Charlton unveils new skate park

BY GUS STEEVES
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – Three years after the town’s building inspector closed it for safety reasons, the Charlton Skate Park is back in action, and several local kids were immediately taking advantage of it Sunday.

One of the key players in raising the roughly $22,000 necessary to rebuild it was David Ducharme, president of Charlton Recreation Friends.

Charlton Selectman Voice Support for Question 3

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – In a rare move, the Board of Selectmen has voted to take a position concerning the passage of a question on the upcoming November election ballot voicing their overwhelming support of voting “Yes” on Question 3, a question that seeks to repeal the state’s 2016 transgender right law.

A vote of “Yes” for Question 3 would protect the current Massachusetts transgender rights law enacted in 2016 that ensures individuals are allowed to use public restrooms and locker rooms

Medical marijuana producer eyeing Charlton property

BY JASON BLEAU
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – The town continues to be an attractive location for marijuana producers with a fourth growing company looking to set up a manufacturing business within the town’s borders.

Representatives of Life Essence, a nonprofit medical marijuana producer, appeared before selectmen Oct. 9 seeking a letter of non-opposition for their plans to locate a cultivation site at 130 Sturbridge Road. The company is in the process of pursuing state certifications to operate the cultivation facility as well as several dispensaries in the Commonwealth, although their plan for Charlton is strictly manufacturing.

“We’re a medical cannabis company. We’re a Massachusetts nonprofit. We’re currently in the siting profile stage looking for an area to

Treasurer’s race has viable candidates

BY JERRY CARTON
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

The candidates for state treasurer are the Democratic incumbent Deb Goldberg and Republican state Rep. Keiko Orrall of Bristol.

Goldberg, elected in 2014, says economic empowerment, economic security, and economic stability were the driving forces behind her candidacy in the first place and have been her priority over the last four years.

She said, “Government has an important role to play in improving people’s lives.

Whether in saving taxpayer dollars through smart debt management to ensuring high school students to learn how to avoid debt.”

Goldberg said she’s kept her campaign promises.

Foremost among these was the creation of a college savings plan called SeedMA for kindergarten students at no cost to taxpayers.

“Research shows a kid with a savings plan is seven times more likely to attend college,” she said. Goldberg said she supports vocational and technical training to keep workers in Massachusetts.

Goldberg said she has leveraged the treasurer’s office and the pension fund to fight for greater diversity on corporate boards and executive

Governor candidates explain differences

BY JERRY CARTON
STONEBRIDGE CORRESPONDENT

Election Day is drawing near and the two candidates for the state's top job differ on a series of major issues important to voters.

Governor Charlie Baker, who defeated then Attorney General Martha Coakley four years ago is seeking a second term. The governor says his administration has created over 180,000 new jobs during the last four years with more people employed state wide than at any time in the last 20 years and the state's unemployment average is at 3.5% because of his policies. Baker said household incomes have risen "dramatically with every demographic group seeing increases in take home pay."

Baker adds, "thanks to pro-growth leadership, Massachusetts was named the most innovative state in the country and the Commonwealth has attracted major business investment."

Baker highlighted his education record by saying "the Commonwealth has increased support for local public schools by over half a billion dollars, bringing educational investments to a record level."

Baker pointed to the Commonwealth Commitment program "which leverages our state's community colleges and the UMass system and allows students to pursue a four year degree for less than $30,000."

He noted the state's secondary school students "continue to finish first in the National Assessment of Educational Progress Exam in English and math. The Commonwealth has the highest graduation rate and lowest dropout rate ever."

The governor said he signed a first-in-the-nation law which limits new prescriptions to seven days to fight the opioid crisis "and invests more resources in prevention, education and recovery." Baker said the state has invested more than $200 million "across state government to combat substance misuse, a 70-percent increase since 2015. He said he's proposed new legislation to stiffen penalties "for drug dealers whose actions lead to fatalities."

Baker said his administration has increased state aid to cities and towns every year since he took office in 2015.

He boasted the August sales tax weekend has become permanent under his leadership.

Opposing Baker as the Democratic nominee is Jay Gonzalez who served as Secretary of Administration and Finance between 2009 and 2013 under then Governor Deval Patrick and served

Car Buying Tips

People ask Place: Summer is over, what should I do to get my car or truck ready for Winter?

The Right Answer: As much as we hate to think about the cold and snow, it is coming, and our vehicles must be ready. To make sure your ride is ready here are a few things to check out. Make sure your tires are ready for the slippery roads. Check them for the proper type of tire. By this I mean you want to make sure your tires are rated as all season or winter tires. These types of tires will have tread designs and compounds that work best for the conditions. All season tires are made for a variety of conditions and adapt well to most people's needs. Winter tires tend to have a more aggressive tread and will provide a bit more traction in the worst weather. Make sure the tread depths are good and there is no abnormal wear. Replace them if needed

Check your battery. There is nothing worse than your car not starting on a snowy winter morning. Most batteries need to be replaced every 4-6 years. Inspect the cooling system. The cooling system of your vehicle is like the circulation system. It must flow clean and easy to prevent damage to the engine. In New England we need a proper mix of water and anti-freeze to protect the engine. Make sure the concentration is correct and that the fluid is clean. Now is a great time to have your car prepared for the adverse conditions it will face over the coming months. Our techs can check the cranking power of your battery and determine if it is time for a new one. They can flush your cooling system and make sure it is ready for the cold. They can even help get the right tires at the right price. We can service all makes and models so make your appointments now. See why Place Motor is the Right Place since 1923.

Bertonazzi Foundation seeking best election turnout by town

The race to determine the Senator Louis Bertonazzi Foundation 2017-18 Outstanding Citizenship Award is entering its final stage with the upcoming Nov. 6th election. The competition among the 19 area towns to identify the "Best Voting Community 2017-18" has completed the local election of 2017, the local election of 2018 and the recent September State Primary, and the winner will be announced following the inclusion of the upcoming November election results.

The percentages of registered voters who actually come out to vote in each of the four elections in all 19 towns that had been represented by Senator Bertonazzi during his legislative service will be tabulated. The town with the highest percentage of registered voters who cast ballots will be declared winner of the Outstanding Citizenship Award as "Best Voting Community 2017-18".

A check for $1,000 will be presented to that town's clerk and Board of Registrars, along with a plaque to the Board of Selectmen. In addition, a large banner will be unfurled and awarded to the townspeople whose civic spirit in turning out to vote earned the award.

As shown in the accompanying chart, the town of Douglas, with a cumulative percentage total of 20.01%, is currently leading the other 18 towns on the basis of its voting percentages in the three elections leading up to the Nov. 6th election.

The towns of Uxbridge, Millville, Mendon, Milford, Oxford, Grafton, Upton and Southbridge comprise the first tier of leading challengers.

Sutton, Auburn, Blackstone, Westborough, Bellingham and Hopedale make up the middle tier.

To this point, the trailing towns are

Webster, Charlton, Northbridge and Dudley.

Just as the rankings have shifted with each of the first three elections, the upcoming November election will have a profound effect on the final standings. Anyone can win.

Not only those who have voted faithfully over the years, but also young new voters who have recently demonstrated a strong interest in government issues, will have another reason to vote.

Hopefully, this competition will provide an additional incentive for all voters in the 19 towns to exercise their voting privilege, a privilege won and protected by the sacrifice of so many over the years.

The Senator Louis Bertonazzi Foundation Board of Directors are Dr. Carl DiGregorio, chairman; Michael Diorio, treasurer; Atty. David Bertonazzi, clerk; and members Cynthia Casey, Thomas Cullen, Gail Crimaldi, Joseph Nigro, Janice Guerriere, Julie Richards and Louis Bertonazzi, ex-officio.

as well as chair of the state's Health Connector. He defeated Bob Massie in the September primary.

Gonzalez is touting his experience "providing health insurance coverage for low-income residents, helping cities and towns build new schools and fire stations and managing the state budget...during the Great Recession."

He said he oversaw the implementation of Massachusetts' health care reform and chaired the state's Board of Early Education and Care.

"The income gap here in Massachusetts is one of the worst in the country and is growing. That's why I support raising the minimum wage and paid medical and family leave," he said.

He added, "women must have equal career opportunities and equal pay and workplaces free from discrimination and harassment."

"President Trump," he said, "has disparaged and discriminated against people of different ethnicities, backgrounds, religious beliefs, and gender.

His unconstitutional Muslim travel bans and increased raids to detain and deport immigrants have been particularly harsh and fear provoking for immigrant communities across Massachusetts."

Gonzalez said he strongly supports early childhood education.

"These early investments in our children pay dividends on multiple levels and across generations. Working families deserve our best efforts to support their children getting the start they need toward academic and career success and to support their own workforce participation and economic prosperity."

Gonzalez backs reforming the state's 1993 school funding formula.

"We need," he said "to end the opioid epidemic, the most serious public health crisis of our time. No more tragic deaths from overdoses. No more lives ruined by addiction. No more families torn apart. We need people of all ages to be educated about the dangerously addictive nature of opioids and the existence of alternatives for managing pain."

positions. She said she knows from her own private sector experience that "companies that invest in people and reflect the vibrancy of our communities are far more successful, resulting in a better economy for everyone."

For her part, Orrall, the first Asian-American elected to the state House of Representatives (2011) said she led the drive to stop Massachusetts' participation in PARRC, a national testing consortium.

Orrall adds she was instrumental "in helping to pass legislation to give small businesses certainty in tax filing deadlines by matching federal and state requirements."

She said she "worked with a bipartisan group to stop an unnecessary regulation in the medical field that would have cost city and town taxpayers millions of dollars."

Orrall said she has also worked with senior citizen advocates and legislators to "help block a measure which would have shut down a quarter of the nursing homes in the state through overregulation and disregard for the needs of the elder population."

"I am running for state treasurer because I believe voters want someone who relates to them and will bring a common sense, fiscally conservative approach to running the state's finances," is Orrall's statement.

Friday's Child

Hi! My name is Jaycob and I love to smile and give hugs!

