Volunteers out and about during last year's April Clean-Up.

Thompson gearing up for April Road and River Clean-Up

THOMPSON — April is upon us, and in the Town of Thompson, that means residents are encouraged to get outside and pick up trash from all 125 miles of our roads and rivers.

The April Road and River Clean-Up has been organized for the last 18 years under the sponsorship of Thompson Together's Environment Committee, in keeping with its philosophy of doing good things for Thompson without asking the Town to do it. Norma O'Leary was the original organizer and driving force behind this effort, because of the mess she saw every spring when the snows melted away. Over the years, O'Leary has continued to pull together an army of volunteers, collecting as much as six to eight tons of trash per year. Tires, furniture, and appliances have been hauled away with the aid of Town trucks, but the most interesting item found to date was a car submerged in the French River more than 10 years ago.

O'Leary's organizational team includes a group of assistants who use lists developed over the years to contact volunteers and assign coverage to all areas of town. Once the volunteers have been mobilized, they are provided with any needed bags, gloves, and grabbers to do their work. The Town's DPW yard dedicates a dumpster to the road and river trash from this event, since it is important to know how much gets collected each year. For as long as this event has been run, financial support has been provided by The Last Green Valley, and they require feedback on the types and numbers of trash items col-

Day Kimball Healthcare At Home responds to coronavirus

PUTNAM — Day Kimball Healthcare (DKH) At Home, a service division of Day Kimball Healthcare, is closely monitoring the rapidly evolving coronavirus disease COVID-19 crisis and is following the procedures of the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the Connecticut Department of Public Health (DPH), and local public health agencies.

As widely reported, it has been established that older adults and those with underlying medical conditions are at a higher risk for more severe outcomes if infected with the COVID-19 virus. As a result, the CDC strongly urges older adults, especially those with chronic health conditions, to remain home as much as possible to limit exposure.

As COVID-19 has now reached Connecticut and bordering states, DKH At Home is prepared to meet the challenges this presents.

"Now more than ever, the in-home care we provide is a vital part of preventing emergency room visits and unnecessary hospitalizations, while keeping our patients safe in the comfort of their homes," said Renee Smith, RN, MSN, Executive Director, Day Kimball Healthcare At Home.

DKH At Home is taking the necessary steps to protect its patients and families as care is provided in the home through the course of the COVID-19 pandemic, focusing on minimizing risk for infection, while safeguarding the health of its staff. To best achieve this DKH At Home clinicians and staff are adhering to the following procedures:

- All patients, clients, and household members are screened for COVID-19 symptoms and related risk factors prior to beginning care and before every home visit according to CDC and DPH guidelines.

- On a daily basis, all staff are screened for COVID-19 related symptoms before reporting for work. Staff with symptoms are not permitted to visit patients or perform other duties until cleared by their physician and

After a Blessing of the Palms, each received Palms and processed through the town of Brooklyn led by a big red truck with a large cross in its bed. The procession drove by Creamery Brook apartments where they were greeted by residents waving from their balconies.

One resident shared that "It has been so long since I've seen people."

A NOTE TO READERS

This week's edition of the paper might seem a bit smaller than you are accustomed to, but rest assured, this is only temporary. Due to the unique circumstances we are all living under at the present time, local sporting events and community activities have wisely been canceled as we all try to stay closer to home and practice social distancing.

As we ride out this temporary interruption of life as usual together, we urge you to continue supporting the local businesses that advertise in your newspaper. They have always been here for you through good times and bad, and now, more than ever, they need you to be there for them in any way you can.

Amid this temporary absence of local events and municipal meetings, we are also looking to celebrate the many quiet heroes in our communities who have gone above and beyond to make this situation easier for those most affected by it. Let us know if there is someone in your community who you think should be recognized by e-mailing news@stonebridgepress.news.

Above all, know that we have been your trusted source for local news for generations, and we plan to be here for you to generations to come, in print and online at www.stonebridgepress.com.

Pomfret church parishioners join mission trip to Guatemala

POMFRET — Have you wanted to offer your work and expertise to poor parts of the world? A group of volunteers from Christ Church in Pomfret completed its fifth trip in February. They travelled through the organization Partners in Development, Inc. (PID) out of Ipswich, Mass. to the southwest pacific coastal plains of Guatemala to work and stay in remote villages. The work through PID involves one week trips, can be medical, dental and/or construction projects.

This year's group comprised 12 people, six from Connecticut, who did medical work and installed cooking stoves. There were three doctors and two nurses and seven people working on installing 60

stoves. The medical people saw Photos Courtesy 360 patients with translation from Spanish to English and at another clinic translating Queche to Spanish to English.

"Needless to say," quipped Woody Danenhower, pediatrician, "each visit took a while."

"Patients are seen for everything that a primary care doctor might see in the US and additional problems related to poverty, malnutrition and unclean water," stated Marguerite Davis, family medicine. "We see lots for people with anemia caused by parasites and treat whole families for that condition. We are not able to do any of the testing that we take for granted like CT scans and MRI's."

Denise Oles, RN, said, "We can do simple lab testing done on site. A majority of the time we can provide appropriate free medication."

The stove installation involves concrete blocks as a base, precast concrete pieces and a ceramic fire box assembled on site in homes. A stove pipe is then inserted through layers of tin roof. The stoves replace the open "camp fires" that are used for cooking, removing the smoke from the home, reducing asthma and lung disease, reducing burns and reducing wood use by two thirds. The wood burning stoves are built in Guatemala by their people so they are a win-win for everybody but the wood sellers. In the afternoons, many of the stovers help do crafts with the sponsored chil-

Courtney highlights new guidance for small business owners amid COVID-19 outbreak

NORWICH — Last week, Congressman Joe Courtney (CT-02) issued the following statement after the U.S. Department of Treasury and the federal Small Business Administration (SBA) issued new guidance for small business owners seeking financial aid and relief amid the COVID-19 pandemic.

“Passage of the bipartisan CARES Act opened up numerous additional resources for small business owners, and kickstarted brand new programs that will help streamline cash-flow directly to small businesses,” said Rep. Courtney. “Now the job is to help employers get connected with these resources – they need the funding immediately, now. Today, the Treasury Department and the SBA both issued guidance and updates for small business owners on how to start applying for these new resources, including disaster loan advances of up to $10,000, the new Paycheck Protection Program, new SBA debt relief programs and express bridge loans, and more. If we're counting on an economic rebound following this pandemic, then we've got to do more to help out our small businesses now. The CARES Act puts more resources at their disposal, and any small business owner in eastern Connecticut should feel welcome to call my office, or to visit my COVID-19 resource page online for more information on how to start taking advantage.”

