Pokémon craze takes over as players try to 'catch 'em all'

RECREATION AREAS FILL UP AS GAMERS GET OUT AND PLAY

Mother and son duo Rita Flagg and Richard Sayle enjoy a bit of fun caching Pokémons at Webster's Town Hall, a local hotspot for "Pokémon Go" players to battle for a nearby gym, catch Pokémons and collect items from several nearby PokéStops.

Over the past two weeks, a mobile craze has swept the nation, and in northeastern Connecticut and south central Massachusetts, Pokémon fever is certainly at its peak.

On July 6, Niantic and The Pokémon Company, a subsidiary of gaming company Nintendo, celebrated the 20th anniversary of the massive Pokémon franchise and game series by releasing the mobile game "Pokémon Go," a real-time, location-based reality game that allows "trainers" to catch and train the imaginary creatures known as Pokémons by traveling to real world locations and interacting with landmarks and their fellow trainers.

The game has quickly become as controversial as it is popular, with the free-to-play mobile app being considered by some as childish and in some ways, intrusive, as the app has inspired some players to venture on to private properties to catch the elusive titular Pokémon — while many have defended it as a fun way to inspire exercise and outdoor activities and defend it as a healthy escape from reality away from the television.

SULLIVAN: TIME TO 'ALLOW OUR RESIDENTS TO ENJOY WHAT THEY DESERVE'

BY JASON BLEAU

DUDLEY — The Town of Dudley is putting its foot down in regards to its town beach following the Fourth of July festivities, with selectmen voting unanimously on July 11 to close the beach to any non-resident, and to enact stronger enforcement initiatives to ensure those rules are followed.

The move comes after complaints following the Fourth of July weekend were brought to the attention of town officials, with those complaints ranging from lack of parking for citizens who want to enjoy the beach to accusations of abuse of the property, including overindulgence of alcohol, and one report of someone dumping coals into the water after cooking. Selectman Steven Sullivan was the first to make his opinions known and felt it

BAR SEEKS TO HAVE SUSPENSION DECISION OVERTURNED

BY JASON BLEAU

WEBSTER — Despite serving its three-day liquor license suspension at the order of the Webster Board of Selectmen, the Polish American Citizens Club (PACC) on Harris Street is not giving up their fight for what they believe to be deserved reconciliation by the Board of Selectmen.

Following a hearing on June 13, the PACC found itself with the three-day license suspension as a result of incidents that occurred on April 14 when a group of students from Nichols College got a little out of hand. Accusations against

Town initiating online transaction safe zone

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DUDLEY — In an era where Craigslist, eBay, Amazon and other websites have become the go-to form of communication for those making odd-ball sales both locally and internationally, it's not uncommon to hear reports of attacks or dangerous situations resulting for an exchange of goods and services through such websites.

With that in mind, Dudley has taken a step to both encourage such sales and do so in a safe place where both the seller and the buyer can be confident in their safety and security. Selectmen unanimously approved the creation of an Online Transaction Safe Zone on July 11, where online buyers and sellers can get together in the shadow of the Dudley Police Department and the camera security of the Town Hall to make a safe and secure transaction.

The concept is the brainchild of Dudley's Economic Development Committee, with members Ellen Laprise and Todd Donohoe presented the concept before the Board of Selectmen. Donohoe said that the Economic Development Committee unanimously supported the concept in late June and read a letter from Committee Chairman John Brier detailing the advantages of the new safe zone.

"The safe zone would allow Dudley residents

Communication issues persist in Dudley

OFFICIALS CONSIDER POSSIBLE ACTION AS VERIZON FAILS TO RESOLVE ISSUES

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DUDLEY—Despite efforts to resolve major communications issues within the Town of Dudley, the town's Fire Department has found itself at a loss for what to do next as issues persist in one of the most vulnerable sections of town.

In May, Dudley Fire Chief Dean Kochanowski detailed the issues before the Board of Selectmen, where he noted that communication interruptions and other issues have persisted with the town's Southbridge Tool site over the past few months. The town has sought help from the service provider, Verizon, but the company has yet to initiate any permanent fix and patience among Dudley's emergency responders is running thin.

"It's probably our most remote site in town and one of our most important sites," Kochanowski said. "I know even the police department has had issues with that site as recently as this month. We've just shut it off. It hasn't worked in at least five months. I guess I'm just showing some frustration. It's effecting the safety of our firefighters and the safety of our police officers as well."

Kochanowski had sought assistance from outside sources, including Board of Selectman Chairman Jonathan Ruda who acts as Manager of Communications and Field Support for Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency, but in the end the chief implied that Verizon may be the one dropping the ball and that more resources need to be dispatched to their area to fully test the line of communication and hopefully resolve the issue.

"They need to have more than one tech come out," the chief said. "They need a tech at each end of the line and then they have to have one in each substation. I'm not radio savvy, but they need to have a person at each position so they can test the line appropriately and make sure it's working right and the radio guy needs to be there too because he takes care of the equipment. Verizon takes care of the line. We have these old copper lines that will cause issues with newer equipment and it's unfortunate but the town of Dudley just doesn't have fiber throughout the town. That's really the problem is the old copper lines but Verizon should be knowledgeable enough to correct the problem."

In May, the chief has discussed the possibility of moving to a fiber system, a move that would be quite costly for the town. Greg Lynsky, the director of the South Worcester County Communications Center in Webster, said at that time that the fiber system would probably be the best option for Dudley in the long run, but it would be costly. He also noted that moving to a microwave system could run over a million dollars for the town so any major shift would require quite a financial

Dudley opens bearing on purchase of Corbin Road land

BY JASON BLEAU
NEWS STAFF WRITER

DUDLEY — The Dudley Board of Selectmen officially opened a public hearing on July 11 to determine whether or not the town will move forward with its right of first refusal to purchase property on Corbin Road that has been the target of much controversy this year as the potential home for an Islamic Cemetery.

The 55 acre parcel of vacant farmland was to be the home of a new burial ground with permit applications by the Islamic Society of Greater Worcester being turned down in June as the town of Dudley decides whether or not to match the Society's offer on the land or allow the sale to go through. The property is enrolled in state Chapter 61A, which offers the property owner tax credits by restricting the land to agricultural use. In order for the land to be used for anything else it needs to be removed from Chapter 61A, giving the town its right of first refusal to purchase the property before anyone else by matching the best bid. While the Islamic Society's attorney Jason Talerman is contesting the decision in Boston land court, the town is moving forward with its right of first refusal process as planned.

The cost to the town would be about $287,000 and the town of Dudley has 120 days from July 1 to finalize its decision before effectively forfeiting its right of first refusal. Once the hearing is concluded the Board of Selectmen will need to vote on whether or not to pursue the matter further and if they vote in the affirmative the item will go to a town meeting and finally, if approved, a ballot vote for a Proposition 2 1/2 debt exclusion for the purchase.

Much of the conversation during the first part of the hearing turned out to be more technical than controversial. Corbin Road resident Richard Raymond sought input from Dudley Town Council Gary Brackett about a clause in the letter of intent to sell received by the town from current property owner Annabelle Moninski that essentially states that the notice of intent does not waive the property owner's right to transfer the land to the Islamic Society if the transfer is not for non-agricultural use, implying that the land transfer can take place as agricultural land with the Islamic Society apparently inheriting the burden of changing its use regulations. Attorney Brackett said he didn't feel this would be an issue and that he would communicate with Moninski about this.

That issue was presented through a letter by Conservation Commission member Matthew Marro who argued that the Islamic Society's offer shouldn't be considered because a land release under Chapter 61A prohibits contingency clauses. With that in mind the purchase letter and sale agreement shouldn't be considered a true offer according to Marro, an opinion Brackett said he would look into as well.

The entrance to the 55 acres of property on Corbin Road, which has been the subject of debate in Dudley throughout 2016. The town is currently considering its option to buy the land through its right of first refusal.

"What the notice of intent includes is essentially a reservation of the right of the property owner to raise that issue that this particular proposed use is not residential, commercials or industrial. The language of 61A Section 14 does include those three specific categories, but the cases that have been decided under the statute have addressed the removal of agricultural use to the broad category of non-agricultural use," Brackett explained. "So we've taken that position with the property owner and the property owner has filed its notice of intent reserving its right on that issue. So that's an issue that we have with the property owner and the Islamic Society as the potential purchaser. We have a right of first refusal and, if necessary, in the vote to exercise our right of first refusal we can do so without accepting that limitation."

