Novack recognized at annual awards ceremony

WORCESTER -- Governor Charlie Baker and the Massachusetts Department of Higher Education recognized Worcester State University graduating senior Janet Elizabeth Novack of Sturbridge at the seventh annual "29 Who Shine" awards ceremony at the State House. Novack received the W.E.B. Du Bois Academic Recognition award for Community Based Research from the sociology department in late April, and will be earning a degree in mathematics with a specialization in secondary education. In addition, she has an impressive record of volunteerism aimed at helping those in the Worcester community, at places such as Girls Inc., and North High School. She also has mentored first-generation students at Worcester State, via the university's Alternatives for Individual Development program, and has volunteered as one of Worcester Polytechnic Institute's "Girls who Code." She aims to earn a Ph.D. and to one day teach and undertake research at the college level.

Janet Novack

President Barry M. Maloney, who attended the ceremony, says Novack's academic achievements and commitment to service are truly outstanding -- but also indicative of the kind of students who attend Worcester State University.

"Janet Novack is a great example of the kind of students Worcester State University graduates every year - students who excel academically while devoting significant time outside of the classroom to better their communities. Janet's extraordinary dedication to the

Kingston gets delegate nod

BY JERRY CARTON
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

Businessman Jack Kingston captured 19-percent of the delegate vote at the Republican state convention at the DCU Center in Worcester, more than the minimum requirement of 15-percent and was thus assured a spot on the September 4 US Senate primary ballot.

Kingston will face state Rep. Geoff Diehl and former lottery director Beth Lindstrom for the right to oppose incumbent Sen. Elizabeth Warren in the November 6 general election.

"We took a gigantic step towards retiring Senator Warren and her toxic brand of Washington politics," proclaimed Kingston, who said his campaign has more than 30 times the amount of money than does Lindstrom and 13 times more than Diehl.

"I am incredibly honored by the support I received from so many Republican leaders, activists and supporters who form the backbone of our party."

"Together we will bring fundamental change to Washington and a Senator focused on delivering results for hardworking Massachusetts families, not advancing their own political career," said Kingston.

Making his first bid for public office, Kingston said he decided to run because he didn't like the divisiveness he was seeing in the country's political system.

"Our strong performance at the convention despite being a true political outsider running against two candidates deeply entrenched in the political system is a testament to the strength of our message and organization. I am the only Republican with the manpower and message to defeat Senator Warren," he said.

Lindstrom said coming to Worcester County felt like "coming home" because his father grew up in the city.

"I am not a professional politician," she insisted.

"The truth is, Elizabeth Warren is running for President and she's doing everything she can to win the support of the far left," argued Lindstrom.

She dismissed Kingston's claims of overwhelming financial advantage.

"Primary voters will decide," she said.

Gimas book spotlights politics, ethics in education

Priscilla Gimas holds a copy of her first book, "Lights That Never Dim."

BY GUS STEEVES
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

STURBRIDGE — Years ago, Priscilla Gimas got fired. This year, she's pulling her experiences back then with bureaucracy, arbitration and "politics as usual" in public education into her first book, which she sees as an argument for the need for ethics education.

Titled "Lights That Never Dim," the relatively short piece of non-fiction takes readers back to the 1990s, but Gimas said "There are no names mentioned in the book, and that's intentional. Those who know the story know who the players are. They're still around."

Actually, there are a couple of names – two or three of her key supporters then and later who inspired the title itself. But the general lack of names does make the text a little hard to follow for those not in the know, and it sounds very much like a personal journal. The idea has been floating for years, but she said "the nasty discourse during the last election" made her feel now was the time to write it, to raise the question "Whatever happened to values, to ethics, to treating people with respect?"

"I'd like to inspire people who are going through difficult times in their workplace, and give them the inner strength to uphold what they think is right," Gimas said, noting she used the Createspace website to publish it, and it's available on Amazon.

Although she said in person she feels she can "look at it more objectively than I could at the time," the text includes lines that suggest some bitterness remains. At one point, during a discussion of fighting for her job in arbitration and the firing of a school nurse, she condemns "the vile stupidity of this district," shortly thereafter adding, "Intelligence was not a strong point of this school committee and administration." By contrast, her text repeatedly praises the students for their classroom work, the relationships she had with some of them personally, and their support of teachers in general.

"Times were not always good in the community and there were a couple of years where 60 plus teachers were pink slipped in the spring. We used to joke that the first robin of spring brought the pink slip," she writes in Chapter 3. "One year in particular, the cuts were more severe and many programs were cut. The students were very upset and word spread throughout the school that the students were planning a walkout in protest of the cuts. Students would always come to me to talk about things that they were happy about or things that bothered them. They

Next historic meeting about ice harvesting

BY W. M. PIENTON
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

On Thursday May 24 at 7 p.m., the Sturbridge Historical Society will be holding a meeting at the Publik House Historical Inn. Dennis Picard will be the guest speaker. He is the retired director of the Storrowtown Village Museum located in West Springfield Massachusetts. Picard will be talking on the history of ice harvesting and New England's natural ice industry.

Commercial ice harvesting in New England started in the early 1800s, growing to be the 9th largest industry in the country by the close of the century. Tens of thousands of New England workers exported thousands of tons of ice from our ponds and lakes yearly.

For over 20 years Dennis Picard has been giving demonstrations of ice harvesting at museums and environmental education centers. At some point in the talk he will ask for volunteers to try their hand at ice harvesting using his antique tools such as his pond saw and breaker bar. Picard will also exhibit part of his antique collection of ice harvesting tools, some of which were invented in Massachusetts.

Picard started at Old Sturbridge Village in 1978 where he stayed for 12 years before working at the Handcock Shaker Village as a site interpreter and historic tradesman. For 40 years he has worked in the field of living history. Recently retiring after 27 years at Storrowtown Village Museum, he held positions of Assistant Director and Director at historic sites such as Fort Number 4 in Charlestown, New Hampshire, and the Sheffield Historical Society in the Massachusetts Berkshires.

If you want to contact the Sturbridge Historical Society please write to: Sturbridge Historical Society, Inc., Po Box 758, Sturbridge, MA 01566

If you wish to join the historical society annual dues are $10. The money goes toward the cost of the speakers. The Sturbridge Historical Society meetings are held September to May every fourth Thursday of the month. The November and December meeting is held on the first Thursday of December. All meetings start at 7p.m.

The first settlers came to Sturbridge mostly from Medfield and Dedham. Sturbridge has gone through four name changes. It was originally called "Tantuisquis" which means "valley between breast shaped hills" in Nipmuck. Next, it was called "Dummer," named after the Lieutenant Governor William Dummer.

The town's third name was "New Medfield" after the hometown of some of inhabitants of Medfield. Finally, in 1738 it was changed to Sturbridge after the town Stourbidge in England. The reason being "ancestors of the first settlers came from that place."

Each settler was given a total of 100 acres of land through the drawing of lots. Half the land the settlers received was good land and the other half was of

The Last Green Valley announces first funding phase to protect heritage forest

The Last Green Valley, Inc. and its project partners have launched phase one of a $12.2 million program to help landowners in the Southern New England Heritage Forest conserve their land while improving vital habitat for important bird species.

The program is an unprecedented three-state effort made possible through the Regional Conservation Partnership Program of the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service. Joining NRCS and The Last Green Valley, Inc. as lead partners are the Mass Conn Sustainable Forest Partnership/Opacum Land Trust and the Northern Rhode Island Conservation District.

This program will provide technical and financial assistance to forest landowners with property within the Southern New England Heritage Forest, who wish to conserve their land by granting an easement to NRCS through the Healthy Forests Reserve Program. The HFRP is a voluntary conservation easement program for private woodland owners that is new to the region. The deadline for first-round applications is July 20.

Preserving the Southern New England Heritage Forest is critical for important bird species and other wildlife. With 1.49 million-acres of unfragmented forest corridor stretching along the Connecticut and Rhode Island border to the Quabbin Reservoir in Massachusetts, the Southern New England Heritage Forest is still an astonishing 76 percent forest cover and one of the last viable wildlife corridors from northern New England to the coast in southern New England.

The Last Green Valley National Heritage Corridor accounts for almost half of the Southern New England Heritage Forest. As the last green oasis in the coastal sprawl between Boston and Washington DC, the program is vital to ensuring the national heritage corridor and the larger Southern New England Heritage Forest continue supporting threatened bird species and other important wildlife and plant species.

NRCS will pay the landowner 75 percent of the fair market value of the enrolled land to promote the recovery of endangered and threatened bird species and improve plant and animal biodiversity. NRCS will also pay for all transaction costs, including a title search, boundary survey, hazardous materials search and appraisal. NRCS will draft a restoration plan for the property that focuses on improving habitat for a specific bird species and will provide 75 percent or more of the funds for the first round of any restoration work that is required.

The funds provided in phase one are a portion of the larger $12.2 million program. NRCS is providing a $6.1 million grant which is being matched by $6.1 of significant contributions from the project's numerous partners, including the three lead partner organizations and 16 additional organizations.

