LACONIA — The Streetcar Company is proud to be partnering with The Laconia Putnam Fund to bring a “Night of Music” to the Colonial Theater on Saturday, Oct. 8. The show represents a culmination of music and fun from the 50th years that Streetcar has been performing as the oldest Lakes Region community theater group.

In 1972, a small group of people held an organizational meeting & formed what is now known as The Streetcar Company. The goal was, and still is, to provide fine year-round entertainment “Oz.” Kelli Powers returns with “Mary Poppins” and David Nelson brings “Grease” back to life. There are 35 singers in this cast, many of them family, spouses and friends. Doug, Deanna & Olie Bartlett represent 3 generations of Streetcar members. Music is being directed by Karen Jordan, whose first show was in 1980. Also helping on production are Lynn Dadian and Kristi Laurendeau. Phil Breton, who has also been with the company for years, is the accompanist and will play keyboard for the show, along with Ray Craigie on bass and Jesse Powers on drums.

at reasonable prices to the Lakes Region, and to encourage, develop and provide a stimulus for participation of non-professional and original talent in all phases of theater. The Streetcar Company was chosen as a name, reminiscent of the Laconia Car Company, which had been located on Water Street in Laconia & who manufactured railway cars and streetcars that were sold throughout the country at the turn of the century. Now 50 years later, the theater company has produced more than 75 musicals, 35 straight plays, comedies and dramas, as well as 11 children’s theater shows and awarded some 40 scholarships.

“A Night of Music” is being directed by Becky Guyer of Sanbornton, who has been with the group for all 50 years. This musical celebration features many veteran members from past shows along with some new faces. Ellen & Paul Stickney are back reprising roles from “Fiddler on the Roof” and “Sound of Music”, as well as Kristi Laurendeau from “Hello Dolly” and “Wizard of Oz,” Bo Guyer singing songs from his roles as PT Barnum, Tevye from “Fiddler” and the Cowardly Lion from

Celebrate the colors of Fall on the M/S Mount Washington

LACONIA — The days are getting shorter, but Lake Winnepesaukee has its own special charm in the fall. Celebrate New Hampshire's colorful fall foliage season aboard the M/S Mount Washington. Cruising Lake Winnepesaukee offers the opportunity to enjoy some of New England's best leaf peeping from the comfort and perspective of the M/S Mount Washington. The iconic boat is celebrating her own milestone in 2022, 150 years cruising on the big lake.

The lake is one of the last areas in the state for foliage to appear, and nature has saved the best for last. The mountain ranges surrounding the lake start earlier, meaning there's plenty of leaf peeping to be had from late September through late October.

Daily cruises are offered from Weirs Beach at 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. From Wolfeboro, the ship departs at 11:15 a.m. Monday through Saturday. On Sundays, the Mount Washington offers a departure from Alton Bay at 11:15 a.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays dinner cruises are available from Weirs Beach, early enough to view the variety of fall's colors and see the sun set on Lake Winnepesaukee.

The M/S Mount Washington is a 230-foot ship with 4 levels, 3 dance floors, and several outside areas for enjoying the cruise during the daytime or evening.

The family-owned Mount operates May through October, offering daytime scenic, evening dinner & dance, and special themed cruises. Washington. The first was the S.S. Mount Washington, a 178-foot wooden side-wheeler built and launched in 1872 by the Boston & Maine Railroad.

The current ship was launched in 1940, and has become a symbol for the state she served.

The train rides include a complete turkey dinner aboard special rail trips catered by Hart's Turkey Farm. The round-trip excursion departs Meredith Station and travels south along the western shore of Lake Winnepesaukee through Weirs Beach and Paugus Bay towards Lakeport, and returns along the same rail line.

Travelers aboard the historic railcars enjoy panoramic views of New Hampshire's largest lake, passing along some of the many beautiful lakeside vacation homes along the way. The meal includes freshly carved roast turkey, stuffing, whipped potato, butter nut squash, gravy, rolls & butter and warm apple crisp for dessert.

"The combination of good food from Harts and riding the rails in historic rail cars provide riders with a great cost-effective fall adventure," said Ben Clark, Vice President of the railroad. "It's a great and unique experience for couples, friends and families at a wonderful time of the year."

Winter may be coming, but don't despair

So often, people strive to become happier by doing this, or obtaining that; however, sometimes it's what we give up that makes us more content. With the fast drop in temperatures, down into the 30's we know winter is coming. (For those of you out there who are fans of the "Game of Thrones" books or television franchise, you're welcome for the reference.)

