

Seana Weaver (right front) with family and friends and Community Kitchen volunteers at the First Congregational Church of Woodstock as she begins her marathon fundraiser throughout Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK — What do you do when the Coronavirus pandemic shuts down the marathon you had been training for? You plot a marathon route through your home town as a fundraiser to help alleviate food insecurity.

That's what Seana Weaver did.

On Saturday, April 24, Weaver ran a 26.2-mile solo marathon along the backroads of Woodstock and raised more than $8,100 in donations for Community Kitchens of Northeastern Connecticut.

This was Weaver's second marathon fundraiser for Community Kitchens. In March 2020, she was training to run a marathon in Rhode Island when it got canceled because of the pandemic. She came up with the idea of running an alternative "marathon-of-one" as a fundraiser and donating the proceeds to Community Kitchens. She raised $1,200 that first year. For this year's fundraiser, she set a goal of $5,000—which she shattered.

Weaver knows about hunger. She is the Agency Relations Manager at the Worcester County Food Bank. She works directly with soup kitchens and meal programs and food pantries throughout Central Massachusetts.

"I organized the fundraiser and ran the marathon because I strongly believe that healthy food should be accessible to everyone," she said. "It's easy to forget in a rural town like Woodstock that poverty and hunger exist. But they do, and it's up to the community to take care

Thompson budget goes to voters

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

THOMPSON – The town of Thompson held its annual town meeting on Monday, May 3, with a less than 15-minute gathering approving all items up for discussion on the agenda.

A small group of around 45 residents were on hand for the meeting which was held in-person only and not broadcast live via Zoom as with past meetings. The primary focus was on the town's proposed budgets with a combined $27.2 million spending plan put forward for the 2022 Fiscal Year. The budget represents a .72 mill rate increase and a 1.92 percent overall expenditure increase over the current year. Voters did not act on the budgets as selectmen removed the item for submission to the voters to vote upon a paper ballot. That vote will take

Day Kimball partners with Interfaith Human Services of Putnam to address food insecurity

PUTNAM — Day Kimball Healthcare (DKH) is pleased to announce a partnership between its hospital-based food pantry, Caitlyn's Cupboard, and Interfaith Human Services of Putnam's (IHSP) Food Pantry, Daily Bread.

Caitlyn's Cupboard was established in late March 2020 to address malnutrition and food insecurity among patients treated in Day Kimball Hospital's Rose Bove LaRose Cancer Center through the provision of no-cost shelf-stable food and nutritional education. Nearly 135 DKH Cancer Center patients have accessed the food pantry since its opening.

Each patient served receives a three-day supply of non-perishable food for each member of the family, including staple items and healthy snacks. Caitlyn's Cupboard also provides patients with nutritional information, healthy recipes, and a comprehensive list of local food assistance programs and other community resources.

Killingly considering town-wide camera system

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

KILLINGLY – Killingly's Public Safety Committee is exploring the possibility of adding an integrated camera system to the town to help local law enforcement better respond to criminal activity.

Town Manager Mary Calorio discussed the concept with the committee on April 28, where she initially discussed adding cameras to Main Street but acknowledged the plan is much broader and inspired by input from local officers.

"This actually was a recommendation from our law enforcement division – we're really looking at more town wide utilization of a more integrated camera system. We have cameras on and in all of our buildings, but we also have cameras in our parks. They're not integrated, meaning any law enforcement cannot show up to the scene and be able to pull up that camera system to be able to respond to what's occurring or be forwarded of what's occurring. While we have some retrieval capabilities with our system and they do use those they are not as comprehensive as what we want them or what law enforcement would need to have them for some of the investigations," Calorio said.

Calorio said the idea is very much in the conceptual stage. She couldn't provide a price estimate and she noted that the extent of the system and where cameras would be installed is still being worked out. However, one major area of focus would likely be Owen Bell Park, where vandalism has been and increasingly common issue and Main Street where security and an increased police presence has been a longstanding desire of locals.

The concept was welcomed openly by members of the committee who all supported the proposal without major debate, especially Chairperson Amy Shatney, who has been a victim of crime in the town.

"I am totally, a hundred percent for this, just because we all know that the crime is out there and we definitely need to get a handle on it because it's happening in my driveway as well as the rest of the town," she said.

Committee member Scott Clifford called the idea "something that would benefit not only the downtown area, but the entire town," while member Chad

News clips from the past

MARGARET
WEAVER

I thought it was time for more clips from the past, so found a few articles of interest on newspapers.com. The Wednesday, May 18, 1921 Norwich Bulletin wrote of an upcoming opportunity for baseball lovers. “Danielson baseball fans are to have an opportunity in June to witness a baseball game between McDermott’s Braves of Putnam and the Pere Marquette K. of C. team of Greater Boston, of which ‘Babe Ruth’, the famous home run king is a member, at Wildwood Park. The visiting team will be made up of ex-leaguers who have entertained fans from coast to coast and this early game of the season is expected to be one of the finest of the entire playing season.” (p. 6). I’d love to learn if any of you have relatives who saw Babe Ruth play. If so, please email me.

Another event covered during that issue of the paper included the following, “At East Killingly today (Wednesday) a health institute will be held. This is one of the meetings that have been conducted in Windham County during the past few weeks. The institutes are being held under the auspices of the U.S. department of agriculture, the Connecticut Agricultural College and the Windham County Farmer’s Association. An interesting program is to be given at today’s meeting.” (p. 6).

When I arrived in Northeastern

Connecticut in 1969, it was the custom for a number of businesses to be closed one afternoon a week; I think perhaps Wednesday. In May 1921, “Clerks in Danielson’s stores are beginning to talk of the half holiday period of the year that is expected to begin within a few weeks, giving Thursday afternoons off during July and August.” Perhaps this was the forerunner of more recent half days. (Ibid, p. 6).

I hadn’t found as many May articles as I had hoped so removed the Norwich Bulletin from my search request on newspapers.com. I wasn’t expecting a mention of someone local in a Florida newspaper. “George E. Cook will leave today for his home in Danielson, CT, after spending the winter in the city.” A “snow bird”. (The Tampa Tribune, Tampa, Florida, Wednesday, May 1, 1918, p. 12; newspapers.com). I will have to be more open-minded in my future searches. Who knows what tidbits I might find.

I love this time of year when the daffodils and tulips are still blooming; the magnolias, flowering crab apples, rebuds, dogwoods, azaleas, and lilacs paint the landscape with glorious shades of pinks and whites; tiny green leaves appear on the trees and produce dappled sunlight. Glorious! My salmon-colored japonica (flowering quince) is extra special since it is a third generation shrub. A piece of my maternal grandmother’s went to my mother and then another to me. It is also where we watch for the arrival of the hummingbirds, which have just put in an appearance. I put the hummingbird feeder out this morning.

Of course, for me the beginning of May also reminds me of Mother’s Day even though my own mother has been gone several years. I couldn’t quite remember the history of the celebration so decided to refresh my memory. I thought I’d share.

“The origins of Mother’s Day as celebrated in the United States date back to the 19th century. In the years before the Civil War, Ann Reeves Jarvis of West Virginia helped start ‘Mothers’ Day Work Clubs’ to teach local women how to properly care for their children. These clubs later became a unifying force in the region of the country still divided over the Civil War. In 1868 Jarvis organized ‘Mothers’ Friendship Day,’ at which mothers gathered with former Union and Confederate soldiers to promote reconciliation.

