Young Marines pay tribute to Code Talkers

WEBSTER — With 2019 being the 80th anniversary of the start of World War II, this year has seen various commemorations in various nations of events of that conflict.

One of those sent local youths to a place thousands of miles from any battlefield, to a place of births rather than deaths. Last month, area Young Marines traveled to the birthplace of the Navajo Code Talkers, Native American soldiers who played a critical role in the war effort.

At a time when both sides were doing their best to break each other's communication codes (and we'd already broken Germany's), the Navajo people provided the Allies with an unbreakable one — their language. The enemy could break a code, but had to learn a language, and never did.

"The complexity of Navajo linguistics allowed it to become an ideal choice to be used in code due to the lack of documentation made available for learning to speak the language and ability for the same words to mean multiple things based on sound," www.navajocodetalkers.org states.

One of those who went was Webster's Aaron Zalewski, who has been a Young Marine for four and a half years and is now the Natchaug River platoon's master sergeant. He described the three days with

Celebrate recovery at upcoming Task Force event

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — There's been a lot of publicity in recent years of the opioid crisis, and legal cases are afoot to determine liability. But to Rev. Janice Ford, one thing that needs more publicity and support is those who recover from it.

In that vein, the Webster Opioid Task Force is celebrating National Recovery Month with "Reclaiming Lives! Living in Recovery" at Gladys E Kelly Library on Wednesday, Sept 18, from 6-8 p.m.

"We did something last year and it was good, but nowhere as big as this will be," Ford said. "... There's a lot of information out there about the crisis itself, but we wanted to celebrate people in recovery."

Specifically, she said the event will include several residents of her sober house, Reconciliation House, and other organizations speaking about their experiences in recovery and "how it works to get back into the mainstream of life" after addiction.

For people just getting out of detox, sober houses or even jail, "it's really tough to find stable housing in a safe environment to come back into the community," Ford said.

One key issue is cost of rent; another is housing that won't re-expose them to the drugs or alcohol path they're trying to escape from.

"The disease of addiction is not just a problem for the person who's addicted, but it's a problem for the larger community," she noted.

Just like many other ills — cancer, pollution, etc. — "we want to see that community concern and wrap our arms around it. We're losing a whole generation to this."

Among the resources available on the 18th will be tables representing various support organizations, ranging from behavioral health providers to Narcan training and family support.

This comes at a time when an Oklahoma district court recently found Johnson & Johnson liable for $572 million in fines for "deceptively marketing addictive painkillers," according to an Aug. 26 Reuters report. The company is appealing the decision.

A similar case — a massive class-action suit involving hundreds of communities nationwide against several major firms, including Perdue Pharma, McKesson and others — is slowly working its way through Ohio courts. Many Massachusetts communities have signed on, and that case is seeking damages for the communities' costs of dealing with the opioid epidemic, among other things.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there have been "three distinct waves" of opioid deaths in the US since the 1990s: one starting around 1999 mostly caused by prescription drugs, the second in 2010 by heroin, and the third in 2013 featuring synthetic fentanyl (often combined with heroin, pills or cocaine). Since 1999, CDC reports, more than 400,000

Oxford paramedic and dispatcher Ricci Hall is entering his twenty-fifth year of service to the town.

Hall celebrating 25 years in Oxford

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

OXFORD — A lot can change in twenty-five years and for Oxford paramedic Ricci Hall he's seen it all. Now entering his 25th year of service in Oxford Hall has borne witness to changing leaderships, personnel, practices, facilities and especially communication seeing as he is a long-time dispatcher for the town as well.

Hall recalls beginning his work in Oxford in the '90s, helping many individuals who had served just as long for the department. Once 25 years felt like a potential eternity for the dispatcher, paramedic and part time patrolman and instructor but now, as he reaches the milestone himself, he has begun to look back on a quarter century of service to a community he holds dear to his heart.

"It's been great to see the professionalism increase over the past twenty-five years. There's always been quality people here in town and they've done a good job providing services, but it's also nice that we've moved to a full-time department and we've worked even harder to provide those services to the community. Our equipment has always been top notch. It's been a great twenty-five years full of many changes," Hall said.

Among the biggest changes is, of course, technology. As a dispatcher Hall has seen a shift from purely radio

Girl Scouts to offer new badges

HOLYOKE/WORCESTER — As the school year begins and families in central and western Massachusetts are considering extracurricular activities for their daughters, Girl Scouts is debuting 42 new badges for girls in grades K – 12 that allow them to make their own choices about how they want to experience and influence the world. The badges enhance the organization's existing girl-led programming, offering girls everything from adventuring in the snow or mountains to learning how to use coding to solve problems they care about. Girl Scout programming has long promoted independent decision making, which helps girls challenge themselves to move beyond their comfort zones, and build confidence in their leadership abilities.

Massachusetts (GSCWM) is inviting girls to join the fun and register for Girl Scouts. Providing countless opportunities for trying new things and exercising leadership skills through activities like building robots, participating in the Girl Scout Cookie Program, playing sports, and more, Girl Scouts is an exciting way to engage girls all year round.

Girl Scouts is open to all girls from kindergarten through grade 12. Look for Girl Scouts at your school's open house or check out the website www.gscwm.org for upcoming events and troops with openings.

Anyone over the age of 18 can become a Girl Scout volunteer. Girls cannot experience the positive impact of Girl Scouts without adult volunteers, and each adult who volunteers has the opportunity to make a real difference in the life of a girl. Girl Scout volunteers come from all walks of life; they are men, women, young professionals, retirees, college students, and more. Both girls and adult volunteers can join at any time of the year. people have died "from an overdose involving any opioid," nearly 60 percent of the 700,000 total drug-overdose deaths in that time.

Ford said she hopes the various lawsuits provide funds "to areas with the greatest concentration of people abused in this way by the pharmaceutical companies." Most importantly, there needs to be more money for recovery services of all kinds, particularly making more beds available for those in detox and recovery. She'd also like to see funds for research on addiction as a disease, genetic predisposition and related issues, as well as for training counselors and others to help those facing addiction.

"It's a national crisis for sure, but we can work our way out of it the way we've done for other issues," she said.

Webster seniors celebrate at Sheriff's Senior Picnic

Rep. Joe McKenna and Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis say hello to Webster seniors as they enjoy the festivities at the Sheriff's Annual Senior Picnic held on Aug. 17 at SAC Park in Shrewsbury SHREWSBURY — Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis had the distinct pleasure of hosting over one thousand senior citizens from throughout Worcester County for the Sheriff's Annual Senior Picnic held on Saturday, August 17th at SAC Park in Shrewsbury. The Sheriff's picnic has become a highly anticipated and beloved annual event for the county's senior community and this year drew a record crowd including a large contingent of over twenty seniors from the town of Webster.

