FIRST FRIDAYS IN PUTNAM

PUTNAM — Putnam's June edition of the First Fridays street fair was held on June 2. "It's our first time here," said Richard and Jaime Thompson, with their daughter/dragon Harper. "It's really nice. She's having a lot of fun."

DANIELSON — In 1952 Army infantryman corporal Edward Leavitt earned a Silver Star, the nation's third highest military honor, for bravery and heroism in combat in the Korean War. Leavitt's medals were lost in a house fire years later. The Veterans Coffeehouse hosted a ceremony in which U.S. Representative Joe Courtney presented Leavitt with a replacement Silver Star on May 30.

Leavitt, 88, from Putnam, also received the Korean Ambassador's Medal for Peace as well as the Connecticut Wartime Service Medal. More than a year ago, Vietnam veteran Garry Brown, from Pomfret — a key volunteer at the Veterans Coffeehouse — began tracking down the documentation needed for Leavitt's honors. Leavitt previously also earned a Purple Heart for his actions, and Courtney said, "It's a special level that speaks to Ed's heroism."

Leavitt was honored by a Coffeehouse full of fellow veterans, including five others who also served in Korea, plus dozens of family members and friends.

BROOKLYN AG DAYS

BROOKLYN — "Old traditions and new beginnings" was the theme at Brooklyn Ag Days. The event paid homage to all of the things that make farming important, fun and unique at the Brooklyn Fair Grounds, June 2 through June 4. Tractor pulls, engine shows, swap meets and other exhibits and demonstrations entertained families from all over New England. Ted Powers pulls his steers, Powers gave steer rides on at Ag Days.

Sandtasia at Westview

DAYVILLE — Sandtasia recently created a sand sculpture at Westview Health Care Cente. Sandtasia, a Rhode Island-based professional sand sculpting company appear on the facility's front lawn to create their newest masterpiece every spring.

Sandtasia wwner, Steve Topazio and his sister, Jessica DiCostanzo, worked through rain and shine over the duration of three days to carve out this year's woodland motif creation that features a multi-faced tree stump adorned with multiple smiling gnomes. When the sun was shining Westview residents watched the artists working diligently from the facility patio, admiring the mystical characters carved from a seven-ton mound of sand.

Topazio, a retired construction manager turned professional sculptor, is commissioned by several local businesses and organizations, including the Woodstock Fair and Brooklyn Fair. One would think that the sculptures would only last through a few rainy days but the secret of their sculpture's longevity lies in the process of properly compacting the sand called the "pound up" and spraying a water and wood glue mixture to the finished work.

"Every project is fun. Every project is different," Topazio said. "I enjoy talking to the people who are intrigued to see the process unfold and answering their questions. I carve for the people."

The effort was appreciated.

"This is Sandtasia's fifth year at Westview," said David T. Panteleakos, Westview administrator. "Each year they bring something creatively new for us to admire through the upcoming summer months."

Brooklyn man held on sex assault charges

DANIELSON — A Brooklyn man is facing multiple sexual assault charges, Connecticut State Troopers said on Monday, June 5. State police detectives from the Eastern District Major Crime unit arrested Andrew Racine, 31, of 15 Quebec Square, Brooklyn, on Friday, June 2, after Troopers responded to a home in Brooklyn for a reported sexual assault.

A woman told police that Racine knocked on her door, forced his way into her apartment, overpowered her and sexually assaulted her. The victim, who knows Racine, was taken to Day Kimball Hospital where she was met by a representative of the Eastern Region Sexual Assault Crisis Center, police said.

State police found Racine at his home and transported him to Troop D Barracks in Danielson. Police said Racine confessed to Troopers and detectives about his involvement in the sexual assault. Racine reportedly told police he heard voices that told him to sexually assault the woman. He was taken to Day Kimball Hospital for evaluation.

Police took Racine into custody on Saturday, June 3, after his release from the hospital. He was charged with two counts of first-degree sexual assault, home invasion, first-degree kidnapping and first-degree unlawful restraint. Racine was held on a $500,000 cash surety bond and was scheduled to appear on June 5 in Danielson Superior Court.

Art among good friends

Best friends Donna O'Scolaigh Lange and Ann C. Rosebrooks had their artwork on display at Arts & Framing Sochar Art Gallery in downtown Putnam.

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — Two Thompson artists drew in the crowds on First Friday with their spectacular art. Ann C. Rosebrooks and Donna O'Scolaigh Lange had their newest pieces on display at Arts & Framing Sochar Art Gallery in downtown Putnam, with a successful reception on Friday, June 2. But the two artists are not new to exhibiting – or to each other. The two friends have been exhibiting their artwork together for the past 15 years.

I sat down inside the Montgomery Ward Building on Main Street with Rosebrooks and Lange to discuss their newest pieces and what they love about painting, and end up finding out what makes them such a dynamic duo.

So this isn't your first time exhibiting together.

Rosebrooks - "We've known each other a long time."

Lange - "We've been exhibiting together for 15 years. Our mentor, Frances Kornbluth, passed away at 93. That was about three years ago. The three of us showed together locally. Art circles are kind of small around here."

Rosebrooks - "Frances and I were both at a gallery in Hartford, Connecticut. That's when I first met her. Then we met Donna."

Lange - "We had an immediate connection to each other."

Rosebrooks - "We all had a show at the Thompson Library soon after. Then we showed at the Silver Circle in Putnam. And the Audubon Center in Pomfret. And the Vanilla Bean."

Why have you shown your work together all these years?

Rosebrooks - "Our work looks good together. It compliments each other. It's different. But our colors and sense of art works together."

So tell me about the pieces you are showing at Arts & Frames' gallery?

Rosebrooks - "Usually I do people, but lately I've been doing landscapes. I got inspired by going out west. It's so different. The shapes and the colors and the open skies. It's so different from New England."

Lange - "I was doing pretty traditional landscapes, but I've branched out into mixed mediums the past few years. I do a lot of collages. A trip to Ireland inspired me. I think seeing all of the carved stones and the vistas of green and the sea... It just inspired me to start layering in my work and then scraping back... It's almost archeological, to find things underneath. For me, I find that kind of work more interesting than my traditional landscapes. I wanted to do something different."

Rosebrooks - "When I went across the country I went with my friend. We drove 7,000 miles."

Lange - "How many?"

Rosebrooks - "Seven-thousand! We went to all these national parks out west, which I'd never been to. It inspired 'Scion,' my favorite piece at the exhibit tonight. I just like the lyrical feeling it has, with the water and the trees. I was very pleased with it."

Lange - "I like my Ireland collage called 'Jug Of Punch.' There's a little snippet of that song layered into the collage if you look at it closely. I transferred some of Dorothy Lang's Ireland photographs into the collage and then I painted a scene taken from one of my old family photographs in the collage to show the past and present influences of Ireland in my family tree."

How long have you been painting?

Lange - "I've always had a pencil in my hand as a young child. What I first did was illustration. Before computerized art. I would use watercolor pen and ink. I illustrated some children's books and educational materials, did a little advertising. When I moved here 25 years ago to northeast Conn. I was inspired by the landscapes. I ventured into oil painting."

Rosebrooks - "I've been painting since I was 14. I just like the feeling of being lost in the artwork. Everything around me goes away. It's just a

Woodstock's John performs off-Broadway

WILLIMANTIC — Brand-new graduates and select students from the theatre program at Eastern Connecticut State University brought their skills to New York City for the program's annual NYC Showcase. On May 21-22 at the Producers' Club Crown Theatre, 13 students (some of them now alumni) acted or worked behind the scenes in "Scenes, Songs, and Monologues 2017."

Directed by Jerry Winters, the production was a compilation of short works, including contemporary and classical texts, original dance and songs from Broadway musicals. "Scenes, Songs, and Monologues 2017" was performed by an ensemble of nine actors who played multiple parts.

Among the participants was Emily John, Class of 2017, from Woodstock Valley, who played Mrs. Givings in Sarah Ruhle's "In the Next Room (or the Vibrator Play)" and Maggie in Tom O'Brien's "Maggie May." John majors in Theatre.