The Board of Selectmen noted that they will be seeking input from other town boards and commissions before the continuation of the hearing later this month, but received the blessing of one committee right there at the July 11 hearing when Finance Committee Chairman Kerry Cyganiewicz took the microphone to voice his committee's stance on the situation.

"We thought, for the amount of land and what the needs of the community was and what the costs would be, the Board unanimously voted that we would give (the Selectmen) what they were looking for and our blessing to act on this to buy it. Our board just acts on financial things and we don't look at anything else and from a financial perspective this makes sense. The FAA voted unanimously to do this so the selectmen have our support," Cyganiewicz said, also noting that the Finance Committee had originally expected the purchase price to be much higher at about $350,000.

Dudley is facing opposition from not only attorney Talerman, but others as well with the American Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts also getting involved in favor of the Islamic Society of Greater Worcester's position that the town's utilization of the right of first refusal is out of line. The town has been issued a letter from Howard Cooper of Todd & Weld in Boston, who have also joined the case, to cease action toward the land purchase calling it "unlawful interference."

The Board of Selectmen did not issue any thought on the potential land purchase on July 11 and the public hearing will continue during the Board's July 25 meeting where a decision is expected to be made on whether or not to pursue the land purchase further.

St. Joseph School hosts year-end outing at Fenway

Courtesy photos

BOSTON — On Wednesday, June 22, students and their families, as well as faculty and staff from St. Joseph School in Webster held their year-end outing at Fenway Park. Three buses were needed to make the trek to Boston so that the group could watch the Red Sox host the Chicago White Sox. Although the home team did not come out on top, the group had a great time. Their school spirit, unique signs and special St. Joseph School T-shirts made them stand-out in the crowd and helped them get on Fenway's big screen. In addition, Home and School Association Chairperson, Beth Boudreau was recognized at home plate during pre-game festivities. It was definitely a night to remember! A big thank you to the Home and School Association and Saint Joseph Athletic Boosters for supplying t-shirts to all attendees; Dave Laabs at The Airbrush Shack for designing the artwork and printing the t-shirts; and, Dan Marcoux at Daisy Print for designing the great signs that the students proudly displayed throughout the game. Thank you for your continued support of St. Joseph School!

Nichols named a 'Great College to Work For'

DUDLEY — The Chronicle of Higher Education has for the second consecutive year recognized Nichols College as a "Great College to Work For" in its annual survey of 281 colleges and universities across the United States. The results were released July 18, 2016, in the top national trade publication's 9th annual report on The Academic Workplace.

Only 93 of the institutions that applied for the program achieved "Great College to Work For" recognition. Results are reported for small, medium, and large institutions, with Nichols College included among the small universities with 2,999 students or fewer. Nichols — which is the only Central Massachusetts-based college on the list — has 50 full-time faculty and 133 professional staff members.

Employee feedback was the primary factor in deciding whether an institution received recognition.

Nichols College won honors in three categories this year:

• Facilities, Workspaces, and Security: "Facilities adequately meet needs, the appearance of the campus is pleasing, and the institution takes steps to provide a secure environment."

• Tenure clarity and process (faculty only/four-year colleges only): "Requirements for tenure are clear, faculty members say."

• Work/Life balance: "Policies give employees the flexibility to manage their personal lives."

"We are honored to again be recognized by The Chronicle of Higher Education as a 'Great College to Work For,' as this substantiates the collaborative spirit of the Nichols College community and our faculty and staff's dedication to student success," said Nichols College President Susan West Engelkemeyer, Ph.D. "This recognition, for a second consecutive year, means that the high levels of satisfaction reported by our faculty and staff translate to commitment in their roles on campus and what they do in support of our students. Our campus community reflects the mission of Nichols College: to transform today's students into tomorrow's leaders through a dynamic, career-focused business and professional education."

"Great Colleges to Work For"

is one of the largest and most respected workplace-recognition programs in the country. The Chronicle worked with consulting firm ModernThink LLC to administer the survey and analyze the results. The survey results are based on a two-part process: an institutional audit that captured demographics and workplace policies, and a survey administered to faculty, administrators, and professional support staff.

"Nine years in, The Chronicle's 'Great Colleges to Work For' program is well known as a mark of a college or university that puts thought and effort into serving the needs of its faculty and staff," said Liz McMillen, editor of The Chronicle of Higher Education, the top professional source for news, jobs, and information for college and university administrators and faculty. "The colleges and universities that make the list are highly rated by their employees for creating great working environments, an important achievement that helps them recruit top academic and administrative talent."

The Chronicle honor comes on the heels of Nichols being nationally recognized as a "College of Distinction" for providing innovative, teacher-centered undergraduate education and preparing its graduates for real-world success. Nichols is one of only two specialty business schools in the United States on the Colleges of Distinction list. In total, the list includes 335 schools in the U.S.

Christianity Festival celebrates music and faith

CHARLTON — The Charlton City United Methodist Church was blessed with beautiful weather and a great turnout on Saturday, July 16, as the church hosted the 4th Annual Christianity Festival bringing together churchgoers and complete strangers to enjoy an afternoon of music and share in their united faith in God and Jesus Christ. Several musical acts made an appearance throughout the daylong event and the church and its community even took the time to honor first responders, presenting certificates of appreciation to members of the Charlton, Southbridge and Sturbridge fire and police departments throughout the afternoon.

VERIZON ISSUES

commitment on the part of the taxpayers.

Keeping in mind that this year has been a tough one for Verizon due to labor strikes and other issues company-wide, Kochanowski said he doesn't feel that is an excuse for their inability to resolve the issue while Dudley continues to pay for a line they are not using and that they desperately need.

"This isn't going to make me a popular person with the union people but we got better service when the replacement workers came," Kochanowski said, also stating that he is keeping records of the request for service and any communication between his department and Verizon. "I'm covering the bases. Right now I'd say ninety percent of it is Verizon's issue. Mr. Ruda has helped us a lot through other avenues to try and get us the help we need. We know what the issues are. It's getting Verizon there to fix it."

The chief said he would like to see Verizon give credit to the town for the year because the lines have been unusable for months despite repair efforts. Selectmen voted unanimously to send a letter to Verizon with advice of Town Counsel letting them know they are contemplating legal action due to an inability to solve the problem and the ensuing safety issues that persist.

In other fire department news in Dudley, selectmen also officially accepted the proposed ballot question for the construction of a new fire station at the site of the current station on West Main Street that will be included on the Nov. 8 presidential election ballot.

Third Eye Blind rocks Webster Lake

WEBSTER — July 16 brought a bit of rock n' roll to the shores of Webster Lake as Third Eye Blind brought their unique mix of modern rock tunes and covers to the stage of Indian Ranch. While not so much a mainstream name as they were when their massive hit "Semi-Charmed Life" took the world by storm in 1997, the band has maintained a devoted following on rock radio and brought many of their biggest hits to their recent appearance in Webster. Several band members took time to sign items as they made their way to the stage and the crowd was extremely receptive, singing nearly every word back to the band as they performed hits like "Jumper" and the aforementioned "Semi-Charmed Life," and tracks from their newest project, "Dopamine."

Grand Evolution led the way on the choral stage with great rock originals and covers to start off the afternoon.

Third Eye Blind lead vocalist and guitarist Stephan Jenkins belts out the song "Wounded" as the crowd sings along.

Beachgoers and devoted Third Eye Blind fans pose for a photo before heading to their seats for the long-awaited show.

Jessica Emery and David Menard of Southbridge made their second trip to Indian Ranch. The first time they saw The Beach Boys, but this time they enjoyed one of their favorite more modern bands, Third Eye Blind.

Guitarist Kryz Reid leads the way as Third Eye Blind takes the stage. The band opened with a melody called "Faster" before breaking into "Rites of Passage" mixed with a cover of U2's "With or Without You."

Emily Abbott of Bellingham cracks a smile as she enjoys the opening number from Third Eye Blind.

Third Eye Blind drummer Brad Hargreaves signs for a lucky fan before making his way to the Indian Ranch stage.

Eden Royal, on their first tour in the United States, presented some great originals to a very receptive crowd as the opening act for Third Eye Blind.

Pokémania is running wild

As I sat in my office last Thursday afternoon, little did I know that I was being stalked.