For longtime New England residents, winter is a dreaded season. It's not so much the snow, as it is the frigid temperatures and high cost of fuel. We happen to enjoy the fall and winter seasons but for those who are having glum feelings about the colder weather, or even for those who love all weather, we have some tips on some things you can toss, to create more happiness in your world.

One thing you can say 'be gone' to is the idea that you have to always have a positive outlook on any given situation. If you try to avoid negative feelings all of the time, you're not creating a healthy space for when you are truly happy. If you need to vent, do it. If you're upset and need to cry into a bowl of ice cream, have at it. It is your overall life satisfaction that matters.

Minimize your time on social media. Remember the days when you didn't know what your friends, family or even celebrities were doing every second of the day? Those were blissful times. The only way we knew what someone was up to was to pick up the phone, wait for the dial tone, and make that call. We're not sure we ever inquired about what our friends were eating. All of that unnecessary knowledge is overwhelming at times, and simply put, unnecessary. One study showed that the more time people spend on social media, the more depressed they are. When we spend too much time online we know that we are wasting time. The idea of wasting time can inflict a feeling of depression on anyone who is typically highly motivated and energetic. Documenting every aspect of your life can be exhausting and takes away from the actual experience. If you order a rack of lamb, just enjoy every bit of it without feeling the need to share it with the world. Your experiences will be more fulfilling overall.

Don't compare yourself to others. We are fans of the phrase 'No one is you, and that is your power.' People have been comparing themselves to others since the dawn of time. The idea of keeping up with the Joneses is outdated. Don't do that. Love the idea that the person sitting next to you or walking down the street is nothing like you.

Keep likeminded company. If you have friends who are Eeyore like or always seem to be complaining, less is more. We don't have time in our precious lives to listen to chronic complaining. At the end of your life, do you want to think to yourself, 'Wow I spent so much time listening to people complain?' We're guessing you don't.

Have realistic goals. If you start with lower expectations and grow from there your success rate in reaching your higher goals will be greater and less stressful to obtain.

Forgive others. This one is extremely hard. However, forgiving those who have hurt you is key to feeling relaxed and happy.

Eating too much sugar can lead to depression. Balance in your meals has been scientifically proven to make people happier. More vegetables, more fiber and less processed food.

Opt to spend your money on experiences rather than things. Experts say the satisfaction of an experience will last much longer.

Lastly, choose good posture. While sitting up you automatically feel more energetic and positive. Slouching can lead to feel nervous, sleepy, sluggish and fearful.

A quote by Jim Rohn sums it up: "Happiness is not something you postpone for the future; it is something you design for the present."

North Country Notebook

There's no state line in an alder swamp

By JOHN HARRIGAN
COLUMNIST

In the fall of 1973 or so, a friend working for the state's Department of Transportation called me up and said "Hey, do you have any business in Errol next week?"

Having none that I knew of, I said "Why?" which is often my downfall in these scenarios. Well, he knew of this surveying crew that was trying to find the Maine-New Hampshire state line.

This sounded too good to pass up. Family business beckoned anyway. The very next week I was up there, north of Errol, just south of the Magalloway (Maine) Town Hall, ready to plunge into a maze of alders above Umbagog Lake.

Route 16 crosses the Little Magalloway River there into Maine, and continues to Rangeley and beyond, and the survey crew was supposed to be down in the alder swamps somewhere. Frost had shriveled the shrubbery, and the leaves were off. The survey crew, I guessed, must be just about done.

I came upon a DOT truck parked to one side, parked my rig with it, donned my pack, grabbed my camera, and plunged into the swamp.

This was a confused and confusing section of the state line, I knew from scrutinizing my topo-maps. Above Lake Umbagog, as the old river-drivers loved to say, the state line wanders around like the town tramp.

Bearing southwest seemed a sensible approach, and after a few minutes I came upon the surveying crew, working quietly away there in the swamp. Every now and then someone would sight through a transit, and others would use axes to swamp out the line.

If all this sounds pretty rough, bear in mind that this was long before a plethora of satellites and GPS. No doubt the state line has been swamped out since, and with far better precision.

The last time this section of the Maine-New Hampshire line had been done was about 30 years before, one of the older men told me. Like this current crew, they'd looked for signs of older work, and found none.

The idea on this day was for the crew to clear and mark the line with ribbon until they hit Umbagog, upon which everyone could head for the highway and home. The swamp would just shrug it all off.