“Another precursor to Mother’s Day came from the abolitionist and suffragette Julia Ward Howe. In 1870 Howe wrote the ‘Mother’s Day Proclamation’, a call to action that asked mothers to unite in promoting world peace. In 1873 Howe campaigned for a ‘Mother’s Peace Day’ to be celebrated every June 2...

“The official Mother’s Day holiday (in the United States) arose in the 1900’s as a result of the efforts of Anna Jarvis, daughter of Ann Reeves Jarvis. Following her mother’s 1905 death, Anna Jarvis conceived of Mother’s Day as a way of honoring the sacrifices mothers made for their children. After gaining financial backing from a Philadelphia department store owner named John Wanamaker, in May, 1908 she organized the first official Mother’s Day celebration at a Methodist church in Grafton, West Virginia. That same day also saw thousands of people attend a Mother’s Day event at one of Wanamaker’s retail stores in Philadelphia...

“Following the success of her first Mother’s Day, Jarvis—who remained unmarried and childless her whole life—resolved to see her holiday added to the national calendar. Arguing that American holidays were biased toward male achievements, she started a massive letter writing campaign to newspapers and prominent politicians... Her persistence paid off in 1914 when President Woodrow Wilson signed a measure officially establishing the second Sunday in May as Mother’s Day.”

It was not long before the holiday became commercialized with promotions of flowers, cards, and candies. Jarvis was so dismayed that “by the time of her death in 1948 (she) had disowned the holiday, and even actively lobbied the government to have it removed from the American calendar.” (www.history.com. Go to the website to read more).

We owe our lives to our mothers. If your mother is living, give her a call and do something special for her. If she is deceased, do something in her memory. Either way, give thanks for the care and sacrifices she has made for you.

Day Kimball Hospital earns national recognition for quality and patient safety

PUTNAM — Day Kimball Hospital (DKH) has recently earned top recognition from two national healthcare ratings organizations in areas related to patient safety and quality of care.

Day Kimball Hospital has been awarded the highest five-star quality rating from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), and was honored with an “A” grade in the spring 2021 release of the Leapfrog Group’s Hospital Safety Grade, a national distinction recognizing DKH’s achievements protecting patients from errors, injuries, accidents, and infections.

“Delivering high-quality healthcare to our region is our top priority at Day Kimball Healthcare,” said Kyle Kramer, chief executive officer, Day Kimball Healthcare. “Day Kimball is so proud to be the only hospital in our region to have achieved this level of recognition. We are honored to be among an elite group of hospitals dedicated to delivering excellent patient care and providing a positive experience for patients. These recognitions are a testament to our incredible team of physicians, nurses, clinical staff, and those behind the scenes who come to work every day committed to delivering excellence in quality, safety, and service.”

CMS Five-Star Quality Rating

DKH is one of only four hospitals in the state of Connecticut to achieve an overall five-star ranking from CMS, the highest ranking possible. Nationally, DKH ranks in the top 13 percent (one of just over 400) of eligible hospitals that have earned this distinction.

CMS created the Five-Star Quality Rating System to help consumers compare hospital and nursing home facilities. CMS’ Care Compare website is consumer-oriented, and provides information on how well hospitals provide recommended care to their patients. This information can help consumers make informed decisions about where to go for health care and features a quality rating system that gives hospitals and nursing homes a rating between one and five stars.

Since the start of the star rating system in 2015, CMS collects and compiles data from hospitals and uses that information to assign ratings from 1-5 stars. Much of the data comes from surveys of actual patients assessing their specific experience.

CMS uses the rating system to measure multiple facets of over 4,000 hospitals across the country to drive systematic improvements in care and safety for patients. The specific performance indicators in the CMS Star Rating system include measurements related to five areas: Mortality, Safety of Care, Re-Admission Rate, Patient Experience, and Timely and Effective Care. The ratings are published on the CMS Care Compare website. Each category is weighted and combined to create a score.

Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade

The Leapfrog Group is an independent national watchdog organization committed to health care quality and safety. The Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade assigns an “A,” “B,” “C,” “D,” or “F” grade to all general hospitals across the country and is updated every six months. It is the only hospital ratings program based exclusively on hospitals’ prevention of medical errors and other harms to patients in their care.

Day Kimball was among 33% of over 2,700 hospitals graded across the country and 8 in Connecticut to earn the “A” rating, placing it in the top third of hospitals in the nation for patient safety. The healthcare system first earned an “A” grade in the fall of 2017.

“An ‘A’ safety grade is an elite designation that your community should be proud of,” said Leah Binder, president and CEO of The Leapfrog Group. “The past year has been extraordinarily difficult for hospitals, but Day Kimball Hospital shows us it is possible to keep a laser focus on patients and their safety, no matter what it takes.”

Developed under the guidance of a national Expert Panel, the Leapfrog Hospital Safety Grade uses up to 27 measures of publicly available hospital safety data to assign grades to more than 2,700 U.S. acute-care hospitals twice per year. The Hospital Safety Grade’s methodology is peer-reviewed and fully transparent, and the results are free to the public. To see Day Kimball Hospital’s full grade details and access patient tips for staying safe in the hospital, visit hospitalgrade.org and follow The Leapfrog Group on Twitter and Facebook.

Day Kimball Healthcare also recently earned three national quality awards from The Joint Commission, an independent organization that accredits and certifies health care organizations and programs in the United States: The Joint Commission’s Gold Seal of Approval® for Advanced Certification for Primary Stroke Centers; Day Kimball Hospital and Day Kimball Healthcare At Home earned The Joint Commission’s Gold

Seal of Approval®; and The Joint Commission’s Gold Seal of Approval® for Joint Replacement Certification.

“We are honored to be recognized with these distinctions which further demonstrate what a vital resource our healthcare system is to the Northeast Connecticut community. As we continue to redefine what a community hospital should be, we aim to provide the best quality of care coupled with a culture of learning and performance improvement at every level. Especially with the added layer of safety issues surrounding the COVID-19 pandemic, I am incredibly proud of our staff’s sustained teamwork in maintaining our high standards for patient safety and quality,” added Kramer.

DKH takes pride in the excellence of care provided to its patients and the community. To learn more about all of Day Kimball Hospital’s various safety and quality measures, visit www.daykimball.org/quality.

The Villager would also like to clarify that the budget will be voted on at a referendum on May 11 at the Woodstock Town Hall from noon until 8 p.m., which was not included in the original story.

The proposal contains a general government spending plan of $2.07 million, a $119,313 increase over the current year’s $1.9 million budget, and an education budget of $19.76 million, a $556,058 increase over the current budget of $19.2 million. Thompson Trails, Historical Society & National Park Service present design options for “Train Wreck Park”

THOMPSON — As a part of an ongoing project with the National Park Service Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program, the Town of Thompson is hosting a public presentation of design options for “Train Wreck Park,” an interpretive site telling the story of the Great East Thompson Train Wreck. The presentation will take place on Zoom, Wednesday May 12th at 6:30 p.m. Participants can join in by following this link:

<https://us02web.zoom.us/j/82723340687?pwd=djhUT004VnFEUVRqUINydlpoanVnUT09>

Located on the Air Line State Park Trail, the site of the wreck has been a popular destination for annual guided walks by members of Thompson Historical Society. Since January of 2020, NPS RTCA partners have been working with the Historical Society, Thompson Trails and the Office of Planning & Development to brainstorm design ideas. For the 2020-2021 academic year, the working group has expanded to include a senior student team from the UConn School of Engineering. The presentation on 12 May will feature the student team’s final designs, along with live polling questions for public input on the shared options. The web event will also feature the results of a youth engagement project of the Putnam Rotary Interact Club; and an update from the NPS partners on the progress toward a “Trail Town Action Plan” for Thompson, mapping out next steps in the development of the Town’s outdoor recreation assets.

