Gilford schools open, ready for fun activities

BY ERIN PLUMMER

mnews@salmonpress.news

GILFORD — Schools are now back in session with some new activities and events planned for the next few weeks.

Gilford schools opened for the 2025-2026 school year on Sept. 2.

Gilford Middle School Principal Tara Brosius reported a great first week of school in the school newsletter.

"This week, we spent time building relationships, learning about one another through sharing our story, and reviewed our school wide expectations...and of course, we learned celebrated strength of teamwork," Brosius wrote. "It was great to see our learners collaborating while learning about the regions of the world, exploring new topics, conducting investigations and diving into math facts and literature!"

She wrote the students put in a lot of hard work during that first week.

"We were all impressed by the hard work of all of our learners, especially our fifth graders, who navigated challenges throughout the week as they adjusted to their new school," Brosius wrote. "They did a wonderful job!"

Families had a closer look at the school during the open house on Sept. 5.

At Gilford High School, principal Anthony Sperazzo welcomed students back for the new year in the school newsletter and shared some hopes and expectations for students to come into the new school year.

"Gilford High School is committed to creating strong, trusting relationships between learners and the adults who support them," Sperazzo wrote to families. "We know that academic, social, and emotional growth is rooted in these connections, and we intentionally train our teachers, coaches, and staff to prioritize trust, communication, healthy boundaries."

He said this topic was the focus of the recent faculty meeting. Sperazzo wrote that learners will be "treated with dignity and respect," and staff will communicate clearly with families

State law banning school cell phone use now in effect

BY ERIN PLUMMER mnews@salmonpress.news

REGION — Area schools are reminding families of a new law that prohibits cell phone use by students during the school day with student handbooks reflecting the new rules.

In June, Gov. Kelly Ayotte signed a bill banning the use of cell phones and connected devices during the school day. Under RSA 189:1-a, school boards and trustees of charted public schools are required to enact policies banning the use personal devices in school. According to the Department of Education this ban is "bell-to-bell" from the start of the school day to the end. This applies to cell phones as well as any device connected to a phone including earbuds, smartwatches, and others. This law does not apply to students who use a device for disabilities, language access programs, and medical needs such as insulin pumps and glucose sensors.

The law went into effect at the start of the 2025-2026 school year.

Gilford, Prospect Mountain, and Governor Wentworth Schools have enacted policies in their student a handbooks with violations different forms of disciplinary action depending on the school.

Schools in the Gilford and Prospect Mountain School Districts have policies where if a student is found using a prohibited personal device during a prohibited time, a staff member will confiscate it from them. Failure to comply with this removal will be subject to disciplinary action.

For a first offense, the device will be returned to the student at the end of the school day. For a second offense, the device will be given to a parent or guardian.

With a third offense, the device will be given to a parent/guardian. The policies for all Prospect Mountain Schools and Gilford High School state that a third offense will result in a conference with the school administrator. This conference will create a plan where the students will leave their device at the front office during school hours for at least a week.

Gilford School's policy for the third offense is that the phone should be left at home or at the office until further notice.

Area firefighters respond to multiple incidents over holiday weekend

BY ERIN PLUMMER

mnews@salmonpress.news

A L T O N / N E W DURHAM — Local first responders reported a busy Labor Day weekend including a multi-vehicle accident, a second alarm brush fire, and more incidents.

Both the Alton and New Durham Fire Departments reported multiple serious calls in both communities over Labor Day Weekend.

Crews responded to a three-vehicle collision on Route 11 in New Durham by Berry Road that resulted in serious injuries.

The New Durham Police and Fire Departments responded to the scene as did the Alton Fire Department and an ambulance from the Farmington Fire Department. According to reports by both Alton and New Durham, three people were transported to area hospitals with some patients suffering serious injuries.

New Durham crews then had to respond to a fire alarm activation that same day.

New Durham also said a brush fire broke out in Alton while Alton crews were managing a motor vehicle accident. Crews from New Durham and Barnstead responded to Alton's fire.

