WALKING FOR HOPE

AUBURN — In a two-day event of hope and remembrance, the community came together at Lemansky Park on Sept. 9-10 at Relay for Life to celebrate cancer survivors and honor those who lost their battles. Bartlett edges Northbridge in final minutes

LATE GOAL
DOWNS RAMS
IN SEASON
OPENER

BY NICK ETHIER
SPORTS STAFF WRITER

WEBSTER — It appeared that the Bartlett High and Northbridge High boys' varsity soccer teams were destined to play to a scoreless draw in the season opener for both squads on Wednesday, Sept. 7. Nearly 78 of the 80 minutes had been played, but good saves and posts hit had kept the action at a standstill.

At that moment, Indians' head coach Ryan Renauld made an adjustment that proved to be beneficial.

"I literally just asked the official how much time was left and he said, 'Two minutes,' so I started sending a couple of extra guys up," Renauld explained.

Left outside back Christopher Place moved from his defensive position and saw an opening to potentially win the ball in a battle with a Rams' midfielder.

"It was just a 50/50 and I ran up for it," explained Place, who then had sole possession of the ball.

McGovern calls out legislators on House Floor

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

Congressman Jim McGovern made quite the statement on the House Floor in Washington D.C. to start off the month.

McGovern took the floor on Sept. 7, leading debate for the Democratic Party on H.R. 5063, the Stop Settlement Slush funds Act, which the congressman felt was a bill providing a corporate giveaway. McGovern let his frustration show on the floor when he took the opportunity to call out his opponents in the Republican Party for what he felt was negligent inaction on several health issues in the country while taking up a bill related to corporations on the House Floor.

McGovern said he feels Republicans have largely ignored the Zika virus scare as well as the Flint, Michigan water crisis, the opioid epidemic and issues with gun violence in favor of less significant action in Washington.

"While spending time on efforts that are nothing more than sound bites for my friends on the other side of the aisle to use on the campaign trail, this Republican Congress has repeatedly ignored the calls from our constituents to act on issues they care about," McGovern said. "Issues that impact our communities, our neighborhoods, and our families."

McGovern called for action on the Zika virus, a perceived epidemic that has created concerns about the potential for birth defects in children born to infected women, and said that the virus may be a worldwide issue, but it's impact on American's should not be taken lightly.

UNIQUELY UXBRIDGE

More of a form of entertainment and fun than a true race, the cardboard boat race was a blast for people who didn't mind getting soaked.

UXBRIDGE — Uniquely Uxbridge gets bigger and better each year, with more and more residents attending the ever-expanding day that celebrates community spirit. With local vendors, a cardboard boat race, pie eating contest and other family friendly activities, Uniquely Uxbridge on Saturday, Sept. 3, was a way to not only come together as a town, but raise money for a cause. For more photos, turn to page A16!

A fairly new addition to Uniquely Uxbridge, people enjoyed watching the town's fire and police department compete in a friendly volleyball game.

BHC hosting calendar release party

WHITINSVILLE — In celebration of its new 2017 Blackstone Heritage Corridor Calendar featuring the work of 10 local photographers, Blackstone Heritage Corridor, Inc. (BHC) is hosting a Calendar Release Party on Wednesday, Oct. 19 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. at its offices at Linwood Mill, 670 Linwood Avenue, Whitinsville. Guests can meet the photographers and purchase calendars on site.

"The emphasis of our 2017 Calendar is on our industrial heritage," notes Charlene Perkins Cutler, executive director of BHC. The Calendar is "2017: The Innovative and Industrious Blackstone Heritage Corridor." Carefully curated facts about the region's contribution to the American Industrial Revolution punctuate the pages. On each month's page, there are facts celebrating the innovation that had been fostered in the National Heritage Corridor from hundreds of years ago to the present. For instance, in the 1830s, the Knowlton Hat Factory in Upton, was the largest manufacturer of straw hats in the world.

"The Blackstone Heritage Corridor is one of the Nation's richest and best preserved repositories of landscapes, structures and sites that recall a neglected era of the American past: the Age of Industry," Cutler points out. "Thousands of structures and whole landscapes still exist which represent the entire history of the American Industrial Revolution and the complex economic and social relationships of the people who lived and worked here."

The photos for the 2017 Blackstone Heritage Corridor Calendar where chosen in a blind contest and offer a mix of scenes showcasing the National Heritage Corridor's natural, historical and cultural resources.

Relay Wrap Up Party caps off $150M year

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

SOUTHBRIDGE — Next year is the 20th year that Southbridge will host the Relay for Life of the Greater Southbridge Area.

To get inspired and prepared — and look back on last year's success — the Relay will be hosting its annual Wrap Up Party on Sept. 16, at 6:30 p.m., at the Southbridge Hotel & Conference Center. There will be light refreshments and desserts and anyone is welcome to come and learn more about getting involved.

The previous Relay year ended on Aug. 31 and raised an astounding $149,341 for the American Cancer Society. The Relay for Life of Greater Southbridge Area was ranked 15th in Massachusetts out of the 112 Relays in the state. Out of 259 Relays across New England, Southbridge's came in 24th. Southbridge's Relay for Life has been in the top 25 in the past as well.

"This is something our town can be proud of," said Event Chairman Jackie Brogna. "Unfortunately, many of us in this area have been affected by cancer. The Relay is a way to put any differences aside and work together for a common cause. The goal is to end cancer. It's still a hard economic time in this area. ... It goes to show this is a cause that means a lot to people. Some people cannot give as much as they used to, but they're still giving."

Having been in Southbridge for almost 20 years, Brogna said that the Relay is part of the town's history. Many people in town grew up participating in the Relay in one way or another. She said: "The Relay has become part of our lives."

The Wrap Up not only looks towards another year of Relay, but celebrates the participants who made all of this possible. They will be giving an award to the top three teams and top three participants, people who went above and beyond to raise money for Relay.

"We like to do it because it's a thank you to everybody for all of their hard work. It's more about thanking everyone for participating and get ideas rolling for next year. We have a vote for next year's theme," said Brogna. "The Wrap Up is a great way to meet people if they've never had a team before. You can meet people who have had successful teams and maybe start networking. You can get a sense of what Relay is about."

Getting involved in the Relay for Life is a very rewarding experience, said Brogna. It not only benefits the American Cancer Society and helps fight cancer (as well as help patients receiving treatment) but it benefits the people who take part, giving them a whole new community to bond with.

"People put aside their differences," she said. "It's a common goal. It's a gamut of emotions. If you're there on Friday night and you watch the Survivor Lap you see how many people have been affected and beaten the disease. At the same time, many of us know there are people who are no longer there. It's a very emotional time. But there's camaraderie. The people there have all gone through it. You can talk to anyone, find support, share your stories, find hope."

The new Relay For Life website is not active as of press time. But anyone who would like more information about starting a team or becoming part of the committee can reach out to American Cancer Society staff partner Alyssa Tracy at alyssa.tracy@cancer.org or at 508-270-4659. There will also be many ways to learn more and get involved at the Wrap Up.