Passage and enactment of the bipartisan CARES Act opened up new resources and programs to assist small business hard-hit by the COVID-19 pandemic. Important new resources authorized by Congress include the SBA's Paycheck Protection Program (PPP), a $350 billion program to provide cashflow assistance to employers who maintain their payroll during the emergency; Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs), low-interest loans of up to $2 million that can be used to pay for a variety of expenses; Emergency Economic Injury Grants, which provide an emergency advance of up to $10,000 to small businesses and non-profits harmed by COVID-19; and more.

Chase leads to Dudley resident’s arrest

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

THOMPSON — A Dudley resident was taken into police custody after leading Webster Police on a chase through Dudley and nearby Thompson, Conn., according to Connecticut State Police.

In a press release, law enforcement officials said Kristen Wilson of Dudley led Webster Police on a high-speed chase ending in a crash over the Connecticut state line on Saturday, March 28. At approximately 4:58 p.m., Officer Sean Ebbeling witnessed a gray Dodge Charger turning onto Thompson Road driven by Wilson who was known to have a suspended driver’s license. Ebbeling attempted to pull Wilson over using his emergency lights prior to entering the I-395 southbound ramp however Wilson did not stop. She attempted to flee Ebbeling on the interstate.

Ebbeling pursued Wilson who reached speeds of 100 miles per hour. Ebbeling discontinued the pursuit after Wilson crossed into Connecticut and left his sight. Connecticut State Police were then notified of the situation. Ebbeling exited the highway on Thompson where he saw taillights in a nearby wooded area. Approaching the care Ebbeling discovered the vehicle to be Wilson’s. Ebbeling contacted the South Worcester County Communications Center and removed Wilson from the smoking remains of her vehicle. Wilson was transported by ambulance to Harrington Hospital in Webster for a leg injury. Officer Ebbeling and Officer Robert Ela visited the hospital where medical personnel turned over a small amount of Crack Cocaine and Heroin the had recovered from Wilson at the hospital. Connecticut State Police also reported finding around 20 different baggies containing similar substances.

Wilson was charged with several offenses including possessing a Class A substance and a Class B substance both with intent to distribute, operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, failing to stop for police, negligent operation of a motor vehicle, speeding, and marked lane violations. She could also face charges in Connecticut for narcotics possession.

Mango’s Wood-Fired Pizza Co. & Deviant Donuts to raise funds for Mystic Aquarium

MYSTIC — In an effort to join forces for the greater good of the Mystic community, Mango’s Wood-Fired Pizza Co. and their sister shop Deviant Donuts will be hosting a month-long fundraiser to give back to their neighbor, The Mystic Aquarium.

In light of the current situation with COVID-19, many local businesses have been forced to shut down. To help alleviate the distress caused from a loss of ticket sales at The Mystic Aquarium, Mango’s Wood-Fired Pizza Co. and Deviant Donuts will be giving back by donating a portion of sales from their pizza and donuts. Despite the restaurants also feeling the impact of the Coronavirus, they have been able to keep doors open for both takeout and delivery.

For the entire month of April, $2 for every regularly-priced pizza sold will be donated. In addition, for the weekend of Thursday, April 2 to Sunday, April 5, $1 for any of the “Under the Sea” themed donuts purchased will be donated. Customers can pre-order these donuts by contacting Vault Coffee directly. A minimum of six donuts are required for pre orders from Thursday-Sunday which can be placed immediately. Like other businesses in the area, Mango’s Wood-Fired Pizza Co. and Deviant Donuts are practicing safe social distancing guidelines and allowing at most five people in the coffeshop at a time.

“For the past ten years the Mystic Aquarium and their visitors have played a large role in our success. And during this difficult time, we’re committing to pay it forward,” says owner, Stefan Ambrosch.

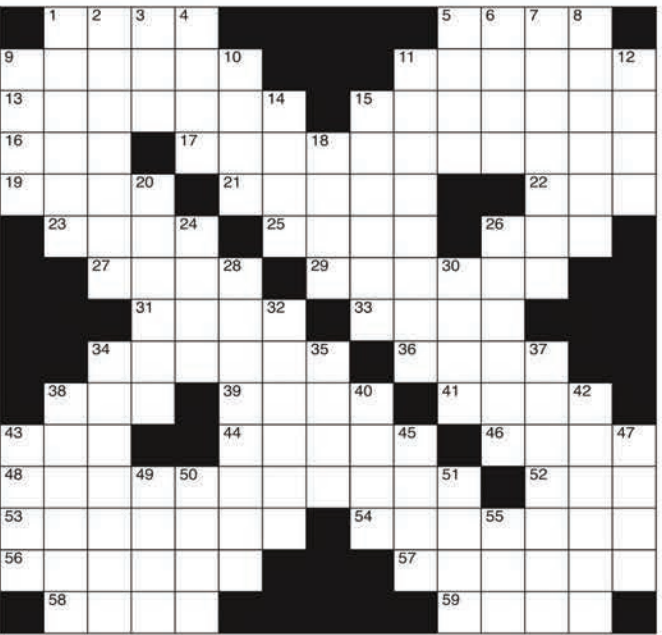

And the feeling is mutual, according to Roslyn Gilhuly, Mystic Aquarium’s Senior Vice President of External Relations, who said “Mystic Aquarium is incredibly grateful to be a part of the civic pride that exists in Mystic every day. Even more so, in times like this we understand how fortunate we are to be a part of this community. Support from our neighbors including Deviant Donuts and Mango’s will help us to maintain the high-level of animal care during temporary closure in these very uncertain times.”

Mango’s Wood-Fired Pizza Co. is located in the Olde Mistick Village and has been operating since 2009. The restaurant is owned and run by two local brothers, Stefan Ambrosch & Ben Hall. They live by their slogan “Real pizza, real good.”

Deviant Donuts is a small-batch gourmet donut pop-up shop located in their sister-shop, Vault Coffee Roasters. The donuts are all carefully crafted with the latest trends and interests in mind and are 100% Instagram worthy.

Anyone who enrolls before the end of the day Thursday, April 2, 2020 will have a coverage effective date of April 1.

The only way to sign up for this New Special Enrollment Period is by calling 1-855-365-2428. Individuals who experience a Qualifying Life Event (e.g. loss of coverage due to job change or unemployment) or qualify for Medicaid/Children’s Health Program (CHIP), can ALWAYS enroll online, in-person or over the phone and all help is free.