While the application deadline for the first round of this competitive program is July 20, we advise potential applicants to contact the lead partner in their state as soon as possible. There are preliminary steps that must be completed, and the partners are available to provide technical assistance:

For Rhode Island Projects – Kate Sayles, 401-934-0840; ksayles.nricd@gmail.com

Application materials are available on The Last Green Valley's website, www.thelastgreenvalley.org

Supporting partners for this project include: Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs, Providence Water, Yale School of Forestry & Environmental Studies, Connecticut Department of Energy and Environmental Protection, Hull Forest Products, Thames River Basin Partnership, New England Forestry Foundation, Eastern Connecticut Conservation District, Norcross Wildlife Foundation, Rhode Island Division of Forest Management, Rhode Island Woodland Partnership, Harvard Forest, Yale Sustaining Family Forests Institute, Audubon Connecticut, Mass Audubon and Audubon RI.

Car Buying Tips

Customers ask place: How should I pay for my new car or truck?

The RIGHT answer: There are three ways to pay for your vehicle. They are to pay cash, finance the balance or lease the automobile. Each method has its pros and cons.

If you pay cash, you have the knowledge that you own your car outright. You could, in theory, cut back on insurance and you will not pay interest as you would with the other two methods. The downside of paying cash is that you are spending a large part of your liquid assets and potentially losing investment potential. The other thing is if your car gets totaled and you did cut back on your insurance you are out all that money.

If you finance, you will have a budgeted monthly payment and won't need to spend all your hard-earned cash. In fact, with today's low interest rate options, in some cases as low as 0%, it may make more sense to finance your car. You also have options with the financing that can help to protect the value of the car. Consider GAP protection to protect against a total loss. Ask us for more details on how this works. Of course, the downside of financing is that in most cases you will pay interest. Because todays cars are rather expensive many customers take on longer term notes increasing the interest expense and leaving them still owing money when they want to trade in for another. This leads us to leasing.

If you lease a car you usually get a lower monthly payment. You will also get GAP protection (at least with Ford Motor Credit Leases) at no charge and your term will be shorter allowing you to seamlessly get a new car in just a few years as your needs change. Downsides to leasing are the excess mileage or wear and tear concerns. Let us tailor a lease to your needs to help avoid these concerns.

At Place Motor we will discuss with you your situation and offer you your choices, so you can make the RIGHT choice for you. You'll experience why Place Motor is the RIGHT Place since 1923.

Former Sturbridge resident honored

AMHERST — Nargis Aslami received the 21st Century Leaders award from the University of Massachusetts Amherst during the 148th annual commencement ceremony on May 11.

The award recognizes students who have demonstrated exemplary standards of achievement, initiative and social awareness. Recipients have contributed to the university through exceptional accomplishments in research, leadership and outstanding creative and athletic talents that enhance the reputation of the campus.

Aslami, who grew up and attended schools in Sturbridge, moved to Worcester while in college. At UMass, she majored in women, gender, sexuality studies and was a member of Commonwealth Honors College.

A first-generation Afghan-American, Aslami also completed a Five College certificate in reproductive health, rights and justice. Soon after coming to UMass and taking "Gender, Sexuality, and Culture," Aslami discovered her passion for social justice, particularly reproductive justice. She has since distinguished herself as a leader, both on campus and in the national reproductive justice movement. In the past four years at UMass, Aslami worked as a rape crisis counselor, providing counseling through a 24/7 rape crisis hotline and in-person medical advocacies. Aslami also interned as a legal assistant at the Student Legal Services Office, working directly with attorneys and clients conducting legal research and assisting in court preparation. Since 2016, Aslami has been a student group co-coordinator for the Civil Liberties and Public Policy (CLPP) program based at Hampshire College, where she planned and facilitated meetings on topics of reproductive justice and intersecting social justice movements, coordinated two Activist Institutes, and organized CLPP's annual three-day national reproductive justice conference in 2017 and in 2018. Aslami has also held her workshop, "Building Student Power & Organizing for Reproductive Justice," at two national reproductive justice conferences. She plans to attend law school in the near future to continue pursuing social justice work.

MWCC graduates join nursing profession in traditional ceremony

GARDNER – Family and friends came together to celebrate the achievements of Mount Wachusett Community College's associate degree nursing class during a traditional pinning ceremony held May 17.

"You are going to forth from here and you're going to save lives," MWCC President James Vander Hooven told the gathered graduates.

The 45th graduating class was made up of 103 students enrolled in the day and evening programs and included LPNs who returned to continue their education through the college's Bridge to Nursing program.

Dressed in traditional nurse uniforms, the students were welcomed into the profession by having the program's nursing pin fastened to their lapels by a family member, friend, or an alumnus of the program, or a faculty member. The pin marks where the nurses completed their studies and distinguishes them from other health care professionals. The eight-star MWCC pin is imprinted with the words "Service to Humanity and the World."

As part of the ceremony, the students also took a nursing pledge that dates back to Florence Nightingale, who distinguished herself during the Crimean War by coming to the aid of sick and wounded soldiers.

The graduates included: North Grosvenordale Amanda King; Ashburnham: Genevieve David and Sybil Sinclair; Baldwinville: Leanne Gauthier: Dudley: Laurie Guerin, Mikeala Kozlowski; East Templeton: Mary White; Milford: Tracy Webster; Northbridge: Kaila Chase; Phillipston: Summer Moulton; Sturbridge: Melissa Denham; Templeton: Shelby Arseneau, Jaclyn Cartee, Lindsey Hastings, Kelsey Vaillancourt; Winchendon: Ashley Garceau, Dawn Storer; Rindge: Elie LeMieux and Danica Sauvola.

MWCC students recognized for hours of volunteer service

GARDNER – On Tuesday evening, 261 students were recognized for giving back more than 125,000 hours of volunteerism efforts that Mount Wachusett Community College estimates are equivalent to a $2.5-$3 million value.

"When you think about the collective impact, it's more than just a number. Imagine if all of this just stopped tomorrow," said Shelley Errington-Nicholson, director of the Senator Stephen M. Brewer Center for Civic Learning and Community Engagement, reflecting on the event.

"This community would look very different if our students and their clubs weren't committed to volunteering year after year, if our faculty weren't committed to offering service learning as part of the academic experience. This is a lasting impact because, by and large, our students grow up in these cities and towns and they're going to stay here," she said.

"I'm in awe of you because I know you were too busy to volunteer," President James Vander Hooven told students on May 15. "You had to go to work, or take care of your family, or study for an exam, and yet you figured out a way to carve out some time to help others."

"Changing the world - even for one person or for one day - is very important and very special," said Senator Stephen Brewer. "It all starts with you."

Terri Alden of Orange was awarded the Hillary Bartlett Newsome Service Learning Scholarship in memory of Hillary Bartlett's spirit of giving back to the community. Bartlett was a 2009 graduate of the Mount's Early Childhood Transfer program who passed away unexpectedly in 2017.

Professor Emerita Maryann Kane of the Early Childhood Education department received the Faculty Civic Engagement Award.

"Maryann, thank you is not sufficient for your years of dedicated to service inspiring generations of new teachers," said Errington-Nicholson.

Sybil Sinclair of Ashburnham was awarded the Service Learning Scholarship. The Above and Beyond Award was presented to the Student Nurses Association, which conducted a year-long awareness campaign to train students and community members in hands only CPR in addition to collecting 232 pounds of food donations for the campus food pantry. Clear Path for Veterans New England was recognized as the Community Partner of the Year for its holistic approach to helping returning vets and for offering a site for service learning students in both marketing and nursing.

In addition to their volunteer efforts, some students were recognized for additional volunteer-based work. These students were Student Leaders in Civic Engagement, Laryssa Truesdale and Tammy Goodgion. Goodgion put forth the largest effort by a graduating student this year with 358 hours of service.

The SOS (Serving Our Students) interns for the year Cristen Comptois, Marie Ewing, Tammy Goodgion, Elise Hamblett, Sybil Sinclair, Laryssa Truesdale, Jacob VanHillo, and Jacquelyn Vokey were also recognized. Cristen Comptois was also honored for being selected as the school's 2018 Newman Civic Fellow award winner.

The local students who were honored for their volunteer efforts were: Dudley: Laurie Guerin, Mikeala Kozlowski; Northbridge: Kaila Chase; Spencer: Linda Maher; Mary Remillard; Sturbridge: Melissa Denham; Webster: Gerrianne Owens, Erika Valentin; North Grosvenordale: Amanda King

Challenges of a Hot Real Estate Market?