I was plugging away like every other normal day, answering e-mails, editing, typing and doing all the things I am paid to do. I didn't notice anything was wrong until a colleague came in and aimed his cell phone at me.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"Playing Pokémon Go," he replied nonchalantly.

Of course, I knew exactly what he was talking about, as the game has been in the news ad nauseam over the past week.

Suddenly, he pointed the phone at me and smiled.

"Oh look, there's one flying around right behind you."

Instinctively, I looked behind my shoulder, as if I would see something in real life. Instantly embarrassed, I played it off like I was joking and looked at his phone, and sure enough, there it was, a cartoonish purple bat flying around in the corner behind my desk. I would soon discover that it was a Zubat — for any of my readers that play. He was soon caught by my colleague with a silky smooth swipe of the finger. All was restored back to normal. Whew, that was close!

It was just another strange encounter with a game that has swept the nation, and our local area has been no different. Driving to pick up some groceries last week, I drove by two parks, both of which were swarming with men, women and children of all ages, with their phones out, either walking or hanging out in groups, swiping at their phones, and I can only assume they were battling each other for Pokémon supremacy. It was surreal to watch.

Pokémon is nothing new. I remember when the franchise was launched back in the mid-1990's. I was in middle school, and it took over my school much like this app is taking over today — only instead of cell phones, it was cards. Tons of cards. Overwhelming amounts of cards.

Now back then, I wasn't really into it as much as some people, but I'll admit, I dabbled. I knew the basic characters. I new the difference between a Charmander, Pikachu, Jigglypuff and a Squirtle. I knew the rarity of a Mew and knew what a Pokéball was. After all, it was kind of hard to miss, with everyone around you playing. At that time, I was more into sports playing cards, and I remember contemplating buying a pack of Pokémon cards or buying a pack of baseball cards, ultimately choosing the baseball cards. I guess my love for sports outweighed my desire to collect Japanese fictional monsters. After all, a middle schooler's allowance only gets you so far!

I never judged anyone for playing or collecting them though. I often would watch my friends battle each other, having no idea what was going on, but enjoying the competition of it. One of my friends gave me about 50 cards one time. They were probably doubles or triples of what he already had in his collection, but I thought they were fun to look at. I never once "battled" anyone, probably because my cards were far too common for anyone to want to win in a battle.

Fast forward nearly 20 years, and here we go again. Since middle school, Pokémon has continued to remain relevant, with countless video games and cards. In high school, I remember a particularly fun video game called "Pokémon Snap" for the Nintendo 64, where the entire point of the game is to point a camera at Pokémon trying to catch them in great photos. It was a surprisingly addictive game!

These days, it's a mobile app, which shouldn't surprise anyone. I have to admit, part of me, being away from the phenomenon for so long, doesn't really get the appeal, but there's another part of me that thinks it could be worse. After all, it's getting people outside (safely, hopefully), being social and being somewhat active. I'm all for that. I've heard the haters too, but at the end of the day, how people spend their time is their business, and I'd rather them play a game than get themselves into trouble!

First, it was cards, then it was video games, now it's augmented reality on a mobile phone. I wonder what we will be talking about 20 years from now as our kids and their kids are trying to "catch 'em all."

WOJNAR VISITS DAUGHTERS OF ISABELLA

Courtesy photo

DUDLEY — On Wednesday, July 12, Dudley Police Chief Steve Wojnar had the opportunity to speak at the July meeting of the Daughters of Isabella, Bernadette Circle 709. The social and charitable organization serves churches in both Webster and Dudley, and has members from various communities in the south county area. It was a very informative and enjoyable meeting. The society also made a donation to the Dudley Police Department's new K9 Program, which is scheduled to begin this fall. Chief Wojnar thanks those in attendance for the hospitality and their generous donation to support this new endeavor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Janet's Crusader's 5K Race/Walk a big success

To the Editor:

I just wanted to express my gratitude to all the people who helped make "Janet's Crusader's 5K Race/Walk" such a big success.

A huge thank goes out to the organizing committee: Julie St. Francis, Julie Winans, Maria Poirier and Tracy Ide, who managed to put the whole event together in record time. I'd also like to thank the Dudley Police Department for lending their manpower to help keep runners and walkers safe on the course. There were many local individuals, businesses and organizations who made generous donations to sponsor the race and many others donated great raffle prizes. Many Dudley families donated food, drinks and desserts that all the participants enjoyed after the race. There were at least 50 people of all ages who donated their time that day — handing out cups of water; cooking food at the post-race cookout; helping with the raffle prizes; and doing set-up and clean up. Finally, I was in awe at the sheer number of people who turned out that Saturday to participate and was humbled by the show of support for me and my family.

It was a day I will never forget, and the post-race coverage provided by the Webster Times was fantastic too! Thank you to everyone who had a hand in making the day so special!

Kudos to Selectman Leblanc

To the Editor:

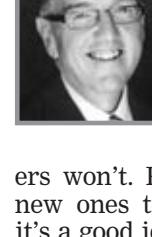

I'd like to take a moment to offer some praise to the freshman Selectman Cheryl Leblanc.

I recently attended a Selectman's Meeting, and during that time I saw her work firsthand. She dug the deepest when asking questions on the subject matter, and held a deliberative expression throughout the meeting that showed that whatever she had to say or whatever questions she had, they were chosen wisely and well thought out. Oxford voters made the right choice in electing Selectman Leblanc to office, and I hope she runs for re-election in 2019.

Be aware of challenges to managing retirement income

BURDICK

When you retire, will your cost of living decline? Some of your expenses may indeed drop, but others won't. Plus, you may have some new ones to consider. So, all in all, it's a good idea to think about ways to boost your retirement savings now, before you're retired. And once you do retire, you'll need to be adept at managing your income. But whether saving today or planning for tomorrow, you should familiarize yourself with the key financial challenges you will face during your retirement years.

Specifically, consider these areas:

Longevity — Obviously, the longer your retirement lasts, the more money you'll need. And you could be retired for quite some time. A 65-year-old man, on average, is expected to live another 17.9 years, while a 65-year-old woman can anticipate another 20.5 years, according to the National Center for Health Statistics. With this type of potential longevity in mind, you'll want to contribute as much as you can afford to your retirement plans, such as your IRA and 401(k), while you're working. Then, when you are retired and start tapping into your investment portfolio, you will need to create a sustainable withdrawal rate — one that doesn't push you into the "danger zone" of possibly outliving your resources.

Health care — Once you enter your retirement years, your health care costs are all but certain to rise, even with Medicare. In fact, the average annual out-of-pocket health care cost for a household between 65 and 74 years old is $4,383 — about 11 percent of total household spending, according to the Employee Benefit Research Institute. And these costs rise substantially for those over 74. To help cope with these costs, you'll need a reasonable amount of liquidity in your portfolio.

Long-term care — You may never need to stay in a nursing home or receive services from a home health care worker. But you are taking somewhat of a gamble if you don't prepare for these long-term care costs — because they are high. In fact, the annual average cost for a private room in a nursing home is more than $92,000, according to the 2016 Cost of Care Survey produced by Genworth, a financial services company. Medicare typically pays very little of these expenses, but a financial professional can help you find an appropriate way of coping with these types of costs.

Inflation — We've had low inflation the past several years, but it hasn't gone away entirely, and it won't disappear when you're retired, either. Even a mild rate of inflation can, over time, seriously erode your purchasing power. To combat the effects of inflation, you'll need to own at least some growth-oriented investments.

Market volatility — The financial markets will bounce up and down during your retirement years, just as they did when you were working. The big difference? You have less time to recover — and you don't want to withdraw from your investments when their price is down. However, you can help avoid this necessity by maintaining enough income-producing vehicles in your portfolio; these types of investments usually fluctuate much less in value than stocks and stock-based vehicles.

By being aware of these issues, both before and during your retirement, you can prepare for them — and preparation is key to managing your income, as it is in all walks of life.

Town Beach info

This past week, the Dudley Board of Selectmen took an important vote regarding the Dudley Town Beach.

This location on Merino Pond is used by many people during the summer months. Based upon some continued issues, the Board voted to adopt some use restrictions. I wanted to provide residents and others with this important information.

