New Durham's Tuesdays at the Park concerts return July 7

NEW DURHAM — After uncertainty surrounding funding for this year's concert series, the New Durham community has once again stepped up to ensure that a beloved summer tradition continues.

The New Durham Public Library and New Durham Parks & Recreation are excited to announce the return of 'Tuesdays' at the Park, a free family-friendly summer concert series held on Tuesday evenings in the summer.

Concerts will take place from 6-8 p.m. each Tuesday starting July 7, and will conclude with a special National Night Out celebration on Tuesday, Aug. 4, starting at 5 p.m.

Last year, Tuesdays at the Park was made possible through grant funding. Unfortunately, due to changes in federal funding priorities and reductions to available grant opportunities, organizers were unable to secure grant support for the 2026 season.

"After such a successful first year, we were really hoping to bring Tuesdays back and begin building it into a community tradition," said Caitlin Frost, Director of the New Durham Public Library. "The response from families, local organizations, and community members last summer was incredible. When we learned grant funding wouldn't be available this year, we knew we had to find another way to make it happen because we didn't want to lose the momentum and excitement that was created in year one."

Thanks to generous donors

Congregational Church of North Barnstead welcomes new pastor

BARNSTEAD — The congregation at the Congregational Church of North Barnstead is very excited to share that we have called Heather Ivone Milliken to be our Pastor and Teacher.

Some may know Milliken because she grew up in Barnstead where her father and stepmother still reside in their family home. Heather is excited to serve in her hometown and neighboring communities. She looks forward to reconnecting with old friends and to make new ones!

Milliken earned her BA at Boston University in Philosophy and Religion, intending to pursue ministry. Her life took a different path and she subsequently earned an MBA from Bentley University and had a very successful career for two decades in information

We invite you to come meet Pastor Heather at one of our church events and on Sunday mornings, 10 a.m. at 504 North Barnstead Rd. in Center Barnstead. Alton Board of Selectmen Updates

BY RICHARD SHEA

ALTON BOARD OF SELECTMEN

ALTON — The Alton Board of Selectmen's meeting on June 23 covered several issues. Here is a brief review of the major items:

-The presentation from Epic Seaplane Adventures seeking to establish a seaplane dock in Alton Bay was rescheduled for the Selectmen's next meeting on July 14.

-Town Clerk/Tax Collector Jennifer Collins presented a list of properties with delinquent taxes which will now have tax liens placed. She reported there was approximately $45,000 delinquent in total, with 134 properties affected. Many of those had relatively small overdue amounts.

-IT manager Josh Monaco came before the Board to discuss actions needed to improve the town website. He is aware of many of the issues and is in the process of making improvements. The Board discussed several additional areas to be worked and included input from residents. A further review and update will be scheduled for a future meeting, likely in July.

-The Board approved funding for Fire Department Captain Pat O'Brien to attend paramedic training. This requires weekly classes over a full year, with further "hands-on" style training at medical facilities. The tuition cost is $13,650, which has been budgeted for, and the higher billing rates permitted by insurance companies for ambulance services where a paramedic is involved are likely to repay this cost.

-Town Administrator Ryan Heath announced the hiring of Richard Therien as building inspector/zone enforcement officer. He has been building inspector in New Durham for the past 3 years but elected to leave when that town changed the position from full time to part time. He also ran his own construction firm for 13 years, so is very familiar with the issues contractors face. He will start within the next week.

Ryan also announced the following personnel changes and additions:

-Promotion of Douglas Koby to the position of Solid Waste Manager at the Recycling Center. Doug has been our scale house operator for the past year and has done an excellent job.

-Hiring of Jacob Guarino as a solid waste attendant, starting July 10. He comes to Alton from New Durham, where he held a similar position.

-Hiring James Gillis as part time assistant to the Town Clerk. James held this position some time ago so comes to us fully trained and thoroughly familiar with the department.

-The town has received the Alteration of Terrain permit from the state, which will allow the finishing and clean-up of the property on Hidden Springs Road to proceed, likely starting by early July.

-Legal issues surrounding the status of Breezeline as town-authorized internet service provider have been resolved. A draft agreement should be available within the next 2 weeks, after which a public hearing will be scheduled.

