this was an hour-long class and there was more to accomplish. It was around this time when I noticed the jiggling. That's right. Jiggling. My butt, my thighs, my everything was just a jiggle. I never knew I had such bounce! Just call me Tigger because I am bouncing! I am chuckling in the back of class over my Jell-O like build when Pati yells out "next we are going to do some sprinting!"

Sprinting is basically pedaling as fast as you can as you increase the Dial of Disdain. To get through this experience I envisioned some really hungry zombies behind me. These zombies were ravenous and I would have to pedal my heart out in order to survive!

When the sprinting was done everyone toweled off and I mean towel off. Not the dab lightly on your brow because you have a nice glisten. No, I am talking full cotton to skin need of sopping up the sweating dribblets that are forming on your face, arms, neck, chest, everywhere! This was the first time I chugged at my water bottle like a desperate guinea pig after a rigorous round on the exercise wheel.

Ain't nothin' but a good bird dog

Although upland bird hunting is a couple of months away many sportsmen that want their dogs in top shape when it arrives, are conditioning the dogs early. This week's first picture shows Jerome Jussaume of Douglas with his new springer spaniel that he recently purchased from a breeder out of state. Although Jerome has a couple of other springers, he enjoys training them, and also competes them in numerous trials throughout the year. Now that he has retired, he gets a lot of satisfaction training and conditioning his dogs at the Uxbridge Rod & Gun Club on a daily basis. That is what it takes to have a great hunting dog. Jerome has entered numerous trials over the years with his dogs, and has won many awards.

RALPH TRUE

keep the program going each year, and it often falls on the shoulders of a few members every year. Hopefully this year will be different as numerous new members have joined the club and have bird hunting dogs. Other clubs that have similar programs are Wallum Lake Rod & Gun, Singletary Rod & Gun & the 200 Sportsmen's Club, although Singletary and the 200 Sportsmen's club receive state birds to raise, and they must stock them in hunting areas that are open to all state licensed hunters.

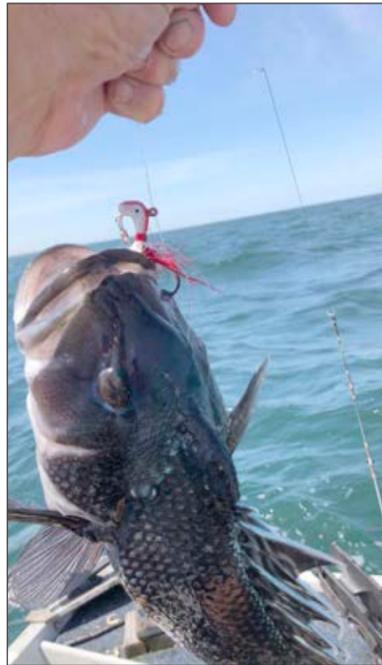

Bird hunters that are looking to purchase a hunting dog for this year need to decide on the breed of dog that they will be happy with for many years to come. It is a long commitment when purchasing a dog, and requires a lot of time and patience, not to forget the cost. Vet bills are extremely expensive and the initial cost of purchasing a dog from a breeder is not cheap. $1,000+ for a dog from a highly respected breeder is the going price.

Sportsmen that belong to a Rod & Gun Club like Uxbridge, that have a preserve status license for hunting birds from September to March, also get to enjoy a lot of days in the field hunting birds raised and stocked on the premises on a weekly basis. Quail, chucker partridge and pheasant are made available to the members for training dogs and for hunting. It takes a lot of work to club and have bird hunting dogs. Other clubs that have similar programs are Wallum Lake Rod & Gun, Singletary Rod & Gun & the 200 Sportsmen's Club, although Singletary and the 200 Sportsmen's club receive state birds to raise, and they must stock them in hunting areas that are open to all state licensed hunters.

A raccoon recently tested positive for rabies in Uxbridge. The animal was shot by an area resident when the animal constantly harassed him, and would not leave the premises. The resident notified police of the incident, and the town dog officer picked up the animal to have it tested for rabies. It came back positive. My son Ralph Jr. also had an encounter with a raccoon when he went to deposit some trash into his dumpster this week. The animal was very mangy and did not move when he opened the cover of the dumpster. He left the cover open and the animal was gone the next day. Residents need to be careful with all wild animals that act strangely, and police need to be notified.

Saltwater fishing is red hot in both Massachusetts & Rhode Island. Stripers, seabass & fluke are still providing action for area fishermen. This past week this writer and Harry Salmon fished a couple of miles east of the Center Wall at One of many caught and released seabass off the coast of Rhode Island.

