Northfield home fire prompts woodstove safety reminders

NORTHFIELD — Tilton-Northfield Fire & EMS and the Franklin Fire Department were dispatched to a reported building fire at 146 Hodgdon Rd. in Northfield after a neighbor observed smoke and flames. A first alarm was requested by the responding captain.

Upon arrival, crews found a two-story residence with heavy fire showing from the front of the structure. Access to the home was challenging, as a narrow, approximately 200-foot path extended from the end of the driveway to the residence.

Raider boys win double-overtime classic over Gilford

Belmont’s Evan Martinez goes to the basket against the defense of Gilford’s Emmett Hughes in action last Tuesday.

Wyatt Bamford drives to the hoop during action against Gilford last Tuesday evening.

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING

BELMONT — If you wanted a pretty game, last Tuesday evening’s battle between the Belmont and Gilford boys’ basketball teams wasn’t for you.

But if you wanted a knock-down, drag out, double-overtime dogfight between Lakes Region rivals who have played some intense games over the last few years, then this was your kind of night.

Wyatt Carroll drained a three with 10 seconds left in regulation to pull the defending champs even with Gilford at the end of regulation and then Owen Hawkins drove to the basket for a layup in the final seconds of the first overtime, forcing a second overtime, where the Raiders outscored the visiting Golden Eagles 8-2 for the 65-59 win.

Owen Harkins for Gilford and Owen Viar for Belmont got the scoring started for their respective teams while Mark Uicker for Gilford and Evan Martinez for Belmont kept the back and forth going. Uicker hit another shot and after Wyatt Divers drained a free throw for the Raiders, Emmett Hughes hit two for Gilford for the 8-5 lead.

Viar drained a hoop for the hosts and Martinez converted a three-point play to put the Raiders on top and after Ryan Folan hit a free throw for Gilford, Wyatt Bamford put back a rebound for Belmont and added two free throws after a Uicker hoop and Belmont had the 14-11 lead after one quarter.

Folan got the first hoop of the second quarter, Martinez answered with a free throw and then Harkins sunk a TILTON — As their peers filled the gymnasium, eight anxious Winnisquam Regional Middle School students awaited the start of the school-wide Spelling Bee. The WRMS 2026 finalists were Ella Barton, Elliot Greenwood, Aaron Fruci, Rose Larabee, Ava Bagley, Lucas Chase, Ashton Orr, and Caroline Dubord.

WRMS teacher Dan Kirby welcomed the audience and introduced the competitors, while teacher Craig Olson served as the event's emcee. The competition was overseen by a panel of judges, including teachers Cathleen White, Elaine Pottle, and Missy Duffey.

After 13 intense rounds of competition, Caroline

Dubord was declared the winner after correctly spelling the word "chignon." Following her victory, Judge Cathleen White praised the students' dedication, commenting "All of the finalists took time out of their days to practice and study together. Caroline has worked hard to prepare and has a real chance in the next highly competitive level of the contest."

Caroline's name will be added to the WRMS Spelling Bee winner Plaque, and she is entered in the state finalist round. This round will be completed via an online test. The top 25 spellers in the state will then be invited to Manchester to compete in the state championship.

Belmont fire claims life of homeowner's dog

BELMONT — On Thursday, Jan. 29 at approximately 9:27 a.m., the Belmont Fire Department was dispatched to a reported building fire at 9 Valley Dr. Laconia Chief-13C1, who was in the area at the time of the call, observed a large column of black smoke and immediately requested a first alarm assignment. Upon arrival, 13C1 reported fire throughout the structure.

All occupants were accounted for, with the exception of the homeowner's dog. Engine companies arrived shortly thereafter and immediately stretched two hoselines, initiating fire attack operations. Junior Firefighter Ethan Girard and retired police officer Bob Akerstrom worked hard assisting with stretching the LDH "large diameter hose" down the street to set up for rural water supply. Crews worked quickly and efficiently to bring the fire under control. Mutual Aid departments provided critical assistance on scene.

The Belmont Fire Department would like to extend sincere thanks to Laconia Fire Department, Gilford Fire Department, Tilton-Northfield Fire Department, Gilmanton Fire Department and Franklin Fire Department, as well as law enforcement and EMS partners, for their support and teamwork during this incident. Sadly, despite extensive efforts, the dog was later located, and did not survive the fire. Our thoughts are with the property owner following this loss. The homeowner reported flames coming from a clothes dryer, and investigators are examining the area as a possible point of origin.