Olivia Richman can be reached at 508-909-4132 or by e-mail at olivia@stonebridgepress.com.

ZZ Top brings classic rock riffs to Indian Ranch

WEBSTER — They're one of the biggest rock bands of all time, and if there were any questions of the staying power of ZZ Top, anyone in Webster on Sept. 10 would disagree. The legendary Texas-based group brought their biggest hits to Indian Ranch on the shores of Webster Lake for a sold out crowd with hits like "La Grange," "Sharp Dressed Man," "Cheap Sunglasses" and more. As one of the most highly anticipated shows in the venue's recent history, ZZ Top brought everything to the stage and gave the crowd at Indian Ranch and experience they'll never forget.

ZZ Top drummer Frank Beard — ironically the only member of the group without a beard — plays away as the legendary group begins their show at Indian Ranch.

A sold out crowd made ZZ Top this biggest show of 2016 for Indian Ranch. The legendary band brought fans of all ages from all across New England to enjoy a show composed of many of the band's biggest and most popular hits.

ZZ Top's legendary bearded guitarists, Dusty Hill and band leader Billy Gibbons, perform their popular duel guitar dance and they play to the crowd at Indian Ranch.

Dean and Katie Benway of Webster stopped by Indian Ranch for their first concert at the venue as devoted fans of ZZ Top.

A common sight at the ZZ Top show, many fans wore fake beards similar to the iconic facial hair sported by ZZ Top's guitarists, Billy Gibbons and Dusty Hill.

Erin Harpe, a Boston performer who is no stranger to the Indian Ranch stage, served as the opening act for the legendary ZZ Top.

Whiskey Church served up some massively entertaining rock covers to kick off the afternoon at Indian Ranch on the Corral Stage. Lead singer Chip Zale was quite the entertainer, spending several songs interacting with members of the crowd by leaving the stage and dancing and signing through the lines of tables.

Sheila and Peter Martin of Providence made the trip to Webster to enjoy one of their favorite bands, ZZ Top.

9/11: From the Archives

Editor's note: This week's column is a reworked version of a column published back in September 2011, commemorating the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. Now 15 years later, we at Stonebridge Press continue to remember the families affected on that fateful day, as well as the men and women in our U.S. Armed Forces defending our freedom, both at home and abroad.

I remember exactly where I was, what I was doing and whom I was with when the world changed forever.

I was just a kid, it seems, 15 years ago. You've probably heard tons of stories from tons of people about what they were doing on Sept. 11, 2001, when they found out about the terrorist attacks at the World Trade Center in New York City, the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., and a field in Shanksville, Pa., that left nearly 3,000 dead in a day that will go down in history as one of the darkest days ever recorded.

Let me tell you my story. I was a freshman at Eastern Connecticut State University, in Willimantic, Conn. I was new at the campus, barely a week into my college experience. I was buying books, getting the lay of the land, getting to know my classmates and teachers, and preparing for my first semester as a college student.

Nothing could prepare me for what I was about to see.

One of the things I made a point to do when I started school was to schedule classes for early in the day, because in order to pay for my tuition, I had to have a part-time job on the side. I was lucky to find one, as a teacher at the after-school program at Eastford Elementary School, my alma mater. I worked afternoons there, so I had to get my classes out of the way before then.

This is why I had a class that started at the obscene hour of 8 a.m. It was a basic course in Microsoft Office — PowerPoint, Word, Excel — the basics. After about an hour of course introduction, the professor, whose name escapes me at the moment, finally let us log on to our computers — but there was a problem. I was never given a student password.

Off I went, just before 9 a.m. on Sept. 11, 2001, walking across campus to the tech support desk to get my password. As I entered the building, a few students stood transfixed at a television perched in the upper corner of the lobby. I glanced at it as I walked by, not really paying attention, but noticing it enough to know they were watching the news. I continued on my way.

I exited the elevator, password in hand, at 9:03 a.m. I know this so specifically, because at this point, the lobby was packed with students, eyes glued to the TV, and I suddenly realized this was no ordinary newscast. My eyes watched in horror as a plane suddenly appeared on the TV screen.

"There's no way this is real," I thought. Then it happened.

The crowd shifted with a collective gasp as what I found out to be the second plane hit the South Tower of the World Trade Center in a blazing fireball.

I asked the people around me what had happened, and a helpful student filled me in, tears in her eyes.

"We're being attacked," she said. "One plane has already hit, and another just flew into the other tower."

She quickly turned back to the TV. I stood in shock for a minute, but quickly realized I had to get back to class, and as I entered, the majority of the group was already on the Internet, surfing CNN and other news media outlets, getting the latest on what was going on.

The rest of the day was a blur from that point. The dean closed the school early that day, and I was sent home, glued to my radio all the way home and then to my TV as I soaked in every last horrible detail of that day. I must have watched the news for about 14 hours straight, late into the night. I couldn't believe what was happening. The world would never be the same.

I have to admit, I was one of the lucky ones. I didn't have any family members or dear friends in or around the World Trade Center that day. My heart broke for those that did.

Fifteen years later, it is hard to believe I was just a 17-year-old kid on that day. Putting this into perspective, there are students today in our high schools that were born after the attacks.

How time flies. But as the years go by, and the events of 9/11 recede further and further into the recesses of our collective memory, let us never forget what happened that day — a day when our faith was tested, our freedoms were challenged and lives were changed forever.

I won't ever forget. Adam Minor may be reached at (508) 909-4130, or by e-mail at aminor@stonebridgepress.news.

OPINION

Opinion and commentary from the Blackstone Valley and beyond

How important is pricing your home?

The two big concerns people have about selling their home are how quickly it will sell and how much money they will get for the home.

How much money they will get is typically the most important. The most common comment I hear is: "We can always lower the price but we can't increase it, so let's just start a little higher and see what happens." I do agree that increasing the price is not a great strategy once you have listed the home for sale. This causes people to assume that you will take an offer for the initial price or lower so they tend to ignore the new price when deciding on what to offer. However, I don't think purposely overpricing the home is a good strategy either.

The first two to three weeks are the most crucial in your marketing time to get the most money for your home. If you are getting a full price or better offer it will typically be in the first few weeks. Buyers want to feel they have gotten a good deal and if your home is on the market for a couple months at the same price and other buyers have not purchased the home, then the buyers will want a discount. After being listed for sale for a month or two and you lower the price, now the buyers think you are motivated and they can again offer lower for the home and get a deal.

Obviously, we don't have a lot of neighborhoods where every home is exactly the same and can easily be priced. I suggest hiring an experienced realtor who is familiar with your area as to not price incorrectly because your neighborhood sells for a different price than the comparable homes that are used to come up with price. Price the home as closely as you can to the expected sales price which if there is low inventory you may end up with an auction situation resulting in more than one buyer thus driving up the price of the home. This is the best way to get the highest price because about 90 percent of buyers are working with a real estate agent who can pull list of comparable homes and they know if your home is priced correctly or not.

