Warren pledges 'access to every dollar' for tornado aid

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER – After an hour or so behind closed doors with local officials Thursday, the town's federal delegation pledged to seek funds to help Webster and Dudley rebuild from the recent tornado and the towns for doing the necessary work to make sure the data is accurate.

"We'll go through our alphabet soup" of agencies to "make sure Webster gets access to every dollar," Sen Elizabeth Warren said afterward.

Rep Richard Neal agreed, saying if the towns do the work "with some patience," they can follow Southbridge's footsteps. After the 2011 tornado that hit a swath from West Springfield to Charlton, Southbridge became "an example of what the end can look like," having repaired the damage, although it took some time.

Warren praised local officials for their "incredible professionalism" and effort to get "this city back on its feet as quickly as possible." But she also noted this event is not alone and the US needs to take the lead on handling climate change.

"This is a reminder that climate change has real, tangible implications," she said in response to a question. Weather disasters "keep happening again and again and again, and there are real costs to a changing climate. This is not a time for us to turn our backs on the needs of creating a sustainable world for all of us."

The tornado that hit Webster was relatively weak, an EF-1 with peak winds of about 110 mph on the standard 1-5 scale used to measure such storms. But a weaker one hit Woodstock the same day, and others have hit the region in the last couple of weeks.

Rep. Jim McGovern noted the total cost of the damage has not yet been calculated, but it may not reach the FEMA threshold to get federal disaster funding ($5 million). Still, he and others urged the town to document every possible expense related to it, and pledged they'd seek grants and other fund sources to help.

Several sources have already stepped forward to help in various areas. One of them is the regional RCAP Solutions based in Worcester, which has been working to prevent people from becoming homeless for nearly 50 years.

According to Vice-President Brian Scales, RCAP housing counselors went to Webster a couple days during the first week after the tornado, working to help about 30 of those displaced. They did the same thing in Southbridge during the 2011 tornado's aftermath.

"We're not necessarily geared toward emergency assistance in terms of natural disasters, but are a homelessness prevention program," Scales said. Most of the people in RCAP's programs are "people in distress, but you don't

Homeless helpers need help themselves

BY GUS STEEVES
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER – Last week's tornado left a few dozen people homeless, damaged several buildings, and caused the demolition of five.

Ironically, one of those left homeless, in a sense, is a local organization that helps the homeless – the Blessed Backpack Brigade. Their supply warehouse, dubbed "the Cave," is in the basement of one of the damaged buildings, now soaking in about eight inches of water.

"It's going to take a month or two until we can get into our place. By then, it'll all be moldy and mildewy," said John Mandarano, who told Stonebridge Press where it is, but asked not to print it.

The Cave holds everything the Brigade has collected, most of it donated, including tents, clothing, some furniture, some electronics and small appliances, food and bedding. A lot of it won't survive the inundation that came when the building's roof collapsed, although some is probably salvageable.

According to Paul Joseph, the Brigade had $4,000 to $6,000 in supplies there, and especially needs to replace the clothing, tents, sleeping bags, bottled water and canned goods to keep supporting the people who live on the streets and in the woods of Webster and nearby towns.

Lauri Joseph said she saw tents impaled on fences after the tornado. She noted she was "afraid to look" for some of the homeless people she knows, particularly one who has trouble walking, but doing so revealed "all of them were out and moving around."

Agriculture takes center stage in economic development

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — With the town now making progress towards finalizing a five-year economic development plan, recent conversations put a focus on agriculture and providing an outlet for producers in the community.

After discussing the layout of the five-year plan at a meeting July 30, Selectman Paul Joseph brought up an idea, putting the focus on the farms and producers of Dudley. His inspiration came from a recent meal of the Blessed Backpack Brigade, an organization Joseph is heavily involved with, which featured produced from Farmer Tim's, which provides a vegetable program. Joseph cited this as an example of the kind of initiative Dudley should be focusing on to meld economic growth with the preservation of the town's identity.

"The guy that owns (Farmer Tim's) is from Belmont. He bought the farm. He doesn't live there. He's not even a farmer. He just really likes the idea of a food co-op," Joseph said.

Land owner claims company is in the right

BY ERIN MILLER
TIMES INTERN

Northern Log Buyer LLC has been on Cudworth Road for two years, and residents voiced their complaints in an article released the week of July 27. The owner of the land the company is on has now stepped forward to say that the company is well within their rights to be there, and that residential homes shouldn't have been built in the first place.

Dan Prouty, the land owner, claims the area had been zoned industrial for nearly 51 years. With those numbers, he said that people should not have been allowed to build. However, the town building department confirmed that the area was zoned industrial only 25 years ago.

Besides the zoning, Prouty

Water loss blamed on broken hydrant

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — Following reports of low water pressure on Sunday, July 29 the Water & Sewer Department has revealed details about the cause of the problem which created an all-day search involving town employees and emergency officials throughout the town.

Department representative George Patrinos explained the situation to selectmen at a recent meeting as he noted reports came in the early morning on July 29 of water issues. The issue led officials to the tank on Bates Road, a reservoir that supplies water to the lower side of Dudley where most properties were affected.

"The tank went absolutely dry. We responded to the police call early in the morning. We noticed the charts were showing that the tank had made a substantial drop and that one tank was right down to the bottom. We searched around town as best we could. We got no reports of any main break. We got no reports of any kind of trouble with any lines. It was kind of an unusual situation that's never happened to us before," Patrinos told selectmen.

The search lasted throughout much of the morning with no results leading officials to section off parts of the town, shutting off streets and activating others in order to try and hunt down any leaks or breakages. Officials drove through different parts of Dudley listening for heavy water flow eventually coming across the unexpected cause of the issue.

"We came upon Chase Avenue as one of the last streets we reactivated and we just happened to hear the screaming of water as we were reopening the gate. That's not typical," Patrinos said. "The line was intact and immediately we were pointing to the mill, the Ethan Allen mill. The other two mills are shut down as far

District hires interim principal for Mason Road School

BY JASON BLEAU
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — Mason Road School will have a new leader in the upcoming school year. After the recent announcement Principal Robin Parmley would be leaving, the Dudley Charlton Regional School District set out to find a successor, at least on a temporary basis, until a full-time principal can be named.

On Aug. 8 the Dudley-Charlton Regional School Committee announced that Jennifer Desto, an individual with several years of educational experience including administrative duties in local school districts, will fill the void. Interim Superintendent Kristine Nash said she worked with Charlton Elementary School Principal Lori Pacheco throughout the process and they received numerous applications for the job.

“We had 23 candidates. Lori and I said we would do the paper screening. It's pretty interesting to me that she and I agreed in probably less than ten minutes, so I think it speaks something to my years of experience and probably hers,” Nash told the school committee. “The committee interviewed five candidates. My charge to the committee was to send me the candidates they would like me to meet that they feel could do the job and there was only one that rose to the top for a lot of reasons.”

Desto's experience in administration and with STEM programs helped her stand out as the prime candidate for the district. Nash said the decision to hire her on in an interim basis was an easy one.

“I think what the committee saw in Mrs. Desto is she is the right person in the right time at the right place because of her background and experiences,”

Nash said. “She worked in this district. She comes with experience as an administrator which I think is critical at this point when you're doing a transition this late. It's good to have someone who has had that experience leading a building before.”

