Oxford rejects school override again

BY GUS STEEVES
 TIMES CORRESPONDENT

OXFORD – Voters paying attention to town government after last week’s elections will see no notable difference from what it was before.

By a vote of 747-624, they chose to return Selectman Dennis Lamarche to the board he’s served for several terms over challenger Andrew Marsh, chair of the Cultural Council. None of the other races even had challengers, so voters returned Palmina Griffin and Dan Coonan to the School Committee, John Bowes to the library trustees’ board, and a new face, David Grenier to Bay Path School Committee.

The real focus of election day campaigning was the three ballot questions, with most of the effort at the polls being to convince people to vote against them. Just like last year, they did, although not quite as overwhelmingly.

Last year, there was just one question – a general override for the schools, which lost about 3-to-1. This year, that came up again as question 3, alongside two debt exclusions for the fire department.

Question one sought $318,000 to buy an ambulance and a new chief’s vehicle plus make “health and safety upgrades to the fire station;” that proposal was also rejected by town meeting.

Question two sought $500,000

Library planning for future position

“IF I’M GOING TO GET ONE POSITION THEN I’M GOING TO MAKE THE MOST OF THAT POSITION.”
 LIBRARY DIRECTOR KAREN WALL

BY JASON BLEAU
 TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY – The director of the Pearle L. Crawford Memorial Library is taking steps to possibly add a new position in the future with a preliminary job description accepted by the Personnel Board at a recent meeting.

Library Director Karen Wall brought forward her draft for the position on May 15 as board member Peter Fox said he had worked with Town Administrator Greg Balukonis on exploring the possibility of adding the position, but they wanted a job description in hand to properly discuss what the library needed from the possible new employee.

“Even though there is a hold or a hiring freeze at the present time, Greg and I kind of thought that in order to move this forward in a future date that we would be prepared or already have a draft or already have a job description and that would facilitate things a little bit faster should that day come,” Fox told Wall to kick off the conversation.

Wall obliged and said originally the plan was to add an adult service position to the library, but after careful consideration Wall decided to expand the position to involve a broader responsibility covering multiple programs the library currently offers.

“My first request for something along those lines was a couple of years ago. So, I’ve been kind of proposing this and putting it in my budget for the last couple of years because I could see that there was a need for it. Over the last couple of years, I’ve said to myself it would be more appropriate if I had more of a programming librarian to assist not just with adult stuff, but all across the board to make the most out of that person,” Wall said.

This expanded outlook on the position led Wall to avoid making the draft specific to adult services and instead propose adding a new individual, part time or full time, to help with adult, children and teen programs wherever needed. Wall said if she’s going to propose a new hire she’s going to get whatever she can from what that person can offer.

“In a perfect world we’d have a children’s assistant as well, but if I’m going to get one position then I’m going to make the most of that position. We’re heavily into our kids programming and I’ve grown the adult programming. So, I think that having a position that covers all of those basis, and teens as well, and having all of that in mind that’s what I came up with. I intend to put that before my own board for approval,” Wall said. “We’re looking down the road. The point is I’ve been

Webster approves $44 million budget

BY JASON BLEAU
 TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER – Voters passed budget items during the annual spring town meeting on Monday, May 14 by wide margins approving a 2.8 percent increase for the spending plan over the current fiscal year.

The new budget will go into effect on July 1 and totals $44,206,670 in municipal spending. All financial articles passed overwhelmingly allowing for an easy and quick start to the town meeting. By a vote of 70-26 voters approved the $44 million budget with little debate, which included a transfer to the waterway improvement fund.

Among the other financial items was the appropriation of $4,080,290 to the Sewer Enterprise Fund Operating Budget through user charges and other departmental receipts. This is an increase of five percent, or $193,725, over the current year due to debt payments and capital upgrades. The Water Enterprise Fund Operating Budget however received an approved decrease to $2,229,837, a seven percent drop over the current year. Officials said this was due to a decrease in debt payments in the upcoming fiscal year.

Voters further approved adding $100,000 to the stabilization fund to bring that item in the budget to $1,362,611. This is meant to be in line with the recently-adopted financial policies of Webster that seeks to keep the town striving for five percent of the annual operating budget to be held in that fund.

Voters also approved the departmental revolving funds of the town by a wide margin and approved funding for the town clerk, highway, fire and rescue, and police budgets to satisfy Webster’s annual Capital Budget. Police received $35,000 for mobile surveillance cameras, fire and rescue were approved for $50,000 for a replacement pick-up truck, the highway department will spend $150,000 for the highway garage and salt shed roof, and the clerk will expend $40,000 for voting machines. Other approved expenditures were $500,000

Guess Who? New watchdogs to guard Oxford library

KIMBERLY MASCHI

The new watcher of the ways into Oxford Library is this little fellow, a wise one indeed.

With chainsaw in hand, Wayne Yacino begins his amazing carvings into a centuries old tree. On the lush green lawn in front of the Oxford Public Library there sits a large tree trunk, higher than most heads and wide enough for someone like Yacino to see numerous designs take shape in its bark and wood. The distinguished and sky reaching tree was cut down for safety reasons, and the library wants to turn this ordinary trunk into something extraordinary. The board at the library decided to do something about this stump, they asked for plans from various companies and Wayne won with his great design.

Brittany McDougal, director of the library, states “We put out a proposal and the board reviewed various designs. When we saw

Voters pass over marina article at town meeting

BY JASON BLEAU
 TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER – The town of Webster’s spring annual town meeting on Monday, May 14 was a quiet one with most of the articles passed seamlessly and only one article passed over for more information. However, there was a single article that caused a bit of public discussion with selectmen seeking permission to negotiate a larger contract with an entity for a marina at Memorial Beach on Webster Lake.

While the discussion on the matter only lasted about fifteen minutes, the article was still the most contentious issue on the agenda. The article sought to allow the Board of Selectmen to enter into a five-year agreement instead of the customary three-year deal to have a 100-slip dock system at Memorial Beach. Town Administrator Doug Willardson argued this would allow for better negotiation on the contract and prevent an initial $20,000 financial commitment from the town should the project be finalized.

“We put out a request for proposals this past December requesting marine operators to provide proposals for what they would like to do at the beach. Our top ranked proposal was from Lenkey Marina. They are proposing that we put in initially 40 docks just to the right of the boat ramp at the beach,” Willardson said. “The proposal currently presented had a return on the investment from the marina operator that exceeded the initial three-year terms that the board of selectmen are allowed to enter into the contract. We are asking or the contract to be for five years so that way we can spread out their capital investment costs

Car Buying Tips

Customers ask place: How should I pay for my new car or truck?

The RIGHT answer: There are three ways to pay for your vehicle. They are to pay cash, finance the balance or lease the automobile. Each method has its pros and cons.

If you pay cash, you have the knowledge that you own your car outright. You could, in theory, cut back on insurance and you will not pay interest as you would with the other two methods. The downside of paying cash is that you are spending a large part of your liquid assets and potentially losing investment potential. The other thing is if your car gets totaled and you did cut back on your insurance you are out all that money.

If you finance, you will have a budgeted monthly payment and won't need to spend all your hard-earned cash. In fact, with today's low interest rate options, in some cases as low as 0%, it may make more sense to finance your car. You also have options with the financing that can help to protect the value of the car. Consider GAP protection to protect against a total loss. Ask us for more details on how this works. Of course, the downside of financing is that in most cases you will pay interest. Because todays cars are rather expensive many customers take on longer term notes increasing the interest expense and leaving them still owing money when they want to trade in for another. This leads us to leasing.

If you lease a car you usually get a lower monthly payment. You will also get GAP protection (at least with Ford Motor Credit Leases) at no charge and your term will be shorter allowing you to seamlessly get a new car in just a few years as your needs change. Downsides to leasing are the excess mileage or wear and tear concerns. Let us tailor a lease to your needs to help avoid these concerns.

At Place Motor we will discuss with you your situation and offer you your choices, so you can make the RIGHT choice for you. You'll experience why Place Motor is the RIGHT Place since 1923.

Schools extend contract with Van Pool

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

The Dudley-Charlton Regional School District will stay with the same contractor for its special education transportation with a new contract approved in early May. However, a few changes were made to the deal and committee members are seeking a possible addition to the buses for the sake of safety.

Director of Finance and Operations Richard J. Mathieu brought forward the contract for consideration on May 9, but said the contractor had a few changes implemented to the newer deal that will cost the district a bit more than previous years.

"When I started here a little over three years ago we were looking at cost increases from the collaborative for our out of district special education transportation. We were able to negotiate with a private firm, Van Pool, to keep our costs static. That contract is now expiring. Van Pool's proposal for the upcoming three-year contract is to keep half of the routes, and for our district we have 14 routes, static in terms of pricing through all three years. The other routes because of their distance would have a $5 per day increase over the course of each of the three years, so basically $900 per year for year of those routes," Mathieu said. "We've heard primarily positive things about Van Pool and its staff and in those rare occasions where there have been issues Van Pool has been very good about rectifying them."

The contract renewal was proposed unanimously by school committee members meaning a commitment of $870,000 for the next three years for special education transportation. However, that was not the end of the discussion as committee members expressed interest in paying even more if Van Pool was willing to add cameras to the buses.

"We currently do not have (cameras)," Mathieu said acknowledging he had been asked about the devices at a prior meeting.

"Van Pool does offer them at $5 a day for an individual route. If we were to entertain doing all 23 routes that we have with them the cost would be about $21,000 for the year. We don't have this in the budget as we sit here right now."

Mathieu said the cameras would need to be purchased by Van Pool, who would add them to the vans as part of the contract. He added if the school committee is interested in adding the cameras to the buses its likely they'd want to have a week's worth of recording available, so they can go back and review any incident that might not be reported until days later.

The camera option received support from several committee members, including Elaine Rabbitt who said she feels it is a matter of safety for the children on these buses who are often unable to communicate their concerns or what occurred on the bus as well as others.

"I feel strongly that this is an issue that we should look at for the protection of our students and the protection of the district especially when you're looking at many of the students that are traveling in these particular vans or buses don't have communication skills," Rabbitt said. "I think there are times that questions are raised that we can't find answers to because we don't have an ability to involve a student in a conversation about what happened on the bus. So, I think it's a protection for both the district as well as students that we should seriously look at considering this issue."

During non-business hours, leave a message in the editor's voicemail box.

Mathieu was asked to approach Van Pool and ask specifics on what it would cost to add the cameras to the vehicles and then relay that information to the committee. The matter was tabled for further discussion and, considering the financial limitations of the district, it was even noted the committee may want to wait until August to decide whether or not to add the cameras to the contract to see if any retirements or other changes free up money in the current spending plan.

Dudley Democrats step up for Memorial Day

On Wednesday May 16 members of the Dudley Democratic Town Committee (DDTC) assisted in planting flowers to celebrate the service of the war veterans of Dudley and Webster. Carmella D'Ambra, Charle Marlborough and Liza Moran from the DDTC joined Commander Victor Jankowski from Webster Dudley Veterans Services in this effort. Together, the team spruced up several locations in readiness for Memorial Day observances including the Webster Town Hall Veterans Court of Honor, Gold Star Mothers and Memorial Beach, which is dedicated to our service men and women.

"It is quite an honor for the members of the Democratic Town Committee to be able to assist with this project," said Marlborough, who serves as DDTC co-chair.

"When we learned that the veterans service office needed help, we reached out to see if there was anything we could do. Getting our veterans' sites ready for Memorial Day is a big undertaking and largely made possible by volunteers such as Commander Jankowski. We were grateful to play a part in honoring the contributions of our veterans."

Challenges of a Hot Real Estate Market?