During that response, New Durham received a call for smoke on Middleton Road. Upon investigation it was found to be campfire that had been left unattended.

A few hours after this incident, the call came in for a first alarm brush fire in Alton bringing out Alton and New Durham crews. That fire soon went to a second alarm, bringing in other crews from across the area.

"We are extremely grateful for our mutual aid partners, without them, the outcome of these incidents would be significantly impacted," Alton Fire said in a statement.

Alton Fire was also able to respond to a fire in the woods thanks to the keen eye of a local pilot flying overhead. Alton Fire said in a statement that the pilot reported smoke in the area. Crews responded to the scene and found a fire that had likely been caused by a lightening strike two days prior.

"This was the only call for smoke in the area, this incident would likely have been much larger had he not called it in," Alton Fire said in its statement.

Alton's restriction on outside burning would remain in effect until further notice.

"With several more multi alarm fires dispatched in the last 36 hours we will unfortunately be continuing the restriction of all outside burning until significant rain is received," Alton Fire wrote. "We appreciate your understanding and cooperation."

The value of showing up

As the final days of summer give way to the crisp mornings of early autumn, the communities in our corner of the Lakes Region begin to shift focus. Children return to school, farms bring in their late harvests, and local organizations start their fall calendars. The region comes alive in a new rhythm, one that reminds us of the unique character of our towns and the importance of showing up for one another.

Life in small communities is built on participation. It is built when parents gather at school open houses to meet teachers and learn about new programs. It is strengthened when neighbors take time to stroll through a farmers' market, supporting local growers and chatting with familiar faces. It is carried forward in the often quiet but vital work of volunteers who serve on boards, run food drives, or give their evenings to youth sports and scout troops.

These moments may not seem monumental, but taken together, they are the foundation of civic life. While national news cycles often capture our attention with conflict and controversy, it is here—at the local level—where our choices most directly shape our lives. A zoning board decision might guide how our towns grow. A school committee vote might determine new opportunities for our children. A community fundraiser might ensure that a struggling neighbor has heat this winter.

Showing up, in other words, matters. And showing up doesn't always mean speaking at a podium or running for office. Sometimes, it means lending a hand at a community supper, buying a raffle ticket to support the fire department, or simply taking the time to listen to a neighbor's perspective. These are the small, steady acts that build trust and weave the fabric of community tighter.

We have long believed that our role is not just to report on what is happening, but to encourage participation. We know that strong communities are not built by a handful of leaders alone, but by ordinary people who invest their time, energy, and care into the place they call home.

As the season turns, let us all recommit to that spirit. Let us make time for the meetings, the fairs, the sports games, and the library programs. Let us remember that our presence—our willingness to show up—has value. Each face in the room, each voice in the discussion, each neighbor lending support contributes to the vitality of our towns.

In a world where division can feel easier than connection, our small communities offer a different model: one where people know each other, work together, and look out for one another. That is worth protecting. That is worth celebrating. And it begins with something as simple as being present.

So as autumn arrives, let us take pride not just in the beauty of the season, but in the people and places that make the Lakes Region more than just a spot on the map. Let us continue to show up—for our families, our neighbors, and our towns. The strength of our community depends on it.

A great way to meet the neighbors!

To the Editor:

I want to thank the Alton/Wolfeboro community for their participation in our summer yard sales. We positioned large white & red hand-painted signs, that everyone said were great, at the corner of Fort Point Road & Chestnut Cove Road, and also at the corner of Chestnut Cove Road & Route 28A.

We received so many compliments on the organization of our tables and the low prices on our items... nearly everyone walked off with a "prize."

After living in this area for more than thirty years, we're down-sizing... and this was a really fun way to finally meet and talk with so many of our neighbors! So, thank you all for stopping by, and we hope to see you again next year with more great stuff!

LETTERS FROM EDWIN

Mystery

I misplaced my tablet yesterday. After finishing up my dishes and after supper chores, I headed up to my room to immerse myself in cyber land for my nightly connection to the distant world. Checking on emails, messages and imperative junk. I'm so grateful that it's so easy to throw the electronic stuff in the trash. I know that the basket down in the kitchen is filled up to the top, and that I've already compressed it down once and doing so again won't buy me much. It may be time to wrap it up and take it down the cellar.