In addition to presenting two public performances at the Producers' Club Crown Theatre, Eastern participants attended "War Paint," a Broadway show; participated in a movement workshop led by actor/director Danyon Davis; and toured the Lincoln Center Performing Arts Library, the Fashion District, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Cooper Hewitt Smithsonian Design Museum.

The NYC Showcase was started in 1994 by Theatre Professor Ellen Faith Brodie. The event brings advanced theatre students and faculty to New York City at the end of the academic year to participate in an intensive tour that includes performance at an off-Broadway venue, theatre workshops led by professional NYC artists, tours of graduate schools, networking with industry professionals, and tours of Broadway theatres and other venues.

Spring Awakening in Thompson

Simone Germain will have her artwork on display at the Thompson Library throughout the month of June. Her reception will be the night of June 8. "Spring Awakening" will feature mandala-inspired pieces by Simone Germain that celebrate spring, healing and peace.

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

THOMPSON — The Thompson Public Library will be experiencing a "Spring Awakening" in the month of June. Starting with an opening reception the night of June 8, Charlton resident Simone Germain will host her spring and serenity-themed exhibit at the library.

While Germain has been exhibiting her art for a while, this show is full of firsts for the seasoned painter. For one, this is Germain's first time visiting the Thompson Library, which she stated she is very excited about. Second, the art that will be on display is from a new collection she's been working on.

Instead of working on a traditional canvas, Germain's mandala-themed pieces are painted on circular pieces of wood.

"I actually hate straight lines," she admitted. "As a joke, my husband said, 'want me to cut you up some circles to paint on?' I kind of got hooked from there."

Mandalas are a symbol of healing and peace. For Germain, the intricate and repetitive patterns are very relaxing and therapeutic to create. She finds herself getting lost in the "doodles."

The art exhibit will feature nine of these mandala-inspired wall decorations, ranging from 24 to 36 inches. Her favorite one is one of the larger pieces, solely because of the significance it has to her.

"It was the first one I did," she explained. "It was during that time when I thought, 'I love this!' I just got addicted after that."

While landscapes, portraits and other traditional paintings are usually inspired by certain people, places, things or memories, Germain found that nothing in particular really inspires her when it comes to the mandala pieces. But "that's the fun of it."

Explained the artist: "They're intuitive. You let your spirit take over."

That form of art really allows the artist to get lost in the piece, focused on the intricate lines, dots and shading that make up the patterns.

While Germain is new to mandala-themed painting, she is not new to painting in general. She has been painting for a very long time, mostly with acrylics. But she's also dabbled in watercolors, oils, inks and pastels ("Pretty much any medium I can get my hands on!") in an attempt to switch it up and not get bored.

For Germain, painting is her therapy.

But it's also her business.

Germain hosts painting parties under her business "Art By Simone," where she has the opportunity to share her art and passion with other people. She also works with women in recover, leading private art classes twice a week.

"Other people really seem to enjoy art, too," said Germain. "The women look forward to me coming back every week. So far we've done mostly acrylic and water color but as the warmer weather comes, we'll probably do some other things outside, like tie-dying t-shirts and things like that."

When she isn't holding a brush, Germain enjoys community theater and volunteering. But she admits art takes up most of her free time as well. As part of the Quinebaug Valley Council for the Arts & Humanities, Germain is constantly immersed in the art world, including her role as curator for the QVCAH's collaboration with the Tri-COmmunity YMCA, bringing art to the walls of the community organization each month.

"We want to make artwork more accessible to everyone," said Germain. "I just love the arts. And it's a cultural thing. Art is so important. It helps people express themselves."

Putnam High emphasizes smart choices

PUTNAM — Putnam High School organized a pre-prom assembly on May 26 dealing with smart choices. The featured speaker was former WWE wrestler Marc Mero. Mero's "Champion of Choices" presentation is a motivational and inspirational message that touches on anti-drug awareness and alcohol usage that destroys families and lives. Mero's presentation also sends a strong message against bullying, being kind to others, and on suicide prevention as well. The event was organized by Lisa Mooney, Putnam High's social worker and the advisor for the school's Student Against Destructive Decisions program. Monica Boudreau is a SADD co-advisor.

The Champion of Choices powerful "Time is Now!" production helps students see life from a new perspective. Marc Mero experienced his first crisis at age eight when his parents divorced. He grew up in a single-family home in a poor section of New York, but wrote down his dreams and goals, setting his sights on athletics. Mero worked hard to achieve success in hockey, football, boxing and professional wrestling. After reaching the pinnacle of sports entertainment, Mero suffered enormous loss and learned that money and fame couldn't buy happiness.

"It's not what's in your pocket; it's what's in your heart that matters," said Mero.

The tragic loss of more than 30 of Mero's close friends and family members — largely due to lifestyle choices and negative behaviors – spurred Mero into action. He wanted people to be aware of the consequences of their choices and, in 2007, founded Champion of Choices, Inc. – a 501c(3) organization.

Summer dreams

The summer reading lists are out. The seasonal restaurants are open and, if the sun ever shines for more than an hour or two, it will be time to take a swim. Eventually the blasted gypsy moths will disappear and summer in all its glory will arrive. It is my favorite season and perhaps yours as well. As such, I like to savor every day and the only way to do it all is to make a plan. I have some suggestions.

Podcasts have entered my life in a big way. One helps me sleep (sleepwithme). Another has me on the edge of my seat about crime in Providence (Crimetown). "Happier with Gretchen Rubin" has led me to think about designing my summer. Rubin, a likeable former lawyer who clerked for Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, is no lightweight when it comes to what she reads and thinks. She got me thinking about designing one's summer instead of drifting.

NANCY WEISS

I like to see people all year round, but I seem to run into old friends at Deary's Stand. I go for the chowder or splurge on a lobster roll, knowing that I will run into someone unexpected and welcome. It's nice to sit outside in Putnam on a warm evening, but nothing beats eating a freshly caught fish at the Vanilla Bean in Pomfret. I wish I liked real ice cream as We-Li-Kit is terrific, but I prefer the fake stuff- soft serve. Ashford Dairy Bar is a current favorite. It's still June, but I've managed to indulge in several treats already.

Summer is more than food. In designing what I am going to do, I must include several trips to Watch Hill. The snazzy little beach community offers expensive parking, pricy shopping and access to lovely beaches. Every year a friend and I go to honor the memory of my sister-in-law, who loved the place. I will bring my grandchildren on another visit and dig holes in the sand as I did with my daughters. I hope the carousel is operating. I hope the crabby lady is still selling popcorn on the street.

Last year my husband and I went to Quebec City. It was worth the long drive. We loved the big, old hotel, the Canadian French and the culture, both so exotic and familiar. French Canadians settled our area in great numbers and had many connections to the Quebecoise. This year I'd like to visit Nova Scotia, where my maternal grandmother's ancestors settled.

Wyndham Land Trust celebrates the Summer Solstice. This year I intend to join them. We hosted a Finnish exchange student once and he went to a solstice party that rivaled New Years' Eve. I hope to catch a bit of the pagan spirit that inspired the parties eons ago.

Theatre in the Barn at the Golden Lamb Buttery in Brooklyn is always a treat as are the Friday evenings on the back patio at the Inn at Woodstock Hill. Both places have a magical feel. Lush green fields, high white clouds, distant herds of cattle. Oh my, could we be living in a Jane Austin novel? Feels like it in mid-summer.

Listening to the Ms. Rubin, I was reminded how much we all love that "school is out" feeling even if our classroom days are far behind us. She noted that when we do things habitually, we feel as if time speeds up. When we disrupt our patterns by doing something different, it makes time feel more expansive, memorable and richer. That's what summer wants to be, a little adventure, a bit of drama, a change of schedule. It won't happen if we don't stop, design our special summer moments and then live them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A response to a veteran's thoughts on freedom

To the editor:

Let me try a brief answer to Dave Boylan's criticism (A veteran's thoughts on freedom, June 2 edition of The Villager) of my Memorial Day guest column and his extended criticism of liberal progressives in general.