Every week for a long time I have been writing about the market consistently improving. With this improvement there are challenges that come up. I was just thinking tonight of one of the biggest challenges I see. With low inventory buyers are needing to make quick decisions and sometimes offering prices that are higher than they want to pay. This tends to cause that same buyer to get buyers remorse more often causing more sales to fall through not because of home inspection issues but because of buyers remorse. The other thing I see is when you lose out on several homes in a row, the buyer may decide to offer a price that they know will easily beat out any other offer because they are confident that the bank appraiser will not appraise the home and then the seller will have to adjust back down to sell it. Another variation of this is the buyer deciding to offer higher knowing that they will renegotiate after home inspection for items that they could have seen on their first viewing of the home. Another challenge is the fear of selling your home and finding another home to buy. Not ever buyer will agree to having the home sale contingent on you as a seller closing on a suitable home but that is how you can sell you home and protect yourself from closing on your home with nowhere to go. This is usually easier if the buyer is renting somewhere and is month to month or still living with their parents. So it is more typical on a first time buyer home to have the buyers be agreeable especially if there is no inventory in that price range in that area. With this low inventory I have also seen buyers and their agents show up at a home where the showings were deferred until an Open House and ask if they could get in early for showings. They are hoping to sneak in so they can see and get an offer in before everyone else sees it. Every market is different but these are things we are seeing in the market we sell in currently. I suggest consulting with a local Real Estate Agent in your market before making any buying and selling decisions.

for water distribution system rehabilitation and $35,000 for corrosion control buildings roofing both transferred from the water retained earnings. Voters further approved the use of $57,320.31 from the Town Hall Stabilization Fund for repairs to the basement of the town hall. This money is part of the commitment received from the lease payments of the solar field on the town-owned capped landfill. The approved article uses the entirety of that fund to date for the project. Finally, voters also approved the creation of a new fund for the town with a focus on economic development. The appropriately named Economic Development Fund now has $135,000 as a result of the meeting from free cash with the Board of Selectmen setting the regulations and standards for use of the fund. Town officials noted this fund was formed with the purpose of investing in job creation and retaining existing jobs for local residents and can be used for a variety of purposes including relocation costs, expanding businesses, facade improvements and other public projects where appropriate.

DUDLEY – 'Tis the time of year to put in the garden. But, of course, you need either seed or started plants to do that. Quite a few people found the latter and camaraderie in a liquor store parking lot, as the Dudley Conservation Land Trust held its annual plant sale last weekend at Marty's. Although participants said Saturday was basically a washout, Sunday's traffic made up for it.

Most kinds of plants that grow in this climate were available except trees: annuals and perennials, vegetables and herbs, ornamentals and edibles. Beyond the growing things, a local potter had a table of his wares; the Trust had a raffle table that included a locally-built wooden loveseat, blanket and other things; and one young Trust volunteer ran a sunflower-planting table for other kids.

School Committee planning possible infrastructure expenses

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

With the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District entering a new budget year with a larger budget thanks to the successful vote for a Proposition 2 ½ override, the committee's finance subcommittee is getting to work immediately to lay out a plan for the future, including infrastructure needs for the district and how to manage them.

During a May 9 meeting, member Stephanie Reed gave a report on what the finance subcommittee has been working on, and what possible changes or major expenses are on the radar for the next few years.

"The subcommittee reviewed retirements and resignations and the possible savings for the district because of them, but there are no set numbers as of right now," Reed said in her report.

"We did a preliminary review of stipends to see if maybe there were some savings for the district there at some point, and then we also talked about looking forward to what capital repairs our schools will need and discussed maybe having a feasibility study for all the schools at a later time."

With the district in the midst of a financial crunch, even with the expanded budget from both communities, major building upgrades of any kind could be a significant expense. However Superintendent Gregg Desto was upbeat, pointing out the district is trying to think ahead and plan for the future to keep these possible expenses from getting out of hand.

"A little bit of the discussion centered on something I think we'll talk about again in the next month or two and beyond that at this table. We really appreciate the support of the towns in the override, but we also know that there are still going to be other challenges ahead of us. It doesn't solve the whole problem. One of the things we discussed a little bit tonight is knowing that we just can't continually go to the voters for overrides and continuously add to the taxes of the good people that have supported us. We just had a brief discussion and started dipping our toe in the water about other ways that we can engage the towns in discussions where there might be revenue sources," Desto said.

This new approach would involve approaching businesses and other entities to see if there is a way to partner with companies or organizations to fund needed projects rather than dipping into tax dollars. There's also always the possibility of state funding or grants that the committee explores on a constant basis should any building improvements be a must. Desto said exploring the possibilities certainly wouldn't hurt.

"I think there will be wisdom in starting these discussions next year saying, look these are going to be our needs long term. A lot of them are capital related and exploring what revenues are coming into the town that can be utilized possibly. It's just the beginning of that discussion," Desto said.

While the possibility of building needs was a major topic of discussion no actual improvements have been planned, or brought to the table as of yet. The committee also did not make any motions on whether or not to go ahead with a feasibility study.

Shepherd Hill among those honored for environmental programs

BOSTON — At a State House ceremony, Energy and Environmental Affairs (EEA) Secretary Matthew Beaton today honored 32 energy and environmental education programs at Massachusetts schools and nonprofits as part of the 24th Annual Secretary's Awards for Excellence in Energy and Environmental Education.

"The environmental programs and educators honored today provide hands-on learning opportunities in STEM fields that prepare their students for success," said Governor Charlie Baker. "Our administration is proud to recognize the dedicated Massachusetts teachers and nonprofit educators who go above and beyond what is required to get their students interested in studying energy and the environment."

"Environmental and energy education programs teach our children important scientific and critical-thinking skills, as well as show them how they can make a difference in their communities and schools," said Lieutenant Governor Karyn Polito. "These extraordinary educators are proactively preparing their students to be our future environmental stewards."

Winners competed for $5,000 in awards, funded by the Massachusetts Environmental Trust with the intention to fund further environmental education initiatives at the schools. EEA solicited Excellence in Energy and Environmental Education Award nominations in early 2017. Schools and organizations that voluntarily incorporate environmental education into public or private school curricula are given priority.

"The initiatives we are recognizing today range from garden projects and outdoor classroom programs, to watershed and vernal pool projects, to teaching about the environment through art and music," said Energy and Environmental Affairs Secretary Beaton. "As we face many ongoing environmental challenges, including a changing climate, it is more important than ever that we prioritize environmental literacy and teach the next generation the importance of protecting our natural resources."

The project applications were scored by the Secretary's Advisory Group on Energy and Environmental Education, a group of environmental educators from state agencies, non-profits, industry and academia.

Secretary Beaton also recognized the U.S. Department of Education Green Ribbon Schools awardees from Massachusetts, Arlington Public School District and Mendon-Upton Regional School District. The award honors schools that are exemplary in reducing environmental impact and costs, improving the health and wellness of students and staff and providing effective environmental and sustainability education, which incorporates STEM, civic skills and green career pathways.

"We are very proud of all the schools that received this award for their work

On May 9 Grade 7 and 8 students of St. Joseph School competed in the annual Spelling Bee sponsored by the St. Joseph Women's Club. Although the winning word was "disastrous," the competition was nothing of the sort! It was exciting for all who attended and participated. The top three finishers were: First Place – Emilia Pianka, Second Place – Szymon Mamro, and Third Place – Sebastian Podgorny. Women's Club Financial Secretary, Sheri Bergeron presented gift certificates to the winners.

CHARLTON — The Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy inducted 16 exemplary students to its National Technical Honor Society.

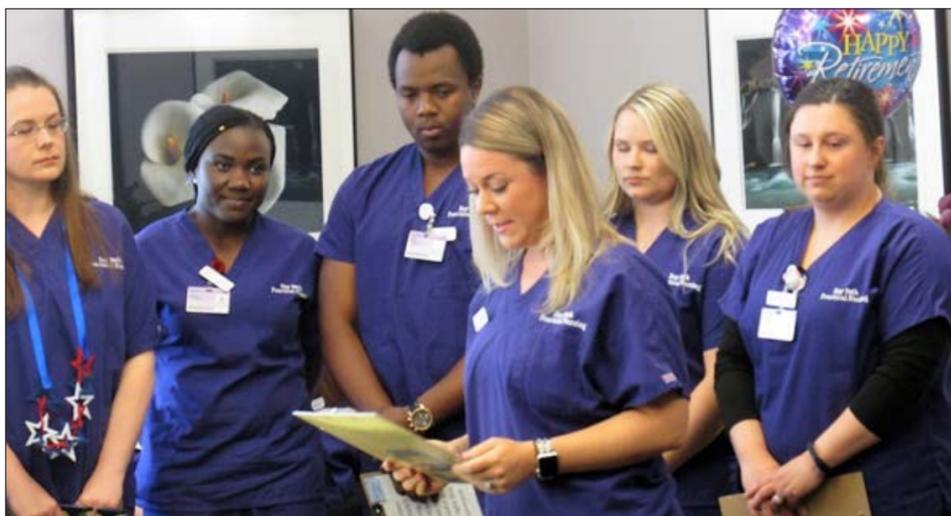

"NTHS members are good, honest, responsible student-citizens who have made a personal commitment to excellence, and who agree to uphold the NTHS Standards of Conduct," Academy director Gretheline Bolandrina MSN Ed, RN, CRRN said in a statement.

The NTHS is an acknowledged leader in the recognition of outstanding student achievement in career and technical education. In addition to the highest academic honors, the NTHS emphasizes the attributes of skill, honesty, service, responsibility, scholarship, citizenship, and leadership.

This is the third year the nursing academy at Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School in Charlton inducted members into its chapter of NTHS, which was chartered on campus in February 2016. Eligible students carry a minimum 3.0 grade point average, must earn a faculty recommendation, and successfully present a project proposal to benefit marginalized community.

The induction ceremony at the Hill Top Restaurant on May 10 honored inductees: Alicia Festa of Brookfield, Krisanne Koebke of Dudley, Elizabeth Lartey of Worcester, Lynda Layman of Woodstock, CT, Rachel Lear of Ware, Heather Lynds-Aldrich of Three Rivers, Erin Martin of Cherry Valley, Nicholas McElroy of Webster, Erin McTiernan of Spencer, Wendy Menard of Warren, Heather Monks of Auburn, Marissa Mungham of Thompson, Evanson Muthundu of Millbury, Antony Njoroge of Worcester, Brooke Sawinski of Danielson, CT, and Jeanne Schultz of Sturbridge.

Although the Bay Path school district is comprised of high school students from the towns of Auburn, Charlton, Dudley, North Brookfield, Oxford, Paxton, Rutland, Southbridge, Spencer and Webster, enrollment is open to anyone inter-

Twenty-five posters were submitted for consideration in the Lions International Peace Poster Contest by 7th and 8th grade students attending St. Joseph School and All Saints Academy.

This year's local winners of the Lions Peace Poster Contest were recently chosen by members of the Webster Lions Club based on their originality, artistic merit and accurate representation of the year's theme, "THE FUTURE OF PEACE". The contest was created in 1988 to give young people the opportunity to express their feelings for world peace and to share their visions with the world. This contest opens up the opportunity for parents, teachers and group leaders to discuss with children the true importance of peace. Approximately 600,000 entries were submitted worldwide by some of the 46,000 clubs in more than 200 countries and geographical areas. Lions Clubs International is the world's largest service club organization, with 1.4 million members.

Twenty-five posters were submitted by 7th and 8th grade students attending St. Joseph School and All Saints Academy. The winner from All Saints Academy was Lily Mueller. Her quote on peace was "In the future, peace will belong to everyone. People of all races, religions, gender and orientations will share in peace - with the help of something at their fingertips."

Emilia Pianka from St. Joseph School noted that "If we all put an effort into spreading peace, together we can make it possible."

Both Lily and Emilia are eighth graders and they received from the Webster Lions Club a cash award and a certificate recognizing their achievement.

Friday's Child

We are very close and want to be adopted together!

Tatiana and her younger brother Kingston are looking to be adopted together. Despite their age difference the siblings are very close to one another and do not want to be separated. Tatiana and Kingston are of Hispanic descent.

Those who know Tatiana describe her as quiet, intelligent and very determined. She is thirteen years old and wants to be successful in life and talks about going to college and hair dressing school. Comments on Tatiana's most recent report card mention that she is a pleasure to have in class and gives excellent effort. Tatiana is involved in the school chorus and has also been taking dance classes, which she would like to continue. Tatiana hopes to find a family that is kind and will love her. She would be particularly excited to have an older sister. Tatiana is open to living with a cat or a dog but would like to avoid homes with snakes!

Kingston is a sweet, loveable and active toddler with a strong bond to his older sister. He enjoys being around other children but can be shy with new adults when he first meets them. Kingston loves music and books. Kingston has some medical needs and regularly sees several specialists to monitor ongoing GI and feeding difficulties. Kingston is also susceptible to respiratory difficulties. He is receiving Early Intervention services for developmental delays.