Jaycob is a charming, engaging and likeable boy of Caucasian descent who is quick to give hugs. Those who know him best say that he has a silly side and is remarkably kind. Recently, when he was at the doctor's office he asked for extra stickers so that he could bring them back to the other children in his home. Jaycob loves playing with Matchbox cars, Pokémon, Beyblade toys and video games. Jaycob hopes one day to be a contestant on the television show Wipe-Out, where contestants have to navigate an obstacle course. He plays the video game version and believes that he could complete the course in real life if given the opportunity.

Jaycob enjoys going to school, is academically on track, and gets along well with his peers.

Legally freed for adoption, Jaycob will do best in a two-parent family. He is eager to live in a home with other children and will do best with children of a similar age or older.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-964-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

The Pumpkin Harvest is in!

TAKE THE HINT
KAREN TRAINOR

Fields of plump pumpkins ripening on the vine, flickering Jack O'Lanterns lighting the way for a parade of little ghosts and goblins, and a simmering pot of thick pumpkin soup — such are the simple pleasures of a New England autumn.

The humble pumpkin is rich in both nutrition and heritage. In the 17th century fairy tale, Cinderella's coach magically appeared from a large, stout pumpkin; Native Americans and early settlers revered pumpkin seeds as a medicinal sedative; and in modern times, carved triangle faces transform sugar pumpkins into annual ghoulish spooks. It should come as no surprise the harvest vegetable continues to serve as a highly anticipated autumn treat. Read on for some seasonal ways to pump up your pumpkin pleasure!

Mum's the Word: Chrysanthemum and pumpkins are two autumn delights that are even better when merged. Create a unique "urn" for your hearty mums by gutting a tall pumpkin and placing a pot of blooming mums right into the pumpkin. The contrasting colors and texture make the perfect display when perched on a front stoop or porch step.

Seedy Treat: Many Halloween traditions include gathering the seeds from a carved Jack O'Lantern to toast in a warm oven. To properly toast pumpkin seeds, remove all pulp and clean strings from the seeds. Place seeds in a bowl and stir in melted butter or olive oil and salt to coat the seeds. Spread seeds on a cookie sheet and bake in a 275° oven for about an hour or until the seeds are golden brown and crisp. Avoid overcooking as seeds can become hard and tough.

Sprout Surprise: Pumpkin seeds can even be sprouted to use on sandwiches and in salads. Pumpkin seeds are a healthy snack as they are over 30 percent protein and are high in and oil-soluble vitamins A, D, and E. To sprout pumpkin seeds, place the seeds in a glass jar (Mason jars are ideal) and cover with water just to cover. Secure a piece of cheesecloth over the top with a rubber band. Soak seeds overnight. The next day, drain the water out and place the jar in dark area that is room temperature. Rinse the seeds in the jar at least four times a day. After a few days, you should see the seeds sprouting. Rinse them again and place the jar in the sun for a day or so until tiny leaves form. They are now ready to use as a tasty garnish or salad addition.

Frozen Pumpkins: Freezing cooked, pureed pumpkin is a favored way to preserve the taste and texture of pumpkin. Sugar or pie pumpkins are ideal candidates for freezing as the pulp is thicker and firmer. To easily prepare a pumpkin for pureeing, simply place the whole fruit in the microwave for about a minute or so to soften the skin. This will make the pumpkin much easier to peel. Cut the pumpkin in large slices, peel the skin and remove the strings and seeds. Then cut the slices into smaller pieces. Boil the pumpkin pieces until tender, then mash or process the pumpkin pulp until it forms a smooth, thick puree.

Pulverized Pumpkin: Pumpkin can also be dried, which was a favored method of the colonists. Drying pumpkin must be done carefully in order to kill all the germs that would make it spoil. Split the pumpkin in half and remove the seeds. Remove the skin and cut the fruit into thin slices. Steam for about six minutes. Spread on a tray and dry in the sun or in a solar dryer until dry and brittle. This will take about two days. If flies are a problem, cover with netting. Pumpkin needs to be dried in hot sun so that it dries quickly before it spoils. Dried pumpkin can also be made into a flour, which can be used just as you would all purpose flour in cooking and baking. To do, simply pulverize the dry pumpkin in a food processor.

Fresh Pumpkin Bisque
Here's an easy recipe for a rich pumpkin soup. For a vegetarian version, just switch vegetable broth for the chicken broth.

Ingredients: 1 medium onion, chopped; 2 stalks celery, chopped; 3 cloves garlic, chopped; 4 cups chicken (or vegetable) broth; 2 tomatoes, chopped; 2 bay leaves; ½ teaspoon nutmeg; 2 cups pumpkin purée (one medium sugar pumpkin, about four pounds, yield about 1 ½ cup purée); salt and pepper to taste; 1 cup heavy cream.

Instructions: Sauté onions, celery, and garlic in butter. Add broth, tomatoes, bay leaves and nutmeg. Cook until vegetables are very soft. Strain and reserve liquid. Purée vegetables with some liquid and strain through a sieve. Combine liquid, puréed vegetables, and pumpkin; heat. Add cream and season with salt and pepper.

Classes on business offered by QVCDC

BY KEVIN FLANDERS
NEWS STAFF WRITER

SPENCER – Area owners and entrepreneurs are ready to get down to business, as an informational workshop series will come to town later this month.

Presented by the Quaboag Valley Community Development Corporation (QVCDC), the series of business planning classes will begin on Oct. 24 from 5-7 p.m. at the Spencer Senior Center. Additional classes will take place on Oct. 31, Nov. 7, and Nov. 14, all at the same time and location.

Each class will focus on a different theme and include guest speakers, beginning on Oct. 24 when participants will learn skills for leading and expanding a business team. Attendees will be able to ask questions of the presenter and also engage with each other on various strategies.

Whether you're a veteran business owner or you just started your own business, everyone is welcome to attend the program.

"It is great for us to get a nice mix of perspectives, which allows for broader discussions about many topics," said Melissa Fales, a loan program coordinator with the QVCDC who helps organize the event each year.

Representing 15 towns throughout the Quaboag Valley region, the QVCDC has seen continued success from its business workshops held in Ware. After several residents of surrounding towns requested courses, the QVCDC decided to head east down Route 9 and bring the program to Spencer.

The second session will focus on marketing, branding, and maintaining a strong social media presence for your business. With the domination of electronic media, marketing strategies have been revolutionized over the last decade, with social media at the forefront. Without a strong online advertising presence and website accessibility, businesses can be easily overlooked.

The third session represents the convergence of business and math, focusing on income, start-up budgets, and how statistical analyses can measure year-to-year success. The fourth class, meanwhile, covers financing options and business loans. A local banker typically addresses attendees and answers finance questions during this session.

While the program can be a major help for those looking to start their own businesses, it is also vital for residents seeking to transition into a new business or a consulting role. Business owners who are hoping to hire new employees or open a second location can also learn several helpful financial and management strategies.

"These classes are great for people in all phases of planning or running a business," Fales added.

The cost of the four-class program is $99 per participant, and scholarships are available for a few candidates. You must register by Oct. 22 to secure a spot in the workshop, which will include a light dinner.

To pre-register for the program, or to learn more about the scholarship application process, call 413-967-3001 or visit www.qvcdc.org. You can also find out about the additional services offered by the organization to residents from throughout the area.

The QVCDC is a member-based nonprofit organization committed to economic development and helping small businesses thrive. The organization serves Spencer, Warren, Ware, Oxford, Charlton, Sturbridge, Southbridge, Brimfield, Dudley, Wales, and all of the Brookfields towns.

Are Instant Offers a good idea?

In order to make things simpler and easier for the consumer that are several companies coming out with options for home sellers to get an instant offer online for their home so they do not have to worry about the hassle of selling their home. Some of the big players that are doing this are Zillow, Offerpad and Open door. This does make things easier for the consumer but at what cost? The offers they are giving do not seem too bad until you look at the fine print. With most of their offers there will be service fees and repair credits that they request so in the end that good offer you got will not be as good.

REALTOR'S REPORT

I recommend hiring a Real Estate Professional to navigate you through this challenging market so they can help you to market your home to get the most money and also give you confidence that you got the right price for the home. There are many times I have gotten too good to be true offers only to have the investor come back and say the home needed repairs that were not necessary to get the price down after they got it under contract.

BY GUS STEEVES
VILLAGER CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON – Coptic Christians from across the region made their way to the Holy Virgin Mary Spiritual Vineyard last weekend for the annual Egyptian Festival, partaking of lots of Mediterranean food, soccer and other games and even pretending to be pharaohs for a while.

According to Samer Sadek, a self-described “servant” at the church, the Vineyard’s centerpiece, St Mary and Pope Kyrillos Church, is one of seven Coptic Churches in Massachusetts. It was originally a “satellite” of St Mark’s in Natick, but is now independent with about 250 families of its own. Even so, he said, it’s beginning to be too small, and the members are starting to consider building a new church.

The campus itself also has several shrines, an old-style sanctuary, a model of an early-Christian Egyptian hermit’s cave, and various other facilities for religious and social uses on more than 100 acres.

Sadek said the Coptic Church dates to the year 65 CE, when the Biblical Mark arrived in Egypt. Traditionally based in Alexandria and termed the See of St Mark, the church has been led by Pope Tawadros II since 2012.

But Copts trace their heritage much farther back than that. Their language, still used for some prayers, has existed since the days of ancient Egypt’s pharaohs, although today it’s written in the Greek alphabet with five extra letters. The sacred books often have three languages in columns on the same page – English or Arabic, Coptic, and Coptic in Arabic letters – and it’s common to hear all three languages singing hymns at the same time in some congregations, Sadek said.

According to Wikipedia, the Coptic Church is “one of the Oriental Orthodox churches (not to be confused with the Byzantine Orthodox group of churches).” The Oriental group comprises six churches: the Coptic, Syriac, Ethiopian, Eritrean, Armenian and Malankara Syrian churches, which slowly separated from Byzantine Orthodoxy starting 451 CE over various differences in theology. The Byzantine group, by contrast, includes the national churches of Greece, Russia, Romania, Bulgaria, Ukraine, Serbia and several smaller churches.

“Oriental Orthodox churches are generally considered to be more conservative with regard to social issues as well more enthusiastic about ecumenical relations with non-Orthodox churches,” Wikipedia states.

According to www.worldatlas.com, the vast majority of the world’s Copts still live in Egypt (about 18 million of them, comprising 10-15 percent of the country’s population). A majority of the rest are in the US (about 1 million), with 12 other countries combining for a little over 225,000.