Participants in the Web event will also have the chance to be randomly drawn for the gift of one of Thompson Trails’ popular “More Than Just a Train Wreck” long-sleeve t-shirts.

Please help us spread the word about Thompson’s Connecticut gateway to the Air Line State Park Trail; the unique historical event that took place there; and this opportunity to provide input on the design of the future Train Wreck Park. Share the zoom link widely! We hope to see you there!

Killingly baseball team's historic 8-0 start best in school history

The entire Killingly baseball team waits for Bo Yaworski at home plate after Yaworski belted a three-run, first-inning homer against Wheeler on Saturday, April 24.

KILLINGLY — The Killingly High baseball team improved to 8-0 for the first time in school history, pounding Windham High, 13-1, on Wednesday, April 28, at Owen Bell Park.

Killingly made the most of its seven hits, four of the seven being extra-base hits. Trevin Russ led the offensive attack, with three hits, including a triple, and two RBI. Nate Keefe, Tate Larrow, and Bo Yaworski all smacked doubles in the victory. On the mound, Cole Lavigne was in control throughout, allowing five hits, while striking out five in four innings of work.

The day before its win over Windham (Tuesday, April 27), Killingly picked up a road win, defeating Putnam High, 11-0. The score, however, was not indicative of the competitiveness of the contest as Jay Grzysiewicz and Putnam's Colby Livingston were locked in a pitcher's duel for the first four innings. Killingly led, 1-0, as play headed to the fifth inning.

Killingly broke the game open in the fifth and sixth innings, scoring 10 runs. Russ plated a pair of runs in the fifth — to make the score 3-0 — with a double down the first-base line. Russ then scored to make it 4-0 on an RBI single by Chris Jax. Killingly's seven-run sixth inning was highlighted by doubles off the bats of Yaworski and Justin Baker. Grzysiewicz picked up the win on the mound with an 11-strikeout, complete-game, one-hit shutout.

Killingly began its four wins in five days stretch on Saturday, April 24, sweeping a home doubleheader from Wheeler, 13-3 and 9-1.

Yaworski paced Killingly's 13-hit attack in the opener, going 3-for-3, including a three-run homer, and four RBI. Jax added a two-run homer, while Keefe finished with three hits and Larrow two. Killingly put the game away early, scoring 10 runs in the first inning. Lavigne picked up the win on the bump, striking out six in four innings of work.

In the second game of Killingly's doubleheader with Wheeler, Keefe broke open a scoreless contest with a fourth-inning grand slam. Yaworski added a three-run double in the fifth inning to extend the lead. Yaworski picked up the win on the hill, striking out eight and not allowing a hit in four innings of work. Aaron Dionne relieved Yaworski and hurled two scoreless innings before giving way to Brady Waterman, who pitched the seventh inning.

Elsewhere in the Quiet Corner:

Woodstock Academy improved to 5-3 with a 10-0 win over Grasso Tech on Wednesday, April 28, and 11-1 win over Lyman on Tuesday, April 27, and a doubleheader sweep of St. Bernard, 8-4 and 12-5, on Saturday, April 24.

In the home win over Grasso Tech, leadoff hitter Hamilton Barnes smacked a pair of singles and scored three times while Jacob Hernandez, batting second, added two hits and two runs scored for Woodstock Academy.

In the win over Lyman, also at the Bentley Athletic Complex, freshman Riley O'Brien picked up the win in his first varsity start, limiting the Bulldogs to three hits while striking out five in five innings of work. Brendan Hill drove in four runs for the Centaurs while Kaden Murphy added two hits and drove in three runs.

In the first game of its doubleheader with the Saints, Woodstock entered the seventh inning trailing 4-2, but rallied to score six runs in the frame to pull out the win. Murphy knocked in the go-ahead run with a two-run single in the seventh. Jon Smith picked up the win on the mound, going seven innings, giving up four runs on just three hits while striking out eight.

In the second game the Centaurs scored five runs in the first inning and cruised to victory. Jackson Goetz was 3-for-3 with a double and three runs driven for the Centaurs. Murphy, the winning pitcher in game two, knocked in two runs, as did Hamilton Barnes.

SOFTBALL

Killingly improved to 6-1 with victories over Putnam, 10-5 on Tuesday, April 27, and a doubleheader sweep of Wheeler, 16-4 and 17-1, on Saturday, April 24.

In the win over the Clippers, Casey Beauregard was the hitting star, with a home run to go along with two walks, a stolen base and three runs scored. Lexi Faucher picked up the win on the circle, striking out 10. In the doubleheader sweep of Wheeler Faucher and Emma Carpenter both picked up pitching wins while Beauregard and Hannah Cozza had multiple extra-base hits.

Woodstock Academy scored 48 runs in a three-game stretch while picking up a road win over Lyman, 18-6 (on Tuesday, April 27), and a home doubleheader sweep of St. Bernard, 11-2 and 19-1 (on Saturday, April 24).

In the win over Lyman, Sarah McArthur and Delaney Anderson each had three hits in the Centaurs (6-2 overall, 5-0 ECC Division 2) 15-hit attack, with McArthur driving in five runs and Anderson three.

In the first game of its doubleheader sweep of the Saints, WA scored four runs in the first inning and seven in the fourth. Mackenzie Leveille pitched a four-hitter with 14 strikeouts to pick up the win. She was also 3-for-3 with a couple of RBIs at the plate. Madison Martinez and Meg Preston both added two hits and two RBIs in the win.

In the second game of their doubleheader sweep, an 11-run third inning by the Centaurs was highlighted by a two-run triple by Lexi Thompson and a two-run double by Sarah McArthur.

In the circle Thompson gave up just one hit, and struck out 12.

Wyndham Land Trust protects two properties

POMFRET CENTER—A pair of properties in the Quiet Corner have been preserved by the Wyndham Land Trust.

The Wyndham Land Trust recently acquired two properties that add to the 5,000 acres of forest and grasslands already protected by the land trust in Connecticut's Quiet Corner. The new 86-acre Cartier Preserve is located north of Quarry Road in Woodstock. The new 65-acre Potrzeba Preserve sits a short distance away to the west of Swedetown Road in the northwest corner of Pomfret.

"There's something about these woods that never fails to help me refocus on what's truly important in this life," says the land trust's treasurer, Penny Foisey. "As the saying goes 'And into the woods I go, to lose my mind and find my soul.' The Cartier and Potrzeba Preserves are great places to enjoy the beauty of nature. I always feel like I've stepped back in time walking these paths that were here long before I."

Both preserves are part of a large undeveloped area of forested habitat covering several thousand acres that is important for storing carbon and fighting climate change. Land manager Andy Rzeznikiewicz is excited about the new acquisitions: "The diversity of birds is very high—an indication of the health and the size of the forest. Species like black-throated blue warblers, hooded warblers, black-throated green warblers, and scarlet tanagers breed here. Bird species that I don't find in most parts of our area are attracted to the large stands of thick mountain laurel, where they nest and raise their young.