Galilee RI and had a great time catching monster seabass. We were also surprised to catch a couple of mackerel in the same area. We had not caught mackerel in the area for years. Reports of large schools of mackerel near Block Island could be the reason for the great striper fishing in the area. The second

Tips to pick, preserve & prepare garden herbs

TAKE THE HINT
KAREN TRAINOR

What could be more delightful than the summertime pleasure of plucking fresh herbs from an outdoor garden? Herbs not only bring essence and beauty to the landscape, they also provide an element of enchantment to a yard. Whether you grow herbs for their unique flavors, medicinal value, or just for the pure pleasure of it - the humble herb adds spice to any garden plot! Read on for some harvesting and preserving tips, plus few recipes to spotlight your fresh snipped herbs.

Harvesting Herbs
While snipping herbs daily for kitchen use is a common practice, the act of fully harvesting herbs regularly is also important to ensure new growth. For best flavor, cut or snip herbs in the morning, after the dew has evaporated from the leaves but before the mid-day sun heats the plant.

Most annual plants can be harvested twice during the planting season. Cut plants back to about five inches above the ground and feed after cutting. Annual herbs can be harvested until frost.

Perennial herbs may be harvested once during the first year and up to three times each season after the initial growth year.

Harvest up to 75 percent of the top growth in late spring and another quarter in late summer. Stop harvesting about one month before the frost date. Late pruning could encourage tender growth that cannot harden-off before winter.

Flowering herbs should be harvested when the buds are apparent or when flowers are just opening. This is when their oil concentration is at its peak.

Preserving Herbs
While herbs for cooking should be used fresh for optimal quality and flavor, a zealous growing season can necessitate preserving the herbal plants. There are several methods to "keep" herbs for later use.

Freezing: This is the easiest method to preserve herbs that are to be used in cooking. Herbs should be cut fresh and rinsed briefly in cold water. Chop herbs and spread out on a cookie sheet to freeze. Once frozen, transfer to a zip lock freezer bag. Another popular way to freeze herbs for uses in soups and other dishes that require liquid is to place pinches of herbs in water filled ice cube trays. Freeze and pack them into a zip lock freezer bag. Don't refreeze herbs after thawing.

Drying: Drying is the traditional method of herb preservation. There are also several methods to dry herbs for later use.

Air Drying: If the herbs are clean, do not wet them. Otherwise, rinse, shake off the excess water, and spread the herbs out to dry on paper towels or dishcloths until all surface moisture has evaporated. Remove any dead or damaged foliage. Then, tie the stems into small bundles with twine or string and hang them upside down in a warm, dry, airy place out of the sun. Be sure to make small, loose bundles and allow for good air circulation around each bunch. Dry indoors as sun and dew moisture can discolor and ruin the quality of many herbs. Hang and dry in the kitchen or even a garage or shed. Note: Some herbs, such as basil and mints may mold if not dried quickly. An alternative to hanging herbs to dry in bunches is to spread the herbs out on window screens. Suspend the screens over sawhorses or the backs of chairs. Turn the leaves often to ensure even drying. To air dry herbs with seeds, tie the herbs in small bundles and suspend inside a paper bag with holes punched in the sides. Suspend the bag in a dark area with good air circulation. Collect the seeds when they are dry, and store in rigid light-proof containers.

Oven Drying: Traditional kitchen stoves can also be used to dry herbs. Spread the herbs on cookie sheets and dry at the lowest temperature. Home food dehydrators also do an excellent job of drying herbs. Follow the directions provided with the dehydrator.

Herbs are sufficiently dry when they are brittle and crumble easily. When the leaves are dry, separate them from their stems and package the leaves in rigid containers with tight fitting lids. Glass or hard plastic are best, although zip-lock plastic freezer bags can be used. To preserve full flavor, avoid crushing the leaves until you are ready to use them. Store dried herbs in a cool, dry place away from sunlight, moisture, and heat. Many herbs can keep for a year if stored properly.

The Constitution is not neutral: courts of justice should not act like courts of order

"The Constitution is not neutral. It was designed to take the government off the backs of the people."—Justice William O. Douglas

For those still deluded enough to believe they're living the American dream — where the government represents the people, where the people are equal in the eyes of the law, where the courts are arbiters of justice, where the police are keepers of the peace, and where the law is applied equally as a means of protecting the rights of the people—it's time to wake up.

We no longer have a representative government, a rule of law, or justice.

Liberty has fallen to legalism.

Freedom has fallen to fascism.

Justice has become jaded, jaundiced and just plain unjust.

And for too many, the American dream of freedom and opportunity has turned into a living nightmare.

Given the turbulence of our age, with its police overreach, military training drills on American soil, domestic surveillance, SWAT team raids, asset forfeiture, wrongful convictions, profit-driven prisons, and corporate corruption, the need for a guardian of the people's rights has never been greater.

Yet as the events of recent years have made clear, neither the president, nor the legislatures, nor the courts will save us from the police state that holds us in its clutches.

After all, the president, the legislatures, and the courts are all on the government's payroll.

They are the police state.

Certainly, Americans can no longer rely on the courts to mete out justice.

The courts were established to serve as Courts of Justice. What we have been saddled with, instead, are Courts of Order.