The incident remains under investigation.

The value of staying local

In a world that moves faster every year, there is something quietly grounding about how life unfolds in small towns. News still travels by word of mouth as often as it does by screen. Problems are discussed face to face. Solutions are shaped by people who know the roads, the schools, and the history behind them.

In Tilton, Belmont, Northfield, and Sanbornton, staying local has never meant resisting change for the sake of it. Instead, it has meant understanding change before embracing it. When new ideas or proposals come forward, the first question is often not whether they look good on paper, but whether they make sense here. That distinction matters more than it sometimes gets credit for.

Local knowledge carries weight in ways that cannot always be measured. It shows up when a longtime resident explains why a certain intersection floods every spring, no matter how many times it has been patched. It shows up when a parent points out how a proposed school schedule affects working families, or when a volunteer speaks up for a program that may not seem essential in a budget spreadsheet but fills a real gap in the community.

These insights are not abstract. They are grounded in lived experience. And while they may not always be loud, they are often the difference between decisions that work and decisions that need to be revisited later.

There is also a level of accountability that comes with staying local. Decisions are not made for an anonymous audience. They are made with the understanding that the people involved will see the results every day. At the grocery store. At school events. At the post office. That reality encourages care, even when opinions differ and debates are spirited.

Small towns are not free from disagreement, nor should they be. Healthy communities question themselves. They wrestle with priorities. They reconsider past choices and adapt when circumstances change. Staying local does not mean everyone agrees. It means those disagreements remain rooted in shared experience rather than distant talking points.

As the year moves forward, conversations will continue about budgets, services, planning, and the direction of our towns. These discussions can feel routine, even repetitive. But they are where the character of a community is quietly reinforced. Each choice, taken on its own, may seem small. Together, they determine whether a town remains responsive, resilient, and recognizable to the people who call it home.

The strength of these communities has never come from trying to be something they are not. It has come from paying attention to what works here, and why. From listening before deciding. From respecting the past without being bound by it.

In the end, progress does not have to be loud to be real. Some of the most lasting improvements are the ones that grow steadily, guided by local voices and local priorities.

Staying local is not about looking inward. It is about staying connected. And in times of change, that connection remains one of the most valuable assets a community can have.

Finding value in life’s unhurried moments

The other morning, I caught myself standing at the kitchen window, coffee in hand, watching the world wake up. Not for any important reason. No dramatic sunrise, no big moment. Just a few birds hopping around, a neighbor heading out early, and the quiet hum of another New Hampshire day beginning.

It struck me how rarely we give ourselves permission to be still. Everything these days seems built around motion. Get up, get going, keep moving. Even our free time is often scheduled, tracked, and measured. Somewhere along the line, being busy started to look like being successful.

When I was younger, there was more unplanned time. You sat on the porch because the weather was

Kind folks, cold winters
By CHIPPY
You talked with neighbors because they happened to walk by. You lingered after dinner because there was nowhere else you needed to be. It wasn’t glamorous, but it was grounding.

Now, if there’s a quiet moment, we rush to fill it. A phone comes out. A screen lights up. A notification demands attention. Silence feels awkward, as if it needs an explanation.

But here’s the thing. Stillness has its own kind of value. It’s in those slower moments that you notice how tired you really are, or how much you’ve been carrying around in your head. It’s where gratitude sneaks in. You realize the coffee tastes good. The house is warm. The people you love are doing OK.

Living in New Hampshire teaches you this, whether you want the lesson or not. Winter has a way of slowing everything down. Roads get quieter. Even errands take more planning. You learn to move a little more carefully, a little more deliberately. And in that slower rhythm, there’s space to think.

I’ve started making a small habit of doing nothing on purpose. Not scrolling. Not checking messages. Just sitting. Sometimes it’s five minutes. Sometimes it’s ten. It feels strange at first, like you’re breaking some invisible rule. But after a while, it starts to feel like a small gift you give yourself.

My wife laughs when she catches me staring out the window again. She says I look like I’m waiting for something important to happen. Maybe I am. Or maybe I’m just reminding myself that life doesn’t always need to be rushed to be meaningful.