I at least have stuff in my trash bags. They have some weight to them. I see some bags getting thrown in the hopper that look almost like balloons being so sparsely filled. In the same way as I go for economy cars, I try for more trash per bag. It's that conservation ethic imposed upon me from my youth. It plagues my entire life. Throwing things away is almost painful.

After having already taken off my shoes, and noticing that my computer wasn't sitting next to my bed charging, I had to replay my day to try to zone in on where it might be. I was going to take it with me in the car in case I came across a nice "sit by the lake situation" where I could relax and write. Even though "in house" footwear aren't supposed to set foot outside, I slipped out and checked the car. Not there.

Retracing the path, I would have taken to get from there, I checked all the spots where I would normally have put it down. It wasn't anywhere, all the way back to the bedroom. No sign of it.

I'm pretty sure I didn't take it out of the car when I stopped to make my delivery. Pretty sure is all I ever get these days, never totally sure. I rechecked everywhere again just in case I missed something. Nope.

I have these hearing devices that have a neat feature where you can locate them with your phone via Bluetooth or GPS or something. Pretty cool. Do they have such an AP for my tablet? I might be tempted to download that one. This gadget is priceless to me. Losing it would be a tragedy.

I've gotten used to misplacing things. I have to, it happens so often. I mean it's a lifetime malady. When I was very young, young enough to explore the neighborhood by myself and not yet a teenager, I took my father's spade shovel down to the neighborhood swamp to dig up something. The reason evades me. Needless to say, when I made it back home a good space of time later, I didn't have the spade with me.

I got into playing with the kids and the afternoon dwindled away and as supper time neared, my father asked me about the spade. I'd forgotten all about it. But I went back to the swamp to see if I could find it. By the time I got back to the swamp, I had once again forgotten all about the stupid spade but decided to walk through all the mucky paths anyway. Now low and behold, while fiddling around in the swamp I came across

this nice spade shovel

that someone had left there. I brought it home with the comment, "look what I found down at the swamp". Dad got his spade back and I thought it was OK to just take things that I find laying around.

Chew on that one, you psychological phuds. It took me years to learn my way out of that one. Thank God I never got caught, and thank you Lord for helping me correct my errant ways. You never realize how twisted this world can be while you think you're in the center.

Managing to keep from getting too frustrated, I scoured the house. It wasn't in any of my stopping points or places that it might have been. I expanded my search, and there it was, sitting next to the Dr. Seuss tree at the bottom of the stairs. A place I never stop except when I water the plant. Somehow, I got distracted, put it down there, and totally forgot about it.

Now, did it even make it to the car? That's a mystery that will never be solved.

Hannaford Supermarkets continues tradition as Presenting Sponsor for 2025 Greater Lakes Region Children's Auction

LACONIA — The Greater Lakes Region Children's Auction recently announced that Hannaford Supermarkets has committed to serving as the presenting sponsor for the sixth consecutive year for the 2025 Children's Auction.

"We are so grateful to Hannaford and the support they have offered us for decades in the form of auction items, employee volunteers and now six generous years as our presenting sponsor," said Jennifer Kelley, executive director of the Children's Auction. "Hannaford has proven time and time again that they are committed to our community and the families who call it home."

Poliquin, store manager in Bristol, is a longtime auction volunteer who has been heading up teams to assist the organization for roughly 30 years, as long as he has been a Hannaford store manager. He is also a board member and a member of the Distribution Committee that makes recommendations on how auction funds are dispersed.

"Hannaford lieves in the power of giving back to the communities it serves," Poliquin said. "We are proud to support the Lakes Region and happy to partner with and bolster the Children's Auction and other great organizations like it. We hope to continue to impact the region in our primary focus areas: hunger relief, health and wellness, and child development and families."