This is true at all levels of the judiciary, but especially so in the highest court of the land, the U.S. Supreme Court, which is seemingly more concerned with establishing order and protecting government interests than with upholding the rights of the people enshrined in the U.S. Constitution.

Whether it's police officers breaking through people's front doors and shooting them dead in their homes or strip searching innocent motorists on the side of the road, these instances of abuse are continually validated by a judicial system that kowtows to virtually every police demand, no matter how unjust, no matter how in opposition to the Constitution.

As a result, the police and other government agents have been generally empowered to probe, poke, pinch, taser, search, seize, strip and generally manhandle anyone they see fit in almost any circumstance, all with the general blessing of the courts.

Rarely do the concerns of the populace prevail.

When presented with an opportunity to loosen the government's noose that keeps getting cinched tighter and tighter around the necks of the American people, what does our current Supreme Court usually do?

It ducks.

Prevaricates.

Remains silent.

Speaks to the narrowest possible concern.

More often than not, it gives the government and its corporate sponsors the benefit of the doubt, which leaves "we the people" hanging by a thread.

Rarely do the justices of the U.S. Supreme Court—preoccupied with their personal politics, cocooned in a priggish world of privilege, partial to those with power, money and influence, and narrowly focused on a shrinking docket (the court accepts on average 80 cases out of 8,000 each year)—venture beyond their rarefied comfort zones.

Every so often, the justices toss a bone to those who fear they have abdicated their allegiance to the Constitution. Too often, however, the Supreme Court tends to march in lockstep with the police state.

The Court's 2017-18 term was a particularly mixed bag. Here are some of the key rulings and non-rulings handed down by the Court this term:

Speech, Religious Liberty and the First Amendment

In Janus v. American Federation, a 5-4 Supreme Court chose to err on the side of the First Amendment when it concluded that state laws forcing public-sector employees to provide financial support for unions that engage in political activities with which they disagree violates the First Amendment.

In Masterpiece Cakeshop, Ltd. v. Colorado Civil Rights Commission, the Court ruled narrowly that government officials had violated the First Amendment rights of a baker by discriminating against his religious views regarding same-sex marriage.

In National Institute of Family and Life Advocates v. Becerra, the Court ruled against compelled speech by a government agency when it found that a California state law violated the First Amendment by forcing pro-life crisis pregnancy centers to provide patients with information about how to obtain an abortion.

In Minnesota Voters Alliance v. Joe Mansky, the Court struck down as unconstitutionally vague a Minnesota law that bans political speech on any "badge, button, shirt, or hat" worn at election polling stations. Critics had argued that the law opened the door to abuse of voters' free speech rights by giving appointed election officials unlimited discretion to determine what political speech should be censored.

Police Misconduct

In refusing to hear the case of Young v. Borders, the Supreme Court declined to hold police accountable for shooting and killing an innocent homeowner during the course of a middle-of-the-night "knock and talk" police tactic gone awry. The Court's refusal to review the case let stand a lower court ruling that exonerates police who, while executing a "knock and talk" investigation of a speeding incident, banged on the wrong door at 1:30 am, failed to identify themselves as police, and then repeatedly shot and killed the innocent homeowner who answered the door while holding a gun in self-defense.

In Kisela v. Hughes, the U.S. Supreme Court shielded a police officer who shot a woman four times in her driveway as she stood talking to a friend while holding a kitchen knife. As Justice Sonia Sotomayor acknowledged in her dissent, "It tells officers that they can shoot first and think later, and it tells the public that palpably unreasonable conduct will go unpunished." Sotomayor, one of the few justices who speaks out consistently against police misconduct, denounced the ruling as "part of a disturbing trend of unflinching willingness' to protect police officers accused of using excessive force. The court's decisions concerning qualified immunity, she wrote, 'transforms the doctrine into an absolute shield for law enforcement officers'."

Privacy and the Fourth Amendment

In Carpenter v. United States, a 5-4 Court sent a strong message about privacy rights in an age of government surveillance, ruling that police must generally obtain a warrant before obtaining cell phone data to track a person's movements.

In Collins v. Virginia, the Court refused to grant law enforcement yet another loophole to encroach on the rights of citizens to privacy in their homes, ruling 8-1 that police may not intrude on private property in order to carry out a warrantless search of a vehicle parked near a residence.

In United States v. Microsoft, the Court sidestepped a debate over digital privacy in the face of government surveillance when it mooted a case over whether Microsoft had to comply with a request to provide emails hosted on overseas servers in response to government subpoenas.

In Byrd v. United States, a unanimous Court ruled that drivers of rental cars—whether or not they are explicitly named in the rental agreement—are generally entitled to the same reasonable expectations of privacy under the Fourth Amendment as the individual listed in the rental agreement.

FREEDOM WATCH

JOHN WHITEHEAD

In Dahda v. United States of America,

Court ruled 8-0 that evidence obtained under orders that violate the nation's federal wiretapping law can be used against a defendant in a criminal trial.

