Officials urge caution amid increase in local COVID cases

The Lashaway Dance Hall, also known as the Mosquito Ballroom, was once a major hub of social activity in the Brookfield area. The state’s Executive Office of Health and Human Services recently implemented $139 million in solutions to use caution and let us know if our efforts to control the spread of the virus. Multiple sources told the New Leader a large party occurred in town earlier this month, and some officials believe it may have contributed to the rise in active cases.

“I can confirm that there was a gathering in town at some point in the recent past. I have no information about date, location, and number of people attending,” Gregory said.

Statewide, positive test rates increased from 1.7% to 2% present over a seven-day average ending on July 30. State leaders are attributing the increase primarily to social gatherings and out-of-state travel.

“Obviously we would prefer to keep cases of COVID-19 low but we know that’s not going to be the case until we have a medical breakthrough like a vaccine,” Gov. Charlie Baker said. “We’re closely analyzing the data for trends. We are aware of small clusters that are associated with gatherings.”

During a July 27 press conference, the Governor mentioned that $16.1 million will be made available to assist special education providers.

Karyn Polito, and Mass. Health and Human Services previously posted to social media that contained partial personal records for school employee information. LECS and school officials are seeking answers from school officials after a partial release of personal employee information.

Baker offers funding to special education providers

Region – The Baker-Polito Administration announced last week that $48.1 million will be made available to assist special education providers.

The relief funding will be distributed among 32 special education regional service agencies. The grants will focus on costs related to the COVID-19 pandemic: Gov. Charlie Baker, Lt. Governor Karyn Polito, and Mass. Health and Human Services Secretary Marylou Sudders made the announcement during a visit to the New England Center for Children, a special education school in Southborough.

“Throughout the pandemic, special education residential schools remained open to support their students with unique challenges,” Baker said. “Schools incurred unanticipated costs related to the purchase of personal protective equipment, infection control measures, increased staffing costs, and enhanced cleaning protocols. The latest funding package is in addition to $1 million provided by the Department of Early Education and Care in April to support the residential education school system. The latest funding is calculated on a 34.7% basis throughout the pandemic while ensuring high safety and sanitation standards.”

The state’s Executive Office of Health and Human Services previously implemented $129 million in funding through its existing system for residential and congregate care service providers. The funds were used for increased staffing, enhanced infection control procedures, and personal protective equipment. However, some certain facilities missed out on the funding, and Governor Baker was committed to making sure they were covered.

“Due to the structure of special education residential schools, they were not eligible for this earlier rate increase, but today’s announcement will bring them in line with the previous rate increases provided to other residential and congregate care providers,” Gov. Charlie Baker announced a funding package to assist special education providers.

“Please read the information,” Baker said. “A public records request for a partial personal record was released to Hart by school leaders on a recently discussed pay alert. The information was provided to Hart by the school leaders on July 7, and he shared it on the Facebook page, ‘Truth about Leicster.’

Town officials implore residents to stay vigilant amid increase in local COVID cases

SPENCER – Members of the Leicester High School Class of 2020 will hold a drive-in graduation ceremony set for Saturday, Aug. 1.

The event will take place at 3 p.m. at the high school football field. Several regulations are in place to ensure the safety of students and their guests. Please follow all social distancing and mask guidelines.

Spencer Police Chief David Larison described the fund- raising effort as extremely generous. He and Chief Linsenbardt can’t wait to employ the state-of-the-art technology, which will also enable them to disinfect buildings and vehicles with greater regularity. Moreover, staff members will no longer have to use large quantities of antiseptic sprays to disinfect vehicles; each time they return from a call.

The fire department currently cleans the vehicles by hand using hydrogen peroxide and sprays from a small spray-paint can. Firefighters are looking forward to a more regular, time-saving routine.

‘This will tremendously help us on the road and off,’ said Spencer Fire Chief David Larson.

The schools are also looking forward to a safer learning environment. First responders thank students and the community for their investment in the COVID-19 crisis, and appreciated the influx of support.