Desto was present for the announcement and said she looks forward to joining the Mason Road School family and maybe even working her way to a permanent position in the school.

“I couldn't be more excited. I think it's been two years too long that it took me to come back to the district,” Desto said calling the new job an amazing opportunity.

“I hope in one year's time we're going to come back to here and it's not going to have an 'interim' attachment and we can be that forever. I'm extremely excited. I can't wait to get in there and get some things started.”

Car Buying Tips

People ask Place: My new car seems so complicated. Why do I have all this technology?

The Right answer: During our recent Classic Cruise we were able to see first hand the many differences in today's cars versus the cars of yesteryear. The new cars had so much more in electronics to increase performance, efficiency, comfort and most importantly safety. The innovations many of us have simply grown to expect in our cars were not available in the 50's, 60's or even 70's. Much of the now standard features were developed in just the last few decades. Federal regulation and of course customer demand have contributed to much of the new technology in the new cars. Even some of the new technology like your cell phone have sparked new tech in your cars. Airbags that were once only in the steering wheel now seem to come from everywhere and can create a complete “canopy” offering protection to passengers in every seating position. Ford even has available inflatable seat belts to provide rear passengers even more security. Anti-lock braking systems, stability control systems, adaptive cruise control, automatic climate control, intermittent wipers, infotainment systems, all-wheel drive, 6 and 10 speed automatic transmissions, power windows and door locks, back up cameras, electronic ignition and fuel injection are just some of the things we have seen in today's cars that weren't in those classic cars we love. In fact, did you know that in early F series pickups a passenger side windshield wiper was an extra cost option. We love those old cars and trucks. They sure are great to admire. Look closely at the new cars and trucks and marvel at the things they can do. The advancements are incredible and much more is coming to improve the next generation of transportation.

WATER

as water goes so those were really not in question but that mill was an active mill. They have their own business there. They run a suppression system. Right away the guys tried to get around the back.”

Patrinos explained because the mill is privately owned workers initially had a tough time accessing all parts of the property but were luckily able to make contact with someone on the grounds. After gaining access workers immediately found the cause of the problem, a broken privately owned hydrant pouring water. The hydrant was immediately shut down.

Patrinos said the Water & Sewer Department then shut down the booster system that helps provide water to the upper zone of Dudley, the area of Nichols College and Dresser Hill, in order to help gain water in the Bates tank.

“It's a long process to regain what we think was somewhere between 500 and 700 thousand gallons of water. This situation has really never happened before like that, since we had no access to that area. That's a private business in there. That's their hydrants, they own them. I did have a conversation with the person over there that runs the place,” Patrinos said.

The tank was refilled within days following the incident, with no complaints of dirty water reported from the Water & Sewer Department. Selectmen praised the officials who responded to the situation and used creative methods to pinpoint the source of the water loss in a timely manner.

Webster celebrates National Night Out

WEBSTER — Memorial Beach was a live with action for the annual National Night Out event, an evening dedicated to promoting police and community partnership. The event was properly timed Aug. 7, coming mere days after an EF1 tornado struck the town of Webster, bringing first responders to the front lines to help with the recovery. This was a big theme of the afternoon as citizens took the time to thank local EMS, fire and police officials and personnel for their commitment to the town. National Night Out in Webster was part of the 35th anniversary of the national campaign to promote a sense of community between citizens and first responders.

Don't Invest in Real Estate without a plan!

This weekend I met with 2 first time investors which prompted me to write this article. Clients will come to me and that they want to invest in Real Estate. This was prompted by someone saying Real Estate is a great investment and a great way to get passive income. It is exciting to be part of someone starting their venture into Real Estate investing but there are many important questions that I ask. These are questions that I ask in that meeting I have listed below which are questions you should ask yourself before you make your first purchase.

What is your goal with investing? Is it based on cash flow on the property or is it based on capital appreciation or both? How you answer these questions will affect where and what you invest in.

How will you be purchasing? Cash or Loan? This will affect what you can buy and what return you are able to accept

How many units do you plan on buying? What is your end goal?

How long do you plan on holding the investments? This is important to have an idea prior to that first purchase so you can decide if you buy many buildings as to where you would like them to be because it is much easier to have many buildings in one location than scattered all around

BLACK

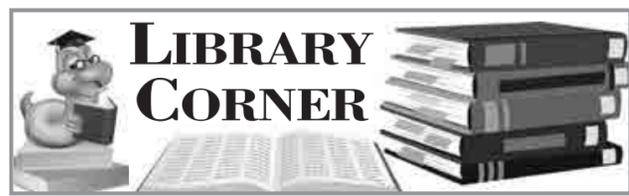

Location? You should have a plan on what locations you desire to buy in so you don't make an emotional purchase that does not fit the plan

Do you have any experience with rentals? If you do not it cannot hurt to spend a day at housing court and listen to some of the challenges you may encounter and also find someone who has owned many rentals for years and buy them lunch and have them tell you their best practices and challenges

How soon will you be ready to buy?

This is important because the market is still very active and most good deals go within a few days if not a few hours so you want your financing or cash ready if w=you want to buy now

Never invest in anything you do not understand. When you decide to invest find an agent who is well versed on Real Estate Investing and who owns properties themselves. The other thing you want to ensure is that they have the heart of a teacher so part of the value you receive from them would be everytime you get to pick their brain and they get to educate you on what challenges you may encounter.

“There are 32 families in Dudley or Charlton that have bought into the food co-op and they also harvest the same vegetables for 32 families out in Belmont. So, they've got 62 families.”

Joseph also brought up other farms that serve as “grass roots” efforts to provide fresh beef, fruit and vegetables and are in keeping with the aesthetic that citizens have sought to preserve in Dudley. Joseph also discussed a previously considered initiative called “Dudley Dayz,” and proposed the idea of utilizing the town common as a central point for home-grown and hand made goods for Dudley on certain occasions.

“Go back to your roots in Dudley where it's homegrown and homemade and separate those people out and concentrate them in one area so that people know we've got something pretty good here going on in Dudley,” he said.

The idea of putting agriculture front and center earned some support from Joseph's fellow selectmen with Board Chair Steve Sullivan noting it's in keeping with some of the recent complaints received by citizens about how newer business ventures like solar farms are being seen as corrupting the character of the town.

“We had somebody say, and I'm paraphrasing, the solar farm is destroying the soul of Dudley,” Sullivan said referencing a recent public hearing concerning a proposed solar farm. “If (Mr. Joseph's) idea can be put pen to paper we could maybe mollify the people who thought the solar farm on Ramshorn would destroy the soul of Dudley.”

Not every selectman was convinced however, with Selectman Jonathan Ruda questioning how such an idea would truly help Dudley on an economic level.

“This is something Mr. Briare and the Economic Development Committee are going to have to sell me on personally. I mean I like what Mr. Joseph is saying but the soul of Dudley does not seem to be revenue generating to me if its vegetable stands,” Ruda said. “That's fine that we have farm stands and so forth, but I don't see how inside of 40 years that generates any revenue for Dudley.”

Economic a Development

Committee Chair John Briare said that agriculture doesn't necessarily have to be limited to just farm stands and it's very possible Dudley could find a happy medium between modern agriculture and the small town appeal residents seek to preserve.

“The traditional view of agriculture is growing corn and cucumbers,” Briare said adding that agriculture also includes pharmaceuticals and other alternative businesses like wineries, which are running out of land utilize in areas like Cape Cod.

