Gunstock sets sights on next winter $4.5 million investment in improvements now underway

GILFORD — As the last of this winter's snow melts away, Gunstock Mountain Resort has already begun working on improvements for the 2026/27 season, and beyond.

As part of a $9 million, two-year plan introduced in 2025, Gunstock plans to reinvest a total of $4.5 million into the mountain this offseason. Approximately $1.4 million will be devoted to snowmaking systems, just over $2 million for chair-

"Our focus remains on investing in our infrastructure," shared Robert Drake, President and General Manager. "It's a foundational part of creating a positive experience for our guests."

Efforts to refurbish several key components of the Panorama lift, which provides summit access to guests, began immediately following

New Durham Library to host presentation on Fish and Game Commission

NEW DURHAM — As guardians of the state's fish, wildlife, and marine resources, and as collaborators with communities for conservation efforts, the NH Fish and Game Department is a state organization residents have frequent interactions with. But who are the folks behind the department?

That would be the Fish and Game Commission.

A program on the Commission will be held on Monday, May 20, at 7 p.m. at the New Durham Public Library. The 11 Commission members are appointed by the Governor, in consultation with the NH Executive Council, and represent each county and the coastal area.

Stafford County Commission member and current chairperson A.J. DeRosa has served since 2021. He will speak on what the Commission actually does; covering its authorities, how that affects the public, and the public's relationship with those civic processes.

DeRosa is the founder of Project Upland Magazine, an award-winning media platform focused on upland birds, conservation policy, science, history, and hunting education.

A question and answer period will follow the presentation. Light refreshments will be served. The program is free and open to residents of all communities.

Prospect Mountain baseball rolls past Somersworth at Doubleday Field

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — It was an opportunity for the Prospect Mountain baseball boys to get in a nity to come up with a Division III victory and that's exactly what they did at Doubleday Field on Saturday, May 2, as the Timber Wolves used a big fourth inning to pull out an 11-2 win over Somersworth.

"It was a fun experience that turned into a business trip on the field," said coach Jayson Whitehouse. "It's special, it's a trip that they kids will never forget."

The Timber Wolves struggled a bit out of the gate, as the "Toppers set the side down in order in the first and then got a run in the bottom of the inning, after a base hit, a walk and an error allowed a run to cross. Colby Whitehouse did manage to strike out the side around that action.

Vinnie Tilton reached on an error in the top of the second inning but he was stranded there and Whitehouse worked around an error and an infield hit in the bottom of the frame. Mikey Perry had a one-out double in the top of the third inning but again, the Timber Wolves could not get him home and again Whitehouse worked around a leadoff hit in the bottom of the inning, keeping the score at 1-0.

Whitehouse led off the top of the fourth with a double, stole second and came in to score on a base hit from Knyte Neathery to tie the game at one, though the "Toppers gunned down Neathery at second base. Gavin Gorton and Tilton had consecutive base hits and a walk to Charlie Yeaton loaded the bases. Bryce Lounsbury delivered a base hit to plate the second run and a sacrifice fly from Perry drove in another run. Parker O'Brien doubled to drive in another run and Orion Neathery took over on the bases. A Blake Papp-SEE BASEBALL, PAGE A7

Meet Laci!

A friend, chances are Laci will start to feel the same way too. Watching her gain confidence and come out of her shell is incredibly rewarding, and she forms strong bonds with those she trusts.

This silly girl enjoys getting fresh air and would love a home where she can join you for peaceful walks and little outdoor adventures. She's got a playful side that peeks through once she feels safe, and it's sure to make you smile.

Laci may need some dental work down the line, so her future family should be prepared to keep an eye on her dental health and continue with any care she may need. With the right support, she'll continue to thrive.

If you have a soft spot for the quieter ones and the patience to let her blossom at her own pace, Laci will reward you with a loyal, loving companionship—and maybe a few silly moments along the way.

Laci takes a lot of comfort in her brother Scrapy—she looks up to him and often follows his lead. If Scrapy decides you're Meet Scrapy!

Scrapy may have a bit of a "don't mess with me" look at first glance, but don't be fooled—this dachshund mix is a total softie at heart. Beneath that scrappy exterior is a lovable guy who's just waiting to show off his sweet, easygoing side to the right person.

He's a big fan of the simple joys in life: a good squeaky toy, some fresh air on a nice walk, and a cozy spot to relax by your side. Scrapy would be more than happy to be your daily sidekick—whether you're out and about or just lounging at home, he's happiest just being with his people.

