Alton Rotary, PMHS FBLA unite to support student advancing to National Leadership Conference

ALTON — The Alton Rotary Club has joined with the Prospect Mountain High School (PMHS)

Charges filed in connection with teen's 2025 death at Lake Winnepesaukee

GILFORD — The New Hampshire State Police are providing an update on the investigation into the June 20, 2025 death of a 17-year-old boy at Lake Winnepesaukee.

At 12:48 p.m. on Friday, June 20, 2025, the New Hampshire State Police (NHSP) – Marine Patrol received a 9-1-1 call reporting a person had gone into the water and failed to resurface in Lake Winnepesaukee. The incident occurred in the area known as the "Broads," near Diamond and Rattlesnake Islands.

Marine Patrol officers responded and located a boat with three women on board. They reported that a 17-year-old boy entered the water to recover a bag that had fallen overboard and, due to rough water conditions caused by strong winds, the teen appeared to struggle to swim, eventually submerged, and did not resurface.

An initial search was conducted by members of Marine Patrol, the Gilford Fire Department, and the Alton Fire Department, but efforts to locate the teen were unsuccessful. The New Hampshire Fish & Game Dive Unit was called to assist with the search, and at 7:02 p.m., the dive team found and recovered the teen's body. Marine Patrol was also assisted by members of the Gilford Police Department.

Following an extensive investigation, on April 17 of this year, Buffy Ann Doyle, 50, of Nashua, was indicted by a Belknap County grand jury in connection with the teen's death. The indictments charged Doyle with felony negligent homicide, two counts of witness tampering, and falsifying physical evidence.

According to the indictments, Doyle is alleged to have caused the teen's death when she acted negligently by providing the teen with alcohol and allowing them to enter Lake Winnepesaukee while knowing the teen was intoxicated.

Doyle waived arraignment on the charges, which had been scheduled for yesterday, Tuesday, May 19, 2026, in Belknap County Superior Court. She has entered a not guilty plea to all four charges and was released on personal recognizance. Doyle is scheduled to appear in court on June 26.

The investigation was conducted by the New Hampshire State Police Major Crime Unit with assistance from Marine Patrol, the New Hampshire Fish and Game Department, Gilford Fire-Rescue, Alton Fire Department, and the Nashua Police Department.

Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) chapter to support PMHS student Stockton McKnight, who earned first place with distinction at the New Hampshire FBLA State Leadership Conference. McKnight received a near perfect score in the Sales Presentation event, a competitive seven minute demonstration requiring strong business knowledge and professional communication skills.

McKnight's top performance qualifies him to represent New Hampshire at the FBLA National Leadership Conference, taking place June 28-July 2 in San Antonio, Texas.

This year's state conference brought together more than 500 students from 27 chapters across New Hampshire. Only 30 students statewide advanced to the national level. The National Leadership Conference is the largest gathering of FBLA students in the world, drawing tens of thousands of competitors and educators.

To help offset McKnight's travel and conference expenses, Alton Rotary and PMHS FBLA are holding a community raffle featuring a gaming desk and chair as the prize. Tickets are $5 each or five for $20, and will be sold by Rotary members at various Alton locations during May and June and by students at PMHS. The winner will be drawn on Monday, June 22.

Supporting McKnight's journey on the national level aligns with Rotary's focus on education, youth leadership development and community service. The club noted that FBLA's mission—to prepare students for leadership, service, and career success—reflects values shared by Rotary and proven in McKnight's achievements. For more ticket information contact Duane Hamond at 603-569-3745.

The order of play was a little bit different due to AP testing at Gilford, so the first three match-

Gilford welcomes new Town Administrator

GILFORD — The Gilford Board of Selectmen is pleased to announce the hiring of Kris Kelley as the new Town Administrator, effective Aug. 16. He will be replacing Scott Dunn, who is retiring as Town Administrator after having served in that role for the past eighteen years.

Kelley is currently the Gilford Police Chief, having been appointed Chief in May of 2022. Kelley began working as a Patrol Officer for the Gilford Police Department in 1999 and has since worked his way up the ranks while serving as a School Resource Officer, Detective, Corporal, Lieutenant, and Deputy Police Chief. During this time, he also graduated from the FBI National Academy. He is planning to retire as Chief effective June 30.