Immigration and the Power of the Presidency

In Trump v. Hawaii, a polarized Supreme Court upheld the Trump Administration's ban on foreign travelers from Muslim-centric nations, ostensibly giving the president the power to discriminate on the basis of religion, while simultaneously overturning the Court's World War II-era ruling in Korematsu v. United States that saw nothing wrong with the government imprisoning Japanese-Americans in internment camps. In other words, the Court righted one wrong (Korematsu) while sanctioning another. As Justice Sotomayor concluded in her dissent, "By blindly accepting the government's misguided invitation to sanction a discriminatory policy motivated by animosity toward a disfavored group, all in the name of a superficial claim of national security, the Court redeploys the same dangerous logic underlying Korematsu and merely replaces one 'gravely wrong' decision with another." States' Rights

In Murphy v. NCAA, the Court ruled 7-2 in favor of the 10th Amendment, which reserves to the States (and the people) the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it. The case was factually about the right of the states to legalize sports gambling despite a federal law prohibiting it, but the ramifications of the ruling could extend into the area of marijuana legalization.

Voters' Rights and Gerrymandering

In Husted v. A. Philip Randolph Institute, the Court gave the green light to Ohio to remove people from its voter registration rolls if they hadn't been heard from in four years.

In Gill v. Whitford and Benisek v. Lamone, the Court weighed in on two cases that challenged the practice of gerrymandering, in which the boundaries of an electoral constituency are drawn in such a way as to favor one side over another in an election. Instead of addressing the issue of partisan gerrymandering, the Court disposed of the cases on procedural/standing grounds.

Commerce

In South Dakota v. Wayfair, the Court leveled the playing field, at least when it comes to collecting sales tax, between online ecommerce retailers and traditional businesses with a physical presence in a particular state.

So where does that leave us?

Still in the clutches of the American police state, I'm afraid.

In recent years, for example, the Court has ruled that police officers can use lethal force in car chases without fear of lawsuits; police officers can stop cars based only on "anonymous" tips; Secret Service agents are not accountable for their actions, as long as they're done in the name of security; citizens only have a right to remain silent if they assert it; police have free reign to use drug-sniffing dogs as "search warrants on leashes," justifying any and all police searches of vehicles stopped on the roadside; police can forcibly take your DNA, whether or not you've been convicted of a crime; police can stop, search, question and profile citizens and non-citizens alike; police can subject Americans to virtual strip searches, no matter the "offense"; police can break into homes without a warrant, even if it's the wrong home; and it's a crime to not identify yourself when a policeman asks your name.

The cases the Supreme Court refuses to hear, allowing lower court judgments to stand, are almost as critical as the ones they rule on. Some of these cases have delivered devastating blows to the rights enshrined in the Constitution. By remaining silent, the Court has affirmed that: legally owning a firearm is enough to justify a no-knock raid by police; the military can arrest and detain American citizens; students can be subjected to random lockdowns and mass searches at school; and police officers who don't know their actions violate the law aren't guilty of breaking the law.

What a difference nine people can make.

More often than not, the Roberts Supreme Court has been characterized by rulings that show an abject deference to government authority, military and corporate interests (rulings have run the gamut from suppressing free speech activities and justifying suspicionless strip searches and warrantless home invasions to conferring constitutional rights on corporations, while denying them to citizens).

Contrast the Roberts Court with the Warren Court (1953-69), which handed down rulings that were instrumental in shoring up critical legal safeguards against government abuse and discrimination.

Without the Warren Court, there would be no Miranda warnings, no desegregation of the schools and no civil rights protections for indigents. Among those serving on the Warren Court were Chief Justice Earl Warren, William J. Brennan Jr., William O. Douglas, Hugo Black, Felix Frankfurter and Thurgood Marshall.

Yet more than any single ruling, what Warren and his colleagues did best was embody what the Supreme Court should always be: an institution established to intervene and protect the people against the government and its agents when they overstep their bounds.

Indeed, Justice Douglas, who served on the Supreme Court for 36 years, was particularly vocal in his belief that Americans have a right to be left alone ("The right to be let alone is indeed the beginning of all freedom"). Considered the most "committed civil libertarian ever to sit on the court," Douglas was frequently controversial and far from perfect (he was part of that 6-3 majority in Korematsu vs. United States that supported the government's internment of American citizens of Japanese descent during World War II.)

Perhaps the greatest difference between Justice Douglas and his contemporaries and those who occupy the bench today can be found in his answer to a government that refuses to listen to its citizen or abide by the rule of law. "We must realize that today's Establishment is the New George III," noted Douglas. "Whether it will continue to adhere to his tactics, we do not know. If it does, the redress, honored in tradition, is also revolution."

Oxford's offense goes silent in Senior Babe Ruth playoff loss to Shrewsbury

WORCESTER — The Oxford Senior Babe Ruth baseball team, taking part in the Paul N. Johnson League playoffs, couldn't find its offense in the semifinal round versus Shrewsbury on Tuesday, July 10 at Lake Park's Tivnan Field. Shrewsbury topped Oxford in the game, 12-0.