Sadek said many of those who left Egypt were fleeing the Muslim Brotherhood, particularly after the election of Mohammad Morsi to the presidency. Morsi was ousted by military coup in 2013, after just one year in office.

Civil War encampment this weekend

Augustus Potter after the Civil War.

Survivors of the 15th Mass reunited in 1909 at Gettysburg.

Reenactors of the 15th Mass were among those participating at the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Ball's Bluff in 2011.

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY – Webster will be invading Dudley this weekend, as the 15th Mass sets up camp on the Black Tavern and Grange properties.

As you might guess, it's not real, but a Civil war encampment commemorating the area's soldiers who fought in the Battle of Ball's Bluff 157 years ago this month. Many of the participants, including organizer Maurice Healey of Webster and Deb Martin of Brookfield, had ancestors in the 15th Mass then, and some will actually be acting as them.

Martin, for example, prides herself on being "Private Auggie" (Augustus Potter) of Company F, who was wounded four times during the war — twice at Gettysburg — before being captured at Petersburg. She said the Confederates were shipping him to the notorious Andersonville Prison, but released him as part of a prisoner swap before he got there.

"They were such patriots and so proud of what they did, they didn't go back [for treatment]," she said.

Healey said his great-great-grandfather was also taken prisoner at one point, but he wasn't so lucky. He ended up in Mayo Prison, Virginia, a converted tobacco warehouse, "in the same clothes for four months" before being traded. Healey said they sent him there in a cattle car that had just been used to drop off pigs and hadn't been cleaned.

"They often traded 100 privates for four captains, or something like that," Healey said.

Regarding Ball's Bluff itself, Healey said the battle killed about half of the 15th's more than 650 men, largely because of a mistake. The regiment crossed the Potomac River early in the morning of Oct. 21, 1861, after a scouting detail led by Captain Philbrick saw what he thought were Confederate tents. When they attacked, the tents proved to only be corn stalks, and the Rebels surprised them and drove them back across the river.

According to Wikipedia, it was a series of errors by the Union leadership.

"A prominent US Senator in uniform, Colonel Edward Baker, tried to reinforce the Union troops, but failed to ensure that there were enough boats for the river crossings, which were then delayed. Baker was killed, and a newly-arrived Confederate unit routed the rest of [Brig. Gen. Charles Pomeroy] Stone's expedition."

The site states 223 Union soldiers were killed, 226 wounded and 553 captured, and "bodies floated downriver to Washington" and Mt. Vernon on subsequent days. One of that battle's seriously wounded soldiers, a lieutenant, survived to become US Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"The Slater Guards [Webster's part of the regiment] were one of the first companies to cross the Potomac to face the enemy," Healey said, noting very few members survived the war. Of 100 Slater Guards, "fewer than 10" returned home at war's end, and the battlefield cemetery in Maryland includes several Webster soldiers.

According to www.civilwarintheeast.com, the regiment also participated in the battles of Antietam, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania Court House, Petersburg and Cold Harbor before being mustered out in 1864. Surviving members were transferred to the 20th Mass, which was present when Gen. Robert E Lee surrendered at Appomattox in 1865.

To Martin, participation in the full-scale reenactment of the battle on its 150th anniversary in 2011 was one of her favorite moments as a reenactor.

"I've done the things I had in my heart to do" in uniform, she said, noting that was the only time the government has allowed reenactors on the field at Balls Bluff. Martin said she surprised many reenactors by her choice of portraying "Auggie."

"They thought I wanted to wear a hoop skirt and do some sewing, but I didn't. I wanted to portray my ancestor," she said. Getting good information about him was difficult because many family members didn't keep it. But she did learn he lived in both Brookfield and West Brookfield.

but it's really geared for beginner/intermediate [users]," he said. "We want to continue fundraising to have enough money in the budget for maintenance and slight improvements, finish the fence, signage, and benches for parents to sit on."

The basics here include a couple of ramps, a few rails and steps at the moment, replacing equipment that had deteriorated largely due to weather over the course of 15 years in operation.

One of the inspirations behind doing it, he said, was his son, who's now in college and couldn't attend the grand opening.

"I used to bring my son to the park with a hammer, skateboard and helmet," Ducharme recalled. He was himself a skater as a youth, and still has a vintage wooden skateboard from 1976. But he has no plans to take it out of mothballs.

"I used to [skate] but I was never that good," he said. "I have scars to prove it."

Two boys are about to launch themselves down ramp.

Charlton Recreation Commissioner Diane Doherty said the project was only possible through the efforts of a large number of people and local businesses who volunteered, donated funds and/or services over the last couple years. American Ramps designed and built the new facilities.

"I ask that this park be a blessing for the community and not a problem," she said. "We wouldn't be here today were it not for everyone involved."

District Attorney Joe Early said the skate park has applied for funding from his office, which uses drug forfeitures to fund "anything that keeps kids busy between the hours of 3 and 6 [p.m.]." He cited research claiming that every dollar spent on such preventive programs saves the taxpayers $7 in later costs for incarceration and other issues.

"Anytime you keep kids busy, you're keeping them out of the courts," he said.

Shepherd Hill celebrates second annual Homecoming Week

SUBMITTED BY HANNAH FLAYHAN
THE HILL TELEGRAM STAFF WRITER

SHEPHERD HILL — This year's Homecoming Week was full of excitement and expectation, as it was Shepherd Hill's second year of the annual event. This event would entail Homecoming Dance, Spirit Week, Pep Rally, and Homecoming Day — an all-day experience where clubs and classes can set up booths and raise funds. Students, staff, and even alumni enjoyed last week's festivities, coming together to celebrate a school district that prides itself in pride, unity, and excellence.

The hectic week began with the annual Homecoming Dance, which was populated by many students, who all had a blast using the photo booth and dancing wildly in the center of the "dancefloor." This year's theme was Mardi Gras, so the cafeteria was decorated with big, white feathers, gold decals, and bold masquerade masks.

Spirit Week wasn't as participated in as years past, but those who did partake in the fun went full force. The week started out with the traditional maroon and gold day and was followed by a brand new addition, Jersey Day. Both days had many participants, and on Monday, the hallways glittered with a golden glow.

On Tuesday, students wore sports jerseys, sometimes even rivals of the Red Sox, Celtics, and Patriots. How scandalous!

Cries of "It is Wednesday my dudes!" rang through the halls on Spirit Week's new addition of Vine and Meme Day. Some students opted for a more casual approach for Vine Day, like a simple "Road Work Ahead" sign. While others, like sophomore Molly Brodeur, who dressed in a pink nightgown and hit two cookie sheets together, chose to go all out. Wednesday also doubled as the Senior Class's Pajama Day, and bathrobe-clad students roamed the crowded halls. Thursday was the classic Class Color Day, which even the freshman participated in!

The school week was finalized with an Early-2000s-Cartoon-themed Pep Rally, and was emceed by Erin McKeon and David Billis, who matched their costumes to the theme. The seniors were Spongebob, the juniors were Fairly Odd Parents, the sophomores were Scooby Doo, and the freshman were Phineas and Ferb. The seniors won Musical Chairs, the Lip Sync, and the Relay Race, but were surprisingly defeated by the sophomores in Tug-of-War. Junior Kelly Greenough was beaten by senior Mina Roufai in the edge-of-your-seat Musical Chairs competition.

Seniors and juniors place first and second respectively in the Lip Sync, but the sophomores lost third place to the giant team of Freshman.

Although Homecoming Day was not as overpopulated as last year's, but many students, parents, and alumni arrived and had a blast munching on snacks and supporting all of Shepherd Hill's teams. All classes and many of Shepherd Hill's clubs used the day as a way to make revenue for various purposes. The Senior Class of 2019 sold pizza, water, and Mrs. Cormier's baked goods. The Junior Class of 2020 made a considerable amount by selling soda and candy. The Sophomore Class of 2021 sold lemonade, popcorn, and freeze pops and the Freshman Class of 2022 sold nachos and soft pretzels. The Shepherd Hill Music Parents Association, of course, sold their district-famous cheese fries and smoothies and the Booster Club, per the norm, sold Shepherd Hill merchandise. The Academic Decathlon wisely sold coffee and iced tea, and the Gay-Straight Alliance sold popsicles and ice cream. The Drama Club held a photo booth and the National Honor Society had a car wash. Both the Envirothon and Library Club had informational booths as well. Although the National Art Honor Society's day started out rough with the cotton candy machine malfunctioning, they soon bounced back with a face painting booth, thanks to the quick thinking of President Matt Celona.

Overall, Homecoming Week was positive and exciting for new students. However, what makes this event unique is that it not only provides current students to illustrate their pride in their school community, but it allows for the entire towns of Dudley and Charlton to experience what makes their school district so strong: pride and unity.

Passing on tradition: Shepherd Hill #42

SUBMITTED BY HANNA KUNKEL
THE HILL TELEGRAM STAFF

As the Shepherd Hill football team put a close on their outstanding season, the last practice of the year brought players to tears as the seniors said their last goodbyes as a family. While some gave a simple handshake or a hug, one individual gave up their jersey and passed it down as a sign of respect when choosing another teammate to continue the tradition of wearing the number. Kaiden Kunkel, a Shepherd Hill alumni, was a dedicated football player who was extremely passionate about wearing the number 42 on his back when playing. As he entered the next chapter in his life, passing such a number onto someone who was important to both him and his family affected him both emotionally and mentally.

Over the course of Kaiden's life, he was constantly surrounded by the atmosphere of football. Playing the sport goes back many generations in his family and pursuing it has always been a passion of his. Kaiden always strived to make himself, as well as his role models, proud — one being his father, Scott Kunkel, as well as his godfather, Kyle. Both were dedicated players when in high school and both wore the same number: 42. At the time, the number may have seemed like just another football number for Kyle and Scott, but little did they know they were starting a legendary tradition amongst the Kunkel family. When Kaiden was young, Kyle suddenly passed away which affected him immensely, as well as his family, on many emotional levels. Considering Kyle was one of Kaiden's amazing role models, he knew that when high school hit, the number he would always wear when on the field was 42.