Tatiana and Kingston are ready for adoption and will do well in a family with a mother and a father, two mothers or a single mother. An ideal family for these siblings will be open to helping them maintain a relationship with their half-brother.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org.

The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Horanzy: a service for residents

To the Editor:
Not to many new residents and businesses in Webster are aware, but if you have a mosquito problem in Webster you should call the Central Massachusetts Control Project it's a state agency.

They are located in Northborough Massachusetts and they will come out, but the owner of the property has to call.

I have been seeing around town a private company coming into the community selling mosquito control spraying.

Why pay for something when we all are getting it for free.

The spray is not harmful to people or animals.

I notice whoever ever started Facebook, Twitter for the town of Webster and the public forum they don't let the people in town know about the program that Webster joined long ago, like if though it was a big secret.

But I do see many people asking in these social blogs on where you call about a bug problem.

There is nothing about it on the Town of Webster website, though it was there a long time ago.

And I just check today the Town of Webster is still a member of the mosquito control program.

It a Free Program for Webster Landowners, Homeowners and Business folks-all the taxpayers in Webster.

Town of Webster joined the program about the year of 2000 or so, along with many other towns in Central Massachusetts. It was sponsored by the Webster Board of Selectman and the Board of Health, I know because we, was on the Board of Health back then as a elected official and help fight for it on the town meeting floor, along with then Chairman Bob Stawicki who proposed it to start the process in town government.

It's an excellent program and I know many business in the Town and Residents use the program today, it helps greatly, since they have been spraying we have no cases of West Nile viruses or Triple EEE contact with people.

They have been in town checking here in storm drains etc and elsewhere for mosquito larvae.

Its pretty educational on what these folks do when they come out to make recommendations on how you can basically prevent mosquito problems on your property, how they trap them, look for egg masses, one such way is to remove stagnant water on your property by emptying out buckets, or turn them over when not in use, sweeping puddles away etc.

Since they have been here in town I haven't seen a cluster of mosquitos here in my neighborhood.

What counts as a valid ID for liquor purchase?

CHIEF'S CORNER
STEVE WOJNAR

As a college town, we often have many out of state students around the community at a given time. They patronize clubs or restaurant in the areas. With that in mind, I was asked a question regarding the types identification that can be used to purchase alcoholic beverages in Massachusetts?

Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 138 Section 34B is the law which outlines identification for alcohol purchases. The law lists four acceptable forms of identification for employees and people having control of liquor establishments to rely upon. They are a Massachusetts Driver's license, Massachusetts Registry issued Liquor Identification Card, a passport issued by the US or country recognized by the US, and/or a valid US Military Identification.

Any other forms of identification (example out of state driver's license) are to be taken by licensees, agents, or employees at their own risk. Should there be a violation for service to a minor, only the four types listed earlier will provide a valid defense for the people in charge of the establishment.

It is the law to insure underage people are not served alcoholic beverages. It can be challenging in our town, which is very near the borders with other states, when people from out of the area are purchasing these items. The best rule for establishments to live by is when in doubt, do not serve. It is better to be cautious and maybe lose a sale as opposed to one's liquor license for a period of time.

For those people who get "carded," take it as a compliment and provide your license. The people asking are only doing their jobs to keep alcohol out of the hands of minors.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com.

Remembering WHY there's a Memorial Day

It is the kick off for the summer season sure. And since 1971 and the uniformity of making "busman's holidays", those that allow workers a day without it really being a of religious significance as being always on Mondays so a longer weekend is created; things like celebrating presidents' birthdays, significant historical figures' days, Memorial Day and Labor Day have become those long weekend traditions.

Great. Wonderful. Nice to have the time off even if planning for it makes for crazy scheduling to create the possibilities for some jobs.

But... Let's not, just because it isn't a religious day, forget why we get that time off.

This one is to remember those who have died in service to their country. Our country.

It began immediately after the Civil War, when thousands of boys and men died, all of them Americans even though we had foundered and found ourselves fighting one another over principles.

In 1868, Decoration Day became an unofficial day to honor those who had died, from any place in that horrific war. North, South. It didn't matter. We were honoring their service.

Within about 40 years, America found itself embroiled in an international conflict, and more young men died. Decoration Day became more important still, as some of those service people never came home, buried in Flanders fields, in France, on foreign soil. Remembering them both here... and there... was doubly important.

And then came a second world wide conflict; really a continuation of the first one, which never really got resolved; and it just grew larger, with multiple battlefronts, and bigger air and sea battles including underwater craft, and finally the threat of nuclear decisions. It was America that carried out that nuclear threat to end the conflict.

The scenes shifted to the Asian Pacific, to small countries like Korea and Vietnam, embroiling America in shadow wars. More service people died. We are still there.

And the Middle East, the deserts and the upheaval has changed players, but never conflicts. It shifts back and forth; alliances split and realign, governments topple and come back worse than ever, regimes claim to be one thing only to take power and become something else. And Americans are dying there too.

And on African soil, in small countries many didn't know existed.

On covert missions. On rescue missions. On UN supported missions.

But they put their lives on the line even as administrative and support troops; for the enemies understand taking down the background can cripple the frontlines.

The concept of Memorial Day has become benign to many in the United States, as families often also remember their own family members who have passed and that is fine; but as the new flowers are planted, do remember to glance about at the ones with the veterans' markers and the American flags.

And say a silent thank you. They are the reason you have the freedom to go to your loved ones' graves and have a nice weekend doing what you do with your family.

Freedom isn't free. It was purchased dearly.

The ultimate meaning of life

I would like to share with you this reflection on the ultimate meaning of our lives. After having initially given these meditations with my own people I was pleased by how well they were received. You might say that they are an attempt to answer the fundamental question: "Why did God make me?" In this endeavor, I am relying on the writing of one of the most renowned spiritual guides, St. Francis de Sales in his classic work "Introduction to the Devout Life."

The saint writes: "Fervently aspire to this most delightful abode. Let us go forward, my dear soul, to that infinite repose, let us travel on to that blessed land which is promised to us."

The problem often is that much of what we have heard about heaven since we were young, stuff like angels, clouds, the pearly gates, wings, halos, harps, doesn't really attract us. Nobody wants to spend eternity standing on a cloud dressed in white and holding a harp. This movement of correcting our idea of heaven is one of the most important works of faith we can ever undertake.

We need to use what we know of our world to lead us into considering that which lies beyond our experience. Even though our richest imagination cannot capture what heaven really is, it matters though that we try. Imagine the most beautiful landscape, lush and green, fragrant with every kind of colorful flower, crystal clean water flowing over a network of waterfalls, the air filled with the song of birds. Add to this the fact that unlike everything that we know it is totally perfect and it is not passing; it is eternal. This beauty will never fade or decay.

Along with the angelic beings who surround the throne of God with songs of endless praise, honoring God by their whole existence, spotless and glorious, we will find as the Book of Revelation tells us: "a great multitude, which no one could count, from every nation, race, people and tongue" (Rev 7:9). These are the ones who have walked the pathways of the earth as we do.

Heaven is simply the state of being in which creation is perfectly in communion with God and one another. We were created for communion. Nobody wants to be alone, we find peace and joy in loving and being genuinely loved. In heaven no relation is marred by jealousy, mistrust, selfishness, pride or lust.

Imagine the greatest day you could put together. All of the people you love the most gather for a surprise birthday party. The weather is perfect, the setting ideal, the celebration sublime. You experience real, constant, authentic peace, absolute tranquility with an overflowing sense of blessedness beyond your wildest imagination. Now take that assembly of feelings, multiply it beyond quantity and stretch it beyond time and you have barely touched upon the hem of the garment of bliss.

We cannot get our minds around the concept of unending joy, because, in putting together the perfect day filled with the greatest joy, our human experience tells us something very real: it will end. No matter how wonderful a day you might imagine, you know it is only a day. Truly, we cannot imagine what it would be like to exist in surpassing joy and to do so without end.

One of the most life-giving fruits of this meditation is the change in how we view heaven. Heaven cannot be a distant choice or a far-off idea. It must be the ultimate goal that is on our minds constantly. We should frequently turn our minds to this subject in order that the ultimate destination that God has willed for us might influence and give meaning to our present life. Let us do this intentionally because the many pressing matters that demand our attention can cause us to easily forget the invisible, seemingly distant, but life-altering reality of heaven.

Ask the Lord to plant deep in your heart a right and holy longing for the joy that never fades.

I would be doing you a great disservice and would betray the vow I made at my ordination in which was to preach and present the entire Gospel if we did not also consider the real possibility of Hell. In quite a few ways, Hell has become a topic we would much prefer to avoid in conversation as well as contemplation. Our logic tends to work like this: "If God is really the God of love then He could not possibly allow someone to go to hell, and so Hell could not be real. It must be another fabrication the Church conjured up to keep us in line."

Yet we know by God's revelation stated clearly in Scripture and by our experience of evil in the world that Satan does exist. We know that it would be the devil's victory were we to cease to believe in him and in Hell.

To contemplate Hell, once again we have to recall that damnation does not come about because God delights in punishing. God wants nothing but our good, but He is a just Judge. By our freedom we are able to exclude ourselves from his goodness. Consider these well-known verses from John's Gospel, "For God so loved the world that He gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him might not perish but might have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him." But it is important that we do not stop there, read on. "Whoever believes in Him will not be condemned, but whoever does not believe has already been condemned because he has not believed in the name of the Son of God" (John 3:16-18).

This is our most challenging meditation, I pray that this meditation may lead us to deeper conversion and ultimately greater love of God.

Our bodies would experience endless, constant discomfort. Imagine placing together all of the most awful experiences of your life and unite them with all of your worst fears, your greatest failures and your darkest emotions: sadness, loneliness, self-loathing, paranoia, despair. If we could distill this terrible combination into a single experience of desolation, it would be far too small to capture the pain of Hell. Why? Because no matter what our sufferings are in this life our afflictions are always tempered by the knowledge and the hope that eventually the suffering will pass. We can endure a lot of discomfort when we know it will eventually come to an end.

By far the greatest sadness of Hell would be the sadness of knowing that we will never see God, never know His love, never receive His embrace, and never know the peace of soul that comes from grace. Such sadness would be deepened by the awareness that we chose this eternal desolation for ourselves by rejecting His grace and by failing to repent. The delight we derived from our sinful pursuits would now appear so minuscule. We would see that we traded the passing pleasures of earthly indulgence for the endless agony of eternal damnation.

Remember that conversion is always a possibility. Christ himself begged us not to go this way in his first sermon; "This is the time. The kingdom of God is at hand. Repent and believe in the Gospel" (Mark 1:15).

You stand between heaven and hell. Each is open to you and willing to receive you. You have the ability to choose. In making this grand choice of where you will spend eternity you also choose the style of life and earthly habits that will determine the choice you make the moment your soul leaves your body. Our here and now choices have eternal consequences.

Dear God, patient and loving Father, I have chosen time and again to reject your goodness, preferring myself to you. By your goodness through this time of prayer, you are leading me to understand the weight of my choices and the power you have given me in freedom. I dread nothing more than spending eternity without you. Please, I beg you, be generous now in pouring forth your assistance as I strive to spend every moment of this life in pursuing your will. Protect me against every temptation and every evil impulse, that when you determine the time for my departure, I may run joyfully into your embrace! Amen.

We're all trespassers in the face of government land grabs

"No power on earth has a right to take our property from us without our consent." — John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States

We have no real property rights.

Think about it.

That house you live in, the car you drive, the small (or not so small) acreage of land that has been passed down through your family or that you scrimped and saved to acquire, whatever money you manage to keep in your bank account after the government and its cronies have taken their first and second and third cut...none of it is safe from the government's greedy grasp.

At no point do you ever have any real ownership in anything other than the clothes on your back.

Everything else can be seized by the government under one pretext or another (civil asset forfeiture, unpaid taxes, eminent domain, public interest, etc.).

The American Dream has been reduced to a lease arrangement in which we are granted the privilege of endlessly paying out the nose for assets that are only ours so long as it suits the government's purposes.

And when it doesn't suit the government's purposes? Watch out.

This is not a government that respects the rights of its citizenry or the law. Rather, this is a government that sells its citizens to the highest bidder and speaks to them in a language of force.

Under such a fascist regime, the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which declares that no person shall "be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation," has become yet another broken shield, incapable of rendering any protection against corporate greed while allowing the government to justify all manner of "takings" in the name of the public good.

