Humane ways to address uninvited garden guests

A beautiful garden is a wonder to behold. After a homeowner toils in the yard amending the soil and planting, it's imperative that a garden be given the best chance to thrive. However, the natural wildlife that shares the space might see that newly cultivated land as the perfect place to enjoy an easy meal or gather nesting materials.

Every gardener likely has a tale about chipmunks, squirrels, woodchucks, and rabbits making nuisances of themselves in the garden. Many of these animals seem to have a taste for bulbs and other plants, which can wreak havoc on what gardeners carefully plan and plant. Finding balance so everyone can get along may require patience and some well-crafted deterrents.

· Provide food elsewhere. Try luring the animals away to another area of the yard where the meal is even easier to come by. Squirrels and chipmunks love to dig and bury their caches, so a far-off corner with freshly tilled soil along with some berries, nuts and additional treats might attract them to that area instead of a newly established garden.

· Install fencing. While chipmunks and squirrels can scale fences easily, such acrobatics may be more challenging for lumbering groundhogs or rabbits. Make digging more difficult by laying chicken wire fencing on top of the soil and stake it down in some areas.

· Use a scent deterrent. Some animals are put off by the smell of other animals or aromas they find unpleasant. The capsaicin in red pepper and cayenne can be off-putting to these animals, so sprinkling it around the garden may ward off pests but not harm the plants. Just reapply after each rain. Similarly, some people have had luck using peppermint. Plant mint around where you do not want the squirrels and chipmunks. Since mint can grow fast and become invasive, it's best to plant in containers and move accordingly.

· Use water or movement. Animals can be scared away if they are sprayed with water, so a well-aimed water gun can chase away the animals when a gardener is able to stand watch. It may be easier to set up pinwheels that blow in the wind, or hang aluminum pie plates or old compact discs from strings near the garden, which may deter animals from getting too close.

· Build a greenhouse. When dealing with tenacious squirrels and chipmunks, the only solution may be to block off all access. Utilize an enclosed greenhouse for the garden, which will keep animals out and even extend the growing season.

Many animals can become nuisances in a yard, particularly in and around gardens. Some humane solutions could remedy the situation.

Laconia-Gilford Lions to hold electronic waste collection day

GILFORD — Got an old computer collecting dust in your closet, or a broken air conditioner sitting on the back porch? What do you do with such items when you replace them? Everything from laptops, phones and computers to TVs cost a fortune to haul away.

Turn all that junk over to the Laconia-Gilford Lions Club during their Electronic Waste Collection Day fundraising event which will be held on Saturday, April 12, in the Cinemas 8 parking lot in Gilford (9 Old Lake Shore Rd.) from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Note: this is a new location as of a few years ago. For a small disposal fee, not only will we take your old electronic items off your hands, we will recycle them. The disposal charge is almost always less than the prices at local transfer stations. Cash or checks will be accepted but not debit or credit cards.

Just bring your electronics to Cinemas 8 parking lot, 9 Old Lakeshore Road in Gilford on Saturday April 12, between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Lions Club members will even help you unload them! You do not have to be a resident of Laconia or Gilford to take advantage of this fundraiser - it is open to everyone.

Items you may want

to consider dropping off are laptops, PC towers, PC LCD monitors, servers, CD/DVD players, camcorders, AV equipment, VCRs, speakers, copiers, faxes, scanners, printers, phones (land and cell), phone systems, humidifiers and computer accessories (all $5 unless very large).

In addition, we will also take microwaves, air conditioners, dehumidifiers (all $10), CRT monitors less than 50 lbs. and TVs less than 25 inches ($20), TVs 26 inches and larger ($30). For TVs needing more than one person to lift or CRT monitors over 50 lbs., the item will be weighed on site and the price determined. Anything with a cord not listed will also be accepted.

We are also now accepting Teflon pots and pans for $1.

You cannot drop off: smoke detectors, oils, paints, thinners, batteries (except car batteries), tires, items containing mercury such as fluorescent and CFL light bulbs or thermometers, capacitors, ballasts, or any other hazardous waste.

Don't miss this opportunity or you'll be storing these things another year - "Don't throw it out, Recycle it!" You'll not only help the environment by disposing of your unwanted electronics responsibly but also help the Lions, the largest service organization in the world, raise funds to meet pressing needs in our community: eye exams, eye glasses, hearing aids, food pantries, college scholarships, holiday food baskets for needy families, youth sports programs, are just a few of the local charitable organizations that we assist. All that for a disposal fee that, in most cases, is less than the cost at local transfer stations.

