The little black box

Let me tell you a story about my friend, Howard... There's a little black box that sits on a countertop in my kitchen. One would normally pass by it without a second thought. It looks simple enough. Shiny, smooth and midnight black, it holds pencils, pens, Sharpies, dry erase markers for our calendar whiteboard, a lighter for candles, and even a screwdriver. Just looking at it, you would never think it was anything else but a normal, black box that came right from the Walmart or Target aisle.

But there's a lot more meaning behind that little black box than meets the eye. It's one of my most treasured possessions, and it all started in the fall of 2014.

It was a day like every other day. I was driving about town in my pickup truck (nicknamed "Blackie"). For regular readers of my column, you all know that my truck is very special to me, as it was purchased with money left over in my brother's bank account when he died more than 10 years ago. It's a truck that he himself wanted (that's why I bought it). It's a truck that my father also owns a version of, and it even contains components of the car my brother was in when he died in that fateful car accident in 2006. A piece of him lives on in that truck, and I treat it as such. No burn-outs, no senseless speeding, no showing off. Just tender, loving care.

So one can imagine the emotions running through my mind in September 2014 as I stared blankly across the street after having just gotten into a car accident after someone pulled out right in front of me. I had no time to react. My foot had barely reached the break when I slammed into the other person's driver-side door.

My first thought was that I had just killed a person. I couldn't understand the gravity of what I was facing. I was panicking, praying out loud to God that the other person was OK. Even if I was injured, I wouldn't have been able to tell, as I was going on pure adrenaline at that point. The airbag in the other car had deployed, and they coasted to a stop about 50 feet away. Police and ambulances were called. Witnesses flooded to the scene. Everyone was OK. The other person's car was totaled, and I thought Blackie was done for, as well. The impact had made it so that I couldn't even open my driver's side door. My hood was crumpled, and front end looked destroyed. I was fighting back tears as the tow truck was called because the last tangible remnant of my brother's memory was about to be thrown into a compact.

Voters approve debt exclusion for fire station project

EARLY ESTIMATES EYE ‘LATE SPRING’ FOR GROUNDBREAKING

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DUDLEY — Voters in Dudley turned out in a big way on Election Day Tuesday, Nov. 8, which was exactly what officials at the Dudley Fire Department were hoping for when they decided to include a question on the ballot seeking a funding commitment for the renovation and expansion of the town's fire station.

For years, plans have been in the works to see a facelift at the facility on West Main Street. In 2015, a proposal was even presented to the voters, one that would relocate the station to a brand new building. After that plan failed it was back to the drawing board and a year later voters have now officially approved a new project involving renovating and adding on to the 56-year-old current facility with a $6.5 million debt exclusion receiving the majority vote on Election Day. The question passed, 3,264-2,037, a wider margin of victory than even Dudley Fire Chief Dean Kochanowski expected. Kochanowski said he and the town officials had a goal of taking advantage of the higher voter turnouts for presidential elections by putting the item on the ballot and hoping for the best, and the results certainly speak for themselves. “I thought it was an impressive margin of victory. I wasn't sure if it was going to pass. I thought if it was going to pass it would be by maybe a couple hundred votes. I wanted to have it on the presidential election ballot. We had such a huge voter turnout. Normally we're lucky to get 1,100 voters. When we put it out last time I know

The people of Massachusetts have spoken, and as of Dec. 15, recreational marijuana will officially be legalized in the Commonwealth. Massachusetts voters turned out in droves for the 2016 election, where four state-wide questions complimented the state and national elections, with Question 4 seeking to legalize marijuana for recreational use in the Commonwealth. In a vote of around 53 percent to 46 percent statewide, the question passed, marking a landmark decision for the state, and setting the controversial substance to be legalized on Dec. 15.

Durant, Fattman, McKenna look ahead to next term

BY JASON BLEAU

While the 2016 presidential election brought quite a bit of drama to the national stage, locally, voters in Southern Worcester County had a little less drama to deal with when deciding some of the state leaders that will represent local districts in the State Senate and State House. Despite the most recent state election coinciding with a presidential election, a circumstance that usually leads to much higher voter turnouts than normal, and thus more contested races, many of the local elections turned out to

Frost defeats Dotson in rematch

GOP REP SET FOR 11TH TERM

Paul Frost

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

Republican Paul Frost will continue his service to the Commonwealth and the 7th Worcester District after claiming his 11th term as the district's state representative on Election Day, Tuesday, Nov. 8, defeating Democratic challenger Terry Burke Dotson for the second consecutive time at the polls. Representing Millbury, Auburn, Charlton and Oxford, the race for the district seat featured a heated rematch between the two candidates, who faced each other in 2014 as well, and saw two very different ideologies come to light, as Frost put the focus on his experience and long-standing dedication to the district, while Dotson challenged Frost's true dedication to the needs of the people and focused on the impact of national finances on the local level through issues like the Glass-Steagall Act. While Dotson criticized Frost for what she saw as a lack of availability and professionalism from her dealing with Frost directly on a personal level, Frost fired back, stating that Dotson's focus on national issues was in the wrong place for someone running to be a state representative. In the end, Frost dominated the vote, more than doubling Dotson's total, with Frost garnering 13,558 votes to Dotson's 6,857, and told Stonebridge Press that it was a chal-

Dudley to purchase new UPS system

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DUDLEY — The Town of Dudley is making a $60,000 investment in a system for the town's municipal complex that officials say is essential to protecting data and information in case of a power surge.

Dudley voters unanimously approved utilizing $60,000 from free cash during the town's annual fall town meeting on Oct. 25 in order to purchase a new uninterrupted power supply (UPS) system to replace a similar outdated system currently utilized as the municipal complex.

Town Administrator Greg Balukonis provided some background into exactly what this system is before voters had their say on the article.

"It's a large battery system that's in the municipal building. It protects the town's computer equipment, network system and hardware, fire alarm system, radio communications, and ventilation and air conditioning system," said Balukonis. "The building was built back in 2005. There was a UPS system that was installed. That system failed in July."

The new UPS system was presented as an essential need for the town. Balukonis said the system is vital to making sure all other systems and information within the town's municipal complex, a center of activity and data for the community, is safe in the case of a major power surge or other electrical occurrence that could put that data in jeopardy.

"Since (July) we've bypassed the system. We do that with some risk that if there was a surge or some type of interruption to the power supply we could end up with equipment being damaged," Balukonis said. "Fortunately to this point that hasn't happened."

The $60,000 was presented as a quote, basically representing the absolute maximum the town would pay for the system. Balukonis said that the new UPS system will be a 40 kVA system, which he said as rather large when looking at other similar products on the market.

"This unit itself is probably eight feet high and ten feet long it's a major piece of capital infrastructure that's included in the building. I think it's something that we need to ensure the continuity of operations in the Municipal Center," Balukonis said before the unanimous vote to approve the article. "We'll have to put it out to bid since it's above the bid threshold. We'll have to have a design done and it will result in the old system being taken out and hopefully replaced with a new system at less cost to what we appropriated."

No citizens or other town officials stood to comment on the article aside from making motions to approve the purchase during the Town Meeting.

Mass Pike electronic toll transition gets underway

BY KEVIN FLANDERS
NEWS STAFF WRITER

The final Mass Pike cash tolls were collected on Oct. 28, and demolition work is well underway at tollbooths across the state to pave the way for all-electronic tolling.

But as the booths come down, toll rates will be going up for drivers who don't obtain an E-Z Pass transponder.

MassDOT officials remind drivers that a six-month grace period is in effect for those applying for a transponder after receiving a pay-by-plate bill. After those six months, drivers still without a transponder will pay a higher rate when they use the Pike as part of the new system known as EZDriveMA.

For local and state legislators, it remains a priority to help make the transition as smooth as possible for residents. Sen. Anne Gobi has been active throughout her district in trying to keep residents informed about the many changes. For drivers who have paid cash tolls for their entire lives, the new system required a major adjustment.

"I was glad to advocate for more equity in toll rates and a grace period to obtain the transponders," Gobi said. "I do think the six months will be adequate. This change to all electronic tolling has been well publicized, and I was glad to sponsor transponder distribution days in the district to make it easier for people to obtain a transponder."

Events have been held across the state to increase awareness, and transponders have been available at service plazas along the Pike. All electronic tolling will increase efficiency and reduce environmental impacts, officials said.

"We are committed to educating the public about the transition to EZDriveMA," said Mass. Highway Administrator Thomas Tinlin.

Meanwhile, the process of removing existing toll plazas is occurring in phases to ensure the safety of drivers and work zone crews. The first phase, which began on Oct. 29, involves drivers being rerouted to the outer lanes of the toll plazas as demolition continues in the center portions of the plazas. Once this work is complete later this month, the newly paved center portions will accommodate drivers as work shifts to the outer booths on each side.

The second phase of the project will include the demolition and removal of tollbooth structures, access tunnels, parking lots and toll plaza buildings. The roadway will then be reconstructed and widened to accommodate vehicles operating at higher speeds through the plazas.

For now, drivers will use reduced speeds (currently 15 miles per hour) during all phases of demolition, and traffic backup is expected during peak travel hours. The entire project is expected to be completed by the end of 2017.

Drivers hitting the Pike over the last two weeks have reported a mostly smooth ride through the toll plazas, with the majority of congestion occurring during rush hour periods. MassDOT officials were pleased with the results at most plazas, though significant backup has occurred at certain exits during peak travel hours. Drivers have flagged the eastbound Palmer/Ware exit as a particularly problematic area, with exiting traffic regularly clogged for a mile in the Mass Pike emergency lane during the evening rush.

Officials remind drivers to be patient and reduce distractions while proceeding through the toll plazas.

Overall, the EZDriveMA conversion is expected to save motorists 280,000 hours every year, in addition to a savings of 875,000 gallons of gasoline. To learn more about the project and expected activities through the winter months, visit www.ezdrivema.com.

Harrington announces opening of second UrgentCare location

OXFORD — Harrington HealthCare System has announced its newest UrgentCare Express location at 78 Sutton Avenue in Oxford will open for patient care Monday, Nov. 21.

This is the second urgent care location for Harrington, which opened its Charlton location in September 2015.

Located across from Market Basket, Home Depot and the Oxford Retail Crossing Plaza, UrgentCare Express in Oxford will have the same hours of operation as the Charlton site: Monday – Friday 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday – Sunday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Oxford location includes 11 patient exam rooms, on-site X-ray for patients who need immediate imaging services and a lab draw station for blood work.

The Nov. 21 official opening will follow a community open house for the public held 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 19. Local residents are invited to tour the facility, meet staff and receive educational material.

"We are continuing to respond to the growing demand in our area for urgent care centers," said Kristin Morales, Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Harrington Physician Services. "Our Charlton practice has surpassed all projected volumes in the past year. By adding a second facility in Oxford, we are fulfilling a need in a community where there isn't a lot of option for non-emergency care treatment, while giving the residents in that area better access to high quality health care."

Dr. Robert McCarron, a board-certified physician with more than 30 years' experience in emer-

Bay Path Chowder Fest a tasty treat

FUNDRAISER BENEFITS NYC TRIP FOR STUDENTS

More than 300 people attended Bay Path's Chowder Fest, which featured more than 20 chowders made by local restaurants and residents.

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

CHARLTON — It was another successful year for Bay Path's Junior American Culinary Federation students' Chowder Fest fundraiser.

