Friends of New Durham Public Library play a pivotal role in wake of budget cuts

NEW DURHAM — The Friends of the New Durham Public Library are at it again! Last week, they celebrated Earth Day with a special Storytime by one of New Durham's newest officers, planted seeds, decorated pots, and handed out trees for families to plant!

Our small town library is a hidden gem that most residents don't realize is frequented by not just our residents, but also people from neighboring communities. (Our homeschool population alone comprises numerous paying residents from several neighboring towns.) The library has always been supported by the Friends group, but this year, they will play a much more critical role as we've begun to feel the effects of our budget reduction. As we navigate these changes, community support will make a real difference. At the end of the day, the library remains committed to serving the public as fully as possible, and with the help of the Friends group, we're

Precision work wins Savannah Dodier SkillsUSA gold

WOLFEBORO — Savannah Dodier has been riding dirtbikes since she was seven years old and started racing them last year, winning both of her classes in her first year of competition, competing on tracks all around New England.

Needless to say, she's pretty good at it, but through the Lakes Region Technology Center's precision metal work program, she's also discovered that she's pretty good at wielding a welding torch as well.

And when it came time to work on a project, the high school sophomore brought her passion for dirtbikes to the classroom and decided to craft a sculpture of the dirtbike on which she competes.

"Mr. (Scott) Meserve

Golden Eagles survive late Prospect rally in chilly battle

GILFORD — When the first game of the second week of the season kicked off for the Gilford and Prospect Mountain baseball teams, temperatures were hovering in the 30s and in the early innings, snow began blowing around Gilford's field as the players took their swings.

By the time the game ended, the sun was shining and the Golden Eagles were smiling, as they held off a late rally from the Timber Wolves to pick up the 7-5 win.

The first two innings were dominated by the pitchers, as Gilford's Drew Smith and Prospect Mountain's Colby Whitehouse set down the side in order in each of the first two innings, with Whitehouse striking out the side in order in the bottom of the second inning.

Vinnie Tilton led off the top of the third inning with a base hit for the Timber Wolves and one out later, Charlike Yeaton reached on a walk. A base hit from Parker O'Brien loaded the bases and a Blake Pappace-no walk plated the game's first run. Whitehouse also walked to drive in another run and a sacrifice fly to left from Knyte Neathery gave the Timber Wolves a 3-0 lead before Cole Labonte snared a foul pop fly off first to end the inning.

Gilford answered in the bottom of the inning, with Cohen Elliott reaching on an error to start the inning. He moved up on a sacrifice bunt from Labonte and a passed ball and Carson

PETS OF THE WEEK

Meet Laci!

Meet Laci - One half of the Dachshund Duo
Laci is a beautiful long-haired dachshund mix with a gentle soul and a touch of shyness that only makes her more endearing. She may take a little time to warm up to new people, but with patience and kindness, her sweet personality truly begins to shine.
Laci takes a lot of comfort in her brother Scrapy—she looks up to him and often follows his lead. If Scrapy decides you're a friend, chances are Laci will start to feel the same way too. Watching her gain confidence and come out of her shell is incredibly rewarding, and she forms strong bonds with those she trusts.

This silly girl enjoys getting fresh air and would love a home where she can join you for peaceful walks and little outdoor adventures. She's got a playful side that peeks through once she feels safe, and it's sure to make you smile.
Laci may need some dental work down the line, so her future family should be prepared to keep an eye on her dental health and continue with any care she may need. With the right support, she'll continue to thrive.
If you have a soft spot for the quieter ones and the patience to let her blossom at her own pace, Laci will reward you with a loyal, loving companionship—and maybe a few silly moments along the way.

Meet Scrapy!

Meet Scrapy - One half of the Dachshund Duo
Scrapy may have a bit of a "don't mess with me" look at first glance, but don't be fooled—this dachshund mix is a total softie at heart. Beneath that scrappy exterior is a lovable guy who's just waiting to show off his sweet, easygoing side to the right person.
He's a big fan of the simple joys in life: a good squeaky toy, some fresh air on a nice walk, and a cozy spot to relax by your side. Scrapy would be more than happy to be your daily sidekick—whether you're out and about or just lounging at home, he's happiest just being with his people.