The generation gap

I was listening to a talk radio show the other morning as I was driving along my morning routine and one discussion was about a "#hashtag" war between millennials and preceding generations, mainly the Gen X'ers and baby boomers. They have been going back and forth, with the older generations poking fun at how lazy, ignorant, uneducated, and technology obsessed the millennials are, while the millennials lash back with how the previous generations have made it almost impossible to succeed in life, afford education, achieve homeownership, and even start a dreaded family.

So while I am listening to each point of view I feel their arguments are getting more valid at every turn, on both sides. I am a Gen X'er, but I went through my early adult years as the millennials were blooming and the world was being taken over with technology. I grew up with landlines of corded phones and a rotary wall hanging model in avocado green (to match the kitchen appliances of course!), I spent days at a library doing research for a homework paper where I would hand write my rough draft before going home to type it out on my electric type writer. Granted, I had friends who had computers at that point, and sometimes I was able to take my knapsack full of research to my dads and type it out there. He always had the coolest new technology!

So as I listen to the older generations talk about how "kids these days will never understand," I got a reminiscent longing for "the good old days." When I was younger I took care of myself and everything I had to do each day, just like every other kid my age. If I played a competitive sport, we either won or lost, there was no mercy or (heaven forbid) trophies for all. If I skipped school I suffered the consequences of a truancy officer dragging me back to school. If I was bullied, which we all were at some point, it was done to my face and not behind a screen, the bully had to actually have to guts to look you in the eye while making a lame comment. If I disrespected my parents I had to face that wrath, and that was a wrath like no other. I was taught that if I wanted to be anything in life I had to work for it, and if I didn't succeed it was no ones fault other than my own. And I feel my inner grumpy-old-lady coming out when I see my neighbor get berated and verbally assaulted by her twenty-something degenerate son. While I watch a friend work herself to the bone trying to take care of her home and family while her child's father is quite possibly the laziest human being I have ever seen. And this make me so angry that I worry for my kids' future and I find the millennial generation absolutely despicable.

But the more the younger generation spoke back the more I could see their point in many areas. How are they to succeed in all the parts of life we expect them to if we never prepared them for the repercussions of our generations' actions and mistakes? How can they get a top education if we make it so unaffordable and decide our only option is to provide free education for all (defeating the purpose of working for an education)? We have given this generation an "all or nothing" ultimatum. This generation is trying to be more sustainable and we scoff at them for the change. This generation is riddled with food allergies yet we are the ones who started and approved all the artificial foods and preservatives causing a serious breakdown in the human immune system. We expect them to work as hard as we did, but we don't demand it from them. And yet, we sit here and blame them for not knowing what it was like in the "good ol' days".

I had my kids in my late 20's and early 30's. Most of my friends did as well. And while I wanted to be able to provide my kids with the same childhood I had, of playing outside and drinking from outdoor hoses, and riding bikes and playing until the sun sets, I wanted them to know what the Dewey Decimal System was, learn how to win and more importantly learn how to lose, I wanted them to be smart and successful and curious and respectful. I told myself my kids would only eat organic and not watch television until they were five. Well my son had a favorite show and a television in his room starting at about two years old, the same age my daughter got her tablet. And I laughed as friends would tell me "I will definitely limit screen time with my child" knowing full well, that wasn't what this generation is about. Granted I highly limit what my children watch, but the television is on, sadly, most of the day. We are in a technology era. And yet as I sat with my daughter playing on her tablet I realized she is playing games I would not have been able to figure out until I was much older than her. She is playing a game currently where sick animals go into an animal hospital and she has to play nurse and fix them up. The monkey comes in with a bellyache only to find out during an X-ray that his bones are all in the wrong places. So after trial and error she has learned where each rib goes, what the femur is and how it is the strongest bone in the body, and how many joints are in this strange human shaped monkey hand. So maybe this screen time epidemic isn't so bad. Just like everything else, it's all about smart choices and moderation.

We know that logic and common sense has to prevail. I am not making excuses for those foul mouthed teen walking down the street talking back to their mothers, and I am certainly not making excuses for the late twenty-something parents who would rather live off the system and not go to work because they are too tired, only to lay on the couch with their phone in their faces all day. I am jaded enough not to have pity for those who don't try. But next time you hear a mom talking about their kids favorite show, don't roll your eyes and assume the child is babysat by a flat screen all day. And next time you are behind a parent in line buying a tablet for their toddler, think perhaps this parent has good intentions of using it as educational. Whether we want to admit it or not, the past is gone and we are in a technology world now. We might as well embrace it and learn proper use ourselves, and teach our children the same. We don't have to be our kids' best friend, but maybe if we get down on their level more often we can get the generation of younger kids to learn that respect and motivation we crave from the millennials.

Make the most of gifts to grandchildren

Did you know that National Grandparents Day is less than a week away? While this "Day" is not as widely known as Mother's Day or Father's Day, it is nonetheless important, as it recognizes the key role that grandparents play. If you are a grandparent yourself, you might expect some cards or phone calls or emails from your own grandchildren — but you will probably experience even greater enjoyment in the gifts you can give them. If you're thinking of making a financial gift, consider your options carefully.

To begin with, don't forget about your own needs. As much as you love your grandchildren, you can't afford to provide significant financial gifts to them at the expense of your own retirement savings or the resources you might need for health care or long-term care. So, review your budget to determine what you can afford to give. This amount may change year by year, depending on your circumstances, so you may want to review your potential gifts annually.

However, assuming you can afford to give regularly to your grandchildren, how should you go about it? Here are a few possibilities:

Establish a 529 plan. A college degree is a very good investment in your grandchildren's future — but higher education comes with high costs. If you want to help your grandkids go to college, you could establish a 529 plan. Earnings in a 529 plan can grow federal tax-free and will not be taxed when the money is taken out to pay for college. Plus, you may receive state tax incentives if you invest in your home state's 529 plan. (However, if withdrawals are not used for higher education expenses, the earnings portion is fully taxable and will incur a 10-percent penalty.)

Keep in mind, though, that a 529 plan could affect your grandchild's financial aid. While a 529 plan owned by a grandparents generally won't be reported as an asset under the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), withdrawals used for school will be treated as student income on the next year's FAFSA, and so could lower your grandchild's financial aid package. So you could wait for your grandchild's final year of college, when he or she won't be applying for future financial aid, before you allow withdrawals from the 529 plan. (You may want to discuss a 529 plan's potential financial aid impact with a financial aid professional.)

Contribute to a custodial account. You can give money to your grandchildren through a custodial account, known as UGMA or UTMA. These are irrevocable gifts that minors gain control of at the age of majority. Be aware, then, that once they get the money, they can do with it as they choose, and their choices may be far different from what you had intended.

Pay college bills directly. You can simply write a check to the college to help pay for your grandchild's expenses.

By making any of these gifts, you can help your grandchildren move forward through life — and their journey can provide you with the gifts of pride and joy.

Fishing adventures continue

Saltwater fishing returned back to normal this past weekend in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island waters.