"As Sheriff, hosting the Senior Picnic is one of the most special days of the year. It's a great honor to give back to our seniors who have given so much to their communities and it is wonderful to see the joy this day brings to so many people," Said Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis.

"I had a great time volunteering for Sheriff Lew's Senior Picnic. With over 1,200 seniors from around Worcester County, it's an amazing day. It was great to see so many friends from Webster and Oxford at the picnic too," said Rep. Joseph McKenna (R-Webster).

The picnic was sponsored by the Worcester County Reserve Deputy Sheriff's Association including donations by many local businesses and featured a traditional BBQ menu, cash bingo, raffle prizes, complimentary gift bags and music entertainment. More than 250 volunteers, including over 100 members of the Nichols College football team, were also on hand to assist with the high turnout. In addition to volunteering, the Bison athletes were also the recipient of a five hundred dollar donation check to their football program courtesy of the Worcester County Reserve Deputy Sheriff's Association and was presented to Coach Dale Olmsted by Sheriff Evangelidis.

"It is the great athletes of the Nichols College Football team that help make our Senior Picnic an incredible day for all. They provide us with such amazing energy helping with everything from serving lunches, handing out goodie bags, helping with Bingo to dancing with our seniors and so much more. We are incredibly grateful for their help and we are thrilled to present them with this donation check for their football program," said Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis.

The Sheriff also provided inmate labor to assist with the set up and break down of the highly attended event.

"We are thrilled it has become such a beloved annual tradition and I am grateful to the team that puts this together and the volunteers that help make this day happen," said Evangelidis.

communication to the use of more modern devices and computers to communicate which he said has made for a much stronger, more efficient system.

"Our 911 systems are improved, the ability to do computer aided dispatching has improved, so a lot of the technology has increased significantly over that time and made our jobs a lot easier," said Hall.

So, after all this time one has to wonder what keeps Hall so ingrained in Oxford. As with many who have chosen public service and safety as their career path, for Hall its about the people and the sense of community that comes with it.

"I think the people have been the best part. There have been some amazing, good, strong paramedics, firefighters and police officers in this town. Oxford is lucky. It really is. It has a great core of people here," Hall said. "I have no intent to leave the town or the department anytime soon. I get a lot of value out of servicing the community."

While he acknowledged it as a cliché, Hall said the best thing he gets from his service is giving back to the community and helping people through their tough times towards a better tomorrow.

SOUTHBRIDGE — To mark 20 years of helping pets in need, Second Chance Animal Services is hosting an anniversary celebration on Saturday, Oct. 5 at the Southbridge Hotel and Conference Center. Second Chance is inviting supporters, volunteers and animal lovers to join them for an evening of casino games, live music, auctions and raffles, delicious food and signature drinks by sponsor Tito's Handmade Vodka.

$400. And an idea. Today we are helping over 37,000 pets a year. We are now one of the largest animal welfare organizations in Massachusetts. We're revolutionizing animal welfare with our approach to keeping pets in their homes instead of only adopting them out of the shelter. It has been an amazing journey and I hope all of you will come out for this night of fun and getting together!" Blancato said.

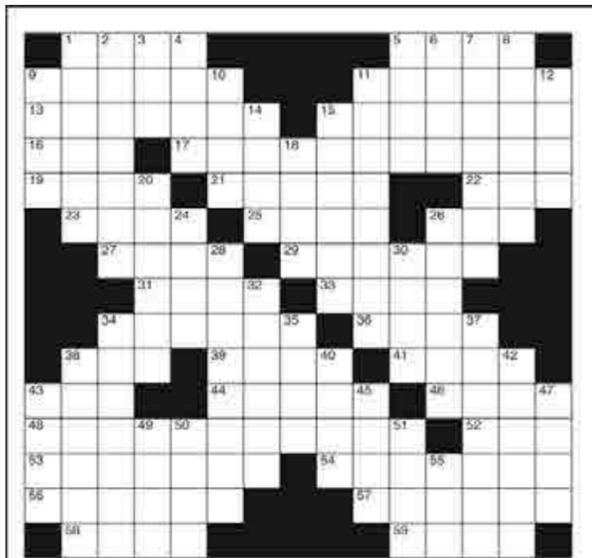

p.m., with live music and, weather permitting, a fire on the patio. Tickets are $60 and include starter casino money, and a bounty of food at various stations throughout the venue with appetizers, pasta, salad and carving stations, baked potato bar, cheesecake bar, make your own s'mores, and signature drinks brought to you by sponsor Tito's Handmade Vodka. Tickets are available online at www.secondchanceanimals.org and at the Adoption Center, 111 Young Rd., East Brookfield.

Second Chance started in 1999 as a small, volunteer shelter in East Brookfield. The event, also sponsored by RE/MAX Realtor Wendy Johnson and Idexx, will celebrate all of Second Chance's past accomplishments and all that they will accomplish in the future.

Second Chance Founder and CEO Sheryl Blancato is grateful to everyone who has been a part of the 20-year journey and is looking forward to celebrating with them.

"I want to thank everyone who has helped to bring the organization to what it is today. It is hard to imagine unless you saw the beginnings that we started with only

surviving Code Talkers (Aug 12-14) as “the greatest honor I’ve had in my life.”
“I saw how important Navajo people are not just to the war, but to our culture,” he said. “They have a really breath-taking story of their humility. ... They sacrificed themselves to save the American people.”

The Navajo, who call themselves Dine and their land Dine Bikeyah, are the largest Native American nation, with a reservation that straddles the Arizona/New Mexico border. Their common name is actually a corruption of a Tewa tribe word meaning “farm fields in the valley,” according to www.crowcanyon.org.

Archaeologist Stephen Plog estimates they arrived in that region from points north with the Apaches sometime in the 15th century (maybe as early as the 13th). Spanish records describe them as “dog nomads,” mobile groups who hunted bison, lived in tents and used dogs to pull travois loaded with their possessions,” he wrote in “Ancient Peoples of the American Southwest.” They later became farmers and herdsmen after Spanish horses, goats and sheep filtered into the area in the late 16th century, and frequently traded with the Hopi and other Pueblo peoples.

“The Navajo Indian culture thrived on the idea of animism which states that everything around us has a spirit, including trees, plants, animals, and inanimate objects,” www.navajocode-talkers.org states. “They believed that all of the elements had powers and that illness could be inflicted by disrupting the natural order of the world. The Yei Spirit is the name that the Navajo Indians use to refer to the higher being that mediates between the humans and the Great Spirit. This second higher being is responsible for controlling the elements, and is something of a traditional version of mother nature.”

One aspect of Navajo culture became apparent to outsiders as white America expanded westward – their warriors. In Nov 2015, Cindy Yurth of The Navajo Times newspaper described it as a “very reluctant warrior” tradition.