“One of the issues with the farmers' markets when we talk to farmers is there's so many of them and it takes away time from the farm. So, if there was something that they could do that makes the most economical sense to them to move their product that's sort of idea — At the end of the day Dudley is a community of really good people that really step up. I think if the people of Dudley had an opportunity to help keep business in Dudley and help support farmers all they need to do is be made aware of that and they would step up and do it. We've got the best of the best here in town.”

KIMBERLY MASCHI
TIMES CORRESPONDENT

Local brothers have contributed to the town of Oxford in great ways. Jack and Brian Cady, recent graduates from Oxford High School, have added to the community in pursuit of their Eagle Scout acceptance.

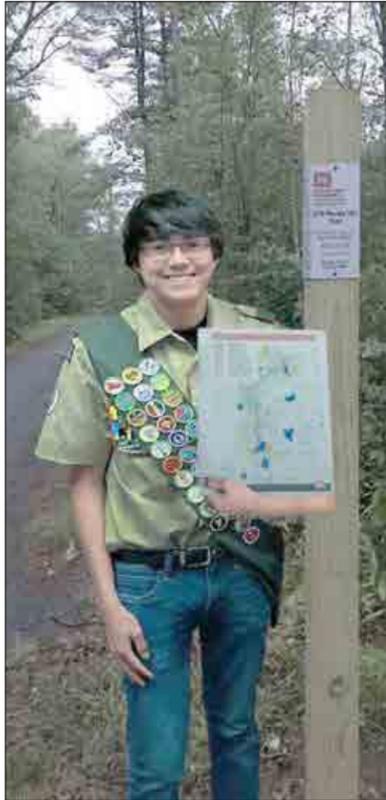

"We saw a need in the community and took steps to help," say the brothers.

Jack Cady, from Boy Scout Troop 147 in Oxford, has made a major contribution to the Hodges Village trail located in Oxford. The trail is over 22 miles long and Jack Cady walked the full East side of the trail and designated areas for new signs to be posted. These signs are designed to help hikers follow a trail and in case of emergency have a way to tell rescuers where they are located. The plaques contain the logo for the US Army Corps of Engineers and the location to give in case of an emergency. In doing this project, he has inspired other pursuers of Eagle Scout to follow suit. Chris C. will be working on the West side of Hodges Village Dam and Chris S. will be working on the 7.2 mile loop around Buffumville Lake. Jack Cady wanted to make sure that those lost or injured would have an exact location when they called for help.

Brian Cady and friends handmade four picnic tables and planters for the Ruel Field located near the A.M. Chaffee school. Brian used a trust he and his brother received from their grandfather to fund the project. Brian says he and his friends made the tables in his yard and friends brought over tools to help. The picnic tables are a perfect addition to Ruel Field. There is a new concession stand that was established in 2015. Now, thanks to Brian, there are picnic tables to go along with the drinks and snacks from the concession stand. Next time you are at Ruel Field watching a soccer game, and you sit down for a snack, you can thank Brian Cady for the comfy seats and beautiful planters filled with flowers.

The town of Oxford has the Cady brothers to thank for safety and comfort. Jack and Brian both love the Boy Scouts and are eager to become Eagle Scouts. They look for reasons to help their community and have earned tons of badges and experience over the years.

To become an Eagle Scout there are many requirements. First, one must earn Scout then Tenderfoot. After that it is Second Class, First Class, Star, and Life Ranks. All of these ranks need activities in camping, cooking, navigation, nature, aquatics, first aid, fitness, leadership, safety, citizenship, and Scout spirit. These ranks take a lot of time to finish. This shows the immense dedication and persistence that these boys demonstrate. The projects these brothers chose were very different and both serve the community of Oxford and surrounding towns in different ways. One for comfort and recreational use. The other for safety and guidance through one of the most beautiful areas in Oxford.

normally get a large amount at once" as happens with disasters. In Webster, there are "a lot of families who are desperate," but also numerous agencies coming out to help, he added.

One issue with the tornado response is that some people have family members they can stay with and have some time to get a new place, while others "don't have the same kind of resources and want to get through it quickly," he noted.

A place to be the 'real me'

Now the body slamming starts to get serious

MASH UPS
KIMBERLY

I met a local roller derby team. "I wanted a place where I can be me," claimed Wildish Jambino.

What has 8 wheels, a fierce attitude, and an extreme dedication to winning through brutality? A roller derby girl, and I got to meet a whole team. Deep in the bowels of Worcester there is a building that at first glance looks to belong in an opening sequence to Law and Order. This building is in fact the training playground for the magnificent women of Worcester Roller Derby. A blue roller rink with a red middle centers the arena and mattresses line the outside. Why the mattresses? You'll find that out later. There are tarps to catch water when the roof leaks and the girls have called stray cats and bats friends numerous times. Lockers line the halls with names written on them like, T-Flex, Professor Killjoy, and Ziggy Scar Dust. Chairs of all kinds of shapes, colors, rips and tears are for the girls' comfort and changing.

The WoRD Roller Derby League has made this building into their home and they wouldn't have it any other way.

When I first heard of a local Roller Derby Team I thought, 'Oh! This would be a great article for me to be a roller derby girl for a day!' That dream was swiftly crushed by watching the girls getting swiftly crushed by each other. I am all for trying new things, but I fear my "be a roller derby girl" item on my bucket list would also be met with my first time ever breaking a bone.

"We have seen girls break bones before," says Vice-President Wildish Jambino from North Grosvenordale CT.

"It's mostly bumps and bruises though," reassures Jambino as my eyes go wide with fear. As I talk with the vice president of the league, the other teammates practice their techniques along the ring. They do quick stops and blocking drills. They run, hop, skip and jump on skates. Jenny Rotten from Franklin aced a slow glide stop with her leg sticking out as if to trip someone coming up behind her. April Reigns from Douglas jumps and quickly halts out of marked squares for agility practice. Practice was underway and I was there to watch and learn.

Thighlander yells out commands and blows her whistle. The women work on skating fast and stopping with force.

They create walls with their bodies and others break through those walls with strong shoulders and mouth guarded grins. There are a lot of rules in Roller Derby, but to a new comer's eyes, it doesn't look like it.

"There is a lot of training that goes into becoming a roller derby girl," says Jambino.

The league offers a Fresh Meat, meet and greet. Anyone can try out and the girls are more than happy to help anyone and everyone become the best player they can be. Rigorous training and dedication are key as the team does practice three times a week. At the end of training there are tests one must pass to be on a team. Such as, skating around the rink 27 times in five minutes and skating through 10 cones in six seconds. Sounds hard, but with practice and these amazingly confident and caring girls, they can help you get through anything.

What I found remarkable is the friendship and bond between these women. You can tell that they have each other's backs on and off the rink. Even while Alysia WonderSlam, from Rhode Island, slams into Lo Mean from Worcester. You can tell they do it because it is both fun and necessary.

Jambino says, "I wanted a place where I can be me," and this is that place. No judgements, just friends beating the crap out of each other for the love of roller skates and winning. As I am interviewing and taking pictures I gasp at each thunderous fall and each earth quaking slam these girls produce. They stationed me in the middle of the rink because I would get a "better view" when it came to scrimmage time.