Fieldstone/Granite 35 years experience

Tony Luongo 603-707-2727

Remember that time you were about to jump into something big-a new business, a major life change, a dream you finally decided to chase? At first, your mind lights up with excitement. You see the vision, you make the plans, you picture the success. But then, almost like clockwork, the thought creeps in: "So, what's your Plan B?"

Of course, having a backup plan makes sense. If Plan A falls apart, you've got to have a Plan B, right?

It almost feels a bit controversial writing about not having a Plan B. I think that's because the idea is often misunderstood.

When I say "Plan A," I'm not talking about a single project or a business idea—I mean your overarching mission. The bigger picture. The thing that gives your life direction and meaning. It's the north star you measure everything else against. That's what I'm getting at when I speak about Plan A—not the small detours or adjustments, but the core mission that defines where you're going.

When I talk about Plan B, I don't mean little adjustments—like taking the side streets when the freeway's jammed. That's just flexibility.

What I mean is the bigger Plan B: the alternative to your overarching mission, the backup life you keep in your back pocket "just in case." That kind of Plan B, as neuroscience doesn't just sit quietly in the background—it actively drains energy from Plan A, it slowly eats away at Plan A until it's gone!

The prefrontal cortex, responsible for planning decision-making, works best when the outcome really matters. Think of an athlete in a championship game-

they find a POSITIVELY level of focus and creativity SPEAKING they never had in practice, be-TOBY MOORE cause, in this scenario, Plan

A equals winning and Plan B equals losing.

Think of a life-ordeath scenario. If you're facing a grizzly bear in the forest, Plan A is to survive. Plan B is... not. And while Plan A can fail, having no Plan B forces every ounce of focus and energy into survival—dramatically increasing your chances of success. When there's only one shot—no backup—the brain ramps up dopamine, sharpening focus and creativity. But when you create a Plan B, dopamine drops—and so does motivation. In other words, the moment you create a Plan B, you're signaling to your brain, "Relax, no need to give it everything," and your effort slips.

Studies from the University of Pennsylvania, Zurich, and Wisconsin all point to the same conclusion: people with backup plans perform their goals. Even thinking about a Plan B reduces persistence and creativity.

Why? Because the brain is built to save energy. The moment it realizes it can relax, it will relax.

Take Howard Schultz, the man behind Starbucks. When he first tried to raise money to expand the company, investors laughed him out of the room. Banks turned him down more than 200 times. He could have walked away, gone back to a "safe" job in corporate America, taken a Plan B. But he refused. Starbucks was Plan A. Period. He doubled down, kept pitching, and eventually found a handful of believers. Today, Starbucks is a household name around the world.

The science explains the story: when your brain knows there's no escape hatch, it goes all in. Dopamine spikes, focus sharpens, and creativity ignites. You start to see options you'd never notice otherwise. Pressure forces breakthroughs. That's the hidden gift of burning the boats.

That's the real danger of Plan B. Most of the time, it isn't strategy it's fear in disguise. It feels responsible, but really, it's a quiet permission slip to play smaller, to quit when things get uncomfortable.

The science is clear, and the stories back it up: extraordinary results only come when you stop keeping one foot out the door. So burn the boats, shut the exits, and commit like there's no other option.

Because that's the moment your full potential wakes up. Don't plan for escape—plan for victory. That's how you find out what you're really capa-

Veronia J. Childs, 75

Alton Bay - Veronia J. Childs, 75, passed away on Tuesday, August 26, 2025, at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Veronica was born on June 14, 1950, in Brockton, MA, the daughter of the late Adolf and Marie (Langley) Pasiuk.

Veronica worked as elementary school teacher for over 25 years at Stratham NH Memorial School. She was devoted to her faith. Veronica also enjoyed skiing, tennis, gardening, and riding together with her loving husband, Stephen, on his motorcycle. She enjoyed the freedom she felt riding together. Veronica always put family first; she loved her family dearly and enjoyed time spent with them.

Veronica is survived by her husband of 43 years, Stephen M. Childs; son Matthew M. Childs; sister Marg Clive; and brother Frank Pasiuk. In addition to her parents, Veronica is predeceased by her sister Rosemary.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on Tuesday, September 9, 2025, at 10:00 a.m. at St. Andre Bessette Parish-Sacred Heart Church. 291 Union Avenue, Laconia, NH.