In the mid-1870s,

a decade had passed since the horrors of the Civil War, and states were getting back to everyday life, like boundaries.

Apparently, the Maine-New Hampshire boundary was a mess, the result of lack of state control over recording of deeds and overlapping jurisdictions. It was evident to all that a special commission had to preside over a thorough arbitration of this messy situation so that people could get on with the warp and woof of life.

Therefore, both states authorized funds and appointed commissioners, and got down to business. The need for new surveying and adjudication were obvious, as were resultant complaints, legislation, and lawsuits. The Commission was to issue its report in 1874.

You'd think that such a report would be eagerly anticipated, but the reference to it, which I hope to follow up soon, says it only runs to 15 pages.

Comfort Keepers

Having the conversation about Alzheimer’s

BY MARTHA SWATS
Owner/Administrator
Comfort Keepers

Needing to have a talk about Alzheimer’s disease or memory loss with a parent can be a daunting task for many adult children. For seniors, the idea of being diagnosed with Alzheimer’s disease can trigger fear, anxiety, or even grief. It’s no wonder some adult children put the conversation off, once they see the initial signs in their loved one. What’s more, if the afflicted senior already has impaired judgment or memory loss from the disease, it may already be too late for a rational, cohesive conversation about it. In any case, it’s wise to approach the topic - and your loved one - with great sensitivity and care.

Taking your loved one to see the doctor

Symptoms related to the early signs of Alzheimer’s disease, such as memory loss, confusion, mood swings, changes in personality, difficulty completing certain tasks or finding the correct word could also be caused by a number of other medical or psychiatric problems. Mentioning that your loved one’s symptoms could be the result of another underlying issue may make him or her more willing to visit the doctor for a full examination and a proper diagnosis.

You may also want to consider offering to go to the doctor with your loved one as part of a morning or afternoon outing, such as going to lunch, shopping, or some other activity. An enjoyable event could take the sting out of having to visit the doctor for a firm diagnosis.

Once Alzheimer’s has been diagnosed

How you approach your loved one to talk about an Alzheimer’s diagnosis can depend on your relationship with him or her. Are you close enough to have a frank conversation, and will the senior readily welcome your suggestions and help? Or does your loved one tend to keep things private, and could become embarrassed or self-conscious? Will he or she feel insulted? However, you approach your parent, it is imperative for him or her to feel supported and encouraged during this difficult time.

Researchers have found that families who don’t discuss the disease with their loved one may witness increased fear and paranoia. Instead, it is better to be open about it, while reassuring your loved one that it is a fairly common brain illness. Tell him or her that there is nothing that could have been done to prevent it, but there are things that can help slow the disease and you will do your best to help. Also, allay any fear of abandonment. While it’s scary to think of losing memory and forgetting the family, it is even more frightening to think that the family will forget them. Ease your loved one’s anxiety by telling him or her that no matter what happens, you will get through it together.

Discussing the diagnosis

Hearing about an Alzheimer’s diagnosis from one’s child can be hard to take, but chances are your loved one already knows that something is going on long before a doctor reaches a diagnosis - and he or she has the right to know what is happening. Here are some suggestions on how to discuss the disease:

- Informing your parent may enable him or her to participate in making important medical, legal, financial, long-term care, and end-of-life decisions. How involved he or she is will depend on the current state of the disease symptoms.
- He or she may not be able to totally understand the diagnosis or may deny what you say. If so, accept this reaction for now, and avoid further detailed explanations of the disease until later.

- You may choose to disclose the diagnosis at a family meeting attended by your loved one, other family members, a trusted friend, or even a member of the clergy or a social worker. You also may want to invite a health-care professional who works with those who are cognitively impaired.
- Write up some simple answers to a loved one’s questions, or encourage them to speak with his or her doctor about concerns.
- Reassure your loved one. Let them know that you will provide ongoing help and support, and do whatever is possible to improve their quality of life.
- Treat the person as an adult, and don’t downplay the disease. As dementia progresses, remain open to the person’s need to talk about their illness and its implications - such as their ability to work, drive, and manage finances.
- Allow your loved one to express his or her feelings, which may include anger, frustration, and disappointment. Be aware of non-verbal signs of sadness, anger or anxiety, and respond with love and reassurance.
- Watch for signs of clinical depression, which could result from being told that Alzheimer’s is a terminal illness, and consult with a physician if needed.

• He or she may not be able to totally understand the diagnosis or may deny what you say. If so, accept this reaction for now, and

Edward Jones: Financial Focus

Should you stick with index-based investments?