The Laconia-Gilford Lions Club appreciates your help with their Electronic Waste Collection Day fundraising event and wishes to thank in advance everyone who contributes to making a real difference in our community. This project has been officially sanctioned by the Green Sanctuary Committee of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Laconia.

Look for the yellow Lions' vests on Saturday, April 12, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Gilford Cinemas 8 parking lot. No matter how large or small, every item adds up!

Did you know?

Pickleball is the fastest growing sport in the United States. The Sports & Fitness Industry Association reports the popularity of pickleball has grown by 223.5 percent over the last three years, with participation increasing across all age groups. The average age of a pickleball player is now 35. Pickleball attracts players for a number of reasons. In addition to promoting socialization and serving as a generally entertaining activity, pickleball offers a number of health benefits. Anytime Fitness says that pickleball is a great cardiovascular workout. It is estimated that a pickleball game can burn up to 600 calories per hour.

Pickleball also helps to improve lung function and can strengthen the heart. A 2018 study published in the International Journal of Research in Exercise Physiology found playing pickleball may lower the risk of heart disease by positively modifying risk factors like blood pressure and cholesterol levels. Since pickleball is a fast-paced game, it may help improve cognitive function and memory recall due to the quick thinking the game requires. Also, because pickleball is played on a smaller court than a regulation tennis court, it can be easier on players' joints since it doesn't require covering as much ground.

We Will NOT be Undersold

Identity politics is exhausting, and misses the point

Somewhere along the way, we were convinced that being politically aware means picking a side and sticking to it no matter what. Red team, blue team. Us vs. them. You're either all in or you're out. Here's the thing no one wants to admit unless you're an elected official, no one actually cares what "side" you're on.

Your neighbor doesn't care if you vote left or right — they care if you help them dig out after a snowstorm. Your community doesn't benefit from your party loyalty, it benefits when you show up, vote on the issues that matter, and take action that improves real lives.

This performative, party-first mindset we've fallen into is exhausting. Frankly, it's childish. Political parties were never supposed to be tribal identities, they were supposed to be tools. Temporary alliances to move policies forward. Instead, we've turned them into something resembling sports teams, where people root for their side no matter how bad the playbook gets.

What if we stripped away the party labels altogether? What if we voted on the issues themselves instead of accepting whatever bundle of policies a party wraps in its packaging? Most people don't fit neatly into one ideological box and pretending we do has only divided us more.

We should be holding elected officials accountable, not treating them like mascots. We should be debating ideas, not defending party lines like we're in some playground argument. And we should stop letting political branding override personal thinking.

Want to be a true patriot? Read up, show up and stop picking sides as though we're all choosing a dodgeball team. Vote like it's about the issues. Because it is. And like your own future, and that of the generations that will follow you, depends on it. Because it does.

LETTERS FROM EDWIN

Functions

After the grueling assault of two weeks of spring type weather, all the ski trails have disappeared from not only my house, but at the Nordic center too. This makes sense because my house is at the same altitude above sea level, separated by only 21 miles. The only white stuff remains in piles pushed by plows or fallen from metal roofs. It's now officially mud season.

Driving out the driveway this morning, there was that characteristic "drag" as your wheels were squishing their way through slop instead of rolling easily across a hard surface. It's still not very deep yet, but we all know what's coming. The frost that lies insulated beneath the surface is thawing up from the bottom as well as down from the top. Until it's gone, no water will penetrate through. I can expect a much greater drag when arriving home tonight after today's rain.

Needless to say, I've probably skied my last for this season. Friday after work, I headed out onto what was left up on the mountain and made it up to the higher country that still had some reasonable coverage, but it too was showing thin spots. The end was near. I was supposed to work there today, but it's closed for the season.

Wishing I could sleep another hour, I got up after a 20-minute snooze knowing that I wouldn't have to light the wood stove. A springtime luxury. The phone rang and it was the robot inviting me to come and sub, so here I am, sitting behind a teacher's desk as the kids hide their cell phones and not even attempting to be studious. Summer vacation is already in the air.

First period, I went over to the front of the class, gave the teachers instructions for the day, took attendance, and spouted my desire not to see any cell phones. Sitting right in front of my desk, there sat a student who obviously was so distracted on his cell phone to not have heard anything I just said. I walked over to him and glanced down at what he was doing, he didn't even notice my presents. I switched on some hysterical laughter and surprised the heck out of him. Made him jump. He put it away. At least till the end of class. These kids never know what to expect from Mr. T.

