Gilford alpine girls race to win at Bretton Woods

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING
Sports Editor

BRETTON WOODS — It wasn't quite the meet that was planned, but the Gilford alpine ski team did kick off the new season on Bretton Woods on Wednesday, Dec. 17, and the Golden Eagle girls picked up the win, with the boys in second.

The day was originally scheduled to have two runs of giant slalom and one run of slalom, but timing problems and other issues made for a very long first run (the girls alone took more than an hour) and the format was changed to two giant slalom runs and an optional third run at 2 p.m. Gilford did not take part in the optional third run.

Mckenna Howard led the way for the Gilford alpine girls in the opening meet at Bretton Woods last week.

Mckenna Howard led the way for the Golden Eagles with a third place finish in a time of 56.55 seconds for the two runs with Lily Bishop in fourth place in 56.85 seconds. Riley Coutts was sixth overall in 57.92 seconds and Emilia Burlock finished out the scoring with a time of 1:00.56 for 17th place.

Natalie Villareal was 38th overall in 1:04.94, Brooke Baron was 40th in 1:05, Josie Arrighi was 64th in 1:17.22, Alicia Lyman finished in 1:22.72 for 69th place and Madison Thompson rounded out the field of Golden Eagle girls in 1:22.85 for 70th place.

Bode Badger led the way for the Gilford boys, finishing in a time of 56.61 seconds for eighth place overall. Joel Wernig was 15th in a time of 58.89 seconds and Zachary Arenstam was 26th in 1:00.85. Oliver Leandro rounded out the scoring for Gilford in 29th place in 1:01.53.

Mount Major Snowmobile Club opens meetings to public

ALTON — The Mount Major Snowmobile Club meets on the second Tuesday of the month from September to April, at 6pm, and meetings are open to the public. If you ride the trails in Alton, your input is important, and you can join the meeting and get involved.

We are currently meeting at the American Legion Post 72, 164 Wolfeboro Hwy, Alton, NH 03809. Check our Facebook page (Mount Major Snowmobile Club Riders) for trail conditions and other news. Snowmobile trail maps can be found at www.sled-nh.com/nh-snowmobile-trail-map.

We have a minor reroute on corridor 22 near the end of Alton Mountain Rd (the trail now goes behind the new houses). That section is a little rough this year, and will be improved next year. We rely on the generosity of landowners in order to have trails, so trails are closed when snowmobiling would damage the land. Please respect the landowners and only ride on designated trails. Since many folks share the trails (hikers, families, cross country skiers, snowshoers and occasional wildlife) Please ride responsibly.

Be well, and "Keep the Track Side Down."

Local students earn academic awards at Brewster

WOLFEBORO — Among Brewster Academy’s Fall Trimester Academic Award recipients, 35 call the Lakes Region home, each receiving honor roll status for their scholarly work since the school year began in September. Day students from local towns make up about 20 percent of Brewster’s 340 students, living at home but learning on campus. And though they don’t sleep on campus, day students are assigned to residence halls so they can take part in the social fun that each house or hall enjoys throughout the year, from holiday decorating contests and food drives to movie nights and s’mores around the firepit.

Faculty, staff, and fellow students cheered as each received a special pin at an All-School Meeting earlier this month. At Brewster, Summa Cum Laude designation goes to students with grades of 92 or higher, and all courses must be at the Accelerated or AP level. An honor of Magna Cum Laude indicates grades of 90 or higher in all courses. A Cum Laude designation is awarded to students with grades of 85 or higher in all courses. For more information about Brewster’s academic program, Instructional Support options, and admissions deadlines for the 2026-27 school year, visit www.brewsteracademy.org.

When the calendar turns, so do our responsibilities

The stretch between Christmas and New Year’s often feels like borrowed time. The decorations are still up. The routines are still on pause. And the new year waits just far enough ahead that it does not yet demand our full attention.

But in towns like ours, the turning of the calendar carries a quieter meaning. Jan. 1 does not arrive with fireworks here. It arrives with select boards, school districts, fire departments, and volunteer groups already thinking about what the next twelve months will require. While many of us are reflecting on personal goals, our communities are preparing for practical ones.