-Nothing further has been heard regarding the Alton Power Dam removal plans. The town will contact Executive Councilor Joe Kenney for an update.

-The American Legion will hold an event on July 3 from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. to celebrate the Nation's 250th anniversary. There will be a cookout, games and activities for kids. The public is invited. There will also be a ceremonial playing of Taps at the Alton Bay land bandstand prior to the fireworks that evening.

Author's note: This article is offered as part of an effort to better inform Alton residents about the activities of town government. I am not authorized to speak for the Board of Selectmen, and this posting represents only my impressions and views.

Friends of Wolfeboro Community Bandstand gearing up for new season

WOLFEBORO — The Friends of the Wolfeboro Community Bandstand are ready to open the Saturday night free concert series in Cate Park in downtown Wolfeboro.

After the Cate Park Band plays the first Saturday of the summer with its annual Fourth of July pre-fireworks concert, the season will kick off on Saturday, July 11, and continues each Saturday through July and August and finishes up on Saturday, Sept. 5.

The season features a little bit of everything for music lovers of all kinds. The first act in the bandstand will be the Windham Community Band, playing the classic concert band repertoire that includes pieces from Broadway, popular medleys, jazz, swing, marches and other favorites. That concert is set for July 11.

That will be followed up by the Soggy Po' Boys on Saturday, July 18, bringing the sounds of New Orleans music across the Northeast as they play at concert halls, street corners, music festivals, bars, libraries and wherever else a party is required.

The Michael Vincent Band will take the bandstand on Saturday, July 25. A three-piece blues band from central New England, the group has been touring and playing together for more than a decade, bringing the sound of the blues to the bandstand.

The month of August in the Wolfeboro Community Bandstand kicks off with the bluegrass, folk and roots sound of High Range on Saturday, Aug. 1. The band plays original music with a mix of covers on guitar, bass, mandolin, fiddle, banjo and drums.

The Compaq Big Band takes the bandstand on Saturday, Aug. 8, bringing a big band repertoire that begins with the classics from the 1930s and 1940s as performed by Glenn Miller, Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey, Count Basie, Duke Ellington and more.

Aug. 15 brings a cappella group Ball in the House back to Wolfeboro, as the Boston-based group continues to sing the hits of artists like the Beach Boys, Jonas Brothers, Gladys Knight, Lionel Richie, Jessica Simpson, Blondie, The Temptations and so many more, all without instruments.

Jimmy and the Jesters will take the bandstand on Saturday, Aug. 22. The four-piece band plays rock and roll songs from the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s and also sprinkle in some classic country songs from the same era.

The penultimate concert of the summer season will be the Eric Grant Band on Saturday, Aug. 29. This Gilford-based band has played in front of thousands of fans in Northern New England since 2009 and have opened for many national headliners in that time.

The final concert of the summer season will be on Saturday, Sept. 5, with Billy D and the Rock-Its. This band will bring the greatest Doo Wop and early rock and roll classics to the bandstand with an eight-piece show band with the style and the sound of the 1950s and 1960s.

The concerts run from 7 to 9 p.m. in Cate Park in downtown Wolfeboro. Though there is no charge for the concert, a pass-the-hat offering is taken at intermission to help support the Friends of the Wolfeboro Community Bandstand's mission to bring quality acts to Wolfeboro every summer. The concerts are subject to weather conditions. If bad weather is threatening and the concert has to be postponed, there will be a sign posted at the park entrance near the town docks and will be posted online at wolfeborobandstand.org and on the group's Facebook page.

Keeping community traditions alive

Summer traditions have a way of becoming part of a town's identity. Whether it's an annual parade, a farmer's market, a holiday celebration, or an evening concert in the park, these gatherings create something that can't be measured on a balance sheet. They give neighbors a chance to slow down, reconnect, and remember what makes a community feel like home.

That is why the return of Tuesdays at the Park in New Durham is worth celebrating.

When grant funding that supported the inaugural concert series disappeared, it would have been easy to accept that the program had run its course. Across the country, organizations are finding that grants once considered reliable are becoming more competitive or disappearing altogether. Too often, worthwhile community programs become casualties of circumstances beyond local control.

Instead, New Durham chose a different path.