Scrapy and his sister are also working on getting into their best shape, so they'll need a forever home that's committed to helping them stay healthy. A little extra exercise and mindful feeding will go a long way for this pair!

Scrapy does have a seizure disorder that is currently well-managed with medication. Because of this, his future family will need to be comfortable continuing his medication routine and staying on top of his care to keep him feeling his best. He doesn't let it slow him down, and with the right support, he can continue to live a happy, full life.

If you're looking for a loyal companion who's equal parts laid-back and loving, Scrapy just might be your guy. He's ready to drop the tough act and settle into a life full of comfort, care, and companionship.

Wright Museum presents special exhibit on Civil Air Patrol

WOLFEBORO — The Wright Museum is pleased to present a new special exhibit for its 2026 season, highlighting the vital and historic role of The Civil Air Patrol (CAP). “Always Vigilant: Civil Air Patrol from WWII through Today” will run at the museum from May 1 to Oct. 31.

CAP celebrates its 85th anniversary on December 1, marking its founding just days before the U.S. entered World War II in 1941. As the civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, CAP continues to uphold its mission of aerospace education, cadet programs, and emergency services.

As we commemorate America’s 250th birthday, it’s also an opportune moment to reflect on the history of the Civil Air Patrol as a premier volunteer organization in the United States – an organization characterized by profound patriotism and remarkable achievements in service to the nation.

In honor of both historic anniversaries, this special 6-month exhibit examines the role of CAP in civil defense, emergency response, and other missions throughout its history.

Perfect for all ages, the exhibit will feature historic objects, videos and interactives.

A special ceremony to dedicate the exhibit will also take place at the Wright Museum on Saturday, May 16 at 10 a.m. The ceremony will feature guest speakers including NH Wing Commander Col. Nic Goupil and CAP Northeast Region Historian Lt. Col. Keith Raymond, as well as two color guards and bagpiper Capt. Ethan Cray. The ceremony is free for CAP members and their families, as well as museum members. The public is welcomed to attend, including with regular museum admission.

The Wright Museum of World War II, located at 77 Center St., Wolfboro, opens to the public for the 2026 season on May 1 and remains open daily through Oct. 31. Museum hours are Monday-Saturday 10 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sundays noon to 4 p.m. The museum is a private non-profit educational institution focusing on both the American home front and war fronts during World War II.

For more information, contact the museum at 603-569-1212 or

Investing in the experience that keeps a community thriving

As winter gives way to spring, there is a familiar rhythm to life in the Gilford. The snow melts, the trails soften, and attention slowly turns from ski season to the promise of warmer days ahead. But behind the scenes at one of the region's most visible landmarks, the work never really stops.

Gunstock Mountain Resort's latest round of planned improvements is a reminder that even in a place defined by tradition, standing still is not an option.

A $9 million, two-year investment plan, with $4.5 million earmarked for this offseason alone, is not simply about upgrades for the sake of appearances. It is about long-term sustainability, reliability, and the kind of visitor experience that keeps people returning year after year. In a region where tourism plays a central role in the local economy, that matters.

What stands out most about the current work is that much of it will go unnoticed by the casual visitor. A rebuilt drive system on the Panorama lift. A new control system. Structural improvements at both the base and summit. These are not flashy additions designed to grab headlines or social media attention. They are the kinds of foundational improvements that ensure things work the way they are supposed to, day in and day out.

There is something reassuring about that approach.

Too often, investment is equated with expansion or spectacle. Bigger. Faster. Newer. But in a place like Gilford, where the character of the community is closely tied to its natural surroundings and longstanding institutions, thoughtful reinvestment carries a different kind of value. It signals a commitment not only to growth, but to stewardship.

The same can be said for the planned snowmaking upgrades. Installing thousands of feet of new pipe and separating lower and upper mountain systems may sound technical, but the impact is straightforward. More efficient snowmaking means more consistent conditions, a longer season, and a more dependable experience for skiers and riders. In an era of increasingly unpredictable winters, that kind of reliability is no small thing.

It also reflects a broader reality facing outdoor recreation across New Hampshire. Weather patterns are shifting. Seasons are less predictable. The margin for error is shrinking. Investments that improve efficiency and adaptability are not luxuries, they are necessities.

Beyond the slopes, the additional upgrades, from new equipment to improved trail flow and modernized access systems, reinforce the idea that every detail contributes to the overall experience. Visitors may not notice a new haul rope or upgraded lift grips, but they will notice shorter wait times, smoother operations, and a day that feels effortless.