A Graveside Service followed at Sacred Heart Cemetery, Garfield Street, Laconia, NH.

Third Annual Walk for Jim set for Sept. 27

ALTON — On Saturday, Sept. 27 from 9 a.m.noon, in the parking lot of St. Katharine Drexel church on Route 28 in Alton, the third annual "Walk for Jim" will be held. All ages are invited to participate, walking in support of the James W. Foley Legacy Foundation begun by Jim's parents, John and Diane Foley, following Jim's death at the hands of ISIS terrorists in Syria 11 years ago.

Jim Foley was a freelance conflict journalist, a man of moral courage who put his own life at the people of war-torn Iraq and Syria. His imprisonment and sacrifice remind us all to stand for those who have no voice. Jim grew up in Wolfeboro, graduated from Kingswood Regional High School, and attended then St. Cecilia's Church on Main Street. In 2022, the parish of St. Katharine Drexel erected a black granite image of Jim outside the church entrance memorializing him and his work.

This year's event asks participants find sponsors for their walk. For example, if you get 10 risk to tell the stories of sponsors at $1 a lap and you complete 10 laps [two miles], you donate $100. If 50 people come to walk and do the same, we can raise $5,000 for the foundation. Individual contributions in any amount are also encouraged. Checks should be made out to the James W. Foley Legacy Foundation and brought to the church grounds on Sept. 27. All donations go directly to the foundation and its on-going work to bring Americans unfairly detained around the world back home. Walk to help this cause and in memory of Jim, who would turn 52 on Oct. 18. Hope to see

ACCREDITATION

(continued from Page A1) enforcement and highlights the high standards that this agency holds itself to for the benefit our community and the profession as a whole," the Gilford PD said on a Sept. 5 Facebook post. "Thank you to the commission as well as each and every member of the department who contributed to this rigorous process."

The NH Law Enforcement Accreditation Commission sent a letter to the department in July recognizing that the department received its accreditation.

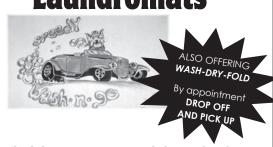

"This voluntary process to attain full accreditation is challenging and thought provoking," wrote Lt. Sonya Robichau of NH Police Standards and Training, an accreditation support and management specialist. "Please extend my sincere appreciation and congratulations to all the members of your department. Your hard work and commitment to excellence are ingrained in the culture of the Gilford Police Department, and I look forward to your continued success and leadership in the New Hampshire law enforcement community."

Starting in 1979, New Hampshire law enforcement agencies could accreditation under a national program, though there was talk about starting a state-run organization to create a simpler process. After that process stopped for a time, the effort started again under Gov. Chris Sununu in 2020 and led to the executive order creating the Law Enforcement Accreditation Commission in 2022. The commission is meant to create standards of accreditation, conduct assessments, and issue accreditation certificates for law enforcement agencies in the state.

It also provides training for the public in accreditation and cooperates with agencies across the state to improve the accreditation program.

The accreditation process is voluntary and agencies that wish to receive it must show they meet the standards and criteria set by the commission. Agencies will submit documentation and undergo review by the commission to see if they meet the standards.

Bank of NH Prestige Plus members enjoy scenic Lake Sunapee cruise, tour of John Hay Estate at The Fells

LACONIA — Bank New Hampshire's Prestige Plus members recently enjoyed a memorable day trip that combined relaxation, history and local flavor. The trip featured a narrated cruise on Lake Sunapee, a guided tour of the John Hay Estate at The Fells and a stop at Jordan's Ice Cream in Belmont.

During a cruise along the crystal-clear waters of Lake Sunapee, members listened as the captain of the Mt. Sunapee Queen shared stories of the lake's rich history, admired the grand summer homes that line its shores and viewed three historic lighthouses still in operation. Members also enjoyed a delightful lunch on board with views of Mount Kearsarge and Mount Sunapee as loons swam nearby.