More than 300 people attended the event on Sunday, Nov. 6, trying out various chowders from 20 local vendors. For new JACF advisor and Culinary Arts Instructor Marcie Wood, the event was a huge success.

"It has a reputation for being a great venue to get some really tasty food," she said. "We had so many types of chowder and so many people love chowder. There was sweet potato with chicken sausages. There was a Mediterranean seafood chowder and chicken corn chowders."

Guests had the opportunity to try out every chowder (multiple times) and vote on their favorite one. There were three winners this year: The Nazareth Home For Boys, The Twisted Fork and Tantasqua's The Cornerstone Café.

"I liked Tantasqua's the best, personally," noted Wood. "I liked the contrast of the crunchy bacon on top of the smooth chowder, the textural differences and the layers of flavor."

But what Wood liked even more than the chowders was the community support. Many of the restaurants donated not only their chowder, but their time. They spent all Sunday preparing the food and serving it at Bay Path's Chowder Fest. Vendors that couldn't make it either sent their chowders to be served by Bay Path students or provided gift cards. Individuals that weren't from any particular restaurant also participated in the event, serving their special recipes.

"It's so nice to see the community come together," said Wood. "The money raised at this fundraiser pays for the students' membership in the JACF and for their trip to New York City."

A culinary instructor at Bay Path for the past six years,

Bay Path culinary arts students Caitlyn Churchey and Timothy Kunz helped serve Bay Path's chowder. Other Junior American Culinary Federation students helped in the kitchen or cleaning tables.

Wood recently applied to take over the Junior ACF. For the trip to NYC Wood hopes to let the students experiences they wouldn't normally get in "small rural areas," like checking out ethnic markets and nice restaurants with meals served by NYC professionals. And Wood is also hoping to get on a taping of The Chew, which features a panel of professional and famous chefs.

Path that want to "do a bit extra," said Wood. The students come after school to try out ice carving and other things that aren't taught in class, like breaking down a fish and working with foods that the classes don't have during service.

Bay Path opens up first food pantry

‘WE ARE JUST LOOKING TO HELP EACH OTHER OUT’

CHARLTON — Faculty, staff and teachers at Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School came together at the beginning of the school year to create a food pantry for students in need.

Through fundraisers, donations and generosity, Bay Path hopes to keep expanding their food pantry to further help students and their families.

One afternoon, some instructors got together, including Cabinet Making Instructor Ray Mahon, and they began to discuss the idea of kids being hungry over the weekend.

He recalled: “We felt we take a good job of taking care of kids during the week, free or reduced breakfast or lunch. But what happens over the weekend or over vacation without those services? That’s really how it was born.”

One major component of the food pantry is its discreetness. Located in a pantry in the school, not many students even know where the pantry is. There are no forms, no eligibility requirements. If an instructor knows a student in need of assistance, they bring it to the attention of guidance, who will provide the student with a small pull-string backpack with spaghetti, granola bars, canned food and other easy-to-make food items, as well as toiletries. The food is usually given to someone who the child feels most comfortable dealing with, making it “very low-key,” noted Mahon.

“It’s tough enough being a kid. Tough enough being in this situation,” he continued. “We don’t need to add to that stress and that stigma. We are just looking to help each other out.”

Many of the students are already benefiting in big ways from the faculty’s generosity. Senior Nadia Colone said she’s been struggling to get government assistance so the food pantry has put food on the table for her and her family.

“I haven’t gone hungry because of it,” she said. “I think it’s awesome. It’s very beneficial. I’m honestly shocked they did it. You don’t hear about a lot of schools doing it. But there are so many needy kids out there who need programs like this. I’m very happy that Bay Path has come up with this.”

The faculty’s philosophy is to help and make a difference, one student at a time. But the food pantry is on the fast track to helping more and more students, because of the generosity of the community and employees.

“On half days the superintendent allows staff to wear jeans, but it comes at a price. Some organization charges $5 or whatever the case may be. The food pantry put out a request – bring in one non-perishable food item and that will allow you to wear jeans for the day. The amount of food that came in that day was unbelievable,” said Mahon. “People were bringing boxes and shopping bags full of stuff. We continue to have teachers bring in on a weekly basis, a box of food items.”

There are a handful of students who stock all of the received food items and put it away, categorizing it in the pantry. They also help put together the packages, based on the kit that’s requested.

The food pantry doesn’t only help out students by providing easy-to-make food items. It also has toiletries and soon they hope to provide clothes to needy students as well.

There is also talk of expanding the food pantry to include clothing items. According to Mahon, this is another need many students have. Some students even skip school if they don’t have any clean clothes to wear.

Working with local grocery stores and organizations, Bay Path’s food pantry is looking into future fundraisers to keep the food pantry growing more and more, in hopes of helping out every student in need at the school.

St. Joseph School celebrates All Saints Day

Courtesy photos

WEBSTER — On Tuesday, Nov. 1, the St. Joseph School community gathered together to celebrate All Saints Day. All Saints Day is a solemn and holy day in the Catholic Church. It is dedicated to all who have attained heaven. This year's mass was organized by Ms. Kelly Bailey's fifth grade class. In preparation for the mass, the students researched their saints and prepared presentations for their classmates. When All Saints Day arrived, the fifth-grade students processed into the Basilica dressed as their saint. The students were also responsible for proclaiming the readings and participating in the Offertory Procession. The mass concluded with the students bringing their saints to life and sharing what they learned with the student body.

Saints included: Katrina Pielieniak – St. Kateri Tekakwitha, Adrian Sobczak – St. Christopher, Daniel Gronek – St. James, Cheyanne Matthews – St. Anne, Wiktorina Potem- St. Clare, Roksana Chruslicka – St. Rose of Lima, Lucas Grigware- St. Maximillian Kolbe, Dominic Pigeon – St. Padre Pio, Jillian Trevelloni – St. Vincent De Paul, Jacob Sirard – The Archangels, Kristina Montione – St. Therese the Little Flower, Noalani Perez – St. Francis of Assisi, Sophia Buffone – St. Jude, Jillian Edwards – St. Leo the Great, Sara Grupposo-St. Elizabeth of Hungary, Kyleigh Earley – St. Nicholas, and Gracie Scott – St. Lucia. It was an educational and memorable experience for all!

St. Joseph School kicks off winter athletic season

WEBSTER — Catholic identity plays an integral role in the education of students at St. Joseph School. Student athletes are expected to display behavior on and off the court and field, which exemplifies the school motto of “Religion, Respect, and Responsibility.”

It has become a tradition to begin the winter athletic season with a liturgical celebration held on the first Sunday in November. Initially, the Mass was celebrated with the intention of praying and receiving a blessing for a successful Basketball and Cheerleading season. In recent years, we have added the fall sport of Soccer, resulting in the additional prayer offering of thanksgiving for a successfully completed soccer season.

On Nov. 6, St. Joseph School athletes, coaches, and Athletic Administration came together to continue this tradition. The mass began with an Entrance Procession, in which the participants proudly carried the “Sportsmanship Banner.” The banner represented their Athletic family and values of good sportsmanship. The junior high students proclaimed the readings and were active participants in the Offertory Procession.

Following the Mass, the families were treated to coffee, juice and pastry in the school cafeteria. Now, the winter athletic season can begin. Go Eagles!

All Saints Academy honors veterans with breakfast program

WEBSTER — On Thursday, Nov. 10, All Saints Academy welcomed veterans to school for a breakfast and presentation. The event started with a welcome by Head of School David Grenier, a thank you written and presented by Jacob McCabe, the singing of “What Can You Say to a Hero” by the middle school students, and grace read by Anna Czechowski. Members of the Student Council Veteran’s Day Committee organized the event, served the meal, decorated the room, and provided thank you favors for each veteran. The committee had help from the elementary school students who made placemats and thank you cards. In addition to the delicious food cooked by Keith Lukasek, an All Saints Academy parent, the students listened intently to the men and women veterans tell their stories. The breakfast ended with a prayer for our veterans read by, Lelia Finkel, and a closing thank you written and read by Marissa Bianchi. The students were honored to thank these veterans for their service and sacrifice.

Dudley, Webster celebrate veterans with annual parade

A line of American flags lead the Dudley/Webster Veterans Day parade down Main Street in Webster.

WEBSTER/DUDLEY — The towns of Webster and Dudley celebrated local veterans on Veterans Day with their annual joint Veterans Day Parade. Now in its 12th year, the parade featured many local veterans marching together in unity along with the Bartlett High School marching band, local scouts, local officials, and, of course, plenty of American flags. The parade began in Dudley following a short ceremony at the town hall before making its way through the streets of Dudley into Webster where a closing ceremony was held at the town's Court of Honor. The ceremony features speeches about the pride of serving the United States and the many different branches of the U.S. military and included tributes to fallen soldiers as well with the playing of "Taps" and two three-shot volleys.

Local veterans make their way through the streets of Webster, joining in brother and sisterhood for the annual Dudley and Webster Veterans Day Parade.

A rifleman marches down Main Street in Webster, leading the march of veterans from Webster and Dudley as they celebrate Veterans Day.

The Bartlett High School Marching band picked up the rear of the Veterans Day parade, providing a slew of patriotic tunes to add to the popular and much anticipated event.

Local Boy Scouts march down Main Street in Webster to show their pride in their country and local military veterans.

While Veterans Day is a time to recognize those who have served in the armed forces, there was also pride and respect for those who serve a more local cause such as service on the Webster Police force. Law enforcement officers came out and stood in unity with their brothers and sisters in the military.

Some veterans didn't march alone a family members joined them with pride in their march through town.

Webster Lions Club hosts Youth Speech Competition

WEBSTER — The Webster Lions Club recently held its Youth Speech Competition at Point Breeze Restaurant, with several Lions and guests in attendance. The competitors from Bartlett High School were Jeffrey Harnois, Keyshla Falcon, Brittney Velasquez and Yvette Perez. Each student presented their original text related to the topic, "Being Politically Correct: Is It Taken Too Far?" Judges for the competition were Mary Petro, Webster Selectman Robert Miller and Blain Marchand. The student chosen by the judges to move on to the Zone 4 Competition will be announced in the media after all competitions are completed. The Massachusetts Lions Youth Speech Competition is an annual contest held throughout the State and sponsored by local Lions Clubs. It allows the students in grades 9, 10, 11 and 12 the opportunity to express their feelings on a subject that is usually of interest to the general public. The experience gained from the delivery of the speech in a public setting is meant to enhance the students self image and give them a chance to develop and present the subject matter to the community. The Webster Lions Club is the local chapter of Lions Clubs International, the largest service organization in the world. Members volunteer their time and energy to promote values that are considered by the community to be held in high regard. Their efforts include fundraisers such as the annual Christmas Tree and Wreath Sale which will be held this year on Thursday and Friday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays, Dec. 3 and 10, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. All profits from the fundraisers are given to the local Clubs' charities. For information regarding the Webster Lions Club's programs or membership, contact any Webster Lion or Dr. John Kalinowski at 508-943-7434.

BLACK

Best process for selling your home

People most of the time decide to sell their home because that is what they need to do in order to buy the home they really want.

A common phone call we will get is: "I just found the perfect home online. I want to go see it before we miss out on it."