The girls divided themselves up into two teams and gave me a show I will never forget. I am in the red zone, in the middle of the rink, and nothing can protect me but my trust in these awesome women. Nancy Drew Blood, from Worcester blows the whistle and they are off. One woman, from each team, puts on the helmet panties with stars on them and they are deemed the jammers. Blockers and pivots create walls and the jammers begin the game behind these walls.

The Jammers have to get through the blockers (the rest of the women) and they score with each opposing member they lap, each lap. When the whistle blows the jammers throw themselves into the pack of ferocious women and try to get past them. There is pushing and bouncing. Not like an 'oops sorry I bumped into you' kind of bouncing. No, I mean they bottle up all their stress and excitement and let it explode from their cores. Their shoulders, chests, and hips make contact with the other person and send them flying in the opposite direction.

As if this wasn't enough, even your own teammates can give you a little oomph in the right direction. A blocker behind their jammer will actually wind up and push the jammer through the wall and send them soaring! This was so intense I felt giddy with excitement as I walked in circles watching them glide and scramble around me. With each slam and fall my gut gurgled with raw caveman like thrill.

I had Weird Al Shankabish from Spencer get thrown at my feet and yet she kept total control and stopped right before she could have taken me down. DomiNat from Worcester galloped from behind and boom slammed into her friends. Nikko from Oxford flew full bodied into the mattresses that protect them from hitting the cement walls of the arena.

Around and around these women went, flexed muscle, padded elbows and knees, mouthguard grins and with such fun brutality in their eyes I will never forget. I wanted so badly to put on skates and join them.

Then I remembered I trip over air daily.

These women really are two different entities in themselves. They all have careers, hobbies, and children. Then, they put on their skates and they transform. No more worries, no more responsibilities, just the game and they are keen on winning.

Starr De Chaos, from Rhode Island, says, "the more you like your friends the harder you hit them" these friends must really like each other!

If you think you have what it takes to become a roller derby girl you can contact WoRD at skate@worcesterrollerderby.com and follow them on Facebook at WorcesterRollerDerby.

Rare disease doesn't keep Joshua down

Josh when younger in hospital with his favorite stuffed Mario

KIMBERLY MASCHI
STONEBRIDGE PRESS

"He knew of death at a young age."

Joshua Turcotte of Webster is a survivor of a birth defect called gastroschisis. This defect causes the internal intestines and organs to be found on the outside of the body through the abdominal wall. Like most infants who have similar defects, Josh is considered a survivor.

"We have been very lucky," says Josh's mother Megan Turcotte on how his recovery has compared to others diagnosed.

Some children who experience the same complications of gastroschisis don't reach age 15 as Josh has, there is a growing field of research and studies into this birth defect. What used to be a 1/10,000 chance for an infant to have gastroschisis, it is now a 1/2,229 chance. Gastroschisis Awareness Day was on July 30th, although it has not been yet recognized by Massachusetts Governor Charlie Baker, the families whose lives have been overturned by this diagnosis are hopeful that someday they will be recognized. Josh's story is unique to him, and his family continue to share their story in hopes that it may help another family.

"Even if no one in your circle has ever heard of your diagnosis know that you are not alone. There are people out there to support you," says Megan.

Megan and Thomas Turcotte were thrilled to find out they were pregnant with their very first baby. Everything with the pregnancy was going well until 18 weeks when their infant was diagnosed with gastroschisis. Through the ultrasound they were able to see what was supposed to be inside his body was outside through a hole in his belly. Joshua Turcotte was born Jan. 3, 2003 at 34 weeks.

"Oh my god! It's a miracle," said the doctors and nurses in the room.

"They should have never said that," remembers Megan.

Just because something may look typical or normal on the surface does not mean that everything is okay on the inside.

"We got our hopes up. Only to discover that not all afflictions are skin deep," says Megan.

At two days, old Josh had his first surgery.

"He couldn't eat anything for the first two days of his life," says Megan.

Josh was a very calm baby and already at such a preciously vulnerable age everyone could see he would be a fighter. The first surgery was an exploratory one. The surgeons needed to venture inside this infant's abdomen and find what was happening to him on the inside.

"In my womb, Josh's intestines were twisted and circulation was cut off," recalls Megan of the doctor's explanations. As a result of gastroschisis, Josh lost 2/3rds of his small intestines and a quarter of his large intestines. Once the intestines are lost, they are lost. It can grow in proportion with the body but can not right itself or grow appropriately the way it should. Josh was diagnosed with short bowel syndrome caused by gastroschisis. Josh had a feeding tube for a year and a half, and also had a Broviac IV to the heart from which he suffered infections.

"For the first 3 months of his life, Josh remained in the NICU," says Megan.

Megan remembers having to go home to an empty crib.

"I just wanted my baby. I wanted him home with us."

Josh was finally able to come home at 3 months old, and with him came a night nurse and a lot of care and comfort.

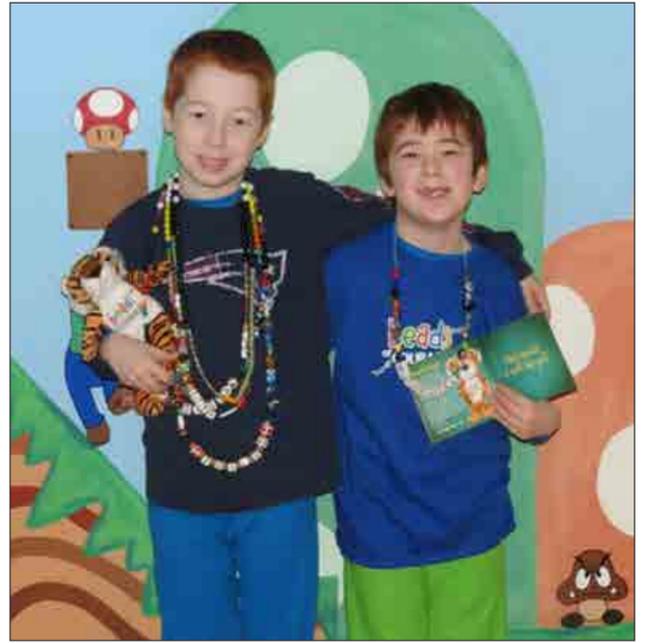

What is a day in the life of Josh like? Well, when Josh wakes up he has 15 medications every morning, 2 medications in the afternoon and 16 medications at bedtime. He has to eat very dense high calorie foods and he has to eat almost constantly. With shorter than normal intestines the substances that Josh consumes do not stay in his body for long. He has to constantly replenish and continually try to keep his weight up.

"Josh is at a risk of failure to thrive," says Megan. "If that happens he has to go back onto a feeding tube and Broviac IV. He has come close a few times but we have fortunately worked through it."

Megan's pantry would be any child's dream. It is filled with snacks, especially Josh's favorite, Cheeto's Cheese Puffs. Josh has to eat foods that some may call unhealthy or damaging. It is the opposite for Josh. He cannot eat fruits or any raw vegetables no matter how much he would like to. What he puts into his body has to be regulated and discussed at length. Where we find health and thrive off fruits, veggies, and lower calorie foods, those same foods can damage Josh beyond repair. With the snacks in the pantry are also cases of Ensure for when Josh shows signs of weight loss.

"We don't know what will happen to his body while he goes through puberty," worries Megan.