Kelley was selected from a pool of 16n candidates. The process involved an initial review of all candidates by a citizen search panel that narrowed the field to six finalists, each of whom was then interviewed. The selectmen then met with the top four candidates in the presence of the Search Committee members. At the conclusion of the second round of interviews, the Selectmen decided unanimously upon Kelley as the new Town Administrator.

Chan Eddy, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, noted the board was pleasantly surprised with Kelley's performance during the selection process, commenting, "We certainly did not anticipate hiring an internal candidate when the process began. Although we were very familiar with Mr. Kelley's leadership abilities, his integrity, work ethic, and the professional growth he has shown over the years, we were ultimately sold on his passion for the Gilford community and the people who live here. His knowledge of Gilford projects and procedures gave him a leg up on the competition, and we are optimistic that his potential for doing great things will come to fruition over time."

Kelley resides in Gilmannton with his wife Meredith and has two children still living at home. His oldest son is currently serving in the U.S. Navy. He has one granddaughter and likes to spend his spare time working on the land on his farm. He also enjoys fishing and hunting but hopes to someday hone his skills on the golf course. In the meantime, however, Kelley is very excited about this new opportunity and looks forward to hitting the ground running after spending a few weeks in transitional training with the outgoing Town Administrator.

Pittsfield woman pleads guilty to role in drug trafficking case

CONCORD — Shannon Halloran, 35, of Pittsfield pleaded guilty last week in federal court to one count of Conspiracy to Distribute and Possess with Intent to Distribute a Controlled Substance, United States Attorney Erin Creegan announces.

According to court documents and statements, in late 2023, law enforcement agencies began investigating a drug-trafficking organization (DTO) operating in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. During the course of the conspiracy, the DTO trafficked multiple kilograms of methamphetamine. Halloran was a re-distributor for the DTO.

The charging statute provides for a sentence of not less than 10 years and up to life in federal prison, at least five years of supervised release, and a maximum fine of $10,000,000. U.S. District Court Judge Joseph N. Laplante scheduled sentencing for Aug. 31.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation Major Offender Task Force led the investigation with valuable assistance from the Drug Enforcement Administration, Strafford County Sheriff's Office, and Boston Police Department. Assistant U.S. Attorney Yasir Sadat is prosecuting the case.

This prosecution is part of the Homeland Security Task Force (HSTF) initiative established by Executive Order 14159, Protecting the American People Against Invasion. The HSTF is a whole-of-government partnership dedicated to eliminating criminal cartels, foreign gangs, transnational criminal organizations, and human smuggling and trafficking rings operating in the United States and abroad. Through historic interagency collaboration, the HSTF directs the full might of United States law enforcement towards identifying, investigating, and prosecuting the full spectrum of crimes committed by these organizations, which have long fueled violence and instability within our borders. In performing this work, the HSTF places special emphasis on investigating and prosecuting those engaged in child trafficking or other crimes involving children. The HSTF further utilizes all available tools to prosecute and remove the most violent criminal aliens from the United States. HSTF New Hampshire comprises agents and officers from FBI, HSI, IRS, DEA, ATF, USMS, and DSS with the prosecution being led by the United States Attorney's Office for the District of New Hampshire.

SALMON PRESS, THURSDAY, MAY 28, 2026

Helping young people aim higher

There is something especially encouraging about seeing a young person from a small-town community step onto a much larger stage through hard work, talent, and determination. That is exactly what Prospect Mountain High School student Stockton McKnight has done by earning a place at the FBLA National Leadership Conference in Texas after an outstanding performance at the state level.

In communities like Alton, achievements such as this matter for reasons far beyond a single competition. They remind us that leadership, ambition, and excellence are growing right here in our local schools. They also remind us that opportunities for young people often depend on the willingness of a community to stand behind them.

McKnight's accomplishment is no small feat. Competing against students from across New Hampshire and earning first place with distinction in a demanding Sales Presentation event speaks not only to his communication skills, but also to his confidence, preparation, and professionalism. Reaching the national conference places him among a very select group of students statewide.