I do not believe I insulted veterans with my basic point that the money lavished on military adventures abroad would have protected more American freedoms if spent on health care for our citizens. Government apologists always argue than any criticism of military expenditures or use of our troops is an attack on our citizen soldiers. Nonsense. They used our natural desire to support our boys in harm's way to keep the Vietnam war (and now the Afghanistan war) going long after it was clear we were not going to impose our will there. As a result, many more of my peers came home in coffins and wheel chairs and with drug dependencies.

I supported the veterans by supporting the candidate who said, "If you are not prepared to take care of the men and women who put their lives on the line to defend this country – who came back wounded in body, wounded in spirit – if you're not prepared to help those people, then don't send them to war in the first place."

No, Dave, to quote my sentence that you pounced on and misinterpreted: I don't believe that my life, liberty or pursuit of happiness freedoms have been threatened by Axis fascism, International Communism, Vietnamese reunification, Saddam Hussein, the Taliban or even ISIS.

I'm glad your Dad went to fight Axis fascism. My dad was a major with the 8th Air Force in North Africa, Italy, England (for D-day) and France. I'm glad we went to aid of our allies, but I absolutely deny that our country was in danger of invasion and losing our freedoms. Consider: at the height of his power, when he was still allies with Russia and before the US entered the war, Hitler could not cross the narrowest part of the English Channel. After his arrogant and disastrous (Yes, David, thanks to our lend-lease) invasion of Russia he could never have invaded across the Atlantic. The Japanese, too overextended themselves into China, SouthEast Asia and the South Pacific, and, as you said, did invade parts of our Aleutians, but Tojo himself said he never contemplated invading the continental US: "There would be a gun behind every tree." Score one for the Second Amendment.

I think the basic political argument of our time is how and how much we want to tax ourselves and how to spend that money efficiently to protect and improve the lives of our people. Your opinion that we could never fund a universal healthcare system denies the truth that all our allies do it with a variety of systems we could try, if only it were higher on our to-do list than padding our military-industrial corporations' shareholders' bank accounts.

None of those other systems are like Obamacare, which is a mess of compromises based on Romneycare and the Heritage Foundation's original 1992 proposal to keep the insurance companies profitable. We can do better.

I'll be happy to talk about our war, Vietnam. That one wasn't even about their freedom to elect their leaders. In '56 the US supported Diem's cancellation of an election that we feared would elect Ho Chi Minh. So much for defending democracy. How am I insulting you, the veteran, when I ask in my guest column what freedoms we lost when Ho won? Imagine that we were spending those dollars and human lives on freedoms here at home, that's my point. You voted for Mr. "make America first," yes?

The freedoms many of us lost because of the Vietnam war came from the draconian drug laws that the Nixon administration passed to try to lock up the core of the peace- and black-rights movements. Abbie may have been smoking, but the Berrigans weren't.

I'm sorry you live in fear of ISIS taking away our freedoms, David. I've been thinking about the odds, and fear that I'm about a million times more likely to have my freedom curtailed by that texter drifting over the center line towards me. ISIS's habit of killing thousands of Muslims for every Christian they kill prompts many analysts to think they have not got an expansive future. Fear not. Good health to you.

Reader has had enough already

To the editor:

Hardly a week goes by where there is a letter on the opinion page without an inane diatribe from Messiers Wesler and Boyd vilifying President Trump. Give it a rest gentlemen! Get a life! The reason your candidate lost was because she was a lousy candidate who ran a terrible campaign. The American people who voted against her saw her for what she was – a liar, untrustworthy, duplicitious, corrupt, and unpatriotic; remember Benghazi?

When appearing before a Congressional committee afterward, she said we have four dead Americans here what difference does it make! The Fascist Left in this country which includes the main stream media and Democrat Party have utter hate for anyone who doesn't adhere to their Idealogy or Agenda (Group Think).

Perhaps Hillary herself put it best when during the campaign she called Trump supporters "deplorables" in a nutshell, she described what the Fascist Left is all about. She in effect said that over half the voting public her own citizens the ones she wanted to lead who were exercising their right to vote what she really thought about them.

To sum up the Fascist Left the main stream media and the Democrat party with their hate, vile slanderous attacks, lies and impugning the character of anyone who disagrees with them are they the real enemy of this country? To quote from the bible as Jesus spoke it by their fruit you shall know them.

Killingly's role in French and Indian War

KILLINGLY AT 300

MARGARET WEAVER

I recently returned from visiting my 96 year-old mother in Pennsylvania. Since she lives at the foot of a mountain north of Harrisburg on the Susquehanna River, I always look forward to the beautiful view of the river and mountains, despite the construction of a superhighway along the river through my small hometown. Much to my delight the rain stopped long enough for me to make a quick trip to Fort Hunter Mansion and Park, a few miles south of my mother's, so I could take a walk along the river, which is a mile wide in that area, view the mountains, renew, and refresh my memory of the history of the park.

In the 1750's here in Northeastern Connecticut, men marched to the frontiers of New England and New York (Lake George, Crown Point, and Fort Ticonderoga) to fight for the British in the French and Indian War. (It seems strange to think of fighting for the British, doesn't it?) In Pennsylvania, the land surrounding Fort Hunter was the frontier so the early residents of that area had to be always alert for alarms. "Faced with the mounting threat of the French and Indian War, the British built a series of small forts from Harris Ferry (Harrisburg) to Fort Augusta in Sunbury. Among these was Fort Hunter, ideally situated at a bend in the river, thereby serving as an alarm station and supply depot. The Fort was a 10-foot by 14-foot log blockhouse surrounded by a stockade and manned by volunteer soldiers, mostly farmers' sons. In 1763, following the defeat of the Indian Nations, the Fort was left to decay" (https:/forthunter.org/history). It is believed that the mansion was built over the foundation of this early fort. (For a photo of the view of the Susquehanna River looking north, which I so love, go to the above site).

Although Northeastern Connecticut was removed from the actual fighting, a number of men from Killingly and surrounding towns answered the call for troops. In August 1755 "a regiment was raised in eastern Connecticut, to assist in the reduction of Crown Point, assigned to Sir William Johnson. Eliphalet Dyer was appointed its lieutenant colonel. Each Windham County town was ordered to furnish its proportion of men. John Grosvenor was captain of the company in Pomfret, with Nehemiah Tyler for first and Israel Putnam for second lieutenants. A strong military spirit pervaded the towns, deepened by a sense of religious and patriotic obligation, and all were ready to bear their part of the public burdens. This regiment at once joined the forces at Lake George and

Thoughts on the planet

GUEST COLUMN

LEE WESLER

"We have met the enemy and he is us" is a famous quote by comic strip creature Pogo highlighting the first Earth Day in 1970 seems even more relevant today now that President Trump has pulled America out of the landmark Paris Accord agreements. This move will go down as one of the most short sighted and self-righteous blunders and one which places our country in the company of the many historically deplorable regimes such as the Nazis, the Huns, and Mongols. We have become the Empire.

Make no mistake, all evidence shows unequivocally that global temperatures in, concert with atmospheric and ocean carbon dioxide levels, have risen at unprecedented rates to record levels. As this process balloons out of control those on land will experience new record temperatures rendering parts of the planet uninhabitable, along with coastal decimation flooding out millions upon millions. Just as alarming are the oceanic effects. Because of warmer waters and falling oxygen levels, barrier reefs are being wiped out forever and fish are abandoning large swathes of regions creating huge death zones. In making his announcement the President showed a profound misunderstanding of the scientific data.

All this to satisfy a cabal of fossil fuel denizens who have surrounded a naïve president. Global apocalypse aside, we have now thumbed our noses at the rest of an entire world who recognize the seriousness of the situation and have agreed to participate (save only Syria and Nicaragua). We have isolated ourselves from the rest of the civilized world including all of our closest allies. We have doomed our economy to an archaic energy system, and killed jobs and technology which will all now be spearheaded by China. Yes we can continue to drill for oil and mine for coal and become a net energy exporter, but when the rest of the world is using solar and wind we are left with an obsolete product. As this writer has mentioned previously, the newest jobs are those in clean energy development and its application.