Bottom fishing for sea bass and fluke is great again if you know where to fish and what to use for bait. Small pieces of squid were working well when baited on a jig, and fresh silversides were very good if fished on a jig. The bay is still loaded with silversides and can be easily netted in the bay. Drifting a single hook baited with fresh silversides also worked well when drift fishing in 20 to 30 feet of water.

This past week, Steve Mercure, of Uxbridge, landed a 19-inch sea bass that sported a littoral tag. It was exciting to catch a tagged fish and we could not wait to find out the history of the fish. After calling in the numbers of the tag to the Littoral Society the following information was revealed: The fish was actually tagged a mile from where it was caught. The fish was tagged by Captain Stephen Tombs of the charter boat “Shearwater Charters” based in Galilee, R.I., on Aug. 24! Oh well! Steve will receive a patch from the Littoral Society to sew onto his fishing vest along with a letter of appreciation for his catch. The Littoral Society is more than 50 years old and has had anglers tagging numerous species of fish for as many years. Anyone can become a member, which costs $40 and $14 for tag kits totaling $54. The American Littoral Society is a non-profit organization, which will make members eligible for a tax deduction. For more information, go to www.littoralsociety.org. Sea bass legal length in Rhode Island is 15 inches for anglers to retain the fish, and must be measured from the head to the tail, not including any extending pieces of tail that are often found on sea bass.

The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club, in Douglas, will hold their annual Field Day this Saturday, Sept. 17, at their club grounds off of White Court. The event is open to the public and has plenty of free parking. A clambake and chicken BBQ will be available along with food from the kitchen. Club grounds open at 12 noon.

Black bear hunting opened last week on Sept. 6. The season will run until Sept. 24, for the first segment of the 2016 season. All Zones 1-14 will be open again this year for bear hunting. Hunters need a permit to hunt bear and can use a rifle. Hunters need to be very careful and read the entire rules and regulations on bear hunting listed in the 2016 Mass Fish & Wildlife regulations. A report of a 400-plus pound bear being harvested in Barre last week was indeed impressive. Bear hunters in Maine are having a hard time luring bear into their baited area because of the massive crop of blackberries this year.

Trout stocking is expected to begin in Massachusetts this week if the cool weather persist. Anglers are ready to resume their fishing activities and trout fishing is one of them. After the extremely hot summer the cooler weather predicted this week it is indeed long overdue.

Cod fishing in Rhode Island waters is still good, but huge cod like the one in this photo are extremely rare. It was caught a number of years ago on one of the Clipper fleet boats that has since gone out of business because of the cod fishing restrictions in the gulf of Maine waters. Market size cod are being caught daily at Cox Ledge.

The latest antique news

The last Brimfield antique show of 2016 just ended. If you missed this year's shows, mark May 9, 2017 on your calendar so you'll be ready for next year.

The Sept. 8 edition of “Architectural Digest” contained an article on “what it's really like” to shop at Brimfield. The writer cataloged their day starting beginning with waking up at 4:45 a.m., arriving at 7:40 a.m., sampling the food and being ready to leave at 3:45 p.m. with sore legs and a full trunk.

For those who want to try something a little different there are a number of yard sales around the company that stretch for miles. There was one this month on Route 7 in Ohio. Yard sales and vendors stretched up and down the 60-mile route.

In upcoming news, “US

Magazine” reports that the dress worn by Marilyn Monroe when she sang “Happy Birthday” to President John F. Kennedy is hitting the auction block. The previous owner was Martin Zweig who had it professionally mounted on a mannequin. It is expected to fetch between $2 million and $3 million an auction.

The Washington Post reports that the Internet has changed the way antique collectors hunt to acquire pieces for their collections. A collector of turn-of-the-century wooden cameras used to search at flea markets, in catalogs and shows. He and other collectors now scour the web and are making some great finds. Bidders have to be cautious when bidding online though. There may be issues that you aren't able to see from pictures. Some auctioneers allow you a preview period to view the items before bidding though. Those who do bid online sometimes make some great discoveries. Bidding on a painting that was found in a New Jersey basement recently started at $1,000. The painting reached over $800,000 when European buyers realized that it was a lost Rembrandt.

I should also note that along with eBay there are other online auctions that serious collectors should be checking to grow their collections. We use the website proxibid.com when we run online estate auctions. Auctionzip.com lists both live and online auctions on its site. Liveauctioneers.com is another site where collectors can find antiques and collectibles being offered at auction.

Another recent discovery fetched a good sum for a Michigan estate. An auctioneer was called to evaluate a local estate. The auctioneer found two barns filled with over 40 cars. There were 28 Thunderbirds, a 1932 Ford Model B, a 1973 Buick Riviera Coupe and some motorhomes. Although most were in rough condition, the auction still brought in over $300,000.

Our schedule continues to stay busy. We are running a live antique radio auction onsite in Carlisle on Sept. 18. We have an estate sale in Plainville on Sept. 24. The preview for an online estate auction with over 500 lots will take place in Harvard on Oct. 1 and 2. A Worcester estate preview will take place on Oct. 8. Psychology of the paint palette

Perhaps nothing provides the “wow” effect as fast (or as cheaply) as redoing the walls of a room. After all, paint offers an easy and inexpensive means of transforming a living space — but that's not all. While paint can make a significant difference in a room's appearance, it can also make a difference in the mood of the people within those four walls.

Case in point: Several years ago prison officials discovered cell walls painted a bubble gum pink color calmed violent prisoners. Alexander Schauss, Ph.D., director of the American Institute for Biosocial Research in Washington, who was the first to research and report such evidence, stated: “Even if a person tries to be angry or aggressive in the presence of pink, he can't. The heart muscles can't race fast enough. It's a tranquilizing color that saps your energy. Even the color-blind are tranquilized by pink rooms.”

Who knew slapping some paint on the wall could be so profound (or potentially dangerous)! For all those painting this season, here's a rundown on the psychology of paint.

Creative Color: Want to foster your creativity? Try painting an office or work space light blue. Light blue also promotes imagination, inner security and confidence! Need to be more organized? Try pairing light blue with yellow, to stimulate the mind and help with organizational skills.

Deep Sleep: Dark blue, however, tends to encourage deep and peaceful sleep, which makes the dramatic color ideal for a bedroom.

Diet Aid: According to the Paint Quality Institute, medium blue is an appetite suppressant, so you might want to avoid using it in the kitchen or dining room, unless you're on a diet. In that case, a blue plate might just do the trick.

Bright and Brighter: The color yellow is not only bright, it inspires mental brightness too! Yellow is associated with intelligence and expressive thoughts. Yellow is even credited with improving memory. If that's not enough to sell you on the color, yellow is a mood booster too! But with yellow a little goes a long way, and too much bright yellow can over stimulate the nervous system.

Chit Chat: Aqua or Turquoise encourages communication, making it the perfect paint color for a teenager's room — or in a salesroom office where the deal is sealed.