Programs like Future Business Leaders of America do more than build resumes. They teach students how to think clearly under pressure, present ideas effectively, solve problems, and interact professionally with others. These are lifelong skills that serve students whether they go into business, education, healthcare, public service, or skilled trades.

Just as important is the example being set by the Alton Rotary Club and the local FBLA chapter. Their partnership to help raise funds for McKnight's trip reflects the best kind of community support: practical, encouraging, and invested in the next generation. Sometimes people talk about supporting youth in broad terms, but this is what real support looks like. It is neighbors buying raffle tickets. It is local organizations stepping up quietly to help a student pursue an opportunity that might otherwise be financially difficult.

Small towns have always depended on civic organizations, schools, and volunteers working together. Rotary clubs, booster organizations, PTAs, and student groups help create the kind of communities where young people feel seen and encouraged. These efforts may not always generate major headlines, but their long-term impact is significant.

The truth is that many students today face tremendous pressure and uncertainty. Success stories deserve attention because they offer a reminder that dedication still matters and that positive opportunities are still available to students willing to work for them. They also help younger students see what is possible for themselves.

There is also value in recognizing accomplishments that are not athletic championships or academic test scores alone. Public speaking, business leadership, and presentation skills are increasingly important in modern careers, and programs like FBLA help students develop those strengths early.

As McKnight prepares to represent New Hampshire on the national stage, the community has every reason to feel proud. Regardless of the final results in Texas, reaching this point is already an impressive achievement.

The upcoming raffle may seem like a simple fundraiser, but it represents something larger. It reflects a town choosing to invest in one of its young people. Communities grow stronger when they celebrate accomplishment, encourage ambition, and help students reach beyond what they thought possible.

For many young people, support from adults outside their immediate family can make a lasting difference. Sometimes it starts with a teacher, a mentor, a coach, or a civic organization saying, "We believe in you."

That message still matters greatly.

Limitations

I'm once again sitting down at my local auto mechanic's shop while he analyzes the problem with my dragging front brake. I figured that it was probably a stuck caliper, but he informed me that it could be the flex line fraying on the inside, causing a one-way valve type of action. Not knowing this, I, being the home mechanic that I used to be, would have just replaced the caliper, and after going through all that wonderful expenditure of time and materials, would find that the problem persisted, like the others he mentioned. I'm glad I've retired from being a back yard grease monkey.

I still do things like change my own oil. I actually did it on one of my vehicles this morning. I intended to do another, but the rain came early. That's what happens when you don't have a garage. Now I'll have to get all the oil changing stuff out and risk getting all oily again some other day.

I actually brought four five-gallon jugs of used engine oil with me for him to dump into the oil tank for his garage heat next winter. For me, it's a little less under the porch house clutter. With the price of heating oil today, I should get a discount.

The first time I changed my oil was when I was in college. Kids with cars would just dump it in the lower part of the parking lot. It would run through the underbrush down to the river. It seemed like a nasty thing to do so I never did it again. But that was my introduction to being a home mechanic. I'm sure that the statute if limitations is up for any consequences from the environmental protection agency for this act I committed in 1973.

I'm sorry for not thinking of the environment, but have you ever seen what it's like in places where there are congested collections of boats? It seems like every boat leaks something. It all adds up. And add to that all the stuff that comes out of all the supposed non-existent pipes that dump stuff into the water from every town, city, or large home that is lucky enough to have access to the water. It's pretty disgusting all that we discharge into our environment for it to take care of. All they seem to ever complain about is carbon dioxide, which is at almost the lowest level necessary for plants to grow. They want us to reduce it!? More CO2, happier plant life. Go figure.

They are starting to understand the repercussions of plastic. For years the only problem I've heard about has been sea creatures getting caught up in it. Now they're finding tiny bits of it everywhere. We're inundated with the stuff.

The ultraviolet light from the sun seems to be the only thing that breaks it down. Outside of burning it that is. But it's a very slow process. Leave a plastic grocery bag in a sunny spot and it will tear apart when you go to use it. But it will still be bagish. It takes a lot more sun to break it down into the fine powder we're talking about.