Josh and brother Gabe on a good day, with their Beads of Courage collections

Josh's health can be in danger from burning too many calories and he is more susceptible to dehydration. Josh cannot join any sports, but he does enjoy hiking and creating things with his hands. Josh enjoys light weight lifting with his dad and playing video games with his little brother Gabe. Josh is going to be a sophomore at Bay Path where he studies metal fabrication. Josh can be considered a survivor, but he is so much more than that. He is constantly working hard on surviving. He is determined, fearless, and willing to share all that he has gone through if it means it will help someone else.

Josh's advice to other children like him, "it's hard. It's okay to be upset about it, just remember you deal with tough stuff, you can get through anything."

What Josh wished others knew about him, "I'm just like every other kid in my head, I don't know any other type of normal. Understand that I have health problems, but don't treat me different."

Josh thanks his parents for never giving up on him. Megan and Thomas dedicated themselves completely to their son and his growth, and his health is attributed to their strength and will. Josh's brother Gabe keeps the family laughing and full of joy with his many quips and antics. Josh is surrounded by family. His grandparents Mike and Elaine Henry are just as dedicated to his continued strength and are there for him always. Thanks to an organization called Avery's Angels, the Turcotte family has found support and camaraderie in their journey for health and acceptance.

Death lingered over Josh as he was an infant, and still it rests on the cusp of Josh's life. But Josh is brave, and he is strong. He acknowledges his scars as reminders of battles fought and won. This young man has too much happiness in his life and he has a bright future filled with laughter, games, and Cheeto's Cheese Puffs.

LAND OWNER

responded to residents claiming they were being harassed by workers. He said that the workers were instructed to remain civil, and that the residents had been harassing them.

One of the workers, a private contractor named Noah Clarkson, said the residents had been recording him for a while. When he went to speak to them, they reportedly said they wanted him out of the area. From there, Clarkson claimed that he was receiving obscene hand gestures from the residents that he guessed where to get a reaction out of him that they could record.

Tensions between the company and residents recently hit a high point when residents called the police thinking that their mailboxes were being buried. The company cleared up the misunderstanding, but Prouty and co-owner Brett Mann said they were frustrated about having to explain what was truly happening for a call that Prouty said was on "baseless grounds."

Despite these previous issues and claims about the houses, Prouty said that he and the company are doing their best to be less intrusive. He said that they don't start work until after 7 a.m., start their trucks away from houses, and try to keep logs in a wall to help lessen noise.

"We've tried to mitigate a lot of things," Prouty said.

Prouty also said that he doesn't have space elsewhere for the company, so that land on Cudworth Road is their only option.

With no absolute evidence of harassment on either side, no agreement between Prouty, the town, and residents on when the area switched zoning, and the contradictory statements from town government, stated in the previous article, on the legality of this business, it is unclear how the situation will continue from here.

Friday's Child

Logan is an affectionate, funny seven-year-old boy of Caucasian descent. Logan enjoys spending time with adults and other children, and he also loves being the center of attention! Logan recently started learning how to tell jokes and he takes great pride in seeing others laugh when he delivers the punch line. Some of Logan's other favorite activities are playing outside and going on vacations. Logan is legally freed for adoption and it is recommended that he be placed in a two-parent home as the youngest or only child.

Because Logan is on the Autism Spectrum, it is important that his future family be supportive of his needs and help Logan reach his fullest potential. Logan's future family should also be willing to maintain visits and contact with his sister.

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that your family will be a good match for.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-6273 or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wilson: in response

To the Editor:
 I'm writing my opinion to the Op-Ed on judicial accountability writing by Senator Fattman, Jen Caissie, Ann Gobi and Chief Wojnar.

There are already checks and balances in place for judges making terrible decisions. Utilize it!

The real problem that the FOUR of you are missing, we need real criminal justice reform! Let's be honest more prisons will not be built. The county jails in the commonwealth of Massachusetts are overcrowded. If you put non-violent offenders on probation instead of jail you would free up space for violent offenders who should be locked up on high or no bail.

The reason why some of the judges will give low bail is because of the overcrowding problem. If space in jail wasn't an issue because you put people on probation for nonviolent offenses you could put violent offenders away on no bail or very high bail so they don't get out.

Another way to fix the chaotic overcrowded prison population we face in this state is to address the mental health epidemic. This state doesn't have enough in-patient care facilities to serve the mental health community. Therefore, some of the mental health population ends up in our criminal justice system.

We also need to tackle the homelessness problem in our community, when winter arrives some in this population commit crimes just to find shelter in our prisons.

To just blame judges is simply disingenuous. The FOUR of you are simply using this issue for political gain! This issue is multifaceted. You need top to bottom criminal justice reform to fix this problem.

But more importantly it's one of the many reasons why the biggest law enforcement union MASSCOP endorsed Tom Merolli for State Senator and not the incumbent Ryan Fattman.

Ryan you should have advocated for properly funded public schools prior to the election but instead you advocated for charter schools and innovation zones. There's more schools in your district underfunded then funded properly. On that issue alone you should not be reelected!

If you had focus more on public schools Instead of national issues that you have no control over maybe our schools would be in better shape.

We simply can't have another term of Fattman!

Licenses will look different soon

CHIEF'S CORNER
 STEVE WOJNAR

Driver's licenses are in the process of changing in Massachusetts. The REAL ID Program is a federal security program created in 2005 because of the September 2001 terrorist attacks. The goal is to have standardized and secure identifications issued throughout the country. Massachusetts IDs will meet the similar standards as other states. As of October 2020, you will need a REAL ID or a passport to board a plane or enter federal buildings in the United States. I was asked to provide some information on this program.

People who have valid licenses will have a choice of obtaining a standard driver's license or a REAL ID. These are individual choices as both will be available for issue by the Massachusetts Registry. However, as of October 2020, only a REAL ID or passport will be allowed as an acceptable form of identification to fly domestically or enter federal buildings. If you wish to obtain a standard license you can follow the same renewal plan as before. This can be done on line or in person at a Mass DOT Registry point. Should you wish to obtain the REAL ID, it must be done in person at a Registry office. You will be required to provide proof of citizenship or lawful presence, Massachusetts residency, and a valid social security number. A passport or a birth certificate are a valid proof of citizenship. For the REAL ID, you will need some documentation that will display your 9-digit Social Security number. These can include a pay stub, W2 form, 1099 form, a tax return, and any other official document that has the full number. Should you be required to prove residency, you can use any number of documents that display a residential (Not PO Box) address. A piece of first class mail issued within 60 days can be used, as well as tax bills, utility bills, or other official correspondence proving your residence status. More information on these requirements can be found at <https://www.mass.gov/guides/massachusetts-identification-id-requirements>.

The form of license you wish to have is an individual choice. If you have no intention of flying or using this to enter federal buildings, the standard license is fine. If you have use for this official ID, you will need to have it in place by October 2020. Please review the proper documentation to bring with you to obtain a REAL ID and avoid multiple trips to the Registry and the frustration that accompanies it.

Thanks again for your questions and comments. Please send them to me at the Dudley Police Department, 71 West Main St., Dudley, MA 01571 or email at swojnar@dudleypolice.com.

EDITORIAL

Not to be taken lightly

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

The Boston Globe has issued a rallying cry to its fellow journalists nationwide. The basis for it is to have the editorial page of every newspaper take up the First Amendment and its present precarious position under the onslaught of anyone who would rather their deeds be kept dark and quiet.