"The land trust is focusing on acquiring large, unbroken blocks of land, and we're hoping for additional donations to protect this valuable habitat in our region. I've long admired the wild feeling of this area, and I'm grateful we have managed to protect some of it."

The Cartier Preserve rises to over 900 feet in its center and is traversed by a mile-long trail that runs through the dense mountain laurel. Foisey will lead a walk through the Cartier Preserve on June 13 as part of the Last Green Valley's Spring Outdoors event, and the walk is timed to coincide with the spectacular bloom of the mountain laurel. Scouts from BSA Troop 27 in Woodstock recently cleared fallen trees and brush along the trail in preparation for the event.

The Wyndham Land Trust was formed in 1975, and the work of the all-volunteer group is possible only through the generosity and dedication of its members and donors. To learn more about the Wyndham Land Trust visit wyndhamlandtrust.org. You can also follow them on Facebook and Instagram.

Rotary Club, community partner to support community “Superheroes”

PUTNAM — Eager to help boost the morale of frontline workers in the depths of the COVID-19 morass, the Putnam Rotary Club raised almost $5,000 for schools and healthcare organizations to let their workers know they are appreciated.

The Superheroes Phonathon was held at the end of January. Kristen Willis, Putnam Rotary president, said the original goal was $2,500, but $4,800 was raised, thanks to hard work by Rotarians and a generous community. The radio phonathon was hosted by WINY Radio, owned by Putnam Rotarians Gary Osbrey and Karen Osbrey.

Willis said, "We sponsored this event to provide a morale booster and heart-felt gratitude to our local healthcare workers and educators who have been tirelessly dedicated to keeping our community safe and healthy -- in body, mind and spirit. It was our hope that each organization would utilize the funds to provide an activity or gift of their choice as an expression of gratitude to their staff on behalf of our entire community."

Donations included Eastford Elementary School, $300; Pomfret Community School, $375; Generations Healthcare, $325; Woodstock Public Schools, $550; Thompson Public Schools, $875; Putnam Public Schools, $875 and Day Kimball Healthcare, $1,500.

All the organizations were appreciative, and many chose to buy lunches or snacks.

One of those picking the lunch gift was Putnam Public Schools. Timing is everything. Putnam Schools Superintendent Daniel Sullivan III said the gift came just as the Board of Education was considering what they could do to say "We appreciate you" to educators. Rotary's gift was matched by the Board of Education and the district ordered bagged lunches from a local business, Renee's Bistro and Catering.

The district chose the day that all the teachers would be at the middle school getting their second vaccinations. Educators picked up packaged lunches that included a variety of sandwiches, salads, soups and even desserts.

Sullivan estimated that some 230 educators were honored with the meals.

"We are so grateful to the Putnam Rotary for this gift," Sullivan said.

Willis said it was the club's hope that the schools/healthcare organizations would use the funds to provide a special thanks and gesture of appreciation to the staffs for all they have done and continue to do for the community.

place on Monday, May 17 from noon until 8 p.m. in all four of Thompson's voting districts. A full copy of the proposed budget can be found on the Town of Thompson website.

The remaining three items on the agenda were all approved unanimously without debate. The first was to ratify and approve the town's $87,259 capital improvement plan. A second item asked voters whether or not to adopt an amended ordinance of an annual tax exemption for members of Thompson's five volunteer fire departments. The ordinance change includes volunteer firefighters, ambulance personnel and emergency management personnel and allows for an up to $60,000 tax exemption depending on how active the volunteer member was during a calendar year among other benefits. The final item was the conveyance of seven parcels of land from the Town of Thompson to the Wyndham Land Trust including six properties on West Thompson Road and one property on Ravenelle Road.

Soap converted into water buffalos through Rotary

PUTNAM — It was like transforming ethereal soap bubbles into the tangible --- water buffalos and bees.

The Putnam Rotary Club's Interact Club, for its international project this year, decided that a car wash, strategically placed at the finish of winter, would be an excellent fund-raiser for its International Heifer project. The project converts donations into animals, insects and seeds that help those in need halfway around the world help themselves.

The trifecta of Rotary workers --- the Interact Club, the Putnam Rotary Club's Rotaract Club and a couple Rotary Club advisors --- raised $525 in three hours washing cars April 24 at the Hale YMCA Youth and Family Center. They didn't set a price; instead they asked customers to donate.

The Rotary Club thanked Rotarian Amanda Kelly and the Hale YMCA Youth and Family Center for hosting/providing the venue for the April 24 fundraiser.

Interactors voted to use the $525 to buy one water buffalo, trees and garden seeds, four flocks of chicks and two beehives.

Interact Advisor Roberta Rocchetti said Rotary International "encourages

Interact Club member Emily St. Martin hoses off a car from on high.

Interact to do at least one international project each year."

Last year, she said, "we used the money we had earned at the 2019 Putnam car show and combined with the Putnam Rotary Club to assist in (former Rotary Club President Richard Naumann's) clean water project in Ecuador."

Past Putnam Rotary Club Interact Clubs had contributed to International Heifer, Rocchetti said, but this small, but hard-working current club really made it happen, and in three short hours.

She said, "We were very excited to earn $525 in three hours by washing cars. The Rotaract Club had a team and the Interact club had a team, so we were able to wash a lot of cars in a short period of time. They worked well together."

Interact President Brayden Cutler said, "Thank you, Kevin Davis and Rotaract members. Our car wash was a success because of your help."

Interact members who took part include: Cutler, Ethan Staples, Emma Braithwaite, Laylah Chavez, Abby St.Martin, Emily St.Martin plus Rotary advisors Marcy Dawley and Rocchetti. Rotaract members included: Kevin Davis, Quinebaug Valley Regional Rotaract Club president; Elle-Jordyn Goslin Tayler Shea (also representing NOW), Megan Berkery, Kelli O'Brien, and Douglas Henry. Also helping was a QVRR guest, Matt Sanchas

Spring cleaning is about more than tidying up

It's been a rainy week, which means that spending time inside organizing and cleaning — along with watching the Red Sox hold steady in first place — was top on our to-do list. Spring cleaning, a chore that happens every year, feels great when complete. Why is it that something so tedious and boring could be so good for us?

Did you know that cleaning actually supports your immune system? Cleaning is of huge benefit especially to those with allergies. Getting rid of dust, pet dander, mildew and mold can trigger the immune system causing unnecessary illness. Those with cluttered homes tend to suffer the worst. To avoid indoor allergies, vacuum regularly, this to include your furniture.

Cleaning reduces stress. While cleaning, your brain is able to relax. This mindless activity can give you a chance to de-stress. Experts say that cleaning for as little as twenty minutes can reduce anxiety by up to 20 percent. It's a win-win — sure, it's no day at the spa, but constructive relaxation is always good. Using products with scents said to induce relaxation such as lavender is also an expert tip.

Heart health can be improved by cleaning by way of exercise. Just a half an hour of vacuuming can burn up to 100 calories. It's a known fact that people who like to keep their homes clean tend to take more interest in their overall health and well-being.

A tidy bedroom is said to help you sleep better. Individuals who make their beds are roughly 20 percent more likely to get a more restful night sleep. Seventy-five percent of people polled sleep better on clean sheets, in a room with less clutter.