Trump states that implementing the Paris accord terms would cost America both in money and jobs. This is yet another untruth (untruths being broadcasted at a record pace) that the administration tries to perpetuate. It is true that as the Earth's number one consumer and its second biggest polluter America has the most to change and therefore the greatest responsibility. And yes jobs and money will be lost if our current system were to continue, but newer, better, and less expensive power delivery models are the future. The expansion of new green positions, the cost reductions as new technology becomes cheaper, and the avoidance of catastrophic hits brought on by a more contentious and unforgiving environment will more than pay for itself in the long run.

This is why hundreds of major CEOs, including big oil implored Mr. Trump not to abandon the treaty. So did Secretary of State Rex Tillerson former head of Exxon as well as leaders of the Pentagon recognizing both the threats to global stability as well as political threats brought on by an increasingly erratic environment. Disney CEO Bob Igor in stepping down from Trump's Strategic and

Two unique trusts: funeral and pet trusts

FINANCIAL FOCUS

JIM ZAHANSKY
INVESTMENT ADVISER

Planning well requires thinking about every detail, so let's talk about two unique kinds of trusts. A funeral trust is an arrangement entered into with a provider of funeral or burial services. Prepaying funeral expenses may allow you to "lock in" costs for future funeral or burial services at an agreed-upon price. The funeral home sometimes serves as trustee (manager of trust assets), and you usually fund the trust with cash, bonds, or life insurance. A revocable funeral trust can be changed and revoked by you at any time. An irrevocable trust can't be changed or revoked, and you generally can't get your money out except to pay for funeral services.

Irrevocable funeral trusts may also help you qualify for long-term care benefits through Medicaid. For example, these trusts may be funded with assets that would otherwise be countable resources for Medicaid (i.e., included in determining Medicaid eligibility). They are often sold through insurance companies, in which case they are typically funded with life insurance. And you can fund the funeral trust right before entering the nursing home — there's no "look-back" period for these transfers, unlike the case with certain other transfers that can cause a delay in the start of Medicaid benefits.

Another advantage of funding your trust with life insurance is that the trust will have no taxable income to report, because life insurance cash values grow tax deferred. Otherwise, income from trust assets may be taxed to you as the grantor of the trust, unless the trustee elects to treat the trust as a qualified funeral trust by filing Form 1041-QFT with the IRS, in which case trust income is taxed to the trust.

But what happens if you want to change funeral homes, or the facility you selected goes out of business? Does your irrevocable trust allow you to change beneficiaries (e.g., funeral homes)? Are trust funds protected from creditors of the funeral home? State laws regulating prepaid funeral trusts often require funeral homes to keep trust assets separate from their own business assets, keeping them safe from funeral home creditors. And most irrevocable trusts are transferable to another funeral home should the initial business fail or you change funeral homes.

A pet trust is an arrangement to provide for the care and financial support of your pet(s) upon your disability or death. You fund the trust with property or cash that can be used to provide for your pet based on your instructions in the trust document.

Your pet trust should name a trustee who will carry out your instructions for the care of your pet, including handling and disbursement of trust funds and turning your pet over to the person or entity you designate to serve as your pet's caregiver. The trustee and caregiver could be the same person or entity.

As with most trusts, you can create your pet trust while you're alive (an inter vivos or living trust) or at your death through your will (a testamentary trust). In either case, you can generally change the terms of your pet trust at any time during your lifetime to accommodate changing circumstances. If you create an inter vivos trust, you can fund it with cash or property either during your life (needed if the trust is to care for your pet if you become incapacitated) or at your death through your will. A testamentary trust is only funded after you die.

Some of the instructions to consider for your pet trust include: provisions for food and diet, daily routines, toys, medical care and grooming, how the trustee or caregiver is to document expenditures for reimbursement, whether the trust will insure the caregiver for any injuries or claims caused by your pet, and the disposition of your pet's remains.

You may also want to name a person or organization to take your pet should your trust run out of funds. Also consider naming a remainder beneficiary to receive any funds or property remaining in the trust after your pet dies.

A potential problem arises if your pet is expected to live for more than 21 years after your death. That's because, in many states, the "rule against perpetuities" forbids a trust from lasting beyond a certain period of time, usually 21 years after the death of an identified person. However, almost every state has laws relating to pet trusts that address this issue in particular and allow for the continued maintenance of the trust, even if its terms would otherwise violate the rule.

Overall, there are expenses associated with the creation of a trust and the purchase of life insurance, and benefits are not guaranteed. A financial planner can help you determine if either of these trusts might be beneficial to consider in your financial plan.

did good service during the remainder of the campaign. Putnam's uncommon daring, and fitness for military exploits, were at once shown and recognized. Associating himself with a company of Rangers, under command of Captain Robert Rogers, he engaged with great ardor and boldness in most exciting and hazardous service. (Larned, p. 563)" This region continued to send enlistees throughout the remainder of the war. Unfortunately, the town was not without its casualties. Killingly's John Robbins was wounded in a skirmish near Ticonderoga and died at Albany on July 17, 1758 (Colonial Records of Connecticut, p. 97). For more on the participation of men from Northeastern Connecticut see Ellen Larned's History of Windham County, Vo. I, pages 563-569.

Returning to the view of the Susquehanna River at Fort Hunter Park. When I looked to the south along the river, I could easily see the massive stone-arch Rockville Bridge. With its 48 spans it is considered by some to be the longest railroad bridge in the world. "That's only partly true — only the visible outer layer of its form is stone. The piers and spandrels (the area between the arches) are filled with concrete, making it technically a composite structure. In all, the bridge required not only 220,000 tons of stone but (also) an estimated 600,000 barrels of cement. Measuring 3,820 feet long, it carries four tracks at an elevation 52 feet above the river's low-water mark. The price tag was $975,150. The bridge opened on March 30, 1902. Less than three months later, the railroad inaugurated the most famous regularly scheduled passenger train to use the structure: the overnight New York-Chicago Pennsylvania Special, which later became the Broadway Limited." "Because the bridge was considered to be a military target, armed guards protected it during World Wars I and II. It got a boost of publicity in 1925 and 1926, and again in 1950, when PRR featured it on its widely known wall calendar series. The bridge withstood the flood of March 1936 and an even heavier assault from Tropical Storm Agnes in June 1972" (explorepahistory.com).

In Northeastern Connecticut the railroad trestle across the Quinebaug River in Putnam was not so fortunate and did not withstand floodwaters and was destroyed during the 1955 flood. The loss of that bridge spelled the death knell for the railroad going west from Putnam and forever altered the transportation opportunities for area residents.

Although it was not a railroad bridge perhaps some of you who are older remember the lovely stone arch bridge that once stood in Danielson where Franklin Street crossed the Five Mile River. Built in 1889 by stonemason Thomas Bradford, when that area was reconfigured for a rotary in 1957, the bridge was demolished. (For two photos of the bridge see Natalie L. Coolidge's and Robert A. Spencer's Images of America Killingly, p. 29).

I am aware of two smaller stone arch bridges that still remain standing in Killingly. The first, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, is located on Peeptoad Road in East Killingly. It is an unusual double stone arch bridge on the Whetstone Brook near Peeptoad Mill. The caption under a photo indicates that Peeptoad Mill was once the site of an ax and hoe shop and blacksmith shop. "In later years it was a yarn mill and then a hide-processing and warehousing facility for Danielson Manufacturing Company. It is now a private residence" (Images of America Killingly, p. 100).

The second small stone arch bridge is located on Cook Hill Road in South Killingly and is barely visible to the average passerby. It is near the two South Killingly cemeteries. A photo of this bridge can been seen on page 121 of Images of America Killingly Revisited by Natalie Coolidge.

If you are familiar with other stone arch bridges in Northeastern Connecticut, please feel free to email me or contact the Killingly Historical Society.

Policy Forum put it succinctly, "Protecting our planet and driving economic growth are critical to our future , and they aren't mutually exclusive".