The "right" of a journalist to be told something and then report it to the rest of the world is flimsy at best; we know that. We recognize we have only our own "say so" and the fact we work for whom we do that gives us the carte blanche to confront politicians, businesses, school boards, the police, fire departments, public meetings, town clerks, contractors, casino owners, lawyers, judges, dog catchers, and yes, those who want to be elected to something.

Many don't want to talk to us. Either because they don't want what they know to be told to everyone else, or they have something to hide, or they will look bad, or they are doing something they shouldn't or they are just afraid they won't handle themselves well. But without talking to the nebulous "us", we don't know which, if any of those, it is.

Could be innocent fear.

Could be scandalous fraud.

Over the course of a long career we've seen murder and mayhem of many varieties. Crooked people of many stripes of stolen millions of dollars, sometimes from taxpayers, sometimes from relatives, sometimes from both. Without someone reporting it, tax dollars, your dollars, would have continued to be siphoned.

Anyone who bleats about the "unfairness" of any newsgathering organization, to our way of thinking, is suspect of something. What are they worried about? Is someone getting too close to something?

That's been the case often in the past.

Diversion is always a good tactic. It's how the best magic tricks work. So while the screaming is continuing about this or that over here; the "whatever it is" is continuing or getting worse over there.

There's also the big one we appreciate...omission.

If someone doesn't ask that one, big, important question...well just don't mention it yourself and maybe everyone will forget about it.

Diversion, omission, and whining.

We've had someone complain we got their quote wrong, we showed them notes: "well, that may be what I said, but that's not what I meant..."

See, that freedom to let the press do their jobs means we do get to attend those meetings (and if they all meet ahead of time to talk about what they are going to do at the meeting later, then we get to be there then too, that's a pre-meeting, with a quorum; oh, and we stuck around for the "after meeting" to discuss how the public meeting went too.)

We don't just ask for the paperwork to follow along to be a pain, it's because we want to see the numbers, to compare, to find discrepancies like the missed decimal point that nearly cost a town $85,000.

If we are doing OUR jobs, that freedom is for your safety. It means the news you read once a week about the town hall and the DPW and the police department is the real thing.

Do we miss stuff? Yes. We will be the first to admit we do. We would like to be better than we are, and we work constantly at it.

But first and foremost, we have to be there, and be real about what the job is.

How Can You Help Your Kids Pay for College?

It's still summer, but we're getting close to a new school year. One day, though, "back-to-school" will mean "off to college" for your children. Will you be financially prepared to help your kids cope with the costs of higher education?

FINANCIAL FOCUS
 DENNIS ANTONOPOULOS

Your first step, of course, is to know what you're up against, so here are some numbers: For the 2017-18 academic year, college costs (tuition, fees, room and board) were, on average, nearly $21,000 for in-state students at four-year, public schools and nearly $47,000 for students attending private colleges or universities, according to the College Board. And you can probably expect even bigger price tags in the years to come.

To help prepare for these costs, you might want to consider putting your money in a vehicle specifically designed to help build assets for college, such as a 529 education savings plan. All withdrawals from 529 plans are free from federal income taxes as long as the beneficiary you've named uses the money for qualified college, trade school or graduate school expenses. Withdrawals for expenses other than qualified education expenditures may be subject to federal, state and penalty taxes on the earnings portion of your plan. (However, tax issues for 529 savings plans can be complex, so please consult your tax advisor before investing.)

You can generally invest in the 529 savings plan offered by any state, but if you invest in your own state's plan, you may be able to claim a tax deduction or receive a tax credit.

By starting your 529 plan early, when your children are just a few years old, the investments within the plan have more time for potential growth. Plus, you can make smaller contributions each year, rather than come up with big lump sums later on.

A 529 plan is not the only education-savings tool you can use, but it has proven effective for many people. Yet you may also want to consider ways to keep college costs down in the first place.

For one thing, your children may be eligible for various forms of financial aid. Some types of aid depend on your family's income, but others, such as merit-based scholarships, are open to everyone. But you don't have to wait until you get an offer from a school's financial aid office — you can explore some opportunities on your own. For example, many local and national civic and religious groups offer scholarships to promising young people, and your own employer may even provide some types of grants or assistance. Plus, your state also may offer other benefits, such as financial aid or scholarship funds. It can certainly take some digging to find these funding sources, but the effort can be worthwhile.

Here's another option for reducing college costs: Consider sending your child to a local community college for two years to get many of the "general" requirements out of the way before transferring to a four-year school for a bachelor's degree. Community colleges are typically quite affordable, and many of them offer high-quality programs.

A college degree is costly, but many people feel it's still a great investment in their children's future. And by taking the appropriate steps, you can help launch that investment.

Estate sale buying and selling tips

I've offered tips for estate sale buyers and sellers in previous columns.

Other recent articles from across the country provide additional tips. Before I discuss the others, I'll offer another suggestion of my own. With many people planning activities during summer weekends, July and August are good months for buyers. There should be less competition at estate sales, creating a better chance for buyers to make that great find.

A recent Washington Post article suggests that buyers "start in the basement." One estate sale regular said "the basement is where they put the old stuff that they didn't want to throw away." Another buyer finds items in the basement, closets and in jacket pockets. One buyer said that she looks for areas where there are less people. A couple who moved into a new house regularly attends estate sales to help furnish it. They bring a list of items that they need such as kitchen furniture and décor. One of the notes they wrote was "bring cash, a tape measure, and fabric samples and paint chips." One buyer offered a very practical suggestion. "Make sure you go" before going to estate sales. The bathrooms at estate sales aren't always open to the public.

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES & ESTATES

A Bellingham (Washington) Herald article offered advice to those who are downsizing or settling an estate.

They interviewed local estate sale company proprietors. One seller informs clients that they should expect household goods to sell for less than the purchase price, but that some collectibles can be worth many times the purchase price. The estate sale company representatives state that they research items to make sure they get "fair market value" but that "nobody can know everything." However, the internet has made it easier for both sellers and buyers to research values as more information became available online in the second half of the 1990s. One seller also notes that it is often an emotional experience for people who call them to run an estate sale. She works with the family to make sure that their needs are properly addressed.

There was also some bizarre estate sale news in Longmont, CO this year. The Boulder Daily Camera reported that a woman's house was ransacked by estate sale goers. There was an estate sale taking place a few doors away. Someone started a rumor saying that there was also an estate sale at her house and that everything was free. She had recently had a yard sale and items were strewn about the lawn which gave the rumor even more credibility. People gathered armloads of her items and argued with her, saying that everything was free. Very few people put things back. She said after her strange experience "every time I turn around, I notice something missing. At least they didn't take the dogs or cats."

We are planning some estate sales for September and a multi-estate antique auction this fall. We will also be running a live all coin auction on Aug. 30 in Worcester.

Registration is taking place for my "Evaluating your antiques" class which will be held on Oct. 15 for the Bay Path Evening School. I'll also be appraising items for the public at the Winchendon Historical Society Oct. 28 from 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM. See www.centralmassauctions.com for details on these and other upcoming events.

HELPERS

The Brigade's first dinner after the tornado, on Wednesday, was evidence they're already getting some of that support. Over the course of a couple hours, a team of volunteers hauled stacks of bottled water and other drinks, granola bars, fresh produce from Farmer Tim's in Dudley and various other donated things into the American Legion Hall. The meal's main course – five enormous party sandwiches and at least ten big pizzas – came in from a Northboro pizzeria by way of Andrea Castanetti's car.