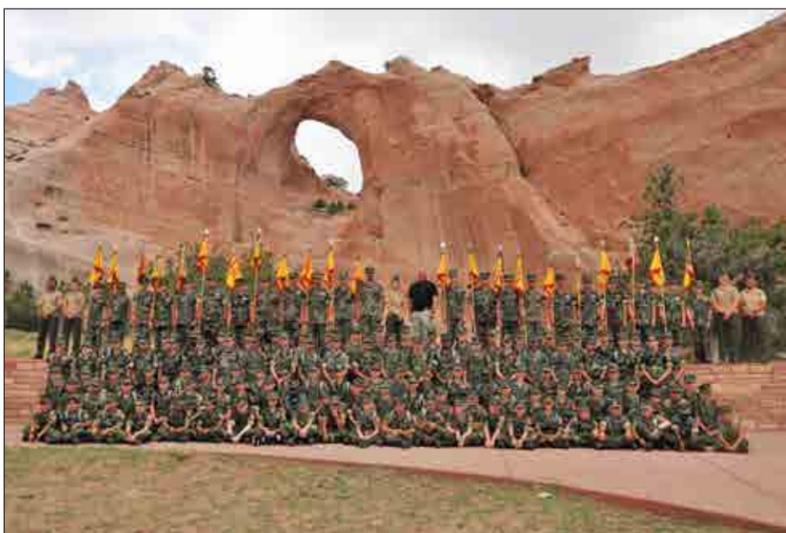

“Navajos have served – disproportionately to their population – in every American war since America was thrust upon them in the 1800s,” she wrote.

The Code Talkers were part of that trend. Although Zalewski did not get to spend much time talking to those who remain, he said the Young Marines’ event coordinator Brenda McNulty has been taking members to the reservation annually since 2006. McNulty connected with them the previous year, when she was among a group escorting Code Talkers during a ceremony honoring those who fought at Iwo Jima and Guam, he said.

According to the US National Archives’ Prologue Magazine website, the concept of recruiting Navajos as Code Talkers was born in 1942, when Phillip Johnston, who knew the language and culture, proposed it to the Navy and demonstrated it with four Navajos in Los Angeles.

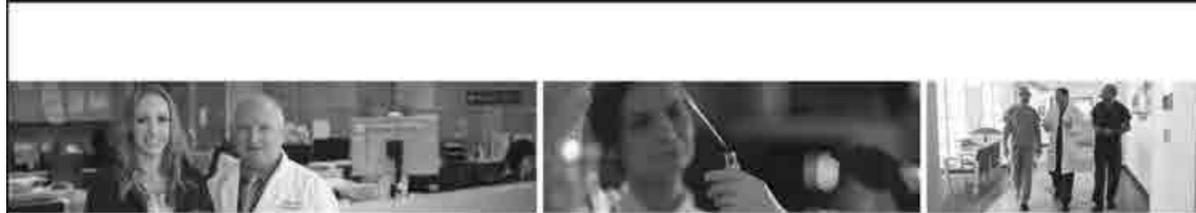

“[A]ccording to Johnston, the Navajo tribe was the only one that had not yet been infiltrated by Germans posing as students, art dealers, and anthropologists in order to study the various tribal dialects of American Indians,” Adam Jevic wrote. “This point was to become moot, as the code talkers were never deployed on the European front. But the statement nevertheless revealed the priorities of [Maj. General Clayton] Vogel and the military on the whole—to maintain the utmost secrecy and security in their communications.”

Young Marines from across the nation went to Window Rock, Az., capital of the Navajo Reservation, to honor the surviving Code Talkers in August.

Jevic estimates 375-420 Navajos served as Code Talkers during the war, all in the Pacific. Their service was classified until 1968, and Congress honored them with gold and silver medals in 2000. Five of them remain alive.

What's hot at auction?

I've discussed items that are selling well and those that aren't in several past columns. Our August auction showed that many of the antiques and collectibles that have sold well over the past decade continue to do so. I thought I'd share some of the results from that auction in this article.

ANTIQUES,
COLLECTIBLES
WAYNE TUISKULA

I've mentioned in previous columns that most furniture isn't selling well, but mid-century modern furniture is an exception. Mid-century pieces sold very well last month. A pair of Conant Ball club chairs attributed to Russel Wright sold for $300. A dining room set with sideboard also attributed to Wright sold for $500. A mid-century Danish Teak dining set and sideboard by Bernhard Pedersen brought $1,000.

Older artwork drew strong bidding at auction. A small painting by listed artist Edward Potthast sold for $1,000 to a telephone bidder. An early 18th century folk art painting of a little girl went for $3,000.

Better collectibles and ephemera drew plenty of bidder interest. A 1960's "Great Gorloo" battery operated toy went for $270. A Victorian era trade card album sold for $275 and another from the same estate brought $400. Older superhero comics continue to sell well. The Incredible Hulk comic book issues 3, 5, and 6 brought $675, despite being well read and worn copies. A group of nine 1878-CC Morgan silver dollars topped the coins being offered when they sold for $3,100.

Sterling silver prices have been trending upward and flatware brought figures well above silver melt prices. A small ornate Stieff partial flatware set went for $925. A larger International Silver Wedgwood pattern set reached $2,700.

Also noteworthy in our August auction was a 1979 Datsun 280 ZX with a little over 64,000 miles. After telephone and in-house bidding, it reached $6,500.

Jewelry was the top selling item in our auction last month. A 14-karat white gold estate jewelry pin shaped like a bee sold for $275. A platinum and diamond ladies watch went for $650. Quality loose diamonds and diamond rings led the way at auction. A ring with 3 diamonds brought $2,000, despite having been appraised as clarity enhanced. An approximately 2-carat pear shaped diamond had considerable wear but still sold for $2,900. A brilliant cut .95 carat loose diamond reached $3,000. A deep cut 1.46 carat diamond ring fetched $4,000. A loose 2.3 carat diamond that we sold had a chip. The appraisal report recommended it be recut to a smaller size because of the chip. Despite the flaw, it sold for $8,500 proving that diamonds continue to shine at auction.

I hope to meet some of you at my "Evaluating your Antiques" class at the Bay Path Evening School in Charlton on Sept. 17. I'll be lecturing at the Auburn Public Library at 10 a.m. on Sept. 21 and I'll be back again on Oct. 5 for appraisals. My next appraisal event takes place at 1 p.m. on Sept. 21 for the Finnish Heritage Society Sovittaja in Rutland. I'll be lecturing at the Worcester Senior Center on Oct. 16 from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Another appraisal event takes place at the Shrewsbury Historical Society on Oct. 23. Please see www.centralmassauctions.com for details on these and other events.