“Over the last two weeks, nearly 1,400 residents have been able to enroll in affordable, high-quality health insurance plans thanks to a new special enrollment period offered by Access Health CT,” Gov. Lamont said. “I applaud Access Health, the health insurance carriers, and the Connecticut Insurance Department for working together to extend that enrollment period so additional residents can sign up for health insurance. No Connecticut resident should have to worry that COVID-19 or another health complication will compromise their financial security.”

“We know there are still many Connecticut residents who need our assistance. I am deeply appreciative of the efforts by the Governor, carriers, Connecticut Insurance Department, and others to make sure more people have access to health insurance during the COVID-19 crisis,” said Access Health CT Chief Executive Officer, James Michel. “We are here to help and are extending the New Special Enrollment Period to accommodate the needs of Connecticut residents.”

“Every resident who needs comprehensive health insurance should be able to get it,” said Insurance Commissioner Andrew N. Mais. “The extended Special

“We applaud Access Health CT for extending this special open enrollment period,” said Eric Galvin, President of ConnectiCare. “Just as Access Health CT, we’re doing everything we can to support our members through this pandemic including extending the grace period for premium payment, expanding telehealth services, and calling our most at-risk members to help them stay

“This is still an evolving situation here in Connecticut and we are continuing to partner with state officials to help protect the public’s health, promote expanded access to care and provide peace of mind for Connecticut residents,” said Jill Hummel, President of Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Connecticut.

Access Health CT also reminds customers to update their income as they, or members of their household, may be able to:

Increase the financial help they qualify for or become eligible for increased cost sharing reductions to help pay for out-of-pocket expenses like deductibles, co-pays and co-insurance amounts.

Change to a different insurance plan in a different metal tier, that may allow them to qualify for cost sharing reductions that help pay for out-of-pocket expenses like deductibles, co-pays and co-insurance amounts.

Become eligible for Medicaid or the Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP)/HUSKY Health.

Access Health CT reminds residents of the importance of maintaining their coverage throughout the year, and not just during this public health crisis. It is critical that uninsured individuals take advantage of this opportunity to protect themselves financially and ensure they have access to necessary services.

More dispatches from the Spanish Flu pandemic

Due to COVID-19, the Killingly Historical and Genealogical Center will be closed until further notice.

As I write this, we are now into the third week of the Coronavirus Pandemic precautions and closures around the State. Schools, churches, and non-essential businesses are closed, and those that are open are operating under new safety measures with only 50 percent of the fire-code population of a business permitted inside at one time. When I went to the Putnam WalMart, only one entrance was open so employees could count heads; arrows directed the flow of traffic through the grocery aisles. Cleaning products and disinfecting products were still in short supply; however, employees were stocking shelves with toilet paper, an item much in demand. "Social distancing" has become a common phrase and if an individual has to be shopping, all are urged to stay at least six feet from others. Stores have markers and signs on the floors at check-out counters, and some have installed plexi-glass shields for the protection of cashiers. (If you find it strange that I am including this paragraph, please keep in mind that I should be recording history in addition to writing about only the past). Face masks are in very short supply, even for health care workers, but instructions for homemade ones are being passed around the internet.

My daughter-in-law Ashley Weaver asked me if I knew anything about the Spanish flu of 1918. I told her that I knew little, but I did decide to see what I could find. Keeping in mind that I could not use Windham County Transcript microfilms with the historical center and library being closed, I went to the internet. Fortunately I have a subscription to newspapers.com so I did find a few local articles.

The Oct. 10, 1918 Norwich Bulletin had the following about the Dayville section of Killingly: "The graded schools have been closed the past week, owing to influenza and grip." "Influenza patients in the village include on Otis Street Mrs. Hosea Green and Mrs. Moran."

According to deaths reported in the same issue, the Goodyear (Rogers) section of town was also hard hit with both children and adults being stricken: Theodore Forcier (15), a student at Killingly High School; Aldolphus LeDuc, a mill employee who lived in the boarding house, Rene Lamoureux, and an unnamed child. "It was stated during the afternoon that health conditions in that village are improving. There has not been a new case in four days, during which period seven deaths have occurred, and those who are ill are, in practically every case, on the road to recovery. The situation was such on Wednesday as to give encouragement that the worst is over."

Activities were being impacted by the flu in other parts of town. "Because of prevailing public health conditions, it was announced that the annual roll call and supper to have been held this evening at the Westfield Congregational church has been postponed." (Norwich Bulletin 10/10/1918; newspapers.com).

Fighting was still taking place during World War I, but influenza delayed servicemen from the Putnam area from departing for camp. "This is the day on which more than sixty general service men were to have left this city for a southern cantonment to begin military training, but the call has been postponed on account of the amount of illness in the camps" (Ibid).

I turned to the Connecticut history website for more on what was happening across the state. (<https://connecticuthistory.org/the-spanish-influenza-pandemic-of-1918/>). Unlike this pandemic, where the western portion of Connecticut has been impacted more quickly, Southeastern Connecticut was stricken first in 1918. David Drury wrote the following: "The port of New London saw the first outbreak in Connecticut. Between 600 and 700 influenza cases were reported in the city by the third week of September. About half of those stricken were service personnel, many of whom were lodged in private homes. "The entire city is under quarantine for men in uniforms who are not allowed to leave New London without a special physician's permit," The Courant reported. From New London County, the "Spanish Lady" (as it was euphemistically known) headed north and west, spreading across the state. Five hundred cases were reported in Hartford by September 21; Willimantic schools were ordered closed a week later. On September 30, students at Yale University were provided with muslin masks to cover their noses and mouths while attending public gatherings. By the first week of October, local officials in several communities had cancelled fairs, football games, and theater performances. October marked the outbreak's deadliest month in Connecticut, with more than 5,000 flu-related fatalities recorded. For four successive weeks, beginning on Oct. 12, deaths totaled in excess of 1,000 per week, reaching a peak of more than 1,700 during the week of October 19."

Drury noted that penicillin was not available since it was not discovered until 1928. "With the medical profession seemingly at a loss in how to treat the disease or prevent its spread, many households fell back on age-old home remedies, including camphor ('placed in a bag and hung from one's neck,' according to The Courant), onions (either eaten or worn on the body), whiskey, and prayer."

My late grandmother, Margaret Campbell Lyter, a 1914 graduate of the nursing school at the University of Pennsylvania and the only graduate nurse in the Dauphin-Middle Paxton, Pennsylvania area, nursed a number of patients during those trying times in 1918-1919. It is my prayer during this pandemic that all our health care professionals be protected from harm as they are doing so much to help contain the virus and cure the sick. May you all be blessed with good health in the coming days. Social distance, wash your hands frequently, stay home when possible, and enjoy the beauty of our very early spring!

