EDC to seek public input for five-year plan

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY – As the town of Dudley’s Economic Development Committee continues to seek input for the town’s five-year plan, its members are hoping for a good turnout of citizens to be involved with the continued public hearing on Sept. 20.

The five-year plan has been a major topic of discussion throughout 2017 for the committee with a partnership formed between the town and the Central Massachusetts Planning Commission to examine how the town should prioritize its goals looking into the next five years. Committee Chairman John Briare explained that the CMRPC wanted a public forum to take place to get public input with numerous officials and parties involved from outside the Economic Development Committee. That forum will be part of the Economic Development Committee’s Sept. 20 meeting where the hope is many community members will be willing to share their thoughts.

“I think they forgot that we have an ongoing public hearing, which is a public forum, and anybody’s welcome,” Briare said. “I want to understand exactly what (the CMRPC) is doing and there’s a significant number of hours coming from the grant – What are they actually doing with all those hours?”

Briare expressed some questions about what the CMRPC is offering the town in the ongoing process. While the Committee chair was not aggressive towards the state-operated organization he did say that he wants a better idea of what direction the CMRPC will be recommending to Dudley and said the committee may want to look into what the CMRPC has done in the past.

“Maybe seeing what they’ve done for other towns may be an indication of what we’re actually going to get and if it’s actually going to work for us,” Briare said adding that CMRPC had asked the Economic Development Committee to seek out more grant funding to cover two more phases of work the CMRPC wants to do for the town through the community compact program.

“There are things that I think we could apply for that would actually have an impact, whether it might be the completion of any of the rail trail stuff or if the money can be used for grant money to extend infrastructure,” Briare said. “Regionalization gets priority if you can do regional. I would certainly want to use if for a hard investment in town rather than paying a consultant to do something.”

Potential further grant funding applications were tabled

Dudley Highway Superintendent Dan Gion presents a public apology after being accused of using a racially insensitive term on social media.

Comments lead to suspension for Gion

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY – A town official has been suspended after posting what has been called a “racially charged comment” on Facebook during a debate concerning the recent white nationalist rally in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Dudley Highway Superintendent Daniel

Gion has admitted to using a racially insensitive term while on social media while engaging in a debate at around 9:30 p.m. on August 14. It was then that Gion posted the term “porch monkey” while apparently engaging in a back and forth with fellow Facebook user Destiny Grardner who proceeded to post screen captures of Gion’s post demanding Gion’s release as a town employee. Gion’s remarks were believed to be directed towards CNN political analyst Symone Sander, who is African American. In a post on the Town of Dudley Facebook page Grardner stated “Dan

Selectmen declare dog dangerous

BY GUS STEEVES
STAFF WRITER

OXFORD — Selectmen unanimously declared a 39 Charlton St. dog “dangerous” and ordered her contained in various ways after hearing about several attacks on dogs and a person in recent years.

According to Animal Control Officer Kelly Flynn, a 9-year-old spayed pit bull named Ruby, owned by Kim Parker and her brother Kevin Kiley, had bitten other dogs this June 1, twice in 2015 and once each in 2014 and 2013. In the most recent incident, Ruby also bit a woman trying to protect her dog; in several of the cases, the dogs needed stitches and Parker paid some or all of the veterinary bills.

In the 4-year-old incident, Ruby demonstrated the strength her breed is known for. Barbara White was walking her dog Cooper, when Ruby “pulled some of the bolts out of the wall and was able to reach Cooper, even though she was still attached to the house.”

White said Cooper was one of two Lhasa Apsos she was walking then, and Ruby “went right after Cooper’s neck.” At the time, Ruby didn’t have updated rabies shots, but a 10-day quarantine proved her not to be sick. Flynn said Parker has since complied with annual shots, although Ruby was quarantined after each incident, as

Selectmen order quarantine of local dog

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY – The Dudley Board of Selectman has called for the potential euthanizing of a local dog after the owners failed to keep control of the animal, leading to the latest in a string of recorded incidents reported to town officials.

Dudley selectmen held a hearing on Aug. 21 where the situation surrounding the dog, named Chance, came to light as owners Brian and Catherine Ceccarelli of Ash Street came to their dog’s defense. Reports from Dudley Animal Control Officer Jennifer Fitzgerald indicated that on Aug. 15 she was informed of an incident involving Chance outside of the Ceccarelli’s home where Chance had allegedly attacked a golden retriever named Honey. The owners of both dogs confirmed the incident and Fitzgerald stated that from her examination Honey didn’t sustain any major wounds from the attack, only irritation, and said there was no blood that she could see on the dog.

This is not the first time that Chance has been a subject of concern before the board of selectmen who earlier this year ordered that the Ceccarelli’s maintain control of Chance at all times after a previous incident occurred. As for what truly took place on the day of the most recent incident the owners of the dogs involved both agreed that Chance did get loose and engage Honey.

Fallon Health’s frail elder program coming to Webster

WORCESTER— Fallon Health announced it will be opening a program of All-inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE), called Summit ElderCare, in Webster.

In the next 10-12 months, the company will be moving its Charlton PACE location 12 miles to the east, to a soon-to-be built facility at 108 Thompson Road, Webster. This move consolidates Fallon’s Charlton operations from two buildings to one and increases Fallon’s capacity to care for at least 250 participants at one location, a 50 percent increase in potential PACE members at that site.

According to Fallon Health’s President and CEO, Richard Burke, the move was necessitated by the significant growth of the company’s PACE program over the last several years.

Now in its 22nd year of offering PACE, Fallon is the largest PACE provider in New England and fifth largest in the country, according to the National PACE Association. With more than 1,100 participants enrolled in the program, Summit ElderCare PACE Centers are currently located in Charlton, Leominster, Lowell, Springfield and in two locations in Worcester. Fallon also operates a PACE program — Fallon Health Weinberg PACE — in western New York.

Summit ElderCare is an innovative program that provides each participant with comprehensive medical care and social support such as home care, physical therapy and specialized equipment—all in one location.

The PACE model of care serves individuals 55 years and older who are eligible for a nursing home-level of care and wish to remain in the community. The PACE goal is to support these individuals so they may live safely in the community (e.g., their home, an assisted living facility, a family member’s home).

“Fallon is very grateful to the Overlook community in Charlton. We’ve enjoyed an excellent partnership for 11 years with everyone there,” said Burke. “Building a new site in Webster offers partici-

‘Forgotten Farms’ reminds audience of need for agriculture

BY GUS STEEVES
STAFF WRITER

You’d think the last thing a culture would do is forget where its food comes from. But, to a large extent, we have, with many people going no farther down the production chain than to the plastic-wrapped trays in the supermarket.

Although the local food movement is changing that to some degree, it has so far made barely a dent in the overall food market. In it, typically small farms raise “boutique” specialty crops for farmers’ markets and local restaurants and Community-Supported Agriculture programs, but they amount to just 3 percent of New England’s food supply, according to the film “Forgotten Farms.”

The other 97 percent come from what’s termed “conventional” farms, and in New England, many of them are dairies, the most forgotten of the “Forgotten Farms.”

“I grew up in a town with three dairies; two of them are still in business,” said Director Dave Simonds. “But so many people don’t know the dairy farms are there and how important they are. When you start getting close to something, you start caring about it.”

His partner in film-making, Williams College Professor Sarah Gardner, saw that first-hand. Some time ago, she gave her land use planning students an assignment: over the weekend, find a farmer and interview them. On Monday, every one of them had returned having spoken to somebody from the local farmers’ market. Not one stopped at one of the two local dairies, even though one of them is right along the college’s most popular running/walking route.

“It didn’t register to them as a farm because they don’t go to the farmers’ market,” Gardner said.

To her, agriculture today is split in two pieces. The one that gets most of the publicity is what she dubs “artisanal” or “boutique” farming, in which participants take small quantities to farmers’ markets and have “a romanticized view that they can survive that way.” Most of them live off more traditional jobs and have liberal-arts college degrees. By contrast, many farm kids who return to the fold graduate from agricultural schools.