Scrapy and his sister are also working on getting into their best shape, so they'll need a forever home that's committed to helping them stay healthy. A little extra exercise and mindful feeding will go a long way for this pair!
Scrapy does have a seizure disorder that is currently well-managed with medication. Because of this, his future family will need to be comfortable continuing his medication routine and staying on top of his care to keep him feeling his best. He doesn't let it slow him down, and with the right support, he can continue to live a happy, full life.
If you're looking for a loyal companion who's equal parts laid-back and loving, Scrapy just might be your guy. He's ready to drop the tough act and settle into a life full of comfort, care, and companionship.

A small library with a big reach

In a town like New Durham, it is easy to think of the public library as a quiet place that simply lends books and offers a few children's programs. The recent Earth Day celebration at the New Durham Public Library, where families planted seeds, decorated pots, and even received trees to take home, offered a reminder that the library is something much larger than that.

Small-town libraries often work quietly in the background of community life. They host storytimes, lend museum passes, support students and homeschool families, and provide meeting space for neighbors who might not otherwise cross paths. Yet their value becomes most visible when resources tighten and volunteers step forward to fill the gaps.

That is exactly what is happening in New Durham this year. As municipal budgets grow tighter, the Friends of the New Durham Public Library are playing a more important role than ever in keeping programs alive and accessible. Their work helps sustain everything from summer reading activities to concerts at the ballfields and special events that bring residents together across generations. These efforts are not extras. They are part of what makes a town feel connected.

Museum passes alone are a good example. Through partnerships and shared costs with neighboring libraries, residents now have access to destinations such as the Currier Museum, the Mount Washington Observatory, and the Mt. Kearsarge Indian Museum. For families looking for affordable outings, that kind of access matters.

Programs like Tuesdays at the Park matter as well. A weekly summer concert series may sound simple, but it creates a rhythm for the season. People bring lawn chairs, children run across the grass, and neighbors who may not see each other all winter reconnect. Events like these strengthen the sense that New Durham is not only a place to live but a place to belong.

Volunteer-led activities tell a similar story. After-school clubs, Scrabble gatherings, homeschool meetups, and creative workshops all depend on residents who are willing to give their time. These programs do not happen automatically. They happen because people care enough to make them happen.

Membership in the Friends group costs only a small annual fee, yet the impact is far greater than the price suggests. Every dollar raised returns directly to library services. Just as important, every volunteer hour sends a message that the community values what the library provides.

Libraries are among the few places where everyone is welcome without expectation or obligation. Children attend storytime. Adults explore new interests. Seniors meet friends. Students find a quiet place to work. Visitors from neighboring towns discover programs worth traveling for. Few public spaces serve so many roles at once.

Supporting a local library does not always require a large gesture. Sometimes it means attending an event, donating a book, contributing supplies, or simply becoming a member of the Friends group. Each small step helps ensure that programs continue and new ideas take root.

New Durham's library has long been a steady presence in town life. With the continued support of its Friends and its residents, it can remain that way for years to come.

Trajectory

Everything is subject to change. I locked in today's position weeks ago. In addition to getting calls from the robot, I can go online and sign up for teachers who know that they will be out of school on some future date. I did that, so I expected to be high school math today. Upon arrival, I was assigned music for first period and then history for the rest of the day. That's life as a sub.

I actually had music yesterday, and due to the wonderful spring weather, the afternoon chorus class requested that I take them outside. They didn't want to sing, just bask in the sun. They said I could sing though. I've been known to break out into spontaneous song that includes instructions and information pertinent to the present moment. It's more effective than just speaking. Music has special power.