REALTOR'S REPORT

JAMES BLACK

Every week for a long time I have been writing about the market consistently improving. With this improvement there are challenges that come up. I was just thinking tonight of one of the biggest challenges I see. With low inventory buyers are needing to make quick decisions and sometimes offering prices that are higher than they want to pay. This tends to cause that same buyer to get buyers remorse more often causing more sales to fall through not because of home inspection issues but because of buyers remorse. The other thing I see is when you lose out on several homes in a row, the buyer may decide to offer a price that they know will easily beat out any other offer because they are confident that the bank appraiser will not appraise the home and then the seller will have to adjust back down to sell it. Another variation of this is the buyer deciding to offer higher knowing that they will renegotiate after home inspection for items that they could have seen on their first viewing of the home.

Another challenge is the fear of selling your home and finding another home to buy. Not ever buyer will agree to having the home sale contingent on you as a seller closing on a suitable home but that is how you can sell you home and protect yourself from closing on your home with nowhere to go. This is usually easier if the buyer is renting somewhere and is month to month or still living with their parents. So it is more typical on a first time buyer home to have the buyers be agreeable especially if there is no inventory in that price range in that area. With this low inventory I have also seen buyers and their agents show up at a home where the showings were deferred until an Open House and ask if they could get in early for showings. They are hoping to sneak in so they can see and get an offer in before everyone else sees it.

Every market is different but these are things we are seeing in the market we sell in currently. I suggest consulting with a local Real Estate Agent in your market before making any buying and selling decisions.

DYI fix-it tips for vintage finds

TAKE THE HINT

KAREN TRAINOR

Flea market season is in full swing, and while great scores can be exciting, few vintage treasures are perfect. In fact, most require a little TLC to be at their best. For the "Do it Yourselfer" a little effort and elbow grease on an aged piece can pay off in increased value (not to mention the satisfaction of a job well done)!

Hot on the heels of the first Brimfield Antique Show of 2018, read on for some easily applied "do it yourself" ideas to fix up your less than perfect flea market finds.

*Note: The information below is offered as a suggestive guideline only and not meant as instructional. Any application should be tested first and applied strictly at the user's own risk and responsibility.

All Dolled Up: Childhood toys are hot collectibles and few are as endearing as vintage dolls. Many dolls from the 1920s to the 1940s, especially baby and Mama type dolls have a body or limbs made from composition material, which is a combination of molded wood pulp and glue and not always easy to clean.

It's important never to clean these dolls with water, as water can seep into crazing and cracks, which can cause damage to the material. The alternative? Try waterless hand cleaners such as Goop. Apply it with a clean cloth in a circular motion to rub off dirt and grime. Wipe off immediately.

Always apply Goop cleaner carefully over facial features to avoid removing painted areas. Apply with a cotton swab to dimples, nose crevices and ears. Or, try the trick some restorers use and apply petroleum jelly or cold cream to surface clean composition.

If you must use a stronger cleaner, such as household cleaners with ammonia, apply with the corner of a soft cloth one section at a time and dry immediately. Avoid areas with crazing or cracking. Once clean, buff it up with a careful application of clear paste wax. Apply wax to the palm of your hand, rub your hands together and apply to the surface, buff and wipe for a finished look.

Gussie up Glass: Glass pieces such as decanters, cruets or vases sometimes develop cloudiness or stubborn stains from liquid that settled in the bottle. If a wash in sudsy water doesn't work, try dropping a denture tablet or two inside with water for a self scrub treatment. If that also fails, pour household vinegar into the glass piece, covering the stain. Allow it to soak overnight. Before spilling out the vinegar, add some uncooked rice and shake vigorously to scour the stain. Repeat if necessary.

If homemade treatments don't thoroughly remove bottle stains, try commercial products made for porcelain such as Lime Away.

Pro Tip: The U.S. General Services Administration Historic Preservation Technical Procedures Manual suggests cleaning old glass as follows: To wash the glass with a solution of non-sudsing household ammonia in water. Or wash in vinegar and water (do not mix the two). For discoloration, wash clear glass with a nontoxic detergent and very fine 0000 steel wool. Do not apply too much pressure or it will break the glass or scratch the surface of the glass.

Salt cellars are another great collectible that are not always found in tip top shape. Oftentimes the top and bottom of a salt cellar has corroded together. Usually a good soak in warm water will loosen the bond. If that doesn't work and If the piece is sturdy glass with metal top, try this method: Soak the salt cellar in a rust breaking penetrating oil (from the hardware store). It may take several days. Once the pieces come apart, remove corrosion first with a rag, then with sandpaper. To prevent the problem in the future, be sure to store salt cellars in a dry environment and periodically remove the top to clean.

Furniture Fixes: Don't be too hasty to refinish an antique piece. Remember that an original finish on vintage wood is more desirable than a refinished surface. Before you delve into any refinishing project, try cleaning and polishing the wood first. You may be surprised at how good a vintage piece can look with a bit of effort.

If white cloudy marks or rings from careless drinks set on the surface have marred the top of a dresser or table, try removing the stain before resorting to a cover up job. Pour some denatured alcohol (available at the hardware or paint store) on a folded piece of cheesecloth and wipe over the offending stain. Be careful not to overwork your strokes. When done, be sure to polish with a good wax and buff.

Mineral spirits or paint thinner can be an effective wood cleaner, but you must test it first to make sure the wood responds well. After removing dirt and grime with the thinner, clean the wood with a weak solution of mild dishwashing liquid and water. Rub a small section at a time with cheesecloth or rag, turning rag to work with a clean area.

If the wood is in acceptable condition, proceed with a good wax and buff. If the cleaning reveals a dull surface or cracks, lightly sandpaper to rejuvenate the surface. Just be careful not to sand so deep that you damage the original finish. Use a wood wax in a brown hue to brighten and camouflage any tiny imperfections. Apply wax as directed and use a soft cloth to buff to a pleasant patina.

Revitalizing Veneer: Old wood dressers are a common flea market offering, but the bureau you find at your flea market may have suffered moisture or heat damage. Since veneer is typically sensitive to temperature fluctuations, such wood is often found loose or bubbled. Before you rip off the veneer to start anew, try this tried and true method for a relative easy repair:

If veneer on old furniture is loose, use a razor blade to make a small slit in the wood, working in the direction of the grain. Work a small amount of wood glue under the veneer and weight down to press until dry.

If the veneer is bubbled up, place a piece of stiff cardboard on the wood and press with an iron set at medium heat. Press until you the heat softens the glue and you can feel the wood give a bit. Then press down and weight the area until the glue has dried.

SOS for Drawer Pulls: Damaged drawer pulls and knobs are another common defect in old furniture. Happily, there are easy and effective ways to remedy the problem. If a wood knob is loose, you can simply cut two small doughnut pieces from medium grade sandpaper to act as washers. Glue the pieces back to back and fit it between the knob and the drawer. If a knob is loose because the screw hole in the back of it has become enlarged, fill the hole with plastic glue and reset screw immediately.

If the nut on your drawer knobs pulls off because the threads on the old metal are worn, try replacing with a smaller nut. If that fails, rub liquid steel onto threads, tighten the old nut and coat the joint between the nut and bolt with more of the liquid steel.

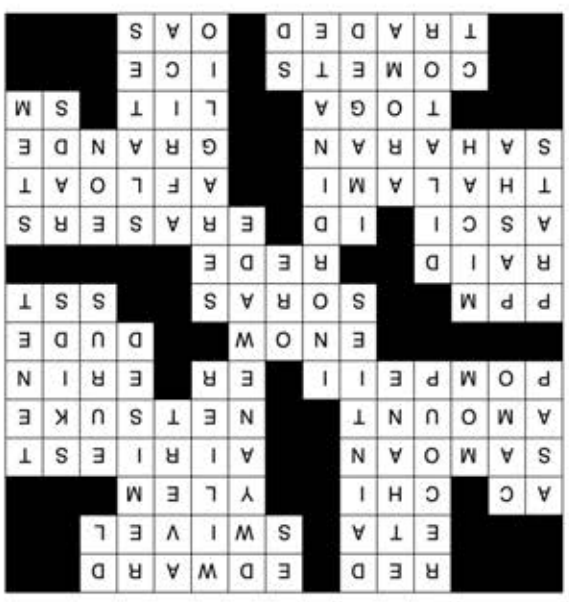
PUZZLE SOLUTION



Hyde is a hidden treasure

BY W. M. PIENTON
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

Located on Main Street, the Joshua Hyde Public Library was established in 1873. In this age of instant electronic communication and research, public libraries are more important than ever. They provide a sense of community that a device could never do. The library has something for everyone, children and adults.

In this month of May the schedule is as follows:

Next on the schedule is Drop-in Story Time, and it takes place on Tuesdays from10:45 a.m.–11:30 a.m. Drop-in Story Time has stories, songs, a simple craft, and more. It is free and open to children of all ages, with their caregiver. If you want to know more contact Patricia Lalli at (508) 347-2512 or email her at: plalli@cwmars.org.

Then on Tuesday, May 29 from 10:45 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. it is Drop-in Story Time.

Finally on Thursday, May 31 it is ELF from 11 a.m.–11:45 a.m. Then at 6:30 p.m.–7:30 p.m. is the Hyde and Seek Kids Book Club for children in the 4, 5, and 6 grade. They will be discussing "Night of the Spadefoot Toads" by local author Bill Harley. Even if you have not finished the book, you can come and participate (or sit and listen and eat some snacks).