Residents, businesses, organizations, and donors stepped forward to ensure that the music would continue. Their contributions demonstrate an important truth: while grants can launch a program, it is local support that ultimately determines whether it becomes a lasting tradition.

The success of Tuesdays at the Park extends well beyond the music itself. It creates a place where families spread out blankets, children play with friends, grandparents catch up with neighbors, and newcomers meet longtime residents. Those simple interactions strengthen the social fabric that holds small towns together.

In an era when entertainment is increasingly consumed through screens and schedules often pull families in different directions, opportunities to gather face-to-face have become even more valuable. There is something refreshing about spending a summer evening outdoors listening to live music while children laugh nearby and local organizations connect with the people they serve.

The partnership between the New Durham Public Library and Parks & Recreation also deserves recognition. Libraries today are about much more than books, and recreation departments do far more than organize sports leagues. Together, they have shown how public institutions can work creatively to bring people together and improve quality of life.

The decision to include local vendors is another welcome touch. Community events succeed when they provide opportunities for local businesses, nonprofits, and artisans to participate. Those connections often outlast the event itself, creating relationships that benefit everyone throughout the year.

Perhaps the most fitting conclusion to this year's series will be National Night Out in early August. Bringing together police officers, public works employees, families, and community organizations reminds everyone that public safety is strongest when people know one another. A child who climbs into a police cruiser during Touch-a-Truck or helps paint a snowplow may walk away with a completely different perspective on the people who serve the community every day.

The real lesson behind this year's concert series is that traditions are not sustained by government funding alone. They endure because people decide they are worth preserving. Every donation, every volunteer hour, every business sponsorship, and every family that attends helps ensure that these gatherings become part of the town's story.

Communities often discover their character during moments of uncertainty. Faced with the possibility of losing a popular event, New Durham didn't simply hope someone else would solve the problem. Its residents solved it together.

That's music worth listening to all summer long.

LETTERS FROM EDWIN

That's It

It's Tuesday before the last day of school for the year, and I'm subbing. Right now, I'm filling up spaces in time between various teachers end of the year obligations in addition to my assigned teacher. Most of what needs to be done has been completed, some last-minute cramming is evident, lots of hanging around and talking.

Last period, I was in an English class that was watching some Lord of the Rings thing. Even that can't keep the constant chatter from happening. I saw the movie many years ago, but don't remember these scenes. That's pretty standard for me, though. I'm so easy to entertain.

Right now, I'm in the Health teacher's chair. He had to go to an assembly for the middle school, this is a high school class. It's an interesting time. Grades are pretty much closed and the kids just need to hang around, wasting their time, so that they attend their required however many days of school. This is where they learn that in life, we waste a lot of time.

The Band classes were chopped up between the two assemblies. I don't suspect that any music is going to happen here today. A couple of students tried to get things going, but all the others interests were concentrated in different directions. Nothing much changed when the high schoolers joined us.

It's one of those messed up time days. Everything has been altered to allow for other things. The normal flow has been altered. I just sit here awaiting the next class of kids to show up. And they have three more days of this. I'm not open till Friday, and don't expect to get called in on the last day of school, so this is probably it for this year, as anti-climatic as it is.

I'll fill out my time card, drive out of the parking lot and down the street, and be done for a few months. When I come back, the returning kids will all be different. More grown, changed. Summer does that. I just recalled this kid who the previous year was a small chubby smart aleck. This year I didn't recognize him till I put two and two together and realized that he was now a tall lanky smart aleck.

My attendance sheet says that I'm supposed to have a class right now. Starting ten minutes ago. I guess they are off doing something else. They're certainly not all goofing off. Looking at their names, most of them would always be here. It wouldn't be the first time schedule changes didn't get forwarded to the sub guy. I'll coolly sit here till next period. If nobody shows for that class, I'll head home as it's the last class of the day.

The missing class just showed up. Perfect attendance. So much for accurate paper work. I've learned to just go with the flow. It's the machinery of schools. Those papers may have been accurate at the beginning of the year. I remember that when I subbed for one teacher, I didn't have to rush into school as he had first period free. After Christmas break, I continued my casual commute to school to find out that he now had a first period class. Nothing stays the same.