First responders will use the sprayers to disinfect vehicles, offices, and equipment. The technology will save significant time and money, as departments will no longer have to use contractors for disinfecting services.

They will be able to use these sprays without mixing up a concoction. Right now, they must keep track of the chemicals and regularly inspect the building’s disinfectants to make sure the sprays are still effective. This will help them get the job done more efficiently.

The technology will allow them to save time and money, as they no longer have to use contractors for disinfecting services.

More than 50 families have made donations to the police department, fire department, and the Spencer Rescue Squad. “This was a great way for us to help out,” Larison stated.

Bay State Physical Therapy partners with local provider

REGION — Bay State Physical Therapy, Massachusetts’ leading provider in outpatient physical therapy services, is pleased to announce that it has partnered with Comprehensive Physical Therapy in West Brookfield and Leicester. Comprehensive PT has been serving the central Massachusetts community since 1981 and has a strong reputation for providing therapy services to a patient-centered care approach. The Comprehensive PT team that James Buziak and Rose Wolf built over the years have created deep ties in the communities they serve. They are committed to providing their patients with a continued level of care with the same dedicated care.

“Comprehensive Physical Therapy’s great reputation as a provider of high-quality care in the area caught our attention as we looked to expand our ability to serve the Central Massachusetts market,” said Steve Wunderlich, Founder and CEO of Bay State Physical Therapy.

The alignment of our cultures and values made this a special partnership opportunity, and we could not be more excited to welcome the employees, patients and families of Comprehensive PT to the Bay State Physical Therapy family.

School officials ponder payments to bus companies

WARRIEN — Quaboag Regional School Committee members recently discussed payment of transportation vendors for the three weeks when school was out due to COVID-19. Committee members voted during their July 20 meeting to approve Superintendent Brett McCarthy’s proposal to cover the cost of Superintendent Brett McCarthy’s proposal to cover the cost of transportation vendors for the period of the closure, which is March 13 through June 16. Everybody agreed that “Although the transportation vendors did not provide service during this time, the Massachusetts Department of Education recongnizes the effort and our intention to sign an agreement with them,” said Windwer.

North Brookfield Savings Bank awards $10,000 in scholarships

NORTH BROOKFIELD — North Brookfield Savings Bank has always been committed to improving the lives of community residents through various scholarships and opportunities that are open to high school students and families. North Brookfield Savings Bank provided a combined total of $10,000 in scholarships to support local 2020 high school graduates as they continue on their path to higher education. The bank remains dedicated to their community, values, commitment to excellence and proven designation as a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI). They consistently support local high school students in the Bank's dedication to their community, values, commitment to excellence and proven designation as a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI).

Scholarship recipients were selected to receive the North Brookfield Savings Bank scholarship by each school’s designated scholarship committee. They were chosen because of their exemplary commitment to excellence and proven dedication to their community, values, commitment to excellence and proven designation as a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI).

The board of selectmen of the Town of North Brookfield is a private, non-profit agency providing in-home services, and caregiver support for residents throughout Massachusetts. The program will have direct benefit to residents in Spencer, as well as of which were deemed non-essential during the state’s recent shutdown. This funding will have a direct and immediate impact in allowing these programs to continue operation by providing working capital to cover business costs such as rent, staffing, and utilities.

The program will be run jointly by the Franklin Valentine Planning Commission (PVPC) and the Town’s Office of Inspections, Services and Environmental Protection. Applications for eligibility may be obtained from Paul Dell’Aquila, OIS Director, at 508-774-7147 or email paul.dellaquila@spencermass.gov.