The sun is out again and the temperatures are warm. The chorus girls, seeing me being the music sub again, had their hopes up about getting to go outside today. I let them know that I had talked with the office yesterday and was given a definite no to that suggestion. Knowledge is power. Even though I would love to go enjoy this sunny warm spring day with them, the answer is no.

There were no instructions from the teacher so while I took attendance, I elicited the information that they were all working individually on projects. After checking off their names on the roster, I reminded them that they all had a project to do and that they should not put things off till tomorrow when they can do them today. Something I personally am terribly guilty of. A word to the wise. From experience.

The next class likewise had a project. It's typical these days for students to be assigned projects. Long-term assignments that usually can be accomplished in a fraction of that time, leaving for lots of random screen time and socializing. Some students are actually working on school work while the table next to me are combining computer things and discussion. The back table are playing cards.

We all know that when a sub comes, nothing gets accomplished. Hasn't it always been that way? Losing a day every once in a while is acceptable, but not for the long term. I missed out on US History due to a psychological breakdown that was remedied with an insurance salesman long term sub that taught us nothing. It may have been better if I had a computer.

Would I have actually done the work? Did I even crack the book? It was so much easier to listen to the teacher tell us his life stories. I learned the history of an insurance salesman's life. None of which I remember, or has it made any impressions upon me that I am aware of.

Now I find that I like reading and learning about history. I could spend many hours watching the history channel. It's so passive. Reading is actually the best, but as I have said, reading has always been difficult for me. Even still, I have, on my own, read all about the history of our country from inception to present day. Much more than I would have gotten in my high school history class where I'd be lucky to get up to the civil war.

I actually took an American History course while

I was trying to qualify for becoming a teacher. It did make it to the civil war. There is so much more history since. And compounding every day.

We're all witnessing history being made daily. It may look too imperative and troubling at the time, but it's all just pieces of the puzzle that will eventually be assembled into what future students of history will be looking back at. We all think that our point of view will be the agreed upon sentiment of our time, but history usually surprises.

I look at what's happening right now in the world from as many angles as I can fathom. I come up with this crazy mad mess of intersecting causes and effects that weave a pathway that leads directly to where we are today, but has nothing but implications as to how things will be in the future. Every day could bring some new stimulus that would shift our trajectory tremendously. Generally, we can only watch it all transpire.

The little boxes by the road

Every spring, about the time the snowbanks finally surrender their last gray edges and the mud begins to dry along the shoulders of our back roads, the little wooden boxes start to appear again.

You know the ones I mean.

They sit at the ends of driveways or beside weathered fences, sometimes freshly painted and sometimes leaning a little after a hard winter. A handwritten sign might say "Eggs," or "Maple Syrup," or "Seedlings," or just "Take what you need." And nearby, there is usually a small tin or coffee can with a slot cut into the lid.

No attendant. No camera. No instructions. Just trust.

I have always thought those roadside stands say something important about New Hampshire, though I am not sure we talk about them very often. They are such ordinary things that they almost disappear into the scenery. Yet when you stop to think about it, they are rather remarkable.

In a lot of places, a box of goods left unattended beside the road would not last long. Around here, it is expected to last all season.

Years ago, when our children were still small enough to ride in the back seat without headphones on, we used to make a habit of pulling over whenever we spotted a stand with fresh eggs. The cartons were rarely identical. Some were stamped with old grocery store logos. Others had been reused so many times the cardboard had softened at the corners. Inside, the eggs were never uniform either. Brown and white mixed together, sometimes a pale blue one tucked in like a surprise.

My daughter used to inspect them as if she were a jeweler studying gemstones.

"Look at this one," she would say. "It's perfect." I do not think she meant the shape.

There is something reassuring about dropping a few dollars into a metal can and driving away with the quiet understanding that both sides of the exchange have done the right thing. Nobody checks your math.

KIND HEARTS,
COLD WINTERS

Nobody asks for a receipt. Nobody hurries you along.

It is a small moment of confidence between neighbors who may never meet.