The Town Beach has been a hot topic of discussion for several years. There has been damage, trash, alcohol use, and other problems taking place over time. People from town, as well as many from outside the area, have come to town to use the beach. Due to limited resources, lifeguards and maintenance personnel only spend limited time at this location. A great deal of cleanup and repair must take place. Many non-residents have been using this location. This has caused problems for the area residents and beach users.

On Monday, July 11, the Board of Selectmen voted beach parking (in the lot behind the Mason Rd. School) and access is now restricted to town residents and their guests only. This will limit use for the people who it is intended for and hopefully promote responsible behavior at this location.

There are regular rules that apply to all beach users. They include no alcohol, open fires, or pets. There are restrictions on other activities. The beach is also closed to the public at dusk and any swimming, outside of lifeguard hours, will require people to use it at their own risk.

It is important for those from outside town, who have used this beach, to be aware of this change. We hope to maintain this location as a quality place for residents to use. The goal is for all patrons to have a safe and enjoyable experience. The Dudley Police Department encourages anyone who experiences problems or concerns at the beach to contact our department or the Selectmen's office.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com. The hard work behind rod and gun clubs

This week's column is dedicated to the late Walter (Wally) Pasicniak, of the Uxbridge Rod & Gun Club, and many others just like him from other rod and gun clubs.

They had the vision to purchase open land for sportsmen to enjoy for years after they had gone. Their hard work erecting buildings, clearing land and very often, making manmade ponds for the members to fish on could not be done today. They are just not making any more land. What is left is unaffordable by the average rod & gun club. Back in the 50's, the Uxbridge club lost their dam resulting in the loss of their trout pond. Most members quit the club and left a few officers and members trying to figure how they could save the club. The few remaining members banded together and gave an all out effort to save the assets of the club that they had worked so hard for over the years. After they succeeded in restoring the dam and the pond was ready to have trout stocked again, the members slowly started to return. New members helped the few remaining members bring the club back to a thriving and very active club.

Building a trap range and rifle range, the club was beginning to get back on their feet and more members were interested in joining the club. It was at that time a limited membership was initiated. Bob Platt was instrumental in building a trap house and field to shoot at, and in later years members voted to have the trap house named after him. There were many members that became officers and committee chairmen that managed to keep the club going and made the club what it is today. The club's waiting list for new members is constantly being updated, as new members try to join this very unique rod & gun club. Every member has a key to the grounds as well as the clubhouse. There is no bar in the club and all monies are generated by hard-working members. Of course there are still the same dozen or so members that do most of the work, but that is improving every year with more participation from new members. The club now enjoys a pheasant hunting preserve that has a bird-hunting program that is second to none. Dog training facilities are also fantastic for members that want to train dogs with out interruption from the public. Pistol range and rifle ranges are also available to members that enjoy the sport of target shooting or just sighting in there guns for the hunting season.

The club has a state-of-the-art kitchen that Wilhelm Huber keeps in immaculate condition and has breakfast available to hunters throughout the bird-hunting season, with the help of his committee. The kitchen is open for coffee every morning and a small group of members (old timers) meet to discuss numerous topics pertaining to the club and politics daily.

This writer has belonged to numerous clubs in the Valley for years and now enjoys a lifetime membership in four clubs. The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club originated in Whitinsville on the shores of the Meadow Pond. When the opportunity arose to purchase some property for land taxes back many years ago, they had a hard time convincing the older members that it was the correct thing to do. They now have a state-of-the-art clubhouse and close to 100 acres of land, trout pond and rifle and pistol range. It took a lot of hard work by the members to make the club what it is today, but members like Ben Green, Horace Bassett, Francis Joslin, Bob Campo, and many others got the job done. Today, their membership has grown extensively from the first days of the club's existence.

The Singletary Rod & Gun Club also had many hard working members that are no longer with us, but their dedication to their club has made it what is today. The Blackstone Valley Beagle Club owes a lot of credit to the late Jack Cunningham for his vision to purchase a large tract of land locked property for taxes in Douglas many years ago. If it was not for his hard work and dedication to purchase the new property, it may not exist today.

Jack met a lot of resistance from members that did not agree with him, but he was determined to succeed in forming a great beagle club for rabbit hunters. I was one of the charter members back in those days, along with number of other members like Bob Blakely, Pete Opperwall and Fran Magowan, who helped form the early years of the club. It was not long before the group had a home for beagle owners to run their hounds on snowshoe hare. Although the club members no longer have beagles, they do have a pheasant program and trout pond. The importation of snowshoe hare is no longer allowed, and the rabbit population is at an all-time low due to predators which all but terminated hunters' activities for hunting rabbits.

The Wallum Lake Rod & Gun Club, the Laurel Brook Rod & Gun Club and the 200 Sportsmen's Club in Oxford also have large tracts of land that were purchased years ago by members with a vision of private rod & gun clubs giving their members a place to hunt, fish and enjoy the great outdoors for years to come. There are many, many other individuals that contributed to their clubs becoming what they are today, and to them we say thank you!

All of the clubs combined now own a couple thousand acres of open land in the Valley, which otherwise would have been houses or factories on them. Numerous other rod & gun clubs exist throughout the state and we are very fortunate that sportsmen like Wally looked to the future, and preserved open land!

Rest in peace, Wally — and thanks for all of your hard work.

A celebration of Wally's life will be held this Friday, July 22, at the Uxbridge Rod & Gun Club headquarters on West Street, starting directly after his funeral at St. Patrick's cemetery, which is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. He will be buried with full military honors.

More helpful tips from readers

It's summertime and the livin' is easy, especially if you have some "tips of the trade" to halt the hassles of the season.

From money saving strategies to timely gardening tips, the following hints from readers of this column are sure to make life a little easier.

A READER SHARES HER STRATEGIES FOR SAVING MONEY:

If you suffer from allergies like so many of us do. Here is a quick and easy, and most importantly an inexpensive way to remove the pollen in your home. Pollen loves to gather on our window screens and curtains. And once it has penetrated the home you can find pollen scattered just about everywhere. Take a trip to your local dollar store and purchase a lint roller. The lint roller is sticky which makes it easy to roll your curtains and blinds and what have you. It is safe on most materials on couches and carpets too. These rollers usually include refills rolls as well. All for under a $1. Watch the pollen roll away.

A great effective penny pincher is to make your own ice packs. This can be done for very little money and effort and pays itself over and over again.

Start by purchasing inexpensive bacterial dish soap and Ziploc or freezer bags. You can adjust the size of the bags to your own needs. At your local dollar store if you prefer (or sometimes large pharmacy chains have this even cheaper) squirt 50 to 75 percent of dish soap into the appropriate size bag. I use two or three Ziplocs for added protection from leaking. It freezes almost immediately. The nice thing is it is soft and fits shapes easily on things like, knees, shoulders or back. Take it to work, the park, or the beach. Gives you instant cold relief for things like sunburns, bug bites, cuts and scrapes. And the uses don't stop there. Besides being an ice pack and keeping your items cold, it also works if you need to squirt a little on hands or knees if someone does get a bite or burn. Or just cleaning up your hands. And if you have a little pet like me and they like to come along for rides, just put one or two in an old pillow sheet. I leave this on the floorboards of car and my little dog loves to lay on it in hot days.

The truth about sons

When I found out I was pregnant with a boy nine years ago, I was filled with excitement.

As a little sister, I always wanted to have a boy first, as there is something wonderful about a big brother. I may have thought otherwise when I was younger and had my own terror ... er ... big brother, but I knew my son would be everything amazing and more. I was told how rambunctious boys were, how emotional yet strong they could be, how their imaginations could run wild and keep them busy for hours! What I wasn't told though, was the truth ... they can eat their weight in every grocery item you have, each hour, every hour, of every day ... for years!

We had a mom/son family who lived in the apartment below us. Once the boy hit about 11, I remember the mom saying how much he eats. My son went through similar stints but it was called "a growth spurt," "It won't last," and "You think that's bad? Just wait until he is a teenager!"

This young boy took my son under his wing, despite their 7-year age difference, and they loved playing together. One day the other mom and I noticed a pattern. Her son would knock on my door to play with Jordan, and slowly, slyly, ever so politely, make his way to my refrigerator on his way to my son's room. Jordan, who was only 4 at the time, wasn't as slick. He would simply go down to Michelle's house and knock on the door, and say, "Can Devin play with me? And also what do you have?"