A group of Seniors from Paxton and surrounding towns are planning a trip this year to Italy. The group plans to leave Paxton on Sept. 9, with transportation provided to Logan and return. Our flight will take us to Rome, Italy for 10 days visiting many historical sites of Italy. Rome has many beautiful attractions that many of us have not seen on previous visits. After two nights in Rome, we will move on to one night in Perugia where we will have the opportunity to visit Assisi, the birthplace of St. Francis of Assisi. Following our stay in Perugia, we move on to Florence, "the Cradle of Italian Renaissance," where we will view Michelangelo's incredible statue of David. After two nights in beautiful Florence, we will move on to Venice. On the way to Venice, we will stop at a 12th century castle and learn about the famous Tuscan wines and enjoy a cooking class and lunch. Next we are off to Venice for two nights. During that time, we have an opportunity to visit many of the wonderful sites of the Canal City.

After Venice, our next and last night will be Milan where we will have an opportunity to visit and shop at the "Quadrilatero della Moda," Milan's high-fashion district. We will depart for home from Milan.

We cannot hold God to promises He never made

God always keeps His promises. This is the kind of statement one would expect a pastor to say. But, is it true? Sometimes it feels like God does not do what He promises to do. When we experience pain of any kind, or witness the experiences of pain in the lives of others, it is difficult to not question whether or not God does in fact keep the promises He has made.

BEYOND THE PEWS

 REV. BARRY A. JUDD
 PASTOR OXFORD UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

had to break to them the sad news that we were in fact not going to McDonald's, because I had never made the promise to do so in the first place. I believe my daughter thought that if she just swayed enough of a crowd in my household to expect the promise she desired, it would force me to keep a promise I had not made. Fortunately for her, it did not work. I have known many people whose faith was shattered because they held God to promises that He never made. "If I go to Church, God will give me all the desires I want and protect me from anything bad happening" is a promise God never made. Neither did He promise we would understand in this lifetime how He works. However, praise be to God, He has given a promise that is even better. "For I am sure that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord." Now there's a promise God actually made!

 Pastor Barry Judd, Oxford United Methodist Church

To stop or not to stop?

CHIEF'S CORNER
STEVE WOJNAR

I was recently asked a question regarding stop lines painted on roads. Some dead end streets have stop lines at the intersection without a stop sign present. The question was, can a driver be written a citation in the event they do not stop at these locations?

Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 89 Section 9, covers stop sign regulations. The obligation of a driver is to stop at an intersection where there is a posted stop sign or red signal light. The white line is present to indicate the location where a vehicle should stop. The law states a vehicle "shall stop at a clearly marked stop line, but if none, before entering the crosswalk on the near side of the intersection, or, if none, then at the point nearest the intersecting roadway where the driver has a view of approaching traffic on the intersecting roadway before entering it." The penalty for a stop sign violation is a $35 civil infraction.

Stop lines have been painted in many locations throughout town. Certain streets, that do not have signs already, may be designated for one in the future. In those places, these lines can be considered "advisory" and not necessarily the subject of a fine. These can serve as a warning for drivers, particularly those who may be unfamiliar with the area. Should a crash occur, the circumstances are considered on a case by case basis. It is always advisable to proceed with caution at any intersection, even those with signs or traffic lights, to avoid accidents and prevent injuries.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com. Extracurricular activities make for a better student

Day in and day out, we see high school students bust through the doors when the clock strikes 2:45 p.m. to make their way for home. Some students are headed to an after school job or to help out with the family business; however, those cases are few and far between. Some of the best learning actually happens after school due to the fact that any extracurricular activity you are a part of is by choice. Being a part of a sports team teaches teamwork, discipline, commitment, keeps you fit and healthy; not to mention, it's fun.

If your budding student isn't into sports, have no fear — there are a plethora of clubs and activities that go on after school that do not require a mouth-guard or running shoes. The list of clubs is nearly endless — Spanish club, French Club, FFA, FBLA, Film and Art clubs, Odyssey of the Mind, TSA, to name a few. If you can think it, there's a club for it. Oftentimes, students aren't aware of the fact that they may excel at a specific sport because they have not yet been exposed to it. If there isn't a club your Sally or Johnny are interested in, have them form one of their own. To participate in just school during regular hours is to rob yourself from the full experience, it can also be viewed as simple laziness.

Extracurricular activities can help a student 'push their paradigms' as a wise teacher once said. High endurance activities train athletes to practice patience and resilience in the face of intense conditions and also teaches what it means to set and achieve a goal.

Leadership clubs such as YLTA fosters management and delegation skills and debate clubs can teach students how to gain more confidence for public speaking.

When a student is involved in extracurricular activities, they expand their social circle. It presents a chance for students to spend time with those who share similar interests. Time management skills are honed due to the balancing act that being more involved in hobbies requires.

Students who branch out into other facets of school life are more likely to settle into a career they are passionate about. When they expose themselves to different things the chance becomes higher that they will meet a diverse group of students as well as formulate their own ideas on their future.

According to one study, students who are involved in extracurricular activities surpass their peers in the classroom and maintain a sense of belonging and overall well being. Clubs play a large role in developing a student's self-esteem and also allows them to feel like they're contributing to a larger cause.

Colleges hold students who are more involved in their school community in higher esteem. The clubs and sports they are involved in gives a clearer picture of what the student is like and what they can offer the university.

Schools should require every student to be involved in at least three different extracurricular activities by the time they graduate. Oftentimes, parents will give in to their child's lack of motivation; however, adolescence is when they need our guidance the most. If you raise the bar, they will reach it.

What can a financial advisor do for you?

What does investing mean to you? If the word makes you think of transactions — buying or selling stocks and bonds — you're looking at just part of the picture. To work toward all your goals, such as a comfortable retirement, you need a comprehensive financial strategy.

FINANCIAL FOCUS
DENNIS ANTONOPOULOS

And for that, you might need to work with a personal financial advisor. But what, specifically, can this type of professional do for you?

Here are some of the key services a financial advisor can provide:

Help you invest for your retirement — An experienced financial advisor can look at all the relevant factors — your current and projected income, age at which you'd like to retire, desired retirement lifestyle — to help you determine how much you need to invest, and in which investment vehicles, to help you reach your retirement goals. To cite just one example, a financial advisor can review your employer-sponsored retirement plan and help you determine how to use it to your greatest advantage.

Help you save for college — Higher education is expensive, and costs are rising every year. If you'd like to help your children — or grandchildren — go to college someday, you need to save and invest early and often. A financial advisor can suggest appropriate college savings vehicles and strategies.