When you are in a tidy area, your production increases. Less clutter means less distraction, which is said to clear up mental space. A study from 2011 published in the Journal of Neuroscience used MRI's to track the brain's response to cleanliness. More clutter was found to significantly limit the brain's processing capability.

Checking off the cleaning to do list can make you feel more satisfied and can boost your mood. A clean, fresh house is said to naturally boost endorphins and boost energy levels which leads to a decrease in depression.

Cleaning and organization can have a domino effect in that it can lead to sprucing up other areas of your life. Interesting, was the one finding that stated when individuals were placed in a clean, well-organized space they were more likely to choose healthier menu items.

Perhaps William Morris put it best: "Have nothing in your house that you do not know to be useful, or believe to be beautiful."

BISHOP JOHN W. HANSON

Motherhood is an adventure in loving. There are no guarantees and no guidebooks that can adequately prepare mothers for their incredibly important task. Only massive doses of love can insure the job is done properly, because there is no tougher job than tending a garden of souls. Stories like this one remind me of how unpredictable and interesting a mother's job can be:

My niece was fixing lunch at the stove when her three-year-old daughter walked in and asked, "Is 'Tonic Water' water?"

The mother answered, "Not really. It's a little different. Why? Do you need some

A farmer, or something more?

To the Editor:

At the Pomfret P&Z public hearing of April 21 for text language changes to a Farm Distillery, the public hearing was continued to the next meeting of May 19.

The owner of Watercure farm, a farm distillery, has now submitted new proposed text language in [brackets] asking that a farm distillery be granted the same privileges by adding the words [or farm distillery] in seven (7) new places to Section 12.9 Farm Winery Restaurant (Special Permit Required) and two new sentences.

12.9.1Intent. To allow the sale and service of food prepared and consumed at a farm winery [or farm distillery], as well as the accommodation of special group events such as weddings to be held at a farm winery [or farm distillery]. Such activities are to be a complement and secondary to a farm winery [or farm distillery].

Under 12.9.2 Definition. A Farm Winery Restaurant shall be a use incidental, complementary and secondary to a Farm Winery permitted by or legally existing prior to the adoption of Section 11.20 of these Regulations. [A Farm Distillery Restaurant shall be a use incidental, complementary, and secondary to a farm Distillery permitted by Section 12.8.2 of these Regulations]. A Farm Winery [or farm distillery]Restaurant shall accommodate a maximum of one hundred (100) persons seated or standing indoors and one hundred (100) persons seated or standing outdoors on a patio area at any one time (for a total of 200 persons seated or standing.

12.9.3 Standards. a. The Farm Winery [or farm distillery] Restaurant must be located on a single parcel of land on which the Farm Winery [or farm distillery] is also located, and the parcel must be a minimum of ten (10) acres [for Farm Wineries and 5 (five) acres for Farm Distilleries]. b. The maximum hours of operation of a Farm Winery [or farm distillery] Restaurant shall be 10:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.

In a nutshell, Watercure Farm is attempting to mirror the same standards of a Farm Winery Restaurant located on a minimum of 10 acres with his operation on a minimum of five acres.

Again, the question. Is the permittee a pota-to farmer selling his home-grown product, or wanting to be something else?

Lost in the Páramo

"If I don't leave I won't go some place I've never been" – Memphis Rockabilly Band

My wife and I desperately needed a training hike before our upcoming trek to Ingapirca. El Cajas National Park was only an hour away and according to the Rough Guide, "El Cajas is one of the most beautiful wilderness areas in Ecuador: a wild, primeval landscape of craggy hills and glacier-scoured valleys studded with a breathtaking quantity of lakes." It also mentioned wildcat, pumas and deer. Nothing about feral cattle.

We usually travel alone to give us greater flexibility and opportunities for spontaneity not available in group travel. With a topographic map and a couple of blazed trees we can usually find our way anywhere. Various on-line sources said that topo maps for El Cajas are either readily available at the park, sometimes available or not available at all. Our experience has been that trying to acquire maps once in Ecuador is futile. Some say the military keeps them secret. Others say it is part of the full employment for guides act. I ordered some on line before the trip but they still haven't arrived.

Trails there are not well marked either. By not well marked, I mean there were no signs and no blazes, but at least there were no skeletons of lost hikers, either.

There was also the matter of transportation. The guide book said it was easy to get a bus to El Cajas in the morning, but one may or may not pick you up on the way back in the evening. We decided to skip the opportunity to be stranded all night in the middle of a national park at high elevation in potentially freezing weather and strolled into a travel office in Cuenca.

"We'd like a guide for a seven-mile hike in El Cajas," we said to the young woman at the desk.

"We have a nice two-mile loop around the lake," she said to the two elderly American tourists standing in front of her.

"That's too short, how about this one," Janet said, pointing at the map.

The woman demurred. "That's kind of long. How about this three-mile hike."

We countered with an eight-mile hike, she came back with a four-mile hike. Finally, we agreed on the six-mile Tres Cruces Hike. "Well," I said to Janet on the way out, "you can't always get what you want."

"Good tune," Janet said. "Rolling Stones, right? How's the rest of it go?"

"I don't remember. Something about 'if you try sometimes you get frustrated?'"

The next day our guide, Roberto, picked us up at the hotel. He was fully decked out in knee high gaiters, about 30 years younger than us and very personable. We drove to the Tres Cruces pass which is on the continental divide at elevation 13,651 feet. The three crosses have been erected in memory of the many people who died of altitude sickness trying to make the crossing from the coast to the Andes.

Then although we thought we were prepared for anything came the thing we had never thought of. "Time for calisthenics," he said. We looked at him for any indication that he was kidding, but he was already doing jumping jacks.

"You gotta be kidding me," I muttered.

"Shh, when in Rome...." Janet's comment tailed off as she started doing jumping jacks.

Halfheartedly I joined in, trying to avoid the stares of the other hikers going past. Fearing that yoga would come next, I began to formulate an escape plan.

After deeming himself sufficiently warmed up, we began the descent through the páramo to the three gorgeous lakes sprawled out in front of us. To the untrained eye it looked like a vast expanse of knee high grass. Páramo actually refers to an ecosystem found only in South America. A technical definition is: "the term used in Ecuador for the high (usually wet) areas above "timberline," with low-growing vegetation such as grasses, sedges, terrestrial bromeliads ("achupallas"), mosses, lichens, "stumpy" tree-ferns and several kinds of flowering vegetation which grow in the form of cushion plants." In lay person's terms, a swamp above the tree line.

The gray clouds hung over the mountains like a soggy blanket and dripped onto the lakes in creeping tendrils of fog. We beat the fog to the lakes and then began ascending. As we rounded a corner Roberto came face to face with a feral bull with dangerously sharp looking horns. The bull snorted once, then charged. Roberto vaulted over a rock like a trained matador and cowered behind it and I understood at that moment why he did calisthenics before hikes. The emaciated animal was staring at him as if he held Roberto responsible for everything bad that had ever happened in his life. Janet and I stood motionless as he charged, trying not to attract his attention and wishing now that we had put more effort into the jump-

An adventure In loving water, Honey?"

"No thanks," her daughter replied, "I had some of the dogs'. It was real good."