And when visitors have a good experience, they come back. They bring friends. They support local restaurants, shops, and lodging. The ripple effect extends well beyond the mountain itself.

That connection between infrastructure and community impact is easy to overlook, but it is real. Gunstock is not just a recreational asset. It is an economic engine, a source of local pride, and for many residents, a place tied to decades of memories.

Investing in it is, in many ways, investing in the community as a whole.

There is also a quiet lesson here about planning ahead. These improvements are not reactive. They were outlined as part of a multi-year strategy, suggesting a level of foresight that is often talked about but not always practiced. Addressing aging systems before they fail, improving efficiency before it becomes a crisis, and building for the future rather than simply maintaining the present.

That kind of thinking benefits everyone.

As the region looks ahead to another busy summer and eventually another winter season, it is worth recognizing the importance of this kind of behind-the-scenes work. It may not come with immediate fanfare, but it lays the groundwork for everything that follows.

In the end, the success of a place like Gunstock is not defined by any single season. It is built over time, through steady investment, careful planning, and a commitment to getting the fundamentals right.

And sometimes, the most important improvements are the ones you never have to think about at all.

LETTERS FROM EDWIN

Dirt

My cat is beginning to forgive me, or maybe it's just that she has started to forget the traumatic experience she had with me the other day. Like, I am the guy that fills up her food bowl twice a day, so there is sufficient reason to let bygones be bygones.

You see, it's springtime again. Last night I found a tick on me! It had swollen to about a quarter inch in diameter sucking on my abdomen. I pulled it off and stuck it in a little plastic box that I have just for such discoveries. I will keep an eye on the spot for any sign of a bullseye. I never want to get Lyme again.

I already wear my work pants that have insecticide in them. I'm pretty safe if I tuck them in my socks. The ticks crawl up and quickly decide to turn around once they start not feeling well. I'd rather it be them than me.

The problem is, that I've been subbing lately and haven't been wearing my work pants. I was actually checking out work after school wearing my "nice" pants. I now recall that this customer used to have mad amounts of ticks in his yard. I guess he still does.

Last year, I was out at another customer's house, and we were out walking around the place and she noticed that her pants were getting covered with ticks. Brushing them off she noted that my pants were tickless. I told her about how I spray them with "stuff." Thank you, Lord, for "stuff."

So last weekend I replaced her flea and tick collar. She's never liked being man handled, and that's something that has to happen when replacing her collar. I get her cornered between my legs so she can't back out and hold her still while slipping on the new one, snugging it down then cutting off the old one and the excess from the new one. How humiliating. It takes less than a minute, but I pay for it for days.

This morning, when I lit the fire in the stove, she came near to watch the flames as I lit the egg crate with a match and they kind of just grow in the dark of the morning. One day she actually stepped up on the ash fender and got real close in her investigation. I think she felt the heat and it surprised her, so she pulled away quickly. She still seems interested in it though.

Today she let me pet her a little. Not on the head though. She never liked getting touched on the head, that's a recent change.

After breakfast I usually spend a few minutes sitting on the throne. She knows that she has me cornered at this point in time so she comes around and gets friendly. This morning she even allowed me to scratch her head and actually leaned into it as I went to the sides of her neck. The second I reach for the paper, she knows I'm finished, so she quickly runs off. So yes, I think she's getting over the collar experience, till next year.

Nights have been cold again lately. I'm happy that I left the winter blanket on the bed. The summer one would be almost useless. When I leave for work, the outside water dish is all froze up and there's frost on the car windows. Still, there are clumps of grass foreshadowing future mowing needs. My pre-mow to do list isn't getting picked away at very much, as every day when I get home from school, I feel more like taking a nap than getting into my grubbies and going to work.

I did get to scooping up all the dirt scrapped up by the snow plow with the tractor. It made me a nice dirt pile. You never know when you'll need some dirt. I parked the tractor where it will next take on the mower deck. I want to take it out into the woods and mow all the tree sprouts before the old stumps get hidden by the new green stuff. That's the only way to get this task accomplished before ski season.

There are also spring car things, house things, and me things waiting to get tended to. I try my best to get to everything. Last year I learned that mowing is optional.

Why the Grit to Grow Summit matters for New Hampshire's teens - and for us

To the Editor:

Every generation faces the same question: Are we preparing our young people for the lives they hope to build? In New Hampshire, where our communities depend on home-grown talent and our workforce shortages grow more urgent each year, this question feels particularly pressing.