As journalist Eric Williamson notes, "From controversial projects such as President Donald Trump's border wall and the gas pipelines, to more mundane works such as road expansion, just about any project deemed in the public interest can mean taking your property is fair game."

Practically anything goes now.

It's been 13 years since the U.S. Supreme Court took up the case of Kelo v. City of New London, which expanded the government's limited power to acquire private lands in order to build a public structure like a school or highway for "public use" and allowed it to make seizures for a "public purpose," which in the government's eyes can mean anything as long as it amounts to higher tax revenue.

In Kelo, the City of New London, CT, wanted to condemn private homes as "blighted" in order to tear them down and allow a developer to build higher-priced homes, a resort hotel, a conference center and retail complexes to complement a new Pfizer pharmaceutical plant in the area. Ironically, the developers in New London later backed out of the deal after the homes were seized and bulldozed, leaving the once quaint neighborhood a wasteland.

Nevertheless, a shortsighted Supreme Court gave city officials the go-ahead, ruling 5-4 that a city government — aligned with large corporate interests — could use the power of eminent domain to seize an entire neighborhood for development purposes, entire neighborhoods have been seized and bulldozed to make way for shopping malls, sports complexes and corporate offices.

"The specter of condemnation hangs over all property," warned Justice Sandra Day O'Connor in a stinging dissent. "Nothing is to prevent the State from replacing any Motel 6 with a Ritz-Carlton, any home with a shopping mall, or any farm with a factory."

Unfortunately, nothing has prevented the government from bulldozing its way through the Fifth Amendment in an effort to take from the middle and lower classes and fatten the coffers of the corporate elite.

In the wake of Kelo, at least 16 places of worship (which pay no taxes) were taken for private uses (which will generate tax dollars). Other attempted takings include the transfer of three family-owned seafood businesses to a larger private marina in Texas; the transfer of farmland to a shopping center anchored by a Lowe's in Illinois; developing 233 low-income and elderly families' properties into a senior community where townhouses cost more than $350,000 in New Jersey; and developing middle-income, single-family homes on the waterfront into more expensive condominiums in New Jersey.

Even Donald Trump has taken advantage of eminent domain, in one instance attempting to take an elderly woman's house to make way for a limousine parking lot.

As an investigative report by the Institute for Justice notes, over the course of five years, local governments used eminent domain to lay claim to more than 10,000 homes, businesses, churches and private land for private business development, including condemning a family's home so that the manager of a planned new golf course could live in it; evicting four elderly siblings from their home of 60 years for a private industrial park; and removing a woman in her 80s from her home of 55 years supposedly to expand a sewer plant, only to turn around and give her home to an auto dealership.

Fast forward to the present day, and you've got the government's pipeline projects as a prime example of eminent domain being employed for corporate gain.

All across the country, power companies have been given the green light to build massive gas and oil pipelines that crisscross the country, cutting through private and public lands, as well as unspoiled wilderness.

"Yet despite oft-repeated claims by politicians and oil executives about the danger of relying on foreign oil, this U.S. petroleum renaissance never was designed to make America energy self-sufficient," points out journalist Sandy Tolan. "A growing amount of that oil will end up in China, Japan, the Netherlands, even Venezuela."

So much for the public use, huh?

These pipeline projects which are getting underway in a dozen states have stirred up a hornet's nest of protests, most notably in Standing Rock, North Dakota, where activists attempting to block the completion of Dakota Access Pipeline were subjected to militarized police, riot and camouflage gear, armored vehicles, mass arrests, pepper spray, tear gas, drones, less-than-lethal weapons unleashed with deadly force, rubber bullets, water cannons, concussion grenades, arrests of journalists, intimidation tactics, and brute force.

Not all of the protests that have arisen in response to these pipeline projects hinge on environmental concerns, which are significant in and of themselves in light of water and ground contamination due to leaks and spills. Some of the protesters are landowners, simple farmers and homeowners who merely want the government and its corporate partners-in-crime to keep their grubby paws off their personal property.

In Virginia, activists have taken to tree sitting — living for weeks on end in platforms suspended above the ground in trees — as a form of protest over the devastation that is being wrought by these pipelines.

These acts of civil disobedience come at a costly price.

Pipeline and forestry officials have been working hard to make life as difficult as possible for the protesters, allegedly blocking their access to food and water and medical supplies, shining floodlights into the trees at all hours of the night, creating ground disturbances to dislodge their nests, and urging the courts to levy heavy fines for each day that the work to clear the forests for the pipeline is delayed.

Here's what one resident of Roanoke, VA, wrote to me about the manner in which the Mountain Valley Pipeline is being inflicted on his community:

"Our small community has been invaded by private security and a fully militarized local police department. Some families up here have land grants from the King, predating the formation of the Commonwealth. Mountain Valley Pipeline has begun cutting trees and has brought in private military contractors similar to what was used in North Dakota. MVP is only offering to pay pennies on the dollar. They are basically using the power of government to steal this land for private profit. What has ensued was the county positioning a mobile command center right across from my restaurant, and scores of police in full tactical dress being deployed. They wasted no time in hooking up with the MVP private security and a long list of offenses then began against the residents and land owners of Bent Mountain, who now find themselves subject to arrest for walking in their own driveway, taking pictures of the pipeline companies ever-changing survey lines and path of destruction, or in more than one case, for confronting MASKED ARMED MEN ON THEIR PROPERTY IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT. It is AMAZING that nobody has been shot yet! One of my neighbors was accosted on his own back porch by police for photographing the MVP surveyors continually moving the corridor of their easement. I have even had armed private security trespassing on my property miles away in neighboring Floyd County. I am all for infrastructure. However, I am not for the taking of people's private land for profit, using the force and power of government, far outside of the bounds of the Constitution.

It takes a lot of gall to trespass onto someone's private property, tear up their land, cut down their trees, pollute their air and water, prevent them from moving freely on their own property, threaten them with fines and arrests for challenging the intrusion, and then force them to pay (by way of taxes) to retain ownership of the property or sell it cheaply or at a loss so it can be torn down and used for some purpose that the government deems more beneficial to its bottom line."

That's how little respect the government has for our rights.

It used to be that you could post a "No Trespassing" sign on your property to send the message that no one could venture onto your private property without your permission. As the Tennessee Supreme Court recognized in State v. Christensen, "a homeowner who posts a 'No Trespassing' sign is simply making explicit what the law already recognizes: that persons entering onto another person's land must have a legitimate reason for doing so or risk being held civilly, or perhaps even criminally, liable for trespass."

Unfortunately, American taxpayers have become trespassers on their own property thanks to the government's ongoing land grabs and utter disregard for property rights.

So much for that whole pipedream about one's home being one's castle.

When it comes right down to it, the right to property is the first — and last — right, and perhaps the most inherent. The undermining and dissolution of this critical right may well prove to be one of the few things to rouse the American people to action.

As polls show, Americans have been willing to accept limitations on their rights to free speech, privacy and due process, as well as other important freedoms, in exchange for the phantom promise of security.

Yet whether they live in a modest two-bedroom walkup in the Bronx or a mansion in Bel Air, Americans have not been quite as willing to barter away their right to property. In this way, we are not so far removed from the revolutionary spirit that saw a ragtag assortment of colonists standing up to the military might of Great Britain.

The signing of the Declaration of Independence marked a new beginning for our nation. It signaled a shift in the balance of power from one in which the people served an elite ruling class to one in which government was instituted to serve the people. The government's role would not be to create or define the people's inherent rights but rather to guarantee their protection.

As the Declaration states, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

The Declaration, which embodied all the passion, outrage and noble ideals of the day, could easily have ended there. But the Founders understood that in order for the newly born nation to survive, it would need more than revolutionary sentiment. It would require a government that existed to serve the people, not itself, and a contract to guarantee basic liberties and bind the union together.

Thus was the U.S. Constitution born in the summer of 1787. It sprang forth from the experiences of a revolutionary generation, still wary of the strong arm of government. And from that wariness came the Bill of Rights.

The first ten amendments to our Constitution are intended as a blueprint to keep the government in its place, off our backs and away from our property.

For early Americans, the right to own property was fundamental to all other rights.

Mind you, the term "property" is much more fundamental and personal than just with land ownership. It refers to a kind of sovereignty over one's life and possessions—especially one's money.

Again, the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution states that "No person shall be...deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

Property is grouped in the same category as life and liberty in the Fifth Amendment because it is difficult to enjoy life and liberty without the stability, security and assurances that property provides. Private property, at a minimum, checks governmental power for it provides the citizen a right of space where even government agents cannot intrude without proper authority.

At its core, the American dream is about gaining sovereignty over one's life and property. Without this sovereignty—this unshakeable guarantee of ownership and dominion, even over one's own life—there can be no true liberty or freedom.

This most sacred of rights is under siege.

More than 200 years after early Americans went to war over their right to life, liberty and property, "we the people" have been reduced to little more than serfs in bondage, indentured servants, and sharecroppers.

If the government can tell you what you can and cannot do within the privacy of your home, whether it relates to what you eat, what you smoke or whom you love, you're not the King or Queen in your little castle.

If government officials can fine and arrest you for growing vegetables in your front yard, installing solar panels on your roof, and raising chickens in your backyard, you no longer have any property interests in your home.

If school officials can punish your children for what they do or say while at home or in your care, your children are not your own—they are the property of the state.

If government agents can invade your home, break down your doors, kill your dog, damage your furnishings and terrorize your family, your property is no longer private and secure—it belongs to the government.

Likewise, if police can forcefully draw your blood, strip search you, and probe you intimately, your body is no longer your own, either.

This is what a world without true property rights looks like, where the lines between private and public property have been so blurred that private property is reduced to little more than something the government can use to control, manipulate and harass you to suit its own purposes, and you the homeowner and citizen have been reduced to little more than a tenant in bondage to an inflexible landlord.

In other words, we're slaves.

If you have no choice, no voice, and no real options when it comes to the government's claims on your property and your money, you're not free.

You're not free if the government can seize your home and your car (which you've bought and paid for) over non-payment of taxes.

You're not free if government agents can freeze and seize your bank accounts and other valuables if they merely "suspect" wrongdoing.

And you're certainly not free if the IRS gets the first cut of your salary to pay for government programs over which you have no say.

After all, a government that doesn't respect the rights of its citizens will have even less regard for their property, be it land, money or personhood.

So where does that leave us?

Battling for our lives, liberties and property.

Questions about who has ultimate control over our money, how much of it can be claimed by government and how it gets spent go to the heart of the battle over property rights.

Remember, governments generate no wealth on their own. Any resources that they have at their disposal have been appropriated from the original producers of that wealth, the citizens.

This fundamental truth has largely been downplayed over the years, because the government doesn't want us to remember that it exists to serve at our pleasure and for our common good.

Yet any government that ceases to serve this function risks being declared illegitimate.

It happened once before.

It can happen again.

All it takes is the right spark to start a revolution.

Every year St. Roch's Church in Oxford hosts an amazing carnival. The carnival takes place at the town common on Main Street and is a tradition for most local families. The carnival is open for four days, Thursday through Sunday during the evenings on weekdays and days and nights on the weekends. The carnival comes to town in the middle of May and is set up within just a few days. Residents grow excited watching the rides being constructed and set up for fun and safety. The carnival did have to shut down on Saturday for rain as it would be unsafe for participants. There is no make-up day, which has happened in previous years. There have been minor issues with parking and traffic but it is to be expected with such an event as this. Many citizens from other towns travel to Oxford to share in the merriment of the bright lights and syrupy sugary smells that is the carnival.

There are confections and fried treats at the various food trucks stationed around the carnival. Spring time is meant for fried dough, sweet lemonade, and sticky fingers. Have you tried fried Oreos yet? If not, they are a must have! Just make sure you wait a little while before getting on one of the many roller coaster-like rides. With all those dips and swirls, twists and turns, and descents into screaming chaos, your stomach is coming along for the ride, treat it well. The carnival this year did great with the selection of rides. You can hover upside down and fly like superman! Or you can climb a ladder and glide down an enormous and steep slide. Or you can strap into a harness and jump on a large trampoline like Aislyn White.

"Aislyn thought the trampoline was the best thing ever!" says her mom Stacy White, "she is begging to go back just for that!"

White had a blast with her children at the carnival, they go every year.

"It's fun for the kids. Carnivals are a bit of a money pit, but it benefits the town, and puts a smile on the kids faces, so it's worth it!" says White.