Beyond the Portfolio Part 2 - How the CARES Act can help small businesses and hospitals

As we continue to manage the effects of COVID-19 as well as understanding the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act, Weiss, Hale & Zahansky Strategic Wealth Advisors is dedicated to keeping you up to date with information. This week's focus will be on outlining the CARES Act's provisions that relate specifically to businesses and hospitals. Many small businesses are being negatively affected by COVID-19, but the CARES Act is designed to help mitigate those effects to maintain immediate business operating costs, help pay employees, and stay afloat. As we discussed last week, there are rapid changes happening in the global economy. We are aiming to assist our community beyond the investment portfolio as we navigate these uncertain times together.

How the CARES Act can help small businesses
As many people know, small businesses have been seeing significant impacts due to the sudden decrease in consumer activity as everyone practices self-isolation and social distancing. Under the CARES Act, there are three main aspects directed at alleviating the effects of COVID-19 on small businesses: how to maintain immediate operating costs, how to pay employees, and how to stay afloat.

If your company is in need of immediate cash assistance, an Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) or Grant may help you. The CARES Act increases the accessibility of a Small Business Administration (SBA) EIDL to more recipients (e.g., ESOPs and sole proprietors). These grants provide an emergency advance of up to $10,000 to small businesses and private non-profits harmed by COVID-19 within three days of applying for an SBA Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL). To access the advance, you first apply for an EIDL and then request the advance. The advance does not need to be repaid under most circumstances, and may be used to keep employees on payroll, to pay for sick leave, meet increased production costs due to supply chain disruptions, or pay business obligations, including debts, rent and mortgage payments. In addition to the grant portion, EIDLs offer lower interest loans of up to $2 million, with principal and interest deferment at the Administrator's discretion. EIDL loans are available to pay for expenses that could have been met had the disaster not occurred, including payroll and other operating expenses.

The SBA is also offering federally backed loans under the Paycheck Protection Program, allowing small businesses to borrow up to $10 million and defer payments for six months to one year. Forgiveness for a portion of the loan amount may be available for expenses incurred for maintaining payroll, group health insurance, and certain preexisting debt and utility obligations during the eight-week period following the origination of the loan. One thing to keep in mind is that the amount of forgiveness will be reduced if there is a decrease in the business's total number of employees and/or a significant decrease in compensation to employees during the period of Feb. 15

In a patient/client’s home, staff adhere to stringent hand hygiene, aseptic clinical bag technique, and disinfection of equipment to prevent the spread of infection. For any patient, client or family member with confirmed or suspected COVID-19 infection, and for those with cough, shortness of breath, or fever greater than 100 degrees, staff will don appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE), including a gown, gloves, mask and eye protection. All current and new patients have been, or will be given verbal and written education on how to best protect themselves and others from the spread of COVID-19.

“We appreciate the trust our patients and families have placed in us to provide care in their homes. Everyone at DKH At Home is more committed than ever to improving and protecting the health of the communities and individuals we serve,” said Smith. As part of its comprehensive response to the COVID-19 emergency, DKH At Home’s HomeMakers program can assist seniors with social distancing efforts by helping them with shopping and errands, and is offering and subsidized shopping services for seniors with financial hardships. HomeMakers is also offering care management services for seniors. DKH At Home encourages individuals to take steps to prevent the spread of COVID-19 in their homes and in the communities. Volunteers receive coupons from the Recreation Department equivalent to the number of bags filled, redeemable for free ice cream cones at Bogey’s. Unfortunately, the designated day for French River cleanup is cancelled this year due to the Corona virus, since the setup of this event makes it difficult to maintain proper social distancing among volunteers. Thompson Together plans to get back to this event next year, and in the meantime, individuals are encouraged to clean the riverbanks on their own. New this year is an experiment called Nips for Holiday Cheer. Everyone notices the increasing number of glass and plastic nip bottles on the sides of the roads. Unfortunately, these small bottles are not included in the State nickel reimbursement program for soda and beer bottles, and our local legislators have been unsuccessful in getting them included. The Thompson Together Board of Directors decided to collect nips separately this year to demonstrate the bottles’ impact on trash on the side of the roadways. Seed funds for Nips for Holiday Cheer have been provided by the Thompson Economic Development Commission. To participate in Nips for Holiday Cheer, you must be a resident of Thompson. From April 1 to Dec. 5, collect and bag your nips, periodically dropping them at Town Hall, or another collection point to be determined later. Each bag of nips collected must be labelled with your name, contact information, and the number of nips in the bag. The volunteers will keep a running tally through the year, and following the last collection date

The Rev. Jane Emma Newall said the event was meaningfully to both those from Federated Church of Christ and guests from the community who participated. Folks were very moved by the experience. Some were in tears. One person wrote “We passed out palms, communion and hope on Dec. 5, each participant will be awarded a gift card to a local general retailer, in the value of ten cents per nip collected, just in time for the holiday shopping season. It is hoped that the evidence of the mountain of nips that will be collected over the next eight months will spur public pressure on the legislature to take action on this roadside scourge. Interestingly, the State of Maine already offers a five-cent redemption on nip bottles. For more information on this program, please call Thompson’s Planner, Tyra Penn, at 860-923-9475. In these tumultuous days, Thompson Together encourages residents to consider that getting outside to clean roads is a great way to exercise while remaining socially separated from others. The bonus is that you will leave clean roads behind you, and you are welcomed to join in. Call the Recreation Department at 860-923-9440 with questions. Stay safe.

Finding a silver lining

This editorial is being written immediately after our Editor returned from a walk around town. While we are all undergoing a complete change in the way we live our lives, and the reason is scary and horrifying, there is a silver lining. This coronavirus has caused a camaraderie among people that seems to break through barriers of religion, race, political beliefs, socioeconomic status or where we live in the world. We truly are all in this together.

During our walk, we saw entire families slowly strolling up and down side streets, with no real destination, simply enjoying the sun and warmer weather. It was nice to slow down enough to notice the cracks in the sidewalks, or notice the intricate woodwork on the old houses we passed. Seeing the community through a new, calmer, less stressed pair of eyes was interesting. While a cloud of uncertainty hangs above all of us, it's clear that despite the unknown, shoulders have dropped a bit, and we have been forced to slow down and just be present. These are stressful times, no doubt, but it hasn't gone unnoticed that the majority of people seem to appear more relaxed. [This, of course, does not include those on the front lines fighting this virus, to whom we say a heartfelt thank you.]