Fast forward and my son is now 8. He still eats pretty much nonstop. I easily spend at least $100 on food, each week, just for him. I have spent my time studying nutrition so I have opted for snacks that will fill him up. Fiber filled veggies, lots and lots of protein, and healthy grains. This morning, for example, I made him a "sushi roll," a wrap with hummus (I make my own), two pieces of deli chicken breast, shredded carrots, lettuce, tomato, and pepper. I

Both my kids also have the "I get a cookie from the bakery" smile down pat (God bless those bakery workers, I swear my kids are the ones who ask for sample cookie the most), and the ever-so-amazing sample lady. My son has no qualms going back for more, and more, and more.

I make my way through the grocery store, picking out good healthy foods, but also fillers like graham crackers and fruit snacks, while I am health conscious. I still can't afford my kids' appetites. We make our way to the checkout line, and I thank my lucky stars I made it once again on a grocery store trip alive. Get to the car and get home, which alone is about a 45-minute process.

Once I get home all I really want is a nap, but instead I feed my kids and plan something to wake us up like going outside and playing. I feed my kids again ... and again ... finally get them settled for an hour of relaxation, and while I have my hands full of laundry, my beautiful, smart, amazing, gluton of a son comes up to me...

"Mommy, I'm hungry. Like really, really hungry."

"Of course you are."

Oxford's 'big banging bats' come alive to win state title, advance to Eastern Regionals

BY NICK ETHIER
SPORTS STAFF WRITER

Ever since the Oxford Little League Senior Division All-Star baseball team managed to beat Southborough once (4-3) and Charlton twice (5-4 and 7-4) in close fashion to win the District 5 championship, the local nine — which includes members from Leicester — have been on an offensive tear throughout the Sectional and State tournaments.

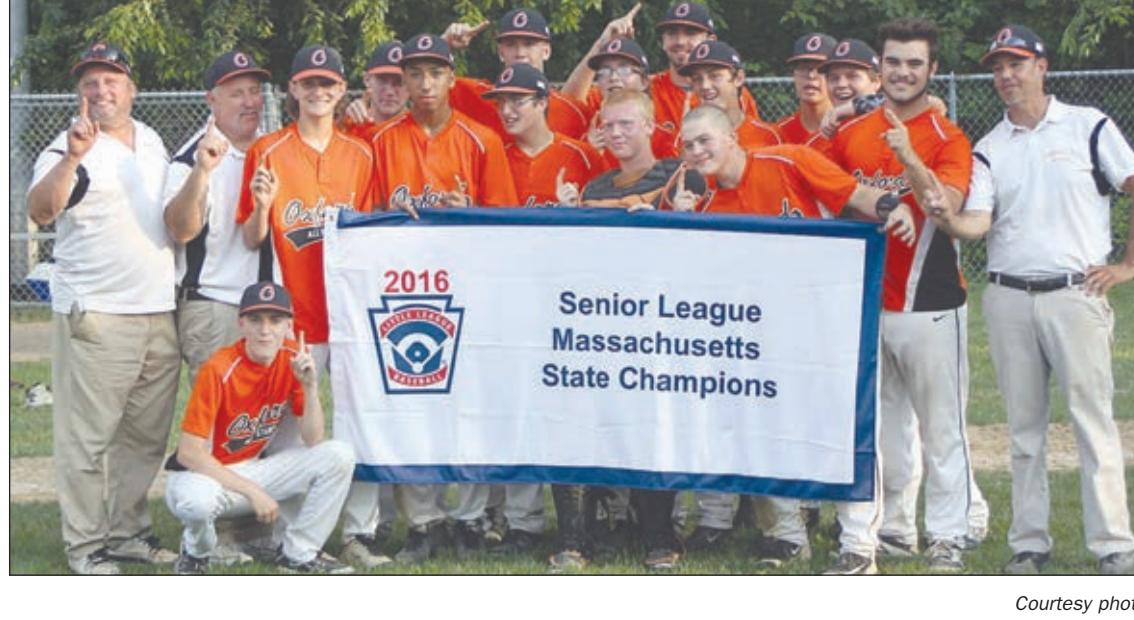

In fact, Oxford has scored in double figures all six times, averaging 13.33 runs per contest en route to winning the state championship last weekend.

"From top to bottom we have an absolute killer lineup," explained manager Jimmy Purrett. "We call them the big banging bats."

Purrett was quick to mention that each member of the team contributed throughout the run to the state title.

"Some nights it was the top that did a lot of damage," he said. "Other nights it was the middle of the lineup. Other nights it was the bottom that provided a lot of offense. For the most part it's been a complete team effort."

The Oxford Little League Senior Division All-Star baseball team recently captured the state championship over Wakefield.

Sectional tournament with a 14-2 victory over Westfield on July 6, a 13-2 triumph versus Plymouth on July 9 and a 12-2 decision against Swansea on July 11.

Although the run-producing numbers immediately jump out, Oxford's pitching and defense was right there as well.

"We were building our confidence and I told these kids, 'pedal to the metal,'" explained Purrett.

And although Oxford lost Game 1 of the state championship series versus Wakefield (18-12) at Locke Field in Billerica on Saturday, July 16,

Purrett's club scored seven runs in the final inning to not only make the final outcome closer, but to build confidence for later in the day when they played Game 2.

"I wouldn't let those kids quit," said Purrett.

He called the last inning Game 1 rally a "wake-up call" and a "huge jumping point for us in the last two games."

In Game 2, Oxford rolled to a 16-2 victory. Then, in the deci-ing Game 3 on Sunday, July 17, Oxford again played solid baseball to pull out a 13-3 win.

"The kids were overjoyed," Purrett said of winning the state title. "The kids worked so hard and I'm so proud of them. I've coached these kids since they were T-ballers and I've had almost all of them over for sleepovers. They're a tight-knit group. It's just a joy to coach — just a pleasure."

Purrett added: "Pitching was phenomenal. Defense was phenomenal. It works together as a unit."

The "big banging bats" have used the mottos "Rock the house" and "Train's rolling" as rallying cries, and Oxford's train will be rolling to Thorofare, N.J., site of this year's Eastern Regional, which begins on Friday, July 22.

"I want to see if we can cause some damage down there," said Purrett. "We have proven that we are the best in the state this year."

Purrett added that this title was the fifth state championship in Oxford Little League's history.

"For a little town, we've got a big bite. I want to see what we can cause for damage," he concluded.

Oxford High hosts inaugural Summertime Volleyball Clinic

BY GREG BARLOW
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

OXFORD — Approaching just its second season varsity volleyball season as a member of the Southern Worcester County League, Oxford High is already making an on-court regional impact.

A total of 21 girls, representing five local high schools, filled the gymnasium to prepare for their upcoming volleyball seasons. July 11-14 marked the inaugural Summertime Oxford Volleyball Clinic, where participants practiced and developed their volleyball skills and knowledge from 8 a.m. to noon.

Joe Cicero, head coach of the Lady Pirates' fall season varsity team, believes the first time hosting the summer clinic was a success.

"Volleyball is such a fun sport to play as evident with the growth in number of high school programs in Central Mass.," he said. "Unlike other sports, many girls don't start playing until they reach high school. With so many new teams in the Southern Worcester County area, it was great for the town of Oxford to offer this clinic. Everyone who attended improved their skills, prepared for the season ahead, and most of all, had lots of fun."

The list of participants consisted of a well-balanced range of new and experienced student-athletes from Oxford High, Shepherd Hill Regional, Bay Path Regional, Tantasqua Regional and Marianapolis Prep.

Attendees worked on their passing, setting, serving, hitting, digging, footwork, rotations, conditioning and numerous technical aspects of volleyball. Toward the end of each day, the group built up to a full-match simulation.

and business owners who buy and sell on Craigslist, eBay and other online exchange sites the ability to conduct their transactions in the parking lot or lobby areas of the police department under surveillance," Donohoe read. "The parking lot and lobby areas are monitored by staff and security cameras 24 hours a day and are well lit in the evening. Meeting in the Police Department helps reduce any potential danger to the seller or seller's family and property."

The new safe zone will in no way be a requirement, but rather an option for people to utilize if it will make them feel more comfortable when exchanging goods and money in a public area. Police Chief Steven Wojnar called the idea a great concept that he and his department support.

"I think it's a fine idea. It shouldn't really be too much of an inconvenience for anybody and certainly provides a safe opportunity for people to do those things," said the chief. "If we could just work to establish where exactly we're going to put things then I don't see a big issue with it. I think it's a plus."