This call, many times, is from people we didn't know had interest in buying and it was just this one house that sparked their interest. We could go look at the house and fall in love with it, but if another buyer does the same thing and they are preapproved and either don't have to sell a home or already have a buyer for their home then they will most likely get their offer accepted instead, even if their offer is lower.

My suggestion is, if you are thinking about moving, then talk to a lender to get preapproved so you know how much you can spend and be prepared if you do find the right house. If you do have a home currently, I would find out from the lender if you need to sell your home in order to buy a new home. If you don't then you could decide to wait to list your home for sale to ensure you find the perfect house first. If you do have to sell your home to buy, then I would have your realtor do a comparative market analysis on your home, and if the price makes sense for you, to sell it, then list it for sale, and wait until you have a ready, willing and able buyer on your home before finding the home you are moving to. It will eliminate lots of stress and frustration on your part.

However, I think it is a great idea to go to open houses in the location where you are looking to buy a home just to get a good idea of what you will get in your price range but mentally knowing that it is best to wait for a buyer for your home before offering on another home.

We have definitely had some scenarios that we didn't follow the exact process above and it worked out fine, but the majority of the time it didn't. I would recommend discussing this with your realtor if you are planning on moving to decide what will be the best process for you to achieve your goals.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thank you to Janet Malser Humanities Trust

To the Editor:
The Dudley Historical Commission wishes to acknowledge a recent grant from the Janet Malser Humanities Trust.

The continued support provided to our communities from this important Trust has been vital to our educational and preservation efforts. Our grant was for the engraving of the monument on the town common on Dudley Hill, to list the names of the 38 founding families of Dudley in 1732. The completed work was featured in a Webster Times article.

Thank you, Janet Malser Trust for making it possible for community groups to fund important projects in the arts, history, music and education that often find it difficult to compete with other financial demands.

Political memorabilia

ANTIQUES,
COLLECTIBLES
& ESTATES
.....
WAYNE TUISKULA

Now that our presidential race is over, I thought this would be a good time to discuss collecting political memorabilia.

A good place to begin is with our first president. A collection of 37 George Washington inaugural and memorial buttons drew considerable interest when they went to auction in 2003. J. Harold Cobb started collecting Washington buttons in the 1950's. He had over 60 at one point before trading some while keeping the finest examples. One of the buttons had an interesting Massachusetts connection. In the 1940's a library was being renovated in Southampton. A tree limb was cut during the work. A bag fell out with five Washington buttons. One of them made its way into the Cobb collection. A button with "Pater Patriae" (father of our country) picturing George Washington brought the highest price at the auction selling for $25,300.

Innovation changed political memorabilia throughout history. The introduction of photography allowed images of candidates to appear on buttons and pins. Printing went from one color ink broadsides to brightly colored campaign flags, textiles and lithographed posters. Candidates would make use of all of the new advances to campaign. Prices for some pinbacks and posters of presidents from the 19th and early 20th century can easily fetch prices in the thousands of dollars.

Signed documents by George Washington and Abraham Lincoln can command figures in the five-figure range. If there is important historical content prices can go much higher.

The website justcollecting.com listed the top 10 prices for U.S. Presidential memorabilia at auction. They are:

10. Abraham Lincoln's inaugural speech sold for $1,320,000 at auction in 1992.

9. A letter by Thomas Jefferson regarding plans for the Lewis and Clark expedition letter sold for $1,439,500 in a 2002 auction.

8. A letter by George Washington written to John Armstrong regarding the Constitution brought $1,439,500 in 2013.

7. Saddle pistols owned by the Marquis de Lafayette and George Washington fetched $1,986,000 in a 2002 auction.

6. Abraham Lincoln's final speech from just four days before his death in 1865 reached $3,086,000 in a 2002 auction.

5. A letter by George Washington to his nephew regarding the proposal of a new U.S. Constitution brought $3,218,500 in a 2009 auction.

4. An 1864 letter by Abraham Lincoln to Mrs. Horace Mann discussing a petition asking him to free slave children sold for $3,401,000 in 2008.

3. The handwritten manuscript from Abraham Lincoln's victory speech was auctioned for $3,442,500 in 2009.

2. A typed copy of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation freeing all slaves resulted in a price of $3,778,500 in a 2010 auction.

1. George Washington's copy of the Constitution and Bill of Rights with annotations in his hand sold for $9,826,500.

One of the items featured in our January auction has connections to one of our first presidents and a local patriot. "The History of the County of Worcester in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts" was written by Peter Whitney in 1793. The book is dedicated to Vice President John Adams (before he became president) and was published by Isaiah Thomas who published the pro-independence Massachusetts Spy newspaper.

We are holding an estate sale on Nov. 19, and Nov. 20, at St. Nicholas Ave. in Worcester. It will feature pressed steel toys and a wide variety of collectibles, tools and furnishings. Some of the items in our Jan. 26 auction range from coins and jewelry to historical and sports memorabilia. We continue to pickup items from local estates for this sale. See www.centralmassauctions.com for more information on these and other upcoming events.

Winter parking regulations

Even though we have enjoyed some unusually warm weather recently, none of us really believe this will last forever.

Unfortunately, winter is just around the corner. Before winter begins in all its glory, I wanted to take this opportunity to once again remind residents of the winter parking regulations. This is always a hot topic of conversation with our local Highway Superintendent, Dan Gion. Most people are unaware of the difficulties involved in keeping the streets clear. I hope to provide everyone with a little further information.

Article 10 of Dudley's bylaws contains the parking regulations. Section three, in part, deals with snow removal operations. Vehicles are not allowed to park on any town controlled way so as to interfere with snow removal operations. The Superintendent of Streets may remove or cause to be removed any vehicle interfering with this operation. For snow removal purposes, any accumulation of two inches or more can enact this provision. Your vehicle can be towed in order to accommodate snow removal.

Street parking is not only an issue in densely populated areas. During storms, it can be a problem on many dead ends or lesser traveled roads. Some people will park cars on the street in advance of a storm, in order to have their driveway clear for plowing. Ironically, the Town is trying to keep the roads free of vehicles for the same purpose. When plow trucks are forced to plow around vehicles, it creates ice problems and other hazards. The highway workers must return at another time to complete the operation. This situation doubles efforts and wastes time, fuel, and money. I am encouraging all residents to voluntarily comply with these restrictions and assist the Town employees with providing safe roads on which to travel. The last thing anyone wants to have is their vehicle towed or be the one responsible for an accident or injury.

As a reminder, our department is collecting Christmas gift donations for local families in need. New and unwrapped toys and clothing can be brought to the Dudley Police Department at 71 West Main Street. Of particular need in the past were gifts for children between the ages of 10-17 years old. Monetary donations are also accepted. Checks should be made payable to the "Dudley Police Association" with a special note for the Holiday Drive. All contributions are for Dudley families and anything left over is given to local charities, such as Webster-Dudley Food Share. The Dudley Police thank everyone in advance for their continued generosity. Anything you can give will help bring some happiness to those who would otherwise go without during this holiday season.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or e-mail at swojnar@dudleypolice.com. Opinions expressed in this weekly column are those of Chief Wojnar only and unless clearly noted, do not reflect the ideas or opinions of any other organization or citizen.

How should you use retirement plan distributions?

During your working years, you are (hopefully) putting money into your IRA and your 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement plan. But once you've retired, how can you maximize the benefits you get from these plans?

First of all, you need to be aware of the rules governing withdrawals from your retirement plans. If you are older than 59½, you can withdraw money from your traditional IRA without paying penalties, though the withdrawals will typically be taxable. But once you reach 70 1/2, you generally must start taking "required minimum distributions" (RMDs) from these accounts, with the annual amount determined by your age, the account balance and other factors (the situation is different with a Roth IRA. If you are the original account holder, you are not required to withdraw funds from your Roth IRA at any age. You can choose to withdraw your contributions at any time, tax and penalty free. To withdraw your earnings tax and penalty free, you generally must have owned the account for at least five years and have reached age 59 1/2).

So, assuming you do have a traditional IRA and a 401(k) or similar plan, what should you do with the RMDs? You'll probably require at least some of these distributions for your living expenses, but if you don't need it all, what should you do with the "excess"?

Here's one suggestion: As part of your overall retirement investment portfolio strategy, you can reinvest the money into these three "buckets".

Near-term income bucket – For this bucket, you're not concerned with high returns – you just want the money to be there when you need it for expenses and unexpected costs, such as a major car repair, a new furnace, and so on. It's always a good idea to have an emer-

gency fund containing three to six months' worth of living expenses – and your short-term income bucket could be an ideal source to help build such a fund.

Medium-term income bucket – During retirement, you can probably never have too many sources of income, so you may want to fill a bucket with intermediate- and long-term bonds, which make regular interest payments.

Long-term income bucket – Even when you're retired, you will need some growth potential in your portfolio to help keep you ahead of inflation in the long run. So this bucket should be filled, not surprisingly, with growth-oriented investments. These investments can fluctuate in value, but as long as you don't need to tap into them in a hurry, you may be able to avoid taking withdrawals when the price is down.

In addition to this "bucket" approach, you do have other options for your RMDs. For example, you could give your grown children some financial assistance, possibly for help in funding their IRAs. Or, you could contribute to a college-savings vehicle, such as a 529 plan, for your grandchildren. And you can always make charitable contributions, which allow you to support worthwhile organizations and, by doing so, earn some potential tax benefits.

Clearly, you can do a lot with your RMDs. And you worked hard for them – so make sure they work just as hard for you.

Deer season continues in the Valley

Some impressive deer have been harvested by archers in Massachusetts to date, with a few tipping the scales close to 200 pounds field dressed. What is also impressive are the size of the antlers the bucks are sporting. Who thought that Massachusetts would ever have a population of deer that we have today.

The annual youth deer hunt in Massachusetts was also a great success again this year, with more than 1,200 young archers participating in the hunt with 128 successful young archers harvesting a deer while being accompanied by an adult licensed hunter. Maine deer hunters are finding deer hunting a bit slow this year. A few local deer hunters that did a week of deer hunting recently and returned with no venison, although they had a great time at camp. One hunter did harvest a moose.

Sportsmen are eager to start the annual shotgun deer season that will start on Nov. 28, this year. With the high population of deer that archers are reporting, it should be another great year. Numerous deer car collisions are being reported daily, which is a sure sign that the rut has started.

Numerous archery hunters reported some serious falls while hunting from their tree stands over the years, and this is a good time to address this subject.

Choosing the proper tree stand for an individuals need is very important. Whether it is a climbing tree stand, ladder stand, etc. they all need to be used with extreme caution. The older we get the more prone we are to have a fall. Using safety straps or a complete harness set up are needed, however most safety gear is not used until a deer hunter is settled into the stand. Most accidents occur during the climbing and ascending to and from the tree. Stay safe.

What do you do after a deer is harvested and field dressed? If you are not in good physical health, dragging a deer out of the woods is not a wise thing to do. Call for help! Every year, some successful deer hunter dies from a heart attack trying to retrieve his deer from the woods. Every hunter should have a cell phone in today's world. It could end up saving your life! Call for help.

Wild turkey hunters reported many birds during there two week fall season which ended on Nov. 5. Final figures for successful turkey hunters are not available to date.