There are so many unknowns when it comes to this situation. We don't know when it will end, we don't know whether the virus will mutate when the warmer weather we've all be waiting for finally arrives, and we don't know how it will affect our economy or our livelihoods in the long run. What we do know is that, again, we are all in this together.

Strangers are stopping strangers (at a safe distance, of course) and having conversations that go beyond the weather. This outbreak has created a need for us to talk and to relate to each other for comfort, and to simply process what is happening.

While passing by a gentleman getting ready to grill his dinner on the back porch, we struck up a conversation about going stir crazy, sharing a few laughs and well wishes, and then we were on our way. People have slowed down enough to lift their heads from their phones, laptops, steering wheels and television sets to open their eyes fully to the world around them. There are more smiles and head nods exchanged. People are making more eye contact with one another, almost to say yes, I'm uncertain too, but we will be all right.

With nowhere to go aside from home and work (for some of us who also deserve thanks for continuing to put their health at risk so we have groceries and supplies to live on), priorities have shifted. People have used this time to really think about what matters in their lives. They have caught up on their reading, or re-visited old hobbies and house projects that have sat dormant for years.

Finally, this situation gives us all an excuse an excuse to just 'be.' Could it be that people can really benefit from simplifying their lives? How will things look when the world re-opens? We have a feeling that people will be friendlier and more appreciative of being able to clink beer mugs and raise a toast at their local watering holes. Perhaps people will find the value in slowing down.

We are living in a point in history that will live on in perpetuity. These few months will be read about and discussed for decades to come, long after we are gone, as we look back now and wonder about simple things like what it would have been like to live without electricity or a way to keep our food cold. We're not sure there has ever been a time when the entire society has shut down, when town squares look like ghost towns or something out of a movie set with no one in sight.

To those reporters and editors to come after us, we will tell you that these times are surreal. Despite not knowing what's going on and watching the news change every day, people are generally in good spirits and are finding ways to decrease stress and otherwise find some sort of joy.

Thank you to the Woodstock Academy community

To the Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to thank the entire Woodstock Academy community for its resilience, professionalism and support over the last few weeks. As you are reading this, we are starting our fourth week of eLearning, and to say that I am proud to be a member of this community would be an understatement. Throughout this process, we have spoken about having the same mission and purpose; it just looks different.

What we have witnessed from our staff has been nothing short of amazing. Teachers, support staff and guidance counselors have all stepped up to modify our program into an online format so that our students will not miss out on any opportunities. Teachers have retooled their curriculum to make traditional high school classes into online courses which many of our students will see in college. The guidance department has created videos for our community about the college process and applying for scholarships—no different than the assemblies we would normally have. Our para-professionals are working with teachers and students on a one-to-one basis so all of our students will have an opportunity to learn. The administrators have set the tone and provided unmatched leadership so that teachers can just focus on their students and content. We are not so naïve to think that everything is going perfectly, but we can assure you that because of the planning and dedication of our professional staff, we are adjusting and dealing with issues as they arise.

While the staff deserves praise, I have been most impressed with our students. Teenagers these days typically struggle with many issues, on top of those in the world of academics. As we prepared for the transition to eLearning, the students were always at the forefront of our mind. Every decision we have made, and will continue to make, puts our students first. The resilience and hardiness they have shown has been an inspiration. I have had the pleasure of visiting a few “classrooms” and observing what has been happening; while I can assure you it looks different, the learning, creativity and dedication of our students is still very present. Whether the student is sitting in Seoul, Chicago, or Canterbury, each student was engaged and doing their best to continue to experience an outstanding high school education.

To the larger Woodstock Academy community, I want to thank you for your continued support. Whether it was assisting us to get over 120 boarding students home within a week, or stepping up to collect and donate extra medical supplies to our local first responders, or to the countless other individuals who reached out and said, “What can I do to help?”—you all made a difference. Throughout this crisis we keep reading various quotes about what defines true character, and one of my favorites comes from William Shakespeare: “We know what we are, but not what we may be.” How lucky we are, to live in a community where so many quickly and quietly step forward to help others.

Our number one goal is always to keep our entire community safe. But, we have developed plans that may allow for some of the June activities for our seniors. This was all shared with the seniors through an online class meeting held this past week (visualize that). If we are allowed to return, we will have the best end-of-the-year celebration we have ever had in our 219-year history.

We know that The Academy plays an important role in our corner of the state. We also know that many people are proud of our program and storied history. Please know, that what we have seen from our students and staff at this time of crisis should bring a renewed sense of pride as to what the future holds for our beloved school and all who comprise it.

With Pride and Appreciation,

Trump’s approach has been too hands-off

To the Editor:

With a dire supply shortage of critical personal protective equipment, and with the White House taking a largely hands-off approach, many hospitals and community health centers have taken it upon themselves to coordinate with private individuals, to keep their hospitals and health centers from running out.

Because the Trump administration has failed to coordinate purchase and distribution of supplies, states are forced into bidding wars for protective equipment, with each battling another to buy up precious masks and gloves.

New York hospitals have found it easier to fend for themselves rather than rely on the Trump Administration. Using private corporate jets, New York's Mount Sinai Health System flew in 130,000 N95 coronavirus protecting masks from China – with the help of a senior partner at Goldman Sachs and a call to Warren Buffett. The Health System asked Goldman CEO David Solomon to call Warren Buffett, whose Berkshire Hathaway owns the private jet company, NetJets. Minutes later, the hospital was on the phone with NetJets Chairman Adam Johnson, who scrambled the aircraft for the mission.

Thinking outside the box, as he often does, Tesla and SpaceX CEO Elon Musk has acquired a trove of ventilators from China and shipped them to the U.S. for distribution

There will be Easter!

To the Editor:

There will be no Palm Sunday services this year, but there will be Easter! There will be no Good Friday services this year, but there will be Easter! There will be no Easter Sunday gatherings, but there will be Easter! There will be no Easter egg hunts, or family ham dinners, or chocolate Easter bunnies, or anything else that we celebrate on Easter for that matter, but there will be Easter!

Why? Because Easter is not an event, or a service, or a meal, or a hunt, or any of those things. You see, Easter is a Person, and His name is Jesus Christ. There will be Easter because just over 2,000 years ago God sent His Son to earth to live a perfect life for 33 and a half years and to become the sacrificial lamb for us all. As John the Baptist said in the Gospel of John, “the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world”.

But, it wasn't enough for Him just to die and be placed in a tomb. There is no power in death. There is only power in life, new life... Resurrection life! And so, three days later God the Father raised His Son from the dead to offer new life to all who would put their trust in Him. “For God so loved the world that He gave us His only beloved Son that whoever believes in Him will not perish, but have everlasting life.” — John 3:16

Jesus foretold of this death-and-resurrection event when speaking to Martha, the sister of Lazarus, just before bringing him back to life when He said to her, “I am the resurrection and the life.” Again, the resurrection of Jesus Christ is not just a historical fact, but a Person, “I am the resurrection!”... Jesus Christ Himself. And that's why there will be Easter!