Winter is the first test. Snow and ice put immediate pressure on public works crews, emergency responders, and town budgets. Roads have to be cleared. Equipment has to hold up. Overtime adds up quickly. When storms come in clusters, there is no recovery period. The work simply continues. That reality is easy to forget when the plows do their job well and the lights stay on.

This is also the season when town government becomes most visible, even if it rarely feels dramatic. Budgets drafted in quiet offices shape what happens later in the year, from road repairs to library hours to school programs. Decisions made now determine how prepared our towns will be for both routine needs and unexpected challenges. The work is not flashy, but it is foundational.

As residents, the new year is a good time to reengage with that process, even in small ways. Reading meeting agendas. Signing up for town email alerts. Attending a meeting or watching a recording. Asking questions respectfully and early, rather than waiting until a decision feels final. Local government works best when participation is steady, not just loud when something goes wrong.

There is a personal side to this, too. Winter can isolate people, especially older residents and those who live alone. The holidays pass, visitors leave, and the long evenings settle in. A new year resolution does not have to be ambitious to be meaningful. Checking in on a neighbor once a week. Offering a ride when roads are icy. Making sure someone knows who to call if the power goes out. These small actions reduce pressure on emergency services and strengthen the social fabric that towns rely on when systems are strained.

Local institutions matter in this moment as well. Libraries, recreation departments, and community organizations provide structure and connection when daylight is short and options feel limited. Their budgets and staffing depend, in part, on public understanding of their value. Supporting them does not always mean spending money. It can mean showing up, volunteering, or simply recognizing that their presence is part of what makes winter manageable.

The new year invites optimism, but it also invites responsibility. In a small community, those two ideas are not in conflict. They reinforce each other. When people pay attention, stay involved, and look out for one another, towns function better. Problems are addressed earlier. Resources stretch further. Trust holds.

As the calendar turns, the best resolution may be a simple one: to stay connected to the place we live, not only when it is convenient or celebratory, but throughout the quieter months when that connection matters most.

LETTERS FROM EDWIN Options

I spent another year hunting the elusive antler bearing deer. It wasn't as super cold as it could have been. But even still, I put in the time and saw nothing. A friend of mine totaled his van into one. Other than that, only tracks and scrapes and scat.

After the previous snowstorm, I went for a ski out behind my house and came across some large hoof prints out around the stone wall. The tracks were solitary, which is characteristic of bucks. They came in from the woods on the right, crossed my property, zig zagging over the stone wall, then headed off onto my neighbor's property on the other side.

We had a couple more inches the other night. When I looked out my bathroom window in the morning, I saw another lone set of deer tracks that came from the stone wall all the way up to behind the house where remnants of the broccoli remained. I figured that he must have cleaned up whatever there was left.

Judging from the size of the tracks, he's a pretty good-sized buck. It would certainly be nice to get a look at him, the season being now over, he's safe till next November. As long as he keeps himself off the roads.

We had another few inches the other night. It's so amazing! This is actually December. There hasn't been this much snow before Christmas in years. It's wonderful, but will it last. There always comes a January thaw and Christmas week always seems to bring rain.

The reasonable forecasts are now telling me that by the end of the week, the temperatures will be nudging fifty along with rain. That spells disaster for all the nice snow we've been enjoying for a week now. We need to be thankful for what we've had and hope it doesn't get totally destroyed and all go away. Here's to wishing that at least some could remain as an icy base, shielding the rocks below. It may not be very skiable, but at least it would protect the skis once we get more snow.

I finally realized that it's almost Christmas. Everything comes and goes so quickly. I still haven't gotten a tree or even started decorating the house. I'm wondering if it will even be accomplished this year.

Caroling anyone? What ever happened to that? I remember going out with groups of people singing Christmas songs to strangers. I also remember walking the streets of Rochester, Dover and Portsmouth playing Christmas songs on my baritone horn.

In fact, while checking out a farmers market this summer with a friend, we stopped at a booth to be greeted by hearing my name being called out. The woman there used to work with me at a local factory and she extolled her fond memory of the time I walked throughout the assembly floor playing Christmas songs on my horn. It's nice that somebody remembers.

Speaking about memories, a friend just sent me a link to a "thing" that talked all about those of us who grew up in the sixties, what we went through, and did some psychoanalysis there upon. Those psycho-people drive me nuts. It amazes me what some people get paid to do.