Oxford, seeded third in the tour-

namment, finished 11-5, while No. 2 Shrewsbury moved on and won the championship over No. 4 Tatnuck. Shrewsbury finished 15-4.

Early on it was clear what Oxford wanted to do, which was to come out and be aggressive offensively. They had no problem putting the ball into play, but getting under it and allowing opposing Shrewsbury defenders to make easy plays was the tale of the tape.

"I just told them," explained manager Jimmy Purretta, "we beat these guys one out of two times and today they just had the better day, we popped the ball up and they were hitting line drive base hits. They just put it where we weren't."

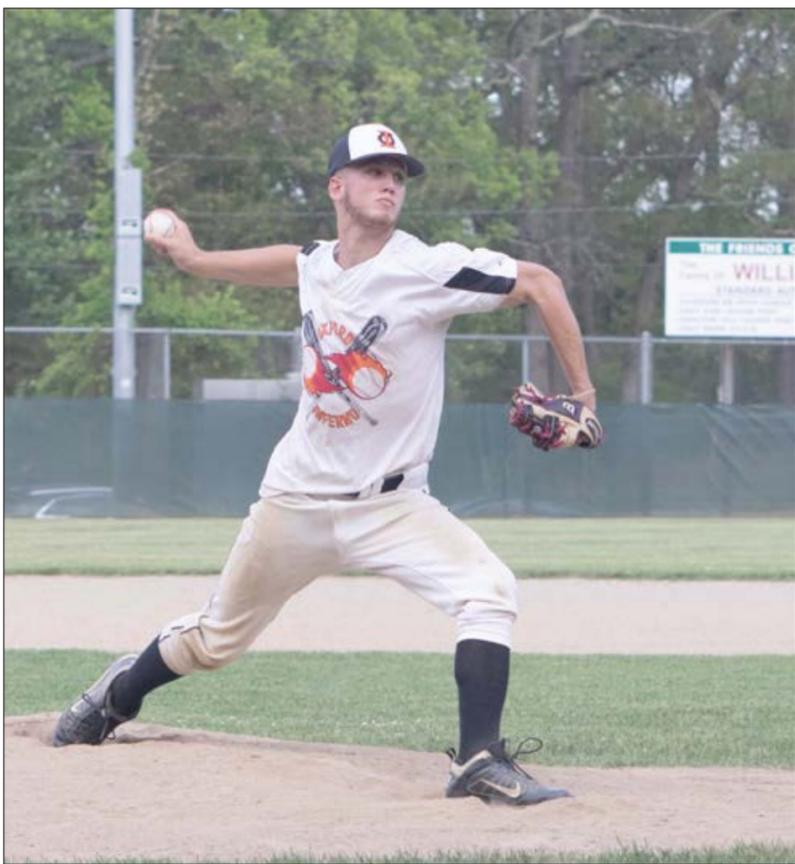

Oxford, who usually slaps the ball over the field, tallied an uncharacteristic one hit. It was a line drive two-out single to left field by Colin Ryan in the top half of the third inning.

With more time to get going, things might have been different for Oxford offensively.

"It just wasn't our day. It is just one of those things where we ran out of time, but I would go to battle with these guys in another hour, tomorrow," Purretta stated confidently about his team.

It happens in sports where nothing goes as planned, but there was nothing but praise from Purretta for his guys.

"I love these guys," Purretta said with a smile. "I have been coaching these guys since they have been four or five years old. I won a state championship with these guys. They are incredible kids and each parent should be incredibly proud of each and every one of these kids. I love to coach these kids and I would go to battle with them every single day."

Jake Leone of Oxford fires a ball to home plate off the mound.

Oxford's Ryan Steiner leaps to keep his glove on the ball and make a runner stay at first base.

Cherry Valley loses Legion regular season finale, but hopes for success in playoffs

Cherry Valley's Nate Shoemaker works through his pitching motion on the mound.

Cherry Valley's Michael Bordeaux runs down a foul ball.

BY DEAN P. ST. LAURENT
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

SHREWSBURY — The Cherry Valley Post 443 American Legion baseball team dropped its regular season finale to Shrewsbury Post 397, 8-7, due to a walk-off walk on Saturday, July 14 at Shrewsbury High, but the local nine had a turnaround summer — finishing 14-10 — and will look ahead to a Zone 4 Samko Playoff appearance.

After tallying six runs in the first two innings a few weeks back before rain caused the rest of the game to be postponed, it was clear Post 443 didn't have that same offensive firepower from the restart. In their first at-bat in the top of the third Post 443 went down in order quickly with two groundouts and a pop out.

Nate Shoemaker took the mound for Cherry Valley and was efficient in his first inning of work, but struggled against a good hitting Shrewsbury team in the bottom of the third when Post 397 rallied for six runs to tie the game.