Over the years, I have noticed that the signs change with the seasons. In early spring it is eggs and maple syrup. By June there are seedlings and herbs. Later come zucchini that seem to multiply overnight, and cucumbers arranged in careful rows, and tomatoes that still smell faintly of warm sunshine.

By October, sometimes there are pumpkins with a hand lettered note that reads "Leave what you can."

That sentence has always stayed with me.

Leave what you can. It does not insist on fairness. It does not demand exactness. It assumes good judgment and good intentions. It assumes that people want to do the right thing even when nobody is watching.

I suppose that is what I admire most about those little roadside stands. They reflect a kind of quiet confidence in each other that feels older than the highways and newer subdivisions that have come along in recent years. They remind me of the New Hampshire I grew up in, where neighbors might not always agree on everything but still trusted one another with the small things that make daily life work.

These days, when so much of the world seems to run on passwords and verification codes and fine print, it is comforting to see a simple wooden box beside the road that asks nothing more complicated than honesty.

I still stop when I can. Sometimes I buy eggs. Sometimes syrup. Once in a while, just a bunch of flowers someone cut that morning and tied together with string.

And every time I slide a few bills into that little tin, I feel like I am participating in something that has been quietly holding our communities together longer than most of us realize.

Gilford blasts four homers, blanks Prospect Mountain

Dow tosses no-hitter a week after recording 500th career strikeout

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

GILFORD — The Gilford and Prospect Mountain softball teams met in the Division III finals just a few years ago and when they met up again to kick off the second week of the regular season on Monday, April 20, most in attendance were expecting another championship-caliber battle.

However, the host Golden Eagles wasted absolutely no time bringing out the big bats, scoring six runs in the first inning, knocking four homers and rolling to a 12-0 win over the Timber Wolves.

Gilford pitcher Belle Dow, who reached her 500th career strikeout in the opening game of the season a week earlier, struck out the side in the top of the first inning. Addison Hodsdon reached on an error to open the bottom of the inning and she moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Leah Scudder. Prospect pitcher Sophia Bowman intentionally walked Dow and Taylor Marsh launched a homer to left to give the Golden Eagles the 3-0 lead. Taryn Limanni worked a walk and Mia Macai-

Taylor followed with a base hit and stole second before Bowman got a strikeout. Harding snared a fly ball to center for the second out and quickly fired in to Kourtney Kaplan at third and the Timber Wolves got Taylor in a rundown for the double play.

Dow set the side down in order in the top of the fourth and Bowman did the same in the bottom of the inning. After a pair of strikeouts to open the top of the fifth, Ashlynn Roberts worked a walk but Dow finished out the inning with a strikeout.

In the bottom of the fifth inning, Bowman got the first two outs of the inning, Savannah Halligan worked a walk and stole second. Taylor then worked a walk and Maddi Metz launched a three-run homer over the fence to close out the 12-0 win for the Golden Eagles.

Dow struck out 11 in five innings and Bowman struck out six in four and two-thirds innings of work.

able to continue offering many of the programs and resources that matter most.

"I have been coming to the library for over 30 years, which prompted me to become an active member of the Friends. I'm happy to be able to help continue the worthwhile programs the library offers, through the efforts of the Friends group, particularly those for children," says Friends member Tara Gendron.

Museum passes are back, and this year we've added the Carrier Museum, Mt. Kearsarge Indian Museum, and the Mount Washington Observatory. By sharing passes and costs with the Goodwin Library of Farmington, the Friends have been able to expand the selection of passes. All museum passes are available to all library card holders as well as New Durham residents. Patrons and residents are welcome to call, email, or stop by to request the use of a museum pass. The Friends have also graciously stepped in to pay for programs for this year's Summer Reading Programs, including collaborating with New Durham Parks and Recreation, the Library Board of Trustees, and others to fund a second year of "Tunesdays at the Park"—a summer concert series held at the ballfields.