On the way home, I stopped to do a little repair and as I turned around, my tires sank down into the lawn next to their driveway. It's definitely time to switch to mud season mode. Stay on pavement if you can, and when in mud, keep going.

Growing up in a city, I never had the opportunity to experience this phenomenon. Almost fifty years ago I moved to a New Hampshire farmhouse that was a quarter mile away from the nearest pavement. The first spring was an eye opener. That nice dirt driveway transformed into an obstacle course. This was true country living. Picture images of wagon trains crossing the great plains in the rain. Endless tire ruts.

Another day, another mechanical communication with the robot. I'm now handing out Geometry study sheets. They're working on congruent triangles. I remember those. They informed me that they are actually required to do proofs. Something that some teachers totally disregard. My teacher was totally into proofs.

It all just clicked with me. How to construct a logical argument. That class was probably my only A+ grade ever.

After passing out the Algebra work sheets, one of the students asked me to go to the little treat store where the kids purchase their caffeine, sweets, and other desirable goodies. I said yes but that he needed to work on the sheets when he got back. He informed me that this was just busy work as they had a test on this stuff last week. What's a sub to do?

The last period class lucked out. They had a quiz. It was on functions. I believe that the math standards require everyone to know about such things, but seriously, this group would be better off learning about balancing check books, understanding loans and mortgages, and how compounding interest can work for you or against you. How about running a business, or life's finances. Investing? I may be pessimistic, but I can't see any of these kids ever needing to use algebra.

Letters to the Editor

Final goodbye to a longtime friend

To the Editor:

It was with great sadness that I bid my friend of over 20 years good-bye.

Sarah Silk touched so many lives, which was revealed at her celebration of life.

All of us knew of our own relationship with her, but when we got together we found out that she was so much more than we each knew.

Sarah and I worked on many projects together. I helped her at the street fair barn in Wolfboro, and she helped me sort & roll fabric for the Belknap Quilters in Laconia.

Our biggest project was teaching 4th -6th graders to sew. Ossipee Elementary has an after school program that is open to all students.

Teachers work with students on homework assignments. The students get a healthy snack, and then they join a club of their choosing. Sarah's club was "Sew Sleepy" teaching students to sew. I worked with Sarah for over 10 years at this club. We spent many hours outside of the time we worked with the kids. It is a great option for students who would otherwise be unsupervised after school. Even without Sew Sleepy I hope this program continues to thrive, and be a great help to many working parents.

I miss my quilting friend. RIP, Sarah.

The secret of Socrates

Picture this: a man in a suit, contracts in hand, marching down a hallway like he's heading into battle.

He swings open the office door, eyes locked on his business partner. He's angry. He's certain. He's ready to set the record straight.

"This is outrageous," he says, slamming the folder on the desk. "You agreed to these terms. You're backing out now?"

The partner, calm but resolute, folds his hands. "No, I didn't agree to that."

"Yes, you did," the man in the suit snapped.

"No, I didn't," his partner replied, calm as ever.

The conversation spirals. The angrier the businessman gets, the firmer his partner digs in. No progress. No compromise. A Stalemate; nowhere to go. And that was it—just one word, over and over: No.

When the man walks out, nothing changes except his blood pressure.

Now pause here. Let's talk about what just happened.

The problem wasn't the disagreement. The problem was the approach. He came in swinging—accusation first, challenge second. He backed the other person into a corner. And people don't make deals when they feel cornered. They defend themselves. They harden.

The second someone says "no," it's like concrete drying. Fast. Solid. Tough to crack.

Dale Carnegie called this The Secret of Socrates in "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

He wrote: "In talking with people, don't begin by discussing the things on which you differ. Begin by emphasizing—and keep on emphasizing—the things on which you agree... Get the other person saying 'yes, yes' at the outset. Keep your opponent, if possible, from saying 'no.'"

Socrates mastered this. He didn't argue. He asked questions. Obvious ones. Undeniable ones. Questions that showed both sides were aligned. Only differing in the method. One yes, then another. And slowly, the tension faded. The resistance dropped. The conversation shifted. They weren't on opposite sides anymore. They were on the same page.

Let's come back to our world.

Instead of walking into a room with fire and a point to prove, try starting with this: "You want what's best for the team, right?" "You care about this project like I do, right?" "You want this to work."