I just got back from a ski lesson with a nice young lady. She was actually a senior, but to me, the vast majority of women are younger these days. Being an alpine skier, she quickly took to all the basics, so we then just went skiing. We went all around the mountain.

It's overwhelming how nice the snow is at present. A rarity for this time of year. I think it should continue being so through tomorrow afternoon, then a warm spell is expected to encroach upon the area and do nasty things to this beautiful crystal-line carpet.

By the time I get home it'll be too dark to head off into the woods to find a tree. I kind of prefer the Charlie Brown variety. There were actually some prime specimens growing close to my house that it didn't occur to me till right after cutting them down and tossing them over the stone wall that they'd make good Christmas trees. So now I'll need to search elsewhere.

They were white pines, and I'd prefer a spruce, so I'll need to expand my radius of search. They're out there. I've found them before.

Powerhouse earns 20 semi-finalist nominations at NH Theatre Awards!

Semi-finalists in the Performer in a leading role categories are Kyle Sidders and Rachel Hunton as Quasimodo and Esmeralda in “The Hunchback of Notre Dame,” and Jakob Stone and Maci Johnson as Otto and Anne Frank in “The Diary of Anne Frank.”

LACONIA — Powerhouse Theatre Collaborative, the resident theatre company of the Colonial Theatre, has received 20 semi-finalist nods at the NH Theatre Alliance’s annual Theatre Awards for the 2025 season. Powerhouse entered two productions into this year’s competition, May’s production of “The Hunchback of Notre Dame” and October’s production of “The Diary of Anne Frank.”

To participate in the Awards, process a theatre company has to provide at least one trained adjudicator for each show submitted who will go see other entered shows throughout the state during the year. Each show entered has six adjudicators attend the show and then submit their scores to the NHTA organization, which oversees the adjudication process and produces the end of season awards show each year. There are shows entered across three divisions: professional, community, and youth. Powerhouse participates in the community theatre division where no performers are compensated for their participation.

“Hunchback” was recognized in almost every category in the community musical division: Rachel Hunton as Esmeralda and Kyle Sidders as Quasimodo in the performance in a leading role category; Alex Hunton as Phoebus, Jakob Stone as Frollo, and Adam Beauparlant as Clopin in the performance in a supporting role category;

Tyler Soucy for lighting design; Samantha Tutas for set design; Gay Bean and Heather Vitale for costume design; Laura Iwaskiewicz and Jillian Spring for music direction; Meg King for choreography; Bryan Halperin and Meg King for direction; and best production of a community musical. Powerhouse has won the community musical award two years in a row with Captains Courageous the Musical and Tuck Everlasting.

“Anne Frank” was Powerhouse’s first entry into the play category after only entering musicals the prior two years. This production is well represented in the semi-finalist lists as well, with Maci Johnson as Anne and Jakob Stone as Otto in the leading role category. Tamara McGonagle as Mrs Van Daan and Kenny Aber as Mr Van Daan are in the supporting category. Lighting designer Tyler Soucy and set designer Samantha Tutas were both recognized in their categories for this show as well. Bryan Halperin is also a semi-finalist in the play director category and the production is up for best production of a community play.

Halperin is no stranger to the NHTAs, as he has won the best director award eight prior times including the past two years for Powerhouse. Johnson was a winner in the leading performer in a musical category last year for playing Winnie Foster in “Tuck Everlasting.”

“While Powerhouse produces theatre to challenge and inspire our participants and share stories and connect with our community, it is still nice to be recognized for consistently producing quality productions in New Hampshire. Win or lose, we are extremely proud of all the productions in our 2025 season and grateful for all those who participated onstage, behind the scenes and by attending!” says Halperin.

This year’s winners will be announced on Jan. 31, 2026 at the annual NHTA Awards Show at the Capitol Center for the Arts in Concord. A large contingency of Powerhouse’s Power Players will attend together and celebrate the year in NH Theatre with the rest of the theatre community. If you are interested in attending with the Powerhouse group reach out to info@powerhousenh.org or individual tickets can be purchased directly from the CCA’s website ccanh.com after the group sales are completed on Jan. 6.

Tickets for Powerhouse’s 2026 Colonial season, including the 5 show Colonial Series subscription package, will be onsale in the new year. Check out powerhousenh.org for all the details.