"Lauri contacted me yesterday and said 'I need a miracle. Can you help me out?'" she recalled.

Castanetti, who runs the Worcester-based Kindness Coalition, raised $600 in just two hours to get the Brigade "a crazy amount" of food and supplies, in large part because the Brigade had helped them some time ago.

"You do what you can for people," Castanetti said. "It's awesome to see such a big turnout, and I'm glad to be part of it."

The sheer quantity of food prompted Paul Joseph to say, during his introduction of two deacons saying grace, "If anyone leaves here and doesn't gain

"So many good people have come out and donated so many things," Maradona said. "Hopefully, we'll be able to get something back out to these people."

Among other things, he noted there's a GoFundMe internet page dedicated to the Brigade, Webster Five has set up a more general tornado fund the town's involved with distributing, and several people have actually given him cash because they were unwilling to do it online. The Brigade still has its regular donation boxes at Webster Town Hall and the Webster and Dudley police stations, and collects from them every other day or so.

"People are coming in [to help] from all over, and I don't think they know where they're coming to," Lauri Joseph noted.

"This is like a family. It really is," Paul Joseph said. "There isn't a person in here who will eat and not say thank you going out the door."

Hot weather forcing the fish deep

.....

Saltwater fishing for stripers and fluke slowed dramatically around Block Island last week for many anglers. Trying to catch a single striper after fishing for a few hours around the island proved to be a waste of time for the True family and friends. After convincing the Captain to try for fluke and seabass instead of riding in circles trolling with umbrella rigs, the group started to catch fish. Limiting out on seabass was easy, but only a few small fluke were caught and released. They soon bumped into a school of bluefish that had the ladies reeling in one fish after another.

This week's first picture show what happens when a school of bluefish go into a feeding frenzy. A false albacore and a large tautog were also mixed into the bag. The mate cut up the false albacore for the group to eat raw. They said it was delicious. This week's second picture show from left to right Lisa Diotte, Ashley McQuade, Andrea True (Henchey), Chris Henchey, & Ralph True Jr. This writer was out on sick leave!!!! I am surprised they caught a fish without me on board!

Another local angler reported very poor fishing for stripers at the island last week and even had a hard time catching their limit of seabass. No keeper size fluke were caught. It sure was the dog days of summer, as one angler put it. The water temperature must have sent the fish to cooler waters. A report of fast action on stripers at the canal last week was the only good news. This week's third picture of Mike Daniels with a 30 pound plus striper was only one of the many fish he had caught and released on that day. For a while, the stripers were caught on surface plugs, but last week they were also hitting bait. Mackerel and clams yielded the most fish.

grounds in Uxbridge. The general public is invited to attend. A full breakfast will be available for all in attendance. The club will also hold a chicken barbecue starting at 1:00 p.m. Numerous raffles and prizes will also provide entertainment for all in attendance. Some chicken dinner tickets will be available at the door. Noel Rabidor is chairman of the event, and promises a great family day for all in attendance.

The Singletary Rod & Gun will hold their annual Field Day in Oxford on Sunday Aug. 26. The event always draws a large group of the public to dine on all forms of seafood, and the regular hot dogs, hamburgers and fries. Music and many forms of entertainment will make the day one to remember.

OBITUARIES

Linda M. Pulsifer, 70

DOUGLAS- Linda M. (Beccia) Pulsifer, 70, of Eagle Dr. passed away Wed. Aug 8, 2018 at home surrounded by her loving family. She is survived by her loving husband of almost 31 years, Edward R. Pulsifer.

Linda is also survived by her 3 children, Jacqueline Ritchie and her husband Doug of Salem, Lisa Hunt and her fiancé Paul Remillard of Douglas, and Jason Hunt and his companion Jill of Warwick, RI; 3 grandchildren, Roger, Cameron, and Ethan Hunt; a great-grandson, Alexander Hunt; her brother, Fred Beccia and his wife Jan, and her beloved friend Kay Suggs. She was predeceased by 2 brothers, Luis and Nicholas Beccia.

Born in Milford on May 21, 1948 she was the daughter of Michael and Anna (Del Signore) Beccia and grew up in Milford. On Sept. 4th 1987 her and Edward got married, and moved to Woonsocket, RI., until their move to Douglas in 1991. Linda was a very family oriented and put much energy into being a superb wife, and mother. A cat lover, Linda not only had them but, collected cat decorations which you would find around her home. She enjoyed vacationing with Ed in Niagara Falls (her favorite place), shopping at the Mendon Gift Barn, and spending quality time with her family celebrating holidays, especially Christmas, which was her favorite. She was a dedicated wife, mother, and grandmother who will be sorely missed.

Her family would like to extend their gratitude to the staff of the following, they were extremely helpful and gave the utmost care and support to Linda during her illness: Reliant Medical Group, especially Dr. Suzanne Martin, who was also great friend to Linda; South County Dialysis, special thanks to Sherry; Brookside Nursing and Rehab in Webster, much thanks to her friend and nurse Gayla; and Hospice VNA Southern Worcester County, special mention to Nancy Noonan.

A Celebration of Linda's life was held on Tues. Sept. 4 in Jackman Funeral Home, 7 Mechanic St., Douglas from 2-4pm, with a closing prayer service at 4pm. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Milford Humane Society P.O. Box 171, Medway, MA 02053. To leave a condolence message for the family please visit: www.JackmanFuneralHomes.com

Leona J. Thomas, 97

SOUTHBRIDGE- Leona J. (O'Mara) Thomas, 97, of Dresser St., passed away on Wednesday, Aug. 8th, in the Harrington Memorial Hospital, Southbridge, surrounded by her family after a brief illness.

Her husband, Christopher G. "Keech" Thomas, died in 1990. She leaves her two daughters, Constance L'Ecuyer and her longtime companion Paul Galipeau of Southbridge and Holly Canales and her husband Roberto of Southbridge; her five grandchildren, Scott L'Ecuyer and his wife Cindy, Eric L'Ecuyer of Webster, Karen L'Ecuyer of Sturbridge and Quespos, Costa Rica, Christine Veshi, Woodstock, CT and Lee Canales of Southbridge; two great grandchildren; a niece, Nancy Peccia of Redmond, OR; and a nephew, Dennis Oliver of Denver, CO. She was predeceased by her sisters, Francis Oliver and Betty Abraham. She was born in Holyoke, CO the daughter of Leo and Iva (Frances) O'Mara.

After graduating high school early and working for JC Penny in Colorado Leona moved to the East coast to be with her love Keech Thomas while he was in the military. They first lived in Washington, D.C. where Keech worked for the Secret Service and Leona worked in the Surgeon General's office. In 1944 Keech was proud to bring his striking bride to town.

Leona worked at Doris Dress Shop before joining the Thomas family business, Thomas Tire Company. The business was changed to Thomas' Variety after the flood of 1955. Keech and Leona became local fixtures of the community - for their generosity with free candy and Leona's fiery red hair. After Keech's passing in 1990 Leona continued to operate the store on her own until she was 80 years old. Leona dedicated long hours to running her store - seven days a week and never missing a holiday. Ever the ladylike wife, friend and business woman, she was also well-respected for her 'keep going' attitude and known to be feisty and strong-willed enough to face-off with a burglar, or two, in her store.

The only thing that the hard-working Mrs. T loved more than keeping the business running was her family. As a Mom, Nana and Great Nana B. she will be remembered as bright and witty, determined and stubborn and one classy fighter.