“Some artisanal farmers are trying to do it right, but are finding they can’t afford land, and it’s so small-scale they can’t make any money,” she said. Many were inspired by strong opposition to corporate agricultural practices, typically Monsanto’s pesticides and GMOs, but she notes there’s “a morass of confusing information” around the issue. “A lot are into the trend talk,” of things like veganism, but don’t realize “There’s nothing left they could eat if they followed all of it,” she said.

One common “trend” issue is the fact that beef has a high carbon footprint -- it does. But dairy’s footprint is far lower because the same cow produces milk for years, and milk is nutritionally “a complete protein,” while beef is not. For comparison, among vegetables, the combination of beans, squash and corn also produces a complete protein.

In New England, almost all of the milk we drink comes from New England dairies, although overall about 90 percent of our food comes from elsewhere, the film states. Unfortunately, over the last 50 years the region has lost more than 10,000 dairies, leaving about 2,000. Of them, 145 of them are in Massachusetts.

Gardner noted one study predicts the region won’t have any left in 20 years without state-level support. Some offer tax credits like Massachusetts, others don’t, and the latter “are losing a lot more dairy farms,” she said.

Despite that, dairies still control about three-quarters of all New England farmland, and each cow provides $13,000 in economic activity for the community they’re in, the film calculates. It observes that people want the region to remain “picturesque, but don’t know that’s being supported by the dairy farms.”

One of the issues is that the milk industry’s rules are fairly opaque. At one point, former state Agricultural Commissioner Greg Watson said more people understand the theory of relativity and string theory than how milk prices are determined. Another person quipped, “Three people know Two of them are dead, and the third one forgot.”

Another is class -- farmers’ markets and the local food movement are mostly upper middle class, while dairy farmers are often barely making ends meet financially, yet their farms go back generations. Simonds noted that divide was one reason behind the film -- “we wanted to sell a local food audience on dairy farmers.”

The issue also caught US Rep. Jim

McGovern’s attention; he’s on the Congressional joint Agriculture Committee and argued films like this “help people appreciate dairy farmers. We have to learn to have each other’s back.” He noted a big concern of his is the impact international trade deals and the giant corporate farms have had, urged people to look into the upcoming reauthorization of the Farm Bill, and noted there’s a serious need for a national food policy discussion.

“I’ve seen how hard farmers work. [They have] a real love and appreciation for what they do because they accomplish something,” he said. “I could work 24 hours in Congress and not have anything to show for it.”

From the audience, one farmer who didn’t give his name observed, “We don’t produce cheap food. Our products are underpriced. People want cheap food.” McGovern agreed, noting people demand low prices, but “have forgotten the producers have to make a living. You need to be made whole.”

Dudley’s Jim Koebke put some specifics to that point. His family has owned the farm since 1910, and the last several years have been “a really bad economic climate for milk,” largely because of massive overproduction nationwide. He used to make about $250,000 a year and lived well, but now he pays $400,000 in costs just to stay in business.

“Chemicals cost money, and nobody uses more than they have to,” he said. He specifically pointed to Monsanto’s Roundup, which has faced a lot of public criticism, but he sees as better than atrazine because he uses less of it.

Farmers in the film and panel also addressed antibiotics and growth hormones. Although most do use the former if animals get sick, the law requires their milk to be segregated and discarded while they’re on the drugs. Regarding hormones, John and Wayne Whittier said they’re rare in the industry today, largely because the Cabot co-op doesn’t allow it due to consumer concerns and genetic knowledge makes them unnecessary.

To audience member Christine Higgenbottom of Leicester, the film’s point about the clash between traditional and “boutique” farming was enlightening. She’s long been a member of NOFA, the Northeast Organic Farming Association, and her family has bought from local dairies since childhood.

“By the end, I came to really feel I know these people,” she said. “The more we understand, the more we can bring things together because we really do have the same goals.”

Cost of buying a home!

We get excited once we realize that we are approved to buy a home. Sometimes we forget to sit down and look at all the costs involved with buying a home to make sure we are truly ready to make the leap. There are several expenses outside the actual downpayment for the loan. Some of those costs are as follows

Inspections – You can expect to spend anywhere from $300-$700 on the home inspection. If you have a Well for your water supply you will most likely also be doing a water quality and quantity tests. I have seen the quality tests over $200 and then the quantity it will depend on how long the test is but usually 2-4 hours. If it's the same person doing the inspection then maybe $50 but could be another $150-$200 if you have a separate well company come out.

Appraisal – I usually see this costs around $450-$550 depending on the house and type of loan. This usually needs to be paid out of pocket when it is completed. The bank requires this to ensure that the value and the condition of the property meet the requirements of the loan you are taking out.

Homeowners Insurance -This is also an expense that I usually see required prior to closing. Most lenders will require you to pay 1 year upfront and

the entire year upfront but I would plan for this cost. This really depends on the house, condition, age, value, and you want to ensure. I have seen as low as $700 to $2,000-$3000 depending on single family or multifamily and if you are living there or if its an investment.

Closing Costs – Most lenders will require you to escrow money for things like taxes. You will pay prepaid interest, attorney fees, title insurance for the lender and owner title insurance policy. If you have condo fees or Homeowners Association fees those may need to be escrowed as well. If the owners have already prepaid taxes, filled the oil or propane tank then you will be paying them for those items as well. I typically see closing costs and escrows around $5,000-$7000 depending on what is required and the size of the loan.

Moving -If you intend to hire movers to help you with the move it will probably cost several thousand dollars. The other thing to consider is if you are moving into a house with different sized rooms that either don't fit your furniture or a larger home where you don't have furniture you would want to budget for those items.

Yard Maintenance – This is one I didn't really think much about when I bought my home. If you went from a condo or an apartment you will need things like a lawnmower and if it's a large lawn a riding mower, you would want a weedwhacker, possibly a leaf blower, a chainsaw, wheelbarrow, Rakes and shovels and may more items. Just make sure to budget for these items.

Unexpected Repairs – This is the big one. Make sure after you budget for all these items and put your downpayment down that you still have a 3-6 month reserve in the bank because you may need some of it to make unexpected repairs in that 1st year.

If you are buying a home make sure to consult with your Realtor and Home Inspector in case there are other costs specific to your home that you have not accounted for. It is also a good idea to get costs from the previous owner on what all their bills are on the home. Maybe you love the lawn but didn't realize the current owner spends several thousand every year keeping it up. You then would want to budget for that as well.

The Blessed Backpack Brigade's FUNdraiser on Aug. 4 was a wonderful success thanks to the many donations received, and the hard work of Sarah and Tony Baribeault of Tony Island Hot Dog Company.

Their 7-year old daughter Annie made it her mission to help homeless people in our area when she found out there could be such a thing! Homeless families, yes families, and homeless veterans, yes homeless veterans. She got to work on Sarah and Tony, and the FUNdraiser was underway.

The event was held at Fiddler's Green on Temple Street in Worcester, with live music donated by two fabulous bands, Bittersweet, and Beyond Vinyl.

A silent auction was the main fundraising event, and it was very successful.

Thank you to our very generous donors and benefactors: Sturbridge Coffee Roasters, Darlene Bomba, Shirley, Hardwick Sugar Shack, Florence Kuzdzal, King Richard's Faire, Karen Quaiel, Mary Ellen Schremser, Erica Groh, Water Wizz, Rose Smoolca, Kretschmann Brewery & Beer Garden, and the many anonymous donors who gave so generously. A great time was had by everyone who attended, and the proceeds go to help support the homeless and less fortunate in our area.

Tony Island Hot Dog Company also sponsored a "Pay what you can, IF you can" hot dog lunch on Wednesday, Aug. 9 at the French River Park in Webster. Annie and Orlo Baribeault came to "supervise" and provided some afternoon entertainment. The response was tremendous, and all proceeds were donated to the Blessed Backpack Brigade. Please try and support these wonderful people, and let them know how much their efforts are appreciated. Rumor has it the Bacon Jammer is out of this world!

On Sept. 2, we will hold a bucket brigade at the Webster-Dudley town line from 9am to noon, and the semi-annual yard sale will be held on Sept. 23.