Help make sure you're well-protected — If something were to happen to you, could your family maintain its standard of living? Or if you someday needed some type of long-term care, such as an extended stay in a nursing home, would you be able to maintain your financial independence, or would you be forced to rely on your adult children for help? A financial advisor can recommend and possibly provide suitable protection products and services for your needs.

Help you adjust your financial strategy — Not much will stay constant in your life — and that includes your financial strategy. Any number of events — a new child, a new job, a new retirement destination — can cause you to adjust your investment moves, as will some of the factors influencing the financial markets — economic downturns, changing interest rates, new tax laws, and more. A financial advisor can help you change course as needed — and sometimes encourage you not to change course, when, in his or her professional opinion, you might be tempted to overreact to some event or other.

While a financial advisor can help you in many ways, you'll need, above all else, to feel comfortable with whomever you choose. Ultimately, you'll want to pick someone who understands what's important to you, and who will follow an established process to create personalized strategies and recommend specific actions needed to help achieve your goals. And you'll want someone who will be with you in the long run — someone who will revisit your objectives and risk tolerance and who can adjust your strategies in response to changes in your life.

A financial advisor can make a big difference in your life. So, work diligently to find the right one — and take full advantage of the help you'll receive as you move toward your important goals.

Fall Foliage: Facts and Tracks

(Each year Mother Nature puts on a spectacular show across New England. Blazing colors paint the landscape as lush crimson and gold canopies line the winding roads of our region. People travel from across the nation (and the world) to view the majestic foliage that is uniquely "New England."

TAKE THE HINT
KAREN TRAINOR

While the highly anticipated show of colors typically arrive in mid to late September through October, it's impossible to accurately track the path of nature's paintbrush. Factors that affect the timing of autumn leaves changing colors include biology of the trees and environmental influences such as rainfall, sunshine and nutrients in the soil. In the spirit of planning this year's leaf peeping jaunts, the following info is offered.

The Trees They are A Changin': The USDA Forest Service reports the three most important influences on fall foliage are a tree's particular leaf pigment, the length of night hours, and the weather. As fall approaches and the nights are longer, production of chlorophyll (which accounts for the green in leaves) is slowed and eventually halted. It's during this time that the carotenoids (yellow, orange and brown) and anthocyanins (red) in the leaves are exposed. Autumn is when most of the anthocyanins are produced as the plant responds to sunshine and the stored plant sugars.

Other factors also affect the leaves' coloring, including the amount of rainfall in a season. According to the Forest Service a late spring or summertime drought can delay the time it takes for leaves to change color while a warm period during the autumn season can result in muted hues. In addition, heavy winds and rains can cause leaves to fall before they've changed color.

So what are the best weather conditions for show-stopping fall foliage? "A warm wet spring, favorable summer weather, and warm sunny fall days with cool nights should produce the most brilliant autumn colors," the Forest Service reports.

It's obvious that different species of trees typically turn a particular color. Most anticipated in New England is the Sugar Maple, which explodes in brilliant orange hues. Red Maple trees turn scarlet as Aspens and Poplar add a rich gold color to the landscape. Oak trees offer bronze and brown leaves as Black Maples burst with bright yellow foliage.

During "peak" leaf peeping season, New England back roads, strewn with colorful fallen leaves is a sight to behold. Thankfully, such scenes have been captured via a myriad of snapshots, picture postcards and calendar scenes.

Tracking the Trees: Timing when the trees will change color in New England has been a favorite pastime for generations of leaf peepers. Thanks to the internet, there are several "leaf tracking" sites that can help you plan a scenic autumn road trip.

Mass. Fish & Wildlife will be stocking trout in numerous lakes and ponds throughout the state, starting in the next two weeks. The state has 60,000 Rainbow trout and 4,000 Brown trout available for this year's fall stocking. Rainbow trout are not as easy to catch in the fall after they are stocked. It takes a few days and sometimes weeks to become acclimated to their new home. It is a great time to fish freshwater, as most anglers are gearing up for hunting season, leaving the freshly stocked trout to only a low number of anglers.

A few of the local ponds to receive a fall trout stocking are Wallum Lake, Webster Lake, Singletary Lake, Pratt Pond. For a complete list of ponds, click on to the Mass Fish & Wildlife Web site. Rivers and streams are rarely stocked with trout in the fall locally, but many of them do have hold over trout. It is worth giving them a try, but this year's spread of EEE require anglers that fish the streams and brooks to take necessary measures to protect themselves from the life threatening disease.

It is almost time to purchase a surplus deer permit in Mass. starting at 9 a.m. each day! On Sept. 24, surplus antlerless deer permits for zone 11 will go on sale. Zone 10 permits go on sale Sept. 25. Zones 9, 13, and 14 will go on sale Sept. 26. Log onto the MassFishHunt Web site. Type in your last name and birth date. Click the license sales button at the bottom of the screen.

From the menu, select surplus deer permits. Next, click add next to surplus antlerless deer permit. Click next to the zone for which you would like to purchase a surplus permit. Click check out on the bottom right of the screen and proceed to checkout. Do it early as the permits are sold out very quick. Remember all above mentioned permits go on sale at 9 a.m.!

The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club will hold their annual Field day on Sept. 21. The annual event draws a good number of people to the club grounds to enjoy good food, music and entertainment. Clams, Lobster, Chowder, Chicken BBQ, along with hot dogs and hamburgers, will be available to all in attendance. Call the club to reserve your tickets prior to the event to ensure you are not left out on lobsters and clams.

Nine local bear hunters from the valley returned from Maine recently with seven harvesting their bear, including Jerry Gareri of Uxbridge. The other two had shots, but missed their target.

Fresh water bass fishing is slow, but one angler made up his own fishing lure and landed a 6.8 lb. largemouth bass from Hopedale Pond last week. This week's picture shows Bill Philips with his huge largemouth bass which was weighed in at Jerry's Bait & Tackle shop in Milford. The huge bass was kept alive and released into Hopedale Pond. Hopedale Pond has its share of big largemouth bass and it is a favorite fishing hole for many local anglers.

On the saltwater scene, this week's picture shows a large seabass that was caught by a Mass. Marine Fisheries Analyst Nichola Meserve during a 2018 pilot study to identify Black Seabass hot spots." Black Seabass can grow up to 25 inches, and can live up to 25 years, and weigh up to eight pounds!

Unfortunately, commercial fishermen in Massachusetts & Rhode Island, have open and closed seasons for seabass, resulting in a wasted resource when they are catching them and throwing them back during the closed season. As I mentioned in one of my columns recently the seabass that are caught during the closed season most often die from stress after they have been caught and returned to the ocean during the closed season. Strippers are also wasted after be released by commercial anglers fishing with nets.