The cost of the carnival was a concern for many who wanted to attend. Several people discussed the cost of it on the Facebook's Oxford resident's forum. Many were astonished at the prices this year and thought that more business would be produced if they lowered the cost. Tickets were $1.25 each and most rides cost three or more tickets each. The $25 bracelet, that could get you on to any ride, was only valid for one day. Aislyn's favorite trampoline jump cost $7 to take a turn. This is not counting the games, the food, and any prizes or toys for which the children ask.

Carnivals cost a lot of money to run, and a lot of money to enjoy, but White is right. The smile on the children's faces make it all worth it. The carnival is not just for children! Adults love to go as well. Some have their first dates at carnivals. The glittering bright neon lights help set for a fun and fanciful mood. The fried dough is big enough to share and you can always try to win a prize for your lovely.

Richard Cooper shares his fun and fantastic photos from up high on the Ferris wheel, "we had a blast at the carnival tonight! Thank you, town of Oxford (St. Roch's Church)!" says Cooper. Cooper went two days in a row to this carnival, it was just that much fun.

Aimee Jones, Spencer resident, traveled to Oxford just to bring her kids to the carnival.

"I hate these things, but my kids love them, so here we are!" Jones laughs as she scrapes cotton candy off the bottom of shoe and her daughter Isla pulls at her shirt and begs for more sweets. Keith Henry, Oxford resident brought his daughter Charlotte Henry to enjoy the carnival.

"It's Charlotte's birthday on Sunday, so the carnival kind of works as her pre-party, she thinks the carnival is here just for her, and that's okay with me."

Madeline Pajala and Gracelyn Morales of Oxford sit comfortably on a picnic bench and enjoy their cotton candy treat. Aden Patterson hugs his new Pikachu stuffed plush that his grandmother Eve Patterson won for him. Jessica and Nathan remain close as they pick up some fried dough to share. Everyone can have a wonderful time at the Carnival.

Carnivals are more than rides and fatteningly tasty treats; it is a way to make lasting memories. Make your memories last forever, remember the delight and bright shining smiles on your children's faces as they jump like Aislyn, party like Charlotte, or enjoy cotton candy like Madeline and Gracelyn!

Saving for College? Consider a 529 Plan

Do you know about 529 savings plans? If not, you are not alone – although these plans have been around since 1996, many people are still unaware of them. And that's unfortunate, because a 529 plan can be a valuable tool for anyone who wants to help a child, grandchild, friend or other family member save for education expenses.

Here are some of the key benefits of a 529 plan:

Potential tax advantages – A 529 plan's earnings are not subject to federal income taxes, as long as withdrawals are used for qualified education expenses (tuition, room and board, etc.) of the designated beneficiary, such as your child or grandchild. (You will be subject to ordinary income taxes, plus a 10 percent federal penalty, on the earnings portion of withdrawals not used for qualified education expenses.)

High contribution limits – Contribution limits are generally quite high for most states' 529 plans. However, you could possibly incur gift tax consequences if your contributions, plus any other gifts, to a particular beneficiary exceed $15,000 during a single year.

Ability to switch beneficiaries – As the old song goes, "The future is not

ours to see." You might name a particular child or grandchild as a beneficiary of a 529 savings plan, only to see him or her decide not to go to college after all. But as the owner of the plan, you generally may be able to switch beneficiaries whenever you like, right up to the point when they start taking withdrawals. (To make this switch non-taxable and penalty-free, you must designate a new beneficiary who is a member of the same family as the original beneficiary.)

Freedom to invest in any state's plan – You can invest in the 529 plan offered by any state, regardless of where you live. But if you invest in your own state's plan, you might receive some type of state tax benefit, such as a deduction or credit. Additional benefits also may be available.

Flexibility in changing investments – You can switch investment options in your 529 plan up to twice a year. Or, if you'd rather take a more hands-off approach, you could select an automatic age-based option that starts out with a heavier emphasis on growth-oriented investments and shifts toward less risky, fixed-income vehicles as the beneficiary approaches college age.

While a 529 plan clearly offers some benefits, it also raises some issues about which you should be aware. For example, when colleges compute financial aid packages, they may count assets in a 529 plan as parental assets, assuming the parents are the plan owners. To clarify the impact of 529 plans on potential financial aid awards, you might want to consult with a college's financial aid officer.

One final note: In previous years, 529 plans were limited to eligible colleges, universities and trade schools, but starting in 2018, you can also use up to $10,000 per year, per beneficiary, from a 529 plan to pay for tuition expenses at public, private or religious elementary and secondary schools. (Not all states recognize K-12 expenses as qualifying for 529 plan benefits, so consult your local tax advisor before investing.)

Education is a great investment in a child's future. And to make that education more affordable, you might want to make your own investment in a 529 plan.

Oxford's Erickson throws no-hit shutout to top Wolverines, 12-0

BY DEAN P. ST. LAURENT
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

OXFORD — Oxford High junior pitcher Joel Erickson threw a complete game no-hitter in helping lead the Pirates' varsity baseball team to a 12-0 victory over Leicester High on Thursday, May 17.

From start to finish Erickson was dialed in, hitting all his spots and showing great command of all his pitches. He struck out seven Wolverines and allowed only three base runners in seven innings pitched.

"Joel gets better and better every time he throws the ball," praised Oxford head coach Justin Richards. "He was very good today, he hit his spots well today and his fastball had good velocity on it. He was able to mix up his pitches and hit it in and out."

Oxford's offense exploded and it gave Erickson everything he needed to be dominant in his first outing in a week and a half.

"When they're scoring runs it gives me a boost and confidence," explained Erickson. "My change-up, my velocity and hitting my locations, the catcher and pitching coach gives me places to hit and I tried my best to hit them. My fastball was working."

Starting the game with a bang on the mound coincided with a massive output from the Pirates' offense — one that has been exploding all season.

Michael Bordeaux started it off by getting on base when he was hit by a pitch, which was followed by back-to-back triples from Jason Panient and David Meech that quickly gave Oxford a 2-0 lead. The Pirates' offense was far from done, as they batted through the lineup and scored eight first inning runs.

"As a team — one through nine — we can hit the ball and we are having really good at-bats, even our outs are well hit," explained Richards. "Offensively our team approach has been really good. It has been a two- or three-year process, this whole team was with us last year and they have grown and matured, so they are seeing the ball really well and everyone is hitting. We have tons of athletes and we have five or six kids we trust pitching and because of that all of our guys are going out there, Joel [Erickson] are going out there. He hasn't been out there in a week and a half, so they're all going out there really well rested."

Oxford tallied 14 hits as a team, including six for extra bases. Noah Buckley went 2 for 2 with a double and two runs scored. Colin Ryan went 2 for 3 with two singles and two RBIs.

Oxford has seven seniors and has returned almost everyone from last year's team, and building chemistry over the last few years has turned into success this season. Richards and his staff have a group of guys he has all the confidence in as the postseason approaches.

"We have 14 players that we kept that are varsity ready and we are happy with these 14," said Richards, whose team is now 15-2.

Leicester, meanwhile, dropped to 9-4 but still has an impressive season going as they also look forward to the upcoming district tournament. Both teams will compete in the Central Mass. Division 4 bracket.

Rams' track and field shines at Class A meet to the tune of second place finish

DUDLEY — It was cold and rainy at Shepherd Hill Regional — site of the Central Mass. Girls' Class A Track and Field Championships — on Saturday, May 12, but the sun, figuratively of course, still managed to shine on the Rams' program.

On the strength of four first-place, two second-place and four third-place finishes, Shepherd Hill finished with 90.33 points, which left them in second place, behind only Wachusett Regional (124 points) and ahead of Algonquin Regional (86.83 points).

Picking up wins for the Rams were sophomore Maddy Marsh, junior Rebekah James, senior Kat Landry and the 4-by-400 relay team of James, Marsh, Emma Sullivan and Makayla Norton. Marsh won the 400 (in 58.15 seconds), while James won the mile (5:17.72) and Landry captured the discus (93 feet, 10 inches). The relay team covered the 1,600 meters in 4:10.89.

Turning in second-place finishes were senior Bailey Savage in the javelin (99 feet, 8 inches) and Sullivan in the 800 (2:18.14). Sullivan, a sophomore, also found time to finish tied for fifth in the long jump (with teammate Hayley Shoemaker), thanks to a leap of 15 feet, 7-1/2 inches.

In addition to being part of the winning 4-by-400 relay team Norton, one of coach Nicole Fossas' six senior captains — along with Shoemaker, Landry, Gabby Lawrence, Ally Bolton and Morgan Gallagan — finished third in the 400 (1:03.26) and fifth in the triple jump (32 feet, 11 inches). Lawrence finished third in the two mile (11:30.92) while Landry finished third in the shot put (31 feet, 2-1/2 inches).

Also coming in third place was the 4-by-800 relay team of Lawrence, Eliza Quinn, Kaitlyn Stevens and Christina Gunsalus, in a time of 11:05.52. Gunsalus, who is a freshman, also finished sixth in the two mile (12:26.49). Also recording sixth-place finishes were Shoemaker, in the 400 (1:04.15) and Quinn in the 400 hurdles (1:14.39).

"I knew we were capable of finishing second; we finished second last year, too, so I was hoping to come in second again this year," said Fossas, now in her second year as the girls' outdoor track head coach after five years as an assistant. "We lost some kids to graduation last year, but we got in some good freshmen and we had a senior who had never participated in track before come out for the team as well."

The senior of whom Fossas speaks is Savage, who played basketball for the Rams for four years and is headed to WPI to, among other things, continue her basketball career.

"Bailey finished second in the javelin and tied for fourth in the pole vault; she has been phenomenal all season," Fossas said. "She is athletic and so competitive. She's been a great addition. Bailey is just a great, great, great girl. I just wish I had her for four years."

Fossas said there were no personal bests turned in at the Class A meet, partly because of the weather but also partly because the girls have only just started to focus on their main events.

"I don't like to put girls in their main event too early in the season because they can get stale," Fossas explained. "We're sort of in the championship season time, which is what we've been building up to, so they're just starting to run their main events now. All the kids will get faster now because we're getting into the big meets — The District E Class A Meet, the Mid-Wach A League meet, the state class meet and then the state all-class meet."

Fossas said she has 51 girls in the outdoor track program this year — "That's a record-high number during my seven years working with the team," she said — which allows her to have a mix of balance and depth, and young competitors as well as older ones.

"A lot of girls play other sports in the fall and then go into indoor and outdoor track," said Fossas, who is an instructional assistant at Dudley Middle School. "They try indoor and like it and then go right into outdoor in the spring. A lot of the girls are sophomores when they come out for the team."

"They don't really think about it as freshmen, but they hear about the program and it interests them because there are so many opportunities in track," Fossas continued. "There are really so many different possibilities — there is short running, there is sprinting, there is distance running, and there is jumping and throwing. There really is something for everyone."

With three hits each Wong-Li, Zannotti help power Shepherd Hill past Westborough

Sophia Sciarappa of Shepherd Hill bombs a double via a vicious swing.

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

Editor's Note: The accompanying photos come from Shepherd Hill's game with Shrewsbury two days prior on Monday, May 14.

DUDLEY — It's been hit or miss — literally — this season for the Shepherd Hill Regional varsity softball team.

When the Rams hit they usually win; in six of their eight wins they have recorded no fewer than 11 hits, and as many as 20. Not coincidentally, in all but one of those wins Shepherd Hill also scored 10 or more runs.

The Rams' game against Westborough High on Wednesday, May 16 was a typical outing in their roller-coaster of a season. Shepherd Hill racked up a dozen hits in a 9-4 win over the Rangers. Sophomore Kiley Wong-Li and freshman Sam Zannotti led the Rams' attack, each finishing with three hits, while senior Sophia Sciarappa and junior Cayley Fagan added two hits each.

"We've been inconsistent at the plate this year, but lately we've really been hitting the ball," said Fagan, who picked up the win in the circle against Westborough as well, allowing just three hits while striking out seven and walking three.

Head coach Donny Loos appears to be spending more time as a mad scientist of sorts than a coach this year, looking for the combination of hitters that will record more hits and produce more runs.