There used to be this really nice dirt road near my house. Coming up the big hill, there was an underground stream that would come out right in the middle and freeze every winter. With the road nicely mantled by large trees, it was a nice little cruise through antiquity. This historic pathway was there long before I moved into the neighborhood.

After about twenty years, the tree canopy was opened up to let in the light, so now ferns and poison ivy can grow, and they decided to pave it. So now it is nicely paved. It never acted like some dirt roads do during mud season so I question why invest in paving it. That just makes it into a race track. Here's a little post note: paved roads are projected to last ten years. This road, in the middle of the hill, there is a section that for some reason, all the pavement just sort of crumbles up every winter. Some things do keep pretty consistent.

The final class consists of a big game of UNO, hair do's, some computer captivity, and one practice room being utilized. That's it.

There are some holidays that change as we get older, and then there is the Fourth of July.

As children, it was all about fireworks. As teenagers, it was about being with friends. As young parents, it became a carefully planned evening of sunscreen, bug spray, lawn chairs, snacks, and trying to convince little ones that the fireworks would, in fact, begin after dark. Somewhere along the way, the holiday quietly changes again.

These days, I find myself paying less attention to the explosions in the sky and more attention to the people watching them.

The Fourth of July has always been one of New Hampshire's finest community holidays. We don't celebrate it in giant stadiums or behind locked gates. We celebrate it the old-fashioned way. Main Streets fill with folding chairs hours before the parade. Someone always knows somebody marching. The local fire department rolls past with polished trucks. Veterans receive the loudest applause of the day. Little kids scramble into the street after candy while parents pretend they aren't just as tempted.

Every town puts its own stamp on the celebration. Some have road races before breakfast.

Others begin with pancake breakfasts, concerts on the common, antique cars, boat parades, chicken barbecues, or evening fireworks over a lake. This year carries even more significance as communities across New Hampshire mark America's 250th birthday with special parades, historic exhibits, and hometown celebrations.

What strikes me isn't how different these celebrations are. It's how remarkably similar they remain.

You can drive from one end of the state to the other and find the same unwritten traditions. Someone always forgets the sunscreen. Someone's grandfather wears the same patriotic cap he has owned for twenty years. A local band plays songs everyone somehow knows by heart. There is always a child waving a flag that is almost bigger than they are.

For one afternoon, neighbors who may not have spoken since the last snowstorm end up sitting side by side on a curb, talking as though they had planned it all along.

That may be my favorite part of Independence Day.

We spend so much of

KIND HEARTS,
COLD WINTERS
By CHIPPY

the year rushing from one obligation to another that we rarely give ourselves permission to simply gather. The Fourth doesn't ask us to buy expensive gifts or prepare elaborate meals. It simply invites us outside.

Sit in the shade.

Watch the parade.

Eat something that probably came off a charcoal grill.

Stay until the fireflies appear.

Then look up.

I've always thought fireworks have an odd way of measuring time. Every shell seems to remind you of another July. You remember sitting on a blanket with your parents. Later, you remember carrying your own sleepy child back to the car after the finale. Before you know it, you're the one handing out glow sticks to grandchildren or waving to neighbors from the same spot you've claimed for years.

The fireworks themselves last only a few minutes. The memories echo for decades.

Of course, this year's celebration arrives with more than patriotic fanfare. It reminds us that our country has reached an extraordinary milestone. Two hundred and fifty years is a remarkable achievement for any nation, but anniversaries are not simply about looking backward. They also ask us what kind of neighbors we choose to be today. Fortunately, New Hampshire has always answered that question well.

We organize parades because volunteers show up. Fireworks happen because local businesses donate. Bands play because musicians give their time. Scouts place flags. Veterans march despite aching knees. Police officers direct traffic while everyone else enjoys the evening. None of it happens by accident.

Community isn't something we inherit. It's something we practice. Perhaps that's why I never grow tired of the Fourth of July. Beneath the music, the flags, and the fireworks is something even more enduring: the reminder that a town is strongest when its people decide to celebrate together.

By the time the last burst fades into the summer sky and the smoke drifts away, we're left with something more lasting than bright colors overhead.

We're reminded that freedom may be celebrated once a year, but community is built every day.