Get agreement on the big picture before diving into the details. Because once someone's in "yes mode," they're far more likely to stay there.

The truth is, "no" is more than a word—it's a wall. And once it's up good luck getting through. But "yes" is a bridge. It connects people. It opens doors.

Now, picture a good salesman talking to a potential customer—not the pushy kind, but the thoughtful, sharp kind.

He doesn't start with, "So, are you ready to buy?" He starts with questions so obvious they're effortless to answer: "You're looking for something reliable, right?" "Yes." "You want to make sure you're getting the best value for your money?" "Yes." "And I'm guessing you don't want to waste time shopping around forever." "Exactly."

Three yeses, right out of the gate!

What just happened? The customer started nodding—not just physically, but mentally. They felt understood. They felt like the salesperson was on their side. And now, the next sentence—"Let me show you what I think is a great fit"—doesn't feel like a pitch. It feels like teamwork.

The beauty of this isn't that it tricks people. It's that it meets them where they are. We don't move forward when we feel forced. We move forward when we feel seen.

Alton Garden Club kicks off 2025 season April 22

ALTON — Welcome back to spring and the Alton Garden Club's new season. We have an amazing group and are constantly impressed by the programs found and the experts to present them.

Our first program of the season is called "Indigenous Foodways and Plant Life," presented by Paul and Denise Pouliot. Paul and Denise are the head speakers for the Cowasuck Band of the Penacook-Abenaki People, with extensive knowledge of indigenous history and culture. It will be a meeting of interest to gardeners as well as to those interested in historical cultures of this area. This falls right into the Objective of the Club: to stimulate interest in home gardening and horticulture; to encourage the protection of our native trees, plants and wildlife; and to aid in community planting.

The meeting will take place at the Gilman Library on Main Street, Alton, on Tuesday, April 22 at 1:30 p.m. Refreshment will be served following the presentation. You are welcome to stay for our business meeting if it peaks your interest. It is open to the public, so "Enter as strangers, and leave as friends."

The members of the Garden Club are already at work preparing plants for sale during the annual Alton Town Wide Yard Sale held in June. We will be stationed on the Gilman Library lawn with donations of plants from our members. This is the only fundraiser for our club, and it supports the Prospect Mountain High School scholarship fund. This year we are excited about adding an additional table of native plants for our area.

If you're interested in learning more about

Alton Garden Club, or would like to attend our meeting, please call Peggy McKinney at 603-776-6032. We welcome the community. For those who choose to join, the membership fee is just $10 a year. It not only helps to pay for expenses, but also offers friendships that can last a lifetime. Hope to see you there!

OBITUARY

In Loving Memory of Rick Fogg

Richard "Rick" Fogg passed away on Sunday, March 23, 2025, surrounded by his loving wife, his four children, and his devoted sister-in-law. Born on October 17, 1954, in Sanford, Maine, Rick's life was defined by his deep faith, his generous spirit, and the simple joy he found in family.

After serving proudly as an airplane mechanic in the U.S. Air Force and working in lumber sales where he honed his deep knowledge of carpentry and woodworking, Rick's passion for others led him to care for the homeless as a Case Manager at the Boston Rescue Mission. He wanted others to know that they were seen, valued, and loved. After leaving the Mission, Rick returned to carpentry and woodworking. Rick's love of art and drawing continued throughout his lifetime. Rick was a member of the Befree Alton Community Church for many years. He also was a member of the Alton Rotary Club and President 2011-2012. Rick's greatest happiness came from his family. Spending time with his wife, children and grandchildren was one of the most cherished times in his life. He believed that true fulfillment came in his belief in God, evidenced by care for others. He taught us that a life of service is the most rewarding life of all.

He is survived by his beloved wife of 25 years, Melissa; his children, Jeremy, Lindsey, Joe, and Ashley; his nine granddaughters; his mother, Shirley; and his brothers, Gary and Keith, along with many nieces, nephews, and dear friends.

He is predeceased by his father, George Fogg and sister Denise Svenson.

A Celebration of Life/Memorial will be held in late spring. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Tunnel to Towers (T2T.org) in his memory. Rick will be deeply missed, but the legacy of his generosity and the values he instilled in his family will live on in all of us.

New Alton swap shop making progress

ALTON — Work on a new swap shop at the town transfer station is moving along smoothly according to one of the selectmen.