"We're definitely trying to get more consistent at the plate," Loos said. "Last year we had a great offensive year — many of those years from a lot of these kids who are back this year — and we're just trying to find the right mix. Every day it's a challenge because we have 13 kids on the roster who can all hit and we're trying to find the nine that are hot that day. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't."

Fagan said last year's success at the plate has resulted in the Rams receiving fewer quality pitches from opposing hurlers.

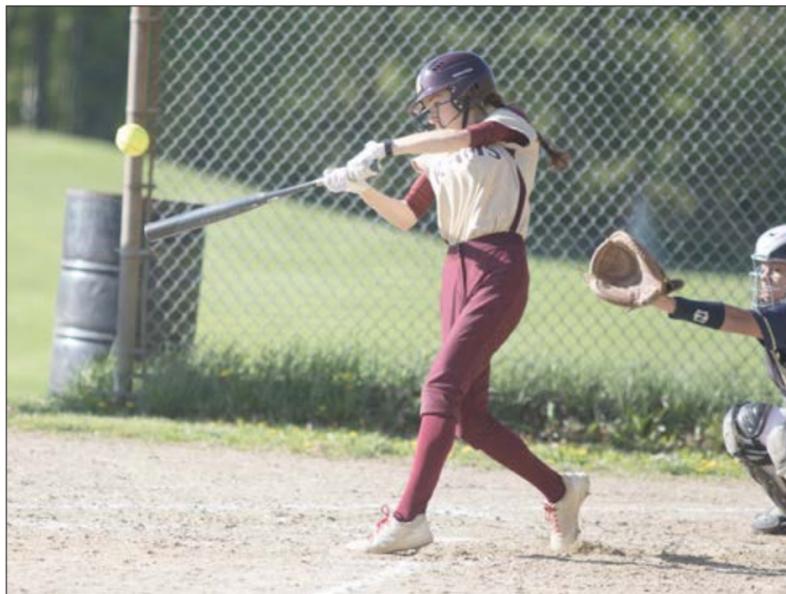

"We expected this year to hit the ball like we did last year and that hasn't happened," explained Fagan, who singled and doubled in four at-bats. "We really didn't take our hitting as seriously as we should have, but now that we've realized that we have to keep winning to make districts it seems like our intensity and focus at the plate has been a little sharper."

Shepherd Hill (8-7) hit early and often against Westborough (6-7), but the Rams found themselves trailing, 3-0, after just three Rangers had batted.

After the first two Westborough hitters reached base on a single and a walk, the Rangers' Taylor Chelak launched the first of her two home runs over the right field fence. Fagan, however, avoided further trouble by allowing just a walk the rest of the inning while striking out a pair.

Despite Westborough's fast start, Shepherd Hill led, 5-3, at the end of the first inning.

Zannotti tripled to open the bottom of the first inning to begin a string of five straight Rams reaching base, and all scored. She cut the Rams' deficit to two, 3-1, when she trotted home on a RBI single by Sciarappa. Fagan followed with a single to center field, Sciarappa moving to second on the hit. Both came home, tying the game, 3-3, when Wong-Li scorched a double to right-center field.

Wong-Li moved to third on a fielder's choice by Keely Scotia and then put Shepherd Hill ahead, 4-3, by scoring on a groundout by Parker Filo-Loos. Scotia, meanwhile, stole second, went to third on Filo-Loos' groundout and then scored to make it 5-3 on a groundout by Hailey Delphia.

"I said to them when we huddled up after the top of the first, 'look, that was a little bit of a shock, but let's make sure we win the inning,'" Loos said. "I think we were seven batters in and we had five runs across."

Shepherd Hill added two runs in the bottom of the second to go ahead 7-3. Chelak cut the lead to 7-4 in the top of the fifth inning with her second round-tripper of the game, but the Rams' added two more runs in the bottom of the inning to account for the 9-4 final. Wong-Li (single, two doubles, four RBI) drove in a run in both the second and fifth innings.

"I've been in a little bit of a funk at the plate lately, but I felt like I saw the ball a lot better today," said Wong-Li, who thought a key to the game was the Rams' answering Westborough's three runs in the first inning with five of their own. "It was important to come back in the bottom of the first and take the lead because in some of our games earlier in the season we've fallen behind early and haven't been able to come back. After giving up three and coming back to win, it was a big win for us today."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

Rams' Baseball Goes 1-2

May 14
Shrewsbury 3, Shepherd Hill 2 — Despite grabbing a 2-0 lead through three innings, the Rams' varsity baseball team surrendered three runs in the top of the seventh to fall just short. Jake Schafer pitched six strong innings for Shepherd Hill, while Mick Sullivan had a pair of hits and Anthony D'Elia and Chris LaFortune provided the RBI's.

May 16
Westborough 3, Shepherd Hill 1 — The Rangers scored three unanswered runs in the top of the seventh inning to surge past the host Rams in varsity baseball action. Nate Carty was the hard-luck loser for Shepherd Hill, as he pitched a complete game six-hitter with six strikeouts. John Calgani had two hits and an RBI for the Rams.

May 17
Shepherd Hill 5, Blackstone Valley Tech 0 — Pat Wilbur's complete game shutout ended in a two-hitter to go along with four strikeouts and a walk for the Rams' varsity baseball team. Mick Sullivan was 2 for 3 with a trio of RBI's, while Matt Waterhouse drove in the other run and Chris LaFortune was 3 for 4.

Hard-hitting Bay Path continues to win, tops Parker

Mathew S. Plamondon photos

Bay Path's Patricia King catches a pitch from behind the plate.

BY DEAN P. ST. LAURENT
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

Editor's Note: The accompanying photos come from Bay Path's game with Keefe Tech two days prior on Monday, May 14.

CHARLTON — Katie Ryan was dominant inside the pitching circle for the Bay Path Regional varsity softball team in its 21-0 win over Parker Charter on Wednesday, May 16. Ryan struck out 12 Panthers in a victory — the teams' seventh straight — to help the Minutemen clinch the Colonial

Athletic League Small School Division

"We are 11-3 now," informed Bay Path head coach Rick Carrero. "That clinched the league, so we are champions in the small Colonial League; districts are clinched, now we are just playing for seeding."

Ryan dominated from the start. The junior allowed just one hit in five innings pitched to go along with her double-digit strikeout total. Her stat line wasn't the most impressive part of her performance, however, as the poise and control she showed was highlighted significantly.

"She pitched really well, she is one of the captains," Carrero expressed. "This was probably her best game of the season as far as controlling the game and working fast with the pace. That game took an hour; she controlled the tempo of the game, which I thought was good because she was able to throw the ball harder because she controlled it. I was thrilled with the amount of strikes she threw."

To go along with an excellent pitching performance, Bay Path recorded 20 base hits as a unit. Each player in the Minutemen lineup contributed in the hit column at least once again against Parker.

"We are good hitting team, we are one of better hitting teams in the league, even in the games that we lost we were able to collect 10, 12 and eight hits," Carrero explained.

Patricia King led the offense, batting a perfect 4 for 4 with four doubles and four RBIs.

Bay Path, which has faced adversity from the start of the season with no seniors on the team, has overcome even more challenges when three starters got hurt against Oxford High earlier this spring. They lost Devan Wetherbee, Aliya Guillotte and Sydney Cardinal to significant injuries.

"One of the most impressive

Katie Ryan of Bay Path swings away and sends a base hit into play.

things is that we have three starters out, two of our captains are out with concussions and our right fielder who is a sophomore broke her hand," explained Carrero. "We were 4-0 going into that game and then we lost three straight hard ones and since then we haven't lost, which is seven in a row."

"We are looking to take it one game at a time and just winning and gaining confidence for the districts, and try to get a good seeding for the districts. Getting a home game is one our biggest goals, but we should be able to compete so that is what we are trying to do, play well," Carrero concluded.

Minutemen remain patient, earn win over Valley Tech in walk-off fashion

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

UPTON — Talk about impeccable timing.

Nick Jose belted a first-pitch double with one out in the bottom of the seventh inning to score Nate Shoemaker from second base with the winning run to complete an improbable four-run comeback and lead the Bay Path Regional varsity baseball team past Blackstone Valley Tech, 5-4, on Friday, May 18.

The game was originally to be played at Bay Path, but Valley Tech had a senior event scheduled at the school later in the day and the team would have had trouble getting back to Upton from Charlton in time. Bay Path agreed to move the game to Upton, but only if it retained the home team designation, meaning the Minutemen would bat in the bottom of each inning.

Bay Path entered the bottom of the seventh inning trailing 4-1.

Dom Esposito got the game-winning rally started when he led off with a double to the gap in left-center field. During teammate Christian Keeler's at-bat Esposito went to third on a passed ball. After Keeler walked, Esposito scored to make it 4-2 and Keeler moved to second on another passed ball. The next batter, John O'Loughlin, also walked.

At that point, Valley Tech head coach John Burke made a pitching change, bringing Justin Metcalfe in from right field to replace Steve Earle, who started for the Beavers.

Shoemaker greeted Metcalfe with a fielder's choice to short. Valley Tech's infield, however, opted to try to cut down Keeler at third, but Keeler was called safe when the ball bounced past the bag into foul territory, which allowed Keeler to score to cut the Bay Path deficit to one, 4-3. On the play O'Loughlin advanced to second on the fielder's choice and then to third on the error.

The Minutemen then tied the game, 4-4, on a sacrifice fly to center field by senior Alec DeSimone, which scored O'Loughlin. On the throw home to get O'Loughlin at the plate, Shoemaker alertly took second base.

Jose was the next batter and he sent everybody home with a drive that sailed over the Valley Tech left fielder's head.

"Because it was a new pitcher I watched him throw to the two batters before me and it looked like he was trying to get ahead of both of them by throwing a first-pitch strike," said Jose, who bats in the No. 4 spot in the order for head coach Mark Sansoucy. "I like to swing at the first strike I see, so I was thinking if the first pitch looked good I was swinging and that first pitch was right down the middle belt high. I was just trying to make contact, but it went a lot further than I expected it to."

With the win Bay Path improved to 11-3 overall and 9-2 in the Colonial Athletic League (CAL). Sansoucy was thrilled by his team's comeback, but not surprised.

"These kids have been playing like that all year. They don't quit. They don't quit until the last out is made," Sansoucy said. "That's what they've been doing all year. I felt great about our chances with Nick up at bat in that situation. He's one of the best hitters in the league. Being behind in the seventh inning doesn't affect this team at all."

After Bay Path took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second inning — Cam Stitis scoring on a sacrifice fly by Noah LaTour — Valley Tech (6-8 overall, 5-4 in the CAL), went ahead, 3-1, in the top of the third inning, scoring two runs on a Bay Path error and another on a fielder's choice.

The Beavers pushed their lead to 4-1 in the top of the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Nate Charron, who plated Joel Anderson, who had opened the inning with a double. Earle and Anderson each had two of Valley Tech's seven hits.

"This year it seems like we've found every way possible to lose. We've given games away late a few times this year," said

Burke, now in his second year as head coach of the Beavers. "We're trying to play a tougher schedule to get them ready for the pressure situations and they just haven't come through."

"It's simple stuff; attacking guys, throwing strikes, making them beat us as opposed to our putting guys on base," Burke continued. "We've got the guys to do it, we just keep coming up a little bit short. At some point, though, we've got to start finding ways to win games instead of finding ways to lose them."

A take on the future of towers in Dudley

*"I read history and I see what it's done
For millennia, man!
You killed, you murdered and you are still contemplating
How to do it better.
I wonder if you are worthy to write you through the big C." - Leopold Staff*

Not many of you know that our town DUDLEY will soon get enriched with new electromagnetic fields, which will allow you, dear residents to enjoy better mobile connections. Maybe not so much better, because the service we have is very good but perhaps soon our decision makers will bring to this, that we will be able to make phone calls without telephones. What does it mean? That our connection will be so high, so strong, that we will contact the world when in the moment we think about it, because our minds, our bodies will be out sewn with waves that bombard us from all sides. It's so much a joke and maybe not a joke? Everything that is joking today, tomorrow turns into the terrifying truth.

Dudley's government decided last year to enrich our city with a new cell phone tower, which, let's be careful, will rise up in the middle of our town, in the very center, not that long ago the Dudley center was around Nichols college. Our decision makers made sure that our town looked beautiful and looked modern, because in their minds it seems that such a picture of town functions, a picture of towns in which the symbol of modernity is a cell phone tower in the heart of the city by Main Street. I am suggesting that our town is compared to a beautiful modern house, in which a toilet was installed in the middle of the living room, which the owner forgot about and was not surrounded by proper hygiene. In this, only Southbridge, which set up a cell-phone tower in the heart of the city, enriching its town with a new construction structure, which beautifully composes its historic turrets of old churches and other historic buildings.