We don’t need to turn our backs on modern life to reclaim these moments. We just need to be a little more intentional. Leave the phone in the other room. Take the long way through the grocery store. Sit in the car for an extra minute before going inside.

In a world that keeps getting louder and faster, choosing quiet feels almost rebellious. But it’s a gentle rebellion. The kind that doesn’t make headlines. The kind that simply makes life feel steadier.

So if you find yourself with a few spare minutes today, don’t rush to fill them. Stand by the window. Sit on the porch. Watch the snow fall or the clouds drift by. You might be surprised at how much peace fits into a small, quiet moment.

Comfort Keepers

Putting your loved one’s affairs in order

BY MARTHA SWATS
Owner/Administrator
Comfort Keepers

There are several legal papers and documents that should be addressed by your loved one before a life-threatening situation arises. Once a healthcare emergency strikes, it may be too late to prepare these documents. That’s why you should talk to your loved one about getting his or her affairs in order and to put their wishes regarding healthcare in writing while they are still healthy and able.

Selecting a healthcare proxy
If you have siblings or other relatives, you and your loved one should determine together who will be the proxy. Think about who shares the same views and values about life and medical decisions as your loved one. It can be a family member, a friend, a lawyer, or someone who shares the same religious faith. It’s a good idea to also name an alternate proxy. It is especially important to have a detailed living will if your loved one chooses not to name a proxy.

Your loved one can decide how much authority the proxy has over his or her medical care, and if he or she is entitled to make much of the crucial decisions, or only a few specific ones. Check with the chosen proxy and the alternate before they are officially named to make sure, they are comfortable with this responsibility.

Making it official
Your loved one should talk with the doctor and have an idea of the types of decisions that could come up in the future, especially if certain health problems are present. The next step is to fill out the legal forms detailing your loved one’s wishes. A lawyer can help, but is not required. If your senior wants one, don’t depend on the lawyer to help him or her understand different medical treatments. That’s why it is wise to start the planning process by talking with the doctor. If your loved one wants a lawyer, find an elder law attorney.

Not planning in advance means that you might not be able to gain access to the information you need, or act on your loved one’s behalf if he or she is unable to do so. In a worst-case scenario, you might be forced to fight in court for guardianship, a time-consuming and costly process. You can avoid this scenario by working with your loved one to prepare these documents.

Important health care documents include:

A medical directive: Also known as a living will or advance health care directive, this document specifies the kind of care your loved one wants to receive if and when he or she becomes ill or incapacitated. This must be handled while your loved one is able. It is crucial that the person who is named health care proxy knows the senior’s wishes in the event that he or she needs life support, a feeding tube, or intravenous fluids to survive. That is why this is a very important document for family caregivers to have. You can also have an Advance Directive Wallet Card for your loved one to carry in his or her wallet, indicating that an advance directive exists, and where it is kept.

A durable power of attorney for healthcare: This document allows you to make healthcare decisions for your loved one.

A durable power of attorney for finances and HIPAA release: This gives

CHHS training and education programs build skills, strengthen communities

CONCORD — From simulation-based learning to innovative college partnerships, Concord Hospital Health System (CHHS) is investing in healthcare professionals and in doing so, strengthening access to high-quality care for communities across New Hampshire.

Expanding skills through education and training centers

A year ago this month, Concord Hospital – Laconia (CHL) Education & Training Center welcomed its first class: the American Heart Association’s (AHA) Pediatric Advanced Life Support course. Since then, the center has hosted additional AHA offerings, including basic dysrhythmia training and clinical orientation for new hires.

Designed to enhance clinical confidence and patient safety, the new facility features a spacious classroom, two rooms for low-fidelity simulation or clinical case training, a computer workspace for staff, and educator offices. It serves as a hands-on learning hub for CHHS employees to practice skills, learn specialized techniques, and prepare for real-world patient care scenarios.

Beyond supporting current employees through

Nurses from Concord, Franklin, and Laconia participated in the ED/OBS Fellowship, which ran from July 10 to Nov. 14 of last year. The students came together weekly to learn about emergency and observation medicine and nursing through didactic classes, followed by simulation laboratory time with scenario-based training and hands-on experience with equipment.

hands-on training in Laconia, CHHS is also focused on building the future healthcare workforce by introducing students to clinical careers early on. In Concord, students can sample a variety of hospital-based occupations.