With all this going on in May there is no reason to not go. If you do not have a library card they are free and easy to obtain. Simply present a valid photo ID with your name and address on it.

Your card is good for two years and can be replaced for free when it expires. If it is lost before then, it is only $1 to replace. If you have checked out a book after 3 weeks the penalty is 10 cents per day. Magazines are only loaned out for 1 week before you get penalized 10 cents per day.

DVDs can be checked out for 1 week, but the penalty afterward is $1 per day. To avoid these penalties you can renew the materials in person, by phone, or online. Just be sure to let the library know of any changes in your information. If you damage or lose any library materials you must pay for them and can make arrangements with a librarian or other staff member.

Along with free wifi, the library has eight computers for the public. To use them, all you need is your library card's barcode. You can bring in your own laptop and access the wifi, but you cannot print from it.

The Joshua Hyde Public Library hours are:
Monday 12 p.m.–5 p.m.
Tuesday–Thursday 10 a.m.–8:30 p.m.
Friday and Saturday 10 a.m.–5 p.m.
Sunday (seasonally Oct.–April) 12 p.m.–5 p.m.

If you wish to make copies, the library has a copier for public use. You can get a black and white copy for 15 cents per page or 40 cents per color page. If you wish to make a donation to the Joshua Hyde Public Library you can go here: https://sturbridgelibraryfriends.org/w/monetary-donations/ or you can mail a check made payable to: "The Friends of the Joshua Hyde Library" to 306 Main St., Sturbridge, MA 01566.

Weather doesn't stop festival

WEST BROOKFIELD – Though attendance at this year's Asparagus Festival was down due to a daylong rainstorm, vendors and guests didn't let the weather dampen their spirits.

The May 19 event was still well-attended, even with a raw, windy May day on the town common. Many families traveled to the festival from throughout New England, and local community organizations held several activities. These included firefighters, local veterinary specialists, business representatives, and law enforcement officials.

Dozens of vendors also braved the weather, doing their best to keep products dry from a windblown rain. Community leaders thank everyone who works hard to put the festival together each year, as well as the vendors and residents who always support it.

Winchendon's Tom Shirley offers an array of cheeses and other products to guests.

Always a good time!

BRIMFIELD – Antiques hunters crisscross the country each year in search of relics that have survived the decades – or in some cases centuries. But no matter how long they've been pursuing antiques and collectibles, they are always impressed by the Brimfield Antique Show.

Earlier this month, pastoral Route 20 in the heart of town was transformed into a city of shoppers and collectors. It was the first of three shows to be held in 2018, attracting thousands of guests from throughout the world to a tiny town in central Massachusetts. The annual show never fails to put Brimfield on the map, in addition to providing greatly appreciated revenue for local restaurants and hotels.

For many guests the show has become a family tradition, while others arrived in Brimfield for the first time. Regardless of how often they've attended the event or how many miles it took them to get here, everyone had a great time at the opening show.

The Brimfield Zoo is back in town. Don't be alarmed – these guys won't bite.

You'll never guess where all of this jewelry came from. Hint: before it was recycled by Attleboro's John Atkinson, this jewelry could be found on dinner plates across America. Now Atkinson is hoping customers will fork over some cash for his wares.

Fred and JoAnn Feiner, of New Hope, PA, take a look at metal art creations.

Lineke Williford, of Durham, NC, shows guests how the Mediterranean nations and Middle East looked many years ago.

The Maurer family traveled almost 11 hours – all the way from Findlay, Ohio – to see the event in person. When the fair reaches peak traffic levels, local motorists seemingly spend about the same amount of time commuting from one end of the fairgrounds to the other.

Friday's Child

We are very close and want to be adopted together!

Tatiana and her younger brother Kingston are looking to be adopted together. Despite their age difference the siblings are very close to one another and do not want to be separated. Tatiana and Kingston are of Hispanic descent.

Those who know Tatiana describe her as quiet, intelligent and very determined. She is thirteen years old and wants to be successful in life and talks about going to college and hair dressing school. Comments on Tatiana's most recent report card mention that she is a pleasure to have in class and gives excellent effort. Tatiana is involved in the school chorus and has also been taking dance classes, which she would like to continue. Tatiana hopes to find a find a family that is kind and will love her. She would be particularly excited to have an older sister. Tatiana is open to living with a cat or a dog but would like to avoid homes with snakes!

Kingston is a sweet, loveable and active toddler with a strong bond to his older sister. He enjoys being around other children but can be shy with new adults when he first meets them. Kingston loves music and books. Kingston has some medical needs and regularly sees several specialists to monitor ongoing GI and feeding difficulties. Kingston is also susceptible to respiratory difficulties. He is receiving Early Intervention services for developmental delays.

Tatiana and Kingston are ready for adoption and will do well in a family with a mother and a father, two mothers or a single mother. An ideal family for these siblings will be open to helping them maintain a relationship with their half-brother.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org.

The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

poorer quality. Each was to construct a house and settle a ministry together.

Within its borders, the town of Sturbridge actually contains seven smaller villages. To the northeast is Podunk, meaning "Burning Place" in Nipmuck. The village became famous due to the play "Damn Yankees" by George M. Cohen.

Next is Westville, which incorporates the southwest side of Southbridge. The town common area of Sturbridge was Centre Village.

Leadmine was named after the oldest mine in the United States. Actually a graphite mine, Native Americans used it for ceremonial face painting.

Walker Pond is named after the family that originally settled in the area. Though in 1894 the name was officially changed to Lake Tantuisques in honor of the Natives that lived there. And finally, about 1842 the Snell brothers built a mill, manufacturing auger bits for wood boring. Once the milling industry took off, Sturbridge changed from an agricultural community to an industrial one.

The Sturbridge Historical Society meetings are free to attend. Dessert will be provided by Michael Glick, the Publick House innkeeper. If you are a student of local history or are simply curious, you should attend.

Remembering WHY there's a Memorial Day

It is the kick off for the summer season sure. And since 1971 and the uniformity of making "busman's holidays", those that allow workers a day without it really being a of religious significance as being always on Mondays so a longer weekend is created; things like celebrating presidents' birthdays, significant historical figures' days, Memorial Day and Labor Day have become those long weekend traditions.

Great. Wonderful. Nice to have the time off even if planning for it makes for crazy scheduling to create the possibilities for some jobs.

But…

Let's not, just because it isn't a religious day, forget why we get that time off.

This one is to remember those who have died in service to their country. Our country.

It began immediately after the Civil War, when thousands of boys and men died, all of them Americans even though we had foundered and found ourselves fighting one another over principles.

In 1868, Decoration Day became an unofficial day to honor those who had died, from any place in that horrific war. North, South. It didn't matter. We were honoring their service.

Within about 40 years, America found itself embroiled in an international conflict, and more young men died. Decoration Day became more important still, as some of those service people never came home, buried in Flanders fields, in France, on foreign soil. Remembering them both here… and there…was doubly important.

And then came a second world wide conflict; really a continuation of the first one, which never really got resolved; and it just grew larger, with multiple battlefronts, and bigger air and sea battles including underwater craft, and finally the threat of nuclear decisions. It was America that carried out that nuclear threat to end the conflict.

The scenes shifted to the Asian Pacific, to small countries like Korea and Vietnam, embroiling America in shadow wars. More service people died. We are still there.

And the Middle East, the deserts and the upheaval has changed players, but never conflicts. It shifts back and forth; alliances split and realign, governments topple and come back worse than ever, regimes claim to be one thing only to take power and become something else. And Americans are dying there too.

And on African soil, in small countries many didn't know existed.

On covert missions.

On rescue missions.

On UN supported missions.

But they put their lives on the line even as administrative and support troops; for the enemies understand taking down the background can cripple the frontlines.

The concept of Memorial Day has become benign to many in the United States, as families often also remember their own family members who have passed and that is fine; but as the new flowers are planted, do remember to glance about at the ones with the veterans' markers and the American flags.

And say a silent thank you. They are the reason you have the freedom to go to your loved ones' graves and have a nice weekend doing what you do with your family.

Freedom isn't free. It was purchased dearly.

We're all trespassers in the face of government land grabs

FREEDOM WATCH

JOHN WHITEHEAD

"No power on earth has a right to take our property from us without our consent." — John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States

We have no real property rights.

Think about it.

That house you live in, the car you drive, the small (or not so small) acreage of land that has been passed down through your family or that you scrimped and saved to acquire, whatever money you manage to keep in your bank account after the government and its cronies have taken their first and second and third cut…none of it is safe from the government's greedy grasp.

At no point do you ever have any real ownership in anything other than the clothes on your back.

Everything else can be seized by the government under one pretext or another (civil asset forfeiture, unpaid taxes, eminent domain, public interest, etc.).

The American Dream has been reduced to a lease arrangement in which we are granted the privilege of endlessly paying out the nose for assets that are only ours so long as it suits the government's purposes.