Throughout Kaiden's high school football career, he always took great pride in the number as he worked his hardest to make his godfather proud.

"It's the reason I do the things I do, and the way I am today," he explains when talking about how much the number means to him. Kaiden also mentions how passing down the jersey "feels weird because to others it's a number but for me it's a

However, considering he holds great value in such a tradition, passing it on was something he felt was necessary. Kaiden passed it onto someone he knew would understand the story, as well as the emotion behind it and continue wearing it with as much pride as he did. Kaiden chose to honor his father and godfather by passing his number onto Anthony Sacco, a junior linebacker.

"Passing on something like that surprised me," as Scott explains his view on the idea, "but doing so shows the type of person Kaiden is, thus, representing not only the type of player Kyle was, but also the person he was off the field."

Kaiden and his family are proud to be continuing the tradition of the number, and are excited to see where it goes in the future.

While the season is young, and Sacco still has two years to maintain the level of prestige that surrounds the numeric symbol, the emotional significance will continue to live on in the number 42 jersey of the Shepherd Hill varsity football program.

locate out cultivation and manufacturing facility in order to operate a registered marijuana dispensary within the commonwealth. Our mission is really to educate, cultivate, manufacture and produce the highest quality products for qualifying patients who have received medical certification who are over 21 years of age and who have a qualifying condition to do so," Manager Director Richard Tannenbaum of Life Essence told selectmen. "We are really committed to being an active member of the community and really giving back to the community through charitable actions."

The location on Route 20 covers 45 acres and is zoned for manufacturing. Tannenbaum said the company expects to bring in around $150 million a year and provide between 150 and 250 local jobs with plans to train local citizens interested in employment if necessary.

"We look to have a state-of-the-art facility operational in the quickest timeline that is possible with a process like this," Tannenbaum said. "We really hope that we can provide access to patients who have serious medical conditions. It's really important and really sort of where our base is and where our history comes from — we are also concerned about being responsible members of the community and really only having experienced professionals with comprehensive background checks."

Tannenbaum and other representatives stressed time was an issue for receiving the non-opposition letter as they were required to provide documents to the state within 48 hours in order to streamline a review process that is expected to last until December. However, considering recent controversies over marijuana cultivation facilities in Charlton, selectmen didn't want to cast a vote, especially with several members of the board not present for the discussion.

Selectman Karen Spiewak suggested selectmen hold off on a decision and wait for a full board to be on hand to discuss the matter.

"I think to do no harm to the residents of the town and quite frankly to the entity it's in everyone's best interest to postpone any kind of decision right now," Spiewak said.

Selectman Debra Noble agreed stating, "We understand that time is of the essence, but out of respect for the community and for this board I don't know how we could at all in good conscious issues any non-opposition letter at this juncture."

Selectman John Szafarowicz politely explained he felt that the board of selectmen were being put on the spot and that adding the pressure of a two-day deadline wasn't appropriate. "With the information presented before this meeting I had no idea there would be a 48-hour constraint on this. I think it's disrespectful to the Board of Selectmen and the town to expect us to take action on that if we can't form questions or research or talk to a legal counsel in that time."

Selectmen instructed Town Administrator Robin Crave to continue to facilitate conversations with Life Essence similar to their action on other recent proposals from marijuana cultivators over the last few months.

VIEWS AND COMMENTARY FROM CHARLTON, CHARLTON CITY, CHARLTON DEPOT AND BEYOND

EDITORIAL

Grave Perspective

Graveyards in our area of New England hold a special fascination for many, particularly during the changeable, tricky season of autumn. As we saw this past week, a day that's humid, near 80 degrees and feels like summer can quickly give way to a night sky of racing clouds, moonlight and a damp chill creeping across the yard, yielding perfect graveyard-at-Halloween vibes.

One season passes into the next and the plants and flowers so tenderly planted and cared for in the spring diminish and die back. Autumn colors seem to pay tribute to this loss – celebrating, rather than mourning - because after all, in six months, the cycle will begin again.

Graveyards in ANY season remind us of this same truth: life begins, ends, begins again, ends again. And with each new generation, problems arise, are struggled with, sometimes resolved, and replaced with new problems. As pessimistic as that may sound, it's also oddly comforting; there is indeed nothing new under the sun.

In our corner of the world, seasons and generations have passed into history for centuries. Those tranquil, ancient graveyards preserve the memories of residents who, like us, worried about weather and politics and the economy and their children and the future. Like us, they had great days when things just seemed to “work”. They had other days when nothing went right. But life continued on...THEY continued on.

Perhaps one lesson learned from wandering among the graves is that what connects us as people – past and present – are the things we care about. In our towns and villages, we care about local schools, our community parks and rec centers, our businesses and organizations and our neighborhoods. We care about the price of fuel, getting our seasonal decorations up, finding deals at the grocery stores and the upkeep of our properties. We care about our neighbors and co-workers, our friends and family. We care about making an impact; we also care about preserving history. We hope for change and also embrace our traditions.

The same can likely be said for the names of those in those graveyards, the many who came and went before us. Life goes on.

TO THE EDITOR

Soobitsky: there are positives

To the Editor:
 I have been trying to find out more info on marijuana farms looking to open up in Charlton and see only all the negative news on them, could you please report on the positive points on these projects, we need to have more news on this important business project so our voters can be informed of positive and negative points before they vote. Charlton needs more industry to help our tax base. It's unfortunate we do not get enough people at town meetings to find out about the impact for the town. We rely on your paper for this important news. Thank you for keeping us informed.

After digging a little I found this info on the largest project, bringing 4 to 5 million dollars to Charlton, jobs, increased $$ to local business and service companies. We continue to scare business away from Charlton, they will just go to another town and we will miss out on a huge increase to our tax base. We need a new senior center, town buildings and additional school funding, this would happen if we all come to a compromise and allow big marijuana to come to Charlton. I'm sick of the tax increases and not having enough money in our town budget. They proponents have said the smell and traffic is a big issue, truth is no smell and why can't the come up with a traffic solution. The facility will not be seen from the street as its way up on the hill and will be fenced in with hundreds of security cameras. The neighborhood kids will not allowed on the grounds, I know that's a fear of the parents. They should be more afraid of the illegal drugs that come into the schools every day. The current orchard uses plenty of pesticides on the fruit trees, that goes into the ground water that will not happen anymore. No one has had interest in the orchard, potentially risking a rezone to housing that ultimately cost the town more money in support services.

I think about all the positives in attracting marijuana business to town and hope it does not all go to the next town who will welcome them! It is legal now and I feel alcohol is more damaging to our society!

Camosse: Powell preserving democracy

To the Editor:
 On Monday, October 8th, Joanne Powell, candidate for Worcester County Clerk of Courts signed a two-term pledge agreement stating she would not seek more than two-terms as the manager of the superior courts. By doing signing this term limit pledge, Joanne is preserving democracy within the Commonwealth and of our great county.

Joanne Powell's opponent has already served two-terms as Worcester County Clerk of Courts and is running for his third, which is another six-years. I strongly believe everyone who has been through the Courts system in our county or has worked within the superior court system, realizes it can be better, their lives could have been made easier, and the technology is far outdated for a county so large as Worcester.

Joanne is a true fighter for the common good, bipartisan in her thinking and ability to work with others, seeking technological advances and an updated website. Without a doubt in my mind, we need Joanne Powell, who will be able to get the job done within her two terms, a total of twelve years!

What the Brett Kavanaugh decision means to me

Men have gotten away with objectifying my body, violating my world, and contaminating my mind with feelings of anxiety and fear since I was a young teenager.

The first time I was sexually harassed, I was 14 years old and taking classes at Quinsigamond Community College. I was the youngest student at the school, and the man who approached me was 24 years old with tattoos all over his arms and an intense personality. After my experience with dodging his stagnant eyes and trying to ignore his explicit comments, I spent my time between classes each day hiding in the bathroom, a far corner of the cafeteria, or between the rows of books in the library, hoping that no man would see me or try to speak to me.

The first time I was sexually assaulted, I was 17 years old and a student at UMass Amherst. I was studying in the library with a boy from my macroeconomics class who I thought was my friend, but he wanted me and wouldn't take no for an answer. He grabbed me and forced himself on me so quickly that I barely had time to process what had happened. I pushed his hands away and screamed, but all he did was laugh. My reality as a 21-year-old woman living in the United States is that I am sexually harassed almost every day and have been sexually assaulted multiple times. It is a burden I had bestowed upon me when I was born a girl, because although some men have been in this position as well, it is a fact that women in this country are much more likely to experience sexual hostility than men.

On October 6, a notification from BBC News came up on my iPhone, letting me know that by confirming Brett Kavanaugh to the Supreme Court in a 50-48 vote, my own country made the decision to not take sexual harassment and assault seriously enough. I started crying, not just for Dr. Christine Blasey Ford, Deborah Ramirez, Julie Swetnick, and the anonymous fourth accuser who spoke out against our newest Supreme Court Justice, but for Anita Hill,

MIND OF A CURIOUS

who accused Justice Clarence Thomas of sexual harassment in 1991, and every single person who has found the courage to tell their story only to be dismissed.

The Supreme Court is the highest court we have in the country, supposedly made up of justices who are capable of providing the most reasonable judgement and displaying the most honorable behavior. Kavanaugh was formally accused of inexcusable conduct by four women, yet today he is sitting on the bench with the responsibility of evaluating the most law-abiding outcome of some of this country's toughest and cloudiest cases. When we allow it to become acceptable for our country to trust someone who has been accused of multiple cases of sexual misconduct to make our most important legal decisions, we are making sexual harassment and assault an acceptable part of our society and a common happening in the daily lives of American women.

Kavanaugh's appointment to the Supreme Court means that my 14-year-old self was right to hide in the corners of the school instead of speak out, because there was no way for me to prove that a man who was a decade older than me was sexually harassing me and making me feel uncomfortable and disrespected at my own school.

It means that the boy who assaulted me at age 17 will never actually suffer consequences for his actions because too many people would say that he was just young and reckless, and even though his laugh still echoes in my mind, I can't prove that he groped me and put his hand between my legs without my consent.

It means that the man who repeatedly asked me out when I was 19 years old despite being three times my age was just exercising his freedom of speech when he wouldn't take no for an answer, stalking me at my workplace and around Harvard Square for weeks.