Operation Clean Sweep - local action to combat a national issue

The fourth annual John T. O’Leary Memorial Operation Clean Sweep, originally postponed in the spring due to Covid-19, will now occur in Brookfield beginning on Aug 8 and continue through Sept 30. John O’Leary single-handedly organized the town-wide clean-up for many years until his death; this is the fourth year since the event was named in his memory. Operation Clean Sweep is sponsored by the Brookfield Board of Health and coordinated by George Hirtle and coordinated by George Hirtle and coordinated by George Hirtle and coordinated by George Hirtle, who are the Town’s Highway Departments, Tip Volunteers picked up more than 200 bags of trash in colorful orange bags that were supplied by the Town. Volunteers are encouraged to sign up again this year to clean any area of concern.

NOVEMBER 5TH: The program will allow these funds from the federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program issued in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, to be awarded. The award is part of a larger package of $2 million in CDBG-CT funds. “I’m thrilled that the federal government has committed these funds to support low-income residents and small businesses that continue to struggle during this prolonged pandemic,” said Ralph Hicks, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

The program will be run jointly by the Franklin Valentine Planning Commission (PVPC) and the Town’s Office of Inspections, Services and Environmental Protection. The Petco Foundation investment in work of Second Chance

Eastern Brookfield — Second Chance Animal Services announced it has been awarded a $36,000 grant from the Petco Foundation to help with medical costs for pets that are surrendered or transferred to the shelter.

The Petco Foundation investment will help Second Chance meet the medical needs of pets, which can sometimes be extensive.

“For many of the pets that come to us, we are not just a ‘second chance’ but a ‘last chance,’” said Second Chance CEO Sherri Flannery. “We are grateful for the continued support of the Petco Foundation who makes our work possible.”

This grant investment is part of the Petco Foundation’s distribution of more than $10 million in animal welfare grants to organizations nationwide. In addition, the Petco Foundation distributed $14 million in emergency product and cash donations to partner organizations facing the challenges of the COVID-19 crisis and put out a national call to action and plans to Pluto Pets.

“The initial Petco Foundation investment in Second Chance helps more than 40,000 animals from residing in shelters, veterinary care at three full-service hospitals and vaccine clinics, community and educational outreach, training and a pet food pantry. When we look up into the night sky, we see beauty and wonder. It really does put things in perspective when we look at the vastness of the universe. When we consider how small we are compared to all around us and how the cosmos has been a place of exploration for all. The field of astronomy has been influential in our understanding of the universe and how it operates. The vastness of the universe and the stars that we see can make us wonder about the limits of our understanding. It can also inspire us to learn more about the universe and how it operates.

The book of Proverbs has much to say about the stars and the night sky. The verse, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," reminds us of the vastness of the universe and how it has been created. The verse also speaks about the stars and the night sky, "And the earth was without form, and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." This verse reminds us of the power of the universe and how it has been created.

The book of Proverbs also speaks about the stars and their importance. The verse, "The stars of heaven, and all the host thereof, doth command them, saying, 'Get ye hence, stand ye harken here,'" reminds us of the vastness of the universe and how it operates. The verse also speaks about the stars and their importance, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork." This verse reminds us of the beauty and wonder of the universe and how it operates.

The book of Proverbs also speaks about the stars and their connection to our lives. The verse, "For the heavens shall pass away with a great轰音, and the earth shall be removed, and they that dwell therein," reminds us of the connection between the stars and our lives. The verse also speaks about the stars and their connection to our lives, "And the day cometh that shall be great, even the day of the Lord, for it is near at hand; it shall come as a thief, when the Reed is blustery, and the sun is over the mountains; and the earth shall be removed, and they that dwell therein." This verse reminds us of the connection between the stars and our lives and how they operate.

The graduates are also invited to participate in a re-enactment ceremony on the lawn of the President's House at Widener University. The graduates hailed from 33 states, from Pennsylvania to California, and 6 different countries, including Ireland, Hawaii, and Australia.

Chelsea Hagopian, a graduate of Widener University, was one of the students invited to participate in the re-enactment ceremony. Hagopian is a member of the West Brookfield Board of Health and is excited to be part of the ceremony. She notes that the event will help reconnect the current students with their alma mater and create a sense of continuity for the future graduates.