Donohoe said he and his colleagues on the Economic Development Committee believe the idea is a win-win. It encourages online sales in the local area and also provides a safe and comfortable environment to ensure buyers and sellers alike they won't be hurt, attacked or taken advantage of with no one around the assist in a dangerous situation.

"The main purpose of why we want to put this together is to really encourage e-commerce. Our mission and why we are here is to help the economic development growth in Dudley and a lot of folks nowadays to buy and sell a lot of things online," said Donohoe. "A few things we would keep in mind is that transactions apply to legal ones only. Best practices are suggested to make transactions during daylight hours and while nighttime hours are not prohibited meeting a stranger during daylight hours is wisest. The interaction from police officers varies with each department. Most departments have little to no oversight of the transactions. Police are not usually expected to supervise the transactions, confirm identities or check items and ensure authenticity and that the items are not stolen."

Donohoe also noted that if a seller or buyer refuses to meet at the police department that in itself could be a telling sign to the person on the other end of the deal that the transaction may not be in their best interest if the seller's reputation does not precede them.

"If you're trying to sell something online or conduct a transaction and someone refuses to meet at the police department because they know they're under surveillance my guess is that would probably stop a potential crime to that effect," he said.

Last week the Worcester Mass Fury, a semi-pro football team, matched up against the Eastern Mass Seminoles. The local team won a 30-15 decision.

Trailing 7-2 in the first quarter, the Mass Fury marched 58 yards in six plays, capped off by a Brett Anctil (Shepherd Hill Regional graduate) 12-yard inside run. After the conversion Worcester led 10-7 and never trailed again.

Anctil picked up his second touchdown on an 8-yard outside run. Anctil then converted the two-point attempt, making it 18-7 with 7:27 left in the half, and the Fury would later go on to lead 30-7 at the half.

LITTLE LEAGUE JUNIOR DIVISION SOFTBALL

Charlton wins another state championship, Eastern Regionals up next Charlton's Kiley Wong-Li helped her team reach the state championship series by pitching and winning the deciding sectional final game against Worcester, a 17-5 win.

BY NICK ETHEIR
SPORTS STAFF WRITER

Winning has become commonplace for most of the girls on the Charlton Little League Junior Division All-Star softball team. In fact, following Charlton's state championship this past weekend, a few of them have won four straight state titles dating back to their play in the Major Division.

"They're a great bunch of kids," explained manager John Snyder of the 13 and 14 year olds via telephone on Sunday, July 17, a day after capturing the state title. "They've been playing softball so long. This is repetition for them. Even practice we're not in a teaching mode, we're just working them. We'll throw batting practice and the way they're hitting there's not much teaching them."

In fact, Charlton has scored 54 runs during their four-game postseason winning streak. That 13.5 runs per game average helped the unopposed District 5 champions top Worcester, the District 4 representative, 13-3 and 17-5 for the Sectional championship. Then, in the state championship series versus Wyoma Little League of Lynn, they continued their offensive explosion with 13-4 and 11-1 victories.

The state final series was played Saturday, July 16 at Woburn's Gonsalves Park. Snyder added that his entire team contributed to the victories.

"Right down the line," he said. "My first maybe seven kids are more experienced and they're hitting and scoring at a higher pace, but that doesn't mean the kids aren't participating. They're doing a great job, too."

Cayley Fagan took to the pitching circle for both games versus Wyoma in the intense mid-90 degree heat.

"Cayley is a workhorse," explained Snyder. "She just kept going. She actually pitched better in the second game than in the first."

Snyder said that pitcher Alaina Plourde "was ready to go," but that Fagan worked around "a real bad inning...in the first game...and after that she just settled down and that was it."

The second victory, 11-1, went just five innings before the 10-run mercy rule went into effect.

Next up for Charlton, which also includes athletes from Dudley and Webster, is the Eastern Regionals in Orange, Conn., the same location that the team visited last summer.

Back in 2015, Charlton advanced to the New England championship game — the winner then faced the Mid-Atlantic champ for the right to play in the Junior League World Series — but lost a 2-1 decision and had runners in scoring position in the final inning.

"Kind of like unfinished business," Snyder said of playing in the Eastern Regionals again. "We felt like we should have won New England — we just couldn't get the runners across."

This year's Eastern Regionals gets going on Friday, July 22 when Charlton plays at 12:30 p.m. The team has set up a gofundme page at <http://gofundme.com/2ext74k> to help offset the costs of lodging.

After many years of trying to add Webster Little League players to Charlton Little League's All-Star squad, which also includes athletes from Dudley, the deal was sealed this summer, and it helped the Senior Division team advance all the way to the state championship series.

"We've been approached by Charlton and Dudley for three years now to form this alliance," said team manager Ed Johns of Webster. "We saw that there would be plenty of writing on the wall for our Webster girls to play."

The team, which consists of girls aged 15 and 16, won the District 5 championship by defeating Spencer-East Brookfield two-games-to-none in a best-of-three series. The final scores were 8-0 and 6-3.

In the 8-0 victory, played June 18 in Webster, Madison Johns pitched a no-hitter with 15 strikeouts. She hit one batter, but catcher Ashley Millett threw her out trying to steal second base. Johns was 2 for 3 at the plate, while Millett scored two runs. Gwen Gould went 2 for 3 and scored a run.

The Webster-Dudley-Charlton alliance then won the second game on June 20, also in Webster. Alyssa Ward was the winning pitcher, while Johns was 3 for 3. Hailey Delphia and Millett both had a hit and a pair of RBIs.

The team then went unopposed in the Sectionals to reach the state championship series.

"It takes a lot to get there," said Ed Johns. "We played a pretty good Spencer team to get there."

Webster-Dudley-Charlton traveled to Woburn's Gonsalves Park on Saturday, July 16 to play Peabody for the state title and the right to advance to the Eastern Regionals. There, Peabody ended the local team's season with 8-1 and 4-0 victories.

"I'm sure they're going to compete well in a Regional platform," said Ed Johns. "We've seen a lot of those girls in travel ball."

In the Game 1 loss, Madison Johns pitched and struck out 13. Karina Provost went 2 for 3 at the plate and scored her team's run. Delphia went 1 for 3 and drove Provost in.

Catcher Ashley Millett proudly displays her state finalist medal.

Then, in Game 2, Ed Johns said that his team "actually hit the ball very well but couldn't string anything together. We stranded runners in five of the seven innings."

He added: "our pitcher, Alyssa Ward, threw a five-hitter."

Millett went 2 for 3 at the plate, while Delphia, Ward and Madison Johns each added base hits. On the defensive side, Olivia Houlihan had five putouts — including two web gem type catches — and an assist in center field.

Despite the team's season ending in the state championship series, Ed Johns is already excited for next summer, as all but one of his players will be eligible to return to Senior League should the "alliance" be intact in 2017.

"We will have a pretty loaded text next year if we can pull it off and put it together," he concluded.

Pokémon app unites local gamers from around area

sion. Regardless of these sentiments, it appears the game has earned a massive fan base in the local area with locations in Putnam, Killingly, Webster and other surrounding towns becoming hotspots from trainer meet-ups and interaction within the game.

Stonebridge Press Staff Writer Jason Bleau met a few trainers while playing the game himself throughout the region to better understand why this mobile phenomenon has become so popular. Devon Wetherbee, of Thompson, is not only a long-time Pokémon fan but a member of Team Instinct, one of three teams that make up the "Pokémon Go" pantheon of players. He is one of countless players who congregate regularly at Rotary Park in Putnam, the location of at least four PokéStops, locations where players can stock up on items and even use special in-game devices to lure Pokémons to their location. Wetherbee said he enjoys being able to take a game he has played for much of his life and enjoy it in a brand new way.

"I find it funny that everyone just gets together like this out of nowhere. I drove by this park so many times going back and forth to school and no one was here, and now it's packed," Wetherbee said. "It's the best spot to catch Pokémons in Putnam. It's more than just collecting the Pokémons too, it's competitive and there's a lot of strategy to it as well."

Brian Shea, of Rhode Island, took his wife and son to Rotary Park to enjoy some Pokémons hunting while visiting family in Putnam. Shea was in his late teens when the first Pokémons games were released in the United States and said he understands the obscurity of the game's popularity, but still believes it's a fun pastime for him and his family to enjoy.