That's why the Grit to Grow Summit, coming June 22-24, is more than another youth program. It is a forward-looking investment in our state's future - one that brings together teens, parents, colleges, trades programs, and employers for a hands on, three day experience designed to strengthen both career readiness and personal resilience.

Hosted by New Hampshire 4 H, the Summit offers rising sophomores through 2026 high school graduates a chance to explore career paths, practice essential life skills, and meet the educators and industry leaders who can help them get where they want to go. And importantly, it does all this in a format that speaks to today's teens: experiential, relatable, and driven by authentic connection.

The Summit begins at Lakes Region Community College, where teens choosing the overnight option spend Day 1 focused on "Building Your Future Self." This isn't a lecture series - it's hands on practice in budgeting, leadership, entrepreneurship, and self discovery. That first day ends in a cookout and social time, acknowledging what research consistently shows: teens learn best when they feel supported, included, and connected.

Day 2, held at the Inn at Mill Falls in Meredith, open to both teens and parents, pivots toward "Building Your Career." Students rotate through industry specific workshops, explore training programs, and meet employers at the Future Pathways Expo. Parents are welcome - not as spectators, but as partners. Helping adults understand how best to support a young person's evolving ambitions is part of the curriculum. The final day, also at the Inn at Mill Falls in Meredith,

The many hats worn by ER nurses

Emergency rooms are fast-paced environments. ER nurses are right in the thick of things, performing a range of tasks that illustrate the value and talent of these highly skilled professionals.

Though many things attract people to a career as an ER nurse, the spontaneity of the job undoubtedly merits consideration. No two shifts are the same for ER nurses, whose ability to thrive despite that lack of routine is remarkable. Individuals curious about what a day in the life of an ER nurse might be like should know that the following are just some of the many tasks these invaluable professionals may be asked to perform in a given shift.

- Triage: ER nurses help with the preliminary assessment of patients in order to determine the urgency of their needs. Often referred to as “triage,” this part of the job underscores the depth of medical knowledge ER nurses must have, as assessing a patient’s needs often requires quick thinking and recognition of details that patients themselves may not have identified or communicated.

- Vital signs: ER nurses are typically tasked with taking and monitoring patients’ vital signs. This may include taking and documenting pulse rate, blood pressure and body temperature, among other signs. This information is essential for keeping patients safe and ensuring assessments are accurate.

- Medication adminis- tration: ER nurses also routinely administer medication prescribed by a doctor as well as any medications patients were taking prior to being admitted to the ER. Nurses’ experience and knowledge is vital when performing this task, as they can consult with physicians about patients’ existing medications, which may dictate what the doctor can and cannot prescribe to treat the condition that brought the individual to the ER. When tasked with administering medication, ER nurses may prepare intravenous infusion of medications and may need to contact the patient’s family or pharmacist to confirm which medications the patient was taking to treat preexisting conditions.

- Medical procedures: ER nurses sometimes assist physicians as they perform certain medical procedures. For example, nurses may intubate patients and suture wounds during procedures.

- Monitor patients: ER nurses are often the face of a hospital for patients and their families. Much of these interactions occur while nurses are monitoring patients before they see a physician and after a physician has ordered tests or treatments. In this regard, ER nurses must excel at comforting patients and their families until a diagnosis is delivered or confirmed via testing.

There’s no shortage of responsibilities for ER nurses, which only underscores how valuable and vital these talented professionals are.

Great Waters to hold 30th Anniversary Gala at Brewster

WOLFEBORO — Great Waters Summer Concerts is thrilled to announce its 30th-anniversary gala, "Great Waters Got Talent," a dazzling, celebratory evening set for Thursday, July 9 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Grayson Student Center, located on the Brewster campus.

This sparkle-filled night will proudly spotlight Barbara and Dave Lobdell Scholarship recipients, showcasing spectacular vocal and instrumental performances. Jazz on the Grayson patio during the lakeside cocktail hour will launch the festivities, with intimate musical vignettes delighting guests throughout the evening. A plated dinner by Suzanne Trice of Sweetwater Kitchen, a delicious dessert bar, and exciting silent and live auctions will round out this unforgettable evening of celebration. All proceeds will help power the organization's ongoing musical performances at Castle in the Clouds in Moultonborough and at Brewster Academy in Wolfeboro.