Following the cruise, the group visited the John Hay Estate at The Fells, the historic lakeside summer retreat of the former private secretary to President Abraham Lincoln and statesman. During a guided tour of the Main House, members learned about Hay's remarkable life and legacy. Afterward, they strolled the estate's grounds and gardens, pathways to stone walls and terraces, shaded woodland trails and sweeping lawns leading down to the lake.

The day concluded with a stop at Jordan's Ice Cream in Belmont, where members indulged in a sweet treat on their way home.

"Our Prestige Plus trips are designed to offer our members opportunities for enrichment, discovery and connection," said Cindy Salta, VP -Prestige Plus Officer for Bank of New Hampshire. "This outing was the perfect combination of history, natural beauty and camaraderie."

Be on the lookout for invasive purple loosestrife

GILFORD — The magenta-pink flower spikes of the invasive purple loosestrife plant are currently along many roadsides. The Wetlands Walk area at Gunstock has lots of native wildflowers, but this is not one of them.

Purple loosestrife is native to Europe where there are insects that keep the plant from taking over soggy areas. Despite its attractive flower that led to its use in gardens, it makes seed the size of pepper grains that are not useful to birds and other wildlife. It overtakes areas where plants like blue vervain live that make larger seeds that are important wildlife food. Is it important to dig out the roots since easily resprouts. Then it is best to put it in a black trash bag and leave it in the sun for a few weeks to get "cooked" before disposing of it.

Glossy buckthorn is another pest plant which likes wetlands and gaps in pine forests. Birds like the ripe black berries and spread their seed as it upsets their digestive

LITTLETON, NH September 3, 2025 – Rehearsals are set to begin for the fall/winter season for White Mountain Voices. Anyone who likes to sing and can match pitch is welcome to join us on September 14 for the youth choir (ages 6-14) or September 15 for the adult choir (teens to nonagenarians!)

This season's program, described by artistic director Victoria Cole as "juicy and wonderful," features classical music in both traditional and contemporary styles. There will be wellknown favorites such as Bach, Vivaldi, and Scarlatti as well as the contemporary Estonian composer Arvo Part.

Chorus member Kathleen Searles, Littleton, says that "In a community chorus you are working together to create something beautiful. It is the perfect antidote to personal and societal anxiety. And, you meet great people!"

All rehearsals are held at All Saints Episcopal Church in Littleton. The Youth Choir meets from 4-5 on Sundays and the adult choir from 7-9 on Monday evenings. The first few rehearsals are open, so anyone can come and give the chorus a try before making a commitment.

The winter concerts will be on December 20 at the Medallion Opera House in Gorham and on December 21 at the First Congregational Church in Littleton.

White Mountain Voices is a community chorus founded in 2017 to serve the Littleton-Lancaster

They typically perform two concerts each year. White Mountain Youth Voices is in its third year of providing an exceptional opportunity for young people to learn the basics of choral music and to perform for the community. White ALTON — The schedule makers weren't exactly kind to the Prospect Mountain boys' soccer team, giving the Timber Wolves a few tough games at the start of the season.

The second game of the year came on Tuesday, Sept. 2, as Prospect hosted St.

Thomas on the first day of school. The Timber Wolves put on some pressure late in the game but could not overcome an early Saint lead and dropped a 3-1 decision.

Orion Neathery had an early cross cleared from the zone and St. Thomas came back with a couple of good chances, with Prospect GILFORD — The Gilford field hockey team obviously has a target on its back in the new season, having won three championships in a row.

And while the faces may change, there is plenty about the Gilford field hockey program that has not changed.

"The Gilford field hockey culture remains strong," said coach Joy Southworth, who enters her third year back at the helm. "The positive mindset, coachability and dedication is impres-

"These young ladies embrace the hard work," she continued. "They are trying a lot of new things and learning to trust one another."

Leading the way for the Golden Eagles are leaders Catherine Fay and Grace Southworth along with goaltender Madi Breton and six other returning varsity players.