As always, Fellowship Meals are held on the second and fourth Wednesday of every month from 5-6 pm at the Webster-Dudley American Legion, 9 Houghton St, Webster. Thank you to the Legion for hosting, Dave Hebert and the Nichols College Crew for cooking, and the Janet Malser Humanities Trust for funding these delicious meals. Feel free to stop by, grab a bite to eat, and make some new friends. Everyone is always welcome.

Big Bad Beef Rub

This rub recipe won "Best Beef" for a brisket at the 2010 Sonoma County Harvest Fair.

Back to the same old, same old

It's a weekend full of fairs, Spencer and Woodstock come immediately to mind. The last hurrah before the summer officially comes to an end and routine becomes...well, routine, once more.

Schools gear up, the sight is something as we watch kindergarten children with backpacks bigger than they are, and excited about the chance to ride the big yellow buses (that color by the way? It has an official name, that is American School Chrome); and the seniors at the other end of the age spectrum are either just as excited because they are at the top of their game and can't wait to be the lauded seniors, or are groaning into their pillows that the drudgery must begin.

OH wait, that's the teachers (we say from experience and a wink.)

Teachers, you see, have already been hard at work; most of them for about a month already. Doing planning, preparing the first month's assignments, creating lessons, and on-line courses, and organizing grades and on-line websites for access to students and parents, and yes, even upgrading their own computers and software.

And going to school themselves, taking extra courses in new curriculum, new teaching styles, new recommendations, and yes, new demands by the Powers That Be in education.

That lucky three months off for teachers in the summer? Not so much.

Neither is it true for other staff, as the schools have been scrubbed from top to bottom, repairs made, walls painted; in some cases, classrooms moved about, new equipment set up, new software installed, new books checked in and inventoried, and on and on and on. No, people who work in school systems do not have it easy in the summer.

Move to the next scenario: the administrative departments, who are juggling student names and teaching assignments and bus schedules and room requirements and special education restrictions and independent study and extracurricular activities and band and chorus and let's just make sure every kid has a lunch break too. This work falls on guidance counselors and special education departments and yes, the administration assistants as well as the principals and lead teachers who are attempting to not overburden one classroom teacher at the expense of another because all the kids seem to need an English class at the same time period on Wednesday.

It's a juggling act.

Yet when the front doors open, and those American Chrome buses (that have miraculously managed to make it to every bus stop almost exactly on time) discharge their loads of kids, there will be classrooms waiting, with clean desks, classwork prepared, a class list with the students' names on them for the teachers to identify their own new challenges, and the year will begin.

All across the state, and the entire country. American education still happens. Paid for by taxpayer dollars. It isn't perfect, but any kid who really, REALLY wants to learn and is willing to put in the necessary work even with adults who aren't as tasked as he or she is can make something amazing of themselves.

In most cases, in most schools, there is a core cadre of dedicated educators who do care, who do work as hard or harder than the students and, even with the frustrations and limitations of government interference still manage to do a great job of educating our children.

It is to Hurrah indeed.

WLA: appreciates grant

To the Editor:

The Webster Lake Association was recently awarded a grant of $11,100 from the Janet Malser Humanities Trust for restoration work at Lake Chargogga gogg-manchauggagoggch aubunagu ngamaugg, also known as Webster Lake.

Susanne Point, located in North Pond, is adjacent to one of the major inlets into the watershed. It has been labeled a high priority area due to the influx of accumulated biomass, which decreases lake depth, thus creating a choke point on water flow. This generous grant, together with WLA funds, will restore the water movement, creating healthy fauna and flora (aquatic animals and plants). In turn, this enhancement will facilitate both boating and fishing, and improve wildlife viewing. The restoration is scheduled this fall with SOLitude Lake Management, a local company specializing in aquatic management and res-

The WLA is a non-profit organization whose mission is dedicated to enhancing, preserving and protecting the quality of the lake and its watershed through the promotion of responsible, effective environmental and educational polices, while striving to strengthen and unite the Webster Lake community through recreational, social and civic activities. The support of local organizations, such as the Janet Malser Humanities Trust grant, enables the WLA to continue its work towards preserving this regionally unique resource as a pristine legacy for future generations.

CHIEF'S CORNER

STEVE WOJNAR

It seems the summer was too short, since we are now at the start of another school year. With classes back in session, I was asked to remind everyone of the laws surrounding school busses. These vehicles transport hundreds of children each day. Safety is a great concern while busses are engaged in their business.

The law covering school bus violations is contained in Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 90 Section 14. Drivers are required to come to a full stop when these vehicles have red lights flashing and children are entering or exiting the bus. A first offense penalty for a violation carries a $250 fine. Subsequent offenses can range from $500 to $2,000 and can also include a license suspension for a minimum of 6 months. Drivers must also keep their vehicles at least 100 feet behind a school bus. Busses are required to have the words "keep back 100 feet" prominently displayed on the rear of the bus.

It is important to note, there are many other vehicles used to transport school children that are considered outside the normal "large yellow bus." Passenger cars and vans are used quite often to transport students, particularly those who are disabled or with special needs. The Dudley Charlton Regional School District will have a number of these vehicles out transporting children in our area. Due to the less obvious appearance of these vehicles, many drivers fail to stop when required. The same bus rules apply to these vehicles. Please pay extra attention and be aware of their presence.

Remember to watch for children approaching or leaving busses. They may be rushing around and not paying particular attention to their surroundings. This is especially true in the first few weeks of the school year, as children and parents become acclimated with their particular situation. Busses will make frequent stops, especially when transporting the elementary school children. As drivers, take the time to pay extra attention for potential hazards and always exercise patience.

On behalf of everyone at the Dudley Police Department, I wish you all a happy and safe 2017-18 school year.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com.

Restoring faith in representative democracy

BEYOND CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

LEE H. HAMILTON

There's no shortage of threats to our democracy. Russian meddling in elections, the vulnerability of state voting systems to hacking, politicians' assaults on the media, and political leaders' growing fondness for policy-making in secret — all of these pose a real challenge to our system's viability.

As worrisome as these are, there's one problem that may be the greatest threat of all: Americans' loss of faith in politics and democratic institutions.

This has been building for decades, dating back to the Vietnam War and Watergate, and the long-term economic challenges — recession, inflation, widening inequality, the shifting nature of work, a series of financial crises — that grew out of that era. It's rooted in our system's apparent inability to overcome deep divisions in the country: urban and rural, liberal and conservative, the mass of ordinary Americans and the elite, divides over race and ethnicity and gender politics and...well, you know the list as well as I do.

The truth is, in the face of this teeming, complicated, diverse society, our political institutions have performed inadequately. But if we're not just to throw in the towel and declare representative democracy a noble failure, then we have to restore Americans' faith in the processes of government. To do this, we have to pursue a range of reforms and goals, some of which will require years of concerted effort to achieve.

- Broad-based economic growth, for instance, will be crucial. It may seem odd to start with this when we face so many political and structural problems, but when the bulk of people — not just the already-fortunate or the best-educated — sense that they have a chance to improve their lot and that of their children, that the economy offers opportunity to all, this lubricates a society. Economic growth that spreads its benefits to the broad mass of people solves a lot of problems and restores confidence in government.
- Winner-take-all in politics is as damaging to society as its economic counterpart, yet over the last generation we've lost the ability to use the techniques of democracy: civility, negotiation, compromise, transparency, respect for minority views and accountability. These are not just values — they're tools that bring representative democracy to life. They ensure that diverse voices are included in policy-making, ing, give legislation broad legitimacy, and help citizens understand and feel a stake in governance.

- Restoring these values, though, will also require changing the political habits that define this era. The polarization and scorched-earth legislating that have come to reflect divisions in our society are deep-seated and destructive, and will need determined leadership at the highest levels to undo. This should be met at a variety of levels, including meaningful civic education that helps citizens understand their crucial responsibilities and that lays bare the system's limitations and sets realistic expectations.
- Finally, we should undertake a set of structural reforms to restore Americans' faith that government is constructed fairly and is focused on the general welfare. Gerrymandering, which gives one party legislative and congressional seats out of all proportion to its actual popularity, must end. The machinery of our elections — outdated, fragile, lacking a paper trail, vulnerable to cyberattacks — needs investment. The outsized influence of money in politics continues to feed cynicism and public disengagement.