Calling hours for Leona were held on Sunday, Aug. 12th, in the Daniel T. Morrill Funeral Home, 130 Hamilton St., Southbridge from 4:00 to 7:00pm. A graveside service for Leona in Oak Ridge Cemetery, Southbridge, will be private.

Francis "Frank" E. Baril, 92

OXFORD - Francis "Frank" E. Baril, 92, died peacefully on Saturday, August 4, 2018, at home with his family by his side. He was predeceased by his beloved wife of 68 years, Patricia (Langer) Baril who died in 2017. He is survived by three children, Deborah A. Roland and her husband Paul of Oxford, David E. Baril and his wife Alberta of Eastampton, NJ, and Richard G. Baril and his wife Angela of Monroe, CT; his sister, Theresa Baril of Tuscon, AZ; and his sister-in-law, Lois Taylor and her husband Warren Field of Centerville. He also leaves six grandchildren, Anita Greco and her husband Nick, Michael Baril and his wife Kasey, Heather Roland, Christopher Roland and his wife Alyce Delbridge, Jessica Baril, and Jacqueline Baril; as well as two great-grandchildren, Daniela and Alessandro Greco; and numerous nephews and nieces. He was born in Nashua, NH, son of the late Harvey and Alice (Labay) Baril, and was a lifelong resident of Oxford. While attending high school, Frank helped deliver milk in the mornings and worked at a factory in the afternoons. He graduated from Oxford High School in 1944 and joined the Naval Air Corp. He received his bachelor's degree from Wesleyan University in Middletown, CT, in 1948 through the GI bill.

Frank worked for State Mutual and then Hanover Insurance Company in Worcester for over 30 years, retiring in 1988. He was the founder and president of Hanover's premium finance subsidiary, AMGRO, Inc. In addition, he operated the Francis E. Baril Insurance Agency from his home in Oxford for twenty years.

Frank was a leader in the community and volunteered his time to many organizations. He served on the Town of Oxford Finance Committee and was president of the Friends of the Oxford Library. When his children were younger, Frank was a coach and manager of Little League Baseball and could be found at the field on nearly every summer evening. He was treasurer and later president of Oxford Little League as well as president of the Oxford PTA and Camp Fire Girls Inc.

An active member of St. Roch's Church, Frank chaired their Finance Committee and was always involved with The Bishop's Fund. He spent many years working as St. Roch's representative on Oxford's Ecumenical Food Shelf. He continued this service during his retirement years, working to secure donations of food from local businesses and keeping the shelves stocked.

For fun, Frank played bridge and became a Life Master, even playing in tournaments against Charles Goren and Omar Sharif! His wife, Pat, later began playing bridge as his partner and joined him on trips to tournaments in Bermuda. For a number of years, they ran a bridge club together in Webster.

Frank had an amazing mind and could recall the exact order of cards that he had played in bridge tournaments, sometimes years later. He loved his job working with numbers in premium finance and often only used a calculator to double check his answers.

Much of Frank's spare time revolved around baseball. He played in high school and college, taught his children and many Oxford youngsters, and then continued playing in Oxford's Jack Benny League into his seventies. When he wasn't playing, he was watching, and the Red Sox games were always on until the very last out.

Frank was a recognized figure around town, out for his long daily walks, always sporting a Red Sox cap and stopping to chat along the way. He met new people wherever he went and was always asking questions. He led a full and joyous life and most of all loved spending time with his family, enriching the lives of those around him. He will be remembered and missed by both the community and his family.

The family would like to send our gratitude to all the nurses and staff at Eddy Pond, the Jewish Healthcare Hospice, and Worcester Home Care, for their loving and attentive care during his illness.

A funeral was held on Saturday, August 11, 2018, from Paradis-Givner Funeral Home, 357 Main St., Oxford, followed by a Mass at 10 a.m. at St. Roch's Church, 332 Main St., Oxford. ## Marion Elizabeth Ushinski, 95

SUTTON - Marion Elizabeth (Kokernak) Ushinski, (aka "Nana-Banana") 95 years, 7 months, and 23 days young, beloved wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother died in grace and peace at the home of her daughter, Gail Towne, in Sutton, Mass. on August 7, 2018, surrounded by her loving family. Mae was born December 15, 1922 in Dudley, Mass., the seventh of eleven children born to Stanislaus A. Kokernak and Anna M. Dzuirgot Kokernak.

Mae is survived by her five daughters and their families: Donna Bohon; Joan Eident and companion, Leo Forcier; Laurie Widmark and spouse, Peter; Gail Towne and spouse Bob; Cheryl D'Cruz and spouse Alex; her brother, Frank Kokernak and wife, Ann; sister-in-law Lucy Cote, as well as by seventeen beloved grandchildren, twenty-nine great-grandchildren, as well as countless cousins, nieces, nephews, and friends.

She was predeceased by her husband of seventy years, James Ushinski; her parents, Stanislaus and Anna Dzuirgot Kokernak; her brothers; Anthony, John, Edward, Felix, and Joseph; her sisters, Dorothy Kokernak, Alice Michalak, Kay Conrad, and Betty Titta; son-in-law, Bo, and her beloved grandchildren, Angela Dufour and Adam Towne.

Mae's husband, Jim, always described himself as a "jack of all trades, master of none". But that familiar phrase was an even more accurate description of Mae with her many and diverse talents. If something needed doing, she wasn't afraid to take it on. She played the piano throughout her life and loved singalongs. Almost every phrase or situation life threw at her, could just as easily be turned into a song. Later in her life she learned to play the harmonica, and became an enthusiastic member of a harmonica band in Florida. In 1940, she graduated from Worcester Girls Trade School skilled in the womanly art of dress-making. A graduation requirement was to design and create one's graduation dress. Mom proudly stated that "It fit like a glove." Throughout the years, she also did piecework at a factory on Front Street, sewing straight skirts for the brand name Personnel, as well as various companies such as Telechron, US Envelope, and Iandoli's. Mae utilized those hard earned skills throughout her life, sewing dresses and matching Easter outfits for her five, very lucky daughters, as well as creating sparkling, sequined roller skating costumes for her neighbor. The Donald Duck Halloween costumes she made for grandchildren Becky and Christy would have made Walt Disney proud! A prolific knitter, Mae created dozens of hooded baby sweaters in all sizes and colors as well as colorful ponchos with matching caps. Every December on her birthday, her children and grandchildren ceremoniously light her hand-crafted crystal-beaded Christmas tree lights in her honor (this was her way of making sure everyone remembered it was HER special day). The lighting of those trees will always represent the light she brought into all of our lives and we will always smile knowing she is watching over us at that moment. She was an avid and gifted gardener and always canned her own tomatoes and peaches. Her hands were never idle.

A funeral was held on Friday, August 10, 2018, from Paradis-Givner Funeral Home, 357 Main St., Oxford, followed by a Mass at 10 a.m. at St. Mark's Church, 356 Boston Road, Sutton. Burial followed at West Sutton Cemetery in Sutton. Calling hours were Thursday, August 9, 2018, from 5-8 p.m. at the funeral home.

To honor our Mom and her love of life, please share a smile with a stranger and a hug with someone who needs one. In lieu of flowers, donations may also be made to Notre Dame Hospice, 555 Plantation St., Worcester, MA 01605.