It means that being taken advantage of at age 20 was simply a learning experience

How can you become a 'sustainable' investor?

FINANCIAL FOCUS
 JEFF BURDICK

Your values are important to you – and so are your investments. But you don't have to keep these two parts of your life separate if you pursue sustainable investing.

If you haven't heard of this term, you might know it by other names: socially responsible investing, values-based investing and environmental, social and governance (ESG) investing. Essentially, sustainable investing incorporates non-financial or indirect financial considerations, specifically environmental concerns (climate change, renewable energy, water scarcity), social concerns (human rights, product safety or liability) and governance issues (corporate behavior, executive compensation, lobbying and so on). As a sustainable investor, you would invest in companies that take what you'd consider a positive stance on these issues, or are at least improving in these areas, and you'd avoid businesses that fall on what you perceive as the negative side.

There are many ways to implement a sustainable investing approach that addresses your specific concerns, with varying levels of diversification and control. Some investors select individual stocks of companies they are comfortable supporting. But you might find it more affordable, and more efficient, to invest in mutual funds or exchange-traded funds (ETFs) that focus on sustainable investments.

When exploring sustainable mutual funds and ETFs, make sure you look beyond the name of the fund to assess whether its ESG approach aligns with your personal interests and goals. Also, look for these key elements:

Diversification – By definition, mutual funds that concentrate on sustainable investments might exclude entire industries, which could hurt your portfolio's performance if the excluded investments perform better than the rest of the market. For example, a fund that excludes all oil-related companies might generate poor returns during a period of rising oil prices. Therefore, you may prefer to invest in a fund that integrates environmental, social and governance considerations into the investment process without excluding specific sectors or types of companies. You can further dilute this risk by owning a wide array of sustainable funds that use different approaches or processes to invest in sustainable companies. However, while diversification can reduce the effects of volatility on your portfolio, it can't guarantee profits or protect against all losses.

Track record – As you have no doubt heard, past performance can't guarantee future results, so you may not want to over-concentrate on a fund's historical returns. Still, it might be worthwhile to compare how one fund has performed over time in comparison with similar funds or an index. Many sustainable-investing funds are newer or weren't always invested sustainably, so be sure the track record you are considering is relevant.

Here's something else to keep in mind: The universe of mutual funds is vast, and some funds may not market themselves as “sustainable,” but still include sustainable considerations in their investment selections. These funds could provide you with more options.

Finally, consider including charitable contributions in your investment strategy. In some cases, you may decide that's a better way to meet your financial and non-financial investing goals than limiting your investment choices.

By following a sustainable investing approach or incorporating charitable donations in your financial strategy, you can express your beliefs in a tangible way – while still working to achieve your long-term goals.

THE DOCTOR IS IN

ARTHUR C. SGALIA, MD

I became a fan of the television series “Bluebloods”, and I like to quote NYPD Commissioner Frank Reagan: “I’m glad I am closer to the end than to the beginning.”

After 40 years of practicing internal medicine in a large Massachusetts town southwest of Boston, I foresee a shrinking role for those who, like me, aspire to practice primary care.

When my hypertensive diabetic patient of 35 years described his chest pain to me, I was sufficiently alarmed to explain to him the need for an immediate workup. An urgent exercise tolerance test would be the logical next step. I explained to my staff that it should be arranged within the week, and then I dutifully moved on to my next patient. As soon as the result was in hand, we would together lay out the next logical phase of his care, based upon the result of that stress test. Imagine my surprise when I learned only through the grapevine over a week later that my patient lay in a bed at a Boston hospital awaiting coronary bypass operation. I learned, in retrospect, that the cardiologist who had overseen the test (well, she wasn’t really in the room) had recommended that he undergo cardiac catheterization, and then on the basis of that result, she had referred him directly to a cardiac surgeon. She took these important life changing steps without so much as a phone call to me. Shortly thereafter he underwent a complicated triple bypass operation. (I learned of this by inquiring of his family. I had cared for four generations of that clan.) It is now four months later and there is yet to be any communication to me from either the cardiologist or the cardiac surgeon. For all they know, I am still totally unaware of events after that stress test was ordered.

The elderly woman had deteriorated abruptly. (I had come to know her well, caring for three generations of her family.) She looked unusually haggard when I entered the exam room, abruptly having lost 30 pounds in the three months since I had last seen her. I was worried. I ordered a battery of blood tests after examining her. When I saw her back a few days later we reviewed the blood work and found ourselves no closer to any answers. An urgent gastroenterology consultation was in order. I had one arranged. I scheduled her to come back in a few weeks so we could act upon any of the gastroenterologist’s recommendations. I noted that her weight was down another 10 pounds and began to reassure her that we would do all we could to get to the bottom of this. She, in turn, reassured me that she was “much better now” and had in fact begun to gain some weight back.

Puzzled, I inquired what had changed. Well, the surgery had worked miraculously.

It seems that the gastroenterologist had found an entrapped hiatal hernia and referred her for corrective laparoscopic surgery. My staff retrieved the surgeon’s notes from the hospital data bank. Yes, after “PCP:” he had dictated my name. He knew I was her primary doctor. But the “cc:” line was completely blank. As of this writing, two months later, no communication has come from either the gastroenterologist or the surgeon.

I would like to be able to say these are rare occurrences, a result of a clerical oversight. I would be happy to say that our high powered, science based medical care community is a seamless interface among colleagues. I wish that, as an advocate for my patients in the dizzying maze of specialists upon sub specialists, I serve as an anchor, holding it all together for those who have honored me by entrusting that role to me. But I cannot do that in a vacuum.

The first blow to the primary care physician, the personal care physician, came with the advent of the “specialty” called hospitalist. (All other medical specialties have a board-based certification process. No such vetting takes place for one to call himself a hospitalist. So when a hospitalist tells you she is a specialist in hospital medicine, ask her if she passed her Hospital Medicine board exam. Shockingly, there is no such exam, and no such board. (It seems the most constant characteristic is the desire for predictable work load and hours.) In their effort to control the behavior and consumption of precious resources, hospitals created the hospitalist role to divest personal physicians of the ability to admit and follow their own patients. The result was a money-saving shortening of the hospital stay and half finished work ups that were supposed to arrive at a definitive answer. Now the primary goal of a hospitalist upon admitting a patient is to discharge them as quickly as possible (often the next day, before all outstanding test results are even back.) Their mantra is that the workup is merely being being shifted to the outpatient arena. Yet that workup cannot be completed when the primary physician is not even informed of the patient admission!

The next crippling blow to primary care was the ascendancy of the urgent care clinic. Understand, there is a place for such facilities. Abrupt illnesses not requiring all the resources of an overloaded emergency department can be handled by such clinics. Primary care practices which make no allowance for unscheduled urgencies must bear much of the blame for their patients seeking the greater responsiveness of urgent care.

But like the doctors who never touched a golf club on Wednesdays or any other day, we all are painted with the same stereotypical brush. “I didn’t call because it was Wednesday and I knew you weren’t in” has been replaced by “I went to urgent care because I knew you couldn’t see me for three weeks.”

Make no mistake. Although I have performed hundreds of exercise tests in my career, you do not want me to pass a gastro-scope down your delicate gullet. And you certainly should never let me crack your chest open and suture tiny coronary arteries, let alone tack up your hiatal hernia so you can eat again.

But I am available for the near future to help you make sense of all this information. I can guide you toward some very good specialists. Equally importantly, I promise to steer you away from some who are not so good. I won’t remember every nuance of your medical history if I bump into you at Target. But I will try my best to have all that information at my immediate disposal when I see you in the office.

And I might even remember your name at Target!

What does it mean to be an American?

Tell me: What does it actually mean to be an American? In the press of day-to-day events and amid the ongoing tumult of politics, we don’t think about this much. Yet it’s a crucial question, one that each generation in this country is called upon to answer for itself.

Despite our differences, there are some traits that I think we and our predecessors would recognize — characteristics to being an American that resonate with most of us, regardless of our age or our political beliefs. For instance, I believe the aim of our representative democracy is to enhance the liberty of free people, and to offer them the opportunity to make the most of their talents. This lies at the root of what it means to live in a representative democracy: extending respect to all and wanting every person to be aware of his or her political importance.

Perhaps the most eloquent expression of this view is the awe-inspiring Declaration of Independence, which remains a core inspiration both for our political values and our shared identity. The notion that all people are created equal, that we possess God-given inalienable rights, including to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness — these are beliefs that undergird our democracy.

They suggest that our country can — and should — be an example to the world of what a government of liberty can mean in the lives of citizens. And that we should never stop trying to make the world a better place. Bringing these values into our policies and our politics depends on all of us — another notion embedded in this country since the beginning.

Often people ask, “Where are the Jeffersons or Lincolns in this time of need?” They understand that the quality of our elected leaders makes all the difference, and that bold, decisive, thoughtful leadership is essential for our country’s success. Yet while I recognize the need, ultimately our success as a nation will rest on the strength and capabilities of our citizens. The Founding Fathers spoke often of the need for citizens of virtue and talent, for people capable of governing themselves.

We do so through our political insti-

BEYOND CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

LEE H. HAMILTON

tutions, within a framework set out in our Constitution. While our system is not perfect, it has provided us with the tools to meet our challenges — and in a better fashion than any likely alternative.

Politics as it is practiced in our country can bring despair and crushing defeat. But it can also produce splendid achievements. If you enter politics, you have to be prepared for both. I know that a lot of people view politics with disdain and disapproval, yet over the course of a long political life, I never felt the desire to escape it. Just the opposite, in fact. I knew a lot was at stake in the battles, and I embraced them.

To be sure, I pursued them at a time when it was possible to find common ground across partisan divides, and when respecting one’s opponents did not bring immediate censure from donors and primary voters. The atmosphere is different now. Yet the basic need — for using the political system to resolve fundamental challenges — has not changed.

Nor has one of its most basic features:

a permanent tension between the preservation and expansion of individual freedom on the one hand, and the stability and strength of the nation on the other.

Government must have enough power to protect the national interest and to be capable of addressing deep-seated problems. It must secure and enlarge personal liberties while maintaining order and stability. It must provide the national security necessary for the preservation of freedom.