Laconia resident Rhea Ganchi named to Worcester Polytechnic Institute's Dean's List

WORCESTER, Mass. — Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) has announced that Rhea Ganchi, a member of the class of 2027 majoring in Civil Engineering, was named to the university's Dean's List for academic excellence for the spring 2026 semester.

The criteria for the WPI Dean's List differ from that of most other universities as WPI does not compute a grade point average (GPA). Instead, WPI students are named to the Dean's List based on the amount of work completed at the A level in courses and hands-on projects.

"WPI's academic programs are rigorous and require a level of independence beyond what is required in traditional courses. WPI students work on real-world, open-ended problems on campus and in communities around the globe. Far from being simple academic exercises, the projects students complete have genuine and lasting impacts in our partner communities," said Provost Andrew Sears. "Some of this nation's best and brightest students come to WPI to study engineering, science, business, and the humanities. Those named to the Dean's List have excelled in all of their work, and we are exceptionally proud of these outstanding students."

About Worcester Polytechnic Institute

Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) is a top-tier, STEM-focused university with an R1 research classification and global leadership in project-based learning. Founded in 1865, WPI's distinctive approach integrates classroom theory with real-world practice, preparing students to tackle critical challenges through inclusive education, impactful projects, and interdisciplinary research. With more than 70 bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degree programs across 18 academic departments and over 50 global project centers, WPI advances knowledge and innovation in fields such as life sciences, smart technologies, advanced materials and manufacturing, and global innovation. A quick trip to New York to close out June

Over the years I have visited New York City many times. Often times it has been for Rob Has A Podcast Survivor events, other times it's been for Olympic press days and other times it's just been to see a Broadway show or two.

With my slower season at this job arriving and with less than a week or so until the busy season started in my other job, I wanted to take a chance to get out of town for a little bit in the last two days off I will have in a row for a while.

So, last Monday afternoon after doing the baking, I headed to Boston and caught the train to New York City, arriving in the rain after 7 p.m. I left my umbrella in the car but grabbed one at the CVS in South Station before leaving Boston and that was helpful as I made my way to the hotel.

I grabbed some dinner at Shake Shack before getting to the hotel and spent my evening doing a lot of editing, helping the editor cover four of our titles while he was dealing with a family emergency. The next morning I took care of organizing and sending all the stuff I had edited to the paginators before heading out for the day.

I left the hotel near Times Square with the idea of walking a bit towards Battery Park, where I had to catch a ferry to the Statue of Liberty. However, since it wasn't really raining, I ended up walking the entire way and got on the ferry a little early. In all my times visiting New York, I had never been out to the Statue of Liberty before, so I thought with a day to myself, I could get out there and see it. Of course it rained a little, but it wasn't too bad and I got up on the pedestal and walked around Liberty Island before catching the ferry to nearby Ellis Island, where I toured the facilities where millions of people made their first steps into America. It was pretty impressive and it was great to see they are refurbishing the building on Ellis Island.

I took the ferry back, had a late lunch and instead of walking all the way back to the hotel, grabbed an Uber. After a short break, I was out again, heading up past Times Square to see Haddesdon and had a late dinner at Junior's. I've seen a number of musicals on Broadway and this one stacked up nicely with some of the others. Earlier in the week I'd seen the national touring production of Les Miserables, my favorite musical of all time, in Boston and later in the week I saw Come From Away at the Winnepesaukee Playhouse, making for a busy week in theater.

My original plan was to see another show on Wednesday afternoon before heading back to Boston, but we had a mandatory meeting at the bakery on Wednesday afternoon, so I caught the early train back to Boston and was back in Wolfeboro by noon.

I am not sure when I will get another chance to go anywhere that isn't work related, so it was good to get a little time outside of Wolfeboro.

Newcomer takes top honors on Mount Washington

Meikael Beaudoin Rousseau tops men's field, Amber Ferrierra leads women

PINKHAM NOTCH — The 65th running of the Delta Dental Mt. Washington Road Race was held in beautiful conditions with calm winds, a rarity on the mountain.