What I find perhaps most distressing is that many of these are deep-seated, longstanding problems that are evident to many Americans, yet we don't see them being addressed. A voice or two might be raised from time to time in Washington, but no one maintains the effort.

Yes, the times make it tough: We have a struggling President, a Congress fractured by infighting, and political parties incapable of forging consensus among their diverse members. The to-do list I've laid out is long and daunting.

Sure, restoring faith in our system will take a sustained effort on the part both of our political leaders and our citizens, but I'm not saying it all needs to be tackled at once. What I am saying is that until Americans see that our political leaders recognize the erosion of faith in our political institutions that is undermining our system and are taking meaningful steps to address it, our distress will only grow.

Brighten your grandchildren's financial future

Mother's Day and Father's Day may get more attention, but National Grandparents Day, observed on Sept. 10, has gained in popularity. If you're a grandparent, you might expect to receive some nice cards, but if you want to make the day especially meaningful, you may want to consider giving some long-lasting financial gifts to your grandchildren.

What might come to mind first, of course, is helping your grandchildren pay for college. You can choose from several college savings vehicles, but you may be especially interested in a 529 savings plan. With a 529 plan, your earnings accumulate tax free, provided they are used for qualified higher education expenses, such as tuition, books, and room and board. (Keep in mind that 529 plan distributions not used for qualified expenses may be subject to federal and state income taxes and a 10% IRS penalty on the earnings.) You may be eligible for a state income tax incentive for contributing to a 529 plan. Check with your tax advisor regarding these incentives, as well as all tax-related issues pertaining to 529 plans. One benefit of using a 529 plan is contribution limits are quite generous. Plus, a 529 plan is flexible: If your grandchild decides against college, you can transfer the plan to another beneficiary.

Generally, a 529 plan owned by a grandparent won't be reported as an asset on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), but withdrawals from the plan are treated as untaxed income to the beneficiary (i.e., your grandchild) — and that has a big impact on financial aid, a much bigger impact than if the plan was listed as a parental asset. Beginning with the 2017-2018 academic year, however, FAFSA now requires families to report income from two years before the school year starts, rather than income from the prior calendar year. Consequently, it might be beneficial, from a financial aid standpoint, for you, as a grandparent, to start paying for college expenses from a 529 plan in the year in which your grandchild becomes a junior.

Five generations of doing it right

One of the Whittier cows gets very friendly with a visitor.

You just keep going....”

“... And who will take care of the land if we don’t?” her mother Mary Whittier finished.

Later, as part of a post-film panel, Wayne Whittier pointed to the younger generation’s interest as being crucial.

“There are a lot of older people in the movie” and farming in general, he said. “It’s good to see young people. We’re getting our kids involved. We didn’t ask them to come back; they chose to.”

When asked what she’d say to young people expressing interest, Sam Whittier was direct: “Don’t wait. There’s opportunity out there and a large group of aging farmers who want to teach young people and keep their land in agriculture.” She noted modern farming isn’t just the physical labor, although that’s important; it also needs people skilled in communications, web design and other technical skills. “Technology is a wonderful tool if you use it right,” she added.

Sam Whittier has perfected walking backwards while conducting tours of her family’s farm in Sutton.

BY GUS STEEVES
STAFF WRITER

SUTTON -- Take a walk around Whittier Farm with Sam Whittier, and you can see how passionate she is for what her family’s done for five generations, and for dairy farming in general. And that’s despite originally being somewhat uncertain she’d be doing it.

“I worked for somebody else for nine months [after college] before deciding farming was what I wanted to do,” she said, adding she realized it when, at her job, she kept wondering how things were going with the cows. One evening, she told her dad she’d quit her job, and he asked, “‘What are you going to do now?’ ‘I’m hoping you’ll hire me,’” she recalled responding. “...I think I’m still in the interview process.”

That was a few years ago, so it’s a pretty good bet she’s not going anywhere else. Nor, it seems, are her siblings, since John, Lauren and Diana have all opted to stay on the land. They showed it to several dozen visitors Monday afternoon in an event sponsored by Central Mass Grown, the regional agricultural network. The tour was a lead-in to a movie night fundraiser at Millbury’s Elm Theater showing “Forgotten Farms,” a documentary of regional dairies. [See other story.]

Like most New England dairies, Whittier is still a family-owned farm; six employees are direct family members of its 20. Also like most dairies, while the cows and milk products are their mainstay, they’ve diversified in numerous ways: specialty vegetables; a kitchen making meals, pastries and pies; beef sales; several farmers’ markets (that didn’t work); joining the Cabot (now Agrimark-owned) dairy cooperative; hosting school tours and other ways to stay afloat. But it’s not always easy.

“You have to be a family farm, but also a farm family business. You have to throw that B word in there,” Sam said after the tour. “We’re Yankees around here, and we’re stubborn. We’re not going to fail.

Across the region, dairies are vanishing in droves, their land being sold off for subdivisions. Many of them are land- and equipment-rich, but cash poor because the price of milk is both highly variable and artificially low because of federal rules that favor consumers and the giant Midwestern producers, but don’t take into account the fact production costs in New England are higher. Several years ago, the Supreme Court destroyed the New England Compact, a regional arrangement in which dairies got price support, on the grounds it was unconstitutional under the Commerce Clause.

Today, Massachusetts provides some help in tough months -- including every month in the last two years -- through the Dairy Farm Tax Credit. That prompted Williams College Professor Sarah Gardner, the film’s producer, to observe, “Every dairy farm I’ve talked to says the tax credit is the reason they’re still in business.”

Sam Whittier agreed, but added, “To do it for that many generations, something has to be right. ... This year, we’ve been playing with luck.”

In the grand scheme of things, Whittier Farm is a fairly average New England dairy. It has about 500 acres, most of it in the state’s Chapter 61 Agricultural Preservation Restriction program and dedicated to growing corn and grass to feed their approximately 275 cows, 110 of them currently milk-producing and some raised for beef. The calves are mostly in individual big plastic huts, but graduate to shared spaces and the communal barns as they age. They reach breeding age at about a year and, if raised for beef, go to slaughter at about age 2 (they don’t do veal). Milking happens twice daily at 3 a.m. and 3 p.m., takes 8-10 minutes per cow, and gets trucked to market daily. The family is now debating whether to invest in robotic milkers that will allow them to shift the people now doing it to other duties. Among other things, John Whittier said, that might enable them to catch and treat any injuries more quickly.

For obvious reasons, keeping the cows healthy is paramount, and that has led to key choices. In last year’s drought, for example, they opted to stop irrigating their three acres of vegetables because they’re on well water. “Making sure there’s enough water [for the cows] is a pretty simple thing,” Sam said. Another aspect is separating calves from their mothers for feeding; that both enables them to ensure the calves are getting the right mix of nutrients and minimize the risk of injuries to the cows’ udders so the milk keeps flowing.

“As long as a calf is healthy and protected from the elements, you’re doing it right,” she said, quipping, “They get maximum sunshine except in the event of an eclipse.”

QCC offers new training on drones

WORCESTER — Have you ever wanted to learn more about drones, those unmanned aerial vehicles that have taken the country by storm in recent years? Considered becoming a drone pilot, or even fantasized about starting your own business, but not been sure where to begin?

Quinsigamond Community College has answered the growing need for this type of workforce training by becoming the first community college in Massachusetts to offer a drone certificate program.

“Through the Quinsigamond Community College Center for Workforce Development & Continuing Education, we are pleased to be able to offer individuals and companies a complete package of courses addressing the brand new tech careers drones are creating and the skills needed to work in these fields,” said Kathleen Manning, dean of Center for Workforce Development and Continuing Education.

These new tech careers are continuing to evolve and increase with no sign of decline. A report released in 2013 by the Association for Unmanned Vehicle Systems International projected that by the year 2025 there will be more than 100,000 new jobs in unmanned aircraft.