During the April 1 meeting, selectman Dick Shea updated the board on the progress of a new swap shop at the transfer station. In 2024, an outpouring of residents encouraged the selectmen to reopen the swap shop after it closed around the start of the pandemic. In response, Shea has worked with town officials and members of the community to help get a new shop off the ground.

"We are making great progress," Shea said.

The new shop will be in a prefabricated container that is being set up at the transfer station property.

He said some fine grading might be done as well as some trenching.

"Looks like what was done there in the fall is holding up pretty well through the frost, which is good," Shea said.

Public Works Director Seth Garland has been getting staff to do floor repair on the container and patch up a few leaks. Shea said they are working with a carpenter and an electrician for the project. Fencing is also on progress and several signs are being made.

"We plan a painting party if anybody would like to have a fun day or weekend," Shea said. "Once the interior of the container is safe to walk on, which it will be once Seth finishes his flooring, we'll have a painting party maybe more than one. They also have materials to build shelves and received a lot of shelving materials from donations."

Shea said they are aiming to have volunteer trainings around the middle of this month. He said by the next selectmen's meeting they hope to have the final list of operational rules that the board can alter.

"I did go down there, had a chance to speak with Seth," said Selectman Paul LaRochelle. "It's all coming along nicely."

Tips for the gardening beginner

Gardening is a popular hobby all over the world. Ruby Home Luxury Real Estate estimates there are 71.5 million gardening households in the United States alone. That translates to around 185.9 million people engaged in some form of gardening, which places the U.S. among other countries where gardening is wildly popular, including Australia and China.

A greater number of people are showing interest in gardening, which is a rewarding hobby that's good for the mind and the body. Those who are new to gardening may need a crash course to get started. These pointers can help anyone foster a newfound passion for gardening.

Choose the best location

Spend time in the yard and decide where to house a garden. A far-off corner may get the most sun, but will you forget about the garden if it is too far away? Ideally, the garden should be located where it will get at least six to eight hours of sun each day. There also should be a water source nearby. The spot also should be convenient so that it is easy to go and pick vegetables or prune flowers.

Start small

If you're new to gardening, begin with a small garden footprint so that you can get your feet wet. A raised garden bed can be a good starting point because it is contained and easy to maintain. As your experience (and garden) grows, you can add to the garden size the next time around.

Amend the soil

It's possible but unlikely that the soil in the backyard is the perfect mix to grow healthy plants. It's more likely that the garden will need some soil modification. You can test the soil makeup with do-it-yourself kits or work with a garden center. A garden typically requires a mix of compost to add nutrients to the dirt; peat moss or coconut coir to help with water retention and to make the soil lighter; and vermiculite that helps to retain water. A compost bin set up at the same time as the garden allows gardeners to continually produce nutrient-rich food to add to the garden.

Plant starter guide

It's best to keep a few things in mind when planning the garden.

Think about what will grow well in your climate. Consider how big the garden will be and the size of mature plants. A small garden will not be able to accommodate corn, for example. Also, how would you like the space to look and what will be its function? Is this a purely aesthetic garden or one that will be food-bearing?

Start seeds inside

If you'll be starting a garden from seeds, it's best to start indoors before your region's frost-free date. This way the delicate plants will get the needed care and can establish before they go outdoors in the ground. Keep them humid by covering the seedlings in plastic wrap. You can start the seeds in different containers, even empty egg cartons. Transplant to larger containers after the seedlings grow a second set of leaves. Once you're free from overnight frost, you can place the established, strong seedlings in the ground.

An automatic watering system, such as a timer hooked up to the sprinkler, can keep the garden well watered, which increases the chances of success. Then it will only be a matter of weeks before the garden can be enjoyed throughout the season.

ALTON

(continued from Page A1) delaying any larger projects, but Heath said the town tried to avoid budgeting for any larger equipment or projects to keep the budget down. He said the department heads trimmed their budgets and there are no significant new projects this year to avoid the possibility of another default budget. The only projects budgeted this year are general items such as maintenance, daily buildings and grounds operations, and other small tasks.

"There's not a lot of fat in that area, we have to do it through open positions and vacancies," Heath said. "I'm not advocating that we leave every single position open, but we're going to have to obviously discuss that as we move forward."

Any larger maintenance issues or other concerns will be funded through capital reserve funds. While the budget and one petition article failed, all other articles passed including deposits into different funds.

"About 98 percent is all funded through some type of revolving account or capital reserves," Heath said.

The town is planning to do more public outreach ahead of next year's budget to inform people about the budget. Town officials said this year's town elections and voting had low turnout.