The second segment of goose hunting in the Commonwealth will end on Nov. 26 this year. Goose hunting in the Valley this year was very spotty. They frequently changed fields to feed in, making it very hard to make the correct decision to hunt on any particular day. Many birds totally disappeared for a few days and then started feeding in their usual fields and rivers again. The third segment of the goose season starts on Dec. 12, in the Central District. Hopefully more birds will set up their daily feeding habits in local fields. A good freeze up should get them active again providing some great shooting. Very few hunters continue to pursue geese locally, which is too bad. Deer hunting has become the number one activity of many sportsmen this time of year.

The Island Current Charter boat out of Snug Harbor, R.I., has been enjoying some great tautog fishing for there clients. Crabs are the number one bait at this time of year. For anglers with there own boats and use crabs for bait, should inspect the bait that they are buying prior to leaving the bait shop. Finding unusually large crabs in the bait bucket when getting ready to fish can mean the difference of catching a limit of tautog or only catching a few. Crabs no larger than a quarter are ideal. Also freshness of the crabs is very important. Coughing up $16 for a gallon of crabs is about the norm in today's world, but you should be getting good fresh bait.

The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club will hold a family style Roast Beef Supper this Saturday, Nov. 19, at the Club House on White Court in Douglas!

This week's picture shows a local hunter with a huge buck, and there are plenty more out there to be harvested, although they may not match this huge rack.

There are a few tickets available and can be reserved by calling 1-508-476-7204. This is a sell out every year. Do not miss it!

On the freshwater scene Val Percuoco landed a new state record white perch at Wachusett Reservoir recently! The fish weighed in at 3 pounds, 8 ounces, and had a 13.5-inch girth. Nice fish. Locally, trout anglers are catching trout, and numerous largemouth bass are being caught on shiners.

Take a kid fishing and keep them rods bending!

Freezer meals

I know I am not as busy as I will be as my kids get older, but right now I feel like there are not nearly enough hours in my day to do much of anything, especially cook an elaborate healthy dinner for my family.

The one thing I have going for me is that my son will eat just about anything, having a preference in healthy, and my daughter who was once pickier than anything, is starting to actually give in and try something other than plain pasta and peanut butter sandwiches. Everywhere I turn lately, I feel like I am seeing these meals called freezer meals, and my curiosity was peaked. If someone mentioned "freezer meals" to me years ago I would have assumed they meant those sodium packed TV dinners that barely fill up a toddler. So, I started my research.

With crock-pot season upon us I was very excited to see that not only are these meals ready to go, but all I would have to do is thaw it in the fridge overnight and stick it in my favorite appliance (my Crock Pot) and not have to do another thing. All I needed to do was food shop for meals as opposed to just ingredients and get a large box of gallon size freezer bags. I should also mention that while I love my money savings on store brand, this is one thing I think you should consider getting the best quality you can. It will guarantee a good seal to defend against freezer burn, and it will also help minimize the chance of cross contamination in your freezer.

er in the event of leakage. So while going through I compiled some of my favorites, and I hope you enjoy making some of these for your family and as always I love getting feedback and recipes.

Mexican Chicken Soup

- 1 pound carrots, peeled and diced
- 2 large cloves of garlic, minced
- 2 tomatoes, chopped
- 1 can tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoons cumin
- 1 teaspoon fennel seeds
- 1 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 teaspoon salt

Juice from 1/2 lime

- 1 pound boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 4 cups fat-free, reduced-sodium chicken broth on the day of cooking

Easy peasy...place in freezer bag, seal well, and label it. I usually try to use them within a week or two but if sealed properly it should last about 6 weeks. Thaw and place in the crock-pot on high for 4 hours or low for 6-8. Serve with some tortilla chips and the most work you will have is a one pot clean up.

Hawaiian Chicken

- 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into bite-sized pieces

- 1 fresh pineapple, stalk, skin, and core removed and fruit cut into bite-sized pieces
- 2 tablespoons light brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons low sodium soy sauce
- 1 cut up red bell pepper

Thaw and cook on high for 4 hours. Serve over rice or noodles.

Pull Apart Pork

- 1 pork butt roast
- 1 cup grape jelly
- 1 cup ketchup
- 1 tsp. or chili powder or all spice

Thaw and cook on low for 8 hours.

Sweet and Sour Meatballs

- 1 pound of ground turkey seasoned and formed into 2inch rounds (I season with S&P, crushed saltines, and parsley)
- 1 cup ketchup

- 1 jar chili sauce

Thaw and cook on high about 5 hours.

Auntie's Kielbasa

- 3 pounds of kielbasa sliced (believe me, it will go fast! This is perfect for parties, you wont have any left)
- 1 cup dark brown sugar
- 1/2 cup ketchup

Thaw and cook on low for 8 hours.

Please write in and share your thoughts! As always, take what you want from what we discuss as advice or information, share with me your favorite tip or recipe and join me on our next edition of "Mom in Motion." E-mail me your thoughts and tips at jill@stonebridgepress.com.

A message of unity in uncertain times

We've just completed a brutal campaign season, like nothing I've experienced before during my 54 years. And as I listen to all the talk about winners and losers, I become more committed than ever in my inner resolve to follow with all my skills and all my passion someone others have considered the ultimate loser of all. This loser influences every decision of my life. I pledge my allegiance to his loving Way before all others.

Rev. Mel White, founder of Soulforce, seeking liberation for all LGBT people from spiritual and political violence through relentless, soulful non-violent resistance says: "I'm a humble follower of a carpenter who had some rather radical ideas about love."

That's describes me too. As the word Christian is such a loaded word these days, with immediate assumptions made by the hearer about the one who identifies themselves as such, I am glad for this gentle way of introducing my Christianity to those I'm getting to know for the first time.

This carpenter, Jesus, by the

BEYOND THE PEWS

REV. JOHN R. WHITE
THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
OF DUDLEY
UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST

standards of the world, is a loser. He was never elected to any office. He never commanded an army. When his ragtag collection of followers attempted to free him from soldiers who were seeking to arrest him for crimes he never committed, Jesus allowed himself to be taken, becoming a Jewish political prisoner, eventually murdered on a cross for daring to give average people a vision of themselves as being equally important in God's eyes as Caesar, then the most powerful person in the world. He absorbed their insults and their beatings, on behalf of all the powerless and voiceless, seeking to free humanity from the inside out. They considered him a rabble-rouser, a liberal, a dreamer, a bleeding heart, a loser.

On Nov. 19 our church celebrates the 10th anniversary of our becoming open and affirming. Some have said we're going to hell because of that stance. Yet, in my 19-plus years of serving as pastor here, it is the proudest moment of my professional life and to me feels more like one small part of what we can do to create heaven on earth, a kin-dom of peaceful, mutually respectful community here and now.

From our by-laws: "As an Open and Affirming Church, we joyously accept into membership and to Christian marriage, Ordination, and the sacraments of Baptism and Holy Communion, regardless of sexual orientation, race, national origin, ethnic origin, gender, gender expression, gender identity, age, or physical ability, all those who profess Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior."

Psalm 65 says we're living in a time of abundance. How can it be that as the earth groans under the stress of climate change, and our nation groans under the stress of racial tensions, fear of those whose religious beliefs are different than our own and violence against LGBT, African American, Muslim and other minority populations, as well as police, is in the news almost daily that we live in a time of abundance? How can we be living in abundance when basic standards of polite and civil conversation, both in private and public discourse, have been so easily discarded by such a vast portion of our country's population, even and most disturbingly among our leaders. When jokes and threats are made towards women, those who are disabled, veterans, anyone who disagrees with us and other populations still struggling in 2016 for equal pay and an equal voice, how can these be called abundant times? Often, to me, it feels like we're living in a drought, not only regarding water, but also concerning our moral fiber, basic sense of decency and our striving personally and collectively to become the highest expression of ourselves. Yet, Psalm 65 calls us to embrace the abundance, which is ours.

Now is a time for healing. Relations may be strained with your parents, your children, your neighbor, your spouse. Hold in your heart the most wonderful woman you know, the most wonderful man you know, the most wonderful child you know, the most wonderful person whose skin color is different than your own that you know, the most wonderful person whose sexual orientation is different than your own that you know, and the most intelligent person whose opinion differs from your own that you know. Breathe in love for them all.

Consider the attitude of Abraham Lincoln at the end of the Civil War, when people were angry about the losses of the war and focused on scarcity. Lincoln promised to show "malice toward none" and "charity for all."

Following the Second World War, both Democrats and Republicans threw their support behind the Marshall Plan, which provided billions of dollars of economic support to help rebuild Western Europe. Following the terrorist attacks of 9/11, George W. Bush adopted a generous attitude toward the Muslims of the world and affirmed that Islam's "teachings are good and peaceful." When Barack Obama started his first term in the White House, the preacher at the Inaugural Prayer Service reminded the president that we live in "a land of abundance guided by a God of abundance, generosity, and hope." This is our heritage.

Imagine the abundant love we could be, when together we come to know that how we speak to others and how we act with others is how we speak and act with God.

WEBSTER — The Leicester High varsity football team visited Memorial Athletic Field on Friday evening, Nov. 11 to take on Bartlett High in a third place game inside Division 4 after both the Wolverines and Indians lost the previous week in the semifinals of the Central Mass. district tournament to Littleton High and West Boylston High, respectively.

And it was Leicester who can lay claim to third place after they blanked Bartlett, 42-0, to improve to 6-4. The Indians dropped to 4-6.

The Wolverines won both games versus Bartlett, as they took a 36-22 decision back on Oct. 8.

Both teams will conclude their seasons on Thanksgiving Day, as Leicester will host David Prouty Regional in the Battle of Breezy Bend at 10 a.m., while the Indians will return to Memorial Athletic Field to host Southbridge High at 10:15 a.m.

Dudley's Kallgren named to All-Little East field hockey team

Alex Kallgren

Eastern Connecticut State University junior field hockey forward Alex Kallgren of Dudley earned a spot on the All-Little East team for the third straight season. She was voted to the third team this year after being named as a second-team midfielder in 2014 and second-team forward last year.

Kallgren shared the team lead with four assists, was second in points (16) and tied for second in goals (6), and led the team with three game-winning goals. All of her goals and all but one of her points came in 10 matches of the year, when she helped the Warriors move out to a 6-4 start, 4-2 in the conference. Five of her goals and 11 of her points were recorded in 11 conference matches.

Her game-winning goals came in the second match of the season against Wilkes University at the Susquehanna Classic, in a 3-0 LEC win at Framingham State University and in a 4-1 conference triumph at Salem State University. She registered her two multi-goal games in those latter two games.

Kallgren's second goal against Salem gave her 29 career goals and tied her for the program's all-time lead with E-Club Hall of Famer Mo Deegan (2001-04).

Coming off last year's 13-7 campaign and first berth in the LEC championship game, Eastern qualified for the conference playoffs for the third straight season in 2016 following a nine-year drought. The Warriors won seven of 17 matches overall and were 5-6 in the LEC.