These are not contradictory goals, but they do rub against each other. How we interpret them — how far in one direction or the other we go as our national circumstances change — is a constant challenge. Being an American means not shying away from that task, but instead embracing it as part of our birthright.

MCAS

on the results of the district overall and another focusing on the results from special education students. The focus of the test for local students this year was English and language arts as well as mathematics.

District interim Director of Curriculum Barbara Marderosian presented overall numbers showing mixed results.

Dudley Elementary School made the most progress towards the target set by the state at 76% and also received the district’s second highest accountability percentile at 65. Heritage School scored a 63% progress toward target and a 67 percent accountability percentile. Dudley Middle School was given a 39% progress toward target and a 41 accountability percentile, while Shepherd Hill Regional High School ended with a 26% progress and a 33 accountability percentile. Charlton Middle School had the lowest percentage towards the state target at 8% and the second lowest accountability percentile at 39.

So, what does all this mean? For Marderosian it means the schools have room for improvement, but the data may not paint the whole picture on paper.

“The state is really looking at raising the ground floor. The philosophy I suppose is a rising tide raises all ships. In many cases the data can be a bit misleading. For example, if you look at Charlton Middle School and Shepherd Hill you’ll see that they have lower progress toward targets, but they are also not Title I schools. They have less room for growth in another way of looking at it, where Dudley Elementary has more economically disadvantaged students that have some more room to grow. That’s not making excuses, but I just want to point out that the data can be a bit misleading if you don’t look at all the context,” Marderosian said.

She added from her experience the state recommends that they don’t compare percentiles and it can be difficult to discuss trends for the current format of the MCAS tests because there’s a brand new baseline to consider with the changes made to the exams and the data collection. She said the district is “essentially in the middle” but improvement is the ultimate goal.

“How are we going to move the district from partially meeting toward meeting expectations? We are going to need to identify the lowest performing subgroups in the district. Also, we’ll need to look at the areas of needed growth. We want to get some targeted goals and objectives,” Marderosian stated.

Concluding her report Marderosian noted all schools that participated in the MCAS tests were deemed “not requiring assistance or intervention.”

Charlton Elementary School and Mason Road School were not included because those facilities did not participate in the testing in 2018.

The second presentation focused on special education test results with director of special education for the district Lorinda Allen being much more forward with her data. In her opinion the district has a lot of work to do to meet the state standards specifically in one subject.

“With math, we had a pattern of being significantly less than the state average,” Allen said. “Clearly math is one of those areas we need to work on without a doubt.”

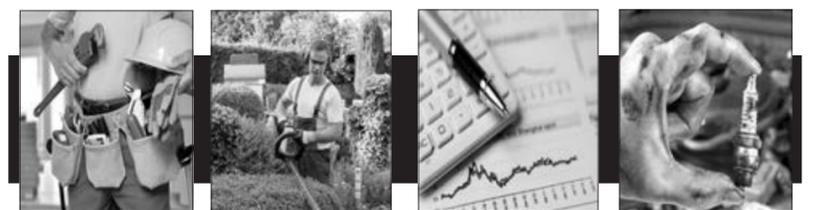

Her data showed that nearly every grade tested throughout three facilities of focus, Dudley Middle School, Heritage School, and Dudley Elementary School, failed to meet the state average for high achievement in math. Only special education students in third grade in Dudley Elementary School and grade five in Dudley Middle School managed to meet the mark in math, while every grade tested excelled in English and language arts and those tested in science also met the high achievement standard.

However, Allen also revealed students with disabilities in the district failed to meet the state averages for achievement in the majority of tested areas. This means, as she puts it, it’s time for change.

“Most of our schools did not

Paying good money just to be scared

As the maid came down the ornate wood- en staircase, black blood pooled from her eyes, and she feather dusted the railing while completely dismissive of the cobwebs everywhere.

MASH UPS
.....
KIMBERLY
MASCHI

Sorry, I know. I did it again. No one was amused, except me of course.

Moving on to the next room. We went up the stairs, in heels, so this just proves that I am not one to mess with!

A battle between ghosts happened in the hallway. The chef and the butler stabbed each other over their mutual love for the maid. I found no humor in this, it was actually pretty terrifying. They lunged at each other and fought to the ground while screaming. I stood frozen in my spot and threw a few punches into the air. I recently watched Big Trouble in Little China so obviously, I knew all the right moves.

When the battle was over Aimee tapped my shoulder to turn around and I turned to look straight into the bleeding eyes and nose of a death riddled bride. Through the veil she tilted her head and smiled. No funny quips this round folks, I screamed and ran.

Once I calmed down, I simply stated that I wasn't afraid of the bride, just the concept of commitment...

Aimee and I decided to explore some random rooms. Animals, skeletons, moving pictures, and shimmering candles decorated the various mantels. I slowly pushed open a large door, with a moaning creak and entered what seemed to be a study. Tables were turned, books were thrown about the floor, a struggle happened here. Off in the corner of the room stood a man. He had his back turned to us and was completely still. I said, "hey! How's it going? Whatcha doing?"

I was in complete panic at this point. I was on edge and I am such a wimp! My imagination gets the best of me, and when you put me in this kind of situation I honestly lose myself in the moment. I become so engrossed in everything that is happening it blurs the line of reality. The man in the corner slowly turned towards us, he had a noose tightly wrapped around his neck.

"Oh!" I said, "you want to hang out?" Hilarious to me, Aimee slapped me on the shoulder and shook her head in disappointment. We went back downstairs to watch the amazing performers teaching others in attendance how to dance.

The other guests to the event came dressed in fancy attire all fitting the speakeasy theme. The band played songs from the 1920s like I Want to be Loved by You by Helen Kane and Perhaps, Perhaps, Perhaps by Doris Day. The band was incredibly talented and had everyone on the dance floor dipping and swinging. I did my best to not hurt anyone nearby as I tried my best to dance. My go-to move was palms facing the floor and throwing my feet up towards my sides. I graduated to a twisting of the hips move and really found my groove with a jazzy little two-step.

I enjoyed myself with a couple beverages kindly made in this time of prohibition. Since I am awake and writing the next day, the drinks were not tainted by the "Chemist's War of Prohibition," when the American Government poisoned their citizens.

The ghosts within the mansion may have come to their untimely end from just a glass of spirits. Aimee and I ended our night before midnight, we enjoyed watching the burlesque show and sword juggling ghost. It was an amazing experience. This was the third year the speakeasy was held, and we cannot wait for next year! By next year I hope to gain some brav-eerie...sorry. Last one I promise.

QUESTION 3

in accordance to their gender identity. The legislation was signed into law by Republican Gov. Charlie Baker and received widespread support from numerous group and entities. Those against the law however say that it could be easily abused with Keep Massachusetts Safe collecting signatures to have the question on the ballot seeking the repeal.

Locally, the Charlton Board of Selectmen has rarely presented an opinion on state questions, but the town's top elected board received a request from a town resident on Oct. 9 to join a coalition supporting the passage of Question 3. Jordan Evans, a transgender woman, has worn many hats in the town of Charlton including as a constable and as a dedicated member of the Cultural Council. As one of many who would be impacted by the repeal of the gender identity law Evans wanted to see the representatives of her community take a stand and show their support for the transgender community in Charlton.

"I find it very important to the town of Charlton mainly because the town has an extremely influential and growing queer community, in particular a transgender community. I find that whatever happens this November will have direct ramifications on this community," Evans told selectmen.

"I have come to meet and speak with and learn about so many amazing trans people in our town whose well beings and whose freedoms hinge on the ballots. During all of my travels I have spoken at our high school and in our school systems multiple times. There are so many students at Shepherd Hill for example who would be directly impacted by the results of this question."

The question has gained the attention of the many I the nation as it is the first repeal effort of its kind. Many believe that if the question fails and the law is repealed it could create a ripple effect of more repeals across the country. Evans said this is a major reason why towns showing support for the question is an important statement to make.

"What happened here in Massachusetts in November could potentially flip the script and cause a national conversation," Evans said. "If we can't preserve the rights of a marginalized people in Massachusetts that will cause a conversation that will put the rights of millions of people who are like me into a freefall."

While the selectmen present for the meeting were universally in support of voting "Yes" on Question 3, they were divided on whether or not it was appropriate for the board as an entity to take a stand in an effort to influence a state-wide ballot question. Selectman Joe Szafarowicz voiced his open support for the question as an individual but did not feel like the board had any place trying to influence a statewide vote.

"I have the pleasure of having many transgender friends and they're just people. Charlton doesn't discriminate. Just to clarify, a vote 'Yes' on question 3 would support the law in place. Personally, I don't see or like to have a board support or not support questions on a state ballot but whatever happens, I'm committed to making sure Charlton does not discriminate and pass whatever local resolution or policy to protect those rights," Szafarowicz said.

Selectman Karen Spiewak was on the other end of the spectrum. Not only did she support the question personally, she felt that Charlton's selectmen were well within their right to take a stand and make a statement by supporting the coalition to approve Question 3. "Other boards have done it and I'm suggesting we do it not because other cities and towns have done it but because it's the right thing to do," Spiewak said.

While initially selectmen sought to accept Evans' resolution without including a stance on Question 3, the majority eventually decided to approve the resolution as submitted officially joining the coalition and recommending voters approved Question 3. Szafarowicz was the lone selectman who chose to abstain from the vote rather than vote against the motion, and did say he would like to join the coalition as a citizen to support the cause.

Selectman David Singer was not present for the vote or discussion.

Rams score late go-ahead goal to edge past Leicester

Mathew S. Plamondon photos

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

LEICESTER — Maria Holland scored on a breakaway with 6:41 to play to help lead the Shepherd Hill Regional girls' varsity soccer team past Leicester High, 2-1, on Tuesday, Oct. 9, at Memorial Field.

With the win the Rams improved to an even 5-5. The defeat, which dropped the Wolverines to 6-4-3, put a damper on Leicester's Senior Night festivities. Before the game the team honored its six seniors — Samantha Walsh, Emily Oliver, Elise Leveillee, Michaela Hippert, Alexandra Rowland and Kyra Prouty.

"I was proud of how hard the girls worked out there tonight, but it's tough to lose on Senior Night," Leicester first-year head coach Ali Murphy said. "I'm proud of the team; I think we have grown a lot throughout the season. As for this loss, we're going to learn from it, move on and move up."