“CHHS supports many shadows for the Concord Regional Technical Center in all departments, and they are great students,” shared CHHS’s Academic-Practice Partner and Student Placement Coordinator Emily Higgins, DNP, MSN, RN, ONC. “We also have a lot of guest speakers that go to the school and talk about healthcare careers.”

This collaboration gives students a frontline workforce perspective and the opportunity to speak with providers and staff about their careers.

“I love Concord Hospital and the support they provide to our future healthcare professionals. The partnership has been incredibly meaningful for our program,” said Sharon Bean, a health science teacher at Concord High School. “This year, we are proud to serve 118 students who are excited, motivated, and eager to learn as they prepare for careers in health care.”

Specialized life-saving training

Concord Hospital (CH) recently became a formal training center for Cardiac Surgical Unit Advanced Life Support (CSU-ALS) certification. This specialized program equips providers with unique skills to respond to cardiac arrests following open-heart surgery — a process that differs from standard Advanced Cardiovascular Life Support (ACLS). Developed by Cardiac Advanced Resuscitation Education (CARE, LLC), and recognized globally by organizations like the AHA, CSU-ALS training will help CHHS achieve its goal of becoming a “Center of Excellence” within two years. Granted by CARE, LLC, this designation would enable CH to expand training from internal candidates to other healthcare professionals statewide.

Immersive fellowship in emergency and observation (ED/OBS) Unit Medicine Last year’s ED/OBS summer/fall fellowship launched on July 10, and graduated on November 14, 2025, welcoming CHHS’s largest group of new graduate registered nurses to date. The 19-week comprehensive program brought together nurses from Concord, Franklin, and Laconia for weekly sessions combining didactic instruction with simulation-based training.

Core topics included medication safety, triage, cardiac dysrhythmia and emergencies, respiratory emergencies, trauma, pediatrics, behavioral health crises, diabetic ketoacidosis and sepsis, and OB/GYN emergencies. By the end of the program, fellows are prepared with the critical-thinking skills, procedural expertise, and clinical confidence needed to excel in fast-paced, high-acuity care environments.

Building the workforce through college partnerships

CHHS’s commitment to workforce development extends well beyond its walls. The health system maintains close partnerships with local colleges, creating career pathways that address staffing shortages and improve patient access to care.

One standout collaboration with New England College earned CHHS the Presidents’ Community Partner Award. The Co-operative Bachelor of Science in Nursing program offers an accelerated three-year degree that blends classroom learning with nine months of clinical training. Students work as licensed nursing assistants while completing rotations across CHHS, guided by experienced mentors.

This year’s cohort of 18 students completed a 14-week summer rotation alongside registered nurses, experiencing multiple departments and gaining a comprehensive view of nursing practice. All their student nurse training was in Concord, but two students completed their LNA training and LNA hours in Laconia. Those two Laconia students still work at CHL in LNA co-op roles.

CHHS also partners with Manchester Community College (MCC) to prepare Licensed Nursing Assistants (LNAs). The winter and summer 2025 LNA classes were trained at Havenwood Heritage Heights and CHHS facilities under the guidance of MCC faculty. All the graduates joined CHHS, beginning their careers in patient care. One of those graduates, Skyelar Baillargeon, LNA, credits the program with developing the soft skills essential in health care.

“Working with patients during my training prepared me better because instead of just doing book work and stuff in class, I got to get the hang of doing things and talking with them, even if they just needed to talk to us,” said Baillargeon.

Investing in community health

These initiatives, along with CHHS’s medical assistant residency, nursing residencies, pharmacy technician training, behavioral health education programs, and other professional development opportunities, are supported in part by Community Benefits funding.

For participants like Baillargeon, beginning a healthcare career by serving patients in their community provides additional value.

“It means everything to me. Helping people has always been something I wanted to do, and it has inspired me to go for my registered nurse license,” Baillargeon said.

By developing a highly trained, locally rooted workforce, CHHS strengthens the health system’s mission of delivering care close to home — ensuring that patients receive expert, compassionate treatment from providers who understand their community.

“Throughout these programs, students and staff gain invaluable experience that advances their education while deepening their commitment to the nursing and healthcare professions,” said Erin Collins, RN, CHHS vice president of nursing professional practice and development. “These opportunities not only prepare individuals for successful careers but also improve access to care for our patients.”