The award recognizes players that have maintained a GPA of 96.5 percent or higher. Those players include Matthew Grniet, William Tyrrell, Samuel Wing, Joseph Szela and Lucas Lambert. Legislators: Marijuana legalization still poses issues

Leading up to Election Day, the public opinion of approving the question was clearly mixed. Those opposed to the legislation argued that marijuana would be a gateway drug, and voiced concerns about the many questions remaining about regulating the substance , while those in favor leaned on lasting arguments that the drug is seemingly non-addictive, and has proven medicinal advantages. In Southern Worcester County, it seems the majority related to the latter opinion, and local towns all voted in favor of the legislation, albeit by relatively close numbers to other areas of the state. The following is the results from the question in the Stonebridge Press coverage area:

- Charlton: 3,760 Yes (52 percent), 3,466 No (48 percent)
- Sturbridge: 2,797 Yes (51.9 percent), 2,592 No (48.1 percent)
- Brimfield: 1,113 Yes (52.8 percent), 993 No (47.2 percent)
- Holland: 809 Yes (60.3 percent), 532 No (39.7 percent)
- Wales: 610 Yes (61.1 percent), 388 No (38.9 percent)
- Southbridge: 3,798 Yes (55.8 percent), 3,010 No (44.2 percent)
- Webster: 4,000 Yes (55.2 percent), 3,247 No (44.8 percent)
- Dudley: 2,800 Yes (51.7 percent), 2,614 No (48.3 percent)
- Oxford: 3,797 Yes (54.8

- Spencer: 3,089 Yes (53.4 percent), 2,692 No (46.6 percent)
- Leicester: 3,056 Yes (53.1 percent), 2,694 No (46.9 percent)

- East Brookfield: 608 Yes (51.2 percent), 580 No (48.8 percent)
- Uxbridge: 4,190 Yes (54.4 percent), 3,518 No (45.6 percent)
- Northbridge: 4,161 Yes (50.4 percent), 4,097 No (49.6 percent)
- Douglas: 2,795 Yes (56.9 percent), 2,116 No (43.1 percent)
- Auburn: 4,633 Yes (50.6 percent), 4,530 No (49.4 percent)

Following the results, Stonebridge Press reached out to some local state officials about the new law, and while the bulk of the region's elected leaders in Boston openly opposed the question, they said they certainly accept the fact that the voters have spoken. State Rep. Joe McKenna (18th Worcester District), said he doesn't necessarily agree with the decision, but noted his opposition was based purely on concerns with the legislation itself, and not his personal beliefs about marijuana use. "I was very outspoken against it, not on a philosophical level or whether marijuana was good or bad, but because of the details and the tax rate that was included," McKenna said. "There are so many details of this bill that are deeply flawed. We as a Legislature will need to correct that. It will be a major agenda item state-wide." McKenna's fellow state representatives seemed to agree that while the voters had their say and approved the legalization of marijuana, there are concerns about abuse of the drug, how to regulate it, taxation of the substance, and the legal ramifications of its abuse that all still need to be resolved. "I did vote against it, but the people have spoken and we will respect the will of the people," McKenna said. "Now we will have recreational marijuana, but because now it is a law, or will be, it's subject to amendments just like any other law, and we will consider some of those amendments. We're just starting to talk about it, really. Maybe we'll have a roundtable with local lawmakers and police chiefs to discuss it ... that's something we're considering. We'd like to get some ideas of what we may need to do to look at some of the problems with this law." "The challenge now is getting the tweaks done on this new legislation, but overall it's something that will now happen in Massachusetts," 7th Worcester District State Rep. Paul Frost said. "I know my district was close. Statewide it was fairly close. It's going to be a law, it passed ... and I don't foresee the Legislature preventing it, but I do see some potential flaws and tweaks and what exactly will happen, I think, will take shape over the next few weeks. I think there is room to make sure we address some of the vagueness in the law and some public safety concerns. We want to make sure that local communities will be able to properly zone where any sort of store is and we want to make sure edibles won't get into the hands of children. There are some issues of concern, but we will have to find a way to work with in the law without overturning it." Worcester-Norfolk State Sen. Ryan Fattman said he too disagrees with the legislation, but said now the real work begins as lawmakers prepare to initiate the law and resolve some of the loopholes and issues that still remain a concern. "I do have concerns about it, one of which is law enforcement has no ability to measure or gauge when someone is high and driving. There's not a scientific way of testing it like there is with blood alcohol level," Fattman said. "Also, it's still illegal on the federal level, and I'm concerned because I don't know what (President-elect Donald] Trump's Justice Department is going to do. Back in 2005, the Bush Justice Department had prosecuted people selling medical marijuana in California. So, I'm always cautious that you have to be careful with things like this because just because the state made it legal, federal law still exists and is supreme. I doubt anything would happen there. I think we're living in a different age where these laws will be changing, and at the end of the day, you have to respect the will of the people." Stonebridge Press also spoke with Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis about the new legislation, who said he was also against the question, and while many in favor of making marijuana legal looked to law enforcement arrests of users to ridicule its illegality, he said the issues he has with the substance stemmed from much more wide-spread consequences of using the drug. "One of the rationales people had about it was that it's unfair for people to get arrested and go to prison for possession of marijuana and things like that. From the get go, that was a red herring," Evangelidis said. "It doesn't happen, and that's the fact so there are no people incarcerated today for possession of marijuana or small amount of marijuana, unless there is the complication of a small undercharge, like breaking probation. But we are in the middle of an opioid crisis, and I talk to inmates every day and they tell me the same story. It was always essentially marijuana that was a gateway for them to try other drugs. When they got high it changed everything for them. I don't think it's a good message to send to young people. It's a gateway drug for a lot of people, and I saw it as the wrong signal at the wrong time." Evangelidis said it's the first time he remembers in his six years that sheriffs throughout the state were on the same page with a piece of legislation, and while he respects the voters' decision, he hopes that some of the concerns he and others in the state have are addressed properly before the law takes effect. "We respect the will of the voters, and we'll work to help it be put into place in a responsible and careful way taking into consideration the potential of marketing to children, driving under the influence and other things that can and need to be regulated properly so it doesn't get out of control and we start looking back thinking that it was a bad decision," Evangelidis said. With less than a month before the new law takes effect, it appears lawmakers have a lot of work ahead of them. While many are cheering the decision to approve marijuana for recreational use in the state, others fear the decision may cause more harm than good. Only time will tell just how harmful or insignificant the decision will be.

Re-elected lawmakers look ahead to next two years

be very cut and dry. Three of the four local state races were uncontested, with Republican lawmakers such as Worcester-Norfolk District State Sen. Ryan Fattman, 18th Worcester District State Rep. Joe McKenna, and 6th Worcester District State Rep. Peter Durant all securing re-election without competition from the Democratic Party. All three lawmakers expressed optimism in the future for the Commonwealth as they looked toward the next two years, and all three said they took their re-elections as a sign of trust from those they represent.

PETER DURANT

For the first time since taking office in a May 2011 special election, Republican Peter Durant was unopposed for the 6th Worcester District, claiming his fourth term for the seat representing Charlton, Dudley, Southbridge and Spencer. After being contested for the seat for every election prior to 2016, Durant said it was a very unique experience to know he would likely be remaining in the State House even before Election Day.

"You like to think that hopefully running unopposed is because the people in the district saw that I was doing a decent job, and so it feels really good to not have had an opponent. It also gave me the ability to help out other candidates and allowed me to be able to do other things on an election level," said Durant. "It's much less stressful when you don't have opponent, for sure." Durant said he hopes to continue working with the Town of Charlton as they finalize a water line project for local residents off of Route 20, and the landfill issues in that town, as well as special projects in Dudley and Southbridge. With a new year on the horizon, Durant hopes to work even harder to service the 6th Worcester District and its residents. "I think going into the New Year, I'll be working on some new legislation and review some things that didn't go through, some that are specialized, and some that are brand new," Durant said. "I'll be working with my staff and setting priorities to see what we want to work on over the next two years."

RYAN FATTMAN

Fattman ran unopposed for a seat he claimed in an upset victory over Richard Moore in 2014, after initially serving as the 18th Worcester District state representative. Fattman said that he felt honored to be re-elected for another two years, and said he looks forward to getting back to work. "I'm humbled by it and I'm really excited for the next two years," Fattman said. "I've said in the past that I got really frustrated as a member of the House and sometimes felt like my voice was ignored, and in the Senate, I feel that not only have I been heard, but I've been successful in representing the people who voted for me and trust me to represent them. I've worked to bring money and projects and laws to fruition and that, for me, has been awesome so I'm really excited about the next two years." Fattman said his focus will turn to helping local law enforcement officials get their say in Boston, and he will continue the course towards making Massachusetts a more financially sound state. "I do want to make sure we honor our police officers. Right now it's not a felony when they're assaulted. It should be. To me that's just common sense and it's one of the things I plan to work really hard on," said Fattman. "I want to keep taxes down and keep working on reforming state government to make it work for the people." JOE MCKENNA

Fattman's successor for the 18th Worcester District state representative seat in 2014, Joe McKenna, also maintained his seat unopposed, saying he was excited to continue working for his local communities and continue building on the progress he has made as a lawmaker in his first two years in the State House. "I'm excited. Running unopposed to me is gratification for me in that people have noticed the amount of work and energy that I've put into the district over the past two years. It tells me they think I've done a good job and that they are confident in me so that's encouraging," McKenna said. "You're first few years you kind of get your feet under you. I've been able to build some relationships in Boston and really understand the intricacies of how things work. I felt like I had a pretty good grasp of that coming in, but getting my first term under my belt really allowed me to start to be more effective than I was already and I was confident in what I was already accomplishing in my first term." McKenna said he has some big plans for the next two years as he will be working hard to push forward new legislation and pursue continuing projects that will benefit both the state and the towns in his district. "I'm looking forward to looking at a number of pieces of legislation that were brought to my attention from people throughout the district and to have the ability to move those forward," McKenna said. "I'll be pushing real hard to work with Congressman [Jim] McGovern to try and get some funding for the water filtration plant in Webster. That has risen to be a top priority for me. I'm still pushing very hard for the Yellow Dot Bill, which is a piece of legislation that will provide lifesaving information for drivers so that if they are in an accident then first responders will have access to information that could save their lives and give them the information they need. I'll also be working on a corrective piece of legislation for the PAWS Act which was filed in 2012, before my time, and is an animal rights bill that, on the whole, is a very good bill but has some flaws that put people in a tough position that just need to be corrected."

Hometown Hero honored for work with breast cancer patients

WORCESTER — For every home football game the College of the Holy Cross recognizes an individual who has helped the local community and has worked tirelessly to create positive change in the Worcester area. On Oct. 22, the last home game of the season vs. Lehigh, Holy Cross hosted their annual Cancer Awareness game where they recognized Del Bachand, of Leicester, in an on-field ceremony as a Hometown Hero. Del is a breast cancer survivor, founding member and current President of the Board of Directors of PinkHippy.org. She has two children, three grandchildren and is a small business owner. After her diagnosis and surgery in the fall of 2012, Del along with a small group of dedicated women, formed PinkHippy.org so that no one, man or woman, from our communities would have to struggle to find the complementary integrative therapies needed to help make themselves well. PinkHippy.org, located in Oxford, is a nonprofit public charity run entirely by volunteers — there are no salaries, perks or bonuses. Every penny raised goes to funding the programs and services that they offer to breast cancer patients, survivors and their families in our local communities. They provide oncology massage, restorative yoga, meditation, art & music therapy, reiki, and a one-on-one Bosom Buddy program all at no cost to those in treatment.