Finding hope in hardship

A family’s message to the community about mental health and substance use

LACONIA — When people met Todd Taylor, they saw a devoted father, a steady job, and a close-knit family. What they didn’t see was his lifelong struggle with mental health challenges, a family history of addiction, and years spent trying to find the proper treatment before passing away from an accidental overdose in 2018.

Today, his family shares his story to help others feel less alone and to encourage those struggling to reach out sooner.

“My husband wasn’t defined by his illness,” said Tarah Morel-Taylor. “He tried so hard. You’re not alone, and you’re not broken. There are people who understand and want to help.”

Local providers agree that early support can be lifesaving. The Director of Substance Use Services for Concord Hospital - Franklin and Laconia, Corey Gately, MLADC, says many patients face barriers like Todd’s.

“No one should have to wait for help,” said Gately, who also oversees the Recovery Clinic in Franklin and Gilford as well as Laconia’s Doorway. “Asking for help is courageous. Whether someone is taking their first step or has struggled for years, we meet people exactly where they are without judgment.”

For many, symptoms can begin subtly: seasonal sadness, overwhelming stress, isolation, exhaustion, changes in sleep or appetite, or a loss of interest in once-loved hobbies. Todd’s fight began with depression and anxiety that he struggled to stabilize despite trying multiple medications.

Gately emphasizes that it is the act of reaching out, not the absence of struggle, that defines strength.

“Asking for help is not failure. It’s courage. And there is a whole team ready to walk alongside you,” he said.

Resources are available throughout the region. Concord Hospital Health System’s primary care practices can help patients recognize early signs of depression, anxiety, or substance abuse and connect them to counseling or medication support. The Doorway offers 24/7 access to treatment, recovery coaches, and referrals for long-term care. The Recovery Clinic at Concord Hospital – Laconia provides evidence-based care for opioid and alcohol use disorders.

By offering grace, eliminating stigma, and encouraging others to reach for help sooner, families like Todd’s are helping transform heartache into hope.

“We can’t change what happened to my husband,” Tarah said. “But we can change what happens to someone else. If sharing his story encourages even one person to reach out for help, then his struggle wasn’t for nothing.”

Mental health struggles and substance use disorders touch every community. If you or someone you love is struggling with mental health or substance use challenges, help is available now, and there is no wrong time to reach out. For information on mental health and substance use resources, visit concordhospital.org or contact The Doorway in your region.

Two Loons rescued from lakes as cold snap hits New Hampshire

Public urged to look out for loons in danger of becoming iced-in as larger lakes begin to freeze

MOULTONBOROUGH — As temperatures cooled in early December, many of New Hampshire’s smaller lakes froze over, some with Common Loons still lingering on the water. The Loon Preservation Committee (LPC) responded to multiple reports of loons at risk of becoming trapped on frozen lakes, ultimately rescuing two.

“We received calls from several lakes where loons were in danger of becoming iced-in,” said Harry Vogel, Senior Biologist and Executive Director of LPC. “Fortunately, most of the loons reported to us were able to make it off of the lakes on their own, at the last minute. But intervention was needed in two cases.”

The rescued loons included a juvenile from Big Diamond Pond in Stewartstown and an adult from Deering Reservoir in Deering.

Loons are heavy-bodied birds that need to run across a long stretch of open water, up to a quarter of a mile on a calm day, to build up enough speed to generate lift and take flight. If loons remain on lakes as they start to freeze, they can become confined to small patches of open water. Without enough runway space to take off, iced-in loons will eventually be forced up on top of the ice, where they are vulnerable to starvation, the elements, and predators such as bald eagles.

Most loons migrate to their ocean wintering grounds during the fall, well before ice forms. But each year, at least a few linger into the winter. LPC has rescued over 70 loons from the ice since 2005. In some cases, underlying issues such as lead poisoning, injury, or sickness explain why a loon failed to migrate on time. However, many rescued birds show no obvious physical impairment.

Biologists are not yet certain why otherwise healthy loons sometimes stay long enough to risk becoming iced-

in. Climate change may play a role, Vogel notes, as LPC tends to see an uptick in the number of ice rescues in years with warmer fall and early winter temperatures. If a warm fall causes loons to remain on lakes longer than they normally would and is then followed by a quick cold snap that rapidly freezes lakes, or if ice in is delayed and coincides with the molt of adult loons’ flight feathers, loons can become trapped. Vogel said that each winter rescue allows LPC to learn more about why loons get iced-in.