"One of my favorite events is 'Tunesdays at the Park'. The Friends of the Library, in collaboration with the Recreation Department, hosted musical performances last summer at the ballfield on Tuesdays throughout the summer. With fundraising and donations, we are able to bring back this event. It is truly heartwarming to witness our community unite and enjoy these occasions," says Friends member Nikki Nash.

Volunteers are a huge part of the library. One of our Friends' members is hosting a regular After-School Adventure Club on Mondays. We're also starting a Scrabble Club thanks to the volunteering of one of our library patrons and trustees. Scrabble Club will be held the first and third Wednesdays from 3-5 p.m., starting May 6. To celebrate spring and Mother's Day, we're hosting a Tea Party Day on Saturday, May 16. Children will be invited to make fairy garden teacups and adults will be tasting different tea flavors. (Everyone is invited to attend the Tea Party, and the library is asking for a suggested donation of $5 per person to cover the cost of materials.)

A snapshot of a typical month at the library involves several of our recurring programs. Homeschool Hangout is on May 5th at 1pm. Lego Day is from open to close on May 12. "Hack that Painting" is on May 9, so artists need to come in, ready to doctor up an old painting. Adult Coloring is on Wednesday, May 27 at 6 p.m.

We continue into June with a Makerspace Pop-up on Tuesday, June 2 from 2-4 p.m. and (kids will want to see what Mr. Nathan has got up his sleeve!). We're partnering with the Historical Society for a special "True Crime in NH" program on Tuesday, June 9 at 7 p.m.

And lastly, right before we head into our summer reading program, we'll be doing a Pringles Day on Saturday, June 13. What is Pringles Day, you ask? A program where we play with Pringles! But don't worry, more details will come.

How else can the community continue to support the library, you may ask? By coming to our many programs! Can't make a program? We're actively seeking donations. Currently we're looking for donations of books (accepted by appointment), old paintings (the kind you would make at a sip & paint), and Pringles (of course).

Want to go a step further in supporting the library? Become a member of the Friends of the Library! In addition to funding our museum passes, the Friends also hold the annual Book, Bake, and Plant Sale (on June 20 this year), a Book-or-Treat event on the library lawn during the town trick-or-treat night, the annual Holiday Party with Santa, and more.

"A side benefit of a Friends Membership is baking for the Bake Sales knowing that I get to sample, but the library gets the donations and calories!" says one Friends member.

Membership to the Friends group is $10 per year, and every dollar raised goes directly back into the library. It's a simple, tangible way for community members to support the services they value and help ensure these programs continue. Members can attend as few or many meetings as they wish.

You can donate to the Friends without becoming a member by going to their Web site (tinyurl.com/ndplfriends) to make a donation or to purchase a raffle ticket to their spring raffle basket. Included in the basket are not only fun spring gardening supplies donated by Cameron's Greenhouse, but tokens to Funspot, and gift cards to Johnson's and Hannaford. Tickets are $5 for 1 or $20 for five, and are available for purchase at the library or online at the Friends' Web site.

at her bike and taking the measurements and then reducing the sizes to make a smaller scale model of the machine. She then used her welding tools during her class time to work the metal, cutting and piecing it together to make it the right shapes to construct the sculpture of her bike.

She noted it took her about three months to get the work done and that hard work paid off when she took her sculpture to the statewide SkillsUSA competition at Alvirne High School, where her work was put up against sculptors from around the state and she took home first place, which qualified her to compete in the SkillsUSA National Leadership Skills competition, held on June 1-5 in Atlanta, Ga.

The SkillsUSA Championships is the premier showcase of America's most highly skilled career and technical education students. It's also one of the largest hands-on workforce development events in the world. This event features more than 6,700 state champions from across the United States competing head-to-head in 114 skilled and leadership competitions.

The event is held at the Georgia World Congress Center in Atlanta, and it covers more than 1.79 million square feet of floor space, the equivalent of 31 football fields. The philosophy of the SkillsUSA Championships is to reward students in directly evaluating student performance and to keep classroom training relevant to employers' needs.