Heath said they want to work on a voter's guide for next year's warrant. He said having a voter's guide was suggested at the end of last year but there wasn't enough time to put a comprehensive one together. In addition to a voter's guide, Heath said wants to explore other public outreach options including possibly speaking to different community groups.

Selectman Andrew Morse said he remembered standing outside the polling place on election day and many people were asking him questions about the warrant after they had voted.

"A guide, I think, will come in handy so at least they know the information going into the situation instead of coming out going, 'What was this, what was that?'"

Kelly Sullivan said when she volunteered at the polls there was a turnout of around 781 voters, one of the lowest turnouts they've ever had. She said when people do show up to vote many of them are not properly informed about what's on the ballot.

"Maybe presenting would maybe be beneficial to the public," Sullivan said. "They need to do some research on their own; attend a meeting, maybe show a little more support instead of so much negativity to try to turn the town around. The only way we're gonna be able to do that is to work together."

WOLFEBORO — The New England Drama Festival is the celebration of the best in high school theater from the six New England states.

Each year, a different New England state hosts this three-day event. Through a series of theater festivals, each state selects their top two high school theater productions to send to the New England Drama Festival. Currently, each state is in the final process of selecting their two schools, with results to be announced soon.

This year, the Drama Festival will be hosted by Kingswood Regional High School on May 1, 2 and 3 in the Kingswood Arts Center in Wolfeboro. This three-day event will feature twelve different one-act plays, as well as theater workshops offered by Plymouth State University, Keene State College, The University of New Hampshire, St. Anselm College, and New England College.

While the workshops are offered exclusively to participating students, all performances are open to the public, with tickets available at the door. Performance schedules will soon be available both at nhetg.org as well as kingswoodtheater.org.

Unique graduation gifts

Graduation season is on the horizon. This time of year is often a frenetic time for students and their families, with the promise of celebrations to come. Graduation is preceded by prom for high schoolers, and for those bidding farewell to the hallowed halls of higher education, it may mean last-minute interviews and pre-commencement résumé-building. This whirlwind of activity culminates in a degree or diploma to wrap up years spent in the classroom.

account early on can provide solid footing for financial security later in life.

Quality luggage: A good set of luggage can often last a person a lifetime if properly cared for. Whether the grad is taking a much-needed trip after graduation or will be traveling for his or her career, the luggage will serve well.

Graduates have many things to look forward to this time of year, not the least of which are gifts from close friends and family. Those tasked with coming up with graduation gifts can take inspiration from these ideas that break the mold.

Retirement account funds: Helping a new graduate get started is a popular sentiment among gift givers, but it's also possible to give grads a leg up on the future. Helping them to fund an individual retirement account can be a thoughtful gift. Keep in mind that parameters for IRAs differ between a traditional and a Roth IRA, and it is best to speak with a financial advisor to determine the best fit. Starting a retirement

Student loan interest payment: Many students must rely on federal or private loans to offset the costs of attending college or even trade schools. Although a loved one may not be able to pay off the loans in their entirety, a good gift can be to make payments toward the interest on the loans so that the bill is reduced come graduation.

Roadside assistance service: The road may take graduates near and far. A membership to a roadside assistance service can be a practical gift that ensures grads get from point A to point B with fewer hiccups. These services offer towing, tire changing, gas delivery, and more. Plus, they often come with additional perks, such as discounts on travel services and lodging.

Professional course or tickets to a conference: Help support a graduate's career growth and professional development with a subscription to a course, a book about their industry or tickets to a relevant conference or trade show.

Travel: Grads can be treated to the gift of travel. An overseas adventure or an epic road trip across the country may be the perfect way to unwind after years of schooling.

Graduates are entering an exciting time in their lives when anything is possible. Gift givers can think outside the box when shopping for their favorite cap-and-gown-donning loved ones.

Champions ready to roll into new softball season

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

ALTON — With three championships in a row and a winning streak that is the longest active streak in the nation for softball, the expectations for the Prospect Mountain softball team are high. As is the pressure to return to the top of Division III for a fourth time in a row.

“The kids are ready for it,” said coach James Christie, who returns to the helm of the Timber Wolves for the fifth year. “We have been talking every day about boing undefeated, but not in the way most people will think.

“We just want to go undefeated every day at practice, win every day at practice and the games will take care of themselves,” he continued. “The win streak definitely adds pressure and with the players we graduated, it begs the question of whether or not we can continue it, but we are going to find out.”