Voters have say at polls, approve fire department project

people didn't like it but there were people who supported it that didn't go out and vote when everyone running for election was unopposed and it was pouring out all day," the chief said. "This time you had some contested races and some important state-wide questions on the ballot and a presidential election. We ran a very heavy Facebook and social media campaign too and I'll tell you what, I think that's what put us over the top." Last year, Dudley voters turned down an $8.8 million project for a brand new facility on the grounds of the Town Hall. The revised plan cut the price tag significantly and took into consideration issues voters had with the relocation of the department, choosing instead to keep the facility where it is today and merely renovate and add onto the current building. The new plan will include renovation of the 4,000-square-foot facility, elimination of the second floor of that building, and an addition of 9,500 square feet with new bays, offices, living quarters and more. Now that the project has been approved, Kochanowski said it's time to get to work on the long process of seeing the initiative through. "I have to meet with the building committee again and I have to meet with the administrator. Because of all the laws in Massachusetts everything has to go out to bid, from the construction drawings all the way down to who does the electrical. Every aspect of the building has to go out to bid," Kochanowski said. "It's a bit of a drawn out process, but if we get on it right away I'm hoping we can break ground by late spring." The positive vote on Election Day will exclude the $6.5 million price tag of the project from the limitations of Proposition 2 1/2 in the town's budget and translates to a 19-cent increase in the tax rate per thousand valuation. Kochanowski said he was humbled by the success of the question on the ballot and showed his gratitude for those who supported it and the town officials that worked hard to drive for support of the question as well. "I want to thank the people for their support. I understand people don't want to pay higher taxes, but there comes a point where you have to put money back into your town if you want to draw in business and make the town look good and have good services provided," said the chief. "I just want to thank the building committee and the voters and thank my department members for holding signs and getting the correct information out there. I feel very blessed to have such good department membership. I think it's more than I can mention. I want to thank the different boards, the selectmen, and the town administrator. They've all been very supportive."

Frost cruises to victory in 7th Worcester District

lenge running a re-election campaign in the highly competitive environment that comes with any presidential election year. "It's a challenging campaign cycle when you run in a presidential year, and I think, especially when you have a presidential race as volatile and divisive and polarizing as this one, there's just so much attention," Frost said. "You need to fight for attention and name recognition because there are a lot of people who only come out to vote once every four years. There are a lot of voters who are new to it, so those are the voters that are more challenging to read and they may not be as aware about what's happening with the local elections." After her defeat, Dotson vowed to return for a third try at Frost's seat in two years, and said she felt early voters gave Frost the edge he needed to pull away. "I believed what gave Frost an advantage was that about one half of the voters in the towns voted early, and regretably, I had trouble getting my fliers out, and when they finally went out, it was mostly after early voters had cast their votes, but the people I spoke to in Auburn at the polls were impressed that I was an educator and a veteran, and when I explained things to them they said I had their vote. Being an educator and a veteran is a heck of a lot different than Paul Frost, who was a security guard before he was a state representative," Dotson said. "I will run again. I think if my mailer hadn't gotten messed up it would have been a very different story." Frost gave Dotson credit for running a much harder campaign than she did in 2014, but restated his concerns that Dotson's focus may be in the wrong place for serving in the State House, but admires her commitment to what she believes in. "I know Terry tried a little harder this time and she is a passionate person who cares about the federal banking issue, but that again is not really something that relates to a state representative race, but she stands by it. I think she would be a very interesting candidate for Congress," Frost said. "I know she worked hard and she did what she could do and got some votes from her party, and hustled, and I can recognize that she put in a good effort. I've always appreciated her military service, and I still do, and I know she has said she will be back in two years. I know she likes to be on the ballot to talk about her concerns, and that's her right to do so, and I can respect anyone for their passion, and my focus will now continue to be on state and local issues and what's best for the district." With an eye on 2018, Dotson said she has already begun working on her campaign for the seat in the next election cycle. She expressed hope that Paul Frost will work to be more aware of how national issues will impact the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the local districts, and challenged Frost to be more diligent in his role as a state representative. "I'm already starting work now on that campaign. Whether a Republican or Democrat got into the presidency, Glass-Steagall was going to be reinstated, and it's important stuff for our towns, and I hope Paul Frost makes the effort to learn about Glass-Steagall and makes the effort to acquire those funds through the state for our town. That will help us an awful lot with our taxation and what we can do," Dotson said. "It appears the towns won't be reimbursed for this early voting thing and it cost them a lot of money. I'm not sure it's a good idea. It certainly didn't help me. Next time, I'll run harder and I'm getting an early start. Paul better start getting to work. He better start doing what's right and showing up for work, otherwise he shouldn't even bother running next time through."

DAR rededicates Learned gravesite

OXFORD — The General Ebenezer Learned Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) Oxford Chapter honored their chapter patriot with a Veterans Day graveside rededication on Saturday, Nov. 12, at the South Cemetery in Oxford. The DAR was joined by the Captain Job Knapp DAR chapter of Douglas, Oxford High School Jr. Reserve Officer Training Corps Color Guard, and Colonel Henry Knox Regimental Color Guard in celebrating the accomplishment of General Ebenezer Learned. Others in the audience included members of the Oxford Historical Commission and the Huguenot Memorial Society as well as neighborhood residents. A wreath was placed by Regent Helen Poirier at the Learned Family grave. Biographical readings about General Learned were done by chapter members Cathleen Nikosey, Vice Regent, Beverley Beaudette, Secretary, and Susan Dineen, with Adeline Healy of the Job Knapp Chapter as acting Chaplin for the day. Friday's Child

Julyzia, or "Juju" as she likes to be called, is a caring and affectionate 8-year-old girl of African American/Caucasian descent, Julyzia absolutely loves being a helper of any kind. People who know her well describe her as funny, smart and creative. For fun, she loves to play outside, ride her bicycle and do arts and crafts. She'll even make cards for others as a surprise! Julyzia is happiest when she is playing "Just Dance" and "Mario Cart." Julyzia currently lives in a residential home and can struggle with the day-to-day routine, especially at night and during transitions. In school, she is making good progress with special education services.

Julyzia's social worker hopes to find a supportive two-parent family with a mom and dad or two moms with either no children or older children. Julyzia will need continued contact with members of her birth family including her birth parents. She is close to a 9-year-old sister who is also in foster care, and they could either be placed in separate homes or possibly together in a skilled, experienced family. She also has two other half siblings placed in a pre-adoptive home.

What does Adoption Cost?

It costs little or nothing to adopt a child from foster care. Unlike international or private adoptions, there is no adoption agency fee. There are also a number of free post-adoption support services available to families statewide, including support groups and respite care. Children with special needs who are adopted from the foster care system are eligible for ongoing financial and medical assistance after adoption. These children are also eligible for a tuition waiver to attend a Massachusetts state college or university.

To learn more about Julyzia, and about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-54-ADOPT (617-542-3678) or visit www.mareinc.org.

The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Historic helpings for Thanksgiving

Americans have much to be thankful for, and while details of the “first” Thanksgiving are debatable, there is no denying the major role American Indians played in the lives of early settlers. From teaching colonists to hunt turkey and deer and cultivate corn to showing them how to tap Maple syrup and cook wild cranberries, Native Americans are credited with preventing mass starvation in early settlements. In appreciation of the American Indians’ vast contributions to the dinner table, this week’s column will spotlight some Thanksgiving-worthy Native American classics.

Indian Pudding: Among the most memorable of New England comfort foods, Indian Pudding is a regional dessert that frequently makes an appearance on the Thanksgiving table. The many hours required to cook the thick cornmeal and molasses custard, along with the high calories and richness of the old fashioned dish make the “once a year” dessert worth waiting all year for. While the sweet, steamy pudding continues to be served up as a rustic treat in fine Yankee restaurants, the traditional dish boasts a humble history.

Tracing its roots to the Colonists’ love of England’s “hasty pudding,” Indian Pudding was made with cornmeal, which was plentiful in the New World, along with molasses and maple syrup, two common sweeteners of the day. History reveals President John Adams and First Lady Abigail served homemade Indian Pudding at White House receptions. Below is an old fashioned recipe, courtesy of the Plimouth Plantation kitchen:

Plimouth Plantation Slow Cooker Indian Pudding
Ingredients: Three cups whole milk; 1/2 cup cornmeal; 1/2 teaspoon table salt; two tablespoons unsalted butter, plus extra for greasing cooker; two large eggs; 1/3 cup molasses; one teaspoon cinnamon; 1/2 teaspoon ginger; 1/2 cup dried cranberries (optional); Serve with ice cream or whipped cream.
Directions: Grease the inside of your slow cooker with butter and preheat on high 15 minutes. In a large, heavy-bottomed pot, whisk together milk, cornmeal, and salt, and bring to a boil. Continue whisking another 5 minutes; then cover and simmer on low 10 minutes. Remove from the burner and add butter.

In a medium-size bowl, combine eggs, molasses, and spices. Add some of the hot cornmeal mixture to the egg mixture to temper the eggs; then transfer egg mixture into the pot. Stir in cranberries, if you like. Scrape batter into the slow cooker and cook on high 2 to 3 hours or on low 6 to 8 hours. The center will be not quite set. Serve warm topped with ice cream, whipped cream, or light cream.

Cranberry Chutney & Sauce: Wild cranberries have long held an important rank in Native American culture. American Indians ate cranberries in a variety of dishes and used the bright red berries as a natural dye to color textiles. The native fruit was also hailed as valuable medicine, as a poultice of the berries was applied to wounds, including serious war injuries. Native Americans introduced the tart berry to the settlers who gave the cranberry its current name. The pink flower blossoms on the cranberry reminded early Colonists of the Sandhill Crane in their native land, thus they called the fruit “cranberries.”

Racranberries, which are an excellent source of Vitamin C, were also coveted by early 19th century whalers as they brought cranberries on board their vessels to prevent scurvy. Today, cranberry sauce served along with a traditional turkey is a much anticipated Thanksgiving Day tradition. Read on for an old fashioned homemade cranberry authentic chutney from Native American recipe files.

Cranberry Chutney, American Indian Style
Ingredients: Three cups cranberries; one dozen cored apples; one onion, sliced; one cup golden raisins; 1 1/2 tablespoons ground ginger; two ounces chili peppers; four cups apple cider vinegar; two tablespoons salt; one pound dark brown sugar; two tablespoons flour dissolved in 1/4 cup water.
Directions: In a heavy large saucepan mix together apples, onion, raisins, ginger, chilies, vinegar, salt and brown sugar. Cook over low heat for about 30 minutes. Add cranberries and flour/water mixture. Simmer until cranberries pop and mixture thickens, about ten minutes. Let set to cool and further thicken. Refrigerate after cooling.

Succotash: Corn was a staple crop of American Indians and they prided themselves on cooking it many different ways. Succotash, of which corn in a main ingredient, is a simple yet delicious dish that is familiar to most folks of Native American descent. The hearty “stew” typically consists of corn, beans, and sweet peppers. The low cost and relatively easy access to homegrown ingredients made this common fare at Thanksgiving time and all year round.

Succotash Stew
Ingredients: Four ears of fresh sweet corn; four cups of fresh lima beans (frozen may be substituted); 1 1/2 cups of water; 1/2 cup butter; 1 1/2 cups of sliced green onions; one green and one red bell pepper, diced
Directions: Cut corn cobs into 1 1/2 inch lengths. Place corn, beans, water, and butter in a large saucepan. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover and bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat to medium-low and simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in onions and peppers and continue to simmer for 6 to 10 minutes, until beans are tender and peppers are slightly tender. Remove lid and cook over high heat for 3 to 4 minutes, until liquid is reduced to about a half cup.