Hunger Pangs: It's no secret red inspires hunger, and many restaurants use the color psychology to whet a diners appetite. Red also increases the heart rate, energy and passion. But don't run off to buy a gallon of red yet. Studies show too much of some intense reds can cause irritability and anger. If you're using red in your room, try a darker shade of red, or try painting one wall to avoid becoming overwhelmed by the energetic color.

Spa Shade: Green is considered a healthy color, fostering comfort, relaxation and a sense of wellness. Green is a good choice for a bathroom, sun porch or reading nook. On the other hand, lighter shades of green such as mint green, can refresh and invigorate the mind. Darker greens, however, add a sense of calm to the decor and are another favorite bedroom color.

Bust the Blues: Depressed? Try painting your walls orange, or at least a workable shade of orange, such as peach or terra cotta. Orange is the top mood booster, according to experts. Orange fights depression and cultivates good humor. The powerful energy of orange even promotes the capacity to forgive!

The times, they are a-changin'

Having sold real estate for four decades, I have seen the process of selling a house change. Sellers need to understand consumer awareness has made buyers savvy regarding purchasing a home.

Buyers in today's market are concerned with the following: 1) houses being energy efficient, 2) environmental issues; such as radon, mold, asbestos, 3) sewerage systems (maintenance/types – septic/cesspool), 4) permits and workmanship.

Buyers have their experts to assist them in making good decisions such as home inspectors, Title 5 inspectors, and a Buyer Agent. None of these experts were available to them 40 years ago.

Buyers were told “caveat emptor” (let the buyer beware). Not so today – buyers have an army of experts assisting them.

Sellers need to know their property's strengths and weaknesses, and how these factors will affect their selling price and negotiations. I highly recommend sellers should also become informed consumers. Although a good real estate agent can give them guidance, they could gain first hand knowledge by attending seller seminars, nightlife classes, or free real estate informational programs. They can acquire needed information long before they decide to place their house on the market. Sellers are watching television and searching the Internet to gather information, however, there is no substitute for the opportunity to discuss Title 5 or radon in person with an expert. Many septic inspection companies offer programs to educate homeowners on types of systems and how they operate. They explain “Title 5” and its costs and requirements.

There is no substitution for knowledge. Sellers need to stay alert for educational opportunities regarding real estate. It will make the process of selling your house less stressful, easier, and more profitable and will make you part of the team of seller agent and homeowner. Sellers get better results in their sale by understanding the costs and issues that will affect their sale.

with a beautiful snowy scene, taken late in the afternoon with the sky lit by stunning pink tones cast against what looks like a carefully hand-painted landscape. January's photo was submitted by Frances Guevremont of Lincoln, R.I., who revealed that the scene lasted only about 10 minutes as she photographing it. February follows with another snow-filled landscape taken along the canal tow path below the Ashton Dam in Quinville, R.I. David Newton of Cumberland, R.I., shared his photo that beckons one to cross the wooden bridge with snowshoes or cross country skis. Carol Dandrade of Uxbridge, spent some time along the rail trail in Millbury, and captured a reflection of a metal bridge that was cast onto the track. The picture offers a unique perspective that one might never see. Cormier Woods, a property in Uxbridge, preserved by Trustees of Reservations inspired Wendy A. Henschel of Linwood, to pack a camera. She captured an historic homestead along the trail with beautiful stone work and complementary colors in the roof and wood siding. It sits in surrounded by lush landscape just calling out for spring. The month of May is ushered into the 2017 Blackstone Heritage Corridor Calendar with a captivating photo of two cygnets whose sudden movement cast a spiral around them, offering the light an opportunity to dance around the new creatures. Tiny beads of water on the swans make one think the calendar is wet. Ernest Berube of Lincoln, R.I., captured

May's photo along the banks of the Blackstone River in Lincoln, R.I. Further north in his hometown of Douglas, Scott Harwood stopped along the Southern New England Trunkline Trail on Wallum Lake Road and zeroed in on aging stone arch bridge that beckons the admirer to continue on down the lush green path. An iconic symbol of freedom, the American Bald Eagle, graces the page in July, submitted by Don McKenzie of Worcester. Titled "Papa Bald Eagle Fishing in the Blackstone River," the powerful image was taken in Riverdale, a village of Northbridge. It is no secret that the Blackstone River offers photographers a wide variety of subjects. For the month of August, a photo submitted by Allan Siuzdak of Cumberland, R.I., of a trio of painted turtles walking up a fallen log also captured their reflection being cast in the water below. With the sun shining off their backs, one can almost feel the August heat pulsing off the page. The golden hues of September inspired Wendy A. Henschel to submit a photo taken at River Bend Farm at Blackstone River & Canal Heritage State Park in Uxbridge. Henschel captured a Fritillary butterfly resting with its wings wide open, appearing to be having a conversation with a nearby pencil dragonfly. River Bend Farm was also the scene for October's picture taken by Robert William Mielke of Uxbridge. Mielke spotted a picnicking couple enjoying the view of a stone arch bridge embellished with autumn color. Carol Dandrade visited the Hannaway Blacksmith Shop in Lincoln, R.I., and submitted a vignette of blacksmith tools with a roaring fire in the background, appropriate to offer some warmth to November's calendar picture with a nod to history. The month of December is celebrated with a picturesque winter scene of the Blackstone Canal at the Capt. Wilbur Kelly House Museum in Quinville, R.I. David Newton captured the shot after a snow squall had moved on and the sun started to break through the clouds casting a reflection on the water below. The coveted cover shot, "Pond Mist Sunrise," was submitted by Leon Droby of Uxbridge, at Voss Farm (River Bend Farm), also in Uxbridge. Standing near the shore looking at the tow path in the distance, Droby captured the daybreak with the sun's citrus-colored hues reflecting into the canal through a layer of fog dancing above it. The barren trees are reflected in the canal creating a captivating photo at a very popular visitor location in the National Heritage Corridor. "I look forward to this calendar contest every year because I get to see hundreds of photos that capture the uniqueness of the National Heritage Corridor," Cutler explained. "They are all submitted by local photographers, and it's always inspiring to see what they discover and choose to submit to help us tell our story through the months of the year. We are grateful for the passion and generosity." BHC's 2017 Calendar will be available at the Calendar Release Party on Oct. 17 and can be purchased for $10 each. The calendars will also be available for sale on BHC's online shop. To learn more, visit BlackstoneHeritageCorridor.org.

Moore highlights availability of Drought Emergency Loan Fund

BOSTON — Sen. Michael O. Moore (D-Millbury) is spreading awareness to local farmers and farm-related businesses about the availability of low-interest loans through the Drought Emergency Loan Fund. The Fund was officially launched yesterday by the Administration in response to the ongoing drought conditions that have plagued Massachusetts for over three months. The loans, ranging from $5,000 to $10,000, are available to assist farmers and small businesses in the agricultural industry with financial losses caused by the drought. "The agricultural sector in Central Massachusetts, and across the state, has been hit hard by the crippling drought conditions," said Moore. "I commend the Administration and state agricultural officials for making this funding available to help farmers and small businesses recover from this historic drought." Up to $1 million has been authorized for the Fund and applications are expected to be available through November of this year. BVT receives exceptional preliminary MCAS results

UPTON — The students returned to Blackstone Valley Tech with an extra hop in their step after a summer of rest and relaxation. The Superintendent-Director, Dr. Michael Fitzpatrick, had an extra hop in his step as well, but for a different reason.