Both loons rescued in December were evaluated by veterinarians. The juvenile rescued on Big Diamond Pond had no signs of physical impairment. The adult from Deering Reservoir had damage to several feathers on her left wing, preventing her from being able to fly. After veterinary evaluation, both loons were deemed fit for release and were banded and released on the New Hampshire coast.

“Loons winter all along the Atlantic Coast, so these loons have been brought directly to appropriate winter habitat,” said Vogel.

He noted that the Deering loon’s missing flight feathers are not a concern on the ocean, where she will have no need to fly.

“The Deering loon will molt and regrow all of her flight feathers in January or February, so come spring, she should be in good shape to migrate back to her breeding lake,” Vogel said.

Although the early December cold snap froze most of New Hampshire’s smaller lakes, larger lakes remain open and are likely to freeze over in the coming weeks. LPC asks members of the public who spend time on or around lakes that are still open to keep an eye out for loons in danger of icing in. Anyone who sees a loon confined to a small patch of open water is asked to contact the Loon Preservation Committee at (603)476-5666. LPC urges the public not to attempt to rescue loons themselves, as these rescues can be dangerous for both the human rescuer and the loon without proper protective gear and training.

The Loon Preservation Committee monitors loons throughout the state as part of its mission to restore and maintain a healthy population of loons in New Hampshire; to monitor the health and productivity of loon populations as sentinels of environmental quality; and to promote a greater understanding of loons and the natural world. LPC was formed in 1975 in response to a severe decline in New Hampshire’s common loon population. For more information, please visit the Loon Preservation Committee Web site at www.loon.org

PETS OF THE WEEK

Meet Simi!

Simi is the total package — handsome, loyal, and full of energy! This athletic boy loves to run, jump, and show off his playful spirit, so a home that can give him plenty of exercise and adventure is a must. Whether it’s a long walk, a backyard sprint, or a good game of fetch, Simi is always ready to move.

Once his zoomies are out of the way, though, he’s all about snuggles.

True to his velcro-dog excited, he proudly picks up his favorite toy to show it off — and yes, he insists his harness goes around both him and his toy. Simi would prefer to be the only dog in the home without other pets- he loves to chase and hunt smaller animals for fun.

A man knows what he wants, after all!

Simi always looks dashing in his signature bandana and is ready to steal hearts (and maybe a few squeaky toys) wherever he goes. If you’re looking for a loyal best friend with energy, style, and endless affection, Simi is your guy.

Warmth & More Fund helping to keep the heat on WOLFEBORO — Five years ago, the Warmth & More Fund was created to help members of our community who need help making it through the winter, keeping their homes livable, the lights on, and the pipes from bursting. Thanks to so many generous donors in the community, the fund has distributed tens of thousands of dollars to help elderly and families. Recent assistance includes providing heating oil for seniors and young families, furnace and water pump repairs, and payment of electricity bills. This year is particularly challenging with the high costs of housing, insurance, and basic necessities; even two income families can have a hard time making ends meet. Federal fuel assistance often isn't enough to get people through the winter. Come February some need help buying fuel to get them to the warm weather. A divorce can cut income in half and may mean trying to stretch dollars even further. For seniors living solely on Social Security, a broken furnace or water pump can be life threatening. Thanks to so many in the community, the Warmth & More Fund has been there to help. Recent donations from The Wolfeboro Lion's Club and the First Congregational Church Gifts of Hope Market, as well as local businesses and private donors, large and small, have helped the Fund start building its coffers to provide assistance for the upcoming heating season. The fund is hoping to raise $35,000. If you would like to join others in the community by donating to the Fund, send a check made out to Town of Wolfeboro with Warmth & More Fund noted in the memo to: Amy Capone-Muccio, Town Manager's Office, Town of Wolfeboro, PO Box 629, Wolfeboro, NH 03894, or drop it off at Town Hall. For more information call Amy at (603) 569-8161. Every penny donated goes directly to assist those in need. If you are interested in donating in honor of a special event or person, the Fund can arrange to send a letter of acknowledgement to the recipient. It is the perfect gift for the person in your life who has everything.