Now the Mass. Marine Fisheries Biologist are contemplating a plan to ask Charter boat Captains not to fish in areas where there are high haddock and cod populations. They have made a map for recreational anglers and Rod & Reel anglers on charter boats to fish in that have a good population of haddock and very few cod, hoping to cut down on mortality of the released cod which stands at 15 percent or higher. Reeling in cod from depths of 100 feet to as much as 200 feet often results in mortality of the species, when released. I have seen bladders of fish often coming out of their mouths when reeled in from these depths.

Have the commercial and recreational anglers keep all of there catch on numerous species. Allowing a daily limit of 10 fish per day of cod or haddock for recreational anglers, should help stop this crazy waste of our fish stocks. Commercial limits on poundage for trawlers including there bycatch, needs to be implemented. The sooner they catch their quota of fish, the sooner they stop fishing, resulting in less fishing being caught and wasted. Just an idea. Something needs to be done, and soon.

Friday's Child

Alia ~ Age 9

Hi! My name is Alia and I have a very kind personality and good sense of humor!

Alia is a very happy and bubbly young girl of Hispanic descent. Alia enjoys arts & crafts and dancing. Those who know Alia best describe her as being a creative child who is eager to learn. Alia has the ability to be engaging, cooperative, and helpful. She is invested in her school work and has built positive relationships with her classmates and teachers.

Legally freed for adoption, Alia would benefit from being part of a 2-parent family with or without older children in the home. The ideal family for Alia would be patient and nurturing with the ability to keep up with her active nature. A family must also continue the services she currently has in place to address her emotional and academic needs. She does well with structure, routine and guidance and would like a family who is able to provide her with that. She would like to find a family with someone who is able to manage her hair, or willing to learn! Alia shares close relationships with her birth parents, who she currently visits with individually on a bi-weekly basis, as well as two brothers she will need to remain in contact with after placement.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mare-inc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Rt. 43 East, off Rt. 7, is the lower road to Williamstown, and passes through lovely farmland. Rt. 23, from Great Barrington to Monterey, and then right onto Tyringham Rd., takes you through the Tyringham Valley and eventually to Lee.

Mohawk Trail: The Mohawk Trail, which runs 63 miles along Rt. 2 from Orange to North Adams, is one of the state's most popular foliage routes. Balanced effort helps Bay Path blank Pirates, 3-0

OXFORD — Devin Hanlan scored one goal and assisted on another to help lead the Bay Path Regional boys' varsity soccer team to a 3-0 road win over Oxford High on Friday, Sept. 6.

Three different players scored for the Minutemen (2-0). Junior Matt Livsey and freshman John Guerin were also able to put the ball in the back of the net.

"We like to spread it around," Bay Path head coach Dave Martinson said. "That worked out nice."

The Minutemen jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the sixth minute of the game. Hanlan, who was surrounded by three Oxford defenders in the middle of the field about 10 yards in front of the goal, managed to slip the ball to his left to Livsey. Livsey gathered the ball in and drilled a shot, which zipped past Oxford goalie Calib Goyette.

Bay Path doubled its lead to 2-0 at the midway point of the first half, senior tri-captain Colin Richardson feeding Hanlan with a long breakout pass about 40 yards from the Pirates' goal. Hanlan did the rest after getting control of the ball, dribbling down to within 10 yards of the goal before faking to his right and shooting left, the ball easily nestling into the far corner of the goal.

Guerin scored the final goal of the game, with 10 minutes to play before halftime, off an assist from senior tri-captain Andrew Makowiecki.

"I thought it was a good win for us," Martinson said. "We worked hard on trying to keep control of the ball and keep them away from their attacking zone. By doing that we gave ourselves some opportunities and we capitalized on them. They were fast, though. They had a couple of good opportunities but [goalkeeper] Aiden [Sabatinelli] came up big for us, especially on their scoring chance right off the bat in the first half."

Sabatinelli finished with four saves.

"Paul [Oxford head coach Paul Frykberg] does a good job with his kids," Martinson said. "They've come a long way in the time he's been coaching them."

Less than a minute after Bay Path went ahead 1-0 Oxford had a chance to score the equalizer, but a shot off the foot of Tyler Constantine banged off the left post and bounced harmlessly away. Constantine had another solid scoring chance later in the first half, but Sabatinelli was able to save the hard-hit shot.

The Pirates also had a quality scoring opportunity in the opening minutes of the second half, but two Oxford attackers were unable to connect on a pass that seemed like it would have led to a good scoring chance.

"One of our keys to the game today was in the first five minutes of each half to come out flying, to come out strong," Frykberg said. "I think we did a pretty good job of that. In the future I just think we need to do a better job of finishing those opportunities rather than kicking the ball over the bar or right at the opposing goalie."

Frykberg said Bay Path's harassing defense bothered his offensive players.

"Their defenders were a bit more physical than we were. They did a really good job of bodying our guys off the ball and using their bodies to keep us out of the attacking zone," Frykberg said. "They used their physicality well. Once my guys adjust to the physicality they'll be able to use their speed to get to goal pretty easily. That's the game plan, anyway."

Now healthy, Rodrigues a key component toward Tantasqua's season and opening victory over Indians

STURBRIDGE — Brandon Rodrigues scored a pair of goals in the first six minutes of Tantasqua Regional's boys' varsity soccer game with Bartlett High on Thursday, Sept. 5, and then added two second-half assists to lead the Warriors to a rousing 7-0 victory over the Indians in the season-opening game for both teams.

Before the majority of the fans on hand at the Cage out on The Reservation had settled into their seats, the junior put Tantasqua ahead, 1-0, scoring in the fourth minute off an assist by senior teammate Roger Leland.

Leland started the goal-scoring play by taking a right-side free kick from about 20 yards out. Instead of taking a shot directly at the goal Leland sent the ball to the left of the net, where Rodrigues gathered it in and then booted it right-to-left past Bartlett goaltender Taven Phanthavong (12 saves) and into the far side of the goal.

right crossing pass from classmate Ethan Eroh and pounding it into the back of the Indians' net.

"I got great passes from my teammates; they set me up perfectly. I was happy I was able to finish off those scoring opportunities," said Rodrigues, who missed most of last season because of injury. "I'm looking to stay healthy this season and I'm excited to be back playing again. I was really looking forward to getting out there for this game and I'm definitely looking forward to the whole season."

Tantasqua head coach Matt Guertin broke into a wide smile when asked about Rodrigues.

"Brandon is a great player; he is very highly skilled and he does a lot of good things," Guertin said. "He plays a lot of high-quality soccer. He has a high soccer IQ. We just want to keep him healthy this year. We know if we do that he will do good things for us. He's a great player to have."

Tantasqua led 4-0 at halftime. The Warriors' other two goals in the first 40 minutes were scored by Leland, on a direct kick, and junior Spike Austin, off an assist from senior Sam Valcor.