"They are all hungry and striving for daily improvement," the Golden Eagle coach stated. "They believe it's not about what they did, it's about what they are doing."

The Golden Eagles welcome ninth graders Kierra Walker, Rowan Worthen, Zevy Donovan and Amelia Banks while also welcoming sophomore newcomers Ady Le-Mien and Pearl Marvel. And like everyone, they are out to make a name for themselves.

"The 2025 Gilford field hockey team is a brand new team and they are enthusiastically learning how to work well together," Southworth noted. "The team is full of degroup of young ladies.

The Golden Eagle coach is looking forward to see each member of the team continue to improve and get better as sire, drive, skill and enthusiasm. I feel grateful and honored to lead this the season goes on.

"My goal as the Gilford field hockey coach is to help each girl, and the team as a whoel, conquer challenges and reach their greatest potential," Southworth said. "If I can help them become a better version of themself each day, they are already winning."

The Golden Eagles will play a schedule that includes two games each with Winnisquam, Bishop Brady, Berlin, St. Thomas and Newfound and single games with Stevens, Newport, Mascoma, Mascenic, Conant and Hopkinton.

The Golden Eagles opened the season with a 4-0 win over Winnisquam on Friday, Aug. 29.

Gilford is set to be at home against Berlin on Friday, Sept. 12, at St. Thomas on Monday, Sept. 15, at Newfound on Tuesday, Sept. 16, and at Bishop Brady on Thursday, Sept. 18.

Sports Editor Joshua Spaulding can be reached at 279-4516, ext. 155 or josh@salmonpress.news. goalie Charlie Yeaton handling the chances. Rylan Clifford had a good defensive stop, as did Logan DeWitt and Isaac Casale and DJ Scarpa combined on a chance at the other end.

The Saints got on the board first with just less than 10 minutes gone in the game, as they fired a shot off a diving Yeaton and into the back of the net for the 1-0 lead. Blake Pappaceno came back with a chance that was stopped by the defense and Neathery and Casale got in close on a corner kick and DeWitt had a chance denied by the goalie. Pappaceno and Blake Snell had solid defensive stands and Casale and Anthony Sanville had direct kicks for Prospect.

The visitors upped the lead to 2-0 with 19:50 to go in the first half. Yeaton made the initial save on a crossing bid but the rebound went off the cross bar and it was poked into the net for the 2-0 lead. The Saints had a cross that went over the top of the net and at the other end, Chance Montplaisir had a nice cross into Neathery that was denied. Yeaton came out to stop another St. Thomas chance. Sanville had a good defensive stop as well.

Neathery had a chance denied and then combined with Casale on a bid that the St. Thomas goalie handled. Yeaton stopped a couple of Saint chances and Montplaisir had a nice cross in front that Neathery sent just wide of the net. Casale had a bid denied as well.

Sanville sent a nice ball up to Wyatt Bubar for a chance and Scarpa sent a cross into the middle of the box that the St. Thomas goalie snared. The Saints had a corner kick chance but could not convert and Yeaton saved another bid. Snell sent a cross through the middle and Clifford had another solid defensive stop. The Saints had a couple of late corners but the Prospect defense held tight and the Saints took the 2-0 lead to the half.

Yeaton had an early save in the second half and the Saints sent shots wide and high as well. Neathery had a bid denied and Josh Dryer had a solid defensive play. Yeaton slid out to make a stop on a Saint chance and Scarpa had a defensive stop as well. The Saints sent a direct kick over the top of the net and Bryce Lounsbury and Bubar teamed up on a chance that was saved.

Scarpa just missed connecting Neathery on a crossing pass and Snell sent a shot wide of the net. Casale also had a crossing pass cleared out of the zone. The Saints came back with four corner kick chances in a row, with the Timber Wolf defense holding tight. They also sent a direct kick wide and Yeaton stopped another bid.

With 14:08 to go in the game, the Saints upped the lead to 3-0 and continued to pressure a bit, with Yeaton making a sliding grab on one chance and another corner kick going over the top of the net. After Clifford made a nice defensive stop, Bubar and Scarpa teamed up on a bid and Prospect had a corner kick chance.