It also makes little sense to abandon our current business strategy. As Mr. Trump noted, the stock market has added over 3 trillion dollars in value and the job market is strong. Unemployment is at a 16 year low meaning the economy is doing just fine. Why fix what ain't broken?

Then there is the more logistical dilemma. Treaties such as the Paris Accord (as well as the TTP) took many years to negotiate and in the case of the former involved 194 sovereign nations. In walking away it tells the rest of the that America does not keep its promises. Who in the future would bargain with us when all it takes is one narrow minded capricious person to render a thoughtfully crafted agreement useless? We can no longer be trusted to honor our obligations and this will make it much harder to forge future alignments.

The rest of the world is angry and they, along with many here, view Mr. Trump as the worst leader this country has ever seen. Perhaps even more disappointing we will no longer be looked upon as the good guys.

A thousand years from now, mankind (if it still exists) will look back and ask how the greatest nation on the planet, how a country that led the world out of some of its darkest times, how a democracy that stood for truth and justice, could suddenly turn its back and implode inward. How could a people that gave so much to those less fortunate, and represented charity and goodwill, elect greed over humanity? How could we have sold our soul to the Devil and turned Eden into Hell?

A Penny Saved…

My friend Nance sent me this hint from her home in New Jersey. (She's moving back to this area in the summer). When away from home and you return to find the clocks blinking...you know the power's been out, but not for how long? While smelling the milk in the fridge will quickly enlighten you to its quality, the food in the freezer is a mystery as it might have thawed and then refrozen when the power was restored. Put a cup of water in the freezer and freeze it. Then put a quarter on top of the ice and place it back in the freezer. When you return home and lights are flashing, check it out. If the coin is still on top, your food is safe. Halfway down... questionable and at the bottom of the cup...Chuck it! Then call your homeowners insurance for replacement cash.

A regular contributor shares two more of her money saving tips!

1. Shared kitchenettes at work etc. make for invasions of one's food or containers. Ample supplies of address labels often come from charities or can be printed and personalized on one's computer. These are great placed on storage containers, leftovers, boxes of cereal etc. and a Sharpie allows one to easily enter a date stored. I have found less invasion by others of food or tossed items I had plans for.

2. OK, don't you love it when the little chain fails on the toilet tank when you need to get ready for work? not really! Today a paperclip and produce wire were easy to thread through the holes in a pinch until the hardware store is open and I have time.

Also I decided the wire wears out in water quickly sometimes, in a pinch in the future I plan to try fishing line, easy to thread and made to be in water!

Talk about salt of the earth!

Before adding your tomato plants to the holes add a tablespoon of Epsom salt to the hole then a thin layer of dirt over the salt. This helps the plants to grow and makes the tomato itself taste better. You have to add the thin layer of dirt before you plant the tomato if you don't do that and just add the plant on top of the salt the roots will die.

This reader's repurposing tip halts heel pain:

I wish I had this hint about a month ago when I had new shoes to break in: New shoes are wonderful to have but hard to break in and sometime will rub against your skin and cause painful blisters. To help with this...cut a circular makeup sponge in half and insert between your heel and back of the shoe. The sponge's foamy material will improve the shoe's fit and cushion your skin putting an end to the blister pain.

Reader Feedback:

While reading your "Take the Hint" section in the Spencer New Leader of May 5, 2017 edition the first tip from Terry Kolesnik of Charlton caused me to be concerned.

Terry suggests using a product (Tide Pod) designed and manufactured for cleaning clothes to be used on the modern automobile finish. Terry also suggests that this is cheap. The modern automobile finish is designed as what can essentially be called "Base Coat/ Clear Coat". During manufacturing, first, a primer coat is applied, then the base paint coat containing the color pigment and a final protective layer known as a clear coat is applied. Clear coats traditionally provide an extra shell layer of protection from things like: road salt, acidic bird droppings, tree sap, Ultraviolet rays, oxidation, acidic rain, etc.

Clear coat paint jobs need regular waxing and upkeep. A single thin layer of wax every couple of months is generally recommended. And this is where the Tide Pod suggestion concerns me. Modern day car wash products that you can get at any Walmart, Target, automotive store are specifically designed to work to gently clean the clear coat with a lot of slippery ingredients so dirt does not "drag" off, but washes off the car without scratching the clear coat. For the most part, following the instructions on most car wash products, you only use a few capfuls to a few gallons of water. It is not very expensive in the least.

The use of Tide or other dishwasher detergents, especially Dawn, break down and remove automotive wax and then weakens the clear coat. Less protection and possible scratches on your car is not a proper "Hint". Especially on darker color cars, it would look terrible. If you don't want water spots on your car during the washing process, one can purchase a small water conditioner that removes some of the hard water that most houses have. This is what causes water spots. Any good automotive collision shop or detail shop can give you further clarification on this. Just my 2¢ of an opinion.

Brooklyn Ag Days at fairgrounds

BROOKLYN – The them at last weekend's Brooklyn Ad Days was "Old traditions and new beginnings." Ag Days paid homage to all of the things that make farming important, fun and unique at the Brooklyn Fair Grounds, June 2 through the 4. Tractor pulls, engine shows, swap meets and other exhibits and demonstrations entertained families from all over New England.

Two year-old Caleb Kisby had fun on a toy tractor.

Emily Griffiths with her daughter Amelia (2.5) had fun looking at the cows and cattle at the fair.

Ernie Nowakowski with his 1920s 20-horse power Fairbanks Morse engine. "This could have been used to run a saw mill," he said, "or even a small factory."

The horses and other farm animals were a big hit at Brooklyn Ag Days.

Dave Cargill, Bill Bascombe and Jim Angel come from Rhode Island every year. "We love the antique tractor pull," said Cargill, "and the animals. It's all the stuff we grew up with."

"It was good!" said Isabella Paglione (7), pictured with her father Marty. "I got a baby bunny!"

Charlie and Alice Kennerson camped out at the Brooklyn Fairgrounds to participate in the swap meet and flea market.

Keith Jahns on his '53 John Deere. He came to pull with his father in law and brother in law. Said Jahns: "We pull for cancer awareness."

Will Shackleton competed in the tractor pull on his 1950 Farmall H tractor.

"The fair is pretty cool," said Noah Burr, pictured with his son Noah. "We like the antique tractors! We collect them!"

Killingly High School art show

KILLINGLY — Photography, sculptures, graphic art, self-portraits: Killingly High School's annual art show is a display of the students' talent and creativity. From May 30 to June 6, the artwork filled up part of the school's gymnasium, showcasing artwork created throughout the year in various classes.

Graphic Design 1 students created posters with powerful messages.

A beautiful painting of a pear by Kaitlyn McCory.

A sculpture by Sculpture 2 student Allison Keeling.

A collection of still life pieces by Drawing 1 students.

Abstract self-portraits.

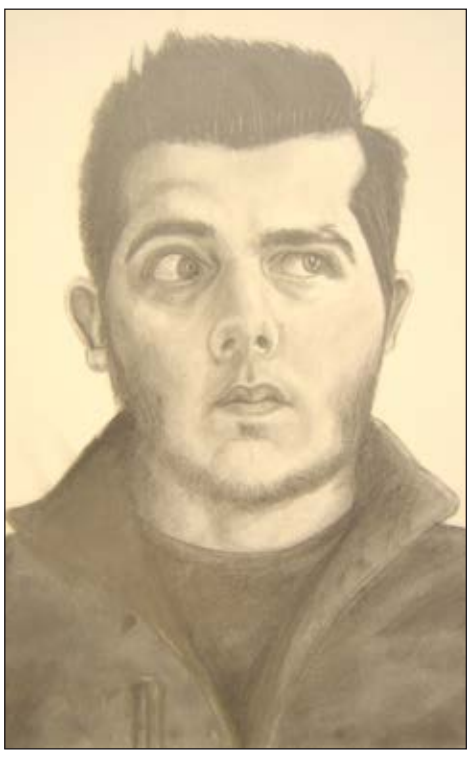
A collaborative art project, where various students made black and white patterns to be put together into one striking piece.