The Timber Wolves graduated five seniors from last year’s team, the majority of whom played every game in their high school careers, so there are some big shows to fill.

“Even with the loss of talent and leadership, our goals and expectations are the same as they always are,” Christie said.

Prospect Mountain will be led by a trio of seniors. Tori Christie moves from the outfield to shortstop. She’s coming off a year where she jacked 10 homers and hit more than .650 and is expected to continue that output. Alexis Wilson will get the chance to take the pitcher’s circle for the lion’s share of the innings after working alongside Ella Bernier the last few years. Olivia Noyes is the team’s catcher and Christie notes she is one of the top two catchers in the division and he expects that with a new infield, she is going to have to anchor the defense from behind the plate.

Juniors Paige Harding and Taylor Greenwood will step into big roles this year as well. Harding moves from the outfield to second base while Greenwood will get starter innings in the outfield after filling in throughout the season last year. Sophomore Paityn Glidden is also expected to make some contributions both offensively and defensively.

need our underclassmen to fill the gaps,” Christie stated. “So far, things look very promising but we have a lot of work to do with a completely new infield group and a handful of freshmen getting a lot of varsity innings.

“The team is up for the challenge, we are looking forward to getting started,” the Timber Wolf coach added.

The Timber Wolves will play a schedule that includes two games each with Berlin, Somersworth, Trinity and Raymond and single games against Belmont, Kearsarge, Gilford, Newfound, Newport, Monadnock, Conant, St. Thomas and Hillsboro-Deering.

Hayward takes over retooled Prospect girls’ tennis team

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

ALTON — Coming into the season there were a lot of holes to fill in the lineup for the Prospect Mountain tennis girls including in the role as head coach, but with that role filled, the many newcomers on the roster will be looking to fill those holes.

Tom Hayward steps into the role as the team’s head coach and inherits a roster that includes just one returning player.

“I have absolutely no expectations about wins or losses whatsoever,” Hayward said. “Having never coached in Division III, I have nothing to gauge our ability against the competition.

“But having had five days of practice, I feel confident that we have the potential to be much better the second half of the season as the kids get more accustomed to playing competitively,” he continued. “The key for all our players is how well they deal with adversity.”

The lone returning player is junior Laney Henry, who Hayward notes will likely be the number one or number two player in singles and doubles and will be counted on for her experience as the rest of the roster is new.

Seniors Jules West, Margaret Dowd, Ava

Tibbs, Avery Thoroughgood and Elena Munoz-Martin, sophomore Katie Jones and ninth graders Peyton McAnaney and Kaelyn Lemire will all be vying for spots in the ladder as the season kicked off.

“The offseason and preseason activities have been great,” Hayward said. “Attendance has been terrific and their level of compete has been consistently high.

“They have a great ability to have fun and take things seriously at the same time,” Hayward continued. “Each day I work with them, I am continually amazed at how well they support and encourage each other.”

The Timber Wolf schedule includes two matches each with Berlin and Conant and single matches against Gilford, Lebanon, Profile, St. Thomas, Trinity, Sanborn, White Mountains, Lebanon, Inter-Lakes and Moultonborough.

The season kicked off after deadline on Monday, April 7, at Gilford and continued on Wednesday, April 9, at home against Lebanon. Next up, the Timber Wolves will be hosting Profile on Tuesday, April 15, at 4 p.m.

Sports Editor Joshua Spaulding can be reached at 279-4516, ext. 155 or josh@salmonpress.news.

Christie noted that a trio of ninth graders, Kylee Guptill, Kora Mackenzie and Sophia Bowman, have impressed early on and will likely see innings for the champs as they look to increase their 58-game win streak.

“We need our returning players to step up into leadership roles and we GILFORD — With lots of graduation losses, there were plenty of spots open on the Gilford baseball team as the new season began. And that made for some great competition for fourth-year head coach Mike Giovanditto.

“These young guys are hungry,” Giovanditto said. “Knowing that there were lots of open spots on the varsity roster, the compete level was as high as I’ve ever seen it, they were determined to get better and make an impression.

“The coaching staff was impressed,” the Golden Eagle mentor added. “This preseason has been unlike anything I have seen in years.”

The key returning players include senior Mikey Giovanditto in the middle infield, junior Drew Smith on the mound and at third base and classmate Ryan Folan on the mound and at shortstop.

roster, the talent is undeniable, but how they learn to play with each other and develop chemistry will be our big challenge,” Giovanditto said. “Development during the season both in maturity and skills will ultimately decide which direction we go.