The design of the cell tower was approved so cleverly and so quietly that the residents next-door to this day do not know anything about it. They will wake up, one morning, in the middle of the night, because the noise of the working tower will not let them sleep until the morning hours. The government who have been chosen by us to protect us, to protect our interests, have sold us.

For this sale the town will not pay for, the owner of Verizon will not pay for it, the person who is giving their land for building this tower for a small amount of money, will not pay (I am writing that it is a small amount of money because in connection to safety, people, children, the assets built around this place what kind of money is it? what is the money to the worth of the conservation land, which is one our two nature's monuments.?) for this sale the surrounding residents will pay by their assets, their safety, the health of their children (which are in the most danger by the electromagnets). They will sell us and for this sale we will have to pay. I think that this is a novelty, that will become history in this town, and for a long time it will keep the names of the people, who unconsciously stated "I" with this word they indicated a group of people for a slow death.

Please imagine in a moment when a few residents were being defended from alleged danger, the other residents... taxpayers were being sold at the same time. For that most important part of the town everything was being done to defend them from the building of an Islamic cemetery, which was supposed to be built somewhere on the other side of town. They hired a lawyer from our tax money to defend them from

.....

"misfortune" that has met them. On the topic of a fight with the town hall of Dudley conducted with the Muslim community, you could find the knowledge everywhere, really everywhere, the articles were printed everywhere, the articles were printed in all newspapers, which were available in the Webster, Dudley and not only, they were printed until the desired effect. The word about the ongoing struggle could be found very often on billboards on the square of the fire station and information boards in the town hall. It was heard about it and spoken about around the whole community of Worcester County. For this purpose, a huge amount of our taxes were allocated. Only the amount allocated for a lawyer went above eighty thousand dollars/ I might be in error by a little/.

Please check what has been done at the same time for another group of residents who was given a cell phone tower. Everything was also done but not to protect this group of people. Everything was done to destroy this group of people together with their families and assets in the cruelest way possible. The cruelest way is to expose these people to slow agony, such a slow agony. All who at this moment think that I am crazy I am sending you to scientific research, which have been conducted for years by scientists of various nationalities, including American ones. Protocol on this matter after many, many changes, hidden from 2010, was announced on December 13 2017 by Americans CDPH in California https://www.arb.ca.gov/cc/ab32publichealth/cdph_final_hia.pdf this topic will be collapsed in subsequent issues of the newspaper if it is not stopped by the huge forces that appear against the humanity.

How much money was allocated to protect us? Oh sorry, not protect us but to bury us, they protect Verizon. For now we do not know this, this will take time. We know that the government does not ask any group of taxpayers. I think that no part of the community was asked if we can use our common money to help Verizon enrich by exposing another group of people to perish, decided to put our money to hire a lawyer to stand on the side of Verizon against parts of the city's citizens, for whose money these governments maintain their own families caring for their welfare, the safety of your children. You think that our children do not feel the same way as your children do? I ask Dudley's decision makers who have signed the proposal on a single vote. Are your children worth more and deserve protection and everything that is best and our children can be exposed to the danger of slow suffering, which in the end always ends the same? Do you think that you have the authority of a god to decide who is better and who is worse? Who deserves to be protected and who can be condemned? Do you have the power of the devil to attempt to differentiate the world and society? VERIZON at the meeting expressed their opinion about us: "some residential" what was supposed to mean that there are invalid residents who do not have to be paid attention because they are irrelevant and you have made your own sound with your voice! I am asking you if you have the moral right to decide who is better and who is worse, do you have the right to differentiate people? Who has allowed you to do this? I do not think that the society that you represent has agreed to, because it did not have knowledge that your actions will be so discriminating to people. In addition, you have established the norms and rules according to which you will be different. I do not think that someone had any idea about it, especially with your motto is, working for the greater good of us all.

Wayne's design we knew it was perfect for the library."

With the wise and gorgeously designed owl it was easy to see why the board chose Yacino's design. This wide tree trunk will be transformed into a wonderful piece of art and sculpture.

Yacino is very proud of his design.

"I was an artist showcased here in the library for their artist of the month exhibits," says Yacino.

"I wanted to make something special for the library, the people who work here are great, and do great things," he states.

Yacino does amazing things with trees and wood, he sculpts baby bears he says sells very quickly. He is planning on carving out a large bear on one whole side of the tree trunk. The bear will be reaching up toward the top of the trunk. The design is drawn out and Yacino refers to a picture as he carves away layers of wood with the tip of his chainsaw. There is an array of tools used when making a carving like this, chainsaws, oscillating saws, and chisels of all sizes are used to chip away at the wood. It is

Groups of people gathered to watch Wayne Yacino work

The tree where the bear will be carved, remarkable to watch a plain old tree be transformed into intricate and astonishing designs all while using such powerful tools. Yacino will be adding immense details, like fur on the bear and feathers on birds; and all with these sets of tools.

So far, there's a detailed and colorful owl perched atop wooden books labeled "Wisdom" and "Knowledge" inside the tree. The owl sits on the books and looks out over the town. The bright blue glasses and wise eyes bring a comforting and mysterious sort of whimsy to the library. Yacino had to carve the owl at home and add it into the tree as he hit cement inside the trunk while carving.

"They must have packed it full of cement to keep it healthy and upright," says Yacino, referencing the town.

The owl is an eye catching addition to those entering the town of Oxford. Yacino plans on adding many little woodland creatures including a pileated wood pecker and the state bird, the black-capped chickadee. There are sure to be many interesting secrets tucked inside this tree for every visitor to discover.

On June 23 there will be an event at the Oxford Library, art will be displayed and Yacino will be representing his work by adding more to the tree for spectators to watch his process.

"I will do a demonstration when they have artwork here in the front yard," says Yacino.

McDougal believes the tree will be finished in late June.

"Wayne works very hard, he is here every day carving away at the trunk," says McDougal.

Wayne will finish his carvings with linseed oil "it's the best thing for wood," says Yacino and he will have to keep the tree healthy and glowing yearly by reapplying the oil multiple times a year. Everyone is very excited to watch Wayne carve into this very old and very prominent tree.

Neighbors and patrons of the library come to watch Wayne chip away at the bark. He holds the chainsaw safely as he grinds and cuts to make his sketches come to life. It is captivating to see sculpted woodland creatures come to life through Yacino's talents. The owl will soon have many other friends to keep her company. Every resident is sure to love this tree with owl their heart.

to replace a fire engine and repair the current tower truck. The override was the closest, losing by 300 votes, while the other two both lost by about 400.

"I wish there'd been better explanation on all parts," said Selectman Meghan Troiano, as she held a sign for Lamarche and watched the sky warily for an incoming thunderstorm. "There was some confusion on the way they were presented."

Regarding the school override, she said she feels "our schools need improving," and when asked to expound on that, she paused, then added just one word, "budgeting."

Outside the middle school polls,

Mark Peters was among those holding vote no signs. When asked why, he said, "I served 24 years on the School Committee here. They don't have their priorities straight."

Specifically, Peters said he feels the district "needs to redistribute income better." He liked the fact administrators recently eliminated several Project Coffee vans and drivers, but would like to see them "do more things like that, and don't ask for more money" and generally exercise more independence from the Selectmen.

A little down the street, Sarah Rulnick said she'd voted to "support our schools," but she noted there were "strong feelings from the older crowd that taxes are too high."

Rulnick was specifically there to represent Marsh's candidacy. She said she serves with Marsh on the Cultural Council.

"I think he's very responsive to the populace and he does his homework," she said. "I like to support young people who would show up and do the work."

Back when the school committee originally voted to seek an override in April, Superintendent Kristine Nash laid out what she saw as the impact of not getting the extra funds. Based on the difference between the amount the schools wanted - $18,014,341 - and the amount town meeting approved - $17,479,976 - she said she'd need to cut five full-time teachers, one part-time teacher, a guidance counselor, some part-time secretarial staff, department head stipends, and some discretionary funds. She noted they would effectively eliminate the STEM program at the middle and high schools and health program at the elementary schools, and increase class sizes in most grades.

"This is an iterative process, and we've gone through this [budget] a number of times," she said. "There's not a single member among myself and the administrative team who feels comfortable with these reductions. None of these cuts are good cuts."

On Election Day, Peters said he was concerned that if it had passed, the funds would only be dedicated to the schools for the first year. After that, they fall to the general fund, and the schools would get their standard share of the total budget and would have to fight for the money.

"I don't want to take any money away from them," he said. "I just want them to use it properly."

over the five years and not have any upfront investment on the town side."

The issue was not received warmly by some concerned citizens and a request was made to pass over the article.

Concerns voiced during the meeting included a lack of a map or layout for citizens to view, questions about the environmental impact, and questions about how this would impact the quality of Memorial Beach which is widely considered Webster's biggest tourist draw.

One citizen who stood to voice concerns was Paul

LaFramboise, the chair of the Webster Planning Board, who said he wasn't necessarily against the project but felt the town was moving too fast in trying to add anything to Memorial Beach without a concrete plan, let alone a marina.

"I'm not opposed to it. However, I think we're trying to rush it and I really do think this type of development on this piece of property, which is really the biggest asset the town has, is really important. I think it deserves to have a public hearing so that everybody understands how the development works," LaFramboise said later adding to his statement. "You really need a master plan for the whole property before you start inviting in these private entities."

It was clarified that the article was not seeking permission to enter into a contract with the marina company. The Board of Selectmen have that power without a town meeting. The purpose of the article was just to expand the deal beyond three years. This information did not sway LaFramboise who believe that the public still deserved a say.

"I don't understand how we're getting to this point before the people of the town actually have a chance to approve how this is going to work," LaFramboise said. "I just think it's a really bad idea to rush into something without having a master plan for a full development ahead of this."

The voters chose to pass over the article in a vote of 79 to 26. Willardson said it will be up to selectmen if they want to enter into the three-year deal or further explore expanding the agreement.

OBITUARIES

Daniel Carl Coonan

Daniel Carl Coonan of North Brookfield passed away after a long hard-fought battle with cancer. He leaves behind his parents, Betty and Bob Filipkowski his brother, Glenn Coonan. His Uncle Larry Burt and Aunt Chaele of South Carolina, Uncle Albert Burt from Leicester, Uncle Mike and Aunt Leah of Oxford and his Grandfather Stanley "Glenn-O" Filipkowski of Worcester, and many other extended family members. He is also predeceased by his loving Grandparents, Carl and Violet Burt and Grandmother, Donna Filipkowski.

He was an avid Celtics and Bruins fan, loved his Red Sox and masked his love for the Rams. Danny was a great athlete who loved his sports. He was a champion in baseball, won basketball games with last second free throws, and even was a finalist in candlepin bowling championships. He loved his backyard wrestling crew and often traveled with his brother throughout New England to compete. Like all of us Danny was not without missteps in life, but he embraced those mistakes and realized they made him a stronger person. He finished his education by going back to school for his G.E.D. and it was there he received the Tenacity Award from Y.O.U. Inc. Tenacity is defined as the quality or fact of being determined. Those that knew Danny, know how much this applied to him and all he did in life. He worked hard to get himself a full time job, his own place, and established himself on his own with his own dreams and aspirations. Although he moved away to create his own life, he never forgot the many childhood friends from his hometown.

Danny will forever be known to his friends and family as a person who was a truly caring and loving person who was taken far too young. He truly cared for those close to him and was fiercely loyal to them. Danny lived life on his own terms and he died on his own terms as well, peacefully and quietly choosing to have those who knew and loved him to remember him as he was.

Celebration of Life services will be held on Tuesday, May 29th from 6-9 PM at the Knights of Columbus 91 Mannville Street, Leicester, MA. In lieu of flowers Danny had requested donations be made in his name to the Worcester County Food Bank.

Smart planning means all members of the family can walk away from vacations with fond memories.

Making the most of family vacations

Family vacations can seem like daunting endeavors to organize, as planners must cater to each member of the family and their individual needs. Family vacations can cost several thousand dollars, which only adds to the pressure planners may be under. But careful planning makes it possible to simplify the process so more time can be spent resting, relaxing and having fun.