This gala is the shining centerpiece of Great Waters' fundraising efforts, celebrating three decades of community musical programming and helping inspire the next generation of regional talent. Performances by scholarship recipients spanning vocal, instrumental, musical theater, and Broadway standards will surely be among the evening's highlights. Exciting silent and live auctions raising essential funds for youth music programs will feature opening-night theater tickets in Boston, local restaurant and spa gift certificates, exclusive golf outings, artwork by local artists, and much more.

"We're thrilled to celebrate our thirtieth anniversary by showcasing some of our extraordinary scholarship winners," said Barbara Lobdell, Board Chair of Great Waters Summer Concerts. "The evening will be a joyful tribute to our history and a powerful investment in the talented young artists who will carry our communities' love of music forward."

Executive Director Joan Myers added, "This gala is our largest and most inspiring fundraiser of the year. The support we receive at this event directly enables us to bring high-quality performances to the Lakes Region while also offering meaningful scholarships for aspiring musicians living in the area."

Great Waters Music Festival is a non-profit organization whose mission is to present live concerts of diverse genres for the enjoyment of music lovers throughout the Lakes Region. Tickets will be available soon at www.GreatWaters.org or by calling 603-569-7710.

Mike Boles takes a throw at third base during his team's game in Cooperstown, N.Y. on Saturday.

Catcher Blake Pappaceno fires a throw to first after fielding the ball on the Doubleday Field infield on Saturday.

paceno double drove in two more runs and a Whitehouse triple pushed another run across. A wild pitch brought home Whitehouse and Prospect led 8-1 before the third out was recorded.

Whitehouse set the side down in order on strikeouts in the bottom of the fourth and Gorton and Matty Perry worked walks in the bottom of the inning but the Timber Wolves could not get them home.

Mikey Perry took over on the mound in the bottom of the fifth inning and a walk, wild pitch and a stolen base allowed the "Toppers to plate their second run with no more trouble. Pappaceno was hit by a pitch in the top of the sixth, but Prospect was unable to add another run and Lounsbury took over on the mound in the bottom of the sixth and struck out the side.

The Timber Wolves padded their lead in the top of the seventh, starting with a base hit from Landon Deane. Mike Boles reached on an error and one out later, senior Josh Clarke collected his first varsity hit to drive in another run. Mikey Perry reached on an error to drive in another run and walks to Pappaceno and Whitehouse forced home another run for the 11-2 lead.

Gorton took the mound for the final inning and retired the side in order to seal the win for the Timber Wolves.

"It (slow start) has been a season long thing," Whitehouse said. "I don't think they realize how good they can be.

"We're trying to find our identity and get some wins on board and situate ourselves for the playoffs," the Timber Wolf coach continued. "They've gotten better every single week and if we play defense and don't hurt ourselves, we can compete with anyone in our division."

Whitehouse was also happy he was able to get all 14 guys who made the trip on the field and was especially happy for Clarke, who picked up his first varsity hit on the historic Doubleday Field surface.

Prospect is scheduled to be in action on Monday, May 11, at Newport and Wednesday May 13, at home against Raymond, both at 4 p.m. at 279-4516, ext. 155 or Sports Editor Joshua Spaulding can be reached josh@salmonpress.news.

Dollar Tree signs on as title sponsor for NHMS Cup Series race

LOUDON — Speedway Motorsports and Dollar Tree officials announced Sunday the value retailer has been named entitlement sponsor of the NASCAR Cup Series (NCS) race at New Hampshire Motor Speedway (NHMS) and Official Value Retailer of Speedway Motorsports.

The Dollar Tree 301 will take place at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 23, at NHMS. As the only annual NCS race in New England, the Dollar Tree 301 at “The Magic Mile” will be broadcast worldwide on USA Network, PRN and SiriusXM NASCAR Radio.

“NASCAR fans are some of the most passionate consumers in sports, and partnering with Speedway Motorsports provides a powerful opportunity to connect with them in a meaningful way,” said Mike Creedon, Chief Executive Officer, Dollar Tree. “We see this partnership and our race entitlement at New Hampshire Motor Speedway as an invitation for fans to experience the value, convenience and discovery that only Dollar Tree can offer. Just as the sport thrives on teamwork and dedication to deliver for its fans, our more than 150,000 associates across the country share that same drive to deliver excellence every day for our customers.”