MVSB celebrates President Marcus Weeks for 30 years of leadership, service, and community impact

MEREDITH — MVSB (Meredith Village Savings Bank) proudly celebrates President Marcus Weeks for 30 years of dedicated service. Born and raised in the Lakes Region, Weeks began his banking career in 1995 as a student teller at MVSB’s Center Harbor Office. Over the past three decades, he has grown alongside the Bank — gaining experience across nearly every area of the organization and developing a deep appreciation for the vital role mutual banks play in supporting the people, businesses, and communities they serve.

After beginning as a student teller, he was promoted to Mortgage Loan Officer in 2003, transitioned to Business Development Officer in 2007, and became Assistant Vice President in 2009. In 2012, he took on the role of Branch and Business Development Manager for the Bank’s then-new Wolfeboro Office, where he played a key role in earning trust and building relationships within the community.

His success in Wolfeboro led to a promotion to Vice President, Business Development Officer, where he oversaw business banking relationships and supported the advancement of a number of business banking services and online tools. His leadership continued to grow as he was promoted to Senior Vice President and Senior Retail Banking Officer in 2018, contributing at the senior management level for both MVSB and New

Marcus Weeks

Hampshire Mutual Bank (NHMB). In 2022, he was named President of MVSB.

During his three decades with MVSB, Weeks has witnessed tremendous change within both the organization and the banking industry. Highlights include MVSB’s roll-out of bank-by-phone service, the launch of debit cards, and the introduction of the Bank’s first Web site, online banking, and online applications for checking and savings accounts, as well as residential and commercial loans. During this time, MVSB also grew significantly — from five branch offices to fifteen — joined forces with The Merrimack, NHTrust, and Savings Bank of Walpole through the New Hampshire Mutual Bank alliance, and experienced four presidential transitions.

His leadership and community involvement have earned him numerous honors, including recognition as Business Leader of the Year by Business NH Magazine, Community Banker of the Year by the New Hampshire Bankers Association, and recipient of the NH Business Review Business Excellence Award in the Financial Services category.

“Marcus’s journey to President is a true reflection of his dedication, integrity, and deep commitment to the people and communities MVSB serves,” said Gregg Tewksbury, President and CEO of New Hampshire Mutual Bank. “He leads with humility and heart, inspiring those around him to make a difference every day. His leadership has strengthened MVSB’s culture and positioned the Bank for continued success.”

Weeks’ leadership

extends far beyond the Bank’s walls. Throughout his career, he has been an active volunteer for numerous non-profit organizations and currently serves on the President’s Advisory Council for Lakes Region Community College, as Vice President of the Board for Geneva Point Center, and as a Board Member for the Boys & Girls Club of Central and Northern NH and Spaulding Academy & Family Services. He also supports community giving initiatives at MVSB and serves on the MVSB Fund Distribution Committee.

“MVSB has always been guided by a simple yet powerful principle — to do what’s right for our customers, our employees, and the communities we call home,” said Weeks. “I’ve been fortunate to learn from incredible mentors as I’ve built my career here and to work alongside so many talented and caring individuals. I am deeply proud of all we’ve accomplished together and excited for what lies ahead.”

MVSB has been serving the essential banking needs of people, businesses, nonprofits and municipalities for more than 150 years. As a mutual savings bank, MVSB has no stockholders but rather operates for the benefit of its customers, employees and community. Since our founding, one thing has always remained true: caring is at the heart of everything we do. By building and nurturing relationships, we believe that we can cultivate a community where we all thrive. It all starts with caring about our customers and neighbors. To learn more, visit any of the local branch offices

Golden Eagles battle but come up short against champs

BY JOSHUA SPAULDING

GILFORD — Gilford and Belmont share a locker room at the hockey arena. And for a number of years, they shared a locker room at the football facility as well.

But when it comes to boys' basketball, you'd be hard-pressed to find a better rivalry in the Lakes Region than the Golden Eagles and the Raiders and the matchup between the two teams on Monday, Dec. 16, lived up to the hype.

The host Golden Eagles held a slight lead at the half-time break, but the defending champions pulled away in the second half and took the 57-47 win.