Leland, who finished with two goals and an assist, increased Tantasqua's lead to 5-0 in the fifth minute of the second half, scoring from about 25 yards out on a rocket of a shot that was still rising when it slammed into the back of the net. Eroh (goal, two assists) pushed the Warriors' lead to 6-0 with 30 minutes left in the game and then junior Abel Lidonde closed out the scoring three minutes later.

Rodrigues assisted on the final two goals, sending a pair textbook right-to-left crossing passes to his teammates.

"We work on crosses a lot," Rodrigues said. "I look to get crosses in from the right side every chance I get."

After the game, Guertin was pleased by his team's performance.

"The guys were doing good things with the ball, especially moving the ball, which is what we wanted to do because possession is what we work on all the time," Guertin said. "It paid off; we got some good looks and the guys capitalized on their shots today. It was a

Is your oil tank or oil supply line older than “Woodstock?”

BY DANA GEORGE REED

If the answer is yes, or “close enough,” now is a good time to give some professional attention to that often overlooked fuel-supply section of a regular heating equipment cleaning and tune-up. With another early morning 50F reading on the outdoor thermometer at our home, it was a pleasant and gentle reminder that August was waning and the fall not far away. Americans, in particular, also recently marked the 50th anniversary of the historic Woodstock Music Festival, the three-plus day event of a generation on August 15-18, 1969 in Bethel, N.Y. America had a new and 37th President, Richard M. Nixon, and we had just put the first man on the moon nearly a month earlier, fulfilling the late President John F. Kennedy’s vision. I was seven years of age then, no awareness or interest yet in the political, social or cultural upheavals of that turbulent decade. However, I do remember watching the historic moon landing on our Black and White tube-type TV set with a 30-foot-high roof-mounted antenna and electric antenna rotator. No “Cable TV” back in the day! Fast forward to 2013 and later. My challenging experiences with our older oil-fired heating system, a Burnham warm-air furnace (Model BOL-96) and the oil tank/supply line—when it all reached that half-century or more of age, prompted me to share my findings and offer some professional advice to other owners of aging residential and commercial oil-fired equipment. For background, I became interested in the many different types and manufacturers of oil burners and associated heating systems as a young teenager in the 1970s, those installed at our home and those of relatives and friends. Nonetheless, my undergraduate education and career took a different path. More recently, I took classes and studied for—and passed—the Massachusetts Oil Burner Technician License exam, to take an avocational interest “next level” to professional.

Cleanliness, safety, reliability and efficiency of heating oil: Whether it’s newer heating equipment with advancements in efficiency, oil-burner and primary-control/safety technology, or most of the older equipment still remaining in service—regularly cleaned and tuned for its best efficiency while maintaining a smoke-free flame, burning oil is typically a clean, safe, comfortable, reliable and efficient experience for oil heat customers. The emissions from residential oil burners properly maintained and tuned are so clean they are not even regulated by the U.S. Government! Contrast and compare to vehicle engines powered by gasoline or diesel, or U.S. power plants. One gallon of No. 2 heating oil contains approximately 139,000 British Thermal Units (commonly expressed as either BTU or Btus). For reference, 1 BTU is the amount of heat required to raise 1 pound of water 1-degree F. Some brief comparisons: Kerosene yields nearly 132,000 Btus per gallon; Propane 91,330 Btus per gallon; Natural Gas averages 1,027 Btus per cubic foot and about 135 cubic feet equals one gallon of oil; One full cord of Wood has the heat value of between 95 and 140 gallons of oil (this wide range is likely due to the many different kinds of wood that is burned and significant combustion-efficiency differences in a variety of wood-burning appliances); Anthracite Coal yields 12,000 Btus per pound, and about 12 pounds of coal equals the heat content of one gallon of No. 2 oil, and lastly, Electricity yields 3,412 Btus per kilowatt hour (kWh), so 40.6 kWh equals one gallon of No. 2 oil. (NORA Oilheat Technicians Manual, 2008 Edition/Silver, at Glossary VIII). Oil heat has a remarkable reliability record despite wars, embargoes, political unrest and natural disasters; oil heat keeps its customers warm. (ibid. at 2-3). This reliability is partly due to the variety of places where crude oil is found, the resourcefulness of everyone from the refiners to the local oil dealer, the flexibility of the delivery system, and the stability and safety inherent in heating oil. (ibid.). Heating oil has a fairly low “flash point” (ASTM specified for No. 1 and No. 2 oil is 100 degrees F minimum) where hydrogen flashes off but the fuel will not continue to burn, and a much higher ignition point—over 500 degrees F for No. 2 oil making it relatively safe and stable (ibid. at 2-4, 2-5), as compared to gasoline and propane and their vapors, or natural gas.

They don’t make them like they used to: That oil furnace mentioned above that came with our home was installed around 1963 under a previous owner. I oversaw its necessary removal and replacement in May of 2016. An increasing hole or breach was discovered in the heat exchanger from an unpleasant but temporary “diesel” odor at oil-burner startup. This is a potentially dangerous operating condition. The furnace lasted an amazing 53 years in service, but probably had a smaller breach of the heat exchanger that wasn’t obvious several years earlier. It could have been replaced a little sooner based on age alone, but being proficient with tune ups and routine cleanings over the decades, I squeezed a few extra years from it. Typical heating season oil consumption, with some minor amount of wood burning in the outer great room, was typically two to two and a half tanks of heating oil. Not bad for a Kennedy-era heating system and over 1,400 square feet of living area to heat. The Burnham furnace fired up to 0.85 gal/hour at 96,000 BTU output, a little more than necessary for the home, but they oversized them typically in the old days. It still had the original lower-speed Crane Oil Burner (Burnham Model 55J) with a cast-iron head. The new furnace fires up to 0.75 gal/hour at 85,000 BTU output, still more than enough for this home. It came with a newer high-speed flame-retention-head oil burner, the ubiquitous Beckett AFG that more efficiently burns the oil in the combustion chamber at a higher flame temperature. While this replacement scenario/equipment upgrade is very common over time with furnaces (warm air output), water heaters and boilers (boilers produce primarily either hot water to circulate for heat, or steam), what often receives less attention on an annual basis is the fuel tank and supply line, oil condition and good filtration for oil purity. For purposes of this article, I am focusing primarily on these oil-supply components and the importance of maintaining a clean and leak-free supply of oil to the burner for efficient smoke-free operation and reliable performance on especially those cold winter days and nights. This applies whether you are using older or newer oil-fired equipment. With our newer furnace and flame-reduction oil burner, we now use between 1.75 and 2 tank loads of oil per heating season, a fuel savings of approximately 17 to 20 percent annually.