“There can be no question that technology innovation continues to change the way we work, live and do business. As an educational institution, with a mission focused on ensuring individuals have the skills necessary to work in this innovation economy, it is incumbent on us to keep abreast of the innovations that are bringing change to industry and help individuals and companies manage the impact,” Manning said. “Drones, also known as Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs), are one example of a disruptive technology that many businesses in Central Massachusetts need to prepare for. Currently drones are being used commercially as first-aid vehicles, tools for police departments, high-tech photography and recording devices for real estate properties, concerts, and sporting events.

Become an authority on drones with this new program

Additionally, entrepreneurial thinkers are setting up companies offering drones-as-a-service, allowing businesses to afford to rent drones for their business needs and stay competitive.”

QCC’s drone certificate program will feature a series of online and in-person courses designed to teach students everything they need to know about drones and help prepare them to take and pass the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Drone Pilot Exam.

Students will learn the basics of getting started with drones, learning the FAA rules and regulations of commercial drones, safety guidelines, models and types of drones, industry trends, jobs and market projections. Additional classes will include aerial photography; test preparation classes, and learning how to start a drone business.

An onsite, 8-hour “Phantom and Inspire” flight training course will enable students to have a hands-on flight training session and learn to fly like a pro. The flight training will be held at the West Boylston Street campus.

PAUL JOSEPH

A love token is, as noted in a recent column, akin to a Hobo

Nickel in that metal on the surface of one side of the coin is smoothed by hand with a blunt object and then the maker carefully engraves a design, again by hand. Engraving an elaborate design that included the initial(s) of a loved one or of the giver of the token, and some fanciful curls, etc around the initials and the rim, were clearly a tedious labor of love.

While some examples are simple; many are undeniable works of art. Note the example in the picture with this column. The tokens were intended as a keepsake. It often memorialized a special event or date, often only known to the giver and the recipient. To qualify as a “love token” it had to be engraved on a real coin.

Originally given by a beau to a girlfriend, they later included tokens to family members, relatives, and close friends. Love tokens, while found on many denominations, they are most often found on Seated Liberty dimes (1837-91). A dime was an affordable coin to part with, but still allowed ample room for most intended designs. Additionally, unlike the Hobo Nickel, the silver dime was a softer metal to manipulate. Silver quarters and half dollars while suitable were important, spendable pieces and not always in the common man’s pocket.

We have seen a few (very few) love tokens on silver dollars and gold coins, they are exceedingly rare and command a sizeable premium in today’s market. The $1 gold coin was actually much smaller than a dime and not a practical option. The $2 ½ gold quarter eagle was the next smallest gold coin available, and was about the size of a dime. However, due to its buying power back then YOU REALLY HAD TO LOVE SOMEONE A LOT to be ABLE TO AFFORD THAT.

A significant number of love tokens were made by soldiers during the Civil War. Soldiers would fill idle time while camping or awaiting orders to move engraving love tokens from pocket change. Later, during the Victorian Era, folks were more willing to quietly express their emotions, so Love Tokens continued to be more popular.

My personal favorite (now secured in a safe deposit box) is a 16-coin love token necklace I received from a dear friend (a doctor) in Maine.

In our next column we’ll discuss the current state of the Morgan dollar market, which continues to be quite robust.

O’Hearn and McCoy, representing McCoy’s Action Karate, win medals at World Martial Arts Games

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

AUBURN — While Madelyn O’Hearn and Barbara McCoy didn’t exactly take Dublin, Ireland, by storm last month, the pair certainly got noticed as they competed in the World Organization of Martial Arts Athletes (WOMAA) World Martial Arts Games.

The 10-year-old O’Hearn, who lives in Webster and is a student at Charlton Middle School, earned three gold medals and a bronze while competing in the advanced category of the 10-13 Year-Old Age Group Division. McCoy, 33, who along with her family owns and operates McCoy’s Action Karate on Southbridge Street, also earned a gold medal.

In Dublin O’Hearn mined gold in Traditional Kata (forms), Open Weapons (Nunchucks) and Sparring (fighting). She earned a bronze medal in Traditional Weapons (Bo Staff). McCoy’s gold medal was earned in Women’s Black Belt Kenpo (forms).

O’Hearn was introduced to the sport when she was 5 years old by her mother, who gave her a gift certificate for lessons as a birthday present.

“After the initial lessons were over, because I really Madelyn O’Hearn, left, and Barbara McCoy both competed in the World Organization of Martial Arts Athletes World Martial Arts Games in Dublin, Ireland in July. O’Hearn won three gold medals and a bronze, while McCoy also took home a gold medal.

liked it, I just kept on doing it more and more,” said O’Hearn, who said she practices about five days a week for about two hours a day. “I really enjoy it. I like how it makes me feel; it makes me feel stronger and more self-confident.”

McCoy was thrilled at how well O’Hearn performed in Ireland.

“It was one of the coolest things I’ve ever got to witness. It wasn’t an ‘Oh my gosh, she did it’ sense of surprise. The surprise was the overwhelming emotion I felt seeing where she has come from,” McCoy explained. “She started with us when she was 5 years old. Just seeing her grow, knowing she’ll be going to new schools and doing the normal pre-teen things that kids do, as well as pushing herself to be an athlete in a sport that is coming to the Olympics in 2020; it’s all very exciting.

“Her drive, the conquering her own fears, her success; it was all amazing to watch,” McCoy continued. “You expect your students to do great things; you just never expect to be around to see it. It’s like a legacy; you plant the garden and then it blooms. She’s blooming in front of me and I get to be a part of it. That’s what makes it so amazing. I already knew she could do it, but for her to know herself she could do it, that’s the amazing thing.”

Madelyn O’Hearn of Webster displays the four medals she earned while competing at the World Martial Arts Games.

O’Hearn, who qualified for her trip to Ireland by winning a tournament in Maine earlier this year, said competing in another specific world competition is on her to-do list.

“I don’t know about in 2020, but at some point I want to compete in the Olympics,” O’Hearn said. “That is definitely a goal of mine.”

Barbara McCoy, whose family owns McCoy’s Action Karate in Auburn, decided to compete in the World Martial Arts Games during her trip to Dublin to help coach student Madelyn O’Hearn.

The fact that McCoy competed — and earned gold — was perhaps the biggest surprise of the trip.

“I was mainly going to help run the tournament and coach Madelyn,” McCoy said. “But, while I was there, between seeing things through Madelyn’s eyes and the group I was with — how supportive and protective they were — I ended up competing.”

Ever-growing Laid Back Competitive Baseball League finishes sixth season

BY KEN POWERS
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — The Laid Back Competitive Baseball League (LBCBL) recently wrapped up its sixth season, holding its League Championship Series at Turner’s Club Field in Sturbridge on Aug. 19 and its All-Star Game and Home Run Derby at Charlton Memorial Field on Aug. 26.

In the League Championship Series (LCS) the Turner’s Club Nuts won their second consecutive league crown, defeating the DC Whitecaps, 2-0, in the best-of-three series. Turner’s Club — which finished the season undefeated — won the first LCS game with pitching (4-3), and the second game with offense (16-6).

For Turner’s Club (18-0), Ray Bell got the win on the bump in Game 1, tossing a complete-game six-hitter, allowing three runs, two earned, while striking out eight. Pat Button, Tim Santilli and Shane Presutti all homered for Turner’s Club in the game. The majority of the Whitecaps’ offense in Game 1 came off the bat of Matt Vertucci, who clubbed a two-run homer in the fifth inning.

In Game 2, Turner’s Club spotted the 13-5 Whitecaps a 2-0 first inning lead, but came roaring back with a run in the second inning, four in the third and five in the fifth to get control of the game.

Curtis Orlik, who jump-started the Turner’s Club bats in the second with a solo home run, picked up the win on the mound, hurling four innings and striking out five. Button, Santilli, Nick Champeau and Tim Reeves all had three hits in the Game 2 win, with Santilli providing the big blow, a three-run homer.

“The Championship Series was great; especially the first game, it was very back and forth,” said Cody Mundell, the founder of the league and a member of both the Turner’s Club Nuts and the Sturbridge TinCaps. “Everybody had fun all season and we had some very competitive games.”

In the LBCBL All-Star Game, the West Division — which consists of Turner’s Club, the TinCaps, the North Brookfield Gunners, the Brimfield Pirates and the Fiskdale Fisters — defeated players from the East Division, which consists of the Whitecaps, the Oxford Bomb Squad, Lomuscio Trucking, the Southbridge Spectacles and the Shrewsbury Colonials, 19-1.