In addition to adding their name to New England’s only NCS race, Dollar Tree has branded the “More Fun. More Value” pages across all track websites in the Speedway Motorsports family as well as a ticket offer that includes a $10 Dollar Tree gift card with a purchase of at least two tickets. Dollar Tree will activate in Speedway Motorsports Fan Zones with feature appearances from NCS drivers Erik Jones and John Hunter Nemechek of Legacy Motor Club.

“We’re thrilled to put Dollar Tree’s name on our NASCAR Cup Series race,” said New Hampshire Motor Speedway Executive Vice President and General Manager David McGrath. “Attending a NASCAR race at New Hampshire Motor Speedway is the best value in pro sports, and our team strives to provide a top-notch experience with convenient options for race fans to make memories without breaking the bank. We can’t think of a better partner than Dollar Tree to join us in that mission. We look forward to welcoming veteran race fans to the Dollar Tree 301 as well as those discovering NASCAR for the first time — they’re sure to be race fans by the time that checkered flag waves.”

Through the partnership, Dollar Tree will activate through a series of NHMS assets, including VIP hospitality throughout race weekend for customers, vendors and associates, venue signage and branding, the opportunity to name the Grand Marshal and Honorary Starter for the race and exclusive promotional rights.

Dollar Tree has proven to be a true supporter of the sport, also serving as a partner of Legacy Motor Club, which is owned by seven-time NCS champion, Hall of Famer and three-time NHMS winner Jimmie Johnson. As a primary partner, Dollar Tree anchors select race weekends with high-impact paint schemes on cars for both Jones and Nemechek, extending its brand from the track to fans nationwide.

“This partnership reflects the momentum we’re building with Dollar Tree,” said Johnson. “Dollar Tree stepping into an entitlement role at New Hampshire Motor Speedway with Speedway Motorsports speaks to their belief in the sport and the fans — they are committed. Dollar Tree has been an incredible partner to Legacy Motor Club with their full sponsorship of the numbers 42 and 43 — they want to be in our sport long term, and I’m honored to be in business with them.”

This summer’s Dollar Tree 301 will be the 55th NCS race at the flat 1.058-mile oval and one of three NASCAR races at “The Magic Mile” from Aug. 21-23. A critical stop on the schedule, the Dollar Tree 301 will be one of the final chances for drivers to earn enough points to secure a spot in The Chase. It will be preceded on Doubleheader Saturday by the Team EJP 175 NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series (NCTS) race (1:30 p.m.) and the Mohegan Sun 100 NASCAR Whelen Modified Tour (NWMT) race (4:30 p.m.).

For tickets and camping for New England’s only NCS weekend, featuring the Dollar Tree 301 NCS race, Team EJP 175 NCTS race, Mohegan Sun 100 NWMT race and Sig Sauer Academy Dirt Duels, fans should visit NHMS.com or call 833-4LOUDON. Tickets for kids 12 and under are just $10 on Sunday, free on Doubleheader Saturday and start at $10 on Friday.

Gunstock's closing day on April 4. The high-speed detachable quad will be the recipient of a new drive, chair-spacing system, and an all-new control system. It will receive new lift structures installed at the base and summit to house the upgraded control system and lift attendants.

"A large part of this investment in the Pan won't be directly visible to guests," explained Dave Ulbrich, Director of Mountain Operations. "The real payoff we expect to see is the increased reliability of service that comes with installing a brand-new system like this."

Additional lift improvements will include a new haul rope for the Tiger chair, as well as new grips on the Pistol chair and the completion of Pistol's gearbox rebuild.

Gunstock's snowmaking system is also slated to receive major upgrades this off-season, most notably the installation of 5,000 feet of new pipe and the isolation of Gunstock's lower and upper mountain snowmaking systems. This update will eliminate system inefficiencies that have prevented simultaneous snowmaking in both regions of the mountain, expanding the resort's ability to make snow top to bottom at once. The new pipe will not only replace aging infrastructure but also be used to create a more direct snowmaking line to the summit.

Other noteworthy investments include a new Prinoth Bison X winch cat, an additional contactless RFID lift access gate at the base of the Panorama chair, and the continued widening of the Derringer trail to ensure smoother and safer traffic flow onto the Smith trail.

You can follow Gunstock's ongoing improvements this off-season on their social media pages @gunstockmtn or at gunstock.com.

Kingswood Theater's Summer Camp celebrate the circle of life with "The Lion King KIDS"

WOLFEBORO — Kingswood Theater Summer Camp announces its production, Disney's "The Lion King KIDS" at the Kingswood Arts Center. The 30-minute musical, designed for elementary school-aged performers, is based on the Broadway production directed by Julie Taymor and the 1994 Disney animated film.