Keeping an older-but-tight oil tank: Our indoor 275-gallon oil tank is very old, but still working with no leaks. Nameplate indicates “Wachusett Tank and Welding Corp., Leominster, Mass.” How old is it? The fuel gauge atop has the manufacturer’s address listed as “Rochester 10, NY.” That’s right, it pre-dated zip codes, so I place its age at least the same as the old failing furnace now replaced, and it may be even older! The important thing to remember is that older oil tanks, especially those installed outside and more exposed to the elements including wider temperature variations, will typically develop some amount of internal sludge and other corrosion/deposits (rust, sediments) depending on the environment they are subjected to. Water and condensation—even becoming ice in outside tanks and lines, quality of the particular fuel delivered over time and age of the fuel can contribute to a less-than-optimal internal tank environment and fuel quality that can cause problems, and often at an inconvenient time (e.g., bitterly cold weather). In extreme cases, heavy deposits in older tanks can cause the outlet, fuel piping or copper fuel line to become partially or completely blocked requiring service. Fuel oil also degrades over long periods of time if used infrequently due to an empty residence or building, or chiefly using other home heating sources such as wood, coal, or pellet stoves, solar, etc. A brief discussion about heating-oil additives: Some oil companies pre-treat their fuel with additives to provide a premium quality fuel product. Alternately, a homeowner can directly treat their oil supply using one of several high-quality fuel additives available today. It is nonetheless important to follow the instructions for adding same, and pay particular attention to not over-treat the fuel volume. Use only the dosage recommended for the particular volume of gallons you will be treating. More additive is usually not better! Many additives are concentrated fuel-system cleaners and using too much can loosen and liquefy objectionable amounts of tank sludge that may now residually pass through the filter(s), fuel pump and get to the smallest orifice in the system—the oil-burner nozzle—where it can begin to solidify, clog and distort the proper oil-spray pattern required for good combustion. This undesirable process can escalate rapidly at the combustion chamber environment due to the widely-varying temperatures the small oil-metering nozzle is often subjected to. Another and often better way to aggressively treat fuel oil from an older on-site storage tank, either in addition to using a fuel additive, or in lieu of same, is to have an independent licensed oil burner technician, or your oil company serviceman, install a high-efficiency oil filter. It is very cost effective compared to replacing the oil tank, although the latter has its benefits and is often the right decision, especially if the tank is leaking! Regardless, you may also benefit from upsizing an older, small cartridge filter design to a larger model and using the newest (tighter) filter-element media technology available for it, and/or you can have one or more high-efficiency spin-on fuel oil filters installed inline to further assist in removing the smaller particles and “fines” of sludge and other impurities as small as 10 microns in size. In extreme cases of transitional sludge and repeated oil burner nozzle fouling, using 2-3 high-efficiency oil filters in series between the tank and oil-burner fuel unit (oil pump) is not too many if replacing an aging tank is not desired, or in your budget. This is known as multi-stage filtering and the result is a very clean and impurity-free fuel oil to the burner. The only normal downside is the cost of replacing more than one filter element every year, or whenever they are deemed ready to be replaced. An increasing vacuum reading across a filter during burner operation, over time, indicates increasing flow restriction and the element should be replaced. Finally, although some such services and equipment are available, I don’t generally recommend attempting to have a very old oil tank manually cleaned of sludge and deposits, for reuse of original purpose. Leaks have been reported following such cleanings. That type of direct cleaning of an older age-weakened steel tank can actually expose smaller pin holes, especially at the bottom of the tank where the water/condensation will end up and corrosion will often manifest (water is heavier than oil—it goes to the bottom of the tank).

Benefits of replacing the tank: It must be emphasized if an oil tank (indoor or outdoor) of any age is leaking, it should be professionally inspected and remedied immediately, or replaced if necessary. Installing a new oil tank with fresh heating oil rather than transferring any unused oil that may remain in your older tank is the better and more complete way to eliminate a sludge problem—by avoiding re-introducing any contaminated oil. Use it all up first from the older tank, if you can. Also, outdoor above-ground oil tanks can often leak undetected by their owners due to the leak fumes directly vented to the outdoors. Even smaller oil leaks are generally more noticeable from indoor or basement oil tank installations due to their enclosure within a contained space/room. Although new oil tanks come in several different styles and can feature other material besides steel, the ob-round steel configuration used for decades is still the most common tank. You can spot newer oil tanks as they have the outlet port at the very bottom of the tank, not on the side of the tank. Oil is drawn from the bottom of the tank to reduce the amount of condensation (water) and sludge build-up in the tank. Again, water is a contaminant that can form rust in the steel tank and fuel system, bacteria and increase sludge. If large amounts of water are found in an oil tank, or evidenced elsewhere in an oil burner fuel system, the likely source must be identified and the situation corrected as soon as possible to prevent any further tank and fuel-system damage.

A Reminder—Oil Lines and Massachusetts legal requirement to upgrade: By Sept. 30, 2011 and as a result of a then-new law to address oil leaks from home heating systems, Massachusetts homeowners of 1- to 4-unit residences who heat their homes with oil were (are still) required to upgrade the oil supply line by either the installation of an oil safety valve (OSV) or an oil supply line with a protective sleeve, on systems that do not currently have these devices. I have observed some Bay State residences in non-compliance well after the date above using older, un-sleeved copper line on or beneath a basement concrete floor. This law’s other major provision requires insurance companies that write homeowner policies to offer coverage for leaks from heating systems that use oil. Either device must be installed by a licensed oil burner technician. It is important to note that heating oil systems installed on or after Jan. 1, 1990 most likely are already in compliance as state fire codes implemented these requirements on new installations at that time. Exemptions apply if 1. The oil burner is located above the oil storage tank and the entire oil supply line is connected to and above the top of the tank, OR 2. An OSV or oil supply line with protective sleeve was installed on or after Jan. 1, 1990, AND 3. Those changes comply with the oil burning equipment regulations; a copy of the oil burner permit from the local fire department may be used to demonstrate compliance. Beyond the legal requirement, homeowners who take these preventative measures can avoid the disruption and expense that can be caused by heating oil leaks. A leak may result in exposure to petroleum vapors in your home. If the leak reaches the soil or groundwater beneath your house, then a cleanup must be performed to restore your property to state environmental standards. Further, leaks that affect another property or impact drinking water supply wells can complicate the cleanup and increase the expense dramatically. The cleanup cost for a “simple” leak can be as much as $15,000. In cases where the leak affects groundwater or is more extensive, the cleanup costs can reach $250,000 or more. Finally, the typical and relatively small cost of installing either an OSV or oil supply line with a protective sleeve ranges from $150-$350, including labor, parts and local permit fees. (Homeowner Oil Heating System Upgrade and Insurance Law fact sheet, February 2011, Mass. Department of Fire Services/MA DEP).