"I'm not above having a little fun with it. I know the game brings some controversy with people walking around with their phones and the whole 'zombie' thing, but as far as I'm concerned the world needs a little more fun and it's a good excuse to get out and get active," Shea said. "We're here having a great time, laughing about stuff and seeing landmarks we've never seen before. As far as I'm concerned, it's very positive."

While enjoyable to many, the game has been blamed for several occurrences nationwide, including car accidents, property damage and injuries due to a lack of attentiveness. Police departments across the country have warned commuters not to use the app while behind the wheel and the game has re-sparked debates about mobile phone use, with many police departments embracing the game but also stepping up enforcement if players are caught using the app while behind the wheel.

Still, these criticisms haven't slowed the game's still growing popularity one bit. In Webster, the Town Hall and nearby monuments have become a hot spot for "Pokémon Go" activity. Mother and son duo Rita Flagg and Richard Sayle were just a few of many who started frequenting the location after the game's release. For Sayle, the game is a dream come true.

"Everyone's dream when they've played Pokémons on the handheld systems was to be able to go out and catch Pokémons themselves away from the game cartridge," Sayle said. "Being able to do it like this is an awesome experience for us because it's kind of a dream come true, a fantasy we get to live. It makes everyone come out and they all get to notice things that weren't there before and meet people they didn't know before. It's an aspect of playing a game that not many other games have implemented before."

Rita Flagg said that "Pokémon Go" is actually not the first game they've played that embraces the concept of exploring different locations for benefit. Developer Niantic had previously produced a game called "Ingress" utilizing a similar format with "Pokémon Go" inheriting many aspects of its predecessor and adding the Pokémons-based features during development. Flagg said after growing up in Webster she didn't realize how much the town had to offer until her and her son took the time to walk around and look for the different locations marked on both the "Pokémon Go" and "Ingress" maps.

"Pokémon Go" players search for the titular characters in Putnam's Rotary Park, the location of several PokéStops and a hot spot for "Pokémon Go" trainers throughout the region to gather to play the game.

"You know the big monuments but sometimes you can miss those veteran wreaths and things like that on the corner that you don't pay attention to the thousand times you go by it on the way to the lake or work. I relearned the town I grew up in," Flagg said. "It encourages the kids to get out of the house. It makes exercising and walking fun. Most people hunt in packs with two or three friends and it encourages group activity instead of isolation like how a lot of other games are designed in front of the television. My mother, who is 60 years old, plays with her grandsons too, and they went walking the other night through town. She's having a great time with it and making memories and it's all after work and after dinner. It's a lot of fun because we have three generations doing it."

Whether you appreciate it or find it to be a bizarre trend there's no denying that "Pokémon Go" has certainly left quite the mark in a very short time. With updates reportedly on the way to incorporate trading and one-on-one battles in the near future, the sky seems to be the limit for a mobile experience that is taking the nation and the world by storm.

Selectmen makes call to close town beach to non-residents

was time to make a change.

"I spoke to a couple of the abutting residents down there and I just want to state that one of them told me they're very pleased with the level of response they're getting from police," Sullivan said. "It's time for us to really step up. We've tried everything we can. We try to be a good neighbor and a good host, but it's very apparent. If you went down there July 5 to see what people are doing, and I'm not saying it's all non-residents, but it's time for us to really take a firm hand to allow our residents to enjoy what they deserve."

Dudley Police Chief Steve Wojnar said that the beach officially opened on July 1, just in time for the holiday, and that different patrols were active over the course of that weekend. Officers usually take the time to help the lifeguards and others close up the beach after hours as well and also spend time monitoring the parking area. According to the chief officers noted two days where most of the vehicles in the lot were non-residents, easily determined by running the plates or in some cases seeing the plates weren't from Massachusetts at all.

"On one day there were 22 vehicles with one town resident listed and the other day had 18 and three residents. You're seeing people come in from Southbridge and Worcester and Connecticut. We've gotten phone calls from people wanting to come down and use the free beach," the chief told selectmen. "We have limited resources with both cleanup and patrolling of the beach. It puts a lot of pressure on the lifeguards that are there too with out-of-town people there in large crowd. People consume alcohol and we're trying to crack down on that. It's time that if this location is going to function that it functions for the town residents."

Town Administrator Greg Balukonis said it's unfortunate that people from outside the town seem to believe the beach is a "free beach," when in reality it may cost nothing to get in, but it costs taxpayers money to maintain and clean up when those who come in from outside the town borders make it a mess.

"The beach isn't free. People say 'free beach' but the taxpayers of Dudley pay for that beach. They appropriate $7,500 a year or a little more to run the beach. It's the most cost effective beach operation that exists. We don't have parking lot attendants. We have lifeguards and that's our staff," Balukonis said.

"Another point is we've become a victim of social media. We get phone calls about the free beach and where can we go drinking on the beach. We've seen posts about it. That level of activity has increased and that's part of the reason you've seen this."

While everyone in attendance seemed to understand that it's just as possible Dudley's own residents could make a mess of the beach as well, the fact that the Dudley taxpayers themselves pay to maintain it makes a big difference and they hope the town's users would respect the property a little bit more than the average beachgoer. The fact that the "free beach" status makes Dudley's town beach more appealing than nearby Webster's larger Memorial Beach on Webster Lake, which visitors need to pay to get in, also likely contributes to the unwanted popularity of the beach to outsiders.

"I think the sad thing is you have some people who come in and are very respectful and others come in and they're not respectful," Wojnar said. "I think the whole intention of it is it's for town residents and there's limited resources to fund the operation of that beach so it should be just limited to the people of Dudley."

"It's a pretty drastic step and it's been a long time coming," said Sullivan, echoing a sentiment shared by his fellow selectmen. "I think we've tried to work our way around it, but it's a pretty good step moving forward and it's an issue we'll have to address next year about maybe a sticker system to make it a lot easier for the chief. We need to come up for something that makes it a good place for our residents to enjoy."

Despite the passage of the new regulations on the beach, the amenities of that property won't be close to necessarily all non-residents in Dudley. Anyone visiting the beach property with a Dudley resident is permitted to do so, however no one will be allowed at the beach without having a Dudley resident with them to identify them as a guest. Signs are being erected on the beach property warning that the beach is reserved for residents of Dudley and their guests only, a ruling that applies to the parking area behind Mason Road and other amenities on the property as well.

Webster bar seeking reversal of liquor license suspension

their name, which they were granted.

Leading the conversation on behalf of the PACC was treasurer and attorney Gary Bridgeman, who said he felt a reversal of the decision was warranted.

"This board has the authority to reverse itself if an error has been made. At the meeting on June 13, this board was wrong in its conclusion," Bridgeman said. "It appears at least one selectmen, specifically Selectman Randy Becker, may have been convinced of facts not in the report. Selectman Becker stated that one person was over served, a bold conclusion not subsequently supported by evidence or the fact presented by Webster Police."

Becker was the selectman who moved to impose the three-day license suspension on the PACC rather than a simple fine. The accusation referenced by Bridgeman is that of the lone drinker who left the bar with two open containers, something Bridgeman said was used improperly by selectmen to make their decision.

"Statutes say no person shall consume intoxicating beverages on any town owned land. Why would the police put in the report the wrong statute or an incorrect description of the statute? Why would they say that there was an open container of alcohol on town land? That's not town land, that's our parking lot," Bridgeman said. "That's not a violation. That's a bad arrest. That's a bad basis for concluding we were in violation of the open container ordinance. If a guy walks out of Price Chopper and into his car and cracks one open are we going to close down Price Chopper? Or walks out of Point Breeze and into the parking lot and opens a bottle that he snuck out of the bar, will we shut down Point Breeze? Strict liability is no way to go here and it's certainly not supported by the precedent in this state."

Becker joined his fellow selectmen in granting a second hearing rather than overturning the decision, saying that they wanted to hear police input on this argument before taking any action. Becker also defended his decision to seek the three-day license suspension and said his decision was due to much more than just the one individual with open bottles.

"The commentary on making up my mind on one issue is incorrect. The hearing covered many issues. What was in the minutes may have been reflected that way and we could probably go to the video to see exactly what was talked about," Becker said. "The totality of the situation is what I looked at. I looked at an individual that was taken out with two beers, which the club said did not happen at the hearing but in fact now admits that did happen. That individual had a .183 blood alcohol level, more than two times the legal limit. That also weighed into my decision. The fact that it was a near riot weighed into my decision."