"We gave up six runs that inning and we should've been out of that inning, a couple of pop outs to the outfield, the outfielder took a bad break and then he didn't run," Cherry Valley manager Jim Stephens explained about his team's breakdown in the third.

Chris Kustigian came into the game in relief and was able to ease the rally as both teams headed into the fourth inning tied at 6-6.

"What we tried to do today, it was a very important game to them, but it didn't mean much to us other than standings," Stephens explained about his game plan going in. "Of course you want to win every game, but I think it was important that we got those three kids [Shoemaker, Kustigian and eventually Aidan Gilman] to pitch again. Get our pitching rotation going again because this pitch count thing has really botched us up. We could've pitched Gilman the whole game and I think we would have beat them, but if I did I wouldn't have had him for Tuesday night, so he had to stay under 60 pitches."

After Post 397 closed the gap, Post 443 was able to get some offense going when Tyrus Garvin singled to right field with one out. Moments later Garvin scored on an RBI double to left field by Gilman to break the tie, 7-6.

Kustigian was able to come out in the bottom half of the inning and throw a scoreless frame, highlighted by a brilliant snap throw by catcher Michael Bordeaux to pick off a Shrewsbury runner at third base.

"Kustigian was a freshman this year and he has played 23 games for us," praised Stephens. "I think he could be the most improved player on the team. He has had himself a good year, he has grown, he goes out on the mound, he likes to pitch, there is just no fear."

Gilman then came in to pitch in the bottom of the fifth with runners on first and second with one out and he was able to get his team out of the inning when he forced a double play.

Post 397 tied the game at 7-7 in the sixth, though, when they plated a run when Cherry Valley executed a double play with runners on the corners. Shrewsbury (21-3) then won the game in the next inning.

Despite the loss, Cherry Valley finished the season with 14 wins and the sixth seed in the playoffs. This year's success has a lot to do with the veteran players coming back looking to win.

"It is big for us," expressed Stephens. "The older kids coming back this year was big. They are the ones that helped the program. We have been struggling, just missing winning seven games, but they came back and made it important, these guys are leaders."

"Evan Fritze, Cam Hart and Ryan Sanderson," stated Stephens. "They are all college kids that came back and they made it important to come back and win, you don't win without the older kids. They are the leaders and they teach the young kids how to commit and grind. Fritze has been out with a bad leg, but he is here keeping score and giving direction. Good for him, it has been a good year and I am very happy to be a part of this."

Cherry Valley will look for a productive playoffs — where they will start with a matchup with No. 3 Milford Post 59, after press time — and two things need to happen in order to remain successful.

"We need to pitch well and we need to play better defense," stated Stephens. "Our team can hit, we do hit. We play best when we play good defense. If we play good defense and our two main pitchers pitch well we will be in the games."

Tyrus Garvin of Cherry Valley smacks a base hit through the infield.

Dan Mero of Cherry Valley turns a double play at second base.

STURBRIDGE — The Northbridge Post 343 American Legion baseball team stormed into the Zone 4 Samko Playoffs on the final day of the regular season, winning a pair of road games to improve to 9-15 and grab the eighth and final post-season berth.

Northbridge began the day — Saturday, July 14 — by defeating Sturbridge Post 109, 8-4, in a game that started at 11 a.m. at Tantasqua Regional. Then, after some lunch and some rest, Post 343 traveled to Worcester's Vernon Hill Park, where it defeated Main South Post 341, 9-4, in a game that started at 5:30 p.m.

The Zone 4 Playoffs began Tuesday, July 17 after press time, where Northbridge was set to play top seeded Leominster Post 151, and were scheduled to run through Tuesday, July 24.

Northbridge's game with Sturbridge was a mini-playoff game for both teams, which began the day in contention for that coveted No. 8 spot in the Zone 4 Playoffs.

Post 343 took care of business quickly against Post 109, scoring three runs in the top of the first inning. One run scored on a wild pitch, another on a bases-loaded hit batsman and the third on a groundout to second base.

Sturbridge pulled to within one, 3-2, in the bottom of the second inning, with Nolan Kingman driving in both runs with a sharp single to center field.

Northbridge pushed its lead to 5-2 with a run in the top of the third and fourth innings. In the third Harrison Mansfield's RBI single to right plated Brian Iarussi, who had reached on a two-out walk. In the fourth Logan Troy scored on a one-out fielder's choice off the bat of J.P. Lucier.

Sturbridge cut the Northbridge lead down to 5-3 in the bottom of the sixth inning, Curtis Koebke walking and then scoring on a groundout by Deven Kingman.

Post 343, however, put the game away with three runs in the top of the seventh to go ahead, 8-3. Northbridge scored its runs on an RBI single by Caleb Visbeek, a wild pitch and a balk by the Sturbridge pitcher.

Post 109 added a run in the bottom of the seventh on an RBI single by Jared Langevin to account for the final score of 8-4.

"It was a must-win situation and we just went out and took care of business," said Northbridge assistant coach Andrew Reed said after Northbridge's victory over Sturbridge.