Champeau was the hitting star for the West squad, going 5 for 5, driving in five runs with a triple, a double and three singles. West teammate Steve Witkowski helped the winning cause by clubbing a three-run homer.

“Wow, 5 for 5, not too shabby; I’ve never done that before in my baseball career — at any level,” said Champeau, a 2011 graduate of Tantasqua Regional who also played at Westfield State University. “I was able to put some good swings on the ball. I was happy to be able to help my team.”

Witkowski’s home run was mildly disputed by the East team because the ground rule at the Charlton field is that in order to be a home run in right field the ball has to go into the overgrown brush on the fly. Witkowski’s ball hit off a set of bleacher in right-center field before hopping into the brush.

“That ball is a home run at every field I’ve ever played on,” said the 31-year-old Witkowski, a Leicester High graduate. He grooved a fastball and I was sitting on it.”

Winning the LBCBL Home Run Derby was the Oxford Bomb Squad’s Tyler Bostek, who smashed a total of 11 home runs in the three-round competition, including five in the final round. Bostek edged Bomb Squad teammate Nick Cardoni for the title by a single dinger. Cardoni, who was also Bostek’s teammate at Oxford High back in the day, drilled four home runs in the final round and seven in all.

“There was no mindset going in,” Bostek said. “I just wanted to come out and have a good time, take some good swings and have some fun with it.”

Cardoni’s runner-up finish in the HR Derby might be surprising to those that knew him in high school, but the pitcher/second baseman is no longer the skinny kid that played for the Pirates.

“I’ve learned what the gym is since high school,” he said. “Now that I’m an old guy I’ve put a little meat on my bones.”

Mundell said that he was pleased with the progress the LBCBL made during the 2017 season.

“This year we went from having seven teams to 10 teams, which was really cool, and we split into two Divisions, an East Division and a West Division. We made the split geographically,” said Mundell, who said the league is open to anyone age 16 and up who wants to keep playing baseball during the summer.

“It used to be 18-and-over when we first started,” Mundell explained, “but we lowered it to 16-plus when Little League stopped having a Big League Division [ages 16-19]. “We’ve had a number of younger kids come in the league, especially this year with Shrewsbury, but we’ve got some older guys, too. My dad [Mark Mundell] plays, he’s 53, and Ron Champeau plays too, and he’s 55.”

Going to the dogs as the weather turns toward hunting seasons

What great weather this past week. The cool air sure has the feeling of fall & the dogs can also feel the change in the air. Taking the dogs out for their daily walk has them actively looking for some sort of scent to track. My wife's beagle has found a few quail at the Rod & Gun Club during our daily walks, and I am sure she will be hunting alongside of my Lab Twig this year. This is the time of year to start exercising your dog on a daily basis. Hunting season is only a few weeks away, and I am sure that many dogs have put on a few pounds during the summer season. Conditioning your hunting companion now will pay off big time for the hunting season.

This week's picture shows Jerome Jessume of Douglas doing some training of his dogs at the Uxbridge Rod & Gun Club recently. Jerome rides his bike around the club to get some good exercise for his dogs and himself, and then later takes time to do some training. He also spends a lot of time at field trials in Connecticut. It is great to watch a well trained dog in the field, and it will sure pay off during the bird season.

The first segment of the Canada goose season is slated to start on Sept. 5 in Massachusetts, with a liberal daily bag limit of seven. If you are lucky enough to have a grass field to hunt, that has been cut prior to opening day, you have a good chance of bagging a few birds. Very few corn fields will be cut in time for the opening day. Finding a hunting area for geese prior to hunting season is essential, and permission to hunt is always needed to insure a good day in the field. Hunting private property always requires permission to hunt, showing respect and appreciation for hunting the landowner's property. Sharing some of your harvested game with the landowner will go a long way in your continued use of the property.

Duck season in Massachusetts opens on Oct. 9, this year in the Central District. All of the waterfowl dates were set at the last Massachusetts Fish & Wildlife board meeting. Many years ago this writer and a large group of waterfowl sportsmen from as far away as Revere attended the meeting in Lexington, hoping to influence the board to set dates that would better serve waterfowl hunters. Although few changes were made, it gave us the chance to meet old friends and talk about our hunting experiences of years past.

This writer had met Frank Anderson of Revere and his hunting buddy Jerry Woodmansee on one of our coastal hunting adventures many years ago. The two sportsmen were officers in the Concerned Coastal Gunners Association, which was a group of sportsmen that had a strong voice in protecting coastal marshes, and fought to keep many of the marshes open to hunting. We had some great waterfowl hunting experiences along the waterfront in Revere and surrounding areas with the two hunters. They set my brother and me up with a duck hunting guide that offered to take us on our first Eider hunt. It was a great experience that we both never forgot. Unfortunately, Frank passed away at a young age and I have lost contact with Jerry. I believe that the Coastal Gunners group is no longer active, but they sure did a lot to preserve waterfowl hunting along the Massachusetts Coast.

The Central District regular duck season opens on Oct. 9 in Massachusetts! One of the big changes this year is the daily bag limit of black ducks that have been increased to two birds daily. The big responsibility of the hunter is identifying the birds in flight prior to shooting. Many blacks and mallards have interbred making identification hard. Wood ducks have continued to do well in Massachusetts with a good population of birds available over past years which allow hunters to harvest three birds again this year. Waterfowl hunters are reminded that only steel shot is legal to hunt all waterfowl species. A state and federal stamp is also required for all waterfowl hunting.

The Whitinsville Fish & Game Club will hold their annual Field Day on Sept. 23. A clam bake and chicken barbecue are planned for the event. The public is invited.

The Wallum Lake in Rod & Gun Club will hold their annual field day Sept. 10. A big day of food and fun is planned, and the public is invited to attend. Both clubs have plenty of free parking!

Reports of great striped bass fishing at the Canal this past week. Every one that was fishing, was hooking into some impressive fish. Hopefully it will last a while longer.

This past week Steve Mercure and his wife fished the Westport River along with first time fishermen, 80 year old Bob Burbank of Uxbridge.

Bob had never been fishing in his life and enjoyed the trip so much he is now hooked on fishing Special thanks to Steve and his wife for taking Bob along on their fishing trip. He cannot wait for the next opportunity to go fishing.

Annual festival celebrates ethnic roots

Ann Atkins and Rose Smoolca staff the jewelry table.

DUDLEY — It wasn't a notable birthday number, but St. Andrew Bobola Church had fun celebrating its 63rd anniversary last weekend anyway, with hundreds of people turning out for kielbasa, beer, polkas, kids' games, a chicken barbecue, and even an outdoor polka Mass. According to its website, the church is believed to be the first one in the US dedicated to a Polish Jesuit missionary priest killed during a Cossack uprising in 1657.

Malgorzata Sudyka thumbs through kids' books seeking some for grandchildren not yet born.

Couples dance a slow waltz.

Lee and Teresa Gendron sell raffle tickets.

A girl helps organize the colored sand table, one of several children's activities.

Josh Bussiere creates a big bubble.

Renata Sudyka and other volunteers dish up Polish food. Behind them, others served traditional American fare.

ribs (baby back); 1 cup KC Masterpiece Smoky Bourbon Barbecue Sauce

Dry Rub Ingredients: 1/4 cup dark brown sugar; 4 teaspoons garlic salt; 4 teaspoons chili powder; 2 teaspoons salt; 1 teaspoon black pepper; 1/2 teaspoon celery salt; 1/4 teaspoon red pepper; 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon; 1/4 teaspoon white pepper

Liquid Seasoning Ingredients: 1/2 cup apple cider; 1/4 cup apple jelly; 1/4 cup honey; 1/4 cup brown sugar; 1 tablespoon dry rub mix (above)

Directions Remove membrane from the back of the rib slabs. In a small bowl, combine dry rub ingredients and mix well. Reserve one tablespoon rub for the liquid seasoning mixture. Generously apply dry rub onto the front and back sides of ribs. Build a charcoal fire for indirect cooking. Add a small aluminum pan to the void side of the grill and fill it halfway with water. When the charcoal grill reaches 250 F, place ribs meat-side up on grill grate and cook over indirect heat for two hours and 15 minutes. Remove ribs from the grill. Place each slab meat-side down on its own doubled aluminum foil square. Mix liquid seasoning in a small bowl. Pour 1/2 cup of the liquid over each slab. Then, tightly wrap and seal each slab with aluminum foil. Place wrapped ribs back in cooker for one hour at 250 F. Remove ribs from the charcoal grill and discard foil. Brush barbecue sauce on both sides of the ribs. Place the ribs back on the grill for 15 minutes, or until sauce caramelizes. Makes 4-6 servings.