Montplaisir and Scarpa connected on a chance, Pappaceno sent a shot on net that was denied and Yeaton stopped another St. Thomas chance.

Prospect got on the board in the final three minutes, as Bubar ripped the shot home to cut the lead to 3-1. The Timber Wolves had a late corner kick chance, with Pappaceno getting a foot on the ball in front of the net, but the clock ran out and the Saints had the 3-1 win.

Prospect bounced back to close out the week, picking up a 1-0 win over Fall Mountain on Friday.

The Timber Wolves are slated to be in action on Friday, Sept. 12, at home against Kearsarge and Tuesday, Sept. 16, at Derryfield, both at 4 p.m.

New England Wolves holding free Learn To Play program Program named after former Wolves player Mischa Fay

LACONIA — Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 14, and continuing till Feb. 8, the New England Wolves will be running their annual free Learn to Play Hockey at the Merrill Fay Arena. This year's program is sponsored by the Mischa Fay Foundation and will be named the Mischa's Little Stars program, after the beloved former Wolves player who tragically passed away in the winter of 2023.

"We are overjoyed to be keeping our beloved Mischa's memory alive by helping children learn to play the amazing sport that Mischa loved... hockey," said Merrill and Beth Fay,

The New England Wolves Learn to Play program is being named after former Wolves player Mischa Fay.

Mischa's parents.

The program runs on Tuesday nights from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m., with a second set of skates added weekly on Sunday mornings starting Nov. 16 at 930 a.m. The program is free to all young skaters who wish to participate and coached by the New England Wolves coaching staff and Junior Hockey players. Full equipment is needed. Many of the articles, such as skates, gloves, pants and helmets, can be acquired for free through the Wolves equipment donation program. A free jersey is also provided.

Parents can enroll their skaters by registering on the Wolves website, www. ne-wolveshockey.com and contact either Tim Kunes (trkunes@gmail.com) or Andrew Trimble (scoringconcepts@gmail.com) to swing by the rink and pick up some of the pieces of equipment for their skater.

"Our deepest gratitude to the Wolves organization for their continued support," commented Merrill and Beth Fay.

Last year more than 30 skaters began their hockey careers through the Learn to Play program and advanced onto the Wolves 8U and 10U hockey teams. This program is a great way to be introduced to the game of hockey and expose your child to a new set of skills and teammates. Register today.

Alton Garden Club learns about invasive plants

ALTON — The August meeting of Alton Garden Club was held on a perfect summer day at the property of member and Vice President Roberta Mank. This month's speaker, Professor Tom Foster (Ret.), spoke about invasive and toxic plants in New Hampshire.

There are nearly 100 invasive plants in our state, and the numerous invasive species pose a serious threat to native ecosystems, outcompeting our native plants and altering their habitats. Invasive plants often grow faster and reproduce more rapidly than native species, allowing them to monopolize sunlight, nutrients and water, starving out native plants and making them more susceptible to fungus and disease.

Foster mentioned the following species are considered functionally extinct in our state: the American Chestnut, the White Ash, and the Red Pine. Beech trees and Eastern Hemlocks are both under severe threat from invasive pests and diseases. Poisons are frequently contained in some or all parts of certain plants, such as wintergreen, yews, jackin-the pulpit, poinsettia, Queen Anne's Lace, and several others. Poison Ivy, Oak and Sumac release an oil that is toxic. Foster suggested that we don't eat, burn or make crafts from wild plants without having checked first with a plant expert, and we should wash thoroughly, including our clothing, after hiking or biking among unknown plants. Tom provided a handout, Native and Introduced Poisonous Plants of New Hampshire, with names of both wild and cultivated poisonous plants. As an added surprise Tom gifted us jars of his homemade jam prepared with the edible variety of Sumac.

Foster invited us to join him for an upcoming poisonous plant identification hike to help us recognize and be able to avoid toxic plants that are common in Alton. Learning about toxic and invasive plants was of high interest to us, and we thank Tom Foster for his excellent presenta-