From the gun, Joseph Gray, 42, of Colorado Springs, Colo.—a legend of the race and an eight-time champion—ran shoulder-to-shoulder with Meikael Beaudoin Rousseau, 26, of Boulder, Colo. A former standout at Stanford University, Beaudoin Rousseau has quickly established himself as one of North America's top trail and mountain runners with several major victories already to his name.

The pair set a blistering pace, opening a sizable gap on a chase pack of four runners by the one-mile mark. By mile two, Beaudoin Rousseau had broken away from Gray, steadily extending his lead over the remainder of the climb. He stormed to the summit in 59:51, becoming the first runner to break the one-hour barrier since Gray accomplished the feat in 2017.

The victory was all the more remarkable considering Beaudoin Rousseau underwent double knee surgery in December, didn't resume jogging until April, and has averaged no more than 20 miles per week in training. Simply making it to the starting line was an accomplishment; winning in such dominant fashion was extraordinary. After crossing the finish line, his reaction summed it up best: "That was so hard, but I'm so grateful that I can do it."

Gray was overtaken shortly after the halfway point by Remi Leroux, 29, of Waterloo, Quebec. Leroux held on to finish second in 1:01:54, while Gray claimed third in 1:02:24. The ageless Eric Blake, 47, of West Hartford, Conn., finished fourth in 1:03:00, and defending champion Alexandre Ricard, 37, of Squamish, British Columbia, rounded out the top five in 1:04:00.

On the women's side, Amber Ferreira, 44, of Concord cruised to her second Mt. Washington Road Race victory in four years, posting an impressive time of 1:13:52. Her performance was good for 15th overall and more than a minute faster than her previous winning time. Ferreira led from start to finish, dominating a race that was never in doubt.

Hali Hafeman, 34, of Golden, Colo., finished second in 1:17:02, more than three minutes behind Ferreira. Hannah Rowe, 34, of Boston, Mass., claimed third in 1:18:02 after a strong finish. Close behind was Kasie Enman, 46, of Huntington, Vt., who placed fourth in 1:18:17. Haley Heinrich, 34, of Newbury completed the top five in 1:20:39.

Ferreira also captured the Crossan Cup as the first female finisher from New Hampshire. On the men's side, Sean McCauley, 34, of Canterbury earned Crossan Cup honors by finishing eighth overall in 1:09:43.

The first non-binary finisher was Winter Parts, 28, of Towson, Md., who crossed the line in 1:12:38.

Sponsored by Delta Dental, the race ascends the Mt. Washington Auto Road from Pinkham Notch to the 6,288-foot summit of Mt. Washington. Runners can expect to be challenged by the unrelenting grade (averaging 12 percent), Mt. Washington's famously high winds, precipitation, and unpredictable temperatures, which makes this race truly one of a kind. Prizes include $1,000 apiece for the first male and female finishers, smaller cash prizes for the next five men and women and the top three male and female masters (over 40), prizes for the first male and female finishers from New Hampshire, and a $500 bonus for setting a new course record.

Local residents to participate in 2026

Pan-Mass Challenge to support cancer research

NEEDHAM, Mass. — This August 1 and 2, the Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC) will bring together more than 6,000 cyclists and 4,000 volunteers on August 1-2 to raise money for cancer research and patient care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Participants from local communities will be among those helping support the PMC's mission to fund lifesaving cancer research and treatment.

Local participants include Lynne Martel of New Durham, Steven McCusker of Center Barnstead, David Hamblet of Gilford and Ashley Magoon of Laconia. The PMC, which raises more money for charity than any other single athletic fundraiser in the world, is aiming to raise more than ever this year, with a fundraising goal of $79 million.

This year's PMC comes at an especially critical time, with federal research support shrinking, grant approval rates reaching historic lows, and cancer cases continuing to rise. For the 20th consecutive year, 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar will go directly to Dana-Farber, one of the nation's top three hospitals for cancer research and care.

"The theme for this year's PMC, which is 'now, more than ever,' underscores the paramount importance of every single dollar raised in fueling the search for a cure," said Billy Starr, founder and chairman of the PMC. "We are endlessly grateful to every rider, volunteer, donor, and sponsor who makes the PMC possible. Because of their training miles, long hours of volunteering, generous support, and unwavering commitment, we are moving ever closer to a world without cancer."