The Killingly High School's annual art show took up a big portion of the gymnasium, displaying the students' creativity and talents.

Pieces from Drawing 2 students greeted guests at the entrance of the gymnasium.

Photography 2 students explored street photography, capturing city scenes and street art.

A textured drawing by Katherine Archambault.



A self-portrait by Derrick Zanni.

A sculpture by Colin Bragdon.

A lot of the sculptures were unique, odd and striking.

creative moment."

Lange - "Painting is very tactile. It's ever-changing. It's just very expressive to use all the colors."

What do you think it was that drew you to each other? What gave you that immediate connection?

Rosebrooks - "Because we both love art. We saw something in each other's work that we admired."

Lange - "I like her style... It's remained consistent while still growing. You can recognize a painting of hers across the room. She has a unique and distinctive style and it's just charming. I love it."

Rosebrooks - "I really admire what she's done with the collages. It's such a change for her. I think they have really come together. They really work."

Do you ever paint together?

Lange - "We don't paint together. But we visit each other's studios and show our work together."

What do you do together, when you aren't painting?

Rosebrooks - "Go to music events."

Lange - "We love music. My husband, Peter, has an Irish band. Ann's a good groupie! She's done a painting of the band and given it to me. So that's a lot of fun."

Rosebrooks - "Yeah, they're really good. Cashel Rock's their name. They're really fun. We also go to museums together."

Lange - "We like to hang out and drink wine."

Historic Roseland Cottage remains a treat

WOODSTOCK — Roseland Cottage, also known as the Pink House, welcomed visitors for free tours last Saturday, June 3. The house was built as a summer home for Woodstock's Henry Chandler Bowen in 1846. Bowen, born in Woodstock and educated at Woodstock Academy, was an influential industrialist, philanthropist, and publisher of The Independent, a national newspaper that was pro-abolitionist and pro-women's suffrage. Bowen presented Roseland Park to the town of Woodstock in 1876 and bequeathed the park in perpetuity for use by citizens of Woodstock and surrounding towns, and the three-acre grounds of Roseland Cottage are always open to the public as well. He held annual Fourth of July fireworks displays in Woodstock. Some of the guests who visited Bowen at Roseland Cottage included four Presidents of the United States including Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, William McKinley, and Benjamin Harrison. President Abraham Lincoln was a personal friend of Bowen's and Lincoln appointed Bowen tax collector in Brooklyn — an appointment letter, signed by Lincoln, hangs in the hallway at Roseland Cottage.

Roseland Cottage is now owned and administered by Historic New England, which operates 37 properties in New England. Tours continues through mid-October on Wednesday through Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. (on the hour). Roseland Cottage is located on Route 169 in Woodstock. For further information on tours, call (860) 928-4074

Cinema scene at Putnam's First Fridays

PUTNAM — Downtown Putnam's First Friday celebrated iconic heroes of action and adventure films with their season-long theme First Fridays Feature Films: A Celebration of Cinema. On Friday, June 2 there were over 50 art vendors on Main Street, as well as live music, crafts, art galleries and other live entertainment. It was a great way for families and residents to enjoy the warm weather, while exploring downtown Putnam's shops, galleries and eateries.

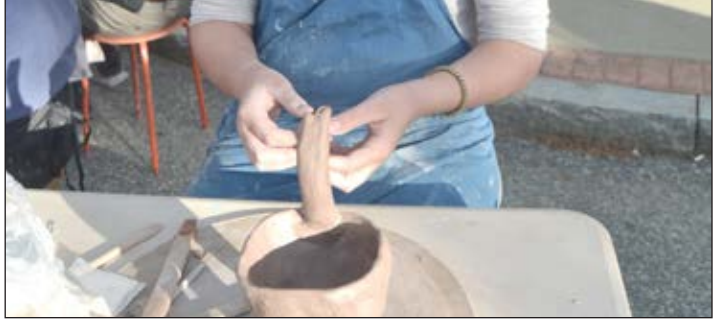
The Billy Pilgrim Band headlined the entertaining for the evening.



Sawmill Pottery student Jaimie Lohman made clay creations on Main Street, a live art demonstration for First Friday attendees.

The Complex held a large exhibit of photography and other artwork by their students.

"We love it here in Putnam!" said visitors Bob and Pauline Thiffeault.

Charlie and Eric Rumsey took a break from browsing the shop to pet Brook Lussier's dog Ivy.

Marie Miquel (5) gets her face painted by Lauren Deery of Putnam High School's Students Against Destructive Decisions.

"First Friday is really neat," said the Shemansky family. "Putnam has done a great job with their whole downtown atmosphere."

The Frost Brothers Duo entertained the crowds over at Union Square.

Woodstock Lions Club book sale

Vendors set up shop inside of Roseland Park's barn, a new addition to the popular book sale.

WOODSTOCK — The Woodstock Lion's Club held their annual book sale fundraiser at Roseland Park on Saturday, June 3. But this time time was bigger and better than ever, with a huge variety of crafters and vendors set up all over the park and inside the barn. Met with sunny weather, the book sale drew in avid readers and community members of all ages.

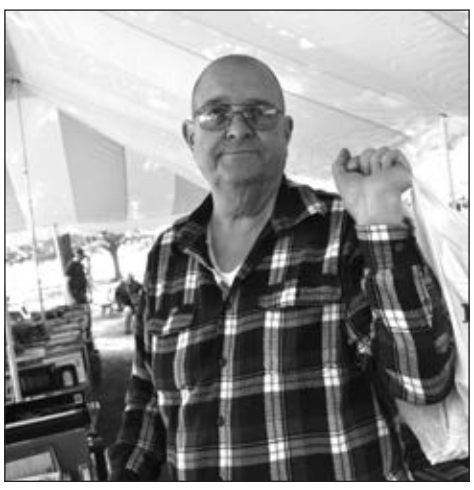
"The sale looks great," said Linda Baiznet, pictured with husband Ed. "I love the barn!"

Luciana Drake, 4, and Josephine Drake, 1, found a lot of books at the book sale.

"It was a great sale!" said Janet Abbott and Meg Dinger. "They had great prices."

"We came for the books!" said Ken Kristal, pictured with his wife Sherri. "There was a great selection of books - and crafts, too!"



"And I'm still not done yet!" said Dan Sasur, who held a giant bag of action-themed books.

Woodstock Lion's Club member Bill Mosley with Danielson Lion's Club member Betsy Burgess. She said: "We came here to sell food! The Lions always help each other. We're always in it together."

Lion's Club member Meredith Moseley with the club's giant collection of books. All of the money raised at the book sale went directly back to the Lion's Club, which uses the funds to help the local community.

"There are so many books!And it's such a beautiful day!" said Mona Tremblay.

The collection of donated books ranged from 25 cents to $1, making it easy for shoppers to fill up bag after bag with gently used books.

Roseland Park made for a beautiful location, drawing in residents and shoppers who just wanted to come out and enjoy the nice weather and beautiful scenery.

"We love reading!" said Kristen Johnson, Wendy Moore and Barbara Ahern.

Lyman ousts Ellis Tech from state tourney

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

DANIELSON — Years from now Sarah Tellier won't remember many details from Ellis Tech's 16-0 loss to Lyman Memorial in the second round of the Class S State Softball Tournament. But the Golden Eagles senior shortstop will graduate from Ellis Tech this June fielding the knowledge that she played on the winningest softball team in school history.

"I'm really proud, especially since it's my senior year, it's nice to finish it out going to states," Tellier said. "It was awesome being able to play on our home field and finish it out here."

Although fourth-seeded Ellis Tech was eliminated in six innings by 13th-seeded Lyman Memorial on May 31, the Golden Eagles ended the season with the most wins in school history with a record of 17-5 and earned a pair of home games in the postseason. The No.- 4 seeding in the state in Class S was its highest ranking ever. Ellis Tech defeated No. 29 seed Whitney Tech 22-3 in opening-round tournament play. Tellier has been on the varsity since her freshmen season and said the team has taken great leaps.