And when it doesn't suit the government's purposes? Watch out.

This is not a government that respects the rights of its citizenry or the law. Rather, this is a government that sells its citizens to the highest bidder and speaks to them in a language of force.

Under such a fascist regime, the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which declares that no person shall "be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation," has become yet another broken shield, incapable of rendering any protection against corporate greed while allowing the government to justify all manner of "takings" in the name of the public good.

As journalist Eric Williamson notes, "From controversial projects such as President Donald Trump's border wall and the gas pipelines, to more mundane works such as road expansion, just about any project deemed in the public interest can mean taking your property is fair game."

Practically anything goes now.

It's been 13 years since the U.S. Supreme Court took up the case of Kelo v. City of New London, which expanded the government's limited power to acquire private lands in order to build a public structure like a school or highway for "public use" and allowed it to make seizures for a "public purpose," which in the government's eyes can mean anything as long as it amounts to higher tax revenue.

In Kelo, the City of New London, CT, wanted to condemn private homes as "blighted" in order to tear them down and allow a developer to build higher-priced homes, a resort hotel, a conference center and retail complexes to complement a new Pfizer pharmaceutical plant in the area. Ironically, the developers in New London later backed out of the deal after the homes were seized and bulldozed, leaving the once quaint neighborhood a wasteland.

Nevertheless, a shortsighted Supreme Court gave city officials the go-ahead, ruling 5-4 that a city government — aligned with large corporate interests — could use the power of eminent domain to seize an entire neighborhood for development purposes, entire neighborhoods have been seized and bulldozed to make way for shopping malls, sports complexes and corporate offices.

"The specter of condemnation hangs over all property," warned Justice Sandra Day O'Connor in a stinging dissent. "Nothing is to prevent the State from replacing any Motel 6 with a Ritz-Carlton, any home with a shopping mall, or any farm with a factory."

Unfortunately, nothing has prevented the government from bulldozing its way through the Fifth Amendment in an effort to take from the middle and lower classes and fatten the coffers of the corporate elite.

In the wake of Kelo, at least 16 places of worship (which pay no taxes) were taken for private uses (which will generate tax dollars). Other attempted takings include the transfer of three family-owned seafood businesses to a larger private marina in Texas; the transfer of farmland to a shopping center anchored by a Lowe's in Illinois; developing 233 low-income and elderly families' properties into a senior community where townhouses cost more than $350,000 in New Jersey; and developing middle-income, single-family homes on the waterfront into more expensive condominiums in New Jersey.

Even Donald Trump has taken advantage of eminent domain, in one instance attempting to take an elderly woman's house to make way for a limousine parking lot.

As an investigative report by the Institute for Justice notes, over the course of five years, local governments used eminent domain to lay claim to more than 10,000 homes, businesses, churches and private land for private business development, including condemning a family's home so that the manager of a planned new golf course could live in it; evicting four elderly siblings from their home of 60 years for a private industrial park; and removing a woman in her 80s from her home of 55 years supposedly to expand a sewer plant, only to turn around and give her home to an auto dealership.

Fast forward to the present day, and you've got the government's pipeline projects as a prime example of eminent domain being employed for corporate gain.

All across the country, power companies have been given the green light to build massive gas and oil pipelines that crisscross the country, cutting through private and public lands, as well as unspoiled wilderness.

"Yet despite oft-repeated claims by politicians and oil executives about the danger of relying on foreign oil, this U.S. petroleum renaissance never was designed to make America energy self-sufficient," points out journalist Sandy Tolan. "A growing amount of that oil will end up in China, Japan, the Netherlands, even Venezuela."

So much for the public use, huh?

These pipeline projects which are getting underway in a dozen states have stirred up a hornet's nest of protests, most notably in Standing Rock, North Dakota, where activists attempting to block the completion of Dakota Access Pipeline were subjected to militarized police, riot and camouflage gear, armored vehicles, mass arrests, pepper spray, tear gas, drones, less-than-lethal weapons unleashed with deadly force, rubber bullets, water cannons, concussion grenades, arrests of journalists, intimidation tactics, and brute force.

Not all of the protests that have arisen in response to these pipeline projects hinge on environmental concerns, which are significant in and of themselves in light of water and ground contamination due to leaks and spills. Some of the protesters are landowners, simple farmers and homeowners who merely want the government and its corporate partners-in-crime to keep their grubby paws off their personal property.

In Virginia, activists have taken to tree sitting — living for weeks on end in platforms suspended above the ground in trees — as a form of protest over the devastation that is being wrought by these pipelines.

These acts of civil disobedience come at a costly price.

Pipeline and forestry officials have been working hard to make life as difficult as possible for the protesters, allegedly blocking their access to food and water and medical supplies, shining floodlights into the trees at all hours of the night, creating ground disturbances to dislodge their nests, and urging the courts to levy heavy fines for each day that the work to clear the forests for the pipeline is delayed.

Here's what one resident of Roanoke, VA, wrote to me about the manner in which the Mountain Valley Pipeline is being inflicted on his community:

"Our small community has been invaded by private security and a fully militarized local police department. Some families up here have land grants from the King, predating the formation of the Commonwealth. Mountain Valley Pipeline has begun cutting trees and has brought in private military contractors similar to what was used in North Dakota. MVP is only offering to pay pennies on the dollar. They are basically using the power of government to steal this land for private profit. What has ensued was the county positioning

Saving for College? Consider a 529 Plan

FINANCIAL FOCUS

JEFF BURDICK

Do you know about 529 savings plans? If not, you are not alone – although these plans have been around since 1996, many people are still unaware of them. And that's unfortunate, because a 529 plan can be a valuable tool for anyone who wants to help a child, grandchild, friend or other family member save for education expenses.

Here are some of the key benefits of a 529 plan:

Potential tax advantages – A 529 plan's earnings are not subject to federal income taxes, as long as withdrawals are used for qualified education expenses (tuition, room and board, etc.) of the designated beneficiary, such as your child or grandchild. (You will be subject to ordinary income taxes, plus a 10 percent federal penalty, on the earnings portion of withdrawals not used for qualified education expenses.)

High contribution limits – Contribution limits are generally quite high for most states' 529 plans. However, you could possibly incur gift tax consequences if your contributions, plus any other gifts, to a particular beneficiary exceed $15,000 during a single year.

Ability to switch beneficiaries – As the old song goes, "The future is not ours to see." You might name a particular child or grandchild as a beneficiary of a 529 savings plan, only to see him or her decide not to go to college after all. But as the owner of the plan, you generally may be able to switch beneficiaries whenever you like, right up to the point when they start taking withdrawals. (To make this switch non-taxable and penalty-free, you must designate a new beneficiary who is a member of the same family as the original beneficiary.)

Freedom to invest in any state's plan – You can invest in the 529 plan offered by any state, regardless of where you live. But if you invest in your own state's plan, you might receive some type of state tax benefit, such as a deduction or credit. Additional benefits also may be available.

Flexibility in changing investments – You can switch investment options in your 529 plan up to twice a year. Or, if you'd rather take a more hands-off approach, you could select an automatic age-based option that starts out with a heavier emphasis on growth-oriented investments and shifts toward less risky, fixed-income vehicles as the beneficiary approaches college age. While a 529 plan clearly offers some benefits, it also raises some issues about which you should be aware. For example, when colleges compute financial aid packages, they may count assets in a 529 plan as parental assets, assuming the parents are the plan owners. To clarify the impact of 529 plans on potential financial aid awards, you might want to consult with a college's financial aid officer.

One final note: In previous years, 529 plans were limited to eligible colleges, universities and trade schools, but starting in 2018, you can also use up to $10,000 per year, per beneficiary, from a 529 plan to pay for tuition expenses at public, private or religious elementary and secondary schools. (Not all states recognize K-12 expenses as qualifying for 529 plan benefits, so consult your local tax advisor before investing.)

Education is a great investment in a child's future. And to make that education more affordable, you might want to make your own investment in a 529 plan.

Tantasqua Regional Youth Soccer — U10 Division
3 boys find offense in loss to Leicester

A hard-charging Tantasqua Regional Youth Soccer U10, Division 3 team took on the visitors from Leicester this past Saturday (May 19) at Brimfield Elementary. Coach Pat Riley fielded a 3-3 formation with four substitutes.

Emmett Miranda started the game in net, with Charley Mayo, Zachary Beane and Nathaniel Ventimiglia deployed across the back line. Joseph Gomes, Jeremy Ventimiglia and Jack Riley made up the front line. Hunter Bercume, Brody Bouchard, Gavin Espinoza and Ben Percival eagerly awaited their turns in the dreary, 50-degree weather to contribute from the bench.

The first half was very back and forth. Tantasqua's defense didn't let much go through to Miranda, and the Leicester goalie made some great stops on the other end. Leicester scored first, but Tantasqua countered with a pass combination from Percival to Gomes to Riley, who scored to make it 1-1. It remained tied going into the half.