Since its inception in 1980, the PMC has raised $1.125 billion for Dana-Farber, making it the organization's largest single contributor and accounting for 67 percent of the annual revenue of The Jimmy Fund, Dana-Farber's community-driven fundraising arm. This unrestricted annual funding has empowered and accelerated advancements in cancer research, deeply benefitting patients across the world.

During each annual PMC weekend, thousands of cyclists and volunteers come together from across the world, hailing from 47 US states and 12 countries, with a shared purpose of raising as much money as possible for Dana-Farber. Cyclists ride routes ranging from 25 to 177 miles. Included among these participants is the PMC Living Proof community, riders and volunteers who were previously treated or are currently undergoing cancer treatment and serve as Living Proof of the progress made through raising funds for cancer research and treatment.

There is still time to participate in this year's Pan-Mass Challenge. Folks interested in getting involved can learn more and register at PMC.org.

About the Pan-Mass Challenge
The Pan-Mass Challenge

(PMC) is a bike-a-thon that today raises more money for charity than any other single athletic fundraising event in the world. Founded in 1980 by Billy Starr - who remains the event's founder & chairman, an annual cyclist, and a fundraiser - the PMC has raised $1.125 billion for Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through the Jimmy Fund. As Dana-Farber's single largest contributor, the organization generates 67 percent of the Jimmy Fund's annual revenue. 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar goes directly to fueling cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber. In addition to its two-day bike-a-thon across Massachusetts, the PMC is powered by further "spokes in the wheel," with initiatives including the PMC Winter Cycle, an indoor spin event; PMC Unpaved, a gravel bike ride; and PMC Kids Rides, mini bike-a-thons for children ages 2 to 15. The PMC attracts riders and volunteers from 47 states and 12 countries and over 300,000 individual donors. Across events, the PMC has successfully melded support from committed cyclists, volunteers, corporate sponsors, and individual donors, all of whom are essential to the PMC's goal and model: to attain maximum fundraising efficiency while increasing its annual gift. The PMC's aspiration is to provide Dana-Farber's doctors and researchers with the necessary resources to discover cures for all cancers. For more information, visit www.pmc.org.

2026 Household Hazardous Waste events are starting up

REGION — The Lakes Region Planning Commission will be hosting its annual Lakes Region Household Hazardous Waste (HHW) collections again in 2026.

This year's event will feature six collection dates and nine collection sites that all participating residents may attend. The season will kick-off on June 20 with collection sites in Franklin and Wolfeboro. The collection season will end on Sept. 19 with the final collection in Laconia. This year, the collections will be open to residents and taxpayers in 22 participating Lakes Region communities.

There is a variety of toxic and harmful materials that can be found in Lakes Region homes. These toxic materials are known as hazardous waste substances that can poison or contaminate our local environment like surface, ground or drinking water. Materials may include flammables, corrosive or reactive substances that can be found in your household, gardening supplies, garage, workbench or art supplies. Toxic materials that pose ground water contamination threats are not allowed at local transfer stations. This is important for protecting human health and the water quality upon which the Lakes Region economy depends.

In addition to the Saturday, June 20 collections in Franklin & Wolfeboro, collections will also be held on Saturday, July 25 in Gilford & Meredith; Saturday, Aug. 1 in Alton & Moultonborough; Thursday, Aug. 27 in Tuftonboro; Thursday, Sept. 3 in Bristol; and Saturday, Sept. 19 in Laconia. Saturday collections will run from 8:30 a.m. – noon, and Thursday collections will run from 2 – 6 p.m. All collection sites will be hosted at the same locations as our 2025 collection event.

Residents and residential taxpayers in the 22 participating communities may bring up to 10 gallons or 50 pounds of household hazardous products in for safe disposal at the collection site that is most convenient for them. Participating communities for the 2026 collections are Alton, Alexandria, Andover, Bridgewater, Bristol, Center Harbor, Franklin, Gilford, Gilmanon, Hebron, Hill, nations from local residents, businesses, and community supporters, the program has been saved for another season.

"We are incredibly grateful to everyone who contributed," said Celeste Chasse, Director of the New Durham Parks & Recreation Department. "This series exists because our community believes in it. Every donation, large or small, helped make these events possible."