The little black box

let them know what was going on. My hand holding the cell phone was shaking as I called my wife, then my mother and then my friend, who owned the place my truck was about to be towed to. “The front end is real bad,” I told him, my voice breaking. “I can’t lose this truck.” “We’ll do what we can,” I remember him saying. He knew how much Blackie meant to me. After all, he was the one who helped me purchase it all those years ago. “We’ll do what we have to do,” he added. His tone was reassuring. As the days went on, I dealt with insurance companies, and the process stretched out over a few weeks. At first, they wanted to total the truck, but we fought for the money and did all the necessary repairs. I soon had what looked like a brand new truck in my driveway. My brother would have been proud to see Blackie 2.0 in all its glory. My apologies for the long introduction to what this column is really about, but the explanation is necessary. Maybe a month after getting my truck back, my friend Howard, who was working at the aforementioned car shop at the time, approached me with a wrapped box. My birthday had already passed, and it wasn’t Christmas yet.

Puzzled, I opened it up, and inside was a little black box — smooth, shiny and midnight black. He saw the curious look on my face, smiled, and told me, “I made it from one of the old pieces we had to take off your truck. I know how important that truck is to you. I thought you might like to have a piece of it to keep with you. It’s nothing fancy, but you can use it for pencils, or whatever, for your desk.” After a nice man hug, I nearly broke down at the generosity of the gift. He had fashioned a small pencil box out of sheet metal from one of the broken pieces of my truck. He told me it was from one of the fenders. I couldn’t believe how thoughtful it was. Yet, I wasn’t surprised at all, because that’s the kind of guy Howard is — thoughtful, loving and sincere — and always willing to do something to make you smile... Which is why it was so heartbreaking when he got sick about a year later. He started getting unexplained pain in his abdominal area. After several doctors’ visits, he was diagnosed with appendiceal cancer in January. He battled it with everything he had. He had surgery, but they couldn’t remove the tumor. He tried chemotherapy, but nothing worked. Finally, on Thursday, Nov. 10, Howard succumbed to the cancer and he passed away, leaving behind a loving wife and three grown children that I have come to love as well. I’ve known Howard and his family for years — since I was a kid, really — but have developed an even closer relationship with the family over the past decade or so. I lived next door to Howard for seven years up until 2014, and our relationship grew even deeper over that time. I would often walk next door with the wife and kids and we would just talk — about random, hilarious YouTube videos of people blowing stuff, shows we were watching on Netflix, random movie quotes, welding and automotive projects he was working on, kids, my youth group, and all kinds of other topics. He would also work on my car from time to time, free of charge, just because he wanted to help me. He was a mechanic and an engineer, with an artistic flair. He created a giant advertising sign out of foam board insulation for a water-themed night at my youth group, one of the coolest pieces I have ever seen. A metal owl sculpture he built from a saw blade, nails and various other metal pieces (similar to the one pictured in this week’s headshot box), sits at my front door, a Christmas gift I bought for my wife just because I thought it was so cool. The talent exuding from that man was ridiculous. He was gifted in so many ways. But as much as he was talented, he was also humble. In fact, if he were here to read this, he probably wouldn’t care for me writing this about him. He was a caring friend who showed me time and time again what it looked like to love and serve others, whether it was helping someone split and stack wood, or going on missions trips to foreign countries to help pave, build or design something, he was always doing something to benefit someone else. He’s a man who was guided by his faith in God, and remained unwavering, even in the fearsome face of death. That’s an example I will strive to follow. I was blessed to have a friend like Howard, and I know I am only one of many that can say the same thing. I will miss him dearly... There’s a little black box that sits on a countertop in my kitchen. One would normally pass by it without a second thought. But now, that little black box means more to me than it ever has. It represents the loving kindness of a great friend. It represents something broken that was made new, much like his earthly body that was made new when he finally met his Savior last week. That little black box, which holds pencils, pens and all sorts of other knick-knacks — also holds a whole lot of love. So, as I said goodbye to Howard last weekend, amongst his family and friends at our church, I thought about that little black box ... and even in my tears, I smiled. Goodbye for now, Howard — I’ll miss you, but I’ll see you soon.

Nichols, DWC partner on veterans history project

DUDLEY — Local veterans from any 20th- or 21st-century conflict are invited to be interviewed at Nichols College as part of the Library of Congress American Folklife Center’s Veterans History Project. This Washington, D.C.-based project collects, preserves, and makes accessible the personal accounts of American war veterans so that future generations may hear directly from veterans and better understand the realities of war. Locally, the project is being conducted by Nichols College Assistant Professor of History Erika C. Smith, Ph.D., and the Dudley Woman’s Club (DWC). They seek to collect stories from:

Veterans who served in the U.S. military, in any capacity, from World War I to the present and are no longer serving, regardless of branch or rank; U.S. civilians who served in support of a U.S. war/conflict effort in a professional capacity, such as, war industry workers, USO workers, flight instructors, medical volunteers, etc. Each 40-minute interview will be conducted in the audio/visual studio of the Nichols College academic building on Center Road. Questions will be posed by DWC members; Nichols faculty, staff, and students will record the sessions. “For historians, oral history interviews are valuable as sources of new knowledge about the past and as new interpretive perspectives on it,” said Dr. Smith. “Interviews provide important information about everyday life and insights into the experiences of ‘ordinary people’ that are simply unavailable from more traditional sources. Our work interviewing local veterans is part of a larger national project that illuminates the relationship of the individual to major historical events — specifically, a better understanding of the realities of war from those who experienced it first-hand.” The intent is to begin interviewing and archiving this winter. Veterans from the southern Worcester County region are invited to share their stories; DWC members are spreading the word of the project to veterans’ organizations in Charlton, Dudley, Oxford, Webster, and other local towns. This spring, Dr. Smith will deliver the videos, diaries, photos, and other materials to the Library of Congress for archiving as part of the national project (the interviews will also be shared with the families of the veterans and local libraries). “The Dudley Woman’s Club has been committed to service projects for veterans since its inception,” said Lorna Wade, DWC service and giving chairperson. “The club provides refreshments at the Dudley Veterans Day Parade, and members also provide Christmas baskets to local veterans. Club members plant and maintain the town of Dudley’s Veteran Memorial Squares from May through November and has enthusiastically committed themselves to the Library of Congress Veterans History Project because of the historical impact this project can have for future generations.” If you are a veteran interested in being interviewed, or know of a veteran who would be, please contact Lorna Wade at 508-461-9813. For more information on the project, please visit: <https://www.loc.gov/vets/vets-home.html>.

Park Ave. students host mock election

WEBSTER — On Tuesday, Nov. 8, Park Ave. Elementary School held a mock election. Students were read two books “Snoopy for President” and “Grace for President.” After hearing both stories, students were casting their vote for which character they wanted to be President. After voting was finished, the winner was Snoopy by a landslide vote of 511 to 197!
Many thanks to the parent volunteers who manned the polling station, Mrs. Andersen who organized the mock election, and the fourth grade students who tallied the ballots. The students kindergarten through Grade 4 really enjoyed learning all about the voting process!

Mary Roselma Grondine

OXFORD — Mary Roselma (Credit) Grondine died Thursday, November 10, 2016, surrounded by her family and children.

She was born to Henry and Jesse Credit on June 23, 1930, in Millbury.

In 1948, she graduated from Millbury High School and worked as a bank teller. On Aug. 27, 1949, she married Albert Francis Grondine, who would be her husband for the next sixty-four years until his death in 2013, and together they had four children. They settled in Oxford, in 1956.

After being a stay-at-home mother for seventeen years, Mary again became a bank teller in 1967 at the Webster Five Cent Savings Bank in Oxford. Despite never attending college, she rose to the position of branch manager in Oxford. While a manager, she oversaw the complete renovation of that branch in the late 1980’s, all at a time when banking management was a largely male enclave. She retired from banking in August of 1995. The interior walls of the Oxford branch still bear the art she chose.

Even with the demands of a fulltime job and four children, Mary found the time to be involved in her community. She was a longtime member and treasurer of the Oxford Woman’s Club and served on the Board of Directors of Hubbard Regional Hospital in Webster. Mary was also a member of St. Roch’s Church, where she once taught Sunday school. She was ever determined to educate herself and read everything from classic fiction and nonfiction, to art and music appreciation, to the Wall Street Journal. There was no arena too big for her to conquer.

She leaves her surviving children, Richard and wife Carolyn Grondine of Dudley, Diane (Grondine) Saad and her husband George of Dudley, and Elaine (Grondine) Kennedy of New Hampshire; her grandchildren, Steven and Michael Grondine, Jennifer (Grondine) Williams, Michelle Grondine, Brian Saad and Shawn Kennedy; six great-grandchildren, nieces, and nephews. She is survived by her sister, Anne Boudreau of Florida; and two brothers, Richard Stockwell of Oxford and Alan Credit of Webster. Her son Robert Grondine, and her grandson Adam Saad, predeceased her.

A funeral was held on Wednesday, Nov. 16, from Paradis-Givner Funeral Home, 357 Main St., Oxford, followed by a Mass at St. Roch’s Church, 332 Main St., Oxford. Burial followed at North Cemetery in Oxford. Calling hours were Tuesday, Nov. 15, at the funeral home.

Charles W. Whitmore, 63

DUDLEY — Charles W. Whitmore, 63, died Friday, Nov. 11, in his home surrounded by his family, after a courageous battle with cancer.

He is survived by his wife of 41 years, Jean M. (Barnes) Whitmore of Dudley; two daughters, Jessica M. Cardillo and her husband John of Jefferson, and Julie A. Morin and her husband David of Dudley; a brother, Kenneth Whitmore Jr. of Orange; two sisters, Mary Walker and her husband Douglas of Erving, and Shirley Allen of Orange; his step-sister, Chris Braley of Jefferson; four grandchildren, Nicholas Cardillo and Allison Cardillo, both of Jefferson, and Sean Olson and Lindsay Vo, both of Dudley; several nephews and nieces, and many close friends. He was predeceased by his step-brother, Craig Autio.

He was born in Athol, son of the late Kenneth M. Whitmore and Hazel L. (Smith) Gardner, and lived in Oxford for 26 years before moving to Dudley 12 years ago. He graduated from Mahar Regional High School in Orange in 1971 and received his Associate’s degree from Quinsigamond Community College.

Mr. Whitmore was a truck driver for 18 years at A. Duie Pyle in Northboro, retiring in 2014. Previously, he drove for Merritt Transportation in Worcester for 20 years. He attended Oak Hill Bible Church in Oxford. Mr. Whitmore enjoyed vacationing with his family, attending his grandchildren’s sporting events and activities, camping, canoeing, and was a fan of the Red Sox and Patriots. He walked the Boston Marathon several times in support of the Jimmy Fund, and always supported cancer research to prevent others from suffering the effects of cancer.

The family would like to thank the doctors and nurses at Dana Farber Cancer Institute in Boston for their exceptional care, as well as the nurses at the VNA Care Hospice for their compassion and assistance during his illness.

A funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 18, at Paradis-Givner Funeral Home, 357 Main St., Oxford. Burial will be private at a later date. Calling hours were Thursday, Nov. 17, at the funeral home.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute/The Jimmy Fund, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284, or to Oak Hill Bible Church, 40 Sacarrappa Rd., Oxford, MA 01540. Visit paradisfuneralhome.com.