"I'm just just really proud of everyone, to see them grow," Tellier said. "I think we get along a lot better, which makes us play better together and we can really communicate better."

The Bulldogs bats put the game away early. Lyman scored six runs on seven hits in the first inning and finished with 20 hits.

"They hit the ball great," said Ellis Tech coach Michelle Murray. "They hit them into every spot that we were not."

Lyman shortstop Katie Konow knocked a pair of homers to lead the Bulldogs (15-7). Junior right-hander Katie Meese picked the win, allowing just two hits over six innings, striking out three and walking one.

Autumn Jackson went 2-for-3 for Ellis Tech, the only Golden Eagle to reach base via a hit.

"We made a lot of contact but it was at a person," Murray said.

The meager offensive output could not spoil the last game of senior outfielder Alyssa Pignataro's career. Pignataro and Tellier are the only seniors on the Golden Eagles' roster.

"We've improved a lot since last year. We've been practicing a lot," said Pignataro, who finished four seasons on the varsity. "And I think a lot of our players have gotten so much better."

With only two seniors on the roster the future is bright.

"We're definitely going to miss the presence of Sarah and Alyssa but we've got a young team coming back and hopefully we get some more younger players that come in and have some experience," Murray said. "We're just going to continue to build on where we are and keep going forward. And who knows, maybe next year we'll be better than this year, that's always the goal."

But the last game for her seniors is always bittersweet.

"I'm super proud of them," said Murray, in her second season at the helm. "They give it their all. They work hard. They believe in all the changes that I've made since I came in last year. It's paying off."

Tellier and Pignataro will be missed.

"We spent a lot of time, one on one, just really trying to get them to the next level and they did outstanding," Murray said. "You just want the best for them."

Years from now coach Murray likely won't remember many details of Ellis Tech's loss to Lyman Memorial in the second round of the Class S Tournament — she hoped her players would hold on to something more valuable than the 17 wins they gained this season.

"I don't care if we win

Garceau leads Woodstock girls to ECC golf crown

THOMPSON — Woodstock Academy senior Roxanne Garceau fired a tourney-record 37 and won her third-straight Eastern Connecticut Conference individual title to lead the Centaurs to the team championship at the seventh annual ECC Girls Golf Championships, hosted by Woodstock Academy at Quinnatisset Country Club on May 31.

Thirty players competed in a nine-hole event including six teams. This was the largest field and most teams that have ever competed in an ECC Girls Golf Championship. Garceau was the medalist with an ECC record 37. This was Garceau's third straight ECC Tournament Championship.

Five players shot in the 40's including second-place finisher Caroline Petchark of Waterford (44), third-place finisher Sophie Dubriel of East Lyme (46), and tied for fourth was Sydney Tabor of Waterford and Caroline Eaton of Woodstock Academy, who each shot a 49.

Woodstock Academy repeated as team champion shooting a score of 198. Waterford posted a score of 210 for second place. Woodstock Academy's team score of 198 consisted of: Roxanne Garceau (37), Caroline Eaton (49), Olivia Perry (55), and Katherine Harrington (57).

Players awarded ECC All-Star Honors were Sophie Dubriel, East Lyme; Ivy Chen, Norwich Free Academy; Emma Diamanti, Stonington; Caroline Petchark, Waterford; Sydney Tabor, Waterford; Caroline Eaton, Woodstock Academy; Roxanne Garceau, Woodstock Academy.

St. James School's track team at the QVJC meet on May 24 in Griswold.

DANIELSON — After a seven-year absence fielding a team, St James School put together a track and field team this season and excelled in middle school competition. Thirty-one youngsters came out for the team — assembled by Athletic Director Gerry O'Brien and coached by Todd Lepine, Frank Hendrick, and Edward Morissette.

The team practiced three days a week and was encouraged to run on the weekends. The children worked hard and kept improving each meet. On May 23 and 24 St. James competed at the Quinebaug Valley Junior Conference Championships at Griswold High School and all 11 teams in the QVJC were present. Some of the bigger schools had over 70 athletes while St. James brought 26 athletes to the conference championships.

At the state meet in Manchester on May 27: Maya Summiel, coach Edward Morissette, Joey Werge, and Cooper Morissette.

St. James boys and girls peaked at the right time and rose to the challenge of the championships, notching 15 personal bests at the conference meet. The St. James girls captured a second place finish at the conference meet. St. James' Maya Summiel finished second in the shot put, second in the discus, and took third in the 100-meter dash. St. James Sophia Moore was able to place in all four of her events with a first-place finish in the 400 meter run, notching second place in the 200-meter dash, taking third in the long jump, and finishing in fourth place in the 100-meter dash. Both girls are only seventh graders and the entire girls team should be back next season.

The boys also did very well with a fourth place finish at the QVJC Championships. Cooper Morissette paced the boys attack and placed in all four of his events, with a second-place finish in the discus, taking third place in the 100 meter dash, earning fifth place in the shot put and competing on the third-place 4-by-400 relay team along with Chris Dooley, Joey Werge and Ethan Aspiras. St. James' Ethan Aspiras ran to a first-place finish in the 800, despite being seeded fifth in league, coming from behind to win the event by knocking seven seconds off his personal best.

St James had 10 athletes qualify for the state middle school meet at Manchester High School on May 27, sending eight athletes to compete in the meet that included 58 teams and 1500 athletes. At states, the St. James' four-by-800 relay team of Chris Dooley, Gabe Torrente, Joey Werge and Ethan Aspiras medaled by taking eighth place. Cooper Morissette placed fourth in the state with a discus throw of 111 feet, 2 inches. Maya Summiel placed 13th in the discus at States. The St. James boys four-by-400 relay team finished 10th. Gabe Torrente, not only qualified for states as a fifth grader, but also set a personal best of 5:38 in the 800.

Woodstock Racers scored six runs in the fifth on its way to an 11-5 victory over Pomfret on Wednesday. The big inning was thanks to a single by Madison Nichols, a single by Ainsley Morse, a walk by Avery Kollbeck, and a walk by Peyton Bentley.

The Racers took the lead for good with four runs in the third inning. In the third Madison Nichols singled, driving in one run.

Ainsley Morse and Madison Nichols each drove in two runs to lead the Racers.

MINORS

Woodstock Bandits 10, Pomfret 10

The Woodstock Bandits and Pomfret battled to a 10-10 tie in Minor League softball action on Wednesday night in Woodstock. The Bandits scored ten runs on eleven hits in the first two innings of the game to build a 10-6 lead, but the bats went silent over the final two innings, allowing Pomfret to tie the game with four runs in the third inning.

Ellary Sampson, Kaya Nichols and Eva Monahan led the way offensively for the Bandits, each going 2-2 at the plate. Sampson had two singles and Nichols had a double, a triple and three RBIs, while Monahan had two singles and two RBIs. Also collecting hits for Woodstock were Penelope Esposito, Ava Golden, Campbell Favreau, Maci Corradi and Kerrigan Reynolds.

Friday June 2

MAJORS

Brooklyn Breakers 10, Woodstock Racers 0

The Woodstock Racers fell behind early and couldn't come back in a Quiet Corner Majors quarterfinal playoff game. Facing strong pitching by the Breakers, the Racers managed only one hit by Sarah McArthur who also walked.

MINORS

Woodstock Bandits 10, Killingly Rays 0

Eva Monahan and Kaya Nichols pitched brilliantly as the Woodstock Cubs defeated the Killingly Rays 10-0 in the quarterfinals of the Quiet Corner Minor League Softball playoffs. Monahan and Nichols combined on a no-hitter, striking out eight Killingly batters over four innings.

Defensively, the Bandits were sound, with nice plays turned in by Kaya Nichols and Madison Matthews and solid catching by Nichols, Eva Monahan and Ellary Sampson. Offensively, the Bandits had seven hits on the night, all singles by Campbell Favreau (1-2), Ellary Sampson (1-1), Eva Monahan (2-2), Madison Matthews (1-1), Maci Corradi (1-2) and Ava Golden (1-1).