Gion thinks black people are porch monkeys and he is a supervisor employed here,” before suggesting Gion be fired from his employment with the town, which dates back to the 1970s. Dudley selectmen addressed the concerns on August 21, albeit in executive session, but some public discussion did take place specifically during the citizens’ comments segment of that night’s meeting. African American Dudley resident Michael Dubois brought the matter to the table immediately seeking action from selectmen as he had to explain to his children why the term was bad and why someone would use it, especially a town official. “I tried to explain to my son why things were said that were inappropriate. Living in this town over 20 years I’m embarrassed, truly embarrassed,” Dubois said. “As an African American living in this town I’m very offended. This should have never happened. (Dan Gion) is an official in this town and he’s supposed to act like an official in this town. I pay my taxes. I don’t think it’s right for me to have to pay for something like this. It’s embarrassing.”

Dubois continued by responding to those who defended Gion as a devoted employee of the town who has worked hard to provide for the community and made a bad decision. Dubois said Gion’s work ethic wasn’t the question in this scenario. “What difference does it make what he did (for Dudley)? Everybody in this town works hard and goes up the ladder just like everybody else – I have a forgiving heart and I forgive Dan Gion for saying what he said, but it doesn’t make it right,” Dubois said.

Gion was present for the meeting and approached the microphone with a prepared statement. Clearly shaken as he spoke, Gion said he regretted what he said and understands the severity of his statements, especially when it comes to the local African American community and the image Dudley works to maintain.

“I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely apologize to the Board of Selectmen, the town administrator, and the citizens of the town of Dudley for my insensitive comment in an online discussion in response to some harsh words directed at me for my opinion on a video that was being discussed, which quickly got heated and a little out of hand. I never should have let my emotions get the best of me. Sitting at home on a Monday night around 9:30 p.m. the furthest thing from my mind was that I was acting in the capacity of a town employee. I understand that the comment I made wasn’t right and certainly brought a negative light on the good town of Dudley and upset a lot of people, especially the African American community,” Gion said.

Gion added that he wanted to stress his apology was sincere and not simply a required reaction to the controversy surrounding him and that he made a decision that is haunting him which could have been avoided had he been more professional. “We all make mistakes. You have to learn from them so you can move on and be a better person and that’s what I intend to do,” Gion said.

Dubois, who was the only individual other than Gion to speak on the matter on August 21, said that he felt swifter action should have been taken by the selectmen once the comment on Facebook was brought to light. Selectman John Marsi explained that selectmen intended to address the situation from the start, but wanted to do so properly at a public meeting where the matter could also be brought to executive session. After selectmen went behind closed doors to discuss potential disciplinary action a press release was generated, with Gion’s permission to make the board’s decision public, announcing a suspension and other requirements for Gion whom, prior to the August 21 meeting, had simply been put on administrative leave.

The press release, generated from the office of Town Administrator Greg Balukonis, stated, “During the (executive session), the Board of Selectmen unanimously voted to suspend Mr. Gion for one week without pay, to require Mr. Gion to attend diversity/sensitivity training and to make Gion’s televised apology part of the permanent record.” The release further clarified that regardless of whether an employee of Dudley is on duty or off duty their actions can reflect on the town and that “each and every town employee appointed, volunteer, represented by a union, or an employee at will should expect that there will be significant consequences for actions to the contrary.”

ELDER PROGRAM

pants a brand-new facility that is close to where many of our participants live. We’re honored to continue serving the community with a program we know meets the needs of frail elders who desire to live as independently as possible and the loved ones caring for them.”

Each Summit ElderCare PACE center provides a safe environment where participants may see their doctors and nurses, take part in daily recreational and therapeutic activities and receive hot meals — all in one location. The PACE model of comprehensive care and services includes physicians and nurse practitioners who specialize in the care of older adults. In addition, PACE addresses individual needs which often go unmet in traditional medicine including, for example, in home nursing and personal care, and support for caregivers. This coordinated comprehensive model of care is key to helping people avoid nursing home placement and continue to live safely in the community.

In addition to this, the new site will offer features to members not currently available in Charlton including:

- More space in the day rooms
- A larger rehabilitation center
- More spacious outdoor patio areas
- More exam room capacity
- A new clinic waiting area
- A larger library

An on-site hair salon

“It is an honor to care for participants in our Charlton location so that they can live as independently as possible,” said Dr. Tom Ebert, chief medical officer at Fallon Health. “We’re committed to making the transition from Charlton to Webster as easy as possible for them before, during and after the move. We look forward to caring for existing participants — as well as incoming participants and their families — in a newly constructed state-of-the-art facility.”

Founded in 1977, Fallon Health is a leading health care services organization that supports the diverse and changing needs of those we serve. In addition to offering innovative health insurance solutions and a variety of Medicaid and Medicare products, we excel in creating unique health care programs and services that provide coordinated, integrated care for seniors and individuals with complex health needs. Fallon has consistently ranked among the nation’s top health plans and is accredited by the National Committee for Quality Assurance for its HMO, Medicare Advantage and Medicaid products. All services must be provided by or authorized by the PACE Interdisciplinary Team (except emergency services). PACE participants may be held liable for costs for unauthorized or out-of-PACE program agreement services.

got underway Brian Ceccarelli was the first to speak saying that he felt the notification for the hearing, which was labeled a “dangerous dog hearing” on the meeting agenda, was improper and voiced his concern that he would not get a fair hearing.

“I feel extremely uncomfortable with this hearing. I feel extremely uncomfortable with the people who are sitting here,” Brian Ceccarelli said, noting he had a restraining order against one individual in the audience before requesting the hearing be taken into executive session. Selectmen did not oblige to the request and police officials ruled that the individual Ceccarelli was concerned with was at a public hearing and would be allowed to remain as long as they didn’t try to interact with or approach Ceccarelli.

The alleged victim in the incident, Maggie Lavasseur who owns golden retriever Honey, was the first to speak on the incident itself saying she was walking Honey on Ash Lane with her daughter when Chance got lose and the incident unfolded.

“As we got closer a couple of the dogs came out of the garage directly at myself and my daughter as we were on the sidewalk. None of the dogs were on leashes or restrained. I had observed at least three dogs. I began to scream to alert the people who were outside. In the blink of an eye one of the dogs had my golden retriever in his jaw. The other dog was restrained before he got to us.” Lavasseur told selectmen. “My golden retriever was bitten on her hindquarter, her side, and eventually pinned down by the side of her head and ear area to the sidewalk. There were two or three large adult males attempting to pry this dog off of my dog as she was crying.”

Lavasseur said that the Ceccarellis were very apologetic and acknowledged that they even offered to cover medical bills for Honey if any major damage had been done. Lavasseur said that she overheard a nearby resident say that this was the third time Chance had been seen involved in this type of incident.

Catherine Ceccarelli then told her end of the story, explaining that Chance did get loose while the exchange from one collar to another was taking place as the family utilizes a remote collar and a second collar to control the dog. Chance managed to get free during the changeover to the remote collar and preceded to approach Honey, whom Catherine Ceccarelli said was on her property.

“By the time we were realizing what was going on and all the commotion we grabbed the remote and were pushing it. Chance was already at the dog,” Catherine Ceccarelli said. “He left my presence, but he was still in the yard, on the grass. The attack happened on the grass and ended up on the sidewalk.”

During the discussions, Lavasseur said that harsher action against the owners in past hearings might have prevented Honey from being attacked and called for action against the Ceccarellis.