Competitions are created, overseen, and judged by nearly 2,000 industry volunteers, each committed to building the next generation of skilled professionals, career-ready leaders and responsible community members on which the future depends.

Local winners advance to district or regional competitions, testing their skills against competitors from other schools. Those winners advance to state competitions each spring, and state gold medalists earn the right to compete nationally at the SkillsUSA Championships each June. Along with gold, silver and bronze medallions, competitors may earn scholarships, tools of the trade, and even job offers right off the competition floor.

At Lakes Region Technology Center, sharing the campus with Kingswood Regional High School in Wolfeboro, Precision Manufacturing Technology is a program that teaches the basics of manual and computer machining of metal products. Students concentrate on the basics of precision manual machine operations, machine shop safety, machining processes, blueprint reading, inspection techniques, applied math in the shop, and the materials used in the precision machining industry.

During the first year, most of the lab projects are assigned by the instructor to build common skills expected by machine tool employers and post-secondary schools who train both machinists and engineers. Shop safety and safety around power machines is emphasized throughout the course. Students who desire National Certifications in machining can go through National Institute of Metalworking Skills courses.

Dodier will head to Atlanta in June for the SkillsUSA National Leadership Skills competition, where her sculpture will be put against other students from around the United States.

Gilford baseball comes up short in Belmont

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING

Sports Editor

BELMONT — Both teams scored a lot of runs early on, but it was the Belmont Raiders that came through with the most runs on Friday, April 24, heading to vacation week with an 11-9 win over rival Gilford.

Gilford scored three times in the top of the first and Belmont added one in the bottom of the frame. Both teams scored two in the second inning and after Gilford scored three in the top of the third, Belmont came back with four in the bottom of the inning and then took the lead with three in the bottom of the fourth. Belmont added one in the sixth and Gilford plated one in the seventh for the 11-9 final.

Ryan Folan worked a one-out walk in the top of the first and Drew Smith followed with a double. Owen Wolpin doubled to drive in both runners for the 2-0 lead and he scored on a sacrifice fly from Sam Kelley for the 3-0 lead.

Brayden Townsend led off with a triple in the bottom of the inning and scored on an error to cut the lead to 3-1 after one.

Cole Labonte singled to open the top of the second and Carson Anthony walked, with both runners moving up on a bunt from Cohen Elliott. Andy Taylor then singled home Labonte and Anthony scored on a sacrifice fly by Folan for the 5-1 lead.

Eddie Rochenski led off the bottom of the inning with a double and two outs later, Townsend homered to center to cut the lead to 5-3.

Gilford kept coming in the top of the third, with Wolpin leading off with a single. Kelley reached on an error and Danny Fournier singled to load the bases. One out later, Anthony doubled to left to drive in two runs and he eventually scored on a passed ball to give Gilford the 8-3 lead.

Max Ryder and Jack Crockford worked back-to-back walks with one out in the bottom of the third and both scored on an error. Sam Binder singled and Rochenski worked a walk and one out later, Alex Rowley singled them both home to cut the lead to 8-7.

Belmont tied the game in the bottom of the fourth as Wyatt Divers led off with a single, stole second and scored on a single from Wyatt Bamford to make it 8-8. Ryder reached on a fielder's choice and one out later, scored on a base hit from Binder, who stole second and scored on a base hit from Rochenski for the 10-8 lead after four.

In the bottom of the sixth, Ryder worked a one-out walk and stole second. One out later, he scored on a base hit from Binder for the 11-8 lead.

Elliott singled with two outs in the top of the seventh and after stealing second, scored on a single from Taylor to cut the lead to two. However, Rowley was able to get the last out and Belmont had the 11-9 win.

Divers started the game for the Raiders, going three innings, allowing seven hits and striking out one and Rowley pitched the final four innings, giving up just three hits and striking out five.

Smith started for Gilford, going three innings allowing five hits and striking out five. Folan followed him to the mound, pitching into the sixth and allowing four hits and striking out three. Labonte finished the game out on the mound, allowing one hit and striking out two.