Reed was sent to talk to the media by Manager Dave Meech, who needed to deal with a couple of injury situations.

"Everybody hit the ball well; everybody did their part," Reed said. "They knew it was a must-win game and they came to play."

Troy, Zach Roberts and Jeremy Jenoure led Post 343's 10-hit attack with two hits each.

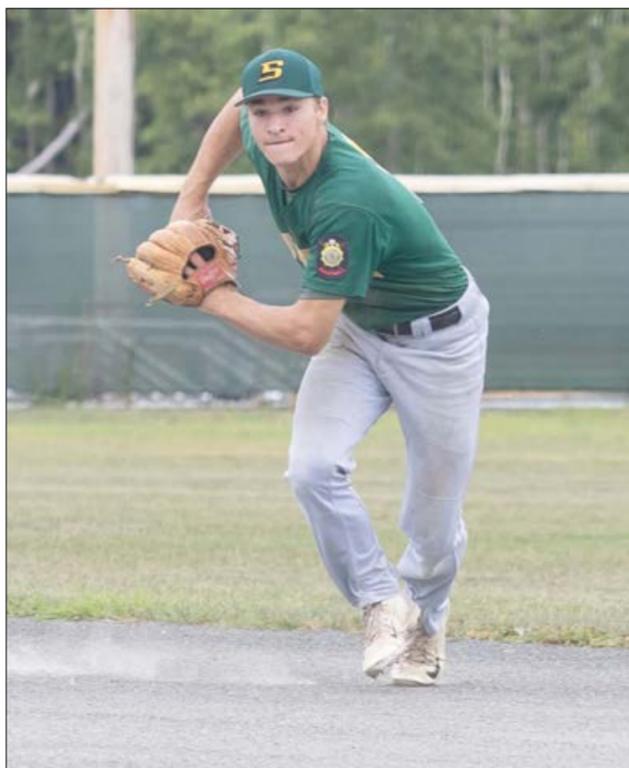

While Reed felt Northbridge took care of business against Sturbridge, Post 109 manager Jim Rosseel felt just the opposite about his club, who managed just three hits off of Northbridge pitchers Dave Meech Jr. and J.P. Hayes.

"We didn't come to play today. We were down. It just wasn't there," Rosseel said. "But to get to the final day with a chance to make the playoffs, well, that was ahead of my projection. My projection was for us to make the playoffs next year and I still think that will happen. If we would have made the playoffs this year it would have been an extra bonus for us like you wouldn't have believed."

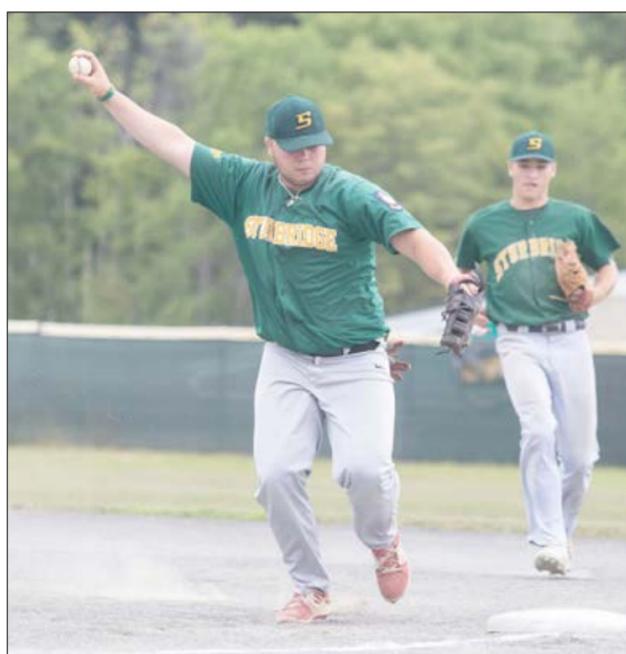

While Rosseel was pleased with his entire team's effort, he was particularly impressed by the play of Tyler Stoever, Patrick Wilbur and Spencer Cipro.

"Stoever was solid all year for us and Patrick pitched a lot of games for us," Rosseel said. "And Spencer Cipro, he's just a 14-year-old and we were able to get him seven or eight starts. This experience for Spencer was second to none."