As long as Jesus Christ lives in the hearts of men and women who have put their trust in Him...His birth, His life, His death, and His resurrection, there will always be Easter. I believe Peter said it best when he wrote, “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His great mercy has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.” 1 Peter 1:3

Don't let another Easter go by without experiencing a true relationship with God through His Son, Jesus Christ. There will be Easter...because He lives!

Keeping our spirits up in the face of uncertainty

I don't keep chickens, so when a beautiful red fox wends his way along the edge of our property, my heart beats faster at the sheer joy of seeing something so unexpected and magical. As Mr. Fox looks for his breakfast, I identify with his concern about the randomness of the food supply. He needs a good mouse or two. I need oranges and bags of flour. We are caught in a moment when our settled lives are more random than ever before. Rather than focus on what is wrong, I choose instead to count what is going well.

At 7 a.m., I tune in to our local radio station, a habit I've reactivated. At first, there is the highly professional voice of an announcer from a network service and then the familiar tones of local people, including the owner, and a long-standing reporter. The news covers town government, police reports, school matters and volunteer organizations. Except for a few arrests, the news is remarkably positive and short.

Soon, the station moves to programs. The owner compliments, cajoles and subtly directs guests to deliver their messages. Often, talk focuses of student athletes and charitable requests or achievements. Even now, even at a time of real sorrow, in an area that is far from well-off, the dinners, raffle tickets, food pantries keep going. I don't believe other places do it as well, and I feel grateful.

Moments spent on FaceTime with my children, grandchildren, brother and friends have taken on emotional currency. I can't smell the sticky, sweet back of the neck of my six -year -old grandson. When I see him again, he will resist me wrestling him to the floor to kiss him, but I can kiss his face on screen before he runs off. The twins know the sound of my voice and wave at my image. My brother and I talk about superficial things because deep thoughts are too bleak.

When unsettling ideas intrude, I go to my garden and throw myself into the rhythm of the soil. I think about the plants and shrubs I want to buy. Oddly enough, I don't have a forsythia bush. That's easy to fix. I long for a witch hazel tree as I love the early blooms and the distinctive smell. Friends gave me a pussy willow; which next year will be robust. My stock of Lenten roses has increased and I need low-growing evergreens.

My neighbor is outside these days working in her garden. Somehow, we are creating order in a disorderly world by pruning and raking, while looking forward to what nature brings next.

As I work, I'm listening to a book I loved as a child: “The Trumpet of the Swan,” by EB White, with the author as reader. White's voice is that of an older man with a New England accent. It is a fine story and a comfort even as I watch turkey buzzards roost nearby. I'm reminded of the Stew and Story program at a nearby inn. There is joy in listening to a good reader.

I'm grateful every afternoon when a folksinger friend shares one perfect song. With another friend, I take a deep breath and meditate or do yoga with her several days a week. Technology that makes us pull out our hair one minute, gives us gifts that connect us the next.

From the red fox, to myriad types of technology, we live in the familiar and the uncertain. As we keep up our spirits and our distance, we can lament the current situation and embrace ways to remain connected.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No shortage of Trump bashing

To the Editor:
It was noted in the Villager newspaper last week that the issue was thin of its usual content; however, it certainly wasn't thin of the same old, repetitive criticisms from the "no fans." The basic content of their letters have become as predictable as an Alec Baldwin sketch on "SNL."
Most notable was the mention that President Trump hasn't done anything to show "empathy for the sick and dying." But didn't he immediately sign the COVID relief bill as soon as it got to his desk? The same bill that was stuffed with unnecessary "pork" (added by whomever) and delayed by the House Democrats. Yes, the President could have vetoed the bill, but he signed it as presented, but then any effort on his part will be called out as a "little to late" action by the no fans and a subject for their continual moaning. Yes, the President should have acted sooner on this crisis, but to even suggest that he has no empathy for the sick and dying is far beyond a stretch.
I'd like to now acknowledge Ms. Wykes and Mr. Bedard as contributing Opinion letter writers. By now, you've both no doubt figured out what is most evident: what the no fans say is always an "on it" fact - but whatever a "Trumpster" posts is questionable and usually "demands a response." What the Trumpster says is "hateful and demeaning" - but they do nothing of the kind. (Really?) They don't belong to a cult - but those who support the President do. Their opinions come from free thinking individuals, whereas those of the Trumpster are one-sided and biased. But whatever you do, don't dare question them or their heroes (like Pelosi, Biden or Schiff, among others), because in return you'll only hear that whatever you present is either untrue, baseless and of course laced with "insults and slander for every Trump critic."

Anyhow, I'm now going to break one of the no fans commandments; if you want to call out an "idiot-in-chief," how about Nancy Pelosi? She is a true "do as I say, and not as I do" hypocrite who more than deserves the same criticisms that you no fans throw at the President! So what has she actually done to show any empathy for the sick and dying? I've asked before why is it that the democrats won't ever work with the President and the no fans basically said that "it's all his fault." (Any surprise there?) But whatever you no fans do (and taking into consideration whatever "level" you think you're on), don't get all soft-shelled on me and continue to sob about the "mud-slinging" that only us "Trump fans" (supposedly) do - because you're doing an equally good job of it as well! I could write a no fan response to my own letter because I already know what's forthcoming. (If only hitting the lottery was that easy.)

We love those letters bashing President Trump

To the Editor:
I've read the "Letters to the Editor" bashing President Trump with the name calling and accusations of everything; some are so farfetched, you just have to laugh.
We watched the Democrats try to impeach him, and we all knew what the outcome would be, in addition to spending over $3 million of taxpayer money. The Democrats probably knew this, but went through the semantics figuring it would hurt his re-election... guess what, it cemented his re-election. Even with this being over, now Pelosi and Schiff want to, under the pretense, have a 9/11 style COVID-19 investigation, but again, trying to put the blame of President Trump...you can't make this up.
Nothing will ever change in Washington until Pelosi, Schumer, Schiff and Nadler and the old guard are out of office. Donald Trump represents something different for a broad path of America that is serious about wanting a less intrusive government, a more robust economic recovery and leadership that protects our interests around the world and what we need to carry the country forward in the coming years. He represents America, not Planned Parenthood, not giving illegal aliens the right to vote, not creating sanctuary cities and not putting "pork" in COVID-19 bill, which delayed the passing of it.