The two teams will have a rematch in Gilford on Monday, May 4, as they both return from vacation week.

Belmont will host Winnisquam on Wednesday, May 6, and Gilford will be at Inter-Lakes on the same day.

WFOM brings music of Peter, Paul and Mary to Anderson Hall

WOLFEBORO — Wolfeboro Friends of Music continues its 90th Anniversary Season with A Band Called Honalee, bringing the music of Peter, Paul, and Mary to Brewster Academy's Anderson Hall Sunday, May 17 at 4 p.m.

A Band Called Honalee is a modern-day folk trio inspired by the music and legacy of Peter, Paul and Mary. Musically accomplished, interactive and energetic, their shows allow audiences to experience this timeless music live onstage. Satisfying diehard Peter, Paul & Mary lovers as well as newcomers to this wonderful era of music, the band's shows feature all of PPM's beloved hits, including "Leaving on a Jet Plane," "Blowing in the Wind," and of course "Puff The Magic Dragon." With virtuosic musicianship, stirring vocal harmonies and polished showmanship, A Band Called Honalee also offers favorites from Bob Dylan, Joni Mitchell, Joan Baez, and many others.

Founded in 2011 by producer and Music Director Aaron Gandy, the group believes the melodies and messages of the 1960s folk and folk/rock era are just as relevant today as they were when they were first composed, perhaps even more so. Their mission is to share this uniquely American music with new audiences, while rekindling the passion of life-long fans. Most of all, they celebrate the power of music to inspire people and bring them together once again.

"A Band Called Honalee delightfully evoked the warm sound and spirit of the folk era, and our audience was completely captivated," writes the Executive Director of The Grand Opera House in Wilmington, Del.

The Wolfeboro Friends of Music shares a 90-year commitment to important traditions in American music. 1960's acoustic folk is a uniquely American form; an expression of our creative soul! This is the eighth of nine concert performances comprising the current WFOM season running through June. 90 years of artistic excellence in service to NH's Lakes Region and the entire state of New Hampshire and beyond!

Perform It! Stage Company presents Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night"

WOLFEBORO — Twins, and drunks, and pirates — oh my! Join Perform It! Stage Company as we present William Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" May 22-24 in Wolfeboro.

Viola has been shipwrecked in the coastal land of Illyria, and has lost her twin brother, Sebastian. She disguises herself as a man, 'Cesario', in order to enter the service of the duke, Orsino, who she, of course, almost immediately falls for.

Orsino is the duke of Illyria who is desperately in love with a local noble, Lady Olivia; Or, at least the idea of her.

Olivia is mourning her brother's death, and wants nothing to do with the duke. She is attempting to live in a somber atmosphere, but is often interrupted by her raucous uncle, Sir Toby Belch.

Sir Toby is "drunk nightly" with his friend, Sir Andrew. Perhaps friend is a bit of an incorrect term, as he really keeps Sir Andrew around for his money, and to be the butt of his jokes. However, his biggest joke yet is to be played on everyone's least favorite person--Malvolio.

Malvolio is the lady Olivia's pompous steward who has lofty ambitions of marrying up. However, Olivia has her eye on someone else. Orsino sends Cesario (Viola in disguise) to woo Olivia on his behalf, but Olivia decides she prefers Cesario and shamelessly pursues him.

Sebastian, who looks nearly identical to Viola in her disguise, enters the city with his pirate friend, Antonio. Olivia and Sebastian cross paths and she makes the mistake you would expect in a Shakespearean comedy. This mistake is also made by a few other members of this wild cast of characters.

If you want to see a show full of pranks, misplaced love, and mistaken identities, join us May 22 at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., May 23 at 6:30 p.m., and May 24 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10, and performances will be held at the Wolfeboro Town Hall. Sword fights will be had, yellow stockings will be worn, and we will have you laughing your heart out.

We hope to see you there!