You may have heard that you can simplify your investment strategy just by owning index-based or passive investments. But is this a good idea? You’ll want to consider the different aspects of this type of investment style. To begin with, an index-based investment is a vehicle such as a mutual fund or an exchange-traded fund (ETF) that mimics the performance of a market benchmark, or index — the Dow Jones Industrial Average, the S&P 500, and so on. (An ETF is similar to a mutual fund in that it holds a variety of investments but differs in that it is traded like a common stock.) You can also invest in index funds that track the bond market. Index investing does offer some benefits. Most notably, it’s a buy-and-hold strategy, which is typically more effective than a market-timing approach, in which individuals try to buy investments when their prices are down and sell them when the prices rise. Attempts to time the market this way are usually futile because nobody can really predict when high and low points will be reached. Plus, the very act of constantly buying and selling investments can generate commissions and fees, which can lower your overall rate of return. Thus, index investing generally involves lower fees and is considered more tax efficient than a more active investing style. Also, when the financial markets are soaring, which happened for several years until this year’s downturn, index-based investments can certainly look pretty good — after all, when the major indexes go up, index funds will do the same. Conversely, during a correction, when the market drops at least 10% from recent highs, or during a bear market, when prices fall 20% or more, index-based investments will likely follow the same downward path. And there are also other issues to consider with index-based investments. For one thing, if you’re investing with the objective of matching an index, you may be overlooking the key factors that should be driving your investment decisions — your goals and your risk tolerance. An index is a completely impersonal benchmark measuring the performance of a specific set of investments — but it can’t be a measuring stick of your own progress. Furthermore, a single index, by definition, can’t be as diversified as the type of portfolio you might need to achieve your objectives. For example, the S&P 500 may track a lot of companies, but they’re predominantly large ones. And to achieve your objectives, you may need a portfolio consisting of large- and small-company stocks, bonds, government securities and other investments. (Keep in mind, though, that while diversification can give you more opportunities for success and can reduce the effects of volatility on your portfolio, it can’t guarantee profits or prevent all losses.) Ultimately, diversifying across different types of investments that align with your risk tolerance and goals — regardless of whether they track an index — is the most important consideration for your investment portfolio. Use this idea as your guiding principle as you journey through the investment world.

Before investing in bonds, you should understand the risks involved, including credit risk and market risk. Bond investments are also subject to interest rate risk such that when interest rates rise, the prices of bonds can decrease, and the investor can lose principal value if the investment is sold prior to maturity.

Hannaford Supermarkets proud to return as Presenting Sponsor for Children's Auction

LACONIA — The Greater Lakes Region Children's Auction is pleased to announce that Hannaford Supermarkets will return as the presenting sponsor for its 2022 fundraising event, which provides grants to dozens of local nonprofit organizations to support programs focused on children in need and their families. The Auction will be held at the Belknap Marketplace on Dec. 6-9 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Hannaford has been a loyal supporter of the Auction for more than 20 years, donating funds, items, and employee volunteer hours, and this is the third year the organization is filling the critical role of Presenting Sponsor.

"Community is so important to us," said Sherri Stevens, manager of community relations for Hannaford Supermarkets. "We're incredibly proud to stand with the many caring individuals and organizations across the Greater Lakes region who invest time, money, and talents to make this Auction a success every year."

"This is for the health of our children and the well-being of our communities today and into the future," Stevens added. "The Auction embodies the spirit of community. It has a long-lasting impact on those who benefit from the funds raised—and the people who take part in it as well."

In addition to providing much-needed funding, Hannaford also offers support to the Auction by providing volunteers. Larry Poliquin, store manager in Franklin, has been volunteering for the Auction in various roles for roughly 30 years, as long as he has worked at Hannaford. He keeps Hannaford connected to the Auction.

Poliquin serves on the Children's Auction Board of Directors and its Disbursement Committee, which reviews all the applications from local nonprofit organizations hoping to receive funds and makes determinations.

"We appreciate that Hannaford supports so many employees in giving back to the community," Poliquin said. "That's what keeps us strong."

Jaimie Sousa, chair of the Greater Lakes Region Children's Auction, praised Hannaford for its ongoing dedication and support, adding "We are very pleased to welcome Hannaford back as the Auction's 2022 Presenting Sponsor. The Hannaford team not only dedicates much needed funds to community organizations like the Children's Auction, but also encourages their employees to get involved. Their broad support demonstrates true dedication to the community, and we could not be more grateful for this continued partnership."