I was thinking the other day, when I was scraping my peanut butter out of its plastic container, that I was scratching little bits of plastic onto my sandwich along with the spread. That was for certain. People have warned me for years that it was dangerous for me to be using recycled pancake syrup containers as water bottles. I never scrape them,

I had retired one of my very old pull top water bottles because I had worn out the top, it no longer held itself down, resulting in probable leaks. I figured that somewhere in my house had to be a spare top. Last week going through the bottom of the kitchen junk drawer, I found one. I put it somewhere where I knew it was while I located the bottle. After I found the bottle, I couldn't remember where I put the top. It's an endless dilemma.

Today was my first day bringing my new, old, pull top water bottle with me to school. This one doesn't have a visible sell by date, but I know that these went out sometime in the nineties. It's so nice to once again be able to shoot water into my mouth.

The men who wave from tractors

I was driving through a back road the other day when an older fellow on a tractor lifted two fingers from the steering wheel and gave me the sort of small wave that seems to exist only in rural places.

Not a full enthusiastic greeting. Not a dramatic arm swing. Just two fingers raised for half a second as if to say: "Yep. I see you there."

Naturally, I waved back. And it got me thinking about how many different kinds of waves there are in New Hampshire.

There's the snowblower wave, usually performed one-handed while the other hand hangs onto the machine like a sailor riding out a storm. There's the lake wave, where two passing boats acknowledge each other with the quiet dignity of old naval vessels. There's the pickup-truck steering-wheel lift, which somehow communicates an entire conversation without anybody slowing down.

Then there's the tractor wave.

That one might be my favorite.

Partly because tractors move at a speed where a man still has time to notice the world around him.

You don't see many angry people on tractors.

Sunburned? Certainly. Exhausted? Frequently. Concerned about weather? Constantly. But rarely angry.

Maybe because tractors force patience onto a person. Nothing happens quickly on one. You can't rush haying season. You can't hurry muddy ground. You can't bully a New Hampshire spring into cooperating before it's good and ready.

A tractor teaches acceptance whether you want the lesson or not.

I think that's why the men and women who spend time on them often seem calmer than the rest of us.

Now, I should be clear here: I am not a farmer. The closest I've ever come to agricultural greatness was unsuccessfully attempting tomatoes one summer that ended with exactly three edible vegetables and a squirrel looking extremely satisfied with himself.

Still, I admire people who work the land.

Especially in New Hampshire.

This isn't Iowa. Nobody's making life easy on farmers around here. Our fields are rocky, our growing season is short, and half the state appears to sit at a forty-five-degree angle. Yet every year people still climb onto tractors before sunrise and somehow coax food out of stubborn ground.

There's something noble about that.

And something steady.

A lot of modern life feels temporary now. Businesses appear and disappear overnight. Restaurants come and go. Entire industries seem to change every six months. One minute everybody's excited about some new app and the next minute nobody remembers it existed.

But tractors remain wonderfully unconcerned with trends.

A tractor from 1974 still does exactly what it did in 1974.

It starts eventually.

It rattles alarmingly.

It smells faintly of gasoline, dirt, and old coffee.

And it gets the job done.

I respect that.

My son laughs at me because I always slow down when I pass old barns or farm fields. "Dad," he says, "you're looking at dirt."

But it's not dirt I'm admiring.

It's continuity.

There's comfort in seeing people still doing practical things with their hands in a world increasingly dominated by screens and passwords and mysterious software updates nobody understands.

I sometimes think younger generations have inherited a strange burden. They're expected to live enormous portions of life online while also somehow remaining grounded in the real world. That can't be easy.

Meanwhile, a person on a tractor remains entirely tethered to reality.

The weather matters. The soil matters. The machine matters. The work matters.

No amount of arguing on the internet can change whether rain is coming.

Maybe that's why those little tractor waves feel meaningful to me. They remind me there are still people out there quietly doing necessary things without demanding applause for it.

People mowing fields.

Fixing fences.

Planting crops.

Pulling stones out of the ground for the nine-thousandth time since the Eisenhower administration.

There's a humility to it.

And New Hampshire has always done humility pretty well.

We're not much for showing off around here. The wealthiest fellow in town may still buy coffee wearing an old sweatshirt with duct tape on the sleeves. A person can own three hundred acres and still apologize for "not having much."

That's part of the culture I hope never disappears.

Not the modesty itself, necessarily. Just the understanding that a person's value usually comes from usefulness rather than attention.