Make Head Checks A Weekly Habit At Home

Performing proactive head lice checks at home can prove beneficial for families.

(NAPS)
While school days can mean an influx of head lice cases as children are together in close quarters, you can help protect your family.
The Problem
Lice are most commonly spread through direct head-to-head contact—not typically through sharing hairbrushes, scarves and hats. Research also shows that lice are often transmitted between siblings or neighborhood playmates.¹ Performing weekly head checks at home can be a smart way to stop an infestation before it affects the entire family.

It can take four to six weeks for infestation symptoms (such as itching) to show up.² And catching lice early is vital to controlling them, so vigilance is key.

What You Can Do
Here are three tips on how to check your child's head for lice:
• Work under a bright light and use a nit comb to remove anything you find. Part your child's hair and watch for movement (lice quickly travel away from light).
• Part the hair to look for eggs stuck to the shaft near the scalp. About the size of a poppy seed, lice often look like dandruff that can't be easily removed.
• Pay particular attention to the nape of the neck, behind the ears and from bangs to the crown of the head. Recently laid eggs are nearly transparent, so it's helpful to examine hair from different angles.
If your child does have lice, you may be glad to know Vamousse Lice Treatment kills lice and their eggs in one treatment. It uses non-toxic ingredients to dehydrate lice and nits rather than relying on pesticides such as permethrin and pyrethroids, to which super lice have become resistant.³
If your child has been exposed, Vamousse Lice Defense is recommended for daily use during high-risk periods and for 10 to 14 days after potential exposure to defend against an infestation. As with all the company's products, it's generally affordable, available over-the-counter, non-toxic and safe for the entire family.

Lice can quickly advance through several life cycles before being caught, so conducting routine head checks is a vital step toward helping your entire household stay lice-free all year.

Teaching Your Child Healthy Habits

(NAPS)
If you're like most parents, you work hard to make sure your children eat their veggies, brush their teeth and always say "please" and "thank you," but one important habit is often forgotten.
Experts advise parents to teach children the importance of smiling. Smiling can positively affect you and the people around you, and lower stress, which should improve your child's quality of life.
What You Can Do
Here's a look at a few of the habits that can be crucial to ensuring children enjoy a healthy lifestyle:
1. Setting a regular bedtime: According to the National Sleep Foundation, children need at least 10 to 12 hours of sleep. By the age of 2, children have spent more time asleep than awake. Why is this? Sleep is vital to children's development and lets them be alert, fresh and ready to learn every day. While bedtime tantrums can be frustrating, they may well be an indicator that your child needs sleep. Avoid active endeavors right before bed and replace them with 30 minutes of relaxing, quiet activities. This will encourage a healthy bedtime routine for kids and may help them to see the importance of a good night's sleep.

Healthy kids are happy kids and instilling the right daily habits in your children can help you get a lot more smiles from your family.

2. Keeping active: Encourage your children to play outside, join a team or take part in some other activity outside of school. This provides a great opportunity to meet and socialize with other kids they may not meet otherwise. Developing hobbies from a young age helps keep children busy and gives them a chance to learn beyond the classroom.

3. Eating fruits and vegetables: Reinforcing a healthy diet will improve your children's mood, health and even their smiles. Instilling a healthy diet early will create lifelong habits that will benefit your child for years to come.

4. Smiling more often: Teach your child the importance of proactive oral care to ensure fewer trips to the dentist and a bright, healthy smile for life. Getting your children to brush and floss twice a day may not be easy, but parents can ensure their kids have a complete oral care routine by using Sunstar GUM®'s suite of toothbrushes, toothpaste and flossers for kids featuring popular themes such as Crayola™, Power Rangers™, Dragons™ and Lalaloopsy™. The new kid's toothpaste collection lets kids add color to their brushing routine. You can find your child's favorite colorful toothpaste, toothbrushes and flossers in retailers such as Target and online at www.gumbrand.com.

5. Reading for pleasure: Encourage your kids to take a break from video games, social media and other distracting forms of technology and pick up a book instead. Reading for pleasure will help expand your children's imagination and develop their reading skills. Once their homework is complete, designate a daily "screen-free" hour or make it a family activity by reading a chapter or two together before bed each night.

Five Tips To Prepare Your Children For Success In School

(NAPS)
One of the best things you can do for your children is to make sure they attend school every day. After all, we want our kids to have the best possible chance of doing well in school and achieving their dreams. But getting a child to school isn't always easy. While some absences are understandable, it's important to understand the impact of each absence.
Although most parents understand the importance of getting their child to school every day, many believe that missing three or more days of school each month won't make a difference. In reality, as early as elementary school, students who miss just two school days per month are more likely to fall behind in school, and less likely to graduate from high school. Even when the absences are excused or understandable, absences add up. Students who miss just two days of school each month end up missing 18 school days, or 10 percent of the school days in a year.
By following these five simple tips, you can help ensure your child attends school every day. Attending school every day puts your child on the path toward success in school and in life.
What to Do:

1. Keep track of how many days of school your child has missed.
2. Figure out why your child is absent from school. Is your child dealing with a chronic illness such as asthma? Is he being bullied or struggling at school? Is she staying home to help care for a family member?
3. Ask teachers and community leaders for advice and specific resources. Reach out to other parents, too, to ask for help and share tips.
4. Consider enrolling your child in a mentoring or an afterschool program. When kids work with mentors, they learn about the importance of attending school every day. With an additional support system in place, kids learn strategies to address their day-to-day challenges. Similarly, when kids get involved in afterschool programs, they are more likely to feel connected to their school communities and are less likely to be absent.
5. Visit AbsencesAddUp.org for information on the impact of absences and resources to help prevent them in the future. On the website, you'll learn how to help children who are struggling in school, being bullied, managing chronic illness or dealing with mental health challenges. Additionally, the site

Sleep Is Key To Helping Teens Recharge For Success In School

Most teens, research suggests, lack sufficient sleep, putting them at risk for health and behavioral problems.

(NAPS)
Here's eye-opening news: For most teens, one of the best ways to find success in school is to get enough sleep. When well rested, teens are more likely to be healthy, energetic and have a positive attitude toward life in general—helping them be their best and do their best in school and at home. To help, the National Healthy Sleep Awareness Project launched the “Sleep Recharges You” campaign, urging teens to get eight to 10 hours of sleep per night to promote optimal health. “It's important to make sleep a priority,” said Dr. Ronald Chervin, president of the American Academy of Sleep Medicine (AASM) and spokesperson for the National Healthy Sleep Awareness Project. “Setting and sticking to a routine to get as much sleep as possible is one of the best things teens can do for their health, academic achievement and athletic performance.”

Lack of Sleep Jeopardizes Teens' Grades, Health and Safety
More than two-thirds of high school students in the U.S. are failing to get enough sleep on school nights, according to a 2016 study published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Results show that 69 percent of surveyed students in grades 9 to 12 reported sleeping less than eight hours on an average school night. Insufficient sleep in teens can impact everything from grades to safety. Sleepy teens may fare worse in school than their well-rested peers. Studies show that teens who are sleep deprived may be more easily distracted and recall information more slowly. Sleeping fewer than the recommended hours is also associated with attention, behavior and learning problems. Lack of sleep may also affect teens' athletic performance. When teens sleep, hormones are released that help them grow taller and develop muscles. Sleep helps restore energy to the brain and body. Studies show that teens who sleep less than the recommended hours are more likely to be overweight and develop hypertension and diabetes. Additionally, insufficient sleep in teenagers has been found to increase the risk of depression and is associated with increased risk of self-harm, suicidal thoughts and suicide attempts. Insufficient sleep also significantly increases teens' risk for drowsy-driving accidents. A 2014 study found that teen drivers who start class earlier in the morning are involved in significantly more motor vehicle accidents than those with later start times. Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for teens in the U.S., according to the CDC. Parents, Caregivers Play Crucial Role

Teens should be encouraged to get enough sleep every night to recharge. The AASM advises parents and caregivers to help by modeling healthy sleep habits, promoting a consistent sleep schedule and creating a quiet sleep environment for their teens. Additionally, setting restrictions on screen time before bed is key to helping teens get to sleep on time. Teens may be tempted to keep using their laptops, smart-phones and game consoles late into the night rather than going to sleep. “Teens are still growing and developing and sleep is a crucial part of these processes,” said Dr. Chervin. “One of the best things parents and caregivers can do for their children's health and well-being is to encourage routines that will help them get enough sleep.” According to the AASM, a natural shift in the timing of the body's internal “circadian” clock occurs during puberty, causing most teens to have a biological preference for a late-night bedtime. It is also important that parents and local school boards work together to implement high school start times that allow teens to get the healthy sleep they need to meet their full potential.

Official Consensus
The AASM recommends that teens sleep eight to 10 hours per night on a regular basis to promote optimal health. Parents concerned that their teen is sleeping too little or too much should consult a board-certified sleep medicine physician or visit www.sleepeducation.org to find an accredited sleep center nearby. Learn More

Making The Grade: Getting High School Seniors Ready For College

(NAPS)
Nearly 17 million high school seniors graduate each year, the U.S. Department of Education estimates, and many plan to attend college. But are they all really college-ready? Data suggests the answer is a resounding “no.” According to the 2015 “Condition of College & Career Readiness” report from American College Testing (ACT), 31 percent of the ACT-tested graduating class is not meeting any of the four subject benchmarks: reading, English, science and mathematics. These low-readiness test scores coincide with college dropout figures that top 29 million, making the number of Americans who have dropped out of college greater than the number of American adults who have not obtained their high school degrees. “While test scores provide a benchmark for high school seniors, college readiness is an important issue for everyone headed to college, whether they are a new high school graduate or an adult learner returning to the classroom,” said Jennifer Fletcher, Ph.D., program dean for general education at University of Phoenix. “Being prepared for the challenge can help ensure students aren't forced to take remedial course work and are able to stay motivated and on top of their workloads, ultimately resulting in a successful collegiate experience.”

The pressure to earn a college degree is higher than ever. The White House has set an ambitious goal of producing a higher share of college graduates than any other nation by 2020. The plan is to return the United States to the top-ranked nation after dropping into twelfth place. “More and more, employers are seeking college graduates for jobs that previously required a high school diploma or other subbaccalaureate training,” Dr. Fletcher said. “For the nearly two-thirds of U.S. adults who do not have a bachelor's degree or higher, this can create barriers to career growth, unless they are able to pursue higher education.” She offers the following advice to high school seniors and adult learners heading off to college:

- Use summer months to take courses in English and mathematics to refresh high school level skills. Courses can be taken at community colleges or via online professional development resources such as University of Phoenix's continuing education programs, Udemy, StraighterLine and Lynda.com.
- Don't overburden your first semester course load. There are always opportunities to add courses deeper into your college career or over summer and winter intersessions.

A few simple steps before you go to college can help make sure you do well when you get there.

- Team up with your college adviser your first semester. College advisers are available to discuss your goals and a graduation timeline and can offer guidance on the best ways to manage coursework.
- Attend skills center sessions for assistance in coursework and free proof-reading.
- Organize study groups with peers to work together on complex materials and to gain different perspectives to approaching assignments. Take advantage of college tools and resources. Computers, Internet access, office hours and a study location free of distractions are all things students can access that affect student success. When you couple this with healthy organizational and study habits, students can improve their chances of having a positive academic journey. Learn More