The preliminary results of the spring MCAS tests demonstrate the positive learning experience occurring at BVT every day. That is, the results are in and they are good. The school district is eagerly awaiting the opportunity to release the scores, which are embargoed for a few more week.

The MCAS test, which was administered to tenth grade students in the spring, is a requirement for graduation at all Massachusetts public schools. The MCAS test is different than other serial assessments because it involves 100 percent of the student population. Other assessments, such as the SAT, are only administered to selected or gifted students. The inclusion of the entire student population makes the results even sweeter.

The students at BVT have their hard work and dedication, as well as the teaching staff, to thank for their stellar results.

“The results are quite good. It’s truly a testament to our hardworking students, faculty, and staff. Our students are exceeding expectations and committing to being the best both in the classroom and in the vocational programs,” school committee chairman Joseph M. Hall said.

The teaching staff, both academic and vocational, are able to prepare the students for the MCAS test through academic classwork as well as technical projects. This integrated approach to education gives students a more detailed knowledge of key concepts because of their ability to see theory applied to real world situations.

When the MCAS test is administered to BVT students, they are confident in their abilities thanks to the fusion of academic and technical learning. The results of the 2016 testing show their knowledge, skill, and confidence.

BVT is encouraged by the scores, and will release the results once the state-mandated embargo is lifted.

BVT’s self-funded project receives MSBA reimbursement

UPTON — For Blackstone Valley Tech, getting a second reimbursement installment from the Massachusetts School Building Authority (MSBA) for the 37,200 square foot roofing repair project means phase two of the project is almost complete and preliminary talks can begin for the remaining and final section.

The most recent phase of the roof repair project focused on the 200 wing of the school, which encompasses classrooms as well as the auto collision and repair, auto tech, and electrical shops. The repairs began in June and were substantially complete by the end of August.

Following the district’s commitment to live within its budget, Valley Tech successfully applied, in February 2015, and received, in January 2016, a grant from the MSBA. MSBA authorities have commented that for an educational system to embark and complete a project without bonding is remarkable.

The roof repair project was originally projected to cost $1,157,343, which made it eligible for a maximum MSBA facilities grant of $619,526 – a 53.53 percent reimbursement rate.

The first two reimbursements, which the district is entitled to as cost occurs through progress billing, totaled almost $367,500. Recently, the district submitted its third (unaudited) reimbursement request. Assuming Valley Tech receives the full reimbursement of the most recent request, the district will have been reimbursed approximately 71 percent of the total maximum facilities grant available (based on the initial construction estimates).

The reimbursements will be put towards phase three of the roof project, which is still a few years away.

“The district made a commitment to the MSBA during the initial phase of the roof repair project that it would parlay any MSBA receipts to the next phase of the roof project until all phases were complete thereby alleviating responsibility from the district’s member towns,” said Kurtis W. Johnson, Assistant Superintendent for Finance and Operations.

In order to further curtail impact to member towns, portions of the roof repair project are completed by Valley Tech’s certified staff and students. This practice not only lifts financial burdens, but also gives students valuable hands-on experience.

The completion of the critical roof repair project ensures the safety of the students at Valley Tech, as well as the safety of the investment the district towns have made to make Valley Tech an exceptional academic and vocational institution.

Douglas boys' soccer uses new-look roster to tame Wolverines

LEICESTER — Two experienced and strong boys' varsity soccer teams from 2015 in Douglas High and Leicester High had to regroup for this upcoming year, and both new-look rosters squared off on Friday, Sept. 9 for an early interleague meeting.

It was the Tigers who appeared primed for another potential solid campaign as they blanked the Wolverines at Community Field, 8-0.

"We've got to get the chemistry going and it's a good way to start the season," said Douglas head coach Alex Ferguson, whose team went 16-1-1 in regular season play last year before advancing all the way to the Division 3 state championship game, where they fell to Norton High, 2-1, in penalties.

The Tigers return just four starters, as Ferguson noted, "We lost 10 seniors last year. I've got four freshmen, four sophomores and four juniors, so we're basically a younger team."

Ferguson still hopes for a season that is filled with wins and a deep postseason run, which has become a common occurrence in Douglas.

"They know the style we want to play," he said. "They work hard at practice every day. So as long as everything keeps coming through, we progress and keep improving every game, we should be there in the end."

While the Tigers took their season opener, Leicester dropped to 1-1 after defeating Southbridge High, 3-0, in their first contest of 2016. And, as is the case with Douglas, the Wolverines don't have too many familiar faces on the pitch this fall, as only one senior remains and just two returning starters.

"We lost 13 seniors, nine of them starters, so rebuilding year," said Leicester head coach Reed Cleveland after embarking on a 10-6-3 and district-bound season last year. "There definitely will be some growing pains this year."

The Tigers scored their first goal around the midpoint of the first half when Grant Gualtieri launched a free kick right to the head of Ader Schimith, who beat Wolverine keeper Nick LeBoeuf (15 saves).

Douglas took a 2-0 lead into halftime four minutes later when Schimith scored again, this time off a corner kick off the foot of Jarred Keeman.

The second half is when the Tigers poured it on, though, scoring six more times to upset Cleveland about his team's performance.

"Never OK with losing, but I wanted to see a better performance from these guys," he said. "Thought we could have kept it closer, especially with it being 2-0 at half, but then it opened up."

Schimith finished off his hat trick early in the second half, with Keegan Ferguson assisting, before Schimith got into the assisting side of things by passing over to Dylan Gordon for a goal.

Gualtieri (Josh Cyr assist), Keegan Ferguson (Cyr assist), Ian Mazzerella (Schimith assist) and Caleb L'Italien (Connor Goncalves assist) scored the final four goals for Douglas, which all came off nice feeds.

"We've been trying to get everybody involved in the game because I've got a couple players on this team that can dribble through everybody but we don't want that to happen because then you'll see them getting marked," Alex Ferguson explained. "We want everybody to open the game for each other."

Danny Hayes, the Tigers' keeper, kept his shutout intact with a handful of saves and a narrowly missed shot off the foot of Leicester's Alex McCormack, which missed the right post by inches.

As for as progress goes for Leicester, Cleveland concluded that his team will "have to play better defense and communicate more."

Douglas' Grant Gualtieri dribbles down the field and evades Leicester's Colby Charties (18).

rebound and have someone come on to it."

Place's shot hit the under portion of the crossbar and into the net, a strike that Northbridge keeper James Crawford could do nothing about after making 11 nice saves beforehand.

"We are fortunate enough to be on the winning side of that late goal," said Renauld.