The scoring opened up in the second frame as both teams couldn't find their defensive gel from the first half. Leicester scored right after the kick-off, but then Bouchard connected with Bercume to bring things back to even. Again Leicester scored, only to have Beane recover a bad clear and bury it in the back of Leicester's net to knot it up at 3 apiece. Leicester then capitalized on a rebound off of Mayo taking his turn in net, but Riley notched his second goal of the game on a breakaway to bring Tantasqua even again at 4 aside. Leicester then scored two unanswered goals off of strong play from their forward line and gained the away victory, 6-4.

a mobile command center right across from my restaurant, and scores of police in full tactical dress being deployed. They wasted no time in hooking up with the MVP private security and a long list of offenses then began against the residents and land owners of Bent Mountain, who now find themselves subject to arrest for walking in their own driveway, taking pictures of the pipeline companies ever-changing survey lines and path of destruction, or in more than one case, for confronting MASKED ARMED MEN ON THEIR PROPERTY IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT. It is AMAZING that nobody has been shot yet! One of my neighbors was accosted on his own back porch by police for photographing the MVP surveyors continually moving the corridor of their easement. I have even had armed private security trespassing on my property miles away in neighboring Floyd County. I am all for infrastructure. However, I am not for the taking of people's private land for profit, using the force and power of government, far outside of the bounds of the Constitution.

It takes a lot of gall to trespass onto someone's private property, tear up their land, cut down their trees, pollute their air and water, prevent them from moving freely on their own property, threaten them with fines and arrests for challenging the intrusion, and then force them to pay (by way of taxes) to retain ownership of the property or sell it cheaply or at a loss so it can be torn down and used for some purpose that the government deems more beneficial to its bottom line."

That's how little respect the government has for our rights.

It used to be that you could post a "No Trespassing" sign on your property to send the message that no one could venture onto your private property without your permission. As the Tennessee Supreme Court recognized in State v. Christensen, "a homeowner who posts a 'No Trespassing' sign is simply making explicit what the law already recognizes: that persons entering onto another person's land must have a legitimate reason for doing so or risk being held civilly, or perhaps even criminally, liable for trespass."

Unfortunately, American taxpayers have become trespassers on their own property thanks to the government's ongoing land grabs and utter disregard for property rights.

So much for that whole pipedream about one's home being one's castle.

When it comes right down to it, the right to property is the first — and last — right, and perhaps the most inherent. The undermining and dissolution of this critical right may well prove to be one of the few things to rouse the American people to action.

As polls show, Americans have been willing to accept limitations on their rights to free speech, privacy and due process, as well as other important freedoms, in exchange for the phantom promise of security.

Yet whether they live in a modest two-bedroom walkup in the Bronx or a mansion in Bel Air, Americans have not been quite as willing to barter away their right to property. In this way, we are not so far removed from the revolutionary spirit that saw a ragtag assortment of colonists standing up to the military might of Great Britain.

The signing of the Declaration of Independence marked a new beginning for our nation. It signaled a shift in the balance of power from one in which the people served an elite ruling class to one in which government was instituted to serve the people. The government's role would not be to create or define the people's inherent rights but rather to guarantee their protection.

As the Declaration states, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

The Declaration, which embodied all the passion, outrage and noble ideals of the day, could easily have ended there. But the Founders understood that in order for the newly born nation to survive, it would need more than revolutionary sentiment. It would require a government that existed to serve the people, not itself, and a contract to guarantee basic liberties and bind the union together.

Thus was the U.S. Constitution born in the summer of 1787. It sprang forth from the experiences of a revolutionary generation, still wary of the strong arm of government. And from that wariness came the Bill of Rights.

The first ten amendments to our Constitution are intended as a blueprint to keep the government in its place, off our backs and away from our property.

For early Americans, the right to own property was fundamental to all other rights.

Mind you, the term "property" is much more fundamental and personal than just with land ownership. It refers to a kind of sovereignty over one's life and possessions—especially one's money.

Again, the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution states that "No person shall be…deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

Property is grouped in the same category as life and liberty in the Fifth Amendment because it is difficult to enjoy life and liberty without the stability, security and assurances that property provides. Private property, at a minimum, checks governmental power for it provides the citizen a right of space where even government agents cannot intrude without proper authority.

At its core, the American dream is about gaining sovereignty over one's life and property. Without this sovereignty—this unshakeable guarantee of ownership and dominion, even over one's own life—there can be no true liberty or freedom.

This most sacred of rights is under siege.

More than 200 years after early Americans went to war over their right to life, liberty and property, "we the people" have been reduced to little more than serfs in bondage, indentured servants, and sharecroppers.

If the government can tell you what you can and cannot do within the privacy of your home, whether it relates to what you eat, what you smoke or whom you love, you're not the King or Queen in your little castle.

If government officials can fine and arrest you for growing vegetables in your front yard, installing solar panels on your roof, and raising chickens in your backyard, you no longer have any property interests in your home.

If school officials can punish your children for what they do or say while at home or in your care, your children are not your own—they are the property of the state.

If government agents can invade your home, break down your doors, kill your dog, damage your furnishings and terrorize your family, your property is no longer private and secure—it belongs to the government.

Likewise, if police can forcefully draw your blood, strip search you, and probe you intimately, your body is no longer your own, either.

This is what a world without true property rights looks like, where the lines between private and public property have been so blurred that private property is reduced to little more than something the government can use to control, manipulate and harass you to suit its own purposes, and you the homeowner and citizen have been reduced to little more than a tenant in bondage to an inflexible landlord.

In other words, we're slaves.

If you have no choice, no voice, and no real options when it comes to the government's claims on your property and your money, you're not free.

You're not free if the government can seize your home and your car (which you've bought and paid for) over nonpayment of taxes.

You're not free if government agents can freeze and seize your bank accounts and other valuables if they merely "suspect" wrongdoing.

And you're certainly not free if the IRS gets the first cut of your salary to pay for government programs over which you have no say.

After all, a government that doesn't respect the rights of its citizens will have even less regard for their property, be it land, money or personhood.

So where does that leave us?

Battling for our lives, liberties and property.

Questions about who has ultimate control over our money, how much of it can be claimed by government and how it gets spent go to the heart of the battle over property rights.

Remember, governments generate no wealth on their own. Any resources that they have at their disposal have been appropriated from the original producers of that wealth, the citizens.

This fundamental truth has largely been downplayed over the years, because the government doesn't want us to remember that it exists to serve at our pleasure and for our common good.

Yet any government that ceases to serve this function risks being declared illegitimate.

It happened once before.

It can happen again.

All it takes is the right spark to start a revolution.

Worcester community is a key reason we are recognizing her today, and we thank her for that service."

The 29 Who Shine awards are presented at the start of each commencement season to students from each of the Commonwealth's 29 public campuses, made up of 15 community colleges, nine state universities, and the five campuses of the University of Massachusetts. On hand to recognize them was Governor Charlie Baker, other state officials, and leaders of each sector of the higher education system.

"The '29 Who Shine' awards are an important recognition of the impressive work Massachusetts' college students do to make the Commonwealth's workforce the best in the country," says Governor Charlie Baker.

"The 29 honorees represent a wide-range of academic programs from across the Commonwealth," says Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. "Seeing young people like these contribute so much to their communities, assures us that the future of our state remains bright."

The 29 public college and university campuses in the Commonwealth selected the honorees for the "29 Who Shine" awards based on criteria established by the Department of Higher Education. Students are required to be state residents who have strong academic profiles and a record of civic leadership and engagement.

Novack is dedicated to helping her community through support of at-risk youth. At Girls, Inc. in Worcester, Janet focused on improving the futures of young women, in part with self-created, hands-on STEM lesson plans for eighth and ninth grade girls. Janet also supported Worcester students as a tutor at North High School. In the Advancement Via Individual Determination (AVID) program at North, she devised personalized success strategies with students focusing in time management and study skills. Janet also volunteered with the Boston Debate League teaching low-income students critical thinking skills. She was also a "Girls Who Code" volunteer at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. On campus at Worcester State, Janet worked with the Alternatives for Individual Development (AID) program as a mentor for at-risk, first-generation college students. At the University's Math Center, she has tutored almost two hundred students. Janet plans to earn a Ph.D. in quantitative methodology of sociology. She hopes to teach and research sociological statistics at a Massachusetts state university, with a specialization in income-based and gender inequality and quantitative methods.

came to me with this information and I could see their determination."

Unfortunately, Gimas feels the situation as a whole "is no better off because it's been politics as usual for 20 years." But that kind of student activism is one of the major things that gives Gimas hope today, particularly in light of the recent Parkland protests.

"They aren't giving up, and people are threatened when [other] people stand up for their values," she said. In general, that gives her the feeling the issues are fixable, if the training of school administrators and others in the system changes.

Specifically, she argues the key is teaching "self-efficacy" – not in the sense of knuckling down to get the job done, but "upholding one's own ethics" – in higher educational and other settings. After her own experiences, she went to graduate school and did doctoral research on how well schools "prepare administrators to uphold integrity." She said she found they didn't do so all that well.