Saturday June 3

MINORS

Woodstock Bandits 8, Pomfret Bluebirds 5

The Woodstock Bandits defeated the Plainfield Blue Birds 8-5 in the semifinals of the Minor League softball playoffs. Plainfield jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning but Woodstock answered with six runs in the bottom half of the first inning to take the lead.

Kaya Nichols was the star of the game, pitching five innings of relief, striking out eleven Plainfield batters while only allowing one run. At the plate, Nichols also had an RBI single and scored two runs. Eva Monahan added an RBI single and Penelope Esposito also singled for the Bandits in the win.

Woodstock Bandits 6, Killingly Crush 7

The top seeded Killingly Crush defeated the third seeded Woodstock Bandits 7-6 in the championship game of the Minor League softball playoffs in Killingly. The Bandits jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning but the Crush answered with five runs off Woodstock starter Eva Monahan in the bottom half of the first to take the lead. Killingly stretched the lead to 7-3 in the bottom of the second but solid relief pitching by Kaya Nichols and Madison Matthews helped slow down the Crush offense for the remainder of the game. Woodstock was able to cut the deficit to 7-5 with two runs in the top of the third inning. The Bandits continued to battle but ultimately fell short, stranding the tying run on third base in the final inning, with the Killingly left fielder making a nice catch to end the game, just one of many fine defensive plays turned in by the Crush on the evening.

Kaya Nichols once again led the Bandits, pitching three innings of relief and striking out seven Killingly batters while also adding a double and 2 RBIs at the plate. Ellary Sampson added two hits, while Eva Monahan, Kaylee Ziarko and Kerrigan Reynolds had one hit apiece.

OBITUARIES

David B. Boyd, 78

WOODSTOCK -- David B. Boyd of Woodstock died on June 4. He was born in New York City on February 6, 1939, his family moved to Woodstock in 1943. He attended Woodstock Public Schools from 1945-1957, including 4 years in the East Woodstock one room house 4 grades schoolhouse which lacked indoor plumbing and central heat. One wood stove, one jug of daily (from a neighbor) fresh water, one outdoor unisex privy, one swing contributed by the town plumber, one frozen lunch box (the storage room was not heated), and one teacher (25 students more or less), sufficed. Health Care: Dr. Pike was just down the street, with his apothecary, no need for the drug store.

David graduated from Woodstock Academy in 1957, Bowdoin College in Brunswick Maine, Cum Laude in 1961, the University of CT School of Law in Hartford in 1964, from thence passed the CT Bar Association in 1964.

David married Joan F. McWilliam in 1962, and their first child Christopher was born in 1964. He acquired his juris doctor degree, his license to practice law, and his first son within a few months.

David practiced law in Putnam 1964-2010. He served as an Assistant State's Attorney (then called Prosecutor) for Windham County and the University of CT in Storrs (during the Vietnam War era) from 1968-1971 which afforded him considerable trial experience. He served as Secretary Treasurer of the Windham County Bar Association 1968-2011, overseeing and participating in numerous petty and sometimes onerous issues.

David and Joan's second son Jonathan was born in 1969, and was therefore taken to their new summer home in Chilmark, Martha's Vineyard, the town where Jonathan still resides with his wife Mary and their daughter Emily.

David was active in numerous Woodstock community affairs, served on the Woodstock Board of Education for 6 years, and the Woodstock Academy Board of Trustees for over 10 years, three of which its President. (1979-1982).

David's interest included vegetable and flower gardening, boating and beach bumming on the Vineyard where he raked clams and pulled lobster traps in Quitsa, Menemsha and Stonewall Ponds from his Boston Whaler, and sailing on sunfish and on one occasion a square rigger (now called Tall Ship). And of course, Vineyard partying with some very notable, some not so much, and some not at all.

David and Joan travelled extensively nationally, internationally, especially in Europe, North America and the Caribbean during the course of their long marriage.

David is survived by his wife Joan, his sons Christopher and Jonathan, granddaughter Emily, his sister Heather, and brother John.

A private memorial service will be held in the future. Funeral arrangements are entrusted to Smith and Walker Funeral Home, Putnam.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Woodstock Volunteer Fire Association. Share a memory at www.smithandwalkerfh.com

Charles H. Cady Sr., 89

WOODSTOCK -- Charles H. Cady Sr., 89, of Woodstock died Saturday, June 3, at Pierce Memorial Baptist Home, Brooklyn. Charles' beloved wife Priscilla passed away just over a month ago. They were married in October of 1954. Married for 62 years, they were inseparable in life, nor could they be separated by death itself. Charles was born November 10, 1927 in Worcester, Mass., son of the late Harrison H. and Corinne (Wanhala) Cady. He was a member of the East Woodstock Congregational Church, where he served on many committees. He was a graduate of Woodstock Academy. Charles was a dairy farmer for many years and owned both Bonnie View and Spring Brook Farms until going to work for his son in the construction industry. In later years, he enjoyed woodworking, travel, maintaining his property and gardening with Priscilla.

Charles was well known for his knowledge of Woodstock history and collection of old photographs. He always looked forward to collecting books, reading and playing online games with his cousin Ellen West in Florida which he enjoyed until just recently.

Besides being predeceased by his wife, he leaves his son Charles Cady and his wife Aulikki of Woodstock, granddaughter Annina Keegan and her husband John of Chicago, Illinois, grandson Alex of Woodstock, brothers-in law Frank and Patsy Converse and John and Judy Converse. Burial will be at a later date in East Woodstock Cemetery. Funeral arrangements entrusted to Smith and Walker Funeral Home, Putnam. In lieu of flowers donations can be sent to the Muddy Brook Fire Department, PO Box 222, East Woodstock, CT 06244.

BROOKLYN -- Kathleen E. (Keranen) King, 70, died May 24, at Matulaitis Nursing Home, Putnam.

She leaves a son, John A. Colvin Jr. of San Francisco, California; two daughters, Lydia K. Lagerberg of Danielson, and Katrina King of Novato, California; three brothers, Ken Al-Imam of Santa Ana, California, David Keranen of Tustin, California and Karl Keranen of Silverado, California; her father, Robert Keranen of Tustin, California. She was predeceased by a sister, Camile Keranen of Tustin, California.

She was the daughter of Robert and the late Patricia (Wheeler) Keranen and lived in Brooklyn, for the past 11 years and prior to that living in Danielson. She enjoyed needle point, cross stitch, crocheting , reading and was a member of the North East Connecticut Interfaith Stitchers.

There are no calling hours, and all services are private. Donations may be made in her memory to the Church of the Nazarene, Westcott St., Danielson. The Shaw-Majercik Funeral Home, 48 School Street, Webster, Mass. has been entrusted with her arrangements. A guest book is available at www.shaw-majercik.com where you may post a condolence or light a candle.

Linda Teja Carlin, 68

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA – Born Linda Diane Teja on July 26, 1948 in Putnam, Linda was raised by her loving parents Mary and Margus Teja with her siblings, Louise, Ted, and Elaine. Linda was a 1966 graduate of Tourtellotte High School and received a Bachelor of Science degree from Simmons College in 1970. She worked as a laboratory technician for most of her career.

A woman of endless curiosity, Linda was always up on the latest news, was involved in her community of Ocean Beach, and showed great concern for her fellow man and animal friends alike. She was an avid gardener, knitter, traveler, and a devoted fan of both the San Diego Padres and the Boston Red Sox. For twenty years, she enjoyed attending Padres' Opening Day with her son, Daniel.

Linda passed into the Lord's loving embrace on May 29, 2017. She is survived by her loving sons, Peter Carlin, Dan and his wife Danielle Carlin and Erroll Maas. Linda is also survived by her siblings, Louise Teja, Ted Teja, and his wife Gerry, Elaine Burke and her husband Jim, and her nephews and nieces, Mary and Caitlin Burke, Christian Teja, and his partner Patty Furey, Matthew Teja and his wife Pamela and their children Jude, Graham, and Marlo.

Linda was always a person of great generosity and compassion. Throughout her life she shared her exuberant joy and love of life with those around her.