On the flipside, Ram head coach Jeff Kozik mentioned that the loss, "Will keep me up tonight."

The Indians will gladly take the two points for the win instead of one point for a tie, especially a year removed from finishing 6-9-3, just three points shy of postseason inclusion. Bartlett had reached the playoffs 11 straight years before the 2015 season.

"I'm still shaking," Place said of the victory. "It's the seniors' last year and we have to give it our all."

Renauld mentioned that, "Heartache is helping these guys. I think they've got a little bit of a chip on their shoulder and they want to prove that they can make districts and they are a district team."

Bartlett keeper Taven Phanthavong made 11 saves, including many of the punching variety on high shots that seemed destined to go in.

"The impressive thing is that he works very hard on his footwork and his angles to be in the right spot," Renauld said of Phanthavong, who is about the same height as the diminutive Renauld (5 feet, 5 1/2 inches). "He can reach the bar. He has enough of a vertical to get to the bar."

Northbridge, meanwhile, had great offensive chances off the feet of Codey Batista (crossbar) and James Baldwin Von Brunow (left post).

Despite the loss, the Rams remain to have high expectations for the season.

"Our goal has got to be to win a state championship every year," said Kozik, adding that the primary sub-goal is, "We obviously want to make districts."

Soccer star Payton Linnehan set for big happenings on the pitch

Douglas resident Payton Linnehan (13) has garnered national attention for her standout soccer play, including numerous Division 1 colleges showing interest in the current sophomore.

BY JON GOUIN
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

DOUGLAS — “You could always tell where she was on the field because she was the smallest one out there,” laughed Sean Linnehan, the father of Blackstone Valley Tech sophomore and emerging national soccer star, Payton, during an interview in their home on Tuesday, Sept. 6.

While Payton may be the smallest player out there, she may also provide the biggest impact, regardless of what team she’s running the pitch for. Be it the Beavers at BVT, her ECNL (Elite Club National League) squad the FC Stars, or even the U15 U.S. national team, Linnehan’s talent and nose for the net are undeniable.

This past Aug. 21 in Orlando, Linnehan helped lead that U15 U.S. National team to the 2016 CONCACAF World Championship with a 2-0 win over Canada for the squad’s first ever tournament win. Linnehan scored 8 goals in the 7 games played, earning the Golden Boot for her efforts.

Last fall, as only a freshman, she helped the upstart Beavers reach the Central Mass. Division 3 district final, where they eventually fell to a heavily favored Millbury High team, who went on to win the state championship. And, with her ECNL team, a finals appearance in San Diego didn’t go her way, but provided plenty of experience and great times.

“I really didn’t know what to expect since it was first year at the high school level,” she said of her first Valley Tech season. “I feel like we all just made each other better and that sort of carried us through [the district tournament].”

Early on in her freshman season, Valley Tech coach Joy Porter was quoted as saying, “Payton is one of those phenomenal players and the only freshman on my team. Teams have heard about her and tend to focus on her, that helps her create a lot of opportunities for everyone else as well.”

Payton, who began playing soccer at age 4, has come a long way. But, her ability to find the back of the net has been apparent since Day One.

“In her early days she wouldn’t leave me, she’d make me stand there on the field with her during drills. But, once they dropped the ball, she didn’t care about me or anybody. She scored 10 goals that first game — five for her team, five for the other — she was just out there motoring around scoring goals,” Sean chuckled.

It was apparent early on that Payton had found her niche, and she hasn’t stopped ever since. And there is more to come, much more.

“My goal is to make the U17 U.S. World Cup team, and ultimately to play in the Olympics,” she noted of future endeavors that are well within her reach.

Though still only a sophomore, Payton is being actively scouted by major Division 1 college programs and has regularly received heaping amounts of praise via email from schools like Notre Dame, Penn State, Boston College, Clemson, South Carolina, West Virginia and Tennessee, just to name a few.

and I’m truly grateful for it,” Payton said of the praise and interest shown in her and her talents.

Perhaps surprisingly, she admits that while all those big schools are intriguing, that the school with the “inside track” is Providence College, which she visited on Sunday, Sept. 4.

“She loves Providence and they probably have the jump since it’s 30 minutes from our house, she just couldn’t do the distance of some of the other schools,” her dad said.

“The farthest I’d probably go is Notre Dame or Penn State, but I want to stay local,” she added.

So now, with the high school season upon us, little Payton Linnehan has returned from her national team and will refocus on her studies at BVT, and getting her Beavers back to the district tournament where another very strong Millbury team is sure to be waiting.

“Last year we made it really far and this year we have a few new players who are going to help, but we’ve only lost two players. I think we look pretty good for preseason and our goal is to get back to that final game,” said Payton.

Blackstone Valley Tech football falls flat in season opener versus Maynard

BY JON GOUIN
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

UPTON — The Blackstone Valley Tech varsity football team kicked off their 2016 season with a matchup against Maynard High this past Saturday afternoon, Sept. 10. Unfortunately for the Beavers, things didn’t go as planned in a 33-15 loss to the Tigers of the Mid-Wach D League.

It was the second straight opening game defeat that BVT has suffered to Maynard, as the Tigers took a 46-20 contest on Sept. 11, 2015. This time, it was the running game that the Beavers never found a way to slow down, and nearly 300 yards later, BVT was left scratching their collective heads.

“It’s definitely disappointing and frustrating,” head coach Jim Archibald said of his team’s performance in the loss. “We didn’t play hard, we didn’t do what we had to do. The good thing is it’s the first game. We’ve got a lot of room for improvement and we’re going to work on it.”

Things did not go well for many Beavers on the day, especially upperclassmen. Senior quarterback Hector Petri was just 7 of 16 throwing the ball for 69 yards. On the ground, Valley Tech didn’t have much better luck. Co-captain Kevin Barthelmes led the way with 48 yards on 12 carries while scoring a touchdown late in the second quarter, but that made the score 14-7, and Maynard scored just before the half to take a 20-7 lead into the break.

The Tigers were led by P.J. Falzone and his 87 yards on seven carries. He also had a touchdown. Alex Longo racked up 44 yards on 11 carries and also scored for the visiting squad. Sophomore quarterback Tommy Smith wasn’t asked to do much, going 2 for 3, but he connected with Falzone on a 31-yard strike with 6 seconds remaining in the first half.

The third quarter would be a scoreless one, but by its end, Archibald had seen enough of his starters and began to substitute in younger players, including sophomore Reece Hendriks at quarterback. The youngster ultimately threw a pick-six in the fourth period, but he also ran in the second Beavers’ touchdown from 11 yards out. That made it a 33-15 game with just 1:18 to play.

“I’m trying to find 11 guys that can play, whether they’re freshmen, sophomores, I don’t care,” Archibald said. “The juniors and seniors just didn’t show up today, so we might as well go with the younger guys and see what we’ve got.”