With nearly 5,000 employees serving more than 250,000 residents statewide, CHHS continues to build a strong foundation for the future of health care in New Hampshire.

you permission to manage your loved one’s financial affairs, pay bills, sell property, and so on. A HIPAA release gives you access to his or her health records and physicians.

A revocable living trust: This allows your loved one to retain control over his or her estate while making transfers of assets to beneficiaries. They designate what property (home, investments, jewelry, and so on) goes into the trust and to whom it will be granted. During their lifetimes, they act as executors of their own living trust. The most important advantage: it allows the estate to avoid probate at the time of death.

A will: A will makes clear who will receive your loved one’s assets and personal property. A properly written will helps to avoid disagreements over the estate after his or her death.

Additional documents: These can include life insurance and long-term care policies; an end-of-life instructions letter (regarding wishes or items not covered in the will); or an existing organ donor card.

It’s not enough to merely have these documents — they must be accessible. Experts recommend that seniors or their loved ones keep all of these important documents in one master folder or box. It should be placed in a safe place at home such as a safe deposit box or fire safe.

Nobody can predict the future. Your loved ones may never face a medical situation where they are unable to speak and make their wishes known. But having an advance directive may give your loved one and those close to you some added peace of mind.

Comfort Keepers® also provides peace of mind. Our trained and carefully screened caregivers will provide quality, in-home care for your loved one, so you can relax and not have to worry. Powerhouse announces cast list for “Magician’s Elephant”

Carson Curtis

—LACONIA — Pow-erhouse Theatre Collaborative, the resident theatre company of the Colonial Theatre in Laconia has completed casting for the NH Premiere of a brand new musical “The Magician’s Elephant” by Nancy Harris and Marc Teitler. The musical is an adaptation of Kate DiCamillo’s award-winning novel, which was also recently adapted into an animated film on Netflix. People from all over New Hampshire came out to audition for the show and have a chance to perform on the beautiful Colonial Theatre stage.

Says Director Bryan Halperin, “We searched statewide for performers for this challenging and fun new musical, especially for talented teens to play the pivotal leading roles of Peter and Adele. We were thrilled by the turnout and ecstatic to work with this cast.”

The role of Peter Duchene, the musical’s main protagonist, will be played by Carson Curtis from Brentwood. Curtis is an almost 16 year old with tons of onstage experience in the professional, community and youth theatre scene in New Hampshire. Professional appearances include Prescott Park Arts Festival, Palace Theatre, and Rochester Opera

Charlotte Van Ledtje

House and he’s worked with Ogunquit, the Palace Teen Company and attended Interlochen Arts Camp among other theatre groups.

Says Curtis, ““I am so excited to be working with Powerhouse Theatre Collaborative, and thrilled to be bringing the musical story of ‘The Magician’s Elephant’ to New Hampshire theatre audiences for the first time, alongside Charlotte Van Ledtje!”

Van Ledtje, a 12 year old from Durham, will play Adele. She is a dynamic young performer who has already been featured in professional productions at the Ogunquit Playhouse, including this past summer in “High Society,” at Maine State Musical Theatre, and has played Annie at both the Rochester Opera House and Argyle Theatre in Babylon, N.Y. Other more local credits include playing Matilda at the Winnepesaukee Playhouse and appearances with the Palace Theatre and Ovation Theatre Company.

Van Ledtje is excited to play Adele because “she’s brave, curious, and full of hope. I love how she believes in magic and possibility, even when things feel uncertain.”

The talented duo will be part of a cast of 56 filled with many familiar faces to the Colonial Stage with Powerhouse. Seven members of the cast will be making their Powerhouse debut! Besides Halperin, rehearsals will be led by production team members Meg King (assistant director and choreographer), Alex Hunton (vocal director), and Dana Gardner (stage manager).

The large cast will help transport you to the town of Baltese, where nothing exciting ever happens. But one day a magician (played by Andrew Gibson, Powerhouse’s Jacob Marley in “A Christmas Carol”) summons an elephant which crash lands through the roof of the Opera House and sets off a chain of events too impossible to believe, including helping Peter, a teen boy, search for his long lost younger sister.