The answer is that President Trump is better suited to shake up the status quo in Washington. There is only one person with the ability to continue to do it, Donald Trump. Despite all his faults, he is best suited to blow up the inbred corruption of the Washington-New York elites and the "good ol boys club" that have become millionaires putting aside what is best for America.
The Democrats supposedly are putting up the best they have to run against President Trump, and the best they came up with is Joe Biden. A 77 year old man who has been in politics 47 years, whose family and friends have profiteered more than any other politician, whose son has made millions from a foreign government for a no-show job, and he blames President Trump for everything, but that's the Democrat's way. Biden has so many gaffes in all his speeches and appearances and his hot temper, this is who the Democrats want and back to represent them...not America.
So continue to write all the negative letters you want, call him all the names you want, make up more lies than MSNBC and CNN, but in the end, Donald Trump will win the 2020 election, thanks to you and the Washington.

Christian contentment

To the Editor:
In our present day discontentment, we are made more aware of the general misery of the human race than ever before. Though there is a rare jewel called Christian contentment, which comes from both the reading and study of the Scriptures and the worship our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. In other words, it is finding delight in God's wise plan for your life and humbly allowing Him to direct you in it.
God wants us to be content; that is why Christ was crucified and resurrected on your behalf, done to make you content today. Remember Jesus saying, "It is finished." We have all we need, on this side of heaven. Let us celebrate together in solitude over the Easter holiday by reading aloud from the Gospels, the story from eyewitnesses of His death and resurrection [Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John]. Those of you who have a personal relationship in Jesus, break bread and juice, remembering Jesus' memorial meal - seek first forgiveness of your sins and allow His Spirit to lead you in repentance [1 Corinthians 11:14-21]. And, we can all pray for each other, using the book of Psalms in directing our souls and spirits with praise to our Lord. These are meaningful habits of godliness and righteousness. Happy Easter!

Easter blessingsa

To the Editor:
Quite a ride we've had these last few weeks, eh? Despite the anxiety, fear and disruption in our lives, we are all working together and trying our best to maintain a positive attitude and the belief that we will all be stronger for this pause in our very busy lives. It has been an amazing benefit from all of this and is reaffirmed in how we are treating one another. It is so appropriate that it is happening during this Holy season and a recurring theme to most people that I have talked to and interacted with on social media.
Blessed to have a comfortable home, some land to get out in the fresh air on and a river to roam beside. It is the first time that I have walked that river path in thirteen years! We have made some awesome memories and pics to hold onto. We've tackled some home and yard projects that have been satisfying and fun to accomplish together.
Thanks to technology, we can visit with our grandchildren and see their hopeful and innocent joy. In our one and a half year old granddaughter's newly acquired garbled language, she seems to be telling us "Mom, Dad, Bro and I are home together!" as she dances around their living room and blows us kisses. Facetime is our lifeline to her, her brother and their parents and their joy in being together is apparent. We have a blast connecting with our family, despite the real and physical obstacles that separate us during this difficult time. When this is over, our hugs and time together will be precious beyond words and never taken for granted again.

Easter is this weekend, and whatever your belief system, let's meditate on or pray that our loved ones, those on the front lines and our society will acknowledge the divine presence that exists within each of us. Let's continue to be thankful for so much, amidst so much uncertainty. Don't let fear freeze you from doing and saying the right things from now on to remain positive and encourage your loved ones, neighbors and strangers. We have been given a great gift to realize that we are all in this together and we will overcome much more than the virus going forward.
God bless us all and peace be with us, now and forever...

POSITIVELY
MOORE

I awoke at 5:30 a.m., started a fire in our darkened kitchen fireplace and am sitting in the quiet of the morning, counting my blessings.
My family is healthy and quarantined together. We are only missing my oldest, who is sheltered in Los Angeles. My daughter, son-in-law and my two grandsons are sleeping soundly on the floor above me. My youngest son is sleeping in the basement with our grand dog Walter. Our dear friends and my daughter's in-laws, Stu and Lynn, are here and I'm going to make my grandmothers recipe for biscuits and gravy for breakfast. I cannot describe the joy am feeling at this moment.

I think people often interchange the words joy and happiness as though they are the same. They are not. Happiness is a feeling you get from outside events and/or circumstances, while joy radiates from within. Your happiness is dependent on things or other people while your joy is only dependent upon you. Want to be joyful? Easier said than done? Start by counting your blessings.
Joy is from the heart.
I find my joy in my love of family and friends. I am joyful in making breakfast for my family. I get happiness from seeing them feel enjoyment from my efforts. I feel joy in writing. I'd do it even if no one ever read it. I get happiness knowing people do.
So, what is my goal in quarantine? Love my family. Reach out to friends. Write to positively influence others. Finish my book, "Carbon Hill." Spend more time in prayer and contemplation. My plate is as full as my heart.

What about you?
How many times have you wanted to do something, but you complain you have no time? How often have you thought you'd just like to have a little time to yourself, or just a moment of peace and quiet? Sheltering in place can make those wishes come true.
You know me as a weekly columnist, but I'm also an author. In fact, I think of myself as an author that also writes a column, and not the other way around. I need to get busy and finish my fifth book.
I'm told that Shakespeare wrote King Lear while in quarantine for the plague. When I first heard that, I laughed and thought, as an author, hearing that is a lot of pressure. But then again, No pressure. I'm just a storyteller. I need to dig in and finishing telling the story of the Tallman brothers and "Carbon Hill."

Make positive decisions during quarantine and put them into action!
Why waste time? What is that project you've always wanted to complete? Get moving! Write a book, build the model, complete the puzzle, write some letters, renew contact with those you've lost contact with. Explore the possibilities, then act!
And I do understand that some of you are afraid. I think we all harbor some level of fear and that's normal. Work to turn through June 30. Small businesses could apply for and receive loans to cover their payroll and other qualifying expenses starting April 3. The completed application form can be submitted to any SBA Participating Lender or FDIC-insured depository institution. For more information pertaining to the guidelines, including how to apply, visit https://www.sba.gov/funding-programs/disaster-assistance.

Another aspect of the CARES Act designed to help businesses are the tax provisions. Businesses that experienced a significant decline in gross receipts compared to the prior year may be eligible for a payroll tax credit of up to 50 percent of wages paid during the crisis. Only the first $10,000 of wages per employee would qualify for this credit, and eligibility for this credit varies. For example, those who receive the PPP loan are not eligible. The tax provisions allow taxpayers to defer paying the employer portion of certain payroll taxes through the end of 2020, with all 2020 deferred amounts due in two equal installments, one at the end of 2021, the other at the end of 2022.