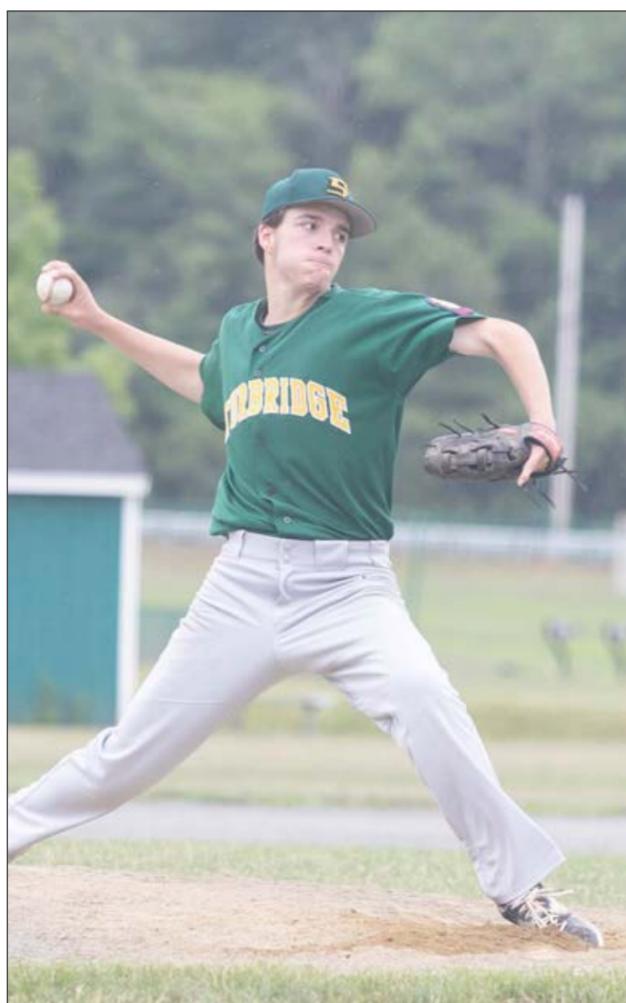

"It was a good year for us but a bad year as well; we were better than our record," Rosseel added about finishing 7-17, two games shy of Northbridge's mark. "There were a lot of growing pains but making the playoffs would have been huge for us. The experience value of making the playoffs this year would have been immeasurable. You make the playoffs and now you're playing with the big boys. We had a chance to do that and that's more than I thought we were going to have at the beginning of the year. We did all right."

Mick Sullivan of Sturbridge pulls his right arm back to make a throw to first from second base.

Sturbridge's Tyler Stoever makes his way to the bag for a force out at first.

Patrick Wilbur of Sturbridge sends a pitch from the mound to the plate.

Sturbridge's Jared Langevin takes the force out throw at second base before Northbridge's Logan Troy can make it to the bag.

Sturbridge's Deven Kingman launches a ball off his bat and into play.

lege classes. Another, McKinstry, hopes to work through Mass Rehab to become a drug counselor.

Southbridge's Otero-Lopez was in a similar situation. Now 30, he said he was kicked out of the Southbridge system at age 16 and described himself then as "too hyper, restless I guess." He went to Project Coffee, where he got a range of vocational training that enabled him to work in construction. His probation, which ends in August, required him to return for the Hi-Set, "but after that, I saw it as an opportunity. Now I've got a diploma, I can work on the books."

"This was one of the best things I was ever forced to do," he said.

Several of the participants gave a lot of the credit for their success to teacher Jim Lane, but he credits it "to the work and diligence of these people." He noted they often come into the program without much self-confidence, but come to see they can do it and that "the ability was always there."

For most participants, "ninth grade seems to be the magic number, turning 16," Lane said. At that time, they drop out, then get stuck in low-wage jobs that "don't have a lot of respect." After a while, they start wondering where they can start making changes in their lives.

"These people need to be recognized for their courage to be more, to go forward," he said during the fairly laid-back, semi-formal ceremony.

Judge Timothy Bibaud agreed. He said the resource center began three years ago with "a lot of angst and concern" from the community, but knew it'd succeed if the courts and sheriff focused on building community partnerships to get things done.

"We've made significant changes," he said. "Education is key; it's paramount" to helping people get their lives back on track.

Sheriff Lew Evangelidis said the cooperative model means the center itself departs from the traditional corrections system. It doesn't need "a lot of bureaucracy," he said, just "a few people who give a darn about it."

"If everybody wasn't here to make this happen, it wouldn't happen," he said. Regarding the graduates themselves, Evangelidis added, "you guys have really come a long way, and this is a milestone for you. This is a one-step appreciation of a journey," but not the end of it.

exhaustion in my eyes. "How's your butt?" she asks with a coy but caring smile.

I must have given away that I was hurting, hurting in a good way though! This is quite a work out! I assured her that my booty was feeling beaten but not down for the count yet, and that's when Pati said that we had jumps up ahead.

You might be wondering the same thing that I pondered at this time. Jumps? On a bike? Oh yes, boys and girls. This is when you crank up the tension and you stand up on the pedals and keep peddling. Just when I thought my body would get some reprieve Pati dragged me back into the best part of the bike ride thus far! We all peddled our hearts out as we jumped up and down. We rose up steep hills and glided down into imaginary forests. We road together as a team along the cliffs of mountains. We raced through the finish line together and we were done!

It was amazing, we finished and I finished my first cycle class. I was nervous to get off the bike, I was sure my legs would be spaghetti noodles and I would fall flat on my face. But I stood strong and proud of what I had accomplished. I was done I had finished and it was glorious, then Pati said it was now time to work out our core and arms....