My mom raised five children. When our family reminisces, many such stories surface. Some of the stories bring laughter and others bring tears. I am often amazed that we put our mother through the things we put her through. Nothing compares to a healthy mother-child relationship. My wife and I had a child of our own and I had front row seat as I watched my wife give her life for her son. In our case my wife forfeited a career in order to homeschool her only son. They explored books and museums. They did crafts and projects. As someone with a degree in teaching, I observed that they had a richer education than those who attended multi-million-dollar institutions. He far exceeded our expectations, graduated with a masters' degree from a highly rated college, and enjoys a great career as he raises children of his own. It's no wonder tough guys get "mom" tattooed on their biceps.

Kudos to all the moms out there who are steering their brood through the many challenges of life. With the unexpected challenges of COVID added to the typical hazards that parents face, it is more important than ever that we make sure Mom knows we appreciate her and have her back. Maybe she deserves a little extra down time this month. How cool would it be if Mother's Day was more than a routine holiday, and more of a genuine celebration? That is what you can do to make sure the loving adventure continues in your world.

Bishop John W. Hanson oversees Acts II Ministries, where a high value is still placed on the family. We are proud of the many mothers who lovingly serve raise their children. For information about our ministries, please visit www.ActsII.org.

Who says my “Smart TV” is so smart?

POSITIVELY
SPEAKING

GARY W.
MOORE

We are told that life as we know it has been forever changed by the computer. The most complicated equations are solved. We started at a desk, then moved to a mobile laptop. A few years later our phones became computers and now it can be as small as a watch on your wrist. (Calling Dick Tracey?). Technology is instantaneous and we are told it's made our lives easier, and it has in many ways, while complicating it in others. Who is it that's telling us this life in general is made easier by technology? Is it true?

Then, why do I have three remotes sitting on my coffee table to operate one so called "Smart TV?"

If it's so smart, shouldn't I only need a single remote ... or no remote at all?

As most of you know, we recently downsized and moved into town. The building I live in doesn't allow a dish to be installed so I called the local branch of the "mega-cable" service. I found in my call for installation that I could easily install it myself. They pushed the do-it-yourself option hard. It was obvious they didn't want to send anyone out, so I finally said yes.

The box of wires and devices arrived, and I was lost. I called my son-in-law Jeff (an engineer) and he made it look easy. It was ready to go ... but not so fast.

Jeff handed me five remote controls and said, "These three are for the living room and these two for the bedroom. The third for the living room operates your sound. The other two operate the TV."

Huh?

Easy for Jeff. He actually is a "Rocket Scientist." I think he can send us all to Mars using his telephone, an umbrella, and a Red Ryder Wagon. He gave me a quick tutorial and was out the door ... yet I wasn't even sure how to turn either TV on.

If they are so smart, why can't they figure out how to run on a single remote? If they are intelligent, why is it every time I talk into the voice activated feature on the remote, it answers, "There is no channel called ..." no matter what channel I choose. If they are smart, why did I walk out of the bedroom this morning to find Arlene holding one remote over her head and the other at knee level. "What are you doing," I asked. "Trying to turn on the TV," she responded.

Oh, before you ask, no, there was no instruction manual. I called to get one and was told I could access it on my smart TV. Right.

Over the last seven months, I've learned the basics of managing my TV with these remotes. We never get too old to learn and after I figured it all out, it's not that hard. But why should I have spent the first four months only watching Netflix because I couldn't figure out how to leave the streaming services and over to cable? And please do not tell me a really smart TV can't figure out how to operate with a single remote.

I'm sure my grandsons could have taught me. The nine-year-old down the street probably knows. I'm just not wired that way. I'm heavy on the creative side and exceptionally light on the technical, detailed stuff. I can write a column, book, or screenplay ... but if my screenplay was turned into a movie, I may miss the first half of the show while I struggle with the remote to find the channel.

Mistakes happen

Whenever there is a chance to make a mistake using technology, I make it. I have written this column for 16 years, and I still have moments when I think I have hit the “send” button and I have not. The Editor, always under the pressure of a deadline, has to ask me where it is. Red-faced, but fortunately alone at my desk, my heart beats fast. I hope I have saved the 600-word piece and not erased it. I find it. Hit “send” and promise myself that I will improve.

NANCY WEISS

In a recent column, I made a mistake. In sharing a fine poem by Woodstock resident Genie Johnson, I left out a stanza. Through Jon Andersen, Professor of English at Quinebaug Valley Community College, and my contact with the winners of the Julius Sokenu Award and other poetry awards, I was graciously alerted to the error. I felt awful. I wanted to celebrate poets and poetry and instead I offered something in print that was wrong.

Here is the poem from Genie Johnson

as it should have been presented. Genie was selected for the Connecticut Student Poetry Circuit in 2019. This poem won first place in the QVCC English category of the 12th Annual Julius Sokenu Poetry Awards in 2019. I have tightened the spacing.

They Said
By Genie Johnson

We heard about it on the morning news
as if you were a common stranger.
There was no carefully worded phone call,
no buffer from you name’s confirmation.

Just a picture of your charred brown house, video of the blazing destruction, the torn testimony of your next-door neighbor, words broadcast through the screen to us as if they were stricken
from a blacksmith’s hammer.

When we finally received the official notification, they said they found you laid out on your unmade bed preserved somehow—not taken by the fire.

You looked as if you were sleeping,
they said—
smoke inhalation: “She never felt a thing.”

I don’t know how they could presume
such a thing about you I mean, for as long as I knew you
you felt every single thing.

Since childhood you craved favor and recognition, you fervently tried to persuade us all to listen, but with calloused ears your friends and family fixed iron tongues against you.

It’s why you turned to vodka, isn’t it?
To hush your beaten beating heart;
there was never any chance for you to rise.
Not only was there no smoke alarm—
you were passed out drunk, they said.

Kim: I want to wrap my arms around your swollen body,

put my mouth on your lips and breathe
for you.
But it’s too late to coax life into you,
too late
to wake you up and take you home.

Despite making mistakes in previously printed poems, I have enjoyed sharing the work of local poets with you. I think we are open to poetry because it requires us to condense our words and expand our thoughts.

With two shots of vaccine in my system, I am happily out in the world once again. I squeeze my grandchildren so tightly that they protest, but I can’t help myself. I want face-to-face encounters with old friends and time in public places. When I see people, we talk longer and more intensely than in the past, but we have all been changed by the months of isolation.

Technology will always bedevil me, but I am grateful the connections it provided.
I fumble around on my computer and I still can’t operate the television efficiently, but I am grateful I can share what I think is important, including poetry.

Don’t depend on student loan forgiveness — plan ahead with tax-advantaged college savings

There’s a lot of talk in Congress right now about potentially canceling anywhere from $10,000 to $50,000 of federal student loan debt per person. But don’t be confused — if this debt cancellation
even happens at all, it will be a one-time cancellation for those who currently have qualifying student loans. So, while it would provide some relief to existing borrowers it does nothing to alleviate the challenge of meeting the high cost of college that will still face current and future students.

That’s why it’s so important to plan
well by creating a solid strategy to save for college costs. The best savings vehicles offer special tax advantages if the funds are used to pay for college. Tax-advantaged strategies are important because over time, you can potentially accumulate more money with a tax-advantaged investment compared to a taxable investment.

There are several tax-advantaged savings vehicles that you can consider, but the most popular and typically the most advantageous one is the 529 savings plan.