Finally, with the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 (TCJA), businesses were limited in their ability to use net operating losses (NOL) to offset income. Under the CARES Act, NOL arising from the tax years 2018 and later may be carried back five years to offset income in such years. As a result, some businesses may be able to amend past tax returns and generate tax refunds that were otherwise unavailable. Speak to your tax preparer for specific guidance on how to best manage for your business.
Provisions directed at supporting hospitals
Many hospitals are trying to navigate sudden increases in COVID-19 patients, as well as a significant need for equipment to help protect their employees and patients. The CARES Act allocates over $140 billion in appropriations to support the U.S. health care system. A large portion is dedicated to providing personal and protective equipment for health care workers, testing supplies, increased workforce and training, accelerated Medicare payments, and supporting the CDC, among other health investments.1 Specifically, there is $100 billion dedicated to an emergency fund for the Department of Health and Human Services to make grants available to providers. Several provisions relevant to hospitals and health systems as businesses and employers may provide additional sources of needed revenue.

dent who said, “I don’t believe in God or prayer ... so will you pray for me?” I prayed for her until her crisis passed. (Let the contradiction of her question sink in ...) This too shall pass. I don’t know what’s in store for us over the next few weeks and months. I’m not a health care worker or government official. All I’m certain of is that this isn’t the end of the world. This too, shall pass. The world will survive. I also understand that the death toll is high and growing. Just remember, if you shelter in place, the odds of you getting sick are minuscule. And if you are sick and remain in place, you won’t pass it to others. I think this will fit into the category of “Do good. Be good.” Turn your fear and boredom into positive productivity during quarantine. Decide to make the most of this time and find both happiness and joy in doing something you have always wanted to do. Stay healthy. Don’t be afraid. I’m praying for you. ■

Robin L. Everburg, 59,

Robin L. Everburg, 59, of Woodstock, CT passed away at Day Kimball Hospital in Putnam, CT, on Wednesday, April 1, 2020. Robin was born and raised in Southbridge, MA, the first daughter of Ruth and Don Everburg. She was the granddaughter of the late Wilbur and Emma Smith of Woodstock and the late Bill and Ruth Everburg of FL. In addition to her parents, she is survived locally by sister Sherry and two nieces, Audrey and Erika Helmetag. She moved to Woodstock with her family approximately 30 years ago. Robin was an excellent student, taking much joy in learning. A graduate of Gordon College in Wenham, MA she attained an international award for excellence in a foreign language (in her case French), the only one in her class to achieve this honor. Robin partnered with her mother in the work of Robin's Nest Studio in Woodstock and became a very accomplished artist. Many homes in the area and beyond have her work. An avid reader with a special focus on American and British history, she had a personal library of hundreds of books. Bookstore visits were very high on her list of favorite things to do. Blessed with a prodigious memory, could recall virtually everything that she had either seen or read even decades later. Was always, when in doubt, go ask Robin. Robin enjoyed family times and particularly loved sailing on the family sailboat in RI's ocean waters. An excellent swimmer, her father soon learned never to get in a race with her in the pool. She also got special enjoyment from her work with Cornell University's Birdwatcher's program and inputting to them weekly her findings. During their inputting season, she could be frequently be seen hurrying to get her binoculars to most accurately identify the specimens. Another passion of Robin's was in the rescue and care of homeless cats. Over the years, she personally cared for over 120 of them. She leaves a most devoted gray angora named Smoky. Robing was very proud of her two nieces and in their accomplishments. Took much joy in their lives and hearing their stories. Also, a special thank you from her family to her friend carl Matson of Woodstock who was very much involved in Robin's life. A memorial service in celebration of Robin's life is planned for later date. A graveside service was held at the convenience of the family in Elmvale Cemetery, Woodstock, CT. Donations may be made in her memory to Paws Cat Shelter, 240A Route 171, Woodstock, CT 06281. Share a memory at www. smithandwalkerfh.com

Vasilios T. “Bill” Siozopoulos, 93

DUDLEY– Vasilios T. “Bill” Siozopoulos, 93, entered Paradise on Saturday March 21, 2020. Being predeceased by his beloved wife of 54 years Sophia (Kotoulas) Siozopoulos in 2010, Vasilios is survived by two daughters: Steliane Thompson and her husband David of Holden, and Despina Kiely of Dudley; his brother Theophilos Siozopoulos of Thessaloniki, Greece; five grandchildren: William, Elias, and Nicholas Thompson; Alexandra and Christopher Kiely; he also leaves many relatives and dear friends. Bill was born in Polykastanon, Greece on March 12, 1927, son of the late Theodore and Theodora (Tsiliminga) Siozopoulos. Bill was extremely proud of his Greek heritage, as a young man, he served honorably in the Greek Army during World War II; he moved here with his wife in 1956. Bill and Sophie were very active at the original Sts. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church on High Street where Bill served as treasurer on the parish council. Bill was a founding member of the new church constructed on Lake Parkway; he and his wife greatly loved their church community; they were always eager to lend a helping hand and provide supplies for church fundraisers, especially the annual Greek Festival. For nearly forty years Bill and his wife operated the former Mini Mart, more affectionately known as “The Greek Market” on Main Street in Webster, which he continued operating until just a few years ago. As proud business owners, Bill and Sophia helped define the true meaning of philanthropy; they cared for their customers as if they were family; they delivered groceries to the homebound during blizzards, they open-heartedly helped those with limited financial resources, they provided for their community while successfully raising a family. Bill was the quintessential hard-working Greek immigrant who worked earnestly to provide for and care for his family who he was devoted to; they were truly happy helping others. Bill and Sophia raised their family with the firm belief that kindness is the most important quality and that you can reach your goals with hard work and dedication. During the past two years, whenever Bill was seen in the community, he was fondly remembered for his kindness and generosity. Bill was approached by caring recipients of his kindness and even children of children remember him; he was a very proud, stoic, hard-working, family-devoted, and truly inspiring man who never hesitated to help anybody. As the outpouring of support from the community continues it is clear he has left an everlasting impression and will never be forgotten. Due to the current pandemic, private funeral services were held at the Sts. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church in Webster; Private Committal Services were held in Mount Zion Cemetery, where Vasilios will rest next to his beloved Sophia. Once the current pandemic resolves, a Celebration of Life Gathering will be arranged and announced. In lieu of flowers, please consider a contribution to the Sts. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church Memorial Fund in honor of Bill. The Shaw-Majercik Funeral Home, 48 School Street Webster, MA is honored to have been entrusted with funeral arrangements.