Valley Tech gets right back at it this Saturday afternoon, again at home, and again at 1 p.m. This time around, they host the Abby Kelley Foster Bears (1-0) who are coming off of a 36-0 drubbing of Oxford High, in what amounts to a near must-win game for the sake of the team’s confidence as it looks for another Colonial Athletic League title.

“We can’t watch that from the upperclassmen all season, we’ve got to get better, and we will,” Archibald said in conclusion.

Blackstone Valley Tech starting quarterback Hector Petri awaits the snap with Corey Smith to his right during a 33-15 opening day loss to Maynard on Saturday, Sept. 10.

McGovern criticizes GOP on several issues

“Almost 17,000 Americans, including nearly 1,600 pregnant women, are currently suffering from the Zika virus. And this month, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention will run out of resources to fight Zika. In the words of Dr. Thomas Frieden of the CDC, ‘We need Congress to act,’” said McGovern. “Instead of considering a bipartisan Zika funding bill, the Republican leadership in the House has, once again, caved to the most extreme factions of their Conference to produce an inadequate, partisan bill loaded with poison pill offsets.”

Calling the Zika virus situation an “emergency,” McGovern called out Republicans on “making excuses” and ignoring input from officials on the epidemic that he feels needs to be taken more seriously. He added that he feels the lack of action is an assault on women’s healthcare as well.

“We have public health expert after public health expert tell us we need to act, and yet, my Republican friends seem to think they know better. They have brought to the floor legislation to undermine the Clean Water Act under the guise of containing the Zika virus. And they have even insisted on poison pill riders that continue the Republican assault on women’s access to comprehensive health care instead of bringing legislation that is focused solely on protecting American families from the terrible impacts of Zika,” said the congressman.

Continuing his tirade, McGovern said he feels that other public health issues like the opioid crisis and the Flint, Mich. water crisis have gone overlooked, and while he credited Congress for passing some legislation, specifically in regards to the opioid concern, he feels there is still too much to be done and that not enough Republican lawmakers are stepping up to the plate to help make it happen.

“We need to pass a strong piece of legislation that actually funds our fight against the opioid crisis and gives state and local partners the resources they need to help so many of our communities who have been hit hard by this epidemic. Passing a bill that has all these nice statements in it and nice goals and not funding it, well that’s just a press release. And that’s about the extent of what this Congress has done to deal with this terrible opioid crisis,” McGovern said, moving to the Flint crisis next. “For two years, 100,000 people in Flint could not access safe water from their own faucets. For two years, hardworking Americans were denied the fundamental right of access to potable water. We’re not talking about some tiny country halfway around the world. This has been happening right here in the United States of America. The Families of Flint Act, led by my friend and colleague Congressman Dan Kildee, would help the people in Flint recover from the man-made disaster that they are still dealing with. But, this Congress is too busy wasting its time to even consider bringing this vitally important, non-controversial bill up for a vote. Where is the Majority leadership on this?”

Finally, McGovern’s criticisms tackled the Republican reaction to what McGovern feels is common sense gun law changes and improvements such as the “No Fly, No Buy” measure that his Republican opponents have not acted on this session. McGovern challenged Republicans to act on what he feels is bipartisan and common sense legislation.

“They have blocked debate on legislation to expand and strengthen background checks. If you go to a licensed gun dealer, you have to go through a background check. But if you go to a gun show or if you buy a gun online, you don’t have to go through a background check. What sense does that make? Who can be against that?” said the congressman. “And yet, they have voted time and time again the right to bring that to the floor. They have voted five times against lifting the 19-year-long ban on federal research on gun violence. What is the Republican Congress so afraid of?”

Addressing Republican criticism of the Democratic Party’s sit in calling for action on gun violence legislation, McGovern said that while Republicans have been quick to call out Democrats for their protest they have shown little concern for gun violence victims in his eyes.

“My question is, where’s the outrage over the 49 innocent civilians killed in Orlando? Where’s the outrage over the 14 people killed in San Bernardino? Or the nine people killed in a church in South Carolina? Is there any outrage over that? Where’s the outrage over the 27, mostly children, killed in Newtown, Connecticut? Or the 12 people killed in a movie theater in Aurora, Colorado? Or the outrage over the six people who were killed in Tucson, Arizona where our former colleague, Gabby Giffords, was shot? Or the 32 people killed at Virginia Tech?” said McGovern. “Since my Republican friends have been in recess, over 4,000 Americans have been shot and killed by guns in this country. Where’s the outrage? The only outrage that my Republican friends seem to have is over the fact that Democrats have had the audacity to raise this question and say maybe we can do something. Maybe we can do something to protect our constituents. I’ll say to my colleagues, we don’t need a slap on the wrist from the Republican leadership here. We need to reform our laws to ensure that guns are kept out of the wrong hands.”

McGovern completed his speech on the floor with a call to action for everyone in the House to “do the people’s business” and asked his colleagues to reassess their priorities in Washington saying simply, “We’re not doing it today and I hope that my colleagues will reconsider their agenda for the time we’re back here and actually do something meaningful.”

Relay for Life remembers, celebrates, offers support

Cancer survivors celebrate their accomplishments.

Survivors take a moment to reflect.

Lilly Terry, 7, of Charlton, left, and Samantha Norberg, 8, of Charlton, are all smiles outside the tent of Team Norberg Strong.

Auburn's Bev Goodney, left, a cancer survivor of 20 years, is joined by family.

AUBURN — In a two-day event of hope and remembrance, the community came together on Sept. 9-10 at Relay for Life to celebrate cancer survivors and honor those who lost their battles. Always strongly supported, the Relay's Central South County event takes place each September at Lemansky Park. Several returning teams once again impressed with their fundraising totals, and new teams made their marks as well. Organizers also thanked Auburn Mall for its sponsorship of the event.

Auburn's Kelly Willard attends the event for the first time with her daughters, Sophie, 11, and KK, 7.

The Lyon Family, of East Brookfield, has attended Relay as Team Our Sunflowers members for eight years.

Volunteer Bob Daigneault has been helping out at Relay for over a decade.

A longtime Relay supporter, Richie Bianculli keeps guests cool on a hot evening.

Guests took time to remember a lifetime of service to Auburn.

A triumphant sea of purple marks the survivor's lap.

Sharon Talman represents Auburn Mall, the event sponsor.

An original Relay team, members of Auburn's Angels come together.

‘Uniquely Uxbridge’ continues fun tradition of community spirit

UXBRIDGE — Uniquely Uxbridge gets bigger and better each year, with more and more residents attending the ever-expanding day that celebrates community spirit. With local vendors, a cardboard boat race, pie eating contest and other family friendly activities, Uniquely Uxbridge was a way to not only come together as a town, but raise money for a cause.

According to one of the events’ founders, Travis Ann Baker, the celebration raised $2,500 towards a scholarship fund for Uxbridge residents graduating from high school.

“Uniquely Uxbridge started four years ago on Facebook,” said Baker. “There was a fire in town that displaced seven families and two businesses. We needed a huge fundraiser to help. The first Uniquely Uxbridge was so much fun that we decided to do it every year.”