Bridgeman said he hopes to see the impending hearing overturn the Board of Selectmen's decision on the matter and noted that the PACC has served its violation requirements of three days without serving alcohol and the money and time lost can't be replaced, but the violation could impact their insurance and overturning the decision would be beneficial on that front if nothing else. Bridgeman also admitted that he and other from the PACC might have put forward everything they brought to the Board of selectmen this month at the original hearing, but Bridgeman said he didn't have enough information at that time to prepare such an argument.

"Would I have brought this up prior to the hearing? I couldn't. I saw a copy of the police report prior to the hearing on June 13 and the police department denied me that copy because the officer said the PACC is not charged. I come to the hearing to find out that we were being alleged to have violated an open container rule. I was completely blindsided and I don't appreciate it," Bridgeman said.

A date for the hearing was not specifically laid out following the decision of the selectmen, but it's clear that despite serving their required suspension the PACC is not ready to give up the fight. They'll have to see how police respond to their statements during the hearing and see if it's enough for selectmen to justify reversing their decision, a relatively rare occurrence for any liquor license violation in the Commonwealth.

Should I do a pre-inspection before I sell my home?

REALTOR'S REPORT

JAMES BLACK

Many times, this can be a great option—but not always.

Most relocation companies that I have worked with will require sellers to do a home inspection, well inspection and Title V inspection if the home has private water and sewer. Their thought process is to prevent any surprises and to get the repairs done prior to listing the home for sale. If you are thinking about selling your home and you have done everything to maintain your home over the years that home inspection may reveal things you would have never known about. Some examples I have seen are contaminants in your well water, termite or carpenter ant damage, and mold. This would give you an opportunity to make all these repairs and provide receipts to a new buyer to put them at ease and they may even decide not to do their own home inspection. The one other reason is that this pre-inspection could give you as a seller piece of mind that most likely nothing big will come up during the buyers inspection if your inspection came up OK.

The downside to doing this pre-inspection is that no home inspector will find everything. When the buyers hire their own inspector they may find other items that your inspector didn't find or may even just have a differing opinion on whether something is an issue or not. Also, if you are in a position where you cannot make repairs then doing the pre-inspection will just uncover issues that you will now disclose to any potential buyers but not be able to make the repairs. These buyers would be paying for an inspection anyway so it may not be worth spending your money especially if you are not in a great financial situation.

If you have a septic system, I always suggest getting the Title V inspection done prior to listing the home. I have many times had buyers ask me about a home that did not have the Title V completed and ask me what is wrong with the septic because they assume the seller did not test because they knew there was an issue. As always, I would suggest before you decide whether you should or should do a pre-inspection consult with a realtor who can guide you in the right direction for your specific scenario.

Long Subaru, LLS deliver gestures of hope

SOUTHBRIDGE — Subaru of America and The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society (LLS) are working together to provide much needed support and "warmth" to cancer patients and their families in communities across the country.

During Subaru's Loves to Care month in June, messages of hope for cancer patients were written Long Subaru in Webster.

On Thursday, July 14, those messages, along with 60 blankets, were delivered to Harrington Hospital in Southbridge, MA to help keep patients warm as they continue their fight against cancer, and to help spread awareness of LLS and Subaru of America's goal to provide hope and care, one gesture at a time.

This initiative with Subaru is a perfect fit for LLS. Through LLS's network of 56 chapters and Subaru's presence in communities across the country, together, they are reaching and supporting even more patients, families and caregivers in their time of need. Through this initiative to raise awareness for the urgent need to find cancer cures and ensure patients have access to lifesaving treatments, Subaru is helping LLS make someday today for blood cancer patients.

Visit www.lls.org/subaru to learn more about the special partnership between LLS and Subaru.

NEWS BRIEFS

Man arrested after unarmed robbery

Chad Rico

DUDLEY — On Wednesday, July 12, at approximately 7:24 p.m., Dudley Police Officers Shane DiDonato, Ryan Daniels, and Tyler Smith responded to a reported unarmed robbery of an elderly female at the Dollar General Store located at 13 West Main Street.

The female was reported to have been injured and the suspect was identified as a white male subject wearing shorts and a T-shirt. Officer DiDonato responded to the scene while the other officers, as well as some from the Webster Police Department, searched the area. A more accurate description of the suspect was obtained from witnesses as well as video footage from the store. It was reported a 78-year-old female victim was exiting the store while pushing a shopping cart. She was shoved to the ground by a male suspect. The victim's pocketbook was stolen and the perpetrator fled on foot toward West Main Street. The victim was later treated by Dudley Fire Department Personnel and transported to Harrington Hospital at Hubbard for injuries to her arm and head. She was treated and later released.

At approximately 7:55 p.m., Officer Daniels spotted a person, known to him as Chad Rico, 33, whose address is unknown, in the area of #8 Chestnut Street. Rico was wearing clothing that matched the description of the suspect in the robbery. There was also believed to be an active warrant out for his arrest. After a brief interaction with the officer, Mr. Rico fled the scene on foot, heading toward Webster. He was pursued by several officers and was seen crossing the French River in the Oxford Ave and Pleasant Street area by Officer DiDonato. He followed Mr. Rico through the water and was able to place him under arrest on the river bank. He was transported to the Webster Police Department to await booking. Mr. Rico had had in his possession a set of metallic knuckles, a knife, and some illegal prescription narcotics. It was believed Mr. Rico may have discarded evidence during his foot pursuit. A search of the area was conducted by the officers, including Webster Officer Aaron Suss and his K9 dog. The victim's wallet and some other items were located later in the evening by Dudley Sergeant Paul Cappetelli. They were in a dumpster near the location where Mr. Rico was first observed by Officer Daniels. Mr. Rico was held on $1,000 bail for a court appearance at Dudley District Court this morning. Dudley Police Chief Steve Wojnar commands all the officers involved in this case for the swift apprehension of this suspect.

Rico was charged with disturbing the peace, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, unarmed robbery on a person over 60, carrying a dangerous weapon, 2nd offense, illegal possession of a Class B drug, assault and battery on a person over 60, Dudley PD warrant.

Meals on Wheels seeks volunteers

More than 10 million (1 in 6) seniors in the U.S. face the threat of hunger and more than 15 million (1 in 4) are living in isolation. In south central Massachusetts alone, more than 800 seniors are being served by Tri-Valley, Inc. to address these issues.

This summer, Meals on Wheels America, in partnership with the Ad Council, will launch its first-ever national campaign to recruit volunteers to serve the nation's most vulnerable citizens. With the senior population projected to double by 2050, Tri-Valley is joining the effort to help inspire a new army of volunteers to meet the growing need in its 25-town service area.

Every day, Tri-Valley's volunteers deliver 700 meals along with friendly visits and safety checks to those who need them most. As important as the meal delivered is the fact that, for many seniors, the volunteer who delivers it is the only person they will see that day. The delivery isn't just about nutrition; it's about the moments of human connection that nourish the senior and the volunteer alike. Tri-Valley relies on an army of 750 volunteers to pack and deliver meals, typically between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., five days a week.

The national integrated public service campaign, created pro bono by the ad agency, Anomaly, will invite America to "Do Lunch" by volunteering during the critical lunch hour period to deliver meals and a smile to seniors. The TV, radio, print, out-of-home and digital public service advertisements (PSAs) will tell the poignant stories of just a few of the 2.4 million seniors the national Meals on Wheels network serves each year, stories that celebrate their lives and show how inspiring, wise and charming they really are. To further highlight their stories, renowned celebrity photographer Mark Seliger – who has photographed some of our culture's most famous faces from Kurt Cobain to President Obama – will be turning his lens to Meals on Wheels seniors and creating a series of portraits for the campaign.

"We're so excited to be working with Meals on Wheels programs across the country to launch this national effort on the ground," said Ellie Hollander, President and CEO of Meals on Wheels America. "We hope that by sharing just a few of our seniors' amazing and heartfelt stories, we can inspire even more volunteers to lend a caring hand to the growing number of aging neighbors in need."

Here is what a Tri-Valley volunteer said, when asked why she volunteers for Meals on Wheels, "It's a chance to help those in need. I've been a volunteer for almost one year now. I cannot picture my days without doing this and helping people."