529 savings plans offer a unique combination of features that no other education savings vehicle can match. Here’s
what you need to know:

A 529 savings plan lets you save money for college and K-12 tuition in an individual investment-type account, similar to a 401(k) plan. Some plans let you enroll directly, while others require you to go through a financial professional.

529 savings plans are offered by states (you can join any state’s plan), but they are managed by designated financial companies who are responsible for managing the plan’s underlying investment portfolios.

Anyone can open
a 529 savings plan
account, regardless of income level. You’ll typically be required
to make an initial minimum contribution,
however, which must be made in cash. You’ll then select one or more of the plan’s investment portfolios to which your contributions will be allocated.

Contributions to a 529 account accumulate tax deferred and earnings are tax free if the money is used to pay the beneficiary’s qualified education expenses. (The earnings portion of any withdrawal not used for qualified education expenses is taxed at the recipient’s rate and subject to a 10% penalty.)
Most plans have lifetime contribution limits of $350,000 and up.

In addition, many states offer income tax incentives for state residents, such as a tax deduction for contributions or a tax exemption for qualified withdrawals. However, be aware that some states limit their tax deduction to contributions made to the in-state 529 plan only.

529 savings plans also offer an estate planning advantage in the form of accelerated gifting. This can be a favorable way for grandparents to contribute to their grandchildren’s education while paring down their own estate, or a way for parents to contribute a large lump sum. Under special rules unique to 529 plans, a lump-sum gift of up to five times the annual gift tax exclusion amount ($15,000 in 2021) is allowed in a single year, which means that individuals can make a lump-sum gift of up to $75,000 and married couples can gift up to $150,000. No gift tax will be owed, provided the gift is treated as having been made in equal installments

over a five-year period and no other gifts
are made to that beneficiary during the five years.

There are a couple of drawbacks to 529 savings plans to keep in mind, though:

Investment returns aren’t guaranteed. You roll the dice with the investment portfolios you’ve chosen, and your account may gain or lose value depending on how the underlying investments perform. There is no guarantee that your investments will perform well enough to cover college costs as anticipated.

529 savings plans have limited investment flexibility. Not only are you limited to the investment portfolios offered by the particular 529 plan, but once you choose your investments, you can only change the investment options on your existing contributions twice per calendar year. (However, you can generally direct how your future contributions will be invested at any time.)

Although there’s a lot of discussion among legislators right now about how to tackle the issue of the skyrocketing costs of higher education, for the moment there are no plans in place and the road to developing a solution is sure to be a long one. Saving for your child’s or grandchild’s education in smart, strategic ways is still the only way to ensure that he or she will have the resources required to benefit from the education they’ll need to live well in the future.

If you haven’t yet created a college savings plan, or you have one but are unsure if it’s set up to best maximize your savings, you should talk with a financial advisor who can get you start-

Grow Edamame for better health and nutrition

Add a bit of fiber to your garden and diet.
Consider growing edamame (edible soybeans)
in this year’s garden.

Soybeans help promote overall health reducing the risk of high cholesterol, diabetes, heart disease, and high blood pressure.
Plus, the high fiber in soy helps fight
colon and some other cancers.

Edamame is an ancient Asian vegetable and is often eaten right from the pod like peanuts. Edible soybeans are also used for making tofu, tempeh, soy nut snacks and more. In addition to their high fiber content, soybean’s high protein content has made them a popular meat substitute.

Soybeans can be grown in a variety of soils and climate. They tolerate adverse conditions but perform best in warm temperatures, full sun, and moist well-drained soils. Add organic matter to less-than-ideal soils to improve drainage in heavy clay soils and increase the water holding capacity in sandy and rocky soils.

Try growing one of the edible soybean varieties such as Agate, Chiba Green, Midori Giant, and Envy. These have a better flavor and are more suited to your garden and recipes than field varieties.

Wait for the soil to warm for quick germination and increased success.

GARDEN
MOMENTS
MELINDA
MYERS

Grow edible soybeans
in a sunny spot. Plant and care for them the same as you would lima beans. Plant seeds
three inches apart and one to one and a half inches deep in rows
24 to 36 inches apart.
Once the plants sprout
and grow, thin them
out by removing the weaker seedlings,
so the remaining plants are six inches
apart.

Harvest the soybeans when the pods
are plump, green, rough, and hairy.
They are usually ready to harvest in 80
to 120 days, depending on the variety.
Check frequently and pick when the seeds are fully enlarged but before they get hard. Waiting too long to harvest the seeds reduces the flavor and quality. Since all the seed filled pods usually ripen at the same time, you can pull up the whole plant and harvest the seeds from pods while sitting on a chair in the shade.

Use edamame within two to three days of harvest for the best quality.
Store fresh edamame in the refrigerator
in a perforated plastic bag.

Cook edamame by steaming, boiling, or microwaving the pods. Allow them to cool, then pop out the seeds to enjoy. Don’t let any surplus go to waste.
Blanche, then freeze whole pods or the seeds. Or dry the shelled edamame in the oven or dehydrator to use through-ing jacks. It was a good plan as the bull ignored us completely and focused his unmitigated hatred on Roberto. Finally, after what seemed like minutes, but was probably only seconds, the bull wandered off down the trail. Roberto got up, brushed off his dignity and we continued up the trail. Soon Roberto began cutting diagonally across the side of the mountain and we realized we were no longer on a trail. We reached a grove of trees, but they were the wrong trees. Roberto turned around and headed back the other way. Eventually he decided to go straight up the side of the nearly vertical face, and we had to hold onto the grass to keep from tipping over backward. Every now and then I saw him surreptitiously looking at his cell phone. After wandering around aimlessly for a while he finally found the grove of trees he was looking for. When he was out of earshot, I said to Janet, “did you see him looking at his phone? I think he was lost.” “Yup and just think, we could have gotten lost by ourselves for free,” she said “Yeah, but it wouldn’t have been nearly as much fun,” I replied. As we approached the end of the trail Roberto flopped down on a patch of grass. Must be yoga time I thought. Instead, he lit a cigarette and announced, “You guys are in way better shape than I am.” Reflecting on the hike later that night, I remembered the rest of the words to the Stone’s song. And it wasn’t about getting frustrated. This was hiking in South America after all. It was “Sometimes you get what you need.”

So, what is positive about all this? I didn’t give up and figured it out. We are never too old to learn and if we are optimistic and keep working on the problem, we can solve it. And what did I learn from all this? Well ... I don’t think the term “Smart TV” is fully accurate. I find both of my televisions to be less intelligent than Alexa (Amazon) or my iPhone. I guess my TVs could be classified as learning impaired, but that’s okay. They both now perform as needed when I have all the remotes at my disposal. The world is constantly changing around us, and we can choose to be lost within it or to keep up. I decided to keep up. What about you?

Baseball antique and auction news

There is some promising news for local antique shows. After all three Brimfield shows were cancelled last year due to the pandemic, Brimfield will be reopening, although it will be on a limited basis. Many of the fields have opted to remain closed for the May show. The website thebrimfieldshow.com lists Brimfield Auction Acres (formerly J & J) as the lone May show. It will open from May 12 through May 15. Expect to see more fields open for the July and September shows.

There has been a lot of recent antique news from outside of our area as well. A 1794 “No Stars Flowing Hair Dollar” far exceeded expectations when it sold at auction last month. ESPN reported that “while it closely resembles silver dollars that were later minted in Philadelphia, it gets its name because it is missing stars.” It sailed past the $350,000 to $500,000 estimate, reaching $840,000. The reason that ESPN reported on the sale of a rare coin is because it was previously owned by Texas Rangers co-chairman Bob Simpson.