The men and women on tractors seem to understand that instinctively.

They don't need to announce themselves.

They simply wave as they pass by.

And somehow that small gesture still says quite a lot.

Building Smarter in the Lakes Region

BY DONALD CHAPMAN,
President & Co-Founder,
Strong Tree Engineering

Lake Winnepesaukee and the surrounding Lakes Region are among the most special places in New Hampshire. For many families, these lakes, forests, and small towns are woven into generations of memories - summer cottages, boating, hiking, local businesses, and a way of life that feels uniquely New England.

As more people continue to discover the beauty of the region, demand for housing improvements, renovations, additions, septic upgrades, and new development continues to grow. That growth creates opportunity for homeowners, contractors, local businesses, and the regional economy. But it also creates responsibility.

Recent reports regarding increased cyanobacteria blooms in Lake Winnepesaukee have raised understandable concerns about water quality and environmental pressure throughout the region. While there is no single cause, experts point to a combination of factors including stormwater runoff, aging septic systems, fertilizer use, shoreline disturbance, and increasing development density.

The good news is that growth and environmental protection do not have to be opposing forces.

With proper engineering, planning, permitting, and construction practices, homeowners and developers can improve their properties while still protecting the lakes, wetlands, and natural systems that make this area so valuable in the first place.

At Strong Tree Engineering (STE), we believe responsible development starts with thoughtful design. Whether it's a septic system replacement, a waterfront renovation, drainage improvements, a subdivision in an undeveloped area, or a commercial project, every property exists within a larger environmental ecosystem. Small decisions matter.

This means:

- Designing stormwater systems that properly manage runoff
- Supporting septic upgrades that improve long-term environmental performance
- Preserving natural vegetation and shoreline buffers where practical
- Helping clients navigate local and state permitting requirements efficiently and responsibly
- Planning projects with both property value, as well as community and environmental sustainability in mind

As engineers, surveyors, and environmental professionals, we also understand that regulations can sometimes feel overwhelming for homeowners. Our role is not simply to "check boxes", but to guide clients through the process in a practical, solutions-oriented way that balances project goals with environmental stewardship.

Personally, this mission is deeply meaningful to me. I spent much of my childhood summers on Lake Winnepesaukee at my Nana's cottage in Moultonborough, and those experiences helped inspire me to co-found Strong Tree Engineering. Protecting the character and health of the Lakes Region is not just professional — it's personal. It's one of the reasons we opened our office in Ossipee. We believe local presence matters. We believe communities benefit when experienced professionals live, work, and invest in the areas they serve.

New Hampshire can continue to grow and prosper while still preserving the natural beauty that defines it. But doing so requires thoughtful planning, responsible investment, and a commitment to building smarter.

The Lakes Region deserves nothing less.

Donald Chapman is President & Co-Founder of Strong Tree Engineering, a civil engineering, land surveying, and environmental consulting firm serving New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Connecticut.

Alton BOS Update

BY RICHARD SHEA

Alton Board of Selectmen

ALTON — The Alton Board of Selectmen's meeting on May 12 covered a wide range of local issues. Here is a brief review of the major items:

-The board voted to authorize repairs to several monuments in the Old Riverside Cemetery which had toppled over, likely due to harsh winter conditions. Included would be repairs to cracks in the entry area walls.

-A generous donation from the Ginny Douglas family to the Alton Garden Club was accepted. The funds will be used for the purchase of azaleas for Ginny Douglas Park. This should complete the park plantings program.

-The board voted to schedule public hearing for the purpose of accepting the donation from the Alton Youth League of a replacement fence for the "Green Monster" wall at Jones Field. The original wall has been in place for many years and has deteriorated. The proposed replacement is a vinyl wall 150 feet long supported by steel posts. It is manufactured by Sports Netting Systems of Granbury, Texas. The system appears to be well designed using materials which should withstand New Hampshire weather. Installation would be by the manufacturer, with existing wall removal by our Public Works Department. The total project cost will be $73,407, paid entirely by the Youth League. This is an extraordinary amount of money raised by a small town and speaks volumes about how Alton supports youth sports.