Lion King Kids will be directed by summer theater veteran, Lisa Goodwin, and music directed by Crescent Lake and Carpenter School's music teacher, Julie Carbone. The program will run Monday through Friday, July 6th through 17 from 8 a.m. to noon, with productions of Friday the 17th at 7 p.m. and Saturday the 18 at 2 p.m. in the K.A.C.

Kingswood Theater Summer Camp is a reboot of the longstanding and celebrated tradition of Kingswood Children's Summer Theater. The program will restart this summer with 30 students, welcoming kids who are rising second graders through rising seventh graders. The group hopes to expand its offerings to larger numbers and age groups in coming summers.

"We are so glad to be offering a children's summer theater program in the Kingswood Arts Center again," notes producer Scott Giessler. "It has been a tradition in the Arts Center since its opening, and we are so thrilled to keep it going."

"The Lion King KIDS" tells the story of the epic adventures of a curious cub named Simba as he struggles to accept the responsibilities of adulthood and his destiny as king. Along the way, the young lion encounters a colorful cast of characters including spunky lioness Nala, charismatic meerkat Timon, and lovable warthog Pumbaa. To claim his rightful place on the throne and save his beloved Pridelands, Simba must find his inner strength and confront his wicked Uncle Scar. The Lion King KIDS features classic songs from the 1994 film such as "Hakuna Matata" and the Academy Award-winning "Can You Feel the Love Tonight" as well as additional songs penned for the Broadway production.

For information or to register your child for this program, please visit kingswoodtheater.org, or call 603-832-8250. The deadline for registering is Friday, June 19. However, there is a limit of thirty students this year, with almost half of the spaces already filled.

Head-on collision leaves one driver deceased

ALTON — One person was killed and another remains hospitalized after a head-on collision last week in Alton.

At approximately 6:30 a.m. on April 28, the Alton Police Department responded to a report of a head-on motor vehicle crash involving serious injuries and entrapment on Henry Wilson Highway (Route 11) near Heron Point Road.

A preliminary on-scene investigation indicated that a 2023 Nissan Altima, operated by Stacey Odette-Bissell, age 40, of Rochester was traveling westbound when it crossed into the eastbound lane for reasons that remained unknown as of our press deadline for this week's edition. The vehicle collided head-on with a 2024 Jeep Compass operated by Jessica Franklin, age 31, of Berwick, Maine.

Both vehicles sustained heavy damage, and both operators were entrapped upon arrival of emergency responders. Jessica Franklin sustained serious, non-life-threatening injuries and was transported from the scene by Alton Fire Rescue. Odette-Bissell was pronounced deceased at the scene.

No other individuals were involved in the crash.

A section of Route 11, from the Alton Traffic Circle to the Depot Street intersection in New Durham, was closed during the investigation and was reopened at approximately 11:30 AM.

All aspects of the crash remain under investigation. Anyone with information regarding this crash is asked to contact Officer Kyle Donahue at 603-875-0757 or kyle.donahue@alton.nh.gov.

The Alton Police Department would like to thank the Alton Fire Department, New Durham Fire Department, and New Durham Police Department for their assistance at the scene. We also extend our appreciation to the professionals with the Belknap Regional Accident Investigation Team (B.R.A.I.T) for their continued support in this investigation.

Our thoughts are with the families of those involved during this difficult time.

Bernier shines under the hood at LRTC

Senior wins statewide automotive service technology competition

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

WOLFEBORO — Kingswood senior Ayden Bernier knows what he wants to do when he graduates in June. But he's also found something he's pretty good at that can help him out along the way outside of that career.

Bernier, who wants to be a cop when he finishes high school, recently took first place in automotive service technology as part of the SkillsUSA state competition at Lakes Region Community College in Laconia. Bernier has been studying for three and a half years in the automotive service technology program at Lakes Region Technical Center (LRTC) and has also been doing a school to work program at Sal's Automotive on Center Street in Wolfeboro.

"My dad got me into cars when I was wicked young so I wanted to be able to work on my own, I want to know what I'm doing so I took 3.5 years of automotive so I can get better at working on my own cars," Bernier said. "The program was accessible, I wanted to take advantage of it and I like it. It's what I like doing."

Bernier noted that at his competition he had 10 different stations in the giant LRCC shop, including doing things like measuring brakes for runout and thickness variation, installing helicoils and other automotive service processes. He also pointed out that the marine program also had its state competition in the same shop.