CHILD-FRIENDLY HOTEL

One of the “musts” when booking a family vacation is finding the right accommodations. This often means booking rooms at family-friendly hotels. Things to look for when seeking hotels include amenities like swimming pools and recreation areas, nearby parks and other attractions that kids can enjoy, and easy access to stores that sell necessities.

When booking a room, request one that is close to the elevator or the breakfast buffet. If you have youngsters who nap or go to bed early, try to book adjoining rooms or one-bedroom suites. This way the kids are tucked in but accessible, allowing adults to enjoy their downtime.

PLAN THE TRIP TOGETHER

Get the entire family involved when planning a vacation and let children who are old enough to have a say in some of the travel plans. Let kids choose some activities, pick some restaurants or even select which seats to sit in on the airplane.

PACK AS LIGHTLY AS POSSIBLE

Pack light and, if possible, buy some necessities when you arrive. Few things can be as headache-inducing as dragging along extra luggage with kids in tow. Choosing a hotel or resort with laundry facilities can be advantageous to active families who may get messy along the way.

ALLOW FOR DOWNTIME

While it's beneficial to have an itinerary, leave some moments for spontaneity and rest. You don't want to return home so tired from the trip that you need another break. Use downtime as opportunities for kids to lead the way.

TRAVEL OFF THE BEATEN PATH

Mature children may like sights and sounds that aren't necessarily designed for kids. So while it may be tempting to stick to big-name resorts that cater to families, there's plenty of enjoyment to be had exploring lesser-known islands or villages. And while you're at it, introduce children to native cuisines so they can broaden their culinary palates.

RELIVE THE MEMORIES

Make lasting vacation memories more by putting together a photo album or scrapbook.

TRAVEL

Cruising tips and tricks

Cruising can be an ideal vacation for people of any age, but particularly for seniors. Cruises combine all-inclusive meal packages with accommodations, breathtaking ports of call and pre-arranged activities, so vacationers do not have to lift a finger for days on end. Cruising also can be a social activity, meaning singletons can meet up with other like-minded people and enjoy the cruising experience together.

Cruise Lines International Association, a global organization advocating for the cruising community, found that 25.8 million passengers expected to take a cruise in 2017, and various cruise companies invested more than $6.8 billion in new ocean vessels.

Whether a person is new to cruising or is a seasoned ocean or river traveler, there are always techniques to try to score great deals or enjoy the experience even further. Consider these tips and tricks, courtesy of Royal Caribbean, The Cruise Critic, the Travel Channel, and other vacationing experts.

- Research the ships, and not just the cruise lines. Cruise lines each CAPTION: A cruise can be an ideal vacation for seniors who have the time to get away.

offer their own amenities and are known for certain features. One cruise line may be a better match for young singles, while others may cater to families. In addition, certain ships may have their own special features such as water slides, athletic events, casinos, and more. Choose a ship that meets your needs.

- Arrive the night before. There's no need to rush to the port to board the ship. Extend the vacation a little further by arriving a night or two before and checking into a nearby hotel. Some hotels may offer free parking or shuttle service to the ship.

- Choose a close port. Select a port within driving distance to avoid airline costs and the extra hassles of coordinating luggage and travel to the port.

- Book dining ahead of time. Cruise ships often have a main dining room and then specialty restaurants. If you want a particular meal, make reservations before leaving port. Certain restaurants may offer discounts or perks, such as a free bottle of wine or premiere seating.

- Understand what's included. Cruise ships have many foods and drinks that are included in the packaged price.

Certain branded items, such as specialty coffees or ice creams, may be available at an additional charge, as are premium drinks. But chances are you can find a free, similar version elsewhere on the ship.

- Explore special discounts. When shopping for a cruise, see if there are discounts available for seniors, teachers, people in the military, or those who belong to certain clubs. Cruises often love to incentivize, so it pays to ask about discount pricing.

- Make a list of activities. It can be easy to get overwhelmed by all of the offerings on a cruise ship, so much so that there's some stress over trying to fit it all in. Recognize that you can't see or hear it all, and prioritize what's important to you. Make sure you have plenty of time to relax.

- Book at the right time. Cruises may be more available after Labor Day when kids go back to school and the weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas when others are too busy to travel.

Cruising can be an ideal vacation for travelers who are savvy enough to do their research.

3 Memorial Day weekend travel tips

Memorial Day weekend is one of the busiest travel weekends of the year. In 2017, the automotive group AAA estimated that 40 million Americans would travel 50 miles or more on Memorial Day weekend. Those estimates also projected that 34.6 million vehicles would be used to make those trips.

Often referred to as "the unofficial beginning of summer," Memorial Day and the weekend that precedes it has become synonymous with beach trips and backyard barbecues. Travelers who want to avoid traffic jams and ensure their weekends get off on the right foot can benefit from employing these three travel-savvy strategies.

1. START THE WEEKEND EARLY.

In its "State of American Vacation 2017" survey, Project: Time Off found that 662 million vacation days were unused in 2016. People traveling for Memorial Day who typically leave some vacation days on the table can start their weekends early this year. Many offices close early the Friday before Memorial Day, and workers who aren't so lucky may just leave work early, meaning Friday afternoon traffic figures to be heavy. By leaving Thursday afternoon or evening, travelers can avoid the Friday rush to the beach.

2. TAKE PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION.

Travelers who can't take an extra day off or leave work early the Friday before Memorial Day may want to consider taking public transportation to their beach destinations instead of driving themselves. In 2016, the U.S.-based data firm Inrix noted that a traffic-free Friday jaunt from New York City to Long Island's East end would take 90 minutes, while the same trip would take three hours and 40 minutes on the Friday of Memorial Day weekend. Travelers who can't leave early can save themselves from the stress of holiday traffic jams by letting someone else do the navigating.

3. BE PATIENT AND DEPART ON SATURDAY MORNING.

Travelers who can be patient may find that waiting to depart for their destinations until Saturday can save them from dealing with much of the stress of traveling on Memorial Day weekend. The benefits of being patient may depend on where travelers live, as the Inrix study noted that Friday was the busiest day to leave Los Angeles on Memorial Day weekend, while San Diego residents tended to deal with the most traffic on Saturday. An added benefit of waiting until Saturday is the likelihood that such travelers will not return home until Tuesday, avoiding traffic on Monday, which tends to be the busiest return travel day of the weekend.

Memorial Day weekend travel tends to be hectic. But savvy travelers with some flexibility can take steps to make their trips less stressful.

Tips for a successful driving vacation

Driving vacations can be budget-friendly ways to get away from home for a few days. Such excursions can be customized according to families' particular schedules and interests. To make the most of driving vacations, travelers can employ these tips.

- Map the destination. Figure out the duration of the trip ahead of time, jotting down approximate times of travel. This will help you break up the ride so you can include stops for food, bathroom breaks and fill-ups.

- Plan food and accommodations. Some people like to plan road trips as they go. Those who prefer to have greater control can decide where to stop in advance, researching hotels, attractions and dining establishments.

- Be firm with departure times. Make a plan to leave at a particular hour and stick to it. This will help to keep the trip on schedule.

- Share the driving. Know your driving limits and share driving duties with someone else who can take over if or when fatigue sets in.

- Pack stuff for kids to do. Prevent or delay the "are we there yet?" with movies, puzzles, books, and music for children. Pack headphones so their devices will not disturb others.

- Schedule a tuneup beforehand. Before departing, ensure your vehicle is in good working order to reduce the likelihood of a breakdown. Make sure you have a spare tire and tire-changing tools, just in case.

- Don't pack too much. Leave some room in the vehicle for souvenirs picked up along the way. Take advantage of hotel laundry facilities to keep clothes fresh and to avoid having to pack too many outfits.

- Adjust as you go. Even the best plans need to be modified on occasion. Keep an open mind and be flexible so you can enjoy any unexpected wonders that may pop up. Flexibility also can help you adapt to traffic or detours.

TRAVEL

Plan for a successful family vacation

Vacations provide a chance to rest, recharge and experience new locales. Family vacations also provide an opportunity to make lasting memories parents and their children will remember forever.

According to the 2016 American Express Spending and Saving Tracker, 70 percent of Americans expected to travel for leisure in 2016. In addition, the Family Travel Association notes that between 35 and 40 percent of family travel is multigenerational. That means extended families comprise a large part of the travel market, even if trips are not associated with traditional family vacations. "Experimental travel," or visiting locations that stray from the norm, has grown in popularity as people are more concerned with experiences than simply seeing a particular location.

Family trips are one of the fastest-growing segments of the tourism industry. Families traveling together can heed the following advice to ensure their next trip is successful.

- Be flexible with travel dates. Traveling during off-peak seasons can mean fewer crowds and lower prices. Consider taking the kids out of school during a random week of the year rather than during scheduled breaks, such as winter vacation or spring break. Prices often spike during popular travel times and dip during less popular times, such as when kids are in school.

- Consider a vacation rental. Look beyond the traditional hotel for accommodations. Prices on private rentals may be comparable or less expensive while providing travelers with more space. This is especially valuable to large families who want a little more breathing room. Kids can retreat to one area while the adults hang out in another, something that may not always be possible in standard hotels. Renting a condo or home with a kitchen also means families can prepare their own meals, which helps to curb costs.

- Encourage input from all. One person's idea of a good time may differ from everyone else's. Poll family members regarding their vision of a dream vacation and spend time trying to cater to at least one of these ideas per person. Make certain children have a say as well, as they'll be more likely to go along with plans that they were involved in making.

- Extend the fun to others. One way to maximize enjoyment is to plan vacations with other families. This way children have a group of friends with whom they can share the fun and different experiences. What's more, parents can enjoy adult time with friends. Some resorts discount for large groups, so this can be a cost-saving measure as well.

- Expect some hiccups. Vacations can be relaxing, but getting there sometimes can be a challenge. Go into the vacation process recognizing the potential for traffic or airport delays and plan accordingly to keep children occupied. Pack plenty of snacks as well.

Family vacations are an entertaining way to spend time together. With advanced planning and some patience, the end results can be well worth the work.

Campers' guide to RV care and maintenance

Sometimes referred to as recreational vehicles, travel trailers or campers, RVs are popular. According to the Recreation Vehicle Industry Association, RV shipments through February 2017 totaled 73,287 units. This represents an increase of 8.6 percent from the same period in 2016. In fact, RV shipments have increased for seven consecutive years.

This popularity might be driven by the affordability and convenience of vacationing in an RV. Essentially hotels or homes on wheels, campers provide many amenities in a compact package. RVs can be enjoyable, but mechanical failures and other problems can happen.

Regular maintenance, care and examination is necessary to avoid trip interruptions. According to the recreational vehicle advice gurus at Do It Yourself RV, RVs require all of the standard maintenance of a car plus much more.

- Schedule oil changes and filter replacement. To keep the hard-working engine of an RV operating at optimal capacity, oil changes and air filter replacements should be conducted at regular intervals and in adherence to the owner's manual. Such maintenance prevents engines from seizing.

- Keep it covered. RV roofs are susceptible to sun and environmental damage. Store the RV under a steel RV carport or cover it using a product specifically designed for an RV. Remember to routinely inspect and clean the roof of the camper as well.

- Check for leaks. Look under the RV and/or tow vehicle for any signs of leaks. Repair leaks promptly. Transmission fluid leaks can lead to vehicle fires. When checking for leaks, check fluid levels to ensure they're at the proper level. This includes engine oil, transmission fluid, power steering fluid, windshield washer fluid, and brake fluid.

- Check radiator coolant. Radiator coolant is another important fluid to check. Antifreeze protects the engine in cold temperatures, but it also helps the engine run cooler in hot temperatures. Wait for the RV to cool down before checking fluids.

- Periodically run the generator. RV generators shouldn't go unused for too long. Gasoline has a short shelf life, and after time it can break down, condense and damage the generator's internal components. Run the generator if the RV has not been used for awhile. Be sure to change the oil and filter of the generator regularly as well.

- Drain and clean water and waste systems. Water systems can benefit from being drained periodically and flushed with clean, fresh water. The disposal waste system needs to be drained as indicated in the owner's manual.

- Lubricate joints and slide-out rails. Avoid rust and corrosion by spraying moving parts with a lubricant spray.

RVs can be a home away from home while vacationing or touring the country. With proper maintenance, they can run like new for years.