Since the Fund's inception, nearly 550 grants have been awarded, totaling more than $1.7 million dollars in contributions to a wide range of environmental, social, educational and historic projects throughout the greater Lakes Region, Plymouth and Seacoast areas of New Hampshire.

LRSO announces 2022-2023 season

MEREDITH — The Meredith-based Lakes Region Symphony Orchestra (LRSO) is pleased to announce its upcoming 2022-2023 season. Celebrating our 47th year, the LRSO introduces its jam packed concert lineup with concerts from November 2022 through May 2023. The full schedule, venue information, individual and new discount tickets are available now at www.LRSO.org.

On Nov. 5, we continue our partnership with Plymouth State University's Hanaway Theater for our first performance of the new season. Our first Holiday concert on December 10th will be held at the Colonial Theatre in Laconia. For the balance of our four concerts in December, March, and May we continue our longstanding partnership at Inter-Lakes Auditorium in Meredith.

New this season – Discount "Inter-Lakes" Ticket Packages for performances in Meredith. Order your tickets online, select your seats, and be assured of getting the same great seats for all Inter-Lakes performances. Visit www.LRSO.org for more details.

As always, this season is filled with a variety of Classical and Popular classics to appeal to every taste. Our season opener "Dance the Night Away" on Nov. 5 features the winner of the LRSO's 2022 Student Concerto Competition, Sean Jang performing the first movement of Sibelius' "Violin Concerto in D minor." We also feature PSU's Director of Bands and Assistant Professor of Instrumental Music Education, outstanding trombonist Jared Staub performing Concerto for Bass Trombone by Eric Ewazen. November also delivers the programmed "dances" "Polovtsian Dances" by Borodin,

"Norwegian Dances" by Grieg, and opens with "Intermezzo, Cavallaria Rusticana" by Mascagni. If you haven't been to the Silver Center for an orchestral performance, please treat yourself to this event. The staging and acoustics are superb.

It never gets old! Back once again by popular demand is vocalist Michael Gallagan as our featured guest performing an all-new selection of holiday favorites in December's "Christmas with the Crooners". The Dec. 10 performance is at the Colonial Theatre in Laconia, and the Dec. 11 performance at Inter-Lakes Auditorium in Meredith. Michael performs a brand new mix of holiday carols and favorites by Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, Josh Groban, Andy Williams, and more. Get tickets early. These performances sell out.

On March 25, we present "Haydn Seek," a concert with two of Haydn's majestic works – his final symphony, "Symphony No. 104 'London,'" and "Concerto in C Major for Cello" featuring LRSO's own Kari Jukka-Pekka (JP) Vainio. We toss in a mix of "West Side Story" by Leonard Bernstein, the lighter touch of Vivaldi's Concerto for Two Flutes (featuring the second place finishers in our 2022 concerto competition), and the beloved "Humoresque" by Dvorak.

LRSO ends its season with two fabulous concerts on May 13 & 14 at Inter-Lakes Auditorium in Meredith entitled "Gershwin Blue." These concerts feature Meredith resident and LRSO pianist Chris Mega performing George Gershwin's great American classic "Rhapsody in Blue." This is the centerpiece for the surrounding instrumental and vocal pieces of the Gershwin era including the Gershwin Brothers' "S Wonderful," "Embraceable You," "Summertime," "But Not For Me," and others from Cole Porter, George M. Cohan, John Philip Sousa, and "Chattanooga Choo Choo" by Glenn Miller. We welcome to the stage actress and singer Madison MacNeill from the Power-house Theatre Collaborative, the resident theatre company at the Colonial Theatre. These performances are not to be missed!

Tickets are available now at www.LRSO.org. And again – new this year are Discount Ticket Packages for the Inter-Lakes performances – check them out, get great seats, and save some money!

Tickets for the November performance at Plymouth State University should be available by Oct. 1. You can order by phone with numbers listed with each event. Adult ticket prices range from $20 - $30 with discount tickets available for students elementary through college-age with ID. We highly encourage you to sign up for our Email list at our www.LRSO.org/contact to keep you informed during the season.

If you read this far, thank you! We are exploring the idea of a "Friends of the LRSO" group of volunteers that can assist with tasks throughout the season. If you are skilled in finance, graphic design, writing/PR, fundraising, moving equipment, ushering, etc. and are interested in helping out, please get in touch with us at www.LRSO.org/contact or introduce yourself at any of the concerts.

As always, we appreciate your patronage and look forward to seeing you at the concerts.