"They don't all prepare [administrators]. You can take 100 leadership courses across the board, but very few include ethics," she said. "Ethics takes a back seat to politics and saving their own skin. That exists in every domain."

In her text, she puts it this way: "For those of you in education, you know that far too many districts are 'old boy networks' and one person alone, especially a female, does not stand a chance to achieve justice. Those who want to help you are petrified they will lose their jobs so they ignore you to save themselves. Can't really blame people – self-efficacy is not a natural born trait."

For school committee members, Gimas said she feels they should be required to have a minimum of two years of college. State law doesn't allow such a requirement for elected officials, who only need to be citizens and registered voters in most cases, so such a change would require the voters to emphasize it as something they want from candidates.

In the schools themselves, she adds, the current standardized testing system doesn't really work. Because various job factors are dependent on MCAS performance, teachers' and principal's jobs are routinely "threatened," and "the loser here is the student, totally the student." To her, there is a place for some kind of testing, but to design it "you have to look at your community. It should be community-based."

Gimas said she's now working on a follow-up book looking at how people can "get to the point of upholding their values."

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Smart planning means all members of the family can walk away from vacations with fond memories.

Making the most of family vacations

Family vacations can seem like daunting endeavors to organize, as planners must cater to each member of the family and their individual needs. Family vacations can cost several thousand dollars, which only adds to the pressure planners may be under. But careful planning makes it possible to simplify the process so more time can be spent resting, relaxing and having fun.

CHILD-FRIENDLY HOTEL

One of the "musts" when booking a family vacation is finding the right accommodations. This often means booking rooms at family-friendly hotels. Things to look for when seeking hotels include amenities like swimming pools and recreation areas, nearby parks and other attractions that kids can enjoy, and easy access to stores that sell necessities.

When booking a room, request one that is close to the elevator or the breakfast buffet. If you have youngsters who nap or go to bed early, try to book adjoining rooms or one-bedroom suites. This way the kids are tucked in but accessible, allowing adults to enjoy their downtime.

PLAN THE TRIP TOGETHER

Get the entire family involved when planning a vacation and let children who are old enough to have a say in some of the travel plans. Let kids choose some activities, pick some restaurants or even select which seats to sit in on the airplane.

PACK AS LIGHTLY AS POSSIBLE

Pack light and, if possible, buy some necessities when you arrive. Few things can be as headache-inducing as dragging along extra luggage with kids in tow. Choosing a hotel or resort with laundry facilities can be advantageous to active families who may get messy along the way.

ALLOW FOR DOWNTIME

While it's beneficial to have an itinerary, leave some moments for spontaneity and rest. You don't want to return home so tired from the trip that you need another break. Use downtime as opportunities for kids to lead the way.

TRAVEL OFF THE BEATEN PATH

Mature children may like sights and sounds that aren't necessarily designed for kids. So while it may be tempting to stick to big-name resorts that cater to families, there's plenty of enjoyment to be had exploring lesser-known islands or villages. And while you're at it, introduce children to native cuisines so they can broaden their culinary palates.

RELIVE THE MEMORIES

Make lasting vacation memories more by putting together a photo album or scrapbook.

Cruising tips and tricks

CAPTION: A cruise can be an ideal vacation for seniors who have the time to get away.

Cruising can be an ideal vacation for people of any age, but particularly for seniors. Cruises combine all-inclusive meal packages with accommodations, breathtaking ports of call and pre-arranged activities, so vacationers do not have to lift a finger for days on end. Cruising also can be a social activity, meaning singletons can meet up with other like-minded people and enjoy the cruising experience together.

Cruise Lines International Association, a global organization advocating for the cruising community, found that 25.8 million passengers expected to take a cruise in 2017, and various cruise companies invested more than $6.8 billion in new ocean vessels.

Whether a person is new to cruising or is a seasoned ocean or river traveler, there are always techniques to try to score great deals or enjoy the experience even further. Consider these tips and tricks, courtesy of Royal Caribbean, The Cruise Critic, the Travel Channel, and other vacationing experts.

• Research the ships, and not just the cruise lines. Cruise lines each offer their own amenities and are known for certain features. One cruise line may be a better match for young singles, while others may cater to families. In addition, certain ships may have their own special features such as water slides, athletic events, casinos, and more. Choose a ship that meets your needs.

• Arrive the night before. There's no need to rush to the port to board the ship. Extend the vacation a little further by arriving a night or two before and checking into a nearby hotel. Some hotels may offer free parking or shuttle service to the ship.

• Choose a close port. Select a port within driving distance to avoid airline costs and the extra hassles of coordinating luggage and travel to the port.

• Book dining ahead of time. Cruise ships often have a main dining room and then specialty restaurants. If you want a particular meal, make reservations before leaving port. Certain restaurants may offer discounts or perks, such as a free bottle of wine or premiere seating.

• Understand what's included. Cruise ships have many foods and drinks that are included in the packaged price. Certain branded items, such as specialty coffees or ice creams, may be available at an additional charge, as are premium drinks. But chances are you can find a free, similar version elsewhere on the ship.

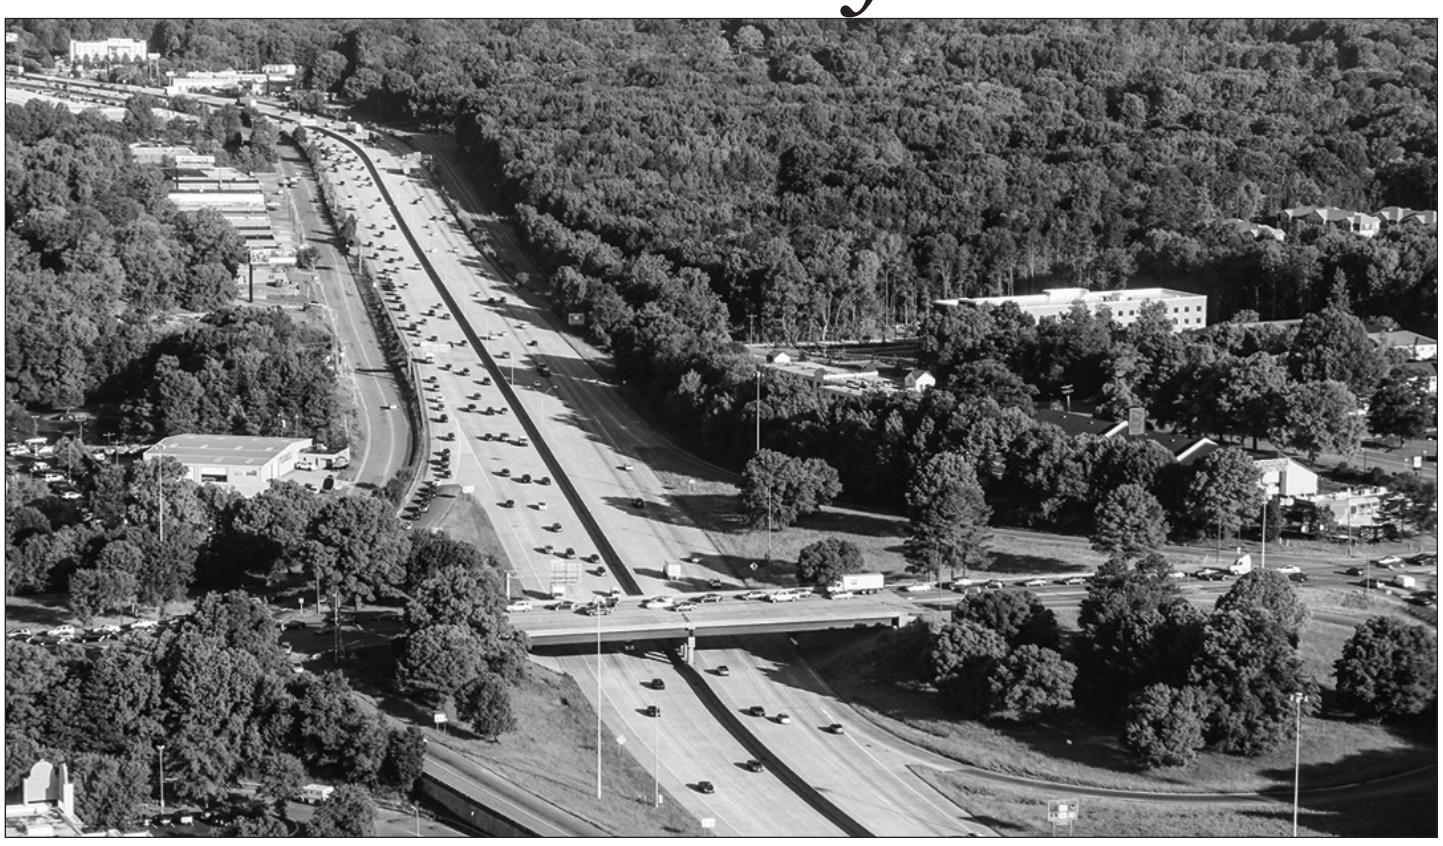
• Explore special discounts. When shopping for a cruise, see if there are discounts available for seniors, teachers, people in the military, or those who belong to certain clubs. Cruises often love to incentivize, so it pays to ask about discount pricing.