-It was reported that a regional seaplane owners' group has approached the town about the possibility of establishing a seaplane base in Alton Bay. There had been such a facility years ago, but it was discontinued. This proposal is in the exploratory phase, with the town studying possible locations. The Board of Selectmen was supportive of pursuing the opportunity if a suitable site can be identified, public support is received, and the extensive list of required permits can be addressed.

-The board reviewed and approved the bid document for replacing the town hall roof, with considerable discussion regarding materials, application methods and warranties. It was recognized that final determination of work scope will depend on the actual condition of the roof once the existing shingles are removed, and that significant effort will be required to ensure the replacement is accomplished per the manufacturer's specifications, with a full 30-year warranty.

-The board decided to award the bid for the second Roberts Cove Road bridge replacement without obtaining three bids. This was justified by the exceptional performance of the proposed contractor on two recent town bridges, both for schedule and cost. Considerable discussion took place, with some Selectmen uncomfortable with the bid waiver. It was decided to proceed given the bridge's condition.

-The town is working with New Hampshire Electric Cooperative to determine pricing for the poles necessary to reinstall the flashing yellow light at the intersection of Rand Hill Road and Route 11 in Alton Bay. In addition to cost, there is an issue with pole location.

Several measures have been discussed with the State DOT, but their only solution is full 4-way stop signs. This could improve safety, but would likely lead to significant traffic issues, especially during the tourist season.

-It was reported that the Mount Washington dock work is more extensive than first thought, and likely will not be completed this season. Mount Washington may be able to dock at the existing pier under favorable wind conditions, but this has yet to be determined.

-During the public comment period, the board was criticized for failing to make a convincing case for supporting the upcoming budget, particularly during the Deliberative Session on May 5.

-The Town Administrator advised the board that the town now has 18 unfilled positions in the town staff. It is becoming increasingly difficult to maintain services, especially those involving public safety. The Board agreed that every effort must be made to gain voter support for the special Budget election on June 6.

Author's Note: This article is offered as part of an effort to better inform Alton residents about the activities of town government. I am not authorized to speak for the Board of Selectmen, and this article represents only my impressions and views.

The show originally premiered in 2018 at the Matrix Theatre in Los Angeles.

GMS students put finishing touches on “School of Rock — Young Performers Edition”

GILFORD — Get ready to rock as Gilford Middle School proudly presents “School of Rock – Young Performers Edition,” a high-energy musical packed with incredible student talent, unforgettable music, and a powerful message about the importance of the arts in education.

Performances will take place at Gilford High School on May 28–30 at 7 p.m., with an additional matinee performance on May 30 at 2 p.m.

Directed by Matt Demko, the production also features music direction by Aiden Lamont, set design by Anthony Eldridge, costumes by Karen Madon, and choreography by Grace Laurent.

Leading the cast is 8th grader Ryder McCall as Dewey Finn, with twin sisters Sophia Lyman and Victoria Lyman alternating the role of Rosalie Mullins. They are backed by 36 talented Gilford Middle School students in supporting roles, along with an impressive 25-person technical crew made up of students in grades 5–8.

Filled with humor, heart, and classic rock hits, School of Rock tells the story of a struggling musician who poses as a substitute teacher and inspires a group of students to discover their confidence, creativity, and passion through music.

Director Demko believes one of the show’s most meaningful themes is the importance of keeping the arts alive and accessible in schools.

“One of the reasons this show connects so deeply with audiences is because it highlights how important the arts are for students,” said Demko. “For some kids, theatre, music, and art classes are the reason they look forward to coming to school each day. The arts give students a place to be creative, express themselves, build confidence, and learn in ways that are different from a traditional classroom setting. ‘School of Rock’ celebrates those students and reminds us why arts education matters so much.”

Audiences can expect energetic performances, live music, big laughs, and a cast of young performers who bring tremendous passion and enthusiasm to the stage. The production showcases not only the students’ musical and acting abilities, but also the teamwork, dedication, and confidence they have developed throughout the rehearsal process.

Whether you are a fan of classic rock music, musical theatre, or simply want to support local student performers, this is a show you will not want to miss.

Tickets are available now at gilford.ludus.com/200528867.

Come support the talented students of Gilford Middle School and experience a musical that is loud, inspiring, heartfelt, and full of rock-and-roll fun!