Powerhouse has engaged Sherry Gardner to build an (almost!) life-sized elephant puppet to be operated by three puppeteers and bring an elephant through the Colonial’s elephant door on Canal Street for the first time in many years! Performances will be May 1-3 at the Colonial Theatre, with matinees on both May 2 and 3 to appeal to family audiences. Tickets are on sale now at coloniallaconia.com and powerhousenh.org.

For all the details on Powerhouse Theatre Collaborative, auditions, and other events in the 2026 season check out powerhousenh.org or email info@powerhousenh.org. There are still opportunities available for businesses to sponsor events in the 2026 season, including to sponsor the NH Premiere of “The Magician’s Elephant.”

Driver arrested after pursuit through Lakes Region communities

LACONIA — A Belmont man was arrested after a pursuit that ended with a crash in Laconia.

At 11 p.m. Friday, Jan. 23, State Trooper Thomas Seager of the Troop E barracks attempted to stop a blue Hyundai Sonata for a violation in Laconia. When the driver refused to stop, a pursuit ensued.

Troopers followed the Honda through Laconia and Gilford before returning to Laconia, where the pursuit ended after the driver crashed into a telephone pole on Bowman Street. During the pursuit, the driver struck Trooper Seager’s cruiser, causing minor damage.

The driver was taken into custody and identified as Andrew J. Decormier, 33, of Belmont. Troopers determined Decormier had a probation warrant and additionally charged him with reckless conduct with a deadly weapon, disobeying a police officer, driving after being deemed a habitual offender, and other motor vehicle offenses. Hewas held at the Belknap County Jail pending an arraignment scheduled in Laconia District Court on Monday, Jan. 26.

PETS OF THE WEEK

Meet Boudreaux!

Meet Boudreaux, or as we like to call him BooBoo, BooBoo Bear, or Mr. Lanky. He is a very tall puppy who is ready for anything. He has super smell and a bark that reminds you of a sea lion. He needs a forever home that can teach him all about potty training and how to be the best dog he can be. He uses his words to get your attention and then will crawl into your lap for a snooze. He enjoys playing with anyone willing, and would love to join you on life’s adventures.

Meet Lolo!

Lolo is a sweet, handsome boy with a heart full of love. He’s a little wary at first—understandably, after so much change—but his gentle, affectionate nature always shines through once he feels safe. Lolo is a little extra special though because he has a birth defect that impacted his leg, he’s lived with it for his whole life. It doesn’t slow him down a bit—he’s still active and curious—but he moves a bit differently, often with an adorable “army crawl” ., His leg looks a little wonky but so was Nemo’s fin! Our orange and white boy is a little insecure about it and doesn’t like to show it to just anybody so he really needs that special person to build up his confidence and let him see that its okay to be weird

Swim With A Mission awards grants to three Lakes Region veteran service organizations

REGION — Swim With A Mission (SWAM) is excited to announce the distribution of three substantial grants to Veteran Service Organizations (VSOs) in the Lakes region of New Hampshire. The total of $227,500 in funding will provide essential support to programs dedicated to improving the lives of Veterans, active-duty service members, and their families.

Camp Resilience receives $200,000 Grant
The Patriot Resilient Leader Institute, DBA, Camp Resilience is a 501(c)(3) non-profit founded in 2014 by a group of Veterans and local citizens. Since 2014, Camp Resilience has welcomed hundreds of participants to rediscover their health and wellness. The organizational leadership consists of a diverse group of individuals with backgrounds in business, military, public safety, mental health, and nonprofit sectors.

Camp Resilience recognizes that those who have served their country and communities often need a helping hand to recover and maintain their mental and physical health. By running Camp Resilience retreats for service members, Veterans, first responders, and their loved ones, Camp Resilience does its part to help those who have served bounce back in mind, body, and spirit.

Camp Resilience serves about 200 participants a year offering three and four-day retreats in the beautiful Lakes Region of New Hampshire, which provide Veterans, and in some cases their spouses/ caregivers and their families, with peer-to-peer counseling, life skills workshops, and outdoor activities.

Lakes Region Veterans Coalition receives $2,500 grant

The Lakes Region Veterans Coalition (LRVC) is comprised of local Veterans and community leaders working to implement the Together With Veterans (TWV) suicide prevention program. This program, funded by the VA Office of Rural Health, focuses on helping rural Veterans connect with their communities and access vital mental health resources.