On the game-winning goal the ball ricocheted through a mass of players at midfield and bounced toward the Leicester goal. Holland, who was already moving in that direction, quickly gained control of the ball and headed toward the Wolverines' net. When she was 10 yards away, just as Leicester goalie Alexa Dufries started to lean toward her right Holland shot the ball to Dufries' left.

Dufries recovered, and made a diving attempt to save the ball, but the ball rolled just past her outstretched left arm and inside the post before nestling into the back of the net.

"I saw the ball rolling past their defense and I knew I had to get on it," said Holland, a sophomore. "I took a touch, got control of the ball, dribbled in and then it was just me and the goalie and I knew I had to get a good shot off."

"I just knew I had to beat the goalie and put the ball in the back of the net," Holland added. "When I got through the crowd I moved to the center of the field so the whole goal would be open for me to shoot at. I felt good about the shot when it left my foot. I was pretty confident that it was going to go in."

Leicester tied the game, 1-1, just five minutes earlier, Wolverines' junior Nida Orloff scoring on a free kick from 20 yards out. Orloff's rocket of a shot went left-to-right up and into the goal past the outstretched arms of a leaping Alyssa Trueman, Shepherd Hill's senior goalie.

"That was an incredible shot by Nida to tie the game," Murphy said. "She's a very good player and she had a great second half."

After an evenly played but largely uneventful first half, Shepherd Hill took a 1-0 lead in the sixth minute of the second half, junior Paula Barbale un-ing a 25-yard shot from the right side that just dropped into the left side of the goal, almost brushing the crossbar and the left post as it went in.

"That was a fantastic shot on Paula's part," Shepherd Hill head coach Amanda Brotherton said. "She's been working on that shot in practice all season."

A big part in the Rams having a chance to win was the play of Trueman, who made 10 saves in the game, many of the diving and leaping variety.

"Alyssa is a sensational, absolutely phenomenal goalkeeper," Brotherton said. "She's a stud. She shows up for every game and she is a fantastic kid."

Brotherton said she was pleased by the resiliency her team showed after Leicester came back to tie the game, 1-1.

"I think we finally figured it all out," Brotherton said. "Obviously after our first game of the season [a 4-0 loss to Marlborough] we had a lot of lessons to learn."

"I told the girls this time around 'you're going to face challenges; it's not going to be easy. People don't think you belong on the field with them,'" Brotherton continued. "I told them it's going to be a challenge all season. It's up to them to put it out there and essentially, looking at all the other stuff going on in every league, it's anybody's game. It's who shows up, who puts the heart in and who wants it more."

After the game Murphy was frustrated by some of the scoring chances the Wolverines had that they just couldn't connect on.

"[Trueman] is a great goalie and they're a good, solid team," Murphy said. "We pressured them in the second half, I was proud of that; it's just a tough result. The outcome didn't necessarily dictate who outplayed who. It was an up and down game. I was really proud of our second half push. We're a team that has come from not being able to do that. To see them push through that second half is better than being buried by the first half. I'm proud of them."

Shepherd Hill hangs tough, then falls to St. John's

DUDLEY — The Shepherd Hill varsity football team knows that it's in for a marquee matchup whenever St. John's High comes to town, and the Pioneers did just that when they took to Carmignani Memorial Field on Friday night, Oct. 12.

The Rams hung tough with St. John's and trailed by a single point, 21-20, at halftime. Ben Carpenter had two touchdowns and Nathaniel Cooper added the other, but the Pioneers (4-2) pushed through in the end to take a 34-20 decision from the Rams, who failed to score in the second half.

Shepherd Hill dropped to 2-4 on the season and will play at Leominster High's (Doyle Field) on Saturday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. The Blue Devils are currently 0-6.

Bay Path can't keep up with Beavers in defeat

UPTON — First, the Bay Path Regional varsity football team lost its home field versus Blackstone Valley Tech on Friday, Oct. 12 when the surface was deemed unplayable. Then, the Minutemen lost the game to the Beavers, now being played at Valley Tech's home, 42-0.

After starting the season 3-1, Bay Path has since lost its last two games to drop to 3-3. They hope to get back on track during the final two regular season games — Friday, Oct. 19 versus Worcester Tech at 7 p.m. and Friday, Oct. 26 at Abby Kelley at 7 p.m.

Opportunities abound as fall season gets underway

.....
RALPH
TRUE

This is a magical time of year filled with all types of hunting and fishing opportunities for the sportsmen. The fall trout stocking program is in full gear with more than 60,000 rainbow trout and 4,000 brown trout being stocked in trout waters. Very few trout are stocked in local rivers, but they are stocked in rivers in the western part of the state. Fall trout fishing can be extremely challenging as the water temperatures change daily and their feeding habits are a lot different from the cold waters in the spring. Most trout stocked locally are in the 12 inch + class, but Cape waters also have a lot of hold over trout, as seen in last week's column.

In September, more than 2,000 northern pike were purchased by Mass Fish & Wildlife from Vermont. The yearling pike were stocked in Lake Quinsigamond, Newton Pond and Flint Pond. Local ice fishermen often complain about pike no longer being stocked in local areas like Manchaug Pond and Webster Lake. Pike are still being caught at Manchaug Pond, although it has not been stocked for years. Despite numerous conversations with Massachusetts fish biologists about the huge success at these two ponds over the last 20 years or more, nothing has been done to ensure local pike fishing anglers they will continue to catch northern pike at these two great bodies of water.

Unfortunately, very little data is available at MFW, because of the poor communication between the state and the fishing public. Because ice fishing anglers kept the pike fish success to themselves, it is no longer on the list of priorities to stock it again. Hopefully the division can be convinced to stock pike again in the near future.

A second salmon from the same fishing trip.

The upland bird hunting season opened on Oct. 13, this year with more than 40,000 pheasant being stocked statewide. Pheasant are the number one game bird for upland bird hunters. Local clubs also stock pheasant in local covers that they raise in cooperation with MFW.

The second segment of the Massachusetts goose season opened on Oct. 9, this year under ideal conditions. More geese started to show up in local corn fields and on bodies of water just prior to opening day. Reports of the two bird limits of Canada geese being made by a few local hunters last week was good news. Hopefully hunters will catch a good flight of migrating birds after this week's cold blast. Duck hunters also reported some great shooting of wood duck and mallards on opening day. More flight birds should make duck hunting even better in the coming days and weeks.

The Salmon River in upstate New York exploded with action last week with some local anglers returning with impressive fish. This week's picture shows Steve Stefanick with an impressive king salmon for his fishing adventure last week, along with some of his fishing buddies

Archery deer season opened this past Monday Oct. 15, under less than ideal conditions. The heavy foliage was still hampering the hunter's ability to spot a deer as they approached their hunting areas. That should all change as the recent frost sent many leaves to the ground. Not all areas have an abundance of acorns this year, but for the areas that do hunters should find some great opportunities to harvest some venison.

dinner this Saturday Oct. 20, at the club house on White Court in Douglas. The event is open to the public. For tickets call the club at 508-278-7204.

Tautog fishing has exploded with action in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island waters. Green crabs are the number one choice of bait to catch this hard fighting fish.

rience for me, because not touching a woman when she's intoxicated seems to be an unrealistic expectation and I can't prove that he overstepped my boundaries because I was barely conscious, only remembering it enough to continue to be haunted by feelings of violation.

It means that I will have to come to terms with every sexual harassment and assault experience I have had and will have on my own, because no matter how much time I've spent telling my story, fighting against sexualization, and speaking out for the Me Too movement, men still get away with taunting me and touching me without my consent and they have since I was 14 years old.

It means that the MeToo movement has not yet made enough progress, not yet convinced enough people, and not yet changed the country enough to take a step back and take pride in its progress.

Brett Kavanaugh's appointment to the Supreme Court means that I, as a woman living in the United States, am not and will not be taken seriously enough in my own country when I tell my story or speak out against sexual assault. It means that men will continue to look up my skirt on escalators, catcall me when I pass them on the street, or grope me on public transportation, because they know they will get away with it.

After all, our newest Supreme Court Justice did.

After completing his undergraduate education, Dr. Park knew that he was interested in a clinical career. He, then navigated his studies toward dentistry as he went on to pursue his Doctor of Dental Medicine degree at the prestigious Tufts University School of Dental Medicine. Dr. Park completed a general practice residency at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, where he was able to improve and polish his skills. He continues his education by taking courses around the world to keep him updated on the latest research and innovative dental techniques. Dr. Park currently has professional affiliations with the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry (AACD), American Dental Association (ADA)

After working as an associate for several dental practices, Dr. Park found that he would never quite satisfy his desire to serve patients while working under someone else. While he had access to patients, he was not able to develop the close relationships he finds deeply critical to quality dental care. This led him to open his own practice in Southbridge and the patients he's met have affirmed his decision. The people of Southbridge have developed a special place in Dr. Park's heart and he is committed to serving the community to the fullest.

When he is not in the office, Dr. Park enjoys being outdoors as much as possible. His hobbies include rock climbing, skiing, playing tennis with his colleagues, and spending time with his loved ones. He can't wait to meet you!

How to make smart choices at the buffet table

Healthy eaters can do their best to avoid the "buffet binge" at their next special occasion.

Buffet dining can be found everywhere from wedding receptions to all-inclusive resorts to cafeteria-style restaurants. Unlimited access to a wide array of foods means there's likely something for everyone to enjoy at the buffet table. But having so many foods at one's fingertips also may compel some people to overeat. Some people are tempted to get their money's worth, while others have difficulty controlling portions with so many delicious offerings beckoning. Limitless food supplies often tempt people to dine on much more than they normally would at sit-down meals. Dubbed "buffet binging," individuals may walk away from buffet lines feeling bloated.