• Make a list of activities. It can be easy to get overwhelmed by all of the offerings on a cruise ship, so much so that there's some stress over trying to fit it all in. Recognize that you can't see or hear it all, and prioritize what's important to you. Make sure you have plenty of time to relax.

• Book at the right time. Cruises may be more available after Labor Day when kids go back to school and the weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas when others are too busy to travel.

Cruising can be an ideal vacation for travelers who are savvy enough to do their research.

3 Memorial Day weekend travel tips



Memorial Day weekend is one of the busiest travel weekends of the year. In 2017, the automotive group AAA estimated that 40 million Americans would travel 50 miles or more on Memorial Day weekend. Those estimates also projected that 34.6 million vehicles would be used to make those trips.

Often referred to as "the unofficial beginning of summer," Memorial Day and the weekend that precedes it has become synonymous with beach trips and backyard barbecues. Travelers who want to avoid traffic jams and ensure their weekends get off on the right foot can benefit from employing these three travel-savvy strategies.

1. START THE WEEKEND EARLY.

In its "State of American Vacation 2017" survey, Project: Time Off found that 662 million vacation days were unused in 2016. People traveling for Memorial Day who typically leave some vacation days on the table can start their weekends early this year. Many offices close early the Friday before Memorial Day, and workers who aren't so lucky may just leave work early, meaning Friday afternoon traffic figures to be heavy. By leaving Thursday afternoon or evening, travelers can avoid the Friday rush to the beach.

2. TAKE PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION.

Travelers who can't take an extra day off or leave work early the Friday before Memorial Day may want to consider taking public transportation to their beach destinations instead of driving themselves. In 2016, the U.S.-based data firm Inrix noted that a traffic-free Friday jaunt from New York City to Long Island's East end would take 90 minutes, while the same trip would take three hours and 40 minutes on the Friday of Memorial Day weekend. Travelers who can't leave early can save themselves from the stress of holiday traffic jams by letting someone else do the navigating.

3. BE PATIENT AND DEPART ON SATURDAY MORNING.

Travelers who can be patient may find that waiting to depart for their destinations until Saturday can save them from dealing with much of the stress of traveling on Memorial Day weekend. The benefits of being patient may depend on where travelers live, as the Inrix study noted that Friday was the busiest day to leave Los Angeles on Memorial Day weekend, while San Diego residents tended to deal with the most traffic on Saturday. An added benefit of waiting until Saturday is the likelihood that such travelers will not return home until Tuesday, avoiding traffic on Monday, which tends to be the busiest return travel day of the weekend.

Memorial Day weekend travel tends to be hectic. But savvy travelers with some flexibility can take steps to make their trips less stressful.

Tips for a successful driving vacation

Driving vacations can be budget-friendly ways to get away from home for a few days. Such excursions can be customized according to families' particular schedules and interests. To make the most of driving vacations, travelers can employ these tips.

• Map the destination. Figure out the duration of the trip ahead of time, jotting down approximate times of travel. This will help you break up the ride so you can include stops for food, bathroom breaks and fill-ups.

• Plan food and accommodations. Some people like to plan road trips as they go. Those who prefer to have greater control can decide where to stop in advance, researching hotels, attractions and dining establishments.

• Be firm with departure times. Make a plan to leave at a particular hour and stick to it. This will help to keep the trip on schedule.

• Share the driving. Know your driving limits and share driving duties with someone else who can take over if or when fatigue sets in.

• Pack stuff for kids to do. Prevent or delay the "are we there yets" with movies, puzzles, books, and music for children. Pack headphones so their devices will not disturb others.

• Schedule a tuneup beforehand. Before departing, ensure your vehicle is in good working order to reduce the likelihood of a breakdown. Make sure you have a spare tire and tire-changing tools, just in case.

• Don't pack too much. Leave some room in the vehicle for souvenirs picked up along the way. Take advantage of hotel laundry facilities to keep clothes fresh and to avoid having to pack too many outfits.

• Adjust as you go. Even the best plans need to be modified on occasion. Keep an open mind and be flexible so you can enjoy any unexpected wonders that may pop up. Flexibility also can help you adapt to traffic or detours.

Travel

Plan for a successful family vacation

Vacations provide a chance to rest, recharge and experience new locales. Family vacations also provide an opportunity to make lasting memories parents and their children will remember forever.

According to the 2016 American Express Spending and Saving Tracker, 70 percent of Americans expected to travel for leisure in 2016. In addition, the Family Travel Association notes that between 35 and 40 percent of family travel is multigenerational. That means extended families comprise a large part of the travel market, even if trips are not associated with traditional family vacations. "Experimental travel," or visiting locations that stray from the norm, has grown in popularity as people are more concerned with experiences than simply seeing a particular location.

Family trips are one of the fastest-growing segments of the tourism industry. Families traveling together can heed the following advice to ensure their next trip is successful.

• Be flexible with travel dates. Traveling during off-peak seasons can mean fewer crowds and lower prices. Consider taking the kids out of school during a random week of the year rather than during scheduled breaks, such as winter vacation or spring break. Prices often spike during popular travel times and dip during less popular times, such as when kids are in school.

• Consider a vacation rental. Look beyond the traditional hotel for accommodations. Prices on private rentals may be comparable or less expensive while providing travelers with more space. This is especially valuable to large families who want a little more breathing room. Kids can retreat to one area while the adults hang out in another, something that may not always be possible in standard hotels. Renting a condo or home with a kitchen also means families can prepare their own meals, which helps to curb costs.

• Encourage input from all. One person's idea of a good time may differ from everyone else's. Poll family members regarding their vision of a dream vacation and spend time trying to cater to at least one of these ideas per person. Make certain children have a say as well, as they'll be more likely to go along with plans that they were involved in making.

• Extend the fun to others. One way to maximize enjoyment is to plan vacations with other families. This way children have a group of friends with whom they can share the fun and different experiences. What's more, parents can enjoy adult time with friends. Some resorts discount for large groups, so this can be a cost-saving measure as well.

• Expect some hiccups. Vacations can be relaxing, but getting there sometimes can be a challenge. Go into the vacation process recognizing the potential for traffic or airport delays and plan accordingly to keep children occupied. Pack plenty of snacks as well.

Family vacations are an entertaining way to spend time together. With advanced planning and some patience, the end results can be well worth the work.

Campers' guide to RV care and maintenance

Sometimes referred to as recreational vehicles, travel trailers or campers, RVs are popular. According to the Recreation Vehicle Industry Association, RV shipments through February 2017 totaled 73,287 units. This represents an increase of 8.6 percent from the same period in 2016. In fact, RV shipments have increased for seven consecutive years.

This popularity might be driven by the affordability and convenience of vacationing in an RV. Essentially hotels or homes on wheels, campers provide many amenities in a compact package. RVs can be enjoyable, but mechanical failures and other problems can happen.

Regular maintenance, care and examination is necessary to avoid trip interruptions. According to the recreational vehicle advice gurus at Do It Yourself RV, RVs require all of the standard maintenance of a car plus much more.

• Schedule oil changes and filter replacement. To keep the hard-working engine of an RV operating at optimal capacity, oil changes and air filter replacements should be conducted at regular intervals and in adherence to the owner's manual. Such maintenance prevents engines from seizing.

• Keep it covered. RV roofs are susceptible to sun and environmental damage. Store the RV under a steel RV carport or cover it using a product specifically designed for an RV. Remember to routinely inspect and clean the roof of the camper as well.

• Check for leaks. Look under the RV and/or tow vehicle for any signs of leaks. Repair leaks promptly. Transmission fluid leaks can lead to vehicle fires. When checking for leaks, check fluid levels to ensure they're at the proper level. This includes engine oil, transmission fluid, power steering fluid, windshield washer fluid, and brake fluid.

• Check radiator coolant. Radiator coolant is another important fluid to check. Antifreeze protects the engine in cold temperatures, but it also helps the engine run cooler in hot temperatures. Wait for the RV to cool down before checking fluids.

• Periodically run the generator. RV generators shouldn't go unused for too long. Gasoline has a short shelf life, and after time it can break down, condense and damage the generator's internal components. Run the generator if the RV has not been used for awhile. Be sure to change the oil and filter of the generator regularly as well.

• Drain and clean water and waste systems. Water systems can benefit from being drained periodically and flushed with clean, fresh water. The disposal waste system needs to be drained as indicated in the owner's manual.

• Lubricate joints and slide-out rails. Avoid rust and corrosion by spraying moving parts with a lubricant spray.

RVs can be a home away from home while vacationing or touring the country. With proper maintenance, they can run like new for years.