In other baseball related auction news, a Honus Wagner T206 tobacco baseball card will be offered with a $1 million starting bid in an auction ending this month, according to a Bleacher Report article. David Sax of Smithsonian Magazine told the Bleacher Report that, “it’s believed that Wagner demanded the ATC pull his card from circulation because he didn’t want anyone else profiting from his likeness.” Other sources have reported that Wagner didn’t like tobacco and refused to allow his image on tobacco cards. NJ.com reported that a different Honus Wagner card sold for $3.25 million at auction last year.

There is more baseball memorabilia news closer to home. I have loaned many pieces from my personal collection of local baseball historical memorabilia to the Worcester Red Sox to be displayed in Polar Park. A large display piece of the 1880 Worcester Worcesters team will be the highlight of the exhibit. Lee Richmond is pictured who pitched the first perfect game in baseball, along with the rest of his team. I have also loaned the Worcester Red Sox a letter from the 1880 Worcester team requesting to be admitted to the National League. There are many other items with Hall of Famers Jesse Burkett, Gabby Hartnett, Connie Mack, and Sliding Billy Hamilton. Other great local players photos, programs from the Blackstone Valley League, and local industrial league teams will also be included. People who tour Polar Park will be able to see the exhibit in the DCU Club. I am always looking to acquire local baseball memorabilia from major league, minor league, and industrial league teams for my collection. I hope to see you in the stands at Polar Park this summer.

Our online auction of sports and non-sports cards all from one estate will soon be running. Our multi-estate online auction with Rock memorabilia from James Brown, Elvis Presley, Janice Joplin, Jimi Hendrix, and other famous performers will begin this month and end on June 9. We are nearing the deadline for accepting quality consignments for this auction. The third session of model trains, die-cast cars, and other toys is currently running and ends on May 12. IHSP, on a monthly basis, Daily Bread is supplying Caitlyn’s Cupboard with fruit/vegetable and dairy coupons to be redeemed at local grocery stores. One hundred packets of these coupons were given to eligible Cancer Center patients in the month of March alone. Funding in support of this partnership comes from the Community Foundation of Eastern Connecticut.

In return, Caitlyn’s Cupboard is offering nutrition education programming to Daily Bread clients to further increase their capacity to adopt healthy food choices and habits. IHSP has also ordered food for the Cupboard from the Connecticut Food Bank and Feeding America® to help reduce the pantry’s operating costs.

“I’m thrilled to have the opportunity to partner with IHSP,” said Caitlyn Sward, registered dietitian nutritionist, Day Kimball Healthcare. “The work that Daily Bread does in the community is tremendous, and this partnership will only further the good they do. Daily Bread’s partnership will help our cancer patients access fresh produce, as well as provide purchasing opportunities for Caitlyn’s Cupboard through the Connecticut Food Bank. This benefit alone will stretch every monetary donation the pantry receives.”

“IHSP is so happy to partner with DKH Hematology/Oncology and Caitlyn’s Cupboard,” said Ann Kathi Peterson, program coordinator and Karen Osbrey, president, IHSP. “We all share the same goal of providing healthy food choices to those in need. These patients have enough going on in their lives, they shouldn’t have to worry about food insecurity too.” “Food insecurity is a pressing issue in our community and impacts the health and well-being of many, especially those with chronic health conditions,” said Kyle Kramer, chief executive officer, Day Kimball Healthcare. “At DKH, our goal is ensuring that patients don’t have to choose between paying for their medications and treatment and buying groceries for themselves and their family. Our partnership with IHSP helps eliminate some of those difficult choices for our patients and demonstrates the critical role that local food pantries and healthcare providers can play in improving outcomes for the most vulnerable in our community.”

Caitlyn’s Cupboard accepts shelf-stable food and financial contributions including grocery store gift card donations. For more information about Caitlyn’s Cupboard or to make a food or monetary donation to the pantry, contact Day Kimball Healthcare’s Development Office at (860) 928-7141.

Town of Thompson seeks resident input on affordable housing plan

THOMPSON — The Town of Thompson is the recipient of a grant from the Connecticut Department of Housing to develop an Affordable Housing Plan. The grants were awarded to help bring all of Connecticut's communities into better alignment with the requirements of C.G.S. 8-30j, which requires that every municipality write such a Plan every five years.

The goal of the local project team is to create a Plan that reflects Thompson's unique needs while simultaneously mapping a path to develop the kinds of housing options that will serve residents at all stages of life, and across income levels.

One of the most important elements in creating a workable Plan is to meet the priorities of residents. A survey drafted by project consultants Tyche Planning & Policy Group is available on-line and in hard-copy at several locations throughout Thompson. "Despite these extraordinary times, Eastern students have again risen to the occasion to present their work in a virtual format," says Eastern President Elsa Nunez in the welcome video on the CREATE homepage. "This website showcases an outstanding set of posters, oral presentation, visual art, performances and more The work being showcased here is not only of high quality, but it is rare among undergraduate circles."

the arts, sciences and humanities. of each other. Community Kitchens has been doing that for years so fundraising for them was an easy choice."

The Community Kitchen at the First Congregational Church of Woodstock is now distributing 150-160 free meals along with bags of groceries, produce, and baked goods every Monday from 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Cars line up along Cemetery Road all the way back to the Woodstock Academy as they wait to be served.

Weaver's Woodstock marathon fundraiser was joyful and creative and fun. She was assisted by her sister Jessica Weaver Boose, who helped with the social media, creating movie-trailer type videos to promote the fundraiser. Nikki Auger, winemaker and owner at Taylor Brooke Winery—which sponsored the event—assisted with planning the marathon route and was one of several friends who helped to pace Seana during the run.

The date of the marathon fundraiser-Saturday, April 24—was Seana's birthday. Her goal was to run the 26.2 miles in 4:24 since it was April 24. She made it in 4:20!

"Seana Weaver is an amazing young woman," said Pat Monahan, president of Community Kitchens of NECT. "She set her goals higher this year, and she exceeded them. Our Community Kitchen volunteers couldn't do what we do without people like Seana."

Car strikes utility pole in Putnam

PUTNAM — On April 29 at 8:13 p.m., the Putnam Emergency Dispatch Center received a 911 call reporting that a car had struck a utility pole in the area of Kennedy Drive and Bundy Street. Officers with the Putnam Police Department, Putnam Fire Department, and Putnam EMS responded to the scene.

Through on scene investigation it was determined that a 2007 Honda Accord being operated by a 28-year-old resident of Putnam was traveling southbound on Kennedy Drive, and for unknown reasons lost control of the vehicle and struck the utility pole at the corner of Kennedy Drive and Bundy St. The driver, who was the sole occupant of the vehicle, was transported to Day Kimball Hospital for minor injuries by Putnam EMS.

Kennedy Drive in the area of the accident was closed for a period of time until Eversource could secure the broken pole. The timeline for repair of the pole is unknown at this time.

This case remains open pending further investigation. Anyone with information or who may have witnessed this accident are asked to contact Sgt. Louis Cinque of the Putnam Police Department at 860-928-6565. Tips can also be called in to the tip line at 860-963-0000 or at our Web site, www.putnam-police.com.