“It is reprehensible that this even occurred as I have learned since the incident that this dog has been involved in at least three, if not four other incidents making my dog the fourth or the fifth victim. This dog and its owners have been in front of this board in the past and somehow been allowed to keep this dog. It’s very unfortunate that this dog is very likely going to be euthanized due to the incompetence of the owners and the gross negligence of the owners and the board,” Ceccarelli said, adding that the board of selectmen “bears liability” due to a lack of action.

When it came time for a decision selectmen showed understanding for the severity of the incident with Selectman Paul Joseph calling is one of the toughest calls he’s had to make in his time as selectman. Still, Joseph said the situation was simple, in a past hearing the Ceccarellis were instructed to keep control of Chance at all times and they failed to meet that requirement.

“The dog was not under the Ceccarelli’s control. In my opinion that was contrary to the agreement that we reached and therefore it’s appropriate for the Board of Selectmen to take additional action,” Joseph stated. “The last time we had the hearing we knew the dog was a nuisance and (the Ceccarellis) did too and knew what they had to do and did it. They agreed the dog would always be under their control. They didn’t intentionally not meet that standard, but they weren’t able to meet that standard and the dog attacked again. I’ve had a lot of tough calls in 14 years as a selectman and this one bothers me as much as any of them.”

Selectmen ordered Chance to remain under quarantine with the Dudley animal control officer until the Ceccarellis exercised their options to take the matter to a higher court if they wish. Selectmen did so to try and find a happy medium between action and allowing Chance’s owners to exercise their own powers of appeal before the dog is put down. Part of the selectmen’s motion ordered that the Ceccarellis pay for the housing of Chance while the dog is in quarantine and that if no action is taken or the courts do not overrule the board decision that Chance be euthanized.

Brian Ceccarelli had made a note during the meeting that Chance was a certified service dog although selectmen stated that regardless of what Chance’s certification is the dog is a repeat offender and that “service dogs should not attack other dogs.”

Selectman Jonathan Ruda said it’s not about the dog’s certification, but what the dog has done.

“We still have to protect other people and dogs as they go by,” said Ruda. “It has nothing to do with whether you’re getting a benefit from the dog or not – This gives the (owners) a chance to seek other legal remedies as opposed to us just taking a blanket action.”

Brian Ceccarelli made the final statement in the hearing, showing frustration towards town authorities that he said didn’t support him in his situation. As of this report no further action by the Ceccarellis to reverse the Board of Selectmen’s decision had been recorded or made public.

until the Sept. 20 discussion, but before the public hearing was officially continued to next month Briare brought up one more item of concern involved the CMRPC, the organizations attempt to bring about a round table at nearby Nichols College among the many businesses in Dudley. An email was read during the Economic Development Commissions August meeting calling for the round table, which Briare said caught him by surprise.

“Under the guise of our economic development plan they wanted to reach out to Nichols and do some sort of a focus group with some businesses. They didn’t even ask or even let us know that they were going to do that,” Briare told committee members. “What threw me off with that is I can understand them wanting to sit down with Nichols and understand what is Nichols growth and their own business plan – And then taking that information and seeing what the town needs to do, but the idea of tying in additional businesses there just kind of threw me.”

Briare didn’t seem to express any ill feelings toward the CMRPC at the August 16 meeting, but simply said he wants to reach out to representatives to get on the same page with how to move forward and preserve transparency in the process. The CMRPC is expected to play some role in the forthcoming September meeting.

familiar products. And to further interest your grandchildren in a lifetime of investing, you may want to show them how a particular stock you’ve owned for decades has grown over time. Naturally, you’ll also want to let them know that stocks can move up and down in the short term, and there are no guarantees of profits – but the long-term growth potential of stocks is still a compelling story.

You’d probably do whatever you could for your grandchildren – and with a smart financial gift, you can make a big difference in their lives.

the law requires.

Jennifer Snay’s dog Buddy was also attacked. Snay said she was at home, and Buddy was inside, when Kiley came down the street in a wheelchair with Ruby on a leash.

“[Ruby] was pretty much walking him,” Snay recalled. Buddy saw them, pushed her door open, and ran to the street. “He wanted to play,” she said, but Ruby didn’t see it that way and bit him.

Parker said she got Ruby about six years ago from the town’s kennel. At the time, “she’d been kept outside the old kennel about 6-8 months when I came along,” she said, later adding, “If I was more aware of the situation, I might have re-thought [adopting her].”

“My whole life, I’ve rescued animals and taken them in,” Parker said. “Ruby’s great with people. Her problem is with other animals,” especially if she feels they threaten Kiley.

For a while, she said, she’s been trying to get Ruby to wear a muzzle when walking, but the dog soon learned how to remove it herself. (Snay said she’s never seen the dog muzzled.)

Muzzling with a better device was a key part of Flynn’s recommendation going forward; other elements included microchipping (within 14 days), leashing (maximum 3 feet long), and erecting a fenced enclosure around the Parker home’s entrance so Ruby can’t bound outside and reach the street (within 30 days). But the dog cannot be “tied to an inanimate object;” the leash must always be in the hands of “a responsible adult capable of restraining the dog,” Flynn said, noting Parker already has a fenced enclosure. It just has to be put in the right place.

Selectmen asked her to confirm all of the items are done to her satisfaction.

Chairman Dennis Lamarche immediately took euthanasia off the table, noting “that’s not even in my thought process.” He noted his dog “will go ballistic,” under some circumstances, and “dogs will be dogs.”

Referring to the town kennel, he noted the old facility was “a disgraceful way to harbor animals.” That’s why he and others worked to replace it a few years ago. “Personally, as a human being, I’m sorry you had to go through this” he told Parker, “...but it’s beyond this board’s control.”

Overall, the selectmen agreed that Ruby is only a danger to other dogs; noting that in three of the four incidents, the other dog was unleashed. John Saad said he didn’t want to “make it inconvenient” for Parker and Kiley, but the selectmen need to protect the safety of people walking dogs in that area

Town Attorney Greg Corbeau noted that the law requires the leash and muzzle whenever Ruby’s outdoors, even in the fenced area or on Parker’s property. If anyone sees a violation, they can report it to police or selectmen. At that point, “the owner is required to forfeit the dog and is prohibited from licensing a dog in the Commonwealth for five years, so this order needs to be strictly complied with,” he said.

ALZHEIMER'S SUPPORT: The Webster Alzheimer's Support Group meets the second Monday of each month at Webster Manor, 745 School St., from 6-8 p.m. Anyone in the area who feels they are in need of help, doesn't know what to do, or is a caregiver for someone with Alzheimer's, is invited to attend and express their concerns regarding the care for their loved one. The members of the group will discuss the ways, means, and the help you will need as your loved one progresses in this disease. Please come join with us at each meeting and you'll be glad that you did. Each person has a different story to tell and you will be given tips to help you work through this agonizing and dreadful disease.

LEAGUE OF CATHOLIC WOMEN: The St. Louis League of Catholic Women is holding its annual membership drive. The purpose of the league is to bring together women to further their cultural, social, and religious interests. The league meets every first Wednesday of the month, with the exception of January, February, July, August, and September. Programs this year will include cupcake decorating, Christmas sing-a-long, flowers in the Bible, movie night, crowning of Mary, and other interesting topics. If you are interested, please call Financial Secretary Louise Duval at 508-943-7695 or club President Carolyn Smith at 508-943-4732.

Free Yoga Classes for Cancer Patients — Restorative yoga classes for cancer patients are offered weekly and are open to patients, survivors, and their families or caregivers. Classes are held every Saturday morning from 8:15 to 9 a.m. at the Oxford Community Center, 4 Maple Road, Oxford, and on Wednesdays from noon to 1 p.m. at Saint Vincent Cancer & Wellness Center, One Eaton Place, Worcester. The Restorative Yoga program is a complementary therapy that is designed to help reduce lymphedema, increase range of motion, and soothe neuropathies that may occur during all stages of treatment and recovery. These programs have been made possible through PinkHippy.Org, a 501(c)(3) non-profit holistic service and support organization that serves breast cancer patients, survivors and their families throughout Central MA, Northeastern CT, and Northwestern RI. Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