Each evening will feature live music, a food truck, and opportunities to connect with friends and neighbors, and a welcoming atmosphere for all ages. Attendees are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets and enjoy a summer evening outdoors.

The series will culminate on Aug. 4 with our third annual National Night Out, a community festival. On this night we'll have Touch-a-truck with the New Durham Police and Paint-a-Plow with DPW starting at 5 p.m. At 5:30 p.m., we'll have a foam party, and all the kids are invited to bring a swimsuit and towel and have some fun in a giant foam pit. There will also be a dinosaur scavenger hunt, yard games, and more. Live music will begin at 6 p.m.

The Library and Parks & Recreation are currently seeking vendors for this year's Tuesdays at the Park series. Vendor spaces are available for $20 per table, providing a great opportunity to connect with local families and community members. Interested vendors can sign up through either the New Durham Public Library or New Durham Parks & Recreation. Vendor fees directly support this community event and help ensure its continued success.

The Library and Parks & Recreation Department would like to extend a special thank you to the individuals and businesses whose generosity made the return of TUESDAYS at the Park possible. Funding for the 2026 concert series was provided through contributions from the Library Board of Trustees, New Durham Parks & Recreation, Meredith Village Savings Bank, and an anonymous donor.

Community members can find updates, performance announcements, and event information through the New Durham Public Library and New Durham Parks & Recreation social media pages.

2026 Tuesdays at the Park schedule

- Tuesday, July 7 features The Revolutionaries.

- Tuesday, July 14 features The Hempcats.

- Tuesday, July 21 Lindsay and Her Puppet Pals will

Share some summer laughs with The Village Players

WOLFEBORO — If you're looking for a little comedy this summer, the Village Players have just the answer.

Veteran Village Players directors Russ Ellis and Jay Sydow take the helm of "The Play That Goes Wrong," a comedy that literally will bring the walls down.

"The Play That Goes Wrong" focuses on Comley University Drama Society's newest production, "The Murder at Haversham Manor," where things are quickly going from bad to utterly disastrous. This 1920s whodunit has everything you never wanted in a show — an unconscious leading lady, a corpse that can't play dead, and actors who trip over everything (including

Bob Tuttle (Arthur the gardener), Kaylin Gagne (Annie) and Christian Boudman (Inspector Carter) make an unusual phone chain in rehearsals for "The Play That Goes Wrong," opening on July 24, at The Village Players Theater in Wolfeboro.

Bean as Inspector Carter), Bob Rautenberg (Jonathan Harris as Charles Haversham), Jonathan Flower (Robert Grove as Thomas Colleymore), Bob Tuttle (Max Bennett as Cecil Haversham and Arthur the gardener), AJ O'Neil (Dennis Tyde as Perkins the butler), Paul Stewart (lights and sound guy Trevor Watson) and returning to the Village Players stage for the first time in many years, Kaylin Gagne (stage manager Annie Twilloil). Sarah Kuhn (Sandra Wilkinson as Florence Colleymore), who made her Village Players debut in last summer's "Calendar Girls," returns to the stage.

Monty Python, part Sherlock Holmes, this Olivier Award-winning comedy is a global phenomenon that's guaranteed to leave you aching with laughter.

The cast on the stage includes plenty of familiar faces to Village Players patrons as well as a couple newcomers making their debut on the Glendon Street stage. Veteran actors on the Village Players stage include Christian Boudman (Chris debut. "The Play That Goes Wrong" will be on the Village Players stage on July 24, 25 and 31 and Aug. 1, all at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 2, at 2 p.m. Once again, The Village Players are offering tiered ticket prices for patrons who purchase tickets online. The $45 "Hero" ticket helps to sustain Village Players shows in addition to covering costs including heating/cooling, cleaning, repairs, insurance and general upkeep of the building. The "Patron" $20 ticket pays for the current show costs including costumes, publicity, scenery, scripts, sheet music, musicians and props. VP is also offering a $10 ticket for "Friends." This price contributes to the current show while keeping ticket prices at a minimum. The theater hopes this price keeps prices affordable for the community. Tickets are available at Black's Paper and Gifts and online at village-players.com.

"The Play That Goes Wrong" is generously sponsored by Dr. Richard J. Neal, DMD.