The Together With Veterans program is a five-phase process to support rural communities in developing a local action plan to prevent Veteran suicide. The five Phases guide the community through identifying Veterans and other key partners; learning about suicide prevention and specific community strengths and needs; and developing and carrying out an effective local Veteran suicide prevention action plan.

Chris Peirce, Vice President of LRVC, shared, “In New Hampshire, Veterans make up 9 percent of the adult population. Understanding their unique culture and recognizing the signs of Veteran suicide is crucial, even though it’s a difficult topic. Encouraging people to ask the right questions and acknowledge the problem is key to reaching out and offering support.”

At Liberty CONNECTIONS receives $25,000 grant

At Liberty CONNECTIONS was founded in 2023 by Veterans, for Veterans, with the mission of helping those who have been impacted by trauma and are struggling with life’s challenges. The organization offers transformative events and retreats at independent horse farms, such as UpReach Therapeutic Equestrian Center in Goffstown, NH, and The Ladd Farm in Bridgewater, NH. These retreats are specifically designed to help Veterans, their families, and others affected by trauma reconnect with themselves, each other, and their communities. Through hands-on equine-assisted activities, participants are provided with a safe, healing space to process their experiences and promote emotional well-being.

Dr. Kathleen Roth, Founder of At Liberty CONNECTIONS, shared, “Serving in the U.S. Army for 25 years was my greatest honor, but it didn’t come without personal sacrifice. It wasn’t until years after my military retirement that I experienced a transformative equine-assisted session. This powerful healing process helped me overcome severe depression and anxiety. Now, I’m passionate about sharing this experience with other Veterans and their families, helping them find healing, connection, and a renewed sense of hope.”

SWAM’s continued commitment to local veterans

These grants reflect SWAM’s ongoing commitment to supporting Veterans in the NH Lakes region and beyond. Through its partnerships with local organizations, SWAM continues to help improve the lives of those who have served our country.

A bystander informed crews that a person and multiple dogs were still inside the home. Firefighters used the ladder to make entry and encountered heavy fire. A primary search was conducted, and no occupants or animals were located.

The bulk of the fire was knocked down using the leader line. Franklin firefighters then advanced an additional hose-line from the engine and extinguished the remaining exterior fire. Crews brought the fire under control after opening ceilings using hand tools and a chainsaw.

The fire originated within the wall where the basement wood stove chimney exited the structure. The home sustained extensive fire damage throughout the walls and ceilings and is considered a total loss. Following extinguishment,

Goodhue Boat Company announces acquisition of East Coast Flightcraft, strengthening service, boat selection

MEREDITH — Goodhue Boat Company, a family-owned and customer-focused marina group serving boaters across New England and beyond, is proud to announce the acquisition of East Coast Flightcraft, a highly respected dealership and marine service provider with deep roots in the Maine, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire boating communities.

This acquisition represents a strategic and values-driven partnership built around a shared commitment to customers, community, and a genuine passion for life on the water. East Coast Flightcraft has long been known for its knowledgeable team, strong customer relationships, and dedication to delivering exceptional boating experiences — values that closely align with Goodhue Boat Company’s mission and core principles.

“For us, this acquisition is about serving customers better — plain and simple,” said Cody Gray, COO of Goodhue Boat Company. “Boaters don’t all want the same thing, and they shouldn’t be forced into a one-size-fits-all solution. By expanding our portfolio of premium boat brands and services, we’re better equipped to help each customer find the boat that truly works for their lifestyle, their family, and the way they want to enjoy the water.”

Customers of East Coast Flightcraft can expect continuity in the areas that matter most. The existing team will remain in place, day-to-day operations will continue without interruption, and the same trusted service and local expertise will remain at the forefront. At the same time, customers will gain access to Goodhue Boat Company’s expanded resources, broader brand lineup, and growing network of marina locations and boating services.

The acquisition allows Goodhue Boat Company to further invest in enhanced service capabilities, long-term customer support, and a wider selection of boats designed to meet the diverse needs of today’s boaters — from watersports and cruising to family recreation and relaxation.

Goodhue Boat Company looks forward to building on East Coast Flightcraft’s strong foundation and continuing to help families create lasting memories on the water for years to come.