"It showed a lot of good things and some things the boys need to work on," said Belmont coach Tony Martinez. "Brody (Ennis) and Wyatt (Carroll) were the only ones who saw minutes in the championship game, so we're relatively inexperienced at this level."

"Look at that third quarter, we struggled to score, but we'll figure it out," said Gilford coach Rick Acquilano. "But we competed at the end of the day."

Evan Martinez scored the first two baskets of the game for Belmont before Mark Uicker and Henry Sleeper answered for the Raiders at the other end of the court. Ennis connected on a three-pointer for the Raiders but Uicker answered with a three-point play for the Golden Eagles.

Carroll then converted a three-point play for Belmont, Wyatt Bamford drilled a three-pointer and Wyatt Divers hit a hoop to open the Raider lead to 15-7. Uicker connected on a pair of free throws and Sleeper put back a rebound. Owen Hawkins finished out the first quarter with a pair of free throws for the Golden Eagles and Belmont's lead was 15-13 at the end of the first quarter.

A Uicker hoop opened the second quarter and Sleeper hit a free throw to give Gilford its first lead of the game. Uicker finished off a steal for the 18-15 lead before Owen Viar hit a hoop to get the Raiders on the board. Hawkins drained a hoop and Ennis connected on a bucket to cut the lead to one point.

Sleeper came back with a three-pointer for the Golden Eagles before Belmont scored the next five points. Martinez started the run with a free throw then Ennis hit two from the line and Viar and Carroll each hit one from the line to give Belmont the 24-23 lead. Uicker then got the final basket of the first half and Gilford led 25-24 at the halftime break.

Viar got the Raiders on the board to start the second half and after a Uicker free throw, Martinez hit a hoop. Ryan Folan drained a free throw to cut the lead to one but Martinez hit a three-pointer and a bucket and Brady Fysh hit a hoop to open the lead to 35-27.

Hawkins hit two free throws and Fysh drained one at the other end to answer. Gavin Forest finished off a steal for the Golden Eagles but Ennis finished out the third quarter with a hoop and Belmont led 38-31 heading to the final eight minutes.

Divers got the first basket of the fourth quarter and Sleeper connected on a pair of free throws at the other end. Carroll drained a bucket for the Raiders before Hawkins hit a three-pointer to cut the lead to 42-36. Bamford drained his second three-pointer of the game, Carroll hit a free throw and Martinez connected on a bucket and Belmont had the lead out to 12 at 48-36.

Hawkins ended the Raider run with a free throw but Divers got Belmont back on the board with a hoop and Viar hit a free throw. After another Hawkins hoop, Carroll got a free throw for Belmont and Uicker found the bottom of the net from long distance to cut the lead to 10. Ennis and Hawkins both hit a pair of free throws at opposite ends before Ennis hit two more from the line and Carroll added a free throw. Sleeper connected on a three-pointer to finish out the game's scoring and Belmont had the 57-47 win.

"Having an environment like this against a good team like Gilford, it's great for the kids," Martinez said. "Teams will only get better as the season goes and so will we."

"We're the defending champions, we have a target on our back, but this was a good learning opportunity and we'll take it to practice," he continued. "We'll get back to work."

"We have to execute better and we know that," Acquilano said. "We'll get there."

Martinez led the Raiders with 14 points while Ennis finished with 13 points. Gilford was led by Uicker's 17 points while Hawkins added 14 and Sleeper finished with 13.

The Raiders were in action after early holiday deadlines on Dec. 19 and Dec. 22, both against Campbell and Gilford was in action after early holiday deadlines Dec. 19, against Stevens and Dec. 23 against Conant.

Gilford will once again host the Lakes Region Holiday Hoop Tournament and kick off against Plymouth at 4 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 27. They will play again on Sunday, Dec. 28, against an opponent to be determined, with the tournament finals on Monday, Dec. 29, at 6 p.m.

Belmont will take part in the Mike Lee Holiday Basketball Bash in Farmington, starting on Friday, Dec. 26, at 3:15 p.m. against Portsmouth Christian. They take on Kennett at 10:15 a.m. on Saturday, Dec. 27, and the tournament continues on Sunday, Dec. 28, and Monday, Dec. 29, with the finals set for Tuesday, Dec. 30, at 7 p.m.