However, there are some tricks to enjoy buffets without ending up with the post-buffet bloat. Do a sweep of the area first. Examine the buffet offerings before picking up a plate. If something looks irresistible, leave room for it by going spar-

- ingly on other foods.
- Snack before arriving. Fill up on high-fiber foods before visiting the buffet line so you'll be less likely to overdo it. If that's not possible, have a salad or broth-based soup as an appetizer. Both options are filling but not too high in calories.
- Use a small plate. Pick a small plate so you can't fill it up with more food than you need to feel satisfied. If you're still hungry after finishing your plate, you can always go back for a second helping.
- Pick some protein. If the idea is to make the meal worth it from a financial standpoint, stick to protein-rich offerings like meat, poultry and seafood. These tend to be the most expensive items on the spread.
- Choose unusual foods. When indulging in an item or two, select foods you don't regularly have access to. And don't hesitate to give signature dishes a try.
- Load up on veggies. Fill your plate with plenty of vegetables, which are filling and healthy. Just be wary of how veggies are prepared, skipping those that are coated in cream sauces or look laden with butter.
- Indulge wisely in desserts. Pick up very small pieces of dessert if you want to sample various offerings. Fill the rest of the plate with fresh fruit, which is refreshing and low in calories.
- Slow down. Eat slowly and register when you are full. This will help you eat with your stomach and not your eyes. After visiting the buffet line, sit beyond the sightline of the buffet so you're not tempted to revisit it.

Explore new flavors over an open flame

Just about anything can be cooked over an open flame. No matter the type of grilling they're using, cooks who prepare meals over an open flame can't help but notice the distinctive flavor that's unique to grilled foods. Trying something new this grilling season can open cooks' eyes to a host of flavors they might not instantly associate with grilling. The following recipe for "Ginger Soy Chicken Breasts" from Eric Treuille and Birgit Erath's "Grilling" (DK Publishing) is one such meal that can open cooks' eyes to the many wonderful foods that can be cooked over an open flame.

GINGER SOY CHICKEN BREASTS SERVES 4

2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger
3 garlic cloves, crushed
2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
2 teaspoons sesame seeds
2 teaspoons toasted sesame oil
1 tablespoon medium dry sherry
1/2 cup soy sauce
4 boneless chicken breast halves, slashed (see below)
Salt
Black pepper
1 recipe Cilantro Coconut Sauce (see below), optional

Combine ginger, garlic, sugar, sesame seeds, sesame oil, sherry, and soy sauce. Add chicken and toss to coat evenly. Cover and refrigerate for 30 minutes, turning once. Grill according to instructions below. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Serve hot with

CILANTRO COCONUT SAUCE (optional).

To slash chicken breasts: With a sharp knife, cut 3 parallel slashes through skin, about 14-inch deep.

Outdoor grill: Grill skin-side down on medium-hot coals until crisp, about 7 minutes. Turn and continue grilling until chicken is opaque with no trace of pink, another 5 minutes.

Indoor grill: Preheat broiler. Broil skin-side up until skin is crisp, about 7 minutes. Turn and continue cooking until chicken is opaque with no trace of pink, another 5 minutes.

CILANTRO COCONUT SAUCE MAKES 2 1/8 CUPS

- 1 handful cilantro leaves
- 1 handful fresh mint leaves
- 4 garlic cloves, crushed
- 1 green chile, seeded and chopped
- 1 avocado, peeled, halved and pitted
- 1/2 teaspoon grand cumin
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 3 tablespoons fresh lime juice
- 1 1/2 cups coconut milk
- Salt
- Tabasco sauce

Place cilantro, mint, garlic, chile, avocado, cumin, sugar, lime juice, and coconut milk in a food processor or blender; pulse to a purée. Add salt and Tabasco sauce to taste. Cover and refrigerate for 30 minutes to allow flavors to blend. Serve chilled.

Cooks note: To avoid discoloration, store in a bowl with plastic wrap, pressing directly on the sauce to prevent contact with air.

Most popular ethnic cuisines across the country

Chinese food is one of the most popular ethnic cuisines enjoyed in both Canada and the United States.

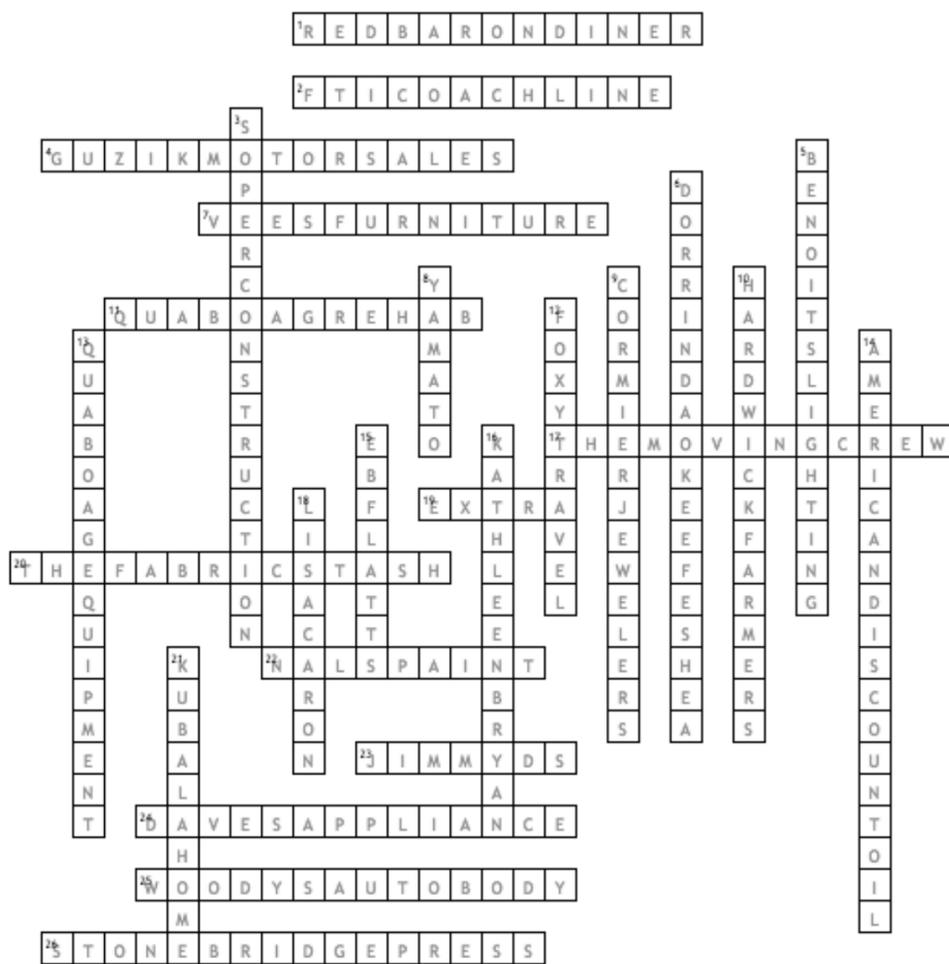

What constitutes "ethnic" food differs from person to person. Someone of Italian descent may dine regularly on garlic-infused pasta dishes, while a person from another area of the world may find such foods exotic. In the cultural melting pot of North America, various cuisines representing countries that span the globe are within arm's length for many people. According to Technomic, a Chicago-based research firm, 77 percent of Americans enjoy ethnic foods while dining out once a month. Around 38 percent order ethnic food weekly. In addition, many more people prepare ethnic cuisine at home. A growing interest in ethnic foods is fueled by young people. Technomic notes that millennials are more apt to want to try various cuisines and then incorporate them into their regular dining experiences. The National Restaurant Association found that 60 percent of people are likely to "tie their favorite ethnic food to their family history." Interest in ethnic foods tends to be highest in urban areas where restaurants and ingredients may be more readily available. When it comes to the top ethnic cuisines enjoyed throughout the states or provinces and territories, Chinese, Mexican and Italian rally for the top spots on diners' plates. While the NRA has Italian cuisine as earning top-billing, Technomic's list says that Chinese food, at 76 percent, followed by Mexican food (74 percent) and Italian (71 percent) comprise the biggest ethnic draws. Japanese or sushi comes in a distant fourth at 32 percent in the United States. The statistics portal Statista indicates that, as of January 2015, Chinese, American and Italian foods are quite popular in Canada. However, the percentage of people who cook these foods as opposed to eating them out at a restaurant varies. Chinese food is most widely enjoyed in a restaurant setting, while Italian food is frequently whipped up at home. As immigration tides change, ethnic cuisine may change with them. However, interest in experiencing ethnic dining is likely to remain consistent.

Potential benefits of a vegan diet

A nutritious diet is an integral component of a healthy lifestyle. One of the great things about eating right is there are many ways to do so. A healthy diet that works for some people might not work for others with different tastes, and it doesn't have to.

Eating right can boost immune systems and help people be more productive, and some people even tailor their healthy diets to align with their personal beliefs. One such example is veganism. Adherents to veganism do not eat or use animal products, and many do so to advocate for the ethical treatment of animals.

Regardless of why people choose vegan diets, the potential health benefits of such decisions are myriad.

- Shed excess weight: Vegan diets may help people shed excess weight. A 2015 study published in the journal Nutrition found that vegan diets may result in greater weight loss than more modest recommendations. The vegan diets used in the study did not require participants to limit their caloric intake, though many might have simply by the nature of the vegan diet, which is packed with satisfying foods full of nutrients such as fiber that can help people feel full and maintain that feeling of fullness for long periods of time.
- Improve kidney func- tion: Studies have indicated that people with diabetes who replace the meat in their diets with plant protein may reduce their risk for poor kidney function. One such study, published in the Asia Pacific Journal of Clinical Nutrition, concluded that, while more studies are necessary, substituting soy protein for animal proteins usually decreases hyperfiltration in diabetic subjects and may reduce albumin excretion as well.

- Protect against certain cancers: The World Health Organization says that roughly one-third of all instances of cancer across the globe can be prevented if people make the right lifestyle choices. That includes their choice in diets. Due to the nature of vegan diets, vegans tend to consume considerable amounts of fruits and vegetables. That's good news, as an analysis of data from the Health Survey for England found that eating seven or more portions of fresh fruits and vegetables every day can reduce a person's risk of dying from cancer by as much as 15 percent.

- Reduce risk for heart disease: Fruits, vegetables and fiber also have been linked to a lower risk of heart disease. A study from researchers in Japan found that intakes of plant-based foods, particularly fruits, were associated with reduced mortality from cardiovascular disease. Vegan diets may necessitate an adjustment period when starting out. But over time, the benefits of such diets are numerous.