The Kingswood senior participated in the same competition last year and finished in third place before returning this year to finish first in the state. His first place finish this year qualified him to compete in the SkillsUSA National Leadership Skills competition, which will be held June 1-5 in Atlanta, Ga.

At LRTC, on the campus of Kingswood Regional High School in Wolfeboro, the two-year automotive technology program is designed for both male and female students interested in developing mechanical and technical skills in repairing and servicing automobiles. Both two and four-cycle engines are studied to include many applications of these systems in modern automobiles. Safe and proper use of many tools and pieces of equipment found in today's automotive repair shops are stressed and welding equipment is introduced.

Second year activities sharpen and expand skills attained in the first year and also include introduction to automobile diagnostics and tune-up procedures covering larger internal combustion engines using both gas and diesel fuels. Students study the major components of today's automobile and gain experience with electrical and electronics systems, steering and suspension, power train, brakes, and related tools and diagnostic equipment.

The SkillsUSA Championships is the premier showcase of America's most highly skilled career and technical education students. It's also one of the largest hands-on workforce development events in the world. This event features more than 6,700 state champions from across the United States competing head-to-head in 114 skilled and leadership competitions.

The event is held at the Georgia World Congress Center in Atlanta, and it covers more than 1.79 million square feet of floor space, the equivalent of 31 football fields. The philosophy of the SkillsUSA Championships is to reward students for excellence, to involve industry in directly evaluating student performance and to keep classroom training relevant to employers' needs.

Competitions are created, overseen, and judged by nearly 2,000 industry volunteers, each committed to building the next generation of skilled professionals, career-ready leaders and responsible community members on which the future depends.

Local winners advance to district or regional competitions, testing their skills against competitors from other schools. Those winners advance to state competitions each spring, and state gold medalists earn the right to compete nationally at the SkillsUSA Championships each June. Along with gold, silver and bronze medallions, competitors may earn scholarships, tools of the trade, and even job offers right off the competition floor.

Bernier will head to Atlanta in June for the SkillsUSA National Leadership Skills competition, where his work will be put to the test against other students from around the United States.

Touch-a-Plane, Touch-a-Truck at Laconia Airport

GILFORD — Winn Aero, the STEM education non-profit for youth, is pleased to announce that it will again sponsor, with the Laconia Airport Authority, the annual Open House event on Saturday, May 9. The popular family-oriented event, dubbed "Wings, Water & Wheels," will operate in the "touch a plane, touch a truck" format.

"We'll have several aircraft owners displaying their airplanes and expect a local marina to display their boats, along with Gilford Fire and Police, and Sheriff's vehicles, large excavators and snow-plows," stated Karen Mitchell, WinnAero President.

The Belknap County SWAT vehicle will also be on display. Expected to round out the displays will be a construction crane, an oil truck and other construction vehicles.

"This is an excellent opportunity to speak directly with the pilots, operators, police and fire personnel about their planes, vehicles and careers," Mitchell added.

Kids will be able to "fly" using the WinnAero Flight Simulators, speak to members of the Civil Air Patrol and the ACE Academy Summer Camps. Kids under 18 may also fly free orientation flights at the event thanks to the local chapter of the EAA. The World's largest association of aircraft owners is donating their aircraft and pilots to fly kids, free of charge, on "Young Eagle Flights"; pre-register at www.eaachapters.org. Pine Tree Helicopters will be offering helo rides for a fee to children and adults.

Laconia Airport gates open at 9 a.m. on May 9, and the event will run until 2 p.m. Wings, Water Wheels is WinnAero's main fundraiser to help deliver aviation and aerospace education to youth throughout New Hampshire. An admission of $5 per person or $20 per family is gratefully accepted to support this mission. Youth registered for Young Eagle flights get free admission. There will also be a 50/50 cash raffle at the Open House. A Food Truck for food and drinks will be available. WinnAero appreciates the financial and in-kind support from the Laconia Airport Authority, The Bank of New Hampshire, the EAA, Granite State Glass, SkyBright Aviation, The Glidden Trust, Pine Tree Helicopters and Emerson Aviation. Besides Wings, Water & Wheels, WinnAero is also gearing up to operate its ACE Academy week-long day camps in July. As of today, 82 campers are enrolled while 30 slots remain open for interested youth. The openings are in Aeromedical Aviation, Air Traffic Control, Girls in Aviation, Pre-Ground School and Search & Rescue. For more information, please visit www.winn aero.org.