“Pitching and defense will be the calling card of this team,” the Gilford coach continued. “As I said before, the talent is there to make a solid playoff push and then anything can happen in the playoffs.”

A highlight of the season will be the team’s return to Cooperstown, N.Y. for the semi-annual game with Winnisquam. The Bears and Golden Eagles will compete on Doubleday Field on April 30.

“This was an awesome experience for the kids two years ago and I can’t wait for them to experience it this spring,” Giovanditto said.

Timber Wolves have sights set on returning to semifinals

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

ALTON — Making a solid playoff run last season turned out to help this year’s Prospect Mountain boys’ tennis team before the first match even took the court.

“We went to the final four last year and we hope to repeat that this year,” said veteran coach Peter Long. “We expect to continue being competitive because our team has depth.

“There are no surprises this year other than attracting some new players that can have an impact in the bottom of the lineup,” Long continued. “Finishing in the final four is great for team morale and helps recruiting players.”

Prospect will be returning four starters from last year’s team in Shaun McAnaney, Rylan Clifford, Wyatt Varney and Cameron Morrill. While the Timber Wolves lost the two others starters from the top six, returning players Owen Smith, Kaleb Kennedy and Wyatt Bubar will be looked at to compete for those spots as the new season gets under way.

Senior Travis Locke leads the way amongst the new players and the Timber Wolves will also welcome newcomers Brock Libby and Ayden Porter.

Prospect will feature a schedule that includes two matches each with Moultonborough, White Mountains Regional, Trinity and Bishop Brady along with single matches with Kearsarge, Littleton, Profile, Gilford, St. Thomas and Monadnock.

The season kicked off after deadline on Monday, April 7, at home against Monadnock and continued at Bishop Brady on Wednesday, April 9. The Timber Wolves will be at Littleton on Friday, April 11, at White Mountains on Monday, April 14, at Profile on Tuesday, April 15, and at home against Gilford on Wednesday, April 16, all with 4 p.m. scheduled starts.

Golden Eagles looking to build on last year’s experience

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

GILFORD — Last year there were some growing pains for the Gilford tennis boys, as they had a lot of graduation holes to fill.

The good news for longtime coach Terry Wilson this spring is that there are not a ton of graduation losses, so the Golden Eagles will be looking to a group of guys who played a lot of matches last year to take a step forward.

“The team is working very hard and they are good listeners,” Wilson stated. “Our practices have been inside due to the weather, but I am very happy with the large turnout of players.”

Dustin Gerry, Aidan Hooper, Dalton Houle, Cohen Krupnik, Xavier Morrison and Dominic Soucy will lead the way as the returning players after playing a number of matches last spring.

In addition to all the returning players, the Golden Eagles also have a large crop of newcomers who will be looking to make their mark. The group includes Jacob Baldi, Cullen Beck, Carter Cota-Robles, Joey Estrada, Cameron Hueber, Kyle Johnson, Ben Lesniak, Andrew Prue, Jackson Soucy, Easton St. Cyr and Joel Wernig.

“They will learn the game and provide competition within the team,” Wilson stated. “The goals are to make our team as strong as possible, to help each player improve their game, to work hard and to be positive, support each other and display good sportsmanship.”

The Golden Eagles will play three matches with

St. Thomas, two matches each with Monadnock, Moultonborough, Kearsarge and Bishop Brady and single matches with Prospect Mountain, Trinity and White Mountains Regional.

The season kicked off after deadline at Monadnock on April 7 and continues on Friday, April 11, at home against St. Thomas, Monday, April 14, at Moultonborough, Tuesday, April 15, at Kearsarge and Wednesday, April 16, at Prospect Mountain, all with 4 p.m. scheduled starts.

“I am very excited about the merger of our Agencies. Josh and I have known each other since 2017 when we both started with RE/MAX. I admire what he has achieved over these years and the growth of their Agency with many offices in multiple states. Since then, I have gotten to know the other owners as well as the whole Leadership Team.

The training that they offer and what we have received far surpasses any training I’ve had in my past 22 years in the Real Estate Profession. They truly care about the wellbeing and success of all their Agents.

I have the utmost respect for both Josh and the Leadership Team. Looking forward to the future as our growth continues.” Don Roberts, Former Broker / Owner and Managing Broker of the Alton Office.
